CIRCULATE PETITION FOR NEW SCHOOL

Members of the Young Men's Business Club and the Parent-Teachers Association next Monday will start circulation of a petition for the new school among the citizens of Fulton. This action was deemed necessary by the school board before it made final plans for the construction of a new building which will cost approximately $100,000, with half of this expense to be borne by the federal government through the Works Progress Authority.

"We desire to remind you that we have been granted permission to use the Carr Institute building for two years, and this permit will expire on July 1, 1942," the school board points out. At the end of this time it will be necessary for the school district to erect a building to replace it.

The board has investigated the possibility of obtaining federal aid to erect a new building, and after due consideration of plans and other schools erected under federal aid, feels that definite action should be taken now, in order that a building may be constructed while this assistance is available. It will be necessary for the tax rate to be increased from $1.25 to $1.45 per $100.00. The board pledges itself to reduce the rate as the indebtedness is decreased, and will seek to have this policy adopted by the board that succeeds it.

Every taxpayer is being urged to express his opinion on this matter, but it should be borne in mind that the time is not far distant when a new building will have to be erected, and unless immediate action is taken, no federal aid will be available. Then the entire cost will have to be borne by taxpayers of the school district.

Harold Peeples Receives Basketball

It was a big night for Ole Miss University Tuesday night of last week when the Rebel cagers upset Mississippi State 41 to 40 in the university gym to preserve 5 year home victory streak over the Maroons. This was the last home game of the season.

According to custom the ball that was used was turned over to the Red and Blue teams who drew straws for it. The Rebs in turn awarded the ball to Captain Harold Peeples and it is now proudly resting in his room bearing the autographs of the whole Ole Miss basketball aggregation from coach to equipment manager.

Harold is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Peeples of Fulton and he is a senior at Ole Miss.

TENNESSEE POULTRY SPECIALIST IS HERE

Fred Gentry, state poultry supervisor of the University of Tennessee, was in Fulton this week. While here he visited the Fulton Hatchery.

The primitive man met dangers which were inevitable. We meet dangers which are preventable. Automobile accidents can be prevented. In fact, all accidents can be prevented. The fact that we can, if we will, eliminate to a very large degree the appalling dangers of modern life constitutes the moral significance of this safety movement.

We should realize and appreciate the value of a human being. Apparently, not all people do that. The carelessness regarding human life is the great tragedy that hangs over human industry. It is only recently that there has come to be any regard for human life, and we hope that this regard will increase.

The motorist can help considerably in solving accident problems by driving carefully, courteously, and thoughtfully on our highways.

27 Cars In Rives Railroad Accident

Twenty-seven loaded cars of a southbound Illinois Central freight train were derailed last Thursday night at 8:25 o'clock at the I. C. G. M. & O. Crossing at Rives. No body was injured but damage was estimated at $65,000. The wrecked cars, consisting of 26 cars of coal and lime and one boxcar of general merchandise, were scattered for a distance of approximately 450 feet down the track. The accident was caused by a broken axle on one of the cars.

The wrecked train was enroute from Paducah to Memphis and was not scheduled to stop at Rives. The train was traveling at an estimated speed of 40 or 50 miles an hour and the engine had passed the station when the crash occurred.

The northbound track was cleared Friday morning sufficiently for use but it was several days before the southbound tracks were open to normal traffic. Passenger trains on the I. C. were routed over other roads to Jackson.

Sale of some 700 tons of coal piled up on the right-of-way was concluded Monday, according to officials and wreckage of the cars was all cleared away Tuesday.

FREIGHT CARS WRECKED NEAR OAKS

Damage was estimated at about $10,000 when an I. C. freight train shoved some cars into the side of another freight north of Oaks last Friday night. No one was injured. Several cars were damaged.

725 Applicants For Cotton Mattresses

To date, 725 applications for mattresses have been turned in to the County Home Demonstration Agent. A new ruling was made last week by the AAA committee changing the regulations where a family of 3 could receive only one mattress, now making a family of 3 eligible for 2 mattresses, provided their income for last year does not exceed the amount previously stated. Also, the old ruling was that a family of 5 could receive only 2 mattresses, but the new rule says that a family of 5 may receive 3 mattresses provided their income for last year does not exceed the amount previously stated.

Those interested in the change and would like to come back to the office and make application for another mattress, if they are eligible under the new ruling may do so or go to the mattress sign-up centers on March 12 and 13 during the afternoon only from 1:00 to 3:30 o'clock.

The County Mattress Chairmen throughout the County will conduct one more mattress sign-up half-day in the following communities:

March 12 — Hornsby's Store, Bondurant; Middleton's Store, Sasafas Ridge; Extension Office, Hickman; Graves School.

March 13 — Lodgeston School, Cayce School, Crutchfield School and W. R. Burnett's Store in Riceville.

Anyone desiring to make application is urged to do so at this time, since there will be no more community sign-up days and all those who make application from then on will have to go to the Extension Office in Hickman. No mattress application will be received anywhere after April 1st.

TRUCK FARMING ON INCREASE IN COUNTY

In the past decade there has been a noticeable increase in truck farming in Fulton county and vicinity. The federal farm program for the control of production of cotton, wheat and corn, has converted the efforts of many farmers.

It was revealed this week by S. V. Foy, county agent of Fulton county, that between 2,000 and 2,500 acres were planted in truck crops last year. Most of this acreage is in the delta section and around the Western community.

The fertile soil of this county is adaptable for the production of many of the foremost truck crops, and there is a steady improvement of farm income from this diversification of effort. Last year about 25 acres produced 30,000,000 tomato plants, and approximately 120 acres will be planted this year. Spinach, green beans, lima beans, tomatoes, crowder peas, black-eyed peas are foremost among the other truck crops produced in this county.

THE OTHER SIDE

Perhaps the greatest bar to the acquirement of real knowledge is the refusal of the average person to look upon "the other side" of a question, particularly one which involves a new idea.

We form certain notions regarding people and things, and having done so we seek for arguments to back up these notions. We have more concern that we shall vindicate our own ideas than that we shall arrive at the truth about them.

Thus we build a Chinese wall about our own intellects and thereby oftener than not shut out the real truth, or at least an important part of it.

For this reason every new idea, however beneficent, that arises in the world literally has to fight for its life. It was hard to convince people that the earth is a sphere, that the blood circulates, that vaccination prevents smallpox, that yellow fever is only communicated by mosquitoes. These and innumerable other facts now accepted by all civilized people were bitterly combatted by the ignorant, superstitious and narrow-minded majority.

It would seem that in the light of the world's advancement in knowledge men would be willing to study both sides, or all sides, of every important question, yet few of them do.

The man who organized the "blackout" system in England was recently fined for carrying an uncovered flashlight during a London air raid.

A writer says marriage is the "fusion of two lives." But it sometimes results in confusion.

THE FORUM

By J. PAUL BUSHART, Editor

A column conducted for news, views and comments, in which readers of The News are invited to participate. Mail contributions care of THE FORUM, this newspaper.

An analysis of the 1940 Census figures show that there are 2410 counties in the United States with no town of over 10,000 population and that there are only 686 counties which do have one or more towns with over 10,000. Kentucky has 107 counties with no towns of over 10,000, while Tennessee has 84 counties without towns of 10,000 or over. In our own locality this would include such counties as Fulton, Hickman, Weakley and Obion.

There are more people living in small town in Pennsylvania than in any other state according to a break down of census figures. A survey shows that there are 8,771,729 small town families in the nation. Of this number Kentucky has 201,848, and Tennessee 162,452.

Sherwood Anderson, one of the most famous living contributors to American literature, has written a book called "Home Town," in which he devotes a chapter to the weekly newspaper and its editor. It covers all phases of small town life. Mr. Anderson comments:

"Most of the news in the best of small town weeklies isn't, in the big newspaper sense, news at all. If there is a war in Europe give it a paragraph. If Mrs. Jones' little girl gets bitten by a dog and there is danger of rabies, it's worth a column or two. Why not? The whole town is anxious.

"The small town newspaper, a weekly, is intensely local. There is column after column of 'personals.' The idea is to catch the color, the smell, the feel of the everyday life of everyday people. A good editor is a man who runs the little weekly on the theory that his town is the very center of the universe. The best of the small town editors are always on the alert for the town news, the little everyday happenings in the lives of everyday people. Like the country doctor and the lawyers, there is much he knows that he doesn't print. The editor doesn't intend to rob the people of their self-respect. He knows what to print. He knows that life goes hard enough with most of his subscribers.

"The journalist in the small town field doesn't get rich but, if he has at all a flare for it, he can get by, live rather decently. He occupies a position of respect and responsibility in the community. He can stay pretty close to American life as it is lived by the commonality of Americans, down near the grass roots."

In the last national election, Tom Sweeney, the only candidate in West Virginia to make liberal use of weekly newspaper space ran 22,000 votes ahead of his Republican ticket. He was the GOP nominee, for the U. S. Senate. President Roosevelt carried the state. Some political analysts say that a change in a quarter of million of votes in the right spots would have elected Willkie. If the Sweeney technique had been followed in all states that might have been the difference between victory and defeat.

Seventy-five per cent of the United States Senators and 62 per cent of the Congressmen have grass-roots constituents as their dominant vote. The same is true of practically all the state legislatures. These are the men who levy the taxes, regulate industry and make or amend our laws. The elected officials are responsive to their constituents.

STOCK FEEDING

The successful stock feeder of today is a student—a keen observer who keeps in touch with changing conditions. These changes are largely due to discoveries in nutrition at our various agricultural experiment stations, declares Lyman Peck, nutritional expert, in a recent article.

Feeders have long realized that a protein supplement in addition to corn and hay was essential for beef cattle. An important factor developed during recent years, as extensive experiments at the agricultural colleges revealed the superior value of a newcomer, soybean oil meal. Among its advantages enumerated by Mr. Peck are these:

Soybean oil meal is the most highly digestible protein supplement obtainable; it is more palatable and produces faster gains than other protein concentrates, and as a general rule it is more economical to feed.

These advantages apply to all kinds of livestock and poultry, as has been demonstrated in the feed lots of Iowa State College, Ohio Experiment Station, Illinois, Purdue, Cornell and other universities where scientific feeding is continually studied for the benefit of stockmen and farmers generally.

As an ingredient of mixed seeds, soybean oil meal is rapidly growing in popularity; in fact, its increased consumption in the last few years has been phenomenal.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

The cash outlay of over $570,000,000 by the government in January for defense alone indicates considerable progress in arming; it indicates that industries' wheels are whirling at last to grind out guns, airplanes, ships, army and navy bases and cantonments. The full effect of this program is still to be felt for the cash outgo may soon reach the tremendous total of $800,000,000 a month and stay there for some time. This should generate secondary demands for consumers goods (clothing, food, radios, automobile) of immense and unusual scope.

What does all this mean to the business man, the employee and the consumer?

The sudden impact of these orders should keep the rate of industrial production at the present high level the rest of this year. But the outlook for large industrial profits is not too bright owing to rising taxes and increased labor costs and the pressure to hold down all industrial prices. Likewise the outlook for increased corporation dividends is far from rosy. The government is taking a large share of the profits in the form of income taxes and corporations are hesitant to pay out the remainder for the future is entirely too uncertain. Thus they desire to retain profits in their surplus accounts. So don't look for huge dividends.

The outlook for labor is excellent. High industrial production means steady work and higher wages. But labor must expect to pay higher prices for the goods it purchases.

The farm income for this year will be larger than it was in 1940 due to increased demand for foodstuffs from the industrial centers. But again the farmer will have to pay more for what he buys.

The prospect for the small merchant is the brightest of all. Industrial workers will spend billions of dollars in their stores. Their profits will be the highest proportionately, for their taxes, rents, wages and other costs will not rise as rapidly as that of the large business man and the industrialist. Small business should have a banner year.

But remember, the calculations of every business man, large or small, and of every worker and farmer must be on the basis of a continuing war. When war stops, business changes will begin.

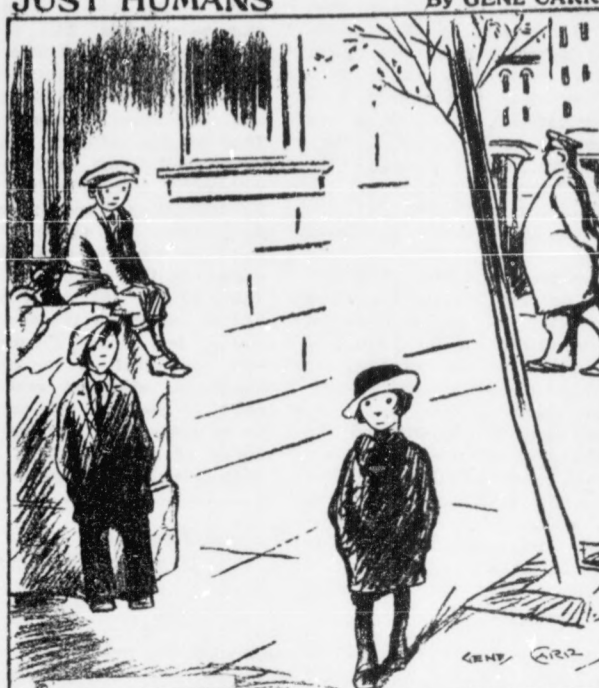

Chemists in one of the country's largest motor companies announced recently that they had evolved a plastic material suitable for auto bodies that is lighter than steel and a better insulator against heat and sound.

It seems that the most unpatriotic organizations have monopolized the most patriotic-sounding names.

An optimist is a fellow who expects to get out of debt some day.

Amazing, Eh What!

THE visitor was an Englishman. He was paying his first visit to America, having come to see his married daughter and his newly-arrived grandson.

As it happened, the steamer landed earlier than was expected and so there was no one at the dock to greet him. But he knew his daughter's address—it was only a matter of six blocks across town from the wharves—and in due time a public conveyance landed him with his luggage at the proper destination. Before anyone suspected his presence, he was ringing at the apartment door.

"But father," asked the young matron, after he had been welcomed, "did you have any difficulty getting here?"

"Not at all," he said. "The only thing that perplexed me was your Yankee money. On the ship I had two pounds changed into American coins. The purser tried to explain their value but I couldn't understand him—after dealing with pennies and shillings and half crowns, these American terms seemed so stupid.

"Well, then, how did you reckon how to pay your taxi fare?" she asked.

"I didn't try," he said. "When the cab stopped here in front of the house I thought of an expedient. I'm very quick-witted about money matters, as you know. So I just drew out of my pocket all the Yankee money the purser had given me—quite a handful of it, I assure you—and I held it out to the caddy so that he might take his fare."

"How much did he take?"

"That's the extraordinary part of it," said the caddy Britisher, "he took it all. By a remarkable coincidence I had produced the exact amount."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given. . . . Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever." These words from Isaiah comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, March 2, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Christ Jesus." Included among the Scriptural selection will be: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will raise unto David a righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth" (Jeremiah 23:5.)

FARM CHIEF ASKS UTILITY TAX LAW

If the utility tax replacement bill now pending in Tennessee is not passed, "it will become necessary for a considerable number of Tennessee counties to subject all taxpayers—to a substantial" tax increase, the General Assembly of Tennessee was told in a formal statement by J. F. Porter, president of the Tennessee Farm Bureau Federation.

"These increased levies," said Porter, "would of necessity be against farms and rural properties, as well as urban properties. It should be remembered, however that relatively few of the farms and rural homes are enjoying counterbalancing benefits through the reduced cost of electricity."

Porter said replacement of property taxes heretofore paid by privately-owned utility firms on electric distributing facilities that now are publicly-owned and at present tax-free is "one of the major problems confronting the General Assembly of 1941."

The Farm Bureau Federation head said the tax replacement bill would "assure Tennessee counties of the receipt of from $600,000 to $800,000 per year" not now collected, as a result of the swing to public ownership of utilities.

SHIP LOSS ESTIMATES

It is perhaps impossible to arrive at any trustworthy estimate of shipping losses suffered by various countries since the war began, but some figures compiled by the United States Maritime Commission may give some general idea of the extent of these losses.

This compilation includes merchant vessels only, and does not take into account losses of warships and auxiliary naval vessels such as trawlers, minesweepers and the like. The figures, incidentally, are considerably lower than those from British and German sources.

The Commission's estimate, covering the period from the outbreak of the war until December 7, 1940 lists a total of 964 vessels lost, aggregating 3,619,624 gross tons. British losses are placed at 436 ships of 1,767,851 tons; German losses at 70 ships of 386,630 tons, and Italian losses at 16 ships of 82,618 tons.

This would leave 442 ships of 1,382,525 tons to cover losses of France and neutral nations, which seems proportionately large, although it is known that many vessels of countries bordering on the Baltic were torpedoed or sunk by mines.

But even if Britain's losses were as great as two or three million tons, it does not seem that she should be badly crippled, for it is known that she had more than 21 million tons at the outbreak of the war and has added some eight million tons since, through acquisition from other countries and her own new construction.

In the meantime, German and Italian merchant ships have been practically driven from the seas, except those in the Baltic and Mediterranean. Therefore, Britain's need for merchant vessels will hardly become urgent until much heavier losses occur.

SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS

With the increasing number of consolidated schools throughout the country, the school bus has become an important transportation necessity, carrying many thousands of children daily.

It is impossible to emphasize too strongly the need of highly competent and careful drivers for these vehicles. It is a great responsibility to be entrusted with the lives of these children and no one should be employed as a driver who does not fully realize that responsibility and possess the qualifications to insure their safety.

Immature or irresponsible persons have no business driving a school bus, as many deplorable tragedies have demonstrated in the past. It should be a rigid requirement that drivers must come to a full stop before crossing a railroad track. A failure to observe this rule has cost many lives and may cost many more. Excessive speed should not be tolerated and any disregard of safety precautions should be followed by a prompt dismissal of the offending driver.

School authorities are primarily responsible for the competency of the drivers they employ, and unless they investigate carefully each applicant and keep a watch on his performances they are guilty of gross negligence toward the children whose safety is in their keeping.

VINSON AND THE NAVY

This country has no more vigilant and valiant champion of naval power than Congressman Carl Vinson of Georgia, who is now rounding out ten years as chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee. He has been the most active leader in getting all naval expansion bills through Congress since 1931.

Mr. Vinson's views on the necessity for the strongest possible navy are set forth in a recent article in the United States News, and may be summarized as follows:

He believes that our first task is to aid Britain, not merely to gain time to arm ourselves, but because joint control of the seas with Britain is necessary if the Americas are to be made safe from invasion. Therefore, his position may be summed up in a single sentence: "We can't afford to let England lose."

He reasons that if Germany can take over Britain and her navy, the Axis powers will not only have a combined naval strength much greater than ours, but will have five times our shipping capacity. It is significant, he thinks, that Germany has not done great damage to England's shipyards, which seems to be evidence that Hitler hopes to capture them intact, so as to turn their productive capacity against us or any other nation he desires to conquer.

With the shipyards of England and all Europe under his control, Hitler could eventually dominate the world, Mr. Vinson believes, even if the present British Navy should escape his grasp. And this is something for every American to think about.

Superior people are necessary, but we common folks don't like for them to keep reminding us of their superiority.

Certain Eskimo tribes are said to believe that a person with a bad temper is possessed of a devil. Anyway, the idea seems logical.

PROMINENT MINISTER TELLS OF OWN RELIEF

Stubborn Suffering Promptly Yielded To Retonga And He Never Felt Better Than He Does Now, States Rev. R. M. Harmon. Feels It Duty To Tell Others.

"To be relieved of the miseries I used to suffer makes me want to tell every man and woman who suffers as I did about Retonga," declares Rev. R. M. Harmon, pastor of Denmore and Victory Baptist churches, of Lafollette, former sheriff of Campbell County, and one of the most widely-known and respected men in Northeast Tennessee.

"I hardly ate enough to keep alive," continues Rev. Harmon. "Acid indigestion and gas were so bad I sometimes felt like they were tearing me in two. Constipation forced me to take strong purgatives regularly and I had pains in my legs, arms and hips that at times were almost more than I could bear. I seldom slept well, my nerves were high-strung, and I felt so weak and let-down I could hardly fill my pulpit."

"Last fall I took a course of Retonga. It promptly relieved these distresses and I began to feel better and stronger than in years. I have taken a bottle of Retonga occasionally since then, and I don't believe I ever felt better than I do today. I feel it is my duty to tell my experience with Retonga and give it my strong public endorsement."

Rev. Harmon is prominent in fraternal circles, and has been honored with several public offices.

Retonga is a purely herbal medicine combined with Vitamin B-1 for nerves, strength and digestion. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Co. —Adv.

THIS AND THAT

This week, it was rather interesting to find some of the oldtimers in this section. Here in Fulton there is H. A. Eulen, who came to this county in 1885. He was born March 1, 1861, the year the Civil War began. Jess Parrish, who lives on Carr street, is another one of Fulton's oldest residents. H. Bennett, who lives on Fourth street, is 89, and T. R. Nolen, who resides on Park avenue, and has seen 90 birthdays, are perhaps two of the oldest citizens living in the city. Joe Cook, 81, lives in Riceville, and Will Williams, 95 and John J. Coffman, 81, reside east of Fulton. W. F. Bushart, father of Paul Bushart, lives near Midway in Ohio county. These oldsters could tell us many things about the early history of this section.

On Friday evening of last week, the editor of The News was the invited dinner guest of George M. Crowson, assistant to President Beven, of the Illinois Central System. The delightful meal was served on Mr. Crowson's private car. H. K. Buck, local trainmaster, was also present, as was Mr. Crowson's secretary. For a number of years it has been the pleasure of the editor to work with the officials of the Illinois Central System. This fellow Buck is a worker, and he knows his business. While Mr. Crowson's private car was in Fulton, the wreck near

Rives, Tenn., occurred, and the trainmaster was called to duty because of the accident. It is interesting and enlightening to review the activities of the railroads as they endeavor to keep abreast of the times, and assist communities along the right-of-way to progress and grow.

It is being talked around town that a number from this community will obtain employment at the Milan, Tenn., plant. Plans are being made by the government whereby transportation facilities will be available at economical cost for those working there and returning home at night. In connection with the large defense plant, several miles of railroad are being built inside the grounds, according to H. K. Buck, trainmaster here. But those receiving work will be fortunate, for the list of those enrolled for employment is tremendous.

Contracts Sent To Kitty League Umpires

Contracts were sent this week to eight men who will probably serve as umpires in the Kitty League during the 1941 season, according to an announcement by Shelby Peace, of Hopkinsville, president of the League. They are as follows:

Joseph Knies of Breese, Ill., has umpired in St. Louis for the last three years and will come well recommended from Bill McGowan's School for Umpires. Knies should make a good umpire and will probably go to a higher league.

Paul Kowal of South Bend, Ind., is a former well known Notre Dame football player and athlete. He also comes from McGowan's School and is well recommended.

Johnny Jones of Mayfield was formerly a very good ball player and has officiated in amateur baseball for the past four years. This man looks like one of the best prospects in umpiring that the Kitty has had in several years.

Hulin Gower of Guthrie, Ky., has worked for two seasons in the Jeff Davis Baseball League and is especially recommended by Pete Chestnut, who for several years was considered one of the best minor league baseball players in this country.

Charles Brother Dinning of Nashville has five years experience in the Municipal League and is recommended by Paul Blackard, Southern League umpire and official scorer in the Municipal League, as being an ideal prospect for an umpire in organized baseball.

Robert Lee O'Regan of Cincinnati worked in the Kitty League a part of last season. He is a basketball official and is registered with Indiana High School Athletic Association, Kentucky High School Athletic Association and Ohio High School Athletic Association, working in basketball, football and baseball in and around Cincinnati. He is also acknowledged as a Promotional Director in the Cincinnati territory.

Ellis F. Beggs of Fulton is a hold-over umpire who needs no recommendation to the league as his past records justify a continuance of his good work in the Kitty League. Beggs will probably go to a higher league after this season.

John F. Jolley of Murfreesboro, Tenn., is another hold-over from last season and is Dean of Umpires in the Kitty League. Jolley will also probably be advanced in the season of 1942.

The Italian forward advance continues backward.

CANADA—OUR NEIGHBOR

Dominion became British through Benjamin Franklin's plea

By MARTIN L. PETRY

SUPERFICIALLY the Canadians are very much like Americans, in their dress, their mode of living and speech, the latter with an apparent difference only in one or two of the provinces. Ontario, one of the most important provinces in the Dominion, is very similar to an adjoining state. Perhaps a contributing factor to this Americanization, as it might be termed, is that the bulk of imports by Canada is from the United States market and amounts to two-thirds of all her foreign purchases.

Coupled with this is a mutual understanding created during more than a century of peace between the two nations so today there is an unfortified border, crossed with a minimum of red tape and without the appearance of any bayonets in the European custom, even now that Canada is at war. In recent years many Canadians migrated to the United States, became excellent citizens and are found among our own outstanding countrymen in the fields of industry, the professions, the arts, sciences and sports.

Canada is a large country with an area of 3,694,563 square miles, and, although sparsely settled compared with our own, is dotted with a number of large and beautiful cities. She has about 75,000,000 acres of cultivated land and exports chiefly lumber, woodpulp, newsprint, nickel, asbestos, wheat, fish, meat, furs, gypsum, chemical fertilizers, and abrasives. During normal years she takes about sixteen per cent of our exports in which all parts of the United States share.

We have quite a stake in Canada, too. One-third of our foreign investments, or a total of approximately $4,000,000,000 is in the Dominion, and the Canadians have reciprocated with an investment in the United States of approximately $1,000,000,000. Considering that their population is about one-twelfth of ours this is a tidy sum and, not only that, but they pay us $140,000,000 more in dividends and interest annually than we pay them.

So aside from being a friendly neighbor, Canada is also an excellent customer and business partner. Although an integral part of the British Empire she is, to all intents and purposes, an autonomous nation brought about through the years after she was taken by the British at the Treaty of Paris in 1763. And strangely enough, it was Benjamin Franklin, who, according to historical records available in Ottawa, was chiefly responsible for changing her destiny under the French flag.

England was keen upon getting the little island of Guadeloupe, in the West Indies, since sugar was becoming an important item of trade. France endeavored to persuade her to accept Canada, which was generally conceded to be worthless. But Franklin and others pleaded that Canada, in the hands of the French, would be a jumping-off place in the next war between the two nations against the New England colonists under British control. He argued that protection for the colonies was far more valuable to Great Britain than the sugar plantations in the West Indies. From a military standpoint the argument was decisive, and the British finally agreed to take Canada.

But the decision acted as a boomerang. In a little more than a decade the colonists had revolted and Great Britain had to defend Canada including the French colonists, chiefly in Quebec, whom she had inherited from her former enemy.

Canada has never engaged in a war of her own origin. Her people, in peaceful pursuits, have been striving to develop her tremendous natural resources and have been extremely successful in a pioneering job during the last century. Today the expanse of territory between the Atlantic and the Pacific still holds the lure for the prospector, the hunter and the fisherman seeking new thrills in large virgin sections of a country whose citizens are known to Americans for their friendliness and hospitality.

The First Automobile

It was my first time to be away from home, and incidentally, the first time I had ever taken a trip by train. As the train wound around the numerous bends and across small bridges, I felt the thrills that only the train can bring. Every station where we stopped had the typical crowd who had come down to watch the train go by. A few people got on or off, but that was not the real reason why people had assembled. After stopping at twenty small places, we neared the really big town. The train whistled for the station, and then people began jumping up and crowding to one side of the coach. I followed suit, probably supposing that all good people who ride on trains had to do that. Soon it was apparent that something out of the ordinary was outside. There in the dim winter light sat by the station an automobile, the very first one I had ever seen and the first for many another traveler on the train. Curious people were gathered around the contraption, saucer-eyed. As I recall now, it was nothing especially fine-looking but it could run without a horse attached. And as the train came to a halt, few people paid any attention to such a commonplace thing as a locomotive; they were too busy looking at the new wonder. The train discharged its passengers, its mail, and its express and then puffed away out of the yards; at the same time instant the automobile (horseless carriage) got under way after a few feints and starts and sped down the dusty street at ten miles an hour, the admired of all the gazers. We had seen something new, something that was destined to transform our view of the whole world within a few years.

Some months later I was teaching my first school by the side of a dusty little country road. One day at noon recess a car came wheeling along; the boys took after it as it had been a rabbit and actually caught up with it. Most of them were afraid to touch it, but one daring boy jumped on the back of it and rode a few yards before he was dislodged when the car hit a bump in the road. His dirty clothes were bearable all the rest of the day, for he was a local hero, a boy who had ridden on a car.

Still a year later, when I had advanced my teaching to a small village school, some visitors came to my boarding house in a car. As they were leaving on Sunday afternoon, they asked me to ride with them for a distance if I wished. I rode to the railroad crossing, a half mile away, probably fearful that the contraption might blow up. As I walked back through the deep dust, many an envious eye was cast at me by the less fortunate villagers who had not had such a daring experience.

To younger generation this sounds like pure fiction, and if it were not for a good memory bolstered up with the diary I kept at that time, I would doubt the truth of it myself. In less time than it takes to tell it, the automobile became a fixture, so that today one wonders how we ever got anywhere in the good old days. Distances have shortened, wonders have ceased, gasoline has taken the place of horseflesh. And the first automobiles seem today even stranger than the one-hoss shay, the oxcart, or the covered wagon. In museum's, such as the one Mr. Ford has built at Dearborn, Michigan, the earliest cars attract the most comment of the numerous means of travel exhibited there. In a short lifetime we have spanned centuries of thinking and eons of human experience. Styles have so hastened the passing of earlier types of cars that we soon laugh at the strange gadgets that we spend our good money for a few years ago.

TRIPLE A CHICKS

In the last few years quite a lot has been said about Triple A Chicks. Many purchasers have been misled by this superior sounding phrase.

Triple A chicks mean simply the best grade of the particular hatchery who is advertising his product, but triple A chicks from that hatchery might be poorer than another's A grade. Therefore, the term in itself means nothing. There is no standard AAA.

With the term U. S. Approved the purchaser is given assurance that he is actually buying superior quality and not an advertising snare. U. S. Approved is the title given hatcheries who desire to im-

COUNTY AGENT

Questions and Answers on Soil-building Practices

By S. V. FOY

Fulton County Agent

How much lime should be used per acre?

Two tons per acre of ground limestone, four tons per acre of marl or one ton per acre of burned lime would be sufficient on most land. Alfalfa might profitably be limed at a heavier rate. Too much lime may be injurious to tobacco and therefore should not be applied immediately preceding that crop.

How should lime be applied?

Probably the best way to apply lime on plowed land and disk it in, as the land is being prepared for planting, or it may be applied to the land and disked into the soil before planting, or it may be applied to the land and disked into the soil before plowing. It may also be applied on pasture or hay fields as top dressing. It may be spread with any of a number of kinds of lime spreaders or it may be spread with shovels. Marl may be conveniently spread with a manure spreader.

How long does lime last and how much does it return per acre?

With good farming, a two-ton application of ground limestone should last from 12 to 16 years. Valuing corn at 60 cents per bushel, wheat at 80 cents per bushel, and hay at $12.00 per ton, and assuming that a ton of lime lasts only four years, the return on our outlying experiment fields has been over $20.00 per ton when we compare land treated with phosphate alone, with land alongside treated with both phosphate and lime. When we compare the land with no treatment with land treated with lime alone, the return has been $13.50 per ton or more than one-third less.

Which has given larger crop increases, lime alone or phosphate alone?

Phosphate alone on most soils has given larger increases than lime alone. However, the largest crop increases have been obtained where both have been used. The increases from one acre treated with both lime and phosphate have been 3 per cent more for corn; 10 per cent more for soybeans; 39 per cent more for wheat, and 47 per cent more for mixed grass and clover hay, than the combined increases from one acre treated with lime alone, and another treated with phosphate alone.

What do these results indicate? These results indicate that both lime and phosphate could be used on all soils deficient in both of these materials. Where both have been used on the outlying experiment fields, the returns from the crop increases on corn, wheat and hay have been approximately six dollars per acre per year for each dollar invested in lime and phosphate. Furthermore, at the end of a given period, say 20 years considering its earning capacity, the treated land would be worth three or four times as much per acre as the untreated land.

What proportion of his soil-building allowance can a farmer take up in using the A. C. P. phosphate?

He can take up 80 per cent of his soil-building allowance with A. C. P. Phosphate, providing it is used on soil-conserving crops. The need for phosphate is so great throughout most of Kentucky, that farmers should not only use the full 80 per cent of their allowance in taking A. C. P. phosphate for conserving crops, but should purchase commercial phosphate for their depleting crops, such as tobacco, corn and commercial wheat crops. Phosphate used with lime, makes the lime so much more effective that farmers could afford to buy their lime to use with the phosphate even though they have to borrow the money with which to buy it.

TIMELY TOPICS

In addition to their other hardships, British air shelter dwellers have been annoyed by sightseeing visitors. A few days ago the authorities put a stop to "shelter slumming" by curious persons.

Owing to a lack of uniformity in rulings of local draft boards, Congresswoman Margaret C. Smith of Maine has introduced a bill making mandatory the deferred classification of all married men living with their wives.

Since April, 1939, Clarence L. Friend, an amateur astronomer of Escondido, Calif., has discovered three new comets, all confirmed by Harvard Observatory, which has just announced the third. The second comet discovered by Mr. Friend has been named for him.

Dr. David T. Smith, bacteriologist of Duke University, predicts that the mild influenza epidemic now prevalent in the United States will spread over the world in a more violent form by next fall.

Fairchild engineers have perfected a new "electric eye" aerial camera which automatically snaps pictures when a magnesium flare bomb explodes, thus facilitating the taking of night photographs by aviators.

After being unopened for forty years, a box thought to contain old documents was knocked open with a hammer at the town hall in Sanborn town, N. H. Inside five sticks of dynamite with set caps were found, but they did not explode.

The United States is now turning out steel at the rate of about 80 million tons a year, or more than all the rest of the world is producing. All the steel required for our new two-ocean Navy will be less than one million tons.

Newsweek reports many deserters from Gen. Weygand's French forces in Africa going over to the pro-British army of General de Gaulle. A group of aviators are said to have flown away from Madagascar to join the British in South Africa, and a French destroyer with its officers missing also changed sides.

UNCLE SAM'S PHONES

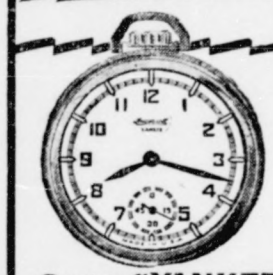

Telephones now used by government officials and employees in Washington alone now number nearly 52,000, as compared with slightly more than 20,000 in 1933. An increase of more than 6,500 was made in the last year, due to the new offices created in connection with the defense program, and more are being added continually.

The White House and adjacent executive offices of the President's staff use about 100 telephones, over which an average of some 2,000 calls are handled by seven operators daily. In addition, the President has numerous direct, private lines to leading members of Congress and confidential lieutenants.

About 39,000 calls daily are handled for the Capitol and the Senate and House office buildings, through 1,400 main stations and hundreds of extensions, requiring the services of 39 operators. It is interesting to note in passing that the original Congressional telephone girl, Miss Harriet Dally, who first took that position in 1898, as the only one so employed, is still on the job in charge of all the Capitol operators.

The United States as a whole now has about 22 million telephones, which is more than are in use in all the rest of the world. Washington, because of its being the seat of our government, has the highest ratio of telephones to population of any city, with 40 to every 100 people. In fact, our capital has more telephones than the whole of Brazil, which has an area larger than our 48 states.
