While Christian science has been raging with unabated fury in the larger cities, it has only recently struck Baltimore, and although, doubtless, a great many people have heard of it, very few know what it means. Yesterday the congregation at one of our churches was somewhat astounded when one of its prominent lay members, who is in charge of a charity institution, withdrew from the church. Her written withdrawal did who simply desired to satisfy a friendly curiosity, revealed the fact, it is alleged, that the layman question has abandoned her church for Christian science. Her action has awakened an interest in the latest fad which may not augur well for the churches.

Smoking is a habit that is increasing to an alarming extent among the girls and women. Not the loose, vulgar, but the most delicate in New York some of the most fashionable young ladies have their fashionable "parties," but they usually confine their indulgence to the pernicious cigarette.

In England, however, the women have progressed a step farther, and smoke pipes. London papers have become astounded. They say the girls are seen, some riding or walking, with a handkerchief carried horizontally past their mouth. Many of the swell young ladies carry their own miniature evidences of their habit in the form of silver stanzas on the finger tips. So far as is known, the habit has not struck Palm in any shape or form.

Two or three well known young ladies are contemplating the formation of a new syndicate here. It is a syndicate to furnish at rock-bottom prices religious articles to be read at "reunions," anniversaries, monthly meetings, and suchlike. The young ladies are invited to a superlatively large degree and have had an unlimited experience in compiling articles of the above-said class. Whenever there is a meeting of any sort, they are always requested to write papers on some subject. Their experience has taught them that they are not only immensely qualified to direct the discussion, but to argue, but that they have not the courage enough for glory and it is now time to work for something more substantial. There

POINTS TO BOOK COLLECTORS

Advice as to the Selection and Care of Good Books.

A. F. H.

THE first point to be considered in the selection of books for a library is the purpose for which the library is to be used. Is it to be a general library, or a library for a particular purpose? If it is to be a general library, the books should be selected with a view to the interests of the community at large. If it is to be a library for a particular purpose, the books should be selected with a view to the interests of the particular purpose.

The second point to be considered is the quality of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the quality of the paper, the binding, and the printing. The books should be selected with a view to the quality of the subject matter, and the quality of the author's style.

The third point to be considered is the quantity of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the quantity of the books, and the quantity of the books should be selected with a view to the quantity of the books.

The fourth point to be considered is the cost of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the cost of the books, and the cost of the books should be selected with a view to the cost of the books.

The fifth point to be considered is the location of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the location of the books, and the location of the books should be selected with a view to the location of the books.

The sixth point to be considered is the care of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the care of the books, and the care of the books should be selected with a view to the care of the books.

The seventh point to be considered is the display of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the display of the books, and the display of the books should be selected with a view to the display of the books.

The eighth point to be considered is the use of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the use of the books, and the use of the books should be selected with a view to the use of the books.

The ninth point to be considered is the preservation of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the preservation of the books, and the preservation of the books should be selected with a view to the preservation of the books.

The tenth point to be considered is the promotion of the books. The books should be selected with a view to the promotion of the books, and the promotion of the books should be selected with a view to the promotion of the books.

Brother's when I come to town." "I'll be there."

Brown: "Yes, mein friend. Brown vass'led! How long since you been in Blatoochee?"

Three months!

Three months! Ay, Brown vas peated two months already. Come in and fed me you some cools. I vas so glad to see you! How loved, brice, mein teufel!"

The unexpecting yokest told his sorrow over Brown's death, and proceeded inside, where he vas sold his bill of goods by the amiable merchant. He started down the street, and finally, whom should he meet, but Brown himself. They shook hands, greeted each other cordially, and then Brown saw the bundle in his hand, raised his arm.

You vas my good friend, I see?"

Brother, apologized the farmer, "do you know that damp rascal down there told you were dead?"

He said? Ay, dot man rascal! I'll stomp you right 'round dere and vix him, my shinks!"

He looked at the name and traile mark on the bundle to make sure he would get the correct place, and hastened off, at a trot, as he went.

Dere next came some pretty dancin' you vas told, you gone around and ask me vider I vas teard or not? See?"

And the next morning Judge Sanders did the rest.

The spontaneous wit of actors has furnished many a good story. The following is one of the latest, told by the New York Mirror:

While playing Grand Rapids, Michigan, at the company of a Bay Mills, Western, became the happy father of a girl baby. During the performance a bulky carriage of flowers was handed to him, bearing a card inscribed: "The sisters Rivers wish to congratulate Mr. Murphy—just for a kick!" The theatre was in

COLORED

Hope is the title of a good little poem by the Indianapolis Freeman, the 26th, last. It was written by Mr. Jessie Phillips, a young gentleman, with whom we are personally acquainted and have known for years. He is now a clerk in the S. B. Barnett Company's big store, Eastington, Ky. To paraphrase Whittier: "Press bravely onward; to a vain your generous hope; to a human kind, the good, which blood can't find, not given, your peaceful, self-shed life."

Two thousand colored citizens met at a mass meeting in Chicago at a time to protest against the assassination of Postmaster Baker and his companion at Lake City, S. C. Mrs. Ida W. Barnett was one of the principal

Mrs. Helen Douglas, widow of the late H. Fred Douglas, is lecturing on "The Convict Lease System," and the papers say her stories of the wrongs practiced upon the prisoners are painful and thrilling.

At Concord, N. C., on the 8th inst., the corner stone of the Columbia Cotton mill was laid. This is the only mill in the world owned and operated by colored men. The employees were held in the court house and there were white and colored speakers. Among the latter were the Hon. William White and Philetus Washington. The mill is about twenty-three completed and is a very fine structure.

John H. Lawson, of Philadelphia, is the only colored man in the country who possesses a medal of honor from the United States government, awarded for distinguished bravery in action during the late war. It was presented to him by Admiral Farragut in person.

Lawson distinguished himself in the "Mud March" of 1862.

The twenty-three men were killed or badly wounded by the bursting of two shells which entered the compartment in rapid succession. Lawson remained at his post, passing ammunition to the gunners.

An officer called down from the deck: "Why don't you hurry up with that ammunition?"

"I couldn't answer," that he was trying to best he could, and if quicker work was wanted, he must be sent him.

"What's the matter with the rest of the men?" demanded the officer.

"Dead," said the colored man, from the deck, "they were hurled from the ship with a load of shells, and are lying, stepping, cooily over, gashily, poles of motionless bodies.

"Orange juice, ice cream and lemonade shall be given away free of charge next Wednesday evening at the entertainment at Washington class society by the Marlborough club. The race of the Busy Bees and the Marlborough in the one church, and Marlborough and Willing Workers in the other, is making things mighty interesting.

A private told meeting is in progress at Mr. Mote Johnson, who has been the sick list for some time, is still unable to be out.

Mr. Henry Mansfield, who has been very ill for the past few days, is very well now. Mr. John Nichols is very ill at the residence of Mrs. and Mr. Henry Mansfield.

Mr. Chambers, the brother-in-law of Mrs. G. H. Barker, died at May, yesterday. Rev. Harks and Mr. Alex Dryden, of South Street, has been in the audience last evening.

The entertainment to be given in aid of Joe Stansfield, Tuesday evening 10th, will be postponed until Wednesday evening, on account of the concert at the hall.

Mrs. Frank Jones, desires to thank you for taking part in the concert last Tuesday evening, and regrets very much that it was impossible for her to be in attendance.

THE LATE TESTIMONY SOCIETY.

The lecture at the C. M. E. church last Friday night, was a treat of rare occurrence. The general editor of this column, Mr. C. W. Mearns was the speaker of unusual ability, and his effort was acknowledged, success, to say the least.

A large audience heard it, and satisfaction and appreciation was expressed generally.

T. D. Hous-

The Epistolectic Dramatic company will hold forth at the hall tomorrow evening, and there is every reason to believe that there will have a stand-out room. The young ladies and gentlemen are among the best in the city and the time they have been in the world on this play. "Cast Upon the World" gives the public reason to expect something great.

The Washington Opera Hall and the scenery have especially been pointed for the production of this play to your scribe.

Thought, the Willing Workers be' will have refreshments for sale in the basement of the Washington Street church. All are invited to make out.

POISONED "GREENS."

They Result in the Death of the Young Wife of Geo. Smith, at Unionville, Illinois.

She Made Them into a Salad, and Soon After Partaking, Went Into Convulsions, Terminating This Afternoon.

Mrs. Florence Smith, the young wife of George Smith, who resides at Unionville, Ill., died last night from eating poisoned salad. The salad was made of wild greens, which are supposed to have been poisoned weeds of some description.

The young woman, the only one who ate of the salad, was taken violently ill almost immediately, and although every thing possible was done for her by Dr. Webb, she finally succumbed. The nature of the poison is unknown.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. Joel Anderson, who came over this morning after a coffin and leaves a husband and a girl baby.

The funeral took place at 10 o'clock this afternoon at Unionville.

COMPULSORY VACCINATION.

The State Board of Health Has Recommended it.

Wants Every City and Town in the State to Adopt One.

The local board of health has received a circular of warning from the state board, relative to the smallpox epidemic in some portions of Kentucky.

The board advises that all cities and towns pass and enforce a compulsory vaccination ordinance, by giving with the colored race, but reaching, everywhere, that isolation hospital or tests be established, and suitable grounds for their location be secured.

The board further recommends that visiting and strangers be hunted out, and that physicians practicing among negroes be instructed as to the difficulty of recognizing mild cases of smallpox. No quarantine can be established without the consent of the board of health.

The board urges that every person in Kentucky be vaccinated or re-vaccinated. The board will call local boards to the full extent of its power. There was a compulsory vaccination law in Paducah a year or two ago, but it is doubtful whether or not it will be enforced.

BIG RAINFALL.

It Is Nine and One-Half Inches Already This Month.

Greatest Known Here For Many Months May Be More.

The rainfall for Paducah, and vicinity during the present month, has been 9.5 inches, the greatest since about this time last year when it was a trifle more than nine and a half inches. This is a stupendous quantity of water to fall in one month, and the indications are that the rain is not over yet, and before the end of the month, may be considerably increased.

RISE THIEVES.

They Go Up a Telegraph Pole—Two Establishments Entered.

Thieves broke into Capt. J. R. Smith's wholesale grocery and the wholesale whiskey house of Dryfus & Well on North Second street Saturday night or Sunday morning.

They climbed a telegraph pole and reached a tin roof in front of Capt. Smith's, and broke through the windows.

They then proceeded to the office and broke into all the drawers that were locked, and made a general overhauling of both establishments, but so far as could be learned, did not secure anything. Nothing was missed, but the thieves may have secured whiskey.

FRANK HAFLEY DEAD.

Consumption Carried Him Off At the City Hospital.

Frank Haffley, a well known young man of Paducah, died yesterday afternoon at the city hospital, aged 26. He had been in the hospital about eight months.

He had resided in Paducah all his life, and of late years had been suffering from consumption, and it was this disease that carried him off. He leaves two brothers here, John and Will Haffley.

The time and place for the funeral have not been set, but the funeral is likely take place tomorrow.

ELI THORPE CASE RESET.

Was Continued Today Until Next Friday—Young Mitchell Still Unable to Be Out.

Several Breach of the Peace Cases Tried, and Numerous Fines Were Assessed by Judge Sanders.

The case against Willie Ellithorpe, charged with maliciously cutting Don Miller's hair, was called to the police court this morning.

The prosecuting witness was unable to attend court. The number of witnesses is large, and includes many boys from the school to which the principals in the bloody affair belong. The case was continued until Friday.

Marion Rhodes and Ashbury McDaniel, colored, who were enjoying themselves on the South Side yesterday afternoon in a buggy, when Officer Orr happened along, were fined $1 and costs each.

Thomas Clark and Joel Thomason, charged with abusing each other at the market house Saturday over a borrowed saw, were fined $5 and $1 and costs, respectively.

Ernest Strath, white, and Frank Puma, colored, charged with shooting inside the city limits, were fined $5 and costs each. They were out beyond Oak Grove, and claimed they did not know the locality was within the city confines.

Arthur Crawford, a colored boot black, pleaded guilty to striking Ed Elliott and using profane language on the streets, was fined $10 and costs.

The case against P. M. Hanley, agent for a railroad insurance company, for failure to pay license, was continued until Saturday.

James Kennedy, J. R. Winters, Thos. Chapman and Newt Blumner were charged with drunkenness, and fined $1 and costs each.

JUSTICE J. P. WINCHESTER

Summoned to Appear in the Police Court With His Record.

Assessed a Fine of 1 Cent Against Joe Berry, For Whom There Was Already a Warrant.

Justice James P. Winchester was this afternoon summoned to appear in Judge Sanders' court and to bring the records of his court with him.

This action was the result of a warrant issued this morning in the justice's court.

Joe Berry, charged with striking a young man on the head with a beer glass, a few nights ago, went before the justice and pleaded guilty, being fined one cent and costs.

There was a warrant out against Berry in the police court for the same offense for which he was fined today in the justice's court, and the warrant in the first named court was issued Friday.

There may be a lively time over the affair unless the justice suspends judgment.

SUGAR GIVES STRENGTH.

This Fact Proven by Scientific Experiment Better Than Best.

The fact that sugar gives strength is a well known one, and is proved by scientific experiment. It is the only food that gives strength, and is the only food that is easily assimilated by the body.

larged in the upper right hand corner. The sliding piece at the top has a marking letter beneath it, which indicates on a colored paper below the distance through which the bending of the middle finger moves the upper piece, thus showing the height of which the weight is lifted. The plate on which the paper lies has a notched edge (to the right), and it is pushed over the space of two cogs when the electro-magnet (just to the right) comes in contact with the sliding piece. In my experiments the took place once every two seconds at intervals of this length the electric clock at the top of the diagram closed the current, in the circuit of which was the condenser just below it magnetizing the electro-magnet. Every two seconds it attracted its slide, with a loud clapping which was the signal to the person who was the subject of the experiment to contract his finger. The key with a handle below the clock served to break the current in the intervals.

The conclusion from the experiment was that 30 grams of sugar after half or three quarters of an hour restored the body to muscular vigor. It is evident from these facts that even after great strain of the muscles their ergographic power may be noticeably increased even by 30 grams of sugar.—Philadelphia Press

MATERNAL POWER OF THE BEE

The Queen Has Control of the Sex of Her Offspring.

One wonderful power at least belongs to our bee queen, the last of the sex of her offspring. When she wishes to develop male or female unfertilized eggs, she simply refrains from fertilizing an egg, when it wishes to produce a drone. Many a poor human being would have had a happier life if he possessed the power of developing male progeny at will. However, the powers of our bee queen are limited.

Female bees, and even the queen, lay eggs, and these eggs are fertilized by the queen. The queen has the power of developing male or female progeny at will. However, the powers of our bee queen are limited.
