THE LISTENING POST

● Driving down from Louisville a few days ago I saw for the first time a demonstration of the Nation's actual fighting power. I have seen, it is true, many soldiers and many troop trains, both rail and highway and have also seen many of the mechanical monsters and guns which go with troops as they passed through Fulton. The other day I saw them together and really at work. It was a demonstration that left me somewhat subdued. There was pride in the sight and yet there was a great sorrow as I thought of all that those things meant.

● After passing Camp Knox bound homeward we began to run into traffic stoppages. Frequently our car would be halted for a few minutes and far ahead we could see other cars also halted as small Army cars began to roll along the highway. Most of these were Jeeps, with a scattering of armored cars and motorcycles. Military police had charge of traffic and every once in a while they stopped all the civilian movements while Army outfits rolled past. In a few minutes we began to see the real mechanical forces begin to appear. Long lines of armored cars, interspersed with tanks, rumbled within a few feet of where we were halted. There was nothing glamorous, nothing romantic, nothing playboyish about any of these vehicles. They bore the marks of heavy and hard service. They were earth-stained, grimy, dust-covered, and it was quite plain that they had been in actual field service. While I had no way of knowing, I guessed that quite a sizable force had been working at the problems of war and battle and was then on its way back to camp. I could see from the appearance of the vehicles and the looks of the boys who manned them that it had not been any easy affair. Men and machines showed plainly the effects of rigorous work.

● In long groups, with more or less regular intervals between the groups, the tanks rolled along the highway. They passed within a few feet of the civilian cars on the other side of the road, and I could see the faces of the boys plainly. Inside the tanks, with the narrow slits open at the time, I saw the crew, and standing in the turret above I saw the boy who gives the directions to the driver. As most people know, when a tank is really in battle, the slits are closed and the man in the turret tells the driver which direction to go by kicking him on the shoulders.

● Inside the clanking iron chariot the boys seemed strangely like football players, for they wore crash helmets which are pretty much on the order of football headgear. But they knew and I knew that it is a far grimmer game than football, and inside that narrow machine I saw their faces looked tired and drawn. The commander in the turret also seemed tired as he stood there erect in the afternoon twilight and gave a salute to passing cars.

● Those boys are approaching the time when they will be shifted away from their training ground and moved to places perhaps thousands of miles away, where they will drive those tanks against a real foe, and where they will face no make-believe enemy. Then those slits will be closed tightly and those ugly snouts of guns will be belching out real shells instead of just pretending. The lessons taught in the hills of Kentucky will be carried out in deadly earnest in India, in Australia, in Norway, perhaps in Belgium or France, or in any of the lands where American troops may be called on to serve. It was a sobering thought that afternoon to gaze at those tough, hard-looking boys as they rolled their lumbering tanks down a peaceful highway to realize that all too soon their highways will be against blistering curtains of fire and through the dust of ancient

DRIVE AGAINST JOINT INCOME TAX RETURNS

Treasury Says Joint Returns Would Give Big Tax

Washington. —A drive against proposals compelling joint income tax returns by husbands and wives started today, less than 24 hours after the House ways and means committee approved the joint return plan which Congress rejected last year.

The Treasury says joint returns would add $300,000,000 to the nation's war chest. Quick opposition developed, however, among lawmakers from the nine "community property" states of Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Oklahoma.

Representatives West (D-Tex.), Gearhart (R-Calif.), and other lawmakers from the nine states predicted they would be able to defeat the joint income tax proposal.

The House defeated the joint income tax proposal last year by a roll call vote of 242 to 160. An attempt to restore it in the Senate failed before a vote was reached. House committee approval yesterday was 13 to 10.

Mid-1943 Deadline Is Set For Completion Of New War Plants

Washington. —A spokesman for the War Production Board said tonight that virtually all contracts for war plants which cannot be completed and in production by mid-1943 would be cancelled.

The drastic decision—giving complete emphasis to Chairman Donald N. Nelson's "do it now" philosophy—means, he added, that approximately two-thirds of all the war plant construction approved or under contract will be abandoned.

WPB was said to have been guided to this decision by two major considerations: Severe shortages of raw materials and belief that developments this spring and summer may spell a turning point in the Washington. —The United States added substance to the "second front" spectre haunting Adolf Hitler by landing today in Northern Ireland the largest army force yet dispatched to the British Isles, armed for offensive action.

Thus the possibility was raised that Hitler might be attacked from the west while locked in a death grapple with Soviet Russia on the east. Whether or not the United States and Britain intend to launch such an offensive in the near future, tonight's announcement of the landing seemed calculated to add to the Germans' worries at a time when Marshal Timoshenko is giving them plenty to think about in the Kharkov area.

Hard On Axis Nerves

The disclosure was the latest in a week-end succession which, whether intended so or not, must bear heavily on the nerves of all the Axis partners.

First, there was the word that the United States will cut down on its construction of new arms plants because available raw materials are needed by those already in operation. Since this country is known to have enormous resources of critical materials, the plain implication was that war weapons are now pouring out of the factories in a tremendous stream.

Second, there was the declaration from the White House that cargo shipbuilding had overcome an earlier lag and was abreast of schedule.

Third, the Army and Navy issued a lengthy joint review of the war which referred to the last five months as a "preparatory phase" in terms which aroused speculation that the high command believed this phase was coming to an end.

'Substantially Larger'
A terse War Department communiqué said the force landed in the British Isles was "substantially larger" than two previous contingents, and included armored units.

JAMES BROWDER RECEIVES DEGREE

James Browder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Browder, West State Line, is a member of the graduating class at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, this year, receiving his Bachelor of Science degree in agriculture.

He has been appointed Field Agent of the Dairy Section for the Extension Department at Lexington, and will begin his duties the first of June. He will arrive here Thursday, May 21, to spend a few days' vacation with his parents before going back.

Tennessee Valley Is Fashioned Into Mighty Weapon Of War

Knoxville, Tenn. —The rich, fertile, well-manned valley of the ever-turning Tennessee river has been fashioned into a mighty war weapon—a weapon that will be felt on all of democracy's battle-fronts.

The valley, once essentially an agricultural region, now has been transformed into an area which knows how to use its natural resources and, in using them, has acquired industrial strength.

It presents today a picture far different than it did during the first World War. The river now is harnessed by man's ingenuity and skill instead of flowing freely and dissipating its strength.

The river is setting the pace for the valley's mineral deposits, its fields and forests and quarries. The river has brought power to the valley and power has wrought marked changes.

The force responsible for the development of the power is the Tennessee Valley Authority, the regional agency created by President Roosevelt nine years ago—on May 18, 1933.

The new face of this six-state valley now presents can best be seen from the air and this reporter, accompanying TVA officials on a two-day inspection of the Authority's far-flung operations, saw a region hard at work for war.

Within only a few hours we flew over sprawling plants manufacturing aluminum, aircraft, munitions, vital chemicals. We saw configurations which represented munition depots, Army camps, objects which were heavily-laden towns of raw materials going up and down the river, and cities growing where nine years ago were only cross-road settlements.

And, one by one, the TVA's score of dams, either completed and in production or under emergency construction schedules, rolled beneath us.

All in all it looked like bad news in the making for our enemies.

After we had inspected gigantic dams on which men are working like ants, huge generators that soon will be humming, towering machines for the manufacture of vital chemicals, Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the TVA directorate observed:

"For nine years we have been building. Now we have our tools. We have electric power, the river under control, and a knowledge of the region's natural resources.

"Our next phase will be to carry on extensive research and be able to consult with and advise the people of the valley on how they can best utilize the resources of their valley. Our real work is just beginning."

During the past 12 months TVA took rapid strides in expanding its power production facilities and preparing the old World War chemical plant installations for active duty.

With 10 dams completed and its normal plans calling for only three additional dams on which it already was at work, the Authority was authorized to build a dozen others—in North Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee—and all other work was placed on stepped-up schedules.

Specifically, the statement disclosed that shipyards delivered 120 new vessels in the first 130 days of 1942, or 20 per cent more than were built in all of 1941. This compares with a total of 111 American merchant ships reported sunk since Pearl Harbor. The United States, however, must build also to replace ships sunk under the flag of other United Nations.

If the shipbuilding rate attained in the first 130 days were continued throughout this year, the program would fall far short of the goal of 800 vessels totaling 8,000,000 tons for 1942, but the White House said the peak of production had not been reached and construction was gaining momentum. Next year the goal has been set at 1,500 ships aggregating 15,000,000 tons.

U. S. TO FORM GROUPS TO FIGHT FARM BLAZES

Washington. —The Agriculture Department is planning organization of rural volunteer fire departments to combat farm fires.

The companies will consist of about ten farmers each and will be organized on a nation-wide basis. The organization is planned, the department said, because fire dangers are "greatly aggravated" by the war.

SOME PROSPECT OF ARMY WAREHOUSE FOR FULTON AREA

Some possibility exists of a large Army warehouse being erected in the Fulton area, according to President White of the Chamber of Commerce. This statement was made last night at the regular meeting of the organization and it was revealed that local people had been in touch with government officials regarding the project. It was said that 500 acres of level ground would be required, adjacent to a railroad, and about two or three hundred men would be employed in the warehouse after it was built.

Mr. White also reported on the creek project, stating that he believed work might begin by July or August.

Several members discussed the factory situation regarding union organization there. It is believed that only a small minority desire C. I. O. organization, but many of the employees have asked local business men to help them in opposing such organization. Efforts have been under way for several months to organize the local factory and within the past few weeks intensive efforts have been underway.

Chairman Byrd (D-Va.), and Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.), of the joint congressional economy committee fought bitterly against the cash increase, the latter asserting that he thought C. B. Baldwin, FSA administrator, was a Communist and "doing almost the poorest job performed by anyone connected with the government."

Senators Bankhead (D-Ala.), Hill (D-Ala.), Russell (D-Ga.), and Pepper (D-Fla.), quickly disputed the assertion, contending that the administrator was a "patriotic American" devoted to the interests of distressed farmers. (Baldwin in a statement tonight called the charge "absurd and untrue.")

Same Assertion

The Tennessee Senator said he had made the same assertion to Baldwin "in substance" at a congressional hearing, adding that "I don't make any statements behind a man's back that I won't make to his face."

"I'll waive anything," he declared. "If Mr. Baldwin wants to sue me, let him go ahead. I'll waive the fact that I'm a Senator."

JUNIOR HIGH GRADS TO HEAR FRED SCHULTZ

R. E. Barr, vice president, Chicago, will be in Fulton tonight.

S. C. Jones, trainmaster, was in Dyersburg, last night.

L. E. Gaskill, fuel engineer, was in Memphis today.

Warns Sins Of Enemies Should Not Blind America To Its Own

San Antonio, Tex. —Southern Baptists in their first wartime convention in 24 years today were reminded that the "daring arrogance of the sins of our enemies" should not blind this nation to its own failings.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller of Atlanta, recently elected president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, bluntly stated that there is ample proof of "connection between the sufferings that await us and the sins which we have committed."

Thoughts of countless thousands of young Americans "blasted out of the air at dizzy altitudes or mortally wounded in tropical jungles" prompted the convention preacher-of-the-year to call on the nation for repentance from evil he cited as:

"Our legalized nefarious liquor traffic paying taxes to a nation whose homes it is destroying;

"Our empty churches and crowded theaters on Sunday night;

"Our Godless homes equipped with bars but not with family altars;

"Our selfish pressure groups seeking to outwit one another for material advantage;

"Our racial prejudice;

"Our penury toward God and our prodigality toward lustful pursuits;

"Our prostitution of marriage, and,

He upbraided Christians for "the heresy of silence" toward evil when their lives "should be the light of the world."

Retiring President W. W. Hamilton of New Orleans told the convention's opening session that "God gave man the inalienable right to freedom, and Baptists believe that all attempts to take this from him must of necessity fail in the future as it has failed in the past."

NOTHING FROM NOTHING COMES

(Nation's Business, May, 1942) Emerson once said, "What will you have—quoth God, Pay for it and take it."

Every one of us would like to have "victory" in the present conflict. The way to get victory is to pay for it. Lip service and patriotic parades will not defeat our enemies.
There must be earnest money. Earnest money is a time-honored expression meaning a pledge, a token of determination. It is a visible sign—in our case, the production resulting from sweaty labor.
We who do not go to the front must pledge the monetary result of our labor today, and the result of our labor in the past, that is, our savings.

When we are asked to buy war bonds and stamps, many of us naturally think, "Why is my little $18.75 needed? The great Government of the United States can appropriate billions by passing a law.
Why not go on the same way?"

But plain common sense tells us that past borrowings were possible
because we had established a credit, a reputation for paying up.
Horse sense tells us we have been using our reserves, eating up our seed-corn.

A nation, like a family, can use its reserves for a time, but not for long. Credit gone, national bankruptcy comes. A national receiver is always a dictator. History is unanimous on this. We, individually, must help preserve the national credit. That is our part in the war.
Not one $18.75 bond will do it but

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Attorney Tom Shelbourne died yesterday at his home in Bardwell.
E. W. Black has returned from Paducah, where he has been a patient in a hospital for some time. He is reported much better.
The annual Junior-Senior banquet of Fulton High School was held last night with an enjoyable program.

Read and Little, local Dodge dealers, are in first place of a nation-wide selling contest, according to a telegram received here today.

Paul Bushart of Union City, who has been ill for the past week at the home of his mother here, was able to return to his work this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Croft of Chicago, spent the week-end with his mother, Mrs. J. A. Colley.

Mrs. A. J. Turney of Crutchfield
attended Decoration here Sunday
and was a guest of Mr. and Mrs.
R. M. Belew.

Tom Butler is reported quite ill
at his home on Central Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Humphries spent yesterday in Jackson with friends.

Mrs. T. F. Martha is reported ill
at her home in Riceville.

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Luten, Mrs.
Robert Bard and baby are in Little Rock visiting Dr. Randall Luten.

W. A. Bell spent yesterday in Paducah on business.

Colonel Luke Lea of Nashville
yesterday completed a transaction by which he becomes owner of the Memphis Commercial Appeal. The price was said to be $3,000,000.
Colonel Lea also owns the Nashville Tennessean.

40,000,000 purchases of such bonds
several times a year will keep us solvent. There can be no such thing as insolvent representative government. The alternative?

Forced loans and forced labor.
—but that is what we are fighting.

Another excuse for not buying war bonds and stamps is that so much money is spent on activities which have nothing to do with war.
Here is the answer to that one:

Buy a bond. Then, with good grace, you can make it clear to your representative in Congress that you expect him to see that your money is spent to win the war.

"I have done this," you can say,
"and now, by the Eternal, you must do your part."

No unpatriotic threat in that,
just friendly advice to a public servant. But don't write the letter until you have bought your bond.

Money and machines alone can't win. There must be something else.
What? The Greek, 2,000 years ago, had a word for it, "Ethos" they called it. A surging resolution of the people, a resolve that brooks no opposition. That is what is needed behind money and machines. An out-pouring of individual funds arouses that spirit; it becomes contagious, spreads throughout the land. With such a spirit our anxieties die. There comes, instead, a fighting determination to win, to win quickly, completely and, God helping, thus to build a better world in the tradition of free America.

The Bible tells us a story. Jerusalem was in ruins. Her enemies were approaching. The people asked Nehemiah, "But, Nehemiah, who will rebuild the walls?" expecting some magic from their Government or from above.

Nehemiah answered, "You will rebuild them, you the people."

Their enemies approaching the gates shouted, "Hah! Their hands will drop the work and it will not be done." But it was done, and the Bible tells us why. "The heart, the spirit of the people was in their work."

Where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

Help finance America's war effort! You are America. It is your war, your personal fight. Buy a bond and show your neighbors—
and important, convince your own self—that your heart is in the job of defending a free way of life.

56-YEAR OLD COOK PUT IN SPOT OF HONOR AT FAMILY DINNER

New York. — Two elderly women took a bow at a big family dinner
last night.

One was 56-year-old Halka Franco, who ate one of the few meals in the last fifty years which was not the product of her own culinary skill. She was guest of honor at a dinner party given her by the family to whose tastes she catered
these many years.

The other was Mrs. Anna Hoffman observed with reasonable pride that "not many women can

THE SECOND LINE OF DEFENSE

Your first duty as an American citizen is to support the Government by buying all the War Bonds you possibly can. That duty comes first and we urge you to do your utmost in this.

However, it is false economy and untrue patriotism to allow your home to fall into disrepair because of the national emergency. Your home represents a sound value and should be kept in excellent repair, for some day this war will be won and well-kept homes
keep up our home morale during these days of emer-

Helps National UnityBe a Good
Party-Line Neighbor

The constantly increasing demand for telephones, coupled with the ever-growing necessity for conserving raw materials essential to war production, has made it necessary to distribute available telephone facilities to serve the greatest number of people.

For these reasons more and more people will be using party-line service for the duration of the war.

Since the best party-line service for all depends upon equal sharing of the line, it is doubly important now that party-line users be good telephone neighbors.

If you are a party-line user, you can do your part in this emergency by listening a second to make sure the line is clear before you call so as not to interfere with someone else's conversation. You can also help by holding each conversation to a reasonable length to avoid depriving others of their fair share of service.

It is our desire to provide good telephone service to all party-line users alike. Party-line subscribers can assure themselves of the best service by being just as considerate of others as they would like others to be of them.

Community unity will make for National unity in America's all-out war effort.

FISCAL PROBLEMS CONFERENCE WANTS DEFINITE CEILINGS

Government Is Urged To Cut Spending, Build Up Reserves

Chicago.—The Midwestern Regional Conference on fiscal problems today approved a resolution advocating establishment of "definite" ceilings on wages, farm product prices and profits as anti-inflation measures.

The conference urged state and local governments to restrict expenditures, accumulate post-war monetary reserves to cushion economic shock after the war, and remove hindrances to production by making state-owned facilities available for war use.

The conference urged states to "prepare to offset possible post-war depression by developing programs and blue prints for public works and services, and by accumulating means of financing them."

Another resolution advocated establishments of a permanent federal-state-local commission to facilitate cooperation between local state and federal agencies on fiscal problems.

The conference called upon the federal government to create necessary machinery for cooperating with state and local governments in determining joint fiscal policies. John K. Langum, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said in an address that "we are going to have a lot of trouble with price control without a ceiling on wages and farm prices."

MAN GOES TO HIS WORK IN BOAT AND ON BICYCLE

Wrightsville, Penn.—When tire and gasoline rationing caught up with J. H. Silar, he bought a bicycle and a rowboat. Now, he pedals three miles to the Susquehanna River, rows himself and the bicycle across and pedals three more miles to his work. "It's tough," he admitted. "But I save bridge tolls, too."

Now is the time to renew your subscription to the Leader.
