THE LISTENING POST

● Lots of time it is smart to borrow, and in this case I believe a Florida newspaper man has written something which really has a message for the American people. It has already had wide distribution through newspaper trade publications, and I am doing my bit in passing it on to the people of this community. The article is written by Ernest Lyon of the Sturt, Florida, News.

GIVE US A BATTLE CRY

● How do little towns like Stuart feel about the war? How do the men in overalls, the fishermen and farmers, the housewives and grocers in little county towns like this feel about the unknown and perilous adventure on which America has embarked?

● The Stuart News, in this editorial, will attempt to tell you, perhaps not too accurately, perhaps not too articulately, but better certainly than anyone else, because we are the eyes, the ears and the voice of one of the thousands of small towns which make up the blood, the flesh, the bone and that intangible something called the spirit of America. We believe that it is important how we feel because here, in the small communities scattered from Maine to California, facetiously called flag-stops and hick towns, where men, women and children live close to the trees and the earth, are the resources which make our nation great, and something more. Here lives the American spirit.

● First, we are sick and tired of the word "Defense." We are plain, common-sense folks. Despite the fact that we are played for suckers in the movies, and our plain common-sense tells us that no nation ever won a war on the basic pattern of "Defense."

● We feel, rightly or wrongly, terribly let down by the failure of our leadership to give us a battle cry which will strike to the human heart. We want to win this war more than we want to save our material possessions, and it gives us a pain in the neck when Washington yells "Complacency" at us, after spending the first three months of the war patterning the national psychology along the defense lines of a courageous, but withal, cornered and beleaguered England.

● We feel that we are being low-rated, in that the only war cry which has been given to America so far is "Defense." Words are powerful weapons. They are the rails on which thought travels. Thought is the foundation of nations and governments, wars and peace. We believe that the word "Defense," implying the thought of protection from assault, is not the sort of word with which to win a war. We feel like shouting at Washington and New York: "This is not England. This is mighty America, still able to make the world shake when she roars to the attack!" This is America, England's only hope--in fact, the only hope of all the common men of all the world--America, whose freedoms and privileges were won by free men with the sword to shine like a bright beacon for 300 years--now put on the defensive by a lot of namby-pamby public relations experts.

● Just before embattled Singapore went down, a picture was released and carried in the American press. It was a photograph of a mobile ambulance unit. In letters which foretold grimly the tragedy to come, the ambulance carried the label: PASSIVE DEFENSE CORPS.

● In this little country town of Stuart, just as in every other town and city in the United States, there is a headquarters to direct the energies and efforts of civilians who want to have a hand in helping this country win the war. A sign above the portal of this building

Axis Relaxing Submarine Campaign Of U. S. Atlantic Coast

Washington.—Naval sources said today that there appeared to be a slight relaxation in the Axis submarine campaign off the Atlantic coast but they were unwilling to concede that the worst is over.

The Navy has announced the submarine sinking of only two ships in American coastal waters in the last week—the 8,215-ton ore carrier Marore and the 2,850-ton Norwegian motorship Leif. Two other ships were believed sunk but the cause was unknown.

They believed that the drop in the number of ships sunk may have been because of the departure of some of the submarines for home ports or of improved anti-submarine measures by our Navy, or a combination of both.

It was pointed out that other submarines may be on the way to relieve those which may have left these waters and that the campaign against the United Nations shipping may be resumed with renewed vigor.

To date, individual announcements have been made of approximately 70 attacks against ships off the United States, Canadian and

Washington.—President Roosevelt dismissed proposals for a merger of Army and Navy under one department today with a remark that the services seemed to be working well together under the present system.

At the same time, Chairman May (D., Ky.), of the House military affairs committee urged that agitation for a unified command cease. He said the proponents of such a consolidation should not "rock the boat in time of storm."

During the day, Senator Clark (D.-Mo.), long an advocate of combining the War and Navy Departments in a "department of national defense," introduced a bill to carry his plan into effect.

Under his measure, the head of the new department would, under the President, be in command of the land, sea and air forces. The present post of secretary of Navy would be abolished.

The President also discouraged discussion of the possibility of establishing a supreme command. A reporter mentioned that Senator Chandler (D.-Ky.), had said such a step was imminent. Mr. Roosevelt asked the correspondent what was meant by the term supreme command. The correspondent said he did not know. The President added, then, that neither did any one else who was writing on the subject.

Mr. Roosevelt explained that reorganization of the "naval" command, announced yesterday, as a move toward simplification and streamlining, equivalent to recent changes in the Army. In yesterday's shakeup, Admiral Ernest J. King, heretofore chief of the United States fleet the world around, was made chief of naval operations as well. Admiral Harold R. Stark, formerly chief of operations, was assigned to command American warships in European waters.

During the day, the President conferred with Admiral King, and also with Admiral Thomas Hart, recently returned from the Western Pacific where he formerly commanded all Allied naval operations.

Now is the time to subscribe for the Leader.

War Department Begins Its Streamlined Reorganization

Washington.—The War Department put its streamlined reorganization into effect today, giving added importance to the air forces and creating a more youthful general staff reduced to a fifth of its former size.

An air force officer, Major General Joseph T. McNarney, was made deputy chief of staff, second to General George C. Marshall, who remains as chief. McNarney was a member of the Roberts Commission which investigated the Pearl Harbor attack.

Marshall's five assistant chiefs of staff are all from the land forces, but two of these are to be succeeded soon by air officers, the War Department announced.

At 61, Marshall himself is the oldest of the new high command, the others averaging under 50. They include Brigadier General Laurence S. Kuter, of the air forces, who is at 37 the Army's youngest general.

Three Who Sank Submarine And Cruiser At Wake Island Listed

Washington.—The Marine Corps reported today that Maj. Henry T. Elrod, of Thomasville, Ga., and Capt. Frank Cunningham Tharin, of Washington were the aviators who sank a Japanese cruiser off Wake Island December 11 before that Pacific outpost fell to the enemy.

Second Lieut. David Donald Killewer, of Wheaton, Ill., was identified as the flier who sank a Japanese submarine off Wake December 12.

The handful of marine aviators and a defense battalion under Maj. James P. S. Devereux accounted for a total of seven attacking ships before the island finally fell, and today's announcement added another chapter to the account of the heroic defense of the outpost.

Hit Cruiser With 6 Bombs Identification of the three pilots, the marine corps said, was made in additional reports on the battle of Wake Island lately received here. "Flying Grumman single-seated

The Japanese invader extended his beachheads on the outer Australian defense belt yesterday with a third landing on New Guinea, this one at the town of Finschhafen less than 400 miles from the mainland, and an apparent improvement in the British position at the gates of India made it strongly appear that Australia was next on the list for major assault.

The Australian air arm, strengthened in personnel by the arrival in the homeland of men who were veterans of action on other far scattered fronts, opened a counter-offensive against enemy concentrations on New Guinea and reported without giving any details that a number of enemy transports had been hit.

Cheer Home People The return of these irrepressible and able Aussies appeared to have cheered the home people but it of course did not in itself suggest that Australian air power would be able to fight more than a delaying action. There was every belief in Australia that the invader was going to spring in heavy force once he was able to gather sufficient power in New Guinea.

The outer-India front, that is in Burma, seemed to present no opportunity for an early and all-out enemy drive on India. The imperial British army, giving up for lost all the southern tip of Burma, was said in official accounts to have broken a dangerous Japanese maneuver of encirclement and to be successfully withdrawing into Central Burma for a junction with the Chinese.

Tactical Success This was in a sense an immediate defeat, but in a larger sense it was by all the available information a tactical success. In the first place, Southern Burma had already substantially lost its usefulness with the fall of Rangoon. In the second place, there had appeared earlier a grave question as to whether the bulk of the British forces could get out of the southern tip.

The withdrawal to Central Burma was depended upon in London to confront the Japanese right flank with such a relatively strong British-Chinese force as to check any major enemy lunge into India proper until such time as some arrangement can be made to get the Indians' ungrudging support in the defense of their country.

fighters," the announcement said, "a Major Elrod and a Captain Tharin—and two other pilots participated in the defense of Wake when a fleet of enemy cruisers, destroyers, gunboats and transports attacked at dawn on December 11. The four pilots were members of Maj. Paul A. Putnam's squadron that was reduced to a strength of but four planes in the first Japanese attack.

"The marine pilots attacked in pairs. Major Elrod and Captain Tharin hit the cruiser with eight 100-pound bombs. The cruiser sank.

Machine Guns Submarine "The other two pilots, whose names were not included in the report, badly damaged another ship, which was seen to be trailing smoke as it left the area of operations. Altogether, the marine pilots dropped twenty bombs and fired a total of 20,000 .50-caliber machine gun ammunition into the Japanese ships.

THE FLY IN THE OINTMENT OF JAPANESE SUCCESSES

Japan pays double tribute to the military genius of Gen Douglas MacArthur not that it admires the American officer but that it is necessary to save Japan's face in the Orient. First General Homma, whose task it was to destroy the tiny American and Filipino force, commits hara kiri after three months of futile effort. Second General Yamashita, hero of the Malayan and Singapore campaigns, is assigned the job of overpowering the defenders of Batan Peninsula. To annihilate the white devil and his followers, Tokio has sent to the island of Luzon its two outstanding field commanders only to have the white devil and his followers annihilate the fiction of Japanese invincibility.

Homma, at first regarded as a capable strategist, couldn't stand the humiliation of his failure. With a force ten times as large as that of the Americans and Filipinos he not only could not advance he was forced to yield ground. Yamashita, German-trained and in the eyes of the Japanese a national hero as the victor over Singapore, may be expected to turn loose the whole of his overwhelming air and land forces against MacArthur or to follow the tactics in Malaya of infiltrating his little fighting men behind the lines. But MacArthur knows all the tricks of Japanese warfare and the situation is little changed by the change in command. There seems to be only one way for the Japs to smash the Americans and Filipinos and that is by a long and time-wasting siege, but Japan has no time to waste if it is to carry out its plans for victory.

The suicide of Homma and the appointment of Yamashita to fill his place cannot help Japanese prestige in the Orient. The Japs will lose face as long as MacArthur stands. The white man must be reckoned with while the defenders of Batan Peninsula hold their ground. The defense of that peninsula is the fly in the ointment of Japanese successes.—Courier-Journal.

"BEAT THE SCHEDULE" CAMPAIGN STARTED

Cleveland — A C. I. O. union local started a "Beat the Schedule" campaign today and proposed that other C. I. O. unions ask management to adopt the production-boosting program.

Local 735 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers outlined the plan at a conference of union leaders from twenty-one war plants.

The key to the plan is the joint labor-management committee recently advocated for each plant by Donald M. Nelson, chief of the War Production Board.

"B" campaign proponents ask that management present to each committee its production problems and report on progress toward set goals.

LISTENING POST

reads: MARTIN COUNTY DEFENSE COUNCIL.

Do away with the word "Defense" and give us instead a battle cry that will be worth fighting for. Give us a battle cry that will reach the hearts of all oppressed lands that they may flock to our standard.

Do some weak souls think that the American people are so selfish that they will fight only for their material possessions? Do they think that we value our houses, our automobiles, our bank-rolls and our lives more than we do our love of the principles of human freedom?

How we would chuckle if we read that Hitler and Hirohito had put Germany and Japan on a "defense basis," called their war contributions from the people "defense bonds" and set up "defense councils" throughout the Axis. We would feel that they were afraid of us, waiting for us to strike the blow.

There is certainly a place for defense in America, and the defense set-up is good, but not as the major war-undertaking for the civilian manpower of the United States. Teach us to defend ourselves, yes, but make that secondary to the prime factor with which all wars are won: offense. Teach us to attack.

Wars are not "nice." If "nice people" are in charge of the American war effort, toss them out on their ears. We are tired of being fed pap, prune juice and Castoria all done up in fancy packages. We are tired of the banal lowrattling which seems to think that the only medium America understands is Mickey Mouse. We are tired of being taught how to put out incendiary bombs AFTER THE ENEMY STRIKES; how to bandage our wounded AFTER THE ENEMY SHOOTS THEM.

We are tired of all this pap about rationing sugar and rubber. Because we are not dumb. We heard the back of the British Empire crack when Singapore fell. We know that it is up to us—we Americans, in these thousands of small towns throughout America—to lick Germany and Japan, or be licked, and we've never been whipped yet.

If you want rubber, take the tires off our cars. If you want steel, take the cars and put them under drop hammers and make junk out of them for guns. If you want sugar, take it all—we'll get by on sorghum syrup or better still on nothing at all. If you want wood, take our houses. If you want money, take our bank-rolls.

But, if you want the American people to snap out of their "complacency," then for the sake of all that's holy start yelling ATTACK! Call the defense bonds VICTORY BONDS. Call the defense councils WAR COUNCILS.

This is a fighting nation. This is a mighty nation. Stop low-rattling us. Teach us first-aid, sure, but teach us first how to blast the Japs and Germans off the face of the earth.

Quit low-rattling the civilian population. Give arms to the householders of America. First arm the army and navy, and then arm every man-jack and boy in America. We common men and women know what war is. We have no illusions about it. We do not intend to be a slave race, or a subject race, or a passive race. We know that our nation is at stake. Furthermore, we more than a little suspect that the entire future of mankind is at stake.

Give us a battle cry

McNutt Says Needs At Some Are Paramount

Atlan. 4. —"We fight today not for the easy comfort of yesterday, but for the mastery of tomorrow." In those blunt words Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator, summed up the impact of the war in an address prepared for the opening meeting of the Southeastern Surgical Congress here today.

"This is no war for advantage," he declared. "This is a battle for the world. Not who shall rule, but how. The free way of life for you and your children and your children's children is the stake of victory."

—The Associated Press—

Needed At Home

He warned physicians and surgeons attending the Congress that many of them are going to be called upon to do double duty, but not necessarily in uniform. The first 3,500,000 men in today's army will need 25,000 doctors and dentists to keep them in fighting trim and more will be needed as additional men are called to the colors.

There is no intention of draining local communities of essential physicians who will be needed to care for the sick and to supervise health facilities, McNutt declared. Physicians, nurses and sanitary engineers will be needed as badly in the boom towns around new defense industrial plants as they are in camps or on the fighting front. And the physicians who are not called into service may have to take the places of one or two other men in keeping a community healthy which, he added, is just as important as maintaining the health of the Army.

SPORT TALK

Fulton High's Bulldogs go back to the basketball wars tonight on the Mayfield floor to open the annual Regional matches. The Bulldogs drew the number one slot and Tilghman of Paducah the number two spot. Therefore, these two teams face each other in the opening game, and it is a game which may have a decided bearing on the entire tournament. A victory for either team might send that team on into the finals and possibly the championship, for it is necessary to win only three games to win the Regional title. Inside dope is that Murray is the team to beat, and this team has a probable breather in the first game. The Tigers face Cuba, and insiders say that Cuba can't hold the Tigers. Therefore, it is likely that Murray will get either Fulton or Paducah in the crucial semi-final battle Friday night. Basing all dope on early season games, and I admit this is hardly a true basis of comparison now, Tilghman, Murray and Fulton seem to be of about equal strength. If there is any difference it probably leans towards Murray, for the Tigers have had a magnificent season. However, Tilghman has broken even with Murray in two games by three point margins, and Murray beat Fulton by a 17 to 14 score in an early game.

Observers say that Murray has improved tremendously since then, but the same can well be said for the Bulldogs. The fumbling, inept team which lost to Murray in December did not look a great deal like the team which roared through four victories here last week against the toughest teams of the Purchase conference. Murray does have a shade better record, but recent games indicated that the Tigers were fading just a bit. I am taking Tilghman as the most likely winner of the Regional—provided they manage to get past the Bulldogs tonight.

My reason for this is purely on the order of a hunch. Tilghman has had an indifferent season and did not even win the district, losing to Barlow in the finals. A victory now in the Regional would be a great tonic to Tilghman and would redeem an otherwise drab season. They have not a thing to lose and all to gain, and they should be able to play without any great deal of strain. That looseness might carry them through, and they have already showed they can tame Murray in one game. Barlow, so my informants tell me, is a hot and cold team, and everything depends on what they happen to have on any particular night. They might beat the best, or they might lose to the weakest. I have been told that they might fall before Arlington and the Gaddie Twins. On the other hand, they might upset all the dope and go right on through. But the facts are that the Barlow team has never been "up" for more than one game or at most two all season, and this may prove fatal in this series.

I rate the Bulldogs as a better team than Tilghman, but a team which will have to travel at top speed to win. The home lads have traveled a hard road in recent weeks and the strain may tell on them. Coach Giles has worked them sparingly in the two days of practice, for he said the boys were still tired Monday afternoon when they showed up for practice. The boys probably did not know it themselves, but a good coach sees these things without being told, and he saw that they had not come back from the gruelling week just past. He made no effort to key them up for this Regional test, merely sending them through routine practice in an effort to iron out sore muscles and get them in physical condition. He really believes the boys will be in shape tonight, and if they are they have a first rate chance of whipping the Tornado. If they get past this test, they have a night's rest to get ready for Murray. The boys are quite anxious to test their game against Murray, for all of them know they lost to the Tigers because of their own weakness instead of by being outplayed.

Anyhow, the boys are going to Mayfield with but one purpose—that is, to whip Tilghman and then win the Regional. They have the stuff to win. Here's hoping!

TWO SOLDIERS HELD IN STORE BREAK-IN

Fort Knox soldiers listed as Pvt. Edward St. John, 19, Woodbury, Tenn., and Robert Chapman, 22, Holland, Ky., were held today after an early morning First and Market break-in.

Patrolmen Charles Gray and George Keeling said they made the arrests nearby at 12:10 a. m. after discovering a broken window in the store of S. E. Davis, 103 W. Market. The officers said they found seven rings, a pair of field glasses, a hunting knife and a flashlight on searching the two, who denied charges of grand larceny and storehouse breaking and said they found the articles.

ONE WAR BUYING BOARD IS URGED

Congress Group Scores U. S. Production

Washington, —One, centralized purchasing agency to furnish all military supplies—for the "death grapple of total war" was demanded today by a congressional committee sharply critical of the Nation's production effort.

"Failure to organize the domestic front of the battle of production already has been translated into serious defeats for our own armed forces," said a report by the House Committee on Defense Migration, headed by Representative Tolan (D. Calif.).

Maintaining that the United States had "not even begun" to match Germany, Italy and Japan in production, the committee said this was "traceable to our inability to comprehend the nature and scope of modern warfare and the length to which our enemies have gone to prepare themselves."

The committee, which spent months studying problems of labor supply and material procurement, recommended:

1.—CREATION OF A SPECIAL technical division under the Civilian Procurement Agency to maintain an up-to-date complete inventory on industrial facilities, the supply of critical materials and the supply of labor.

2.—LABOR-MANAGEMENT CO-operation through joint national, regional and plant committees headed by a paid Government official, on production and procurement problems.
