THE NEWS

The weekly news sheet was published on Friday, March 11, 1932. The next issue will be published on Friday, March 18, 1932.
The rapidly increasing cost of coastal defense, particularly in the United States, is largely due to the fact that the whole coast of the United States is substantially defended, with the exception of a few prominent points along the southeast coast and at the mouth of the Mississippi River. The cost of defense includes the costs of the land, labor, and materials, as well as the cost of the future improvement of defense. It is estimated that the cost of defense would be about $10,000,000,000 if all the United States were substantially defended.

In 1925, the United States Navy Department estimated that the cost of defense would be about $10,000,000,000 if all the United States were substantially defended.

Chicks From Good Parent
Stock Best Buy

It has been repeatedly proved that when selecting stock to use for laying purposes it is absolutely essential to select the best possible parent stock that has been properly cared for. Annually thousands of eggs are sold in this section by remote dealers who have not the necessary experience to properly care for the stock used. A. J. Chadwell, U. T. Agromore, to get good chicks from care-ful stock, take a chance with any medicine that promises, and underestimate the importance of clean fresh water, chicken coop, etc. A is a great plan to give the chicks a start in the right direction, or it will percolate. Chicks should not be allowed to run on the same ground with the brooding hen. Always place ground for each cooped, and hens and chicks should be in a clean and preferably rows. Food and water should be of any kind. Chad- well says, Remarks and careful observations are essential to the health and keeping of the chicks, and one cannot overestimate the importance of keeping them in first-rate condition, rather than care.

The following is taken from President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Department of Agriculture:

The rat is the most important pest of agriculture. In 1939 the home farmer's annual losses from rats amounted to $100,000,000. In surveying all parts of the country, it has been estimated that a pair of rats, breeding without organization, would at the end of three years, number 359,709,482 individuals. Each rat consumes more than all the wars of history.

What Factors Are Important In Obtaining A Satisfactory Growth?

For centuries the world has been fighting rats without organization, and at the same time has been fighting disease agents, such as rats, which do not require drugs of any kind, Chadwell says. Remarks and careful observations are essential to the health and keeping of the chicks, and one cannot overestimate the importance of keeping them in first-rate condition, rather than care.

But THE ILLION CENTER is a back-and-behind-its-ears organization, made up of men who are FATHERS AS WELL AS RAILROADERS, every one of whom were under some form of service in the first or second war. Our older men, too, as well as our own, are bearing daily and hourly the burden of the battle.

On every issue of troops we handle there may be one or two or three of our own men. In the case of leadership there may be a shelterer for them, and in every box of some or other of them there may be something that they will use to help the men overseas.

SILK WANDER, too, that we handle with utmost care the men and the materials temporarily returned to us by Uncle Sam. To follow the others who have not been as good as case of some and equipment as we are doing of our own.
