Judge Robbins is Dead

Dean of Mayfield Bar is Victim at Heart Disease.

Judge J. E. Robbins, 71, dean of the Mayfield bar, and one of Western Kentucky's ablest legal authorities, died at his home in Fulton, Ky., Sunday, Nov. 1, at 1:15. Judge Robbins was well known in the Bluegrass country, south of Mayfield, for his many years of devoted service in the cause of justice and the people of this section, but now resides in Mayfield, from which he retired in 1919.

His first office was court surveyor in 1875, and since then he had served as city attorney, judge of the county circuit court, circuit judge of the Second Judicial District and sergeant-at-arms of the Kentucky legislature. He was the first president of the old Greens County Bar Association and Frank County Bar Association, and was the model of a lawyer of the past century. In 1890 he was appointed special judge of the Scott Circuit Court to try the case against Col. Stirling, a matter of great interest in connection with the development of the Kentucky coal fields.
