LETTERS TO SANTA

Dear Santa:

A Burglar and Christmas: Second Page

Filling the Dark and Taking Stock

Mr. and Mrs. Jackon were both six years old. Mrs. Jackon was the oldest in her family. They lived in a small town called Decorativeville.

On Christmas Eve, Mrs. Jackon was reading a book to her younger brother, Jack. The book was about a burglar who had stolen many Christmas presents.

Suddenly, there was a loud noise at the door. Mrs. Jackon said, "Jack, the burglar is here!"

Jack got up from his chair and asked, "What should we do?"

Mrs. Jackon replied, "We should stay calm and call the police."

Jack ran to the telephone and dialed 911. The police officer who answered the phone asked Jack what had happened.

Jack explained, "The burglar is in our house!"

The officer told Jack that the police would be there soon. He also asked Jack if he had heard any sounds.

Jack said, "I heard a noise and a loud bang."

The officer warned Jack to stay away from the door and window.

A few minutes later, the police arrived at Mrs. Jackon and Jack's house. They searched the house but did not find anything.

Jack told the officers about the book he had been reading earlier that day. He said, "I think it's a coincidence."

The officers smiled and thanked Jack for his information.

Mrs. Jackon and Jack went to bed that night, feeling a little bit nervous. But they knew that the police would keep them safe.

The next day, they received a letter from Santa Claus. It said that he had heard about their adventure and was proud of them for being brave.

Mrs. Jackon and Jack were very happy to receive the letter. They knew that Christmas was a time for miracles and wonder.

The end.

"DON'T SHOOT ME!"

Telephone wires constitute every important property, and certainly no thinking person would deliberately black these calls in shooting down telephone wires. Yet, almost every day, telephone wires must repair damage caused by careless persons.

The inconvenience to telephone users of course, the most serious result of broken wires, but there is another important consideration. There is pressing need for reconstruction, and time spent in repairing this type of trouble is time that might be used to further the big job of properspnship in which everyone is vitally concerned.

If you have occasion to use firearms, please be sure your shots are not fired in the direction of telephone lines. A moment's thought before you pull the trigger will prevent distress to you, unnecessary and time for busy telephone men.

The importance that our tele- phone wires carry important messages.

The inconvenience to the telephone user is almost incalculable. In the case of the long distance call, the user does not receive a service worth the cost of the call, and time is wasted in waiting for the call to be completed.

"Because of such activity, the tele- phone service is an important link in the chain of communication. This is especially true in times of emergency, when every second counts. For this reason, it is important that we protect our telephone wires.
