THE LISTENING POST

● I guess that is all my imagination, but it does seem to me that we are decidedly short on blossoms this year. Probably it is this true it is caused by the fearfully cold weather which hit this section back in January. Temperatures of fifteen or eighteen below zero do not help plum and peach trees any, and my guess is that many trees were badly damaged by that sub-zero weather. I know that my own plum tree indicates this. Usually this tree puts on its white dress by the middle of March and last year it was such a mass of white blossoms that it seemed hardly possible. This year it has blossomed all right, but the blossoms are few and far between as compared with other years.

● I have not been traveling as much as usual this spring and perhaps have not kept up with things as well as I did last year or the year before that, but it strikes me that I do not see nearly so many blossoming trees as usual. Last week, for instance, I drove to Pinery Farm in Graves County and near that little locality I saw the first blossoms I had seen all season. That was on March 20, and this is pretty late for blossoms in this section. It may be that the blossoms are merely delayed, for there has not been a lot of warm weather to date, but I fear that trees have suffered much damage from the second cold weather in January.

● I really enjoy my usual traveling up and down the highways at this season. In previous years I have made a habit of driving to the south on Sunday afternoons, and one does not have to drive very far south at this season to see spring coming in. Fulton, it has always seemed to me, is just about the cross-roads between the North and South and even a few miles south seem to make a decided difference in the season. Many times I have been in Memphis around the first of March or perhaps a little later and found spring pretty well on its way there, when here in Fulton, there were few if any signs of spring. I have always reckoned Memphis as being at least two weeks ahead of this section in the coming of spring, and as a rule, Memphis is also much warmer in winter than here in Fulton. The difference of 125 miles is quite a lot in these matters.

● Nowadays I do mighty little traveling. Instead of driving through Fulton to Union City and back home after working hours, I now drive out where the Clinton highway turns from the Hickman road and then back home. Instead of driving to Union City and back for a short trip I make the circuit through the Highlands. In fact, as one might guess, instead of driving about four or five hundred miles a week, as I have for several years, I now drive about one hundred. Once in a great while I do break over and drive to Union City or Mayfield, but these trips have been few and far between. Last Saturday, for example, I went to Union City in the afternoon, and this was the first time I had been there since December.

● Verily, verily, these pesky Japs have played shunder with my ordinary habits. I have always had a certain amount of trouble in getting time for the desired things out of a lot of money. But I never did get to the place where I could not get them at all, by stretching my credit and arguing with the dealers a lot. I used to look at a worn tire and think to myself that I ought to get a new one. But as long as I did not get a lot of punctures I kept on going, knowing that I could then get some new ones. Now the only thing I fear is a puncture. I know this time how out-and I know punctures mean the end of a tire. That's where I am now.

Australian Front Continues To Be Inactive As Japanese Strike Dangerously Deep Into Burma

Invaders Appear To Be Slowed In Attack On Approaches To Australia As Battle Grows More Dangerous To Allied Nations In Burma

Allied Position Appears To Be Growing Worse As Japs Pour Reinforcements On All Points Against Allied Troops

The Japanese invader was striking dangerously deeper into Central Burma last night while the lengthening period of inactivity before Australia suggested more and more strongly that the enemy had the supreme gamble of a frontal assault upon that great Allied rampart.

It was upon Burma and the outer India theatre that he was concentrating, striking toward the yet distant Central Burmese oil fields and toward the approaches to India.

The Japanese were moving in force up both the main roads to Central Burma, dotting the parched country ahead of them with parachutists bent on organizing Burmese traitors.

'Chutists At Work
In the Irrawaddy valley road to Prome and the oil fields 140 miles beyond, one large mixed enemy force was 40 miles south of Prome; another some 25 miles behind it. Ahead and in between, the isolated 'chutists were at work.

To the east in the Toungoo area, on what is known roughly as the Sittang front, the most violent fighting raged between Chinese troops, entrenched and apparently cut off south of Toungoo, and Japanese troops who have by-passed that town and taken Kyungon, 12 miles to the north.

The Allied position appeared to be worsening steadily. With the Chinese cut off at Toungoo, the British army now guarding the Yenangyaung oil fields north of Prome faces Japanese offensives from both east and south. Apparently General Harold Alexander is expecting the Japanese from Toungoo to turn west for a junction with the enemy force in the Irrawaddy valley, although yesterday's communiqué reported no contact as yet in the Pegu Yoma mountain range which lies between.

Position Critical
The position of the Chinese at Toungoo was called critical unless they can cut their way through the Japanese to the north or can be reinforced within two days. Nevertheless, the day's communiqué reported they are inflicting heavy casualties on a Japanese-Thal attacking force and "are well dug in and will hold on until relieved."

Limit Of Few Hundred Dollars Will Be Placed On House Bill

Washington. —The pending War Production Board order on private building, more drastic than previously supposed, will put an upper dollar limit on new non-defense building and forbid sale of materials for construction on a larger scale.

The permissible residential cost was not disclosed, but presumably would not exceed several hundred dollars—sufficient to provide only a minor addition to an ordinary home.

However, the limit on farm buildings was expected to be several times as great because of the Government's desire to expand output of foods and dairy products. Provision also will be made, it was understood, for construction necessary to care for the need of public utilities and some other essential civilian services.

Repair work on existing buildings would not be curtailed, according to reported present plans.

HOUSE MEMBER IS GIVEN OVATION; REASON IS DISPUTED

Opposing Factions Ascribe Different Reasons

Frankfort, Ky. —One member of the Kentucky House of Representatives was given an ovation today which one faction called "a vote of confidence," while another group termed it "a carefully plotted and staged demonstration" lacking spontaneity and sincerity.

The issue, of course, was legislative redistricting. Rep. J. Wood Vance, Barren county Democrat, replying to a Louisville Courier-Journal editorial which criticized statements he made on the floor last week, denied that his argument at that time was "specious" as the editorial charged.

The argument referred to was Vance's declaration that "practical democracy" could not be produced by "purely mathematical" redistricting of the state because in mass, while rural voters retain independence of thought.

The purpose of the editorial, he continued, was to "mislead the public as to my sentiments, those of my constituents and of this House. I had, he said, expressed doubt that Vance's constituents and other representatives agreed with his view.

Asserting that his constituents were unanimous in agreeing with him, Vance demanded to know if the House also agreed.

With the shouted prompting of Rep. J. Lee Moore, Simpson county Democrat, "let's show him," approximately half the representatives present rose to their feet applauding.

U. S. Flier Killed In Thailand Expected Death, His Sister Says

White Plains, N. Y. —Janet Newkirk said today that her brother, John "Scarsdale Jack" Newkirk, American "Flying Tiger" squadron leader killed in Thailand, never expected to survive the war.

News that her brother had been killed during a raid in which forty Japanese planes were destroyed, she said, "wasn't much of a surprise after the news we've had recently. We knew he'd be right in the thick of it."

Thankful Plane Didn't Burn

Dry-eyed, but obviously upset, she discussed her brother on the condition that her father, Louis Hasbrouck Newkirk, a New York City attorney, would not be questioned.

"He is badly upset," she said. "The one thing for which she and her father were thankful, she continued, was that her brother was killed by machine gun fire and didn't die in a flaming plane.

"That's the most he would have asked for. He didn't expect to get back," she said.

Except for a postcard received sometime ago by way of Singapore, in which her brother wrote—"If I don't get knocked off there'll be a lot to tell," Miss Newkirk said her last communication with her brother was a letter written last summer.

She said he wrote the letter just before he enlisted, and in explanation of his enlistment, which came soon after his marriage, he said: "Perhaps if we are thrown into this maelstrom something will evolve from this struggle and for its own sake will make for better living than we have known yet."

SAYS DRAFT BOARDS CAN'T TAKE MAN OUT OF PRISON

Holds Sentence Must Be Served Under Law Before Army Takes Him

Frankfort, Ky. —Under state law, draft boards can't take a man out of jail for Army service before he serves his sentence or pays his fine.

Giving this opinion to Boyd County Attorney George F. Gallup of Gallettsburg, Assistant Attorney General Guy H. Herdman admitted today there might be a federal law governing such situations but that he had been unable to find one.

"If the federal draft law opened the doors of the state and released these prisoners to go in the Army," Herdman said, "it would, in our opinion, interfere with the rights of the state over its prisoners and would also induct into the Army many undesirable characters."

He pointed to a new law permitting parole of prison inmates serving less than 10-year sentences for military service but said county judges had no authority to parole jail prisoners.

Quarterly and other inferior courts of Kentucky have no jurisdiction over cases involving second offenses under the local option law, Herdman told Graves County Attorney Farland Robbins of Mayfield in another opinion.

TEACHER-PRINCIPAL DOESN'T BENEFIT FROM TENURE ACT

Frankfort, Ky. —Even though school principals teach courses themselves, Assistant Attorney General W. Owen Keller said today, they are unable to benefit from the 1942 teacher tenure law.

John W. Brooker, state superintendent of public instruction, had said in asking the opinion that several superintendents had inquired about teaching principals and that one suggested changing their titles to "head teachers."

As enacted, however, Keller said, the tenure law specified that its provisions did not apply to superintendents, principals, attendance officers, supervisors or assistant principals.

"This seems unusually strict," he added, "but such is the form used by the legislature. It seems to be customary in most schools of the state to require the principal to do almost a full load of teaching."

"However, since he is principal, he cannot be denominated head teacher and an individual who has been principal for the past four years cannot now change his status."

"This distinction made by the legislature seems very unreasonable."

CLEANING INDUSTRY WAGE-HOUR SCALE MADE MANDATORY

Operators Now Subject To Fine For Violations

Frankfort, Ky. —Rigid enforcement of a special wage-hour scale for women and minors in the cleaning industry after April 1 under threat of fines and jail sentences was ordered today by Senate Industrial Relations Commissioner W. C. Burrow.

Burrow said regulation changing from directory to mandatory the standards set for workers in the laundry, dry cleaning and dyeing business. In his order, the commissioner pointed out no one appeared at a recent hearing in opposition to the change.

Under the directory order, violators could be punished only by publication of their names. The mandatory regulation carries fines ranging from $25 to $200 and jail sentences of ten to 90 days for violations.

The cleaning industry directory is according to four zones of cities, determined by population and location. The standard ranges from 20 cents an hour and a 48-hour week in small cities to 28 cents and 44 hours in large areas.

Women and minors in other in-lustrate industries are governed by a blanket scale.

The cleaning industry director order has been in effect since Nov. 1 and Burrow said in his order that there had been "persistent non-observance" of it.

NICHOLS FUNERAL TO BE SATURDAY

Funeral services for Dave Nichols, former Fulton resident, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ernest Napier, in Gulfport, Miss., will be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the Hornbeak Funeral Home, with the Rev. William Woodburn, pastor of the First Christian church in charge. Burial will be at Union cemetery.

STIMSON, KNOX URGE GOVERNORS TO SUPPRESS VICE IN ALL OF THE STATES

Washington — The Army and Navy asked Governors of all the states today for a vigorous campaign to suppress vice, which Secretary of War Stimson said threatens "serious danger to the success of our war effort."

In letters to each Governor, Stimson and Secretary Knox of the Navy urged them to assume responsibility for tightened law enforcement, in cooperation with local military and Naval authorities.

"I hardly need remind you," Stimson said, "that among these healthy young men of our Army, venereal disease produces more disability than any other single cause, and that, among industrial workers it is one of the most serious causes of disability and inefficiency, especially in the boom towns of war industry."

"THE OLD TIME RELIGION" IS DR. HOUSE'S SUBJECT

Last night the subject for Rev. House's sermon was "The Old Time Religion." His text was the ever fascinating story of Christ and Nicodemus, centering on the one phrase, "Ye must be born again."

He said in part, "This text says to all men everywhere that if you never committed another sin in your life, if it were possible to live an absolutely perfect life until the day you die, you still would be lost. Nicodemus was educated, wealthy, stood high in the social life of the city of Jerusalem, was no doubt in every way a desirable citizen. Christ was what the world called a radical and a fanatic, but he looked deep into the heart and soul of Nicodemus that night and saw its need, saying in thrilling tone the words that still make the heart of the sinner tremble and send a chilling feeling of uneasiness through the heart of the moralist. 'Ye must be born again.'"

"The tragedy of our churches is that so many of the members are not born again. Reformation is not regeneration. It is good for a man to reform, but is will not save his soul from Hell. This thing of being born again is for God and according to his will, entirely outside the realm of man's power or understanding. And to the person who says I will not accept anything I cannot understand, he gave the challenge of radio, electricity, the planting of grain. We do not understand these things but we accept the results. It would be a poor world if we didn't. Christ himself gave the wind for an example. The wind that is always the same wind but does not always blow the same. One time the cyclone sweeps away all before it and again it is a soft summer breeze. So this new birth does not effect every recipient the same. Some are born in a storm of tears. Others with a quiet smile.

"But the most vital question to be answered by any human being is 'What is Christ to you?' Is he

Three Planes Downed

Three planes were shot down Tuesday out of 54 of a new type which they dropped back and forth over the forts. Most of the anti-aircraft gunners' score was run up in late December and in January before the Japanese diverted their bombers to the conquest of the Netherlands Indies.

A recapitulation of communiques showed at least four accounted for on December 29 when the first mass air attack was reported; three shot down on January 3, four each on the next two days; and two on January 15.

Representative Bender Hits At Present Censorship Regulations

Washington. — Representative Bender (R.-Ohio), registered perplexity Tuesday over censorship which he said was driving American newspapermen into premature senility.

"We must have censorship in war time," he told the House, "but let that censorship be consistent. Let it be intelligent."

"For some two months now," Bender said, "Byron Price has been carrying on bravely as chief of our censorship. But despite his efforts, the American people continue to be mystified."

"When censorship was first begun by Mr. Price, it seemed perfectly acceptable. The basic rules for our newspapers were clean and simple. x x x

"What has happened has been almost incomprehensible. When our soldiers arrived in North Ireland, that news was proclaimed to the world. x x x But it required something like painful surgery to dig out the information that our boys came from the middle west. For some reason the Army seemed to believe that this was a military secret.

"But this is only a sample of the Washington. —Battling a six-hour Japanese air attack on the Manila Bay fortifications in the Philippines, defending anti-aircraft gunners swelled today to at least 24 their total score of enemy planes shot down.

Four large bombers were sent crashing out of 54 which subjected the island forts to aerial bombardment described tersely by the War Department as heavy.

As on Tuesday, when the bombing was renewed after a respite of more than two months, the Japanese air attack was concentrated on Corregidor, site of Fort Mills and key to the Manila Bay system of fixed defenses.

Slight Damage
Aside from loss of the four planes, the effect was described officially as slight damage to military installations and only a few casualties to defending troops.

On the nearby Bataan peninsula, there were sharp skirmishes between patrols in a continuation of the recent intensified fighting which Lieutenant General Jonathan M. Wainwright has interpreted as the beginning of a full scale Japanese attempt to crush Philippine resistance.

It was the third successive day of the latest phase of the bombing onslaught on the fortifications, and Hughes situated on smaller outlying islands, as well as Corregidor's Fort Mills.

Kind of censorship which is driving American newspaper correspondents into premature senility. Our Army procurement division recently turned thumbs down on a request for permission to print information dealing with new aircraft factories. Within a few hours from the refusal, a Washington official gave out the entire story personally.

"Information dealing with the details of war production was rigidly withheld from the representatives of the press in Washington for weeks. A military service journal proceeded to publish the whole story in specific terms without batting a typestick.

"Mr. Price has told us that the censorship program is being enforced entirely through the voluntary cooperation of our publishers, but the Army has threatened to use the 1917 Espionage Act to enforce its views on what may and what may not be printed.

"Perhaps the censorship problem is only one more manifestation of the confusion which prevails throughout our high command in Washington."

MR. KENT STRETCHES A RUBBER REPORT

The rubber section of Jesse Jones' report on the war activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is hardly as sweeping and conclusive a vindication of Mr. Jones as Frank Kent indicates on this page today.

According to Mr. Kent's interpretation of the report, Mr. Jones has simply passed the whole blame back to the President for the delay in getting into synthetic rubber production. This delights Mr. Kent enormously, of course, but if Mr. Jones is trying to do what Mr. Kent thinks he is, then the Secretary of Commerce is committing an act of gallantry and sportsmanship equalled recently only by his fellow Texan, Martin Dies. Mr. Dies said that the President and Secretary of State last fall kept him from holding hearings on Japanese espionage and thereby, Mr. Dies chivalrously intimated, prevented an expose of what the Japs intended to do at Pearl Harbor.

Actually Mr. Jones' report shows only that Mr. Roosevelt concurred in advice given him by Mr. Jones. The President was mistaken in this. Mr. Jones' advice was far too conservative, as events have proved. He should not be reproached too severely on this point, however. Who clearly foresaw a year ago or even six months ago the fall of Singapore and the catastrophes centering about that defeat?

As Mr. Jones points out, "neither the rubber companies nor the oil companies owning the patents were willing to spend any of their own money in manufacturing synthetic rubber, notwithstanding that the rubber manufacturing industry, the oil industry and the automobile industry are all dependent upon rubber." But Mr. Jones' report, as a Government official, was at least more farsighted than the private interests most intimately concerned.

But on the matter where he has been, in The Courier-Journal's opinion, most blameworthy, Mr. Jones' report says nothing, and Mr. Kent says nothing either. On last January 13, when the facts of the rubber situation had become appallingly plain and it was the concern of every other responsible Government official to convince automobile-loving America of the drastic seriousness of the shortage, Mr. Jones was indulging publicly in a fatuous optimism that must have misled many of the people.

He even gave the impression that in eighteen months there'd be enough synthetic rubber to make new automobile tires available to the public on a considerably more generous scale of rationing than had been instituted. And as late as February 3, Mr. Jones was observing comfortably that the United States still was receiving the entire rubber output of the Dutch Indies. He said that rubber was arriving at a rate of 35,000 to 40,000 tons a month, and he actually talked as if this were going to keep on.

How much rubber in tires was uselessly wasted by Americans who

SPORT TALK

Dr. Nolen Hughes is again doing the coaching of the track team, and for the past few days has had a pretty good squad at Fairfield going through preliminary workouts. Little actual work has been done as yet, for the boys must be put into condition before serious work is started. Coach Giles is also taking some part in development of the track team, for while he will leave Fulton shortly, he still takes a lot of interest in various phases of the athletic program and wants the Bulldogs to do well in all three branches. Coach Hughes directed the track squad last year and did a fine job. He has most of the boys who were on the team last year, with several new ones and it appears likely that he can put together a team which will win many events. Hugh Mac McClellan, who has already served out his time in football and basketball, is still available for his final year at track and it is likely that he may set some new speed records on the cinder tracks of the Purchase this year. In his preliminary workouts

"Hots" seemed to be faster than ever, and that means a lot. Without much doubt he will win most of his matches in the Purchase meets this spring.

It is understood that the Bulldogs will go to Cairo some time next month to take part in an invitational meet which is to be held in the Illinois city. Many towns from Southern Illinois will be entered in this Cairo meet, and the competition may be very keen. This will probably be the first meet for the track squad this year.

The football squad went through the best practice session yet held Wednesday afternoon. A sufficient number of boys lined up to get some pretty fair scrimmage, and the team began to look a bit like a football team. Coach Garrett lined up with the regular backfield, made up of Robert Whitesell, Johnny Sharpe and Jack Moore, and for a few minutes the team really played football. The boys are beginning to get the fundamentals of the game, and while Coach Garrett is not pushing them too fast, he does want to get a team shaped up by next Friday. It is planned to play a practice game on that day, probably with McKenzie or Greenfield, but no definite arrangements have yet been made. However, the coach has told his boys he wants them to absorb enough football during the next few days to be able to play a regular game, and the boys are really whooping it up for this game. There is some fun in a real game, even if only a practice affair, and the regular practice grind is more or less drudgery. The practice session Wednesday really gave the boys much hope for a pretty good team next fall.

The basketball players will be entertained with a dinner by the Lions Club tonight at the school cafeteria. This is an annual affair for the Lions Club, and this year, for the first time, members of both the A and B teams are to be guests. In former years only the lettermen were guest, but this year practically the entire squad will be on hand. About 25 boys, coaches and school officials will be present at the dinner. There will be no guest speakers, as the Bowling Green coaches, who had been invited, were unable to attend. Therefore the dinner will be in charge of home folks and will be more or less of a testimonial dinner for the departing Coach, Herschel Giles.

It's been whispered for years!

We've been warned against spreading rumors, but we don't believe there's any objections to the rumors spread around for years concerning the QUALITY of Browder's Flour.

Housewives don't mind telling their neighbors about the baking qualities of Browder's Flour for they know they're doing them a favor. Fact is, we don't mind you making complimentary remarks about any one of our products.

So, take a hint from your neighbor and order a bag of Browder's Flour today.

CONGRESS AMAZED AT SECRETARY WHO MAKES $40,000.00

Lucrative War Orders Disclosed in House Hearing

Washington. — Congress was amazed today at the disclosure of war orders so lucrative the lady secretary of a manufacturer has been drawing salary and extras at the rate of $95,108 a year.

The manufacturer, W. S. Jack president of Jack and Heintz, Inc., of Bedford, O., contended in a statement that the bonus system under which the secretary was paid actually decreased costs. He told the House Naval Committee yesterday that the firm, which makes airplane parts, had given out $600,000 in bonuses last year.

"And the money all came from the government," said Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the committee.

The secretary, plump Miss Adelaide Bowman, said of her employer, "He's generous and is the most wonderful man in the world."

She acknowledged yesterday that she had received $39,356 last year and $18,295 for the first 10 weeks this year—an annual rate of $95,103 for 1942.

Edmund Toland, counsel for the committee, charged that the company paid the huge bonuses to employees and officials to decrease profits and thereby avoid excess profits levies.

Company officials testified that Jack's salary had risen from $25,000 in 1940 to a salary and bonus of $145,945 in 1941, that "a melon was cut for all earning over $10,000 a year" to help them pay income taxes, and that all workers got a $500 Christmas bonus.

"We believe that with our bonus system we have a morale in our organization that any manufacturer can be proud of as our associates in business (employees) have 100 per cent confidence in the management and are giving their all from the standpoint of skill and production, and we believe that with our bonus systems in force instead of increasing costs of our product our bonus system decreases the cost," Jack said in his prepared statement.
