THE LISTENING POST

There was something shocking in a simple statement made by Donald Nelson a few days ago. It will be remembered that Nelson, as head of the War Production Board, some time ago asked for full-time production in all plants which are working on materials for the armed forces. At the time I frankly admit that I believed a majority of the plants were working full time, and it occurred to me when he asked for a week of 168 hours he was asking for merely a slight increase. He did not make the shocking statement in this address. That came in a later talk. Speaking again of the 168 work week—which merely means that all machines will be manned and in operation for 24 hours per day—he said that war production could be increased by one-fourth without additional machines or factories. The matter still did not register with me until Mr. Nelson added the significant statement that today one-fifth of the plants which are producing vital war materials are working only five days per week.

I know, of course, that discussion of the short work week is more or less fruitless. Labor has been given this by the Administration and the Administration has steadfastly held to the theory that no social gains are to be lost because of war or because of anything else. Labor takes the position that if any extra time is to be worked beyond this forty hours it is up to the employer to pay time and a half overtime. I do not blame labor in the least for desiring this. It is a perfectly human desire. Nobody likes to do any more work than is necessary; there has always been a desire to work less for more and this will always be true. But I greatly fear that this Nation has come to a place where there is not much choice left. It suggests itself all too strongly that if we wish to retain even the fundamental freedom which our fathers fought for and left for us, we must do more than work as we have been doing. There is another nation, whose fall is so recent, which comes to mind when we think of the present outlook for the United States. France went through the same social experiments we have passed through, backed by the government, and the French were not willing to give up any of those so-called gains. When the German armies rolled through France there was intense desire to work then, but it was too late. The German twelve and sixteen hour days utterly smashed the French short week and today no living Frenchman will ever see the France he knew and loved.

Perhaps the employer might be induced to pay this time and one half overtime, but it should be recognized that if he does he will add to the costs of his work and this added cost will be added to the cost of living for every American worker. There is a pretty theory that everything in this Nation can be controlled except wages, but as yet it has never been tried and when it is tried it will prove a ghastly failure. No magic of book-keeping, no hocus-pocus by agile minds can ever make such a thing work.

I know personally of more than one small business being steadily and inexorably choked to death in the rigid vise of the forty-hour week. Those of which I know are not connected in any way with the war, and their failure will be of no importance except to the men who are trying to hold them together. I am persuaded, also, that there are many plants which are doing war work and which are vitally needed which are being badly hurt and hampered by the rigid ruling. Their failure will be felt on many battlefield in many parts of the world.

Choking Up When Talk May Be Just Mental Malady

New York.—If you are timid with other people, or about taking responsibility, psychophonia may choke off your voice.

This trouble, a newly-identified malady which causes pinched, grating, hoarse, choked and irregular voices, is described by James S. Greene, M. D., in the annals of otology, rhinology and laryngology.

Throats feel tight or knotted, mouths too dry, or too wet, and sometimes pains radiate to head and neck.

Cites Some Cases
All these things can happen from real causes, like colds, and overstrain of vocal cords and throat muscles. But Dr. Greene describes a different disease, which takes a long time coming on, and which is purely mental.

It is moreover a malady of the upper crust in the mental scale. Dr. Greene cites a case of an advertising executive who lost his

Washington.—An American submarine venturing deep into Japanese territory was reported officially today to have sunk three enemy freighters and a passenger-cargo ship, raising to 149 the total of vessels of all types damaged or destroyed by United States forces in the Western Pacific.

This latest blow at Nippon's ability to keep her far-flung forces supplied was matched, moreover, by a simultaneous announcement that two Japanese four-engine seaplanes had been intercepted by American fighters west of Midway Island Tuesday and one was shot down.

One Plane Damaged

The only reported costs of these actions to United States forces was the damaging of one fighter plane, and the wounding of its pilot, who managed, however, to return safely to the base on Midway.

Today's was the first word of enemy activity in the vicinity of Midway, 1,300 miles northwest of Pearl Harbor, since January 29, when a Navy communiqué said two Japanese submarines had been driven off by artillery fire which damaged one of the raiders.

The impression in naval circles here, however, is that the whole vast area of the Pacific lying west of the Hawaiian Islands and west of the area where Japan is now dominant has become something of a "no man's land," where enemy air and sea patrols and American planes and ships are constantly on the move, feeling out each other's strength and seeking the advantage of surprise for sudden thrusts against the island which dot that part of the ocean.

Brief Communiqué

The submarine and air actions reported today were announced briefly in a Navy communiqué which said of the former only that a "United States submarine has sunk three enemy freighters and one passenger-cargo ship in Japanese waters."

The raid was considered especially important, however, because of the increasing talk in informed quarters here of the necessity of constantly hammering away at Japanese supply lines until such time as more general and effective operations can be undertaken.

voice when his senior partner died and he had to take over direction of the firm. Another was a school teacher, timid all her life, who had to teach pupils as old as herself, and whom she had difficulty managing.

Another was a housewife whose husband contradicted everything she said until she hardly dared express an opinion.

These and many others with the same disorder when examined medically had perfectly normal vocal apparatus. They all had one outstanding characteristic. At heart they were shy, timid.

Many were brilliant in school and business. But almost without exception, this brilliance cloaked feelings of inferiority. They were always afraid they couldn't make the grade.

The treatment is to get them to understand that their mental attitudes alone are the cause of the choking.

A. P. Newsmen Who Skipped False Armistice Report Dies

Palm Springs, Calif.—Jackson S. Elliott, who endeared himself to every Associated Press member for his refusal to accept as fact the false armistice rumors of November 7, 1918, died in retirement yesterday. He was 66 years old Monday.

Elliott, as chief of the Associated Press news department, was bombarded in New York headquarters with pleas to follow a news agency bulletin of the armistice rumor. Instead, he meticulously checked Washington, London and Paris officials and news sources.

None could confirm the tale which sent millions into premature wild celebrations. Elliott, despite the deluge of telegrams, telephone calls and near hysteria, reasoned that German emissaries could not have arrived at Marshal Foch's headquarters.

"I'm convinced the story is wrong, that no armistice has been signed," he reported to Melville E. Stone as the then general manager of the A. P. returned from lunch.

Hours later, the State Department in an official announcement confirmed his shrewd judgment.

400 Million Reported Needed For Synthetic Rubber Making

New York.—The president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey today said investment of $400,000,000 could provide facilities to produce enough synthetic rubber for civilian needs but it was reliably understood such supplies would not be available before 1944.

W. S. Farish, who explained synthetic rubber tires even on large scale production would cost twice as much as natural rubber, said:

"Only the Government can provide for immediate erection of full-scale facilities and it is true that a continuing subsidy of some kind would be required to maintain operations. Only lack of natural rubber can justify this investment."

Says Interest Is Obvious
Farish explained the interest of his oil company in the production of synthetic rubber, which can be made from petroleum gases, is "obvious." He added:

"Fulfillment of military needs is, of course, the immediate necessity. These needs must be taken care

The Japanese having suffered heavy losses among their initial invasion fleets in the waters of New Guinea above the Australian mainland, appeared last night to be taking breath for new efforts to consolidate and extend their positions on that island.

The struggle on the Australian approaches had fallen into a lull, and the principal specific Allied success in that theater reported yesterday was an announcement of the U. S. Navy that an American submarine had sunk three enemy freighters and a passenger cargo ship in Japanese waters.

The Japanese, who had lost at least seven ships to American bomber action off New Guinea, apparently were lying quiet in those waters awaiting reinforcements for a continuation of the effort to make that island a major base for invasion of Australia itself.

Allied air power, which was decimated the enemy's time table in two days of a strong, running counteroffensive, meantime was being marshalled for heavier attacks, particularly in defense of Port Moresby, the southernmost major New Guinea harbor lying only 300 miles above Cape York in Australia proper.

It was said unofficially in Canberra that at least 13 enemy transports had been put out of action off New Guinea and New Britain, the scene of earlier Japanese landings.

There was no disposition in Australia to regard all this as meaning that the enemy's encroachment had been halted save only in the most immediate and limited sense; there was every expectation that yet larger enemy forces were on the way.

Could Meet Demand

To the extent that plants for the production of synthetic rubber from oil can be built without diverting construction materials and labor from more essential products, any demand can be filled in this way.

Since the Pearl Harbor attack December 7, Farish said, his company had undertaken to produce for the United States and Canadian Governments more than 300,000 short tons annually of synthetic rubber. He said this operation should be in full stride by the middle of 1943.

WE CAN'T WIN UNTIL WE CHANGE

(This editorial, entitled "Wake Up America—We're Losing This War and Can't Win Unless We Change," appeared recently in the Memphis Press-Scimitar and other Scripps-Howard newspapers.)

The nation needs to awaken to the full gravity of the peril that confronts it.

We need to appreciate how badly we have been defeated in three months of war.

We need to understand that it is possible for the United Nations and the United States to lose this war and suffer the fate of France—and that this possibility may become a probability if the present tide does not change.

We need to realize that there is grave chance of the Japanese pushing through India and the Germans driving through the Near East, to join their armies and resources in an almost unbeatable combination.

We need to get away, once and for all, from the comforting feeling that while we may lose at the start we are bound to win in the end.

Only when fully aware of existing perils will the United States do its utmost. Pray God that awareness will not come too late, as it did in France!

Production Director Donald Nelson appeals for vastly increased industrial output on a 24-hour, seven-day basis—168 hours a week. Maximum production, in short.

Can we get it?

Not on the present basis—not under the psychology of recent years.

Not until we quit thinking in terms of less work for more money.

Not while there is greater concern about overtime pay than over-time production.

Not while farmer politicians are more interested in higher prices than raising more essentials.

Not while government bureaucracy is created to meet a depression emergency that is ended—continue trying to grab for themselves money needed for armaments.

Not while an army of Federal press agents clamors to promote and perpetuate activities that have no present need or value.

Not while congressmen try to put over useless canals and river schemes and take up the time of defense officials clamoring for factories and contracts as if war were a great gravy train.

Not while W. P. A., despite a shortage of labor, seeks to carry on projects which it doesn't have the men to perform or the need for performing.

Not while C. C. C. and N. Y. A. stretch greedy hands for funds to

Not while strikes hamper war production, despite a solemn promise that they would stop.

Not while the life-and-death need for uninterrupted production is used as a weapon to put over the closed shop.

Not while pressure blocs clamor for bigger benefits, bounties and pensions.

Not while business men, as in Memphis, hang back, showing no initiative, and fail to get after war contracts.

second, get over the gimmes of recent years.

Gimme shorter hours, gimme higher wages, gimme bigger profits, gimme more overtime, gimme less work, gimme more pensions, gimme greater crop benefits, gimme more appropriations and patronage, gimme plants for my congressional district, gimme less and dues to work for Uncle Sam.

France had the gimmes, too—had them till the Germans were close to Paris. Then everybody went frantically to work—too late.

France has no gimmes today—except gimme food for my baby, gimme a place to lay my head, gimme death.

Will the United States wake up too late?

SEW AND SO CLUB MEETING

Mrs. H. I. Cheatham on the Union City highway was hostess to the Sew and So club yesterday afternoon at her home and present were eight members of the club and one visitor, Mrs. Luten. The guests arrived at her home in the morning and at twelve o'clock, noon, the group enjoyed a delightful pot-luck dinner. Each one attending carried a dish.

The afternoon was spent in games of bingo and those winning the prizes at the conclusion were Mrs. Jack Morris, high scorer, Mrs. Parliash Carney, traveler's Mrs. John E. Bard, coverall, and Mrs. Luten, the visitor, low scorer. Late in the afternoon Mrs. Cheatham served refreshing cold drinks and cookies. This club will meet again in two weeks with Mrs. Louie Bard.

NUTRITION GROUP IN MEETING YESTERDAY

The leaders' group for the Nutrition Study Course in South Fulton met yesterday afternoon in the Home Economics room of the high school building for another in the series of nutrition lessons, this one being given by Miss Naomi Fowler, South Fulton Home Economics teacher. The lesson was most interesting and instructive, with demonstrations on how to use whole grain cereal in cooking. Wholewheat and oatmeal breads were made.

It was announced that next week the group will meet at eleven o'clock in the morning and at this time a well-planned and balanced meal will be prepared and served. Attending the meeting yesterday were Mrs. Carl Kimberlin, Mrs. Clyde Fields, Mrs. W. B. McClain, Mrs. Neal Ward, Mrs. R. Q. Moss and Miss Fowler.

MRS. WILLIAMSON HOSTESS TO CLUB

The Reginald Williamson delightedly entertained her bridge club last night at its regular weekly meeting and was hostess to a well-planned Dutch supper. The menu, including country ham, was served buffet style in two courses and the guests were then seated at the three card tables.

Miss Adolphus Mae Latta held high for the club and received defense stamps as prize. Miss Sara Pickle was winner of the bridge-bingo prize.

Present were nine club members and three visitors—Mrs. George Moore, Mrs. J. C. Goode and Miss Tommie Nell Gates.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY MEETING

The American Legion Auxiliary held its monthly meeting yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Bob Harris at her home on the Martin highway when Mrs. H. B. Houston was assistant hostess. In the absence of the president, Mrs. A. B. Roberts, the meeting was in charge of Mrs. Earl Taylor.

The pledge of allegiance to the flag opened the meeting, followed with a prayer led by Mrs. S. M. DeMyer. The secretary, Mrs. N. T. Morse, read the minutes, which were approved, and Mrs. Homer Furlong gave a splendid report of the rehabilitation committee.

Following the business session, the meeting was turned over to the program leader, Mrs. B. O. Copeland who gave a very interesting article taken from the American Legion magazine, entitled "A Review of Mrs. Mark W. Murrill, National American Legion Auxiliary President," written by John J. Noll. Games of bingo were enjoyed for the remainder of the afternoon and winning the prize was Mrs. W. W. Morris. The hostesses, assisted by little Max Harris, served delicious sandwiches and tea to thirteen members and one visitor, Miss Ann Ruth Linton.

At the conclusion of the meeting a very interesting letter, in the possession of L. O. Bradford, from a person in Honolulu written on December 7, was read by Mrs. Morris. This letter, which told of the air raids, black outs, etc. was most interesting to all attending.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

If the Civilian Defense wants the people of the Highlands and Riceville and other outlying places to join in the blackouts they had better get an alarm that can be heard more than one hundred yards. The people will be glad to co-operate but how can they if they cannot hear the whistle? When the lights are turned on on Lake Street, being unable to hear the whistle, they take it as a signal that the "all clear" has sounded.

Highlander.

on the second page which is not pleasant reading. There is too much defeatism in the article to make pleasant reading. Yet its facts are solid, and the picture it portrays is all too familiar. I know that it is not good form to criticize any of our leaders. I know it is not popular to even admit the possibility of defeat at the hands of the enemy. I know that there is a theory that the slave labor of Germany and Japan can never defeat the free enterprise of America. All these things I know as well as any person. But I know something else. I know that we have been ruthlessly defeated thus far in the war. What few isolated victories have come to us do not measure large against the overwhelming victories of the enemy. I know, also, that something more is required. I know that plants working five days a week can never do the job which lies ahead of us. I know that we do not have that much time to waste. What arrangements can be made to take up this lag I do not know. Labor, through its spokesmen, says that the fault is entirely with employers who are unwilling to pay the time and half overtime. Employers say they cannot pay the price and remain in business.

• You can take your choice. I do not know how the viewpoints can be reconciled, but I have an idea if the enemy continues to advance; if American boys continue to die because they do not have sufficient equipment—then, perhaps, we will begin to get a clearer and more realistic picture.

• There may come a time when we will be fighting and working merely for the basic freedom we won at Yorktown without considering anything else.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Troop 44 of Boy Scouts met at the Scout hall Wednesday, March 11, 1942, with fourteen boys being present. The Scoutmaster was absent but the assistant Scoutmaster carried on the meeting. The meeting was a short one. Several boys passed tests while the others played games.

The meeting was adjourned with L. C. Bone leading in the Scoutmaster's benediction. After the meeting the merits were counted and Billy Johnson was ahead with 386 merits. L. C. Bone was second with 354 merits and tied for third was Jimmie Carter and Eugene Underwood with 326. Several were above two hundred. This shows that Troop 44 is beginning to work.

FULGHAM NEWS

By Miss Docie Jones

Yes, Fulton did!

Congratulations to the Fulton Bulldogs and the Arlington Aces for capturing first and second honors in the district basketball tournament at Fulton last week, thus earning the right to enter the regional at Mayfield.

There again you have the privilege of demonstrating the powers of your impressive titles and also the winning of higher honors. Here's hoping that Fulton can keep that Bulldog grip of possession on the ball until it lands in their Murray basket and that Arlington can take all opponents with their high card Aces, two of them, in order that they may again share honors at the state try-out at Lexington.

Congratulations to our home county boys, the Central Red Devils, who rank first in the Purchase Conference of 15 teams, most of which are in our own District. The Reds also played two brilliant games, a close winner with Hickman and a close loser with the Fulton champions.

Now, to our local team, the Black Cats, who played a hard game with Cunningham, really won it and then lost it, as it slipped through their hands in the closing minutes with a 1 point margin. Cunningham also upset a lot of fans as well as two teams. So congratulations to our winning rival and to all the boys on all the teams who gave the best they had for their schools.

More Trading

Woodrow Leath, tax commissioner, who purchased the Hudson Elliott place of 14 1-2 acres last summer, sold it Saturday to Nelson Martin who has been living in the W. B. Bailey house for the past two or three years. Leath will move to Clinton when the grade school closes and save tires. Martin, who is a carpenter will also move soon and improve the buildings. The place adjoins the farms of J. C. Walker, H. V. Bugg and Mrs. Jimmie Moore.

An abundance of dinner was served at the noon hour. Highlights of the business session—raised the pastor's salary, $100.00, amount paid that day $300.00 and Mt. From PEACE to WAR via RAILROAD

WHAT'S A BIG JOB—turning a railroad from the uses of peace into an instrument of war? For us who work for the Illinois Central are thankful that, when war came, we had a railroad fit for duty, ready and willing to play its essential role.

Here are some of the adjustments made in the transfer from peace to war:

Already in the armed forces are more than eight hundred members of our Illinois Central family—and no telling how many sons and brothers and husbands of Illinois Central workers.

During the past year we moved 295,607 military passengers on duty—a job that took 8,592 cars and 686 special trains.

The Illinois Central is the primary agency of transportation for eighty-two camps and war industries on or near our rails. Of these seventeen were new in 1941.

For the operation of war establishments the Illinois Central last year furnished the government 298 freight cars and 26,880 tons of rail. In addition, we released 87,041 tons of scrap for war production.

To prepare for increased traffic, we laid 319 miles of new rail, rebuilt 165 locomotives and added 3,103 freight cars in the course of 1941.

The Illinois Central Traffic Department has been converted to a service department for the duration.

These are just a few of the adjustments from peace to war. There will be more before the signal light of victory beckons us all into the home terminal of peace.
