THE NEWS

Fulton, Fulton County, Kentucky, Thursday, August 4, 1960

I read all of the statements Happy makes about things in general and I imagine its because its so amusing that it takes my mind off of serious problems.

She will still be a regular staff member of the Pepper Record Co. of Memphis. Miss Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tillman Adams of Fulton and a student at Murray State College.

Let's Vote Fluoridation

We're still hoping to interest enough intelligent people in Fulton in the fact that our water supply should be fluoridated.

Several years ago, you will remember, the attempt was beat down amid cries of "poison", "danger", and other absurd falsehoods. We don't see how parents of growing children who want their children to grow up with healthy, sound teeth can sit idly by, pay big dental bills, see their children grow up with so many cavities that in numerous cases complete plates are necessary by the time the child is graduated from high school. Such a thing is ridiculous, unnecessary and can be avoided for the future generations of Fultonians by adding fluoride to city water NOW. Yet Fultonians are doing nothing about it.

Here is what Dr. Freckerick Stare, Harvard School of Public Health had to say about fluoridation this week:

The evidence has been so striking that today more than 35,000,000 people living in more than 1,000 American cities without enough natural fluorine in the water are enjoying dramatic improvement in dental health because they have fluoridated water.

It has been proved over and over again that simply by adding fluoride at a concentration of one part per million, the incidence of dental decay can be decreased 50 to 70 per cent in a period of five to 10 years.

Fluoridation of public water supplies costs about 10c a person a year. This is a good bargain in the field of public health.

Fluoridation has its opponents, just as every important step in public health has had—vaccination against smallpox and iodization of salt, to name a few.

One of the favorite arguments against the procedure is that fluoride is a poison. This is true it is—in large amounts. But the amount present in water, naturally or by addition, is so small that it makes this argument ridiculous.

Many of the things we use or eat every day can be "poisonous" in large amounts. Chlorine, used for purifying water, is toxic if used in large amounts. So is vitamin D; so even are such common substances as salt and water, if taken in large enough quantities.

If you are faced with the responsibility of deciding whether your city fluoridates its water supply, don't be frightened by the scare tactics of fluoridation's emotional opponents. Many millions of people have lived for centuries in areas where fluorine exists naturally in their water supply.

Fulton The Pretty Town

The downtown area has gained lots of pleasing color and a bit of restive, pleasant atmosphere this summer with the addition of several dozen flowering "planter" boxes in front of various stores. Don't know when so little has brightened things up so much!

We hope that the practice continues year after year. Fulton has, because of the existence of railroad tracks the length of its main downtown thoroughfare, always conveyed a sort of a drab atmosphere before the coming of the pretty flowers, but not now. If you like the planters, too, why not comment to the merchant whose particularly attractive display catches your eye.

Speaking Of Sales Taxes

Fifteen other states have sales taxes at the same rate as Kentucky's—3 per cent on most retail sales.

Five states have sales taxes HIGHER than Kentucky's. In Hawaii and Illinois it is 3.5 per cent. In California, Pennsylvania, and Washington it's four per cent.

Fourteen states have sales taxes of two or 2.5 per cent.

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

Sex And Love

By Joe Breig

Editor of the Cleveland
Universe-Bulletin

I was a teen-ager in the flaming-youth period of the 1920's; and if folks think youngsters are c-r-r-a-z-y now, they should have seen us then.

CERTAINLY WE were as mixed up about sex as anybody could be. Purity to us was a negative not positive; restrictive, not liberation. It consisted in a lot of irksome don'ts. We didn't at all grasp the soaring nobility, the splendor, the great manliness and womanliness of the virtue.

BOYS AND GIRLS hungered for one another, but they didn't love one another.

That, I think, is the heart of what was wrong with youngsters then, and of what's wrong with them now. They didn't—and they don't—love one another. Why not. Chiefly, I believe, because they don't know what love is. Not knowing that, they find it difficult to master, direct, and channel the passions.

WHAT IS LOVE? What is sex? And what do love and sex have to do with each other?

Young men and young women are destined to create with God. They are made to bring forth, out of themselves, beings like themselves. They are to be makers, under God, of creatures who will live, and live, and live—as long as God lives—forever.

But that is not all that sex is for. Sex is not given alone for the service of new life, for the peopling of the universe and of eternity. Sex is meant to be at the service of love. It is to obey love; and in obeying it, to deepen and enrich and perpetuate it.

APART FROM LOVE, sex is like a flywheel breaking and flying destructively in bulleting fragments. Apart from love, sex is a pitfall, it is disillusionment, it is defeat, it is wormwood and ashes.

What, then, is love, which sex is intended to serve? Love is the desire for the true good of the beloved, plus the determination to bring that good to pass.

NO MAN who loved his beloved would embrace her if he were suffering from scarlet fever, or smallpox. No; he would warn her away.

No man who loved his beloved would embrace her until he had first vowed himself to her forever, and she to him. Love is a thing too bottomlessly deep for casual animalism. Love turns away, repelled, from such a thing.

THE MIND AND HEART of the young man should be occupied with the question, "How can I protect, how can I make more and more luminous, the splendor of this girl—and of myself?"

NO TEEN-AGER is ready for dating if he has given no thought to what he is and to the deep, eternal meaning of dating. Young people today are capable of facing more profound questions than off-the-shoulder gowns. Unconsciously they hunger for something more suitable to the splendor of themselves than superficial pamphlets about good-night kisses and such trivia.

What the young man is seeking, even though he would not admit it even to himself, is a woman noble enough to walk the corridors of heaven with him for all eternity, smiling with him upon the children and grandchildren who are there, shining with unearthly glory, because he and she made it possible.

530,000 Get Tax Cut; Kentucky More Attractive to Industry

By the Division of Industrial Promotion

Governor Bert T. Combs and Lieutenant Governor W. Wyatt announced that income tax relief for more than 530,000 persons and a stronger position for Kentucky in the competition for new industry will be two immediate results of the state's new 3 per cent sales tax, according to a recently completed study.

Gov. Combs

The tax relief will come from a 36 per cent reduction in the personal income levy, while sales tax exclusions for most of the machinery and raw materials used in manufacturing are more favorable than 10 and the same as two of the 12 states which are Kentucky's chief competitors for new plants.

Enactment of the sales tax, which goes into effect July 1, will allow a $20,000,000 annual cut in income tax starting January 1. At the same time, it will provide record sums of money for such critical state government operations as public education, health, welfare, airports, agriculture, highways, research, and industrial promotion, to name just a few.

Some 140,000 Kentuckians will be dropped entirely from the income tax rolls. Another 390,000 or more will benefit substantially through the removal of the much-criticized surtax and an increase of 54 per cent in the tax credit for exemptions. The surtax, which is a tax in addition to the normal levy, carried a charge of 10 per cent on the first $25 due, 20 per cent on the next $75 and 30 per cent on all tax over $100. Industrial development leaders feel that the income tax reduction, plus liberal treatment under the sales tax law for manufacturing machinery and materials, will make more competitive Kentucky's position as an expanding industrial region.

How competitive that position now is was pointed up in the comparison of sales taxes in Kentucky and in the 12 states which are its main rivals for industry. The study, made by the Kentucky Department of Economic Development, covered Ohio, North Carolina, West Virginia, Georgia, Indiana, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Alabama, Mississippi, Illinois, Arkansas and Louisiana.

Kentucky's exemptions include most of the items asked for by industry and agriculture. They should mean more jobs for Kentuckians. Virtually all industrial processing and machinery, mining of various types, and processing of farm and dairy products will not be taxed.

In the matter of coal used for the production of electricity, the Kentucky rate is more favorable than eight of the competitor states, the same as four. This, combined with its abundance of coal and water, is expected to insure the state's position as a major producer of electricity from steam.

Ouida Jewell

Upon her return to Chicago a few days ago, Dorothy Balakas mailed me a recipe I had been seeking ever since we visited in her home in Barstow, Calif. two years ago. It is for Sukiyaki, that famous Japanese dish. It's delicious and fun to serve! Thought maybe you would like to serve it at a dinner-party some time. The recipe goes like this:

SUKIYAKI

2 medium onions
2 bunches young green onions

3 stalks celery
2 cups bamboo shoots (you can get these canned)
1/4 lb. beef suet (cut in small pieces)
1 1/2 cup soup stock or bouillon
1/2 cup soya sauce
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 cake soy-bean curd (we never can find this so leave it out)
1/4 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced (can use canned)
1/2 lb. sirloin steak, cut in strips very thin.

Peel and slice the onions very thin. Cut green onion into 3 in. pieces. Cut celery in diagonal strips, cut bamboo shoots.

Try out suet in a skillet and add the onions, celery, bamboo shoots, 1/4 cup soup stock, soy sauce and sugar and cook about 15 min. stirring only once. After the first 7 min. reduce heat and add remaining stock. Push vegetables to one side and add soy bean curd which has been cut in to pieces and the mushrooms. Cook about 3 min. Push this to one side and brown the thin strips of steak. When meat is brown simmer all for 2 min. Serve at once with boiled rice.

We are so glad to hear that the teenage son of Mr. and Mrs. Hassell Williams is improved.

Mrs. H. W. Connaughton of South Fulton injured her ankle at the swimming pool last Wednesday. She was admitted to Fulton Hospital.

Mrs. Sarah Campbell, local beauty shop operator, blacked out in her car while on the way to the hospital Thursday morning on Carr Street. She was accompanied by her daughter in the car. A Hornbeak ambulance was called and she was given oxygen, then taken to Fulton Hospital.

Miss Nancy Adams of Fulton, who is on the staff of Pepper Records, Memphis, will be featured in the Fred Cook Jazz Workshop in Memphis on Sunday, Aug. 14, at the Front Street Theatre of Hotel King Cotton.

There will be two performances, at 7 p. m. and 9:30 p. m. Cook is a WREC announcer and record spinner.

The star of the workshop will be Larry Muhoberac, pianist, composer and arranger. He will present his trio, a vocal group and his 11-piece orchestra.

Miss Adams will be accompanied by her own jazz trio from Murray State, where she is a student.

There was a nice article and picture of Nancy in the Press-Scimitar last Wednesday evening. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tillman Adams of Fulton.

Harry Bolser, Chief of the West Kentucky Bureau of the Louisville Courier-Journal, was in Fulton last Wednesday and I was his guide over town making pictures to be run in the C-J. Among the pictures taken were those of the Siegel and Ferry-Morse factories and of the new Hillview Hospital, which is planning a new addition soon.

Work was begun last Wednesday afternoon on the new South Fulton Athletic Stadium. The project is under the sponsorship of the South Fulton Boosters and will cost approximately $12,000.

J. H. Harrison of Carr Street, an employee of the City of Fulton, was accidentally hit on the head and injured while at work last Wednesday. He was admitted to Jones Hospital. His wife, a few days before suffered a broken toe and is off from work.

Mrs. Barney Yates and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Billie Yates, native of Hawaii, returned to Fulton Thursday after a month's visit in Hawaii. While there Mrs. Billie Yates visited her parents in Hilo to a destroyed recently by a tidal wave, and Mrs. Barney Yates stayed with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur Wiman, whose husband is stationed there in the U. S. Army.

The parents of the younger Mrs. Yates were saved from the tidal wave as their home is upon a mountain.

While in the Hawaiian Islands the local women visited two other Islands—the Island of Maui and the Island of Oahu, where Pearl Harbor is located.

The Fulton women made the trip by Jet both ways. They flew from Paducah on the Ozark Line to St. Louis, then took a jet to Hawaii, via Los Angeles. There were only the two stops and they were in Hawaii in only a few hours time.

As I'm interested in visiting Hawaii, I inquired as to the cost of making the trip. By jet, the fare round-trip is $466.33. (The reason I'm passing this on to you, is because several of my friends are interested in making the trip, also.)

I inquired, also, about the price of hotels, etc., and the younger Mrs. Yates recommended the Nimalu Hotel, located down town and right off the beach. There, you can get a room for $8 to $10 a day, while on the beach itself the prices range from about $20 a day, up.

For a week's stay in Honolulu, staying at a nice, but reasonably-priced hotel, you should have a wonderful time on about $200. That would make the trip by jet,

Motion For Default Judgment Against Humphreys Denied

Circuit Judge Elvis J. Stahr recently overruled a motion entered by attorneys for Mrs. Dorothy Erranton of Mayfield for a default judgment in her civil suit against Robert Humphreys, former county attorney of Hickman County.

Mrs. Erranton filed suit for $76,045 against Humphreys on March 25 following the fatal shooting of her husband, Allen Erranton on February 29.

Humphreys is under indictment for murder in Erranton's slaying.

Erranton was shot to death with a .45 automatic in the den of his home on Wright Street, Mayfield, on February 29.

Mrs. Erranton testified at a coroner's inquest and later at a bail hearing for Humphreys that the Clinton attorney fired at her husband seven times from point-blank range. Erranton died about three hours later in a hospital. Humphreys surrendered to Mayfield police immediately after the shooting, and has been held without bail in the county jail since that time.

His murder trial was set for the June term of Graves Circuit Court, but was postponed on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Harry Roberts.

of all the Fulton folks she called and visited with while I was conventioning.

The first few days that I was in Los Angeles I had an inch-high stack of phone calls from former Fultonians who saw in the Los Angeles Examiner a list of delegates and their hotels from every State in the United States. You know that those "folks-away-from-Fulton-in-Los-Angeles" turned first to the Kentucky delegation and when they saw my name they were mighty nice to call me. Unfortunately, and very unfortunately, the convention kept me pretty much on the go every minute and the only call I was able to complete was to Mrs. Grace Grace who is living in Van Nuys, California. I had a nice long talk with Grace and learned that she hadn't been too well and I promised to visit her when the convention was over, but as you well know I had to leave sooner than expected and could not take advantage of that pleasure.

I had a telephone message from Marian Maxfield and it said to "call any time." Marian is an airline stewardess with TWA and when I called she was out and when she called I was out so there went a good visit with a very dear friend who is among our favorite people. Marian worked with us at the News office in those halcyon days and she will always be in our personal Hall of Fame.

And please forgive me when I tell you that I never did get to return any of the other calls for reasons stated above, but someday I think I'll just take time out of my retirement to go back and have ole home week with the former Fultonians turned Californians, but only in residence, not in spirit.

For as long as I have been in Fulton I have always heard of and wanted to meet Sara Butt Amberg and her good husband Roland, a former resident of Hickman. I got that pleasure tied up in great big ribbons when Sara and Roland invited the visiting Fultonians to go sailing in the Amberg sloop. I had great misgivings about getting in a sail boat, especially one called a sloop, because I had vision of "them sails" just tilting that boat way over and I'd be hanging over the sides, holding on for dear life. Any fears I might have had were certainly dispelled when I took a look at that "sloop" . . . it was a full-scale sea-going vessel with all the comforts of home and running water to boot. It was a dream. The sailing expedition was made all the more enjoyable because Sara, Roland and their daughter Tish are real efficient sailors and they gave us the deluxe tour of the harbor, with all its foreign ships in port and then a little touch of the ocean blue. The Ambergs also have a son, Larry who is a summer exchange student in Mexico, and he's quite an accomplished sailor too.

The Ambergs lead a full and interesting life in Los Angeles and are active in almost everything in which they are interested, and that's plenty. After that sailing trip the Ambergs, Mary Nelle, Louise Killebrew and Mary Jo and I went to the Amberg home for dinner and if I ever ate a charcoal broiled steak that tasted better than those done up by Roland and also by Bill, I don't know when it was. It must be that California charcoal.

Before I had the pleasure of enjoying the Amberg hospitality Sara had taken the McMahon ladies and their house guests on a tour of Los Angeles and environs where they saw everything from John Wayne's footprints to the sands of the Pacific. Sara and Jerry both have learned to conquer that Los Angeles traffic and if they never achieve any greater fame than being from Fulton they will have that accomplishment in their favor.

Must sign off for now, but I'll be back next week with more travelling and more visiting . . . Jo.

Buying household equipment? Then keep these guides in mind for the best buy, suggests Mrs. W. D. McLeod, Fulton County Home Demonstration Agent.

Ask plenty of questions; find out all you can before you buy. Ask salesman other homemakers and informed persons; also look for answers in magazines, bulletins, etc.

Shop the field and compare prices and features at different stores and on different brands and models of equipment. Mrs. McLeod suggests. Check to see what special features the appliance has. Are you paying extra for these? Are the time and energy they save worth the extra money?

Costs include not only what you pay for the appliance but also installation, operation and upkeep expenses, she points out. When counting costs, divide the original expenses by the number of years you expect to use the equipment; this yearly cost may help in making your decision. Remember, too, that you buy appliance to save you time and energy; don't choose equipment that will take a lot of time to learn to use or to keep in good condition.

Don't forget to check on space, fuel, power and water needs of the appliance before you buy. Will the equipment fit into the space available in your home? Is your fuel, power and water supply dependable and adequate? Will your present wiring system carry the new appliance safely?

Ask for the instruction book and follow instructions carefully, she suggests. Remember to get the guarantee when you buy and read it to see what is promised. This is your legal protection against poor workmanship and materials. Always report equipment failures to the dealer to get full benefit from your guarantee.

Buy from a reputable dealer - one who is known to stand behind the goods he sells. Make sure he is well-informed about each appliance and that he will be able to service the equipment you buy. Check the brand name, too; buying an appliance made by a dependable company gives you more assurance of good service, according to Mrs. McLeod.

SHADES

Warren Anderson, local K. U. manager, said today that the estimated damage was approximately $20,000.00. All metering equipment was also destroyed by the fire, he said, but the large transformers were not damaged. The local K. U. crew, the substation crew, and the Paducah district crew worked all night at the power station.

The workmen were able to restore electric current to the city within two hours, then set to work on permanent repairs. A voltage regulator arrived from Lexington Wednesday and was to be installed Wednesday night. Mr. Anderson said that it was hoped that there would be no break in current while the regulator was being installed.

The Fulton Fire Department was called and the flames were under control in a very short time.

There was much concern over town because of the lack of electricity. Restaurant owners and many home owners feared their food would ruin. Swift & Co. was making ice cream when the lights went off. Mrs. Hugh Fly got busy on the phone and called Union City for dry ice to preserve the food at the Derby Restaurant, and the Derby continued to serve customers by candle-light.

While the lights were off, several thoughtful people rushed to the hospitals with lanterns or other lights.

The total darkness for two hours stopped a ball game at the Little League Park, and caused confusion at a meeting being held. At least one liquor store closed up.

Many people gathered at the scene of the fire and later the area streets were jammed with cars.

64 and 65 arrived in Colorado Springs on the afternoon of July 19th at 12:15 p. m.

From the day we got in Colorado Springs it was exciting. There was only one misfortune though. When we got there the transit line that was supposed to pick up our luggage was late in doing so; although, at about 11:00 p. m. the luggage was delivered. A group of 10 boys and two leaders set up tents for Troup 64 until 3:00 a. m. on July 20th. The rest of the boys slept in the supply tent. The boys had a time putting up tents; we all helped and the job was done.

KEEP FARM MACHINERY YOUNG

One of the most important jobs on the farm is the care of equip-ment. Thousands of dollars are rusted away each year on Western Kentucky farms. As tools finish their jobs this season, winterize each as its job is completed. It will not only save wear, it could save a few headaches. Here are a few hints for your consideration.

First, it takes very little money and time to clean and rub oil on the plow or disc, or to oil every bolt on the cultivator after it is taken off the tractor. This may sound as if you do not have any-thing to do, but if you take stock of the time it will save you next spring or the next time you use the machinery, I believe all will agree that there will be fewer break-downs and trips to the ma-chine shops if equipment is kept in order as it is used. All bearings should be greased before storage, this keeps out moisture, thus no rust. Loosen tension on V belts for longer life. Either drain the fuel tank and carburetor or fill the tank. This will depend on the us-age of the machine in question during the winter months. The moisture which will form in a par-tially filled tank causes much trouble in the winter. It goes with-out saying that blocks and radi-ators that have no anti-freeze should always be drained after use from November to April 1st. Fer-tilizer applicators should be wash-ed with water (warm if possible) and let dry, then rinse with a 50-50 solution of old oil and kerosene. The kerosene will carry the oil to hard to get places then evaporate ... leaving teh oil as a rust proof coating.

I have seen a lot of machinery under trees lately. I have yet to see a tree that didn't leak after it rained a while. Now the only way a tree can give any protection in the winter is to have it saved in-to boards and build a shed. It would be more profitable to use the shed for the tractor than the family auto since the car is pro-ected with the body.

Lets look around the farmstead and see where improvements could be made in machinery care and protection. ARE YOU USING A SHADE TREE SHED?

MISS LITTLE—

Bank on Reelfoot Lake. Attending were: Messrs. A. A. Grubbs, W. H. Harrison, H. M. Pewitt, Harold Everett, W. C. Tipton, Hoyt Burnett, Brantley Amberg, Ardel Fields, Earle Ezell and Ro Gardner of Hickman, Ky.; Messrs. Harry Lee Waterfield, Joe Johnson, Earl Warren, R. L. Veatch of Clinton, Ky.; Messrs. Tom Shirley, J. K. Smith, Addison McGee, and Jack Veatch of Louisville, Ky.

Registration began at 6:00 P. M. There were eleven contestants for the Beauty Contest.

The grand prize an air-conditioner, was won by S. A. Jones, of Cayce.

An address by Mr. Hamill mentioned the excellent safety record of this cooperative (the only one in the United States never having had a lost-time accident).

The officers selected by the Board of Directors to serve for the coming year were: W. H. Harrison, President; A. A. Grubbs, Vice-President; Bert Yarbrow, Sec. Treasurer.

The crowd was estimated at 4500.

"Twenty-five years ago on May 11, 1935, the Rural Electrification Administration was created by Executive Order of the President. At that time, only about one U. S. farm in nine enjoyed central station service, Mr. Hamill said.

"This year, as REA celebrates its Silver Anniversary, more than 96 per cent of all U. S. farms have electricity, and the more than 1,000 rural systems financed by REA serve a little more than half these electrified farms. In addition, REA's telephone loan program is making service possible for more than 1.2 million rural subscribers," he continued.
