THE LISTENING POST

Theatre has been in the family for several generations. When I was a young boy, my father would take me to the theatre every Saturday afternoon. He would always order me a glass of orange juice and a piece of cake. Later, when I was older, I would often go to the theatre with my friends. We would see plays and musicals.

The theatre is a place where people can escape from their everyday lives. It is a place where imagination and creativity come together. The theatre is a place where stories are told and emotions are shared.

But the theatre is also a place where things can go wrong. There have been many times when I have seen productions that were not as good as I had hoped. And there have been times when the audience was not as engaged as I would have liked.

Despite these challenges, the theatre is a place that I love. It is a place where I can experience something new and exciting every time I go. And I hope that you will also find it a place to enjoy.
