MEET WITH COURT — Residents along "Tater Road" here in Graves County met with the fiscal court Monday afternoon to discuss the condition of that byway. A spokesman, standing, said the road was impassable in places and he had to "walk out" in order to attend the court meeting. Commis do something about the road's condition as soon as possible. Many of the county roads have sustained heavy damage this winter.

Fiscal Court Hears Road Complaints

By Jim Abernathy

Sixteen Graves County residents attended Monday's fiscal court meeting to tell County Judge/Executive Dick Castleman and members of the court they needed something done to their road, which they say — has become impassable in places since this winter's freezing and

"We've got a three-mile mudhole on our road and those three loads of rock you hauled this morning haven't phased it." one of the residents told the three commissioners and Castleman. The road they were complaining about is commonly referred to as "Tater Road," although county maps have tagged it "Later Road." The 2.8

miles of byway travels from U.S. 45 South to Ky. 58. Scott H. Green, who was appointed during the meeting to represent the group in the discussion, said he had to "walk out" from his home to attend the meeting. "We want gravel so we can get in and out from our homes. The group of residents complained that mail carriers and school buses have stopped traveling the road because of its state of deterioation ruts deep enough to drag the bottom out of automobiles. One woman in the group said she had already dragged the tail pipe off her car trying to drive to and from her home.

It was also brought out by the group that one man attending the meeting had to be taken to the hospital this past weekend by an ambulance, which got stuck going and coming from the man's residence. "Had the call been a life-or-death matter," they added, "he probably wouldn't have been attending the meeting today."

Residents were told, however, their road was not the only one in that condition here in Graves County. Judge/Executive Castleman called it an "act of God," which had caused so many of the county's 500 road miles to "fall in" from the bad weather the county and area suffered this winter.

Members of the court also pointed out to the residents that roads in neighboring counties were just as bad as those here, if not worse. Castleman was invited by one man in attendance "come out and see their mud hole if he didn't believe them." The county official replied, "I don't doubt your

J.E. Wyatt, county road foreman, told the group that contrary to their statements about no work being done on the road, members of his crew had been to the road several times unloading rock. "We (county road dept.) hauled three loads of rock this morning to put on that road and we did that to replace the rock that fell-in over the weekend." Wyatt added that the rock, which apparently fell-in this weekend, had been put on the road last week to help

The road foreman said the county had 16 trucks hauling rock on Monday seven county trucks plus a tractor trailer rig hauling from the lake and otherscarrying rock to county roads. He added that last week alone, the county hauled 1,255½ tons of rock at $3.55 per ton. This, he continued, does not include the cinders and other types of gravel hauled earlier.

Wyatt was also given an invitation to come out and "wade through" the mud in hopes he would change his mind about possibly hauling more rock to the Commissioner Rex Benifield, turning to Castleman, said, "We'll get you where you can get in and out, won't we judge?" Castleman emphasized to the group Castleman emphasized to the group that most of the roads in the county were in "bad shape" and needed work, which he said couldn't be done to any extent until the ground settles. Later in meeting, Castleman appealed to county residents to keep heavy trucks and equipment off of roads until the "weather breaks." He called the situation an "emergency."

The Tater Road residents were given something to hope for, though. They were told that their road had already been scheduled for rebuilding this summer — maybe June — with the roadbed being allowed to "set" for a year or two and then being paved.

Following the 35-minute discussion on the roads, the group dispersed and the court continued with its regular special meeting.

special meeting.

During that portion of the meeting, the county treasury was given a boost when County Clerk Charles Harris and Judge/Executive Castleman presented their settlements, containing excess fees, to the court.

Castleman's settlement, which will be the last the county will receive from a county judge since the office was changed by the new court system, totaled $1,059.93.

Harris' settlement — the largest amount of excess fees ever turned into the fiscal court here — was $86,718.28.
Harris, however, had already reported $34,103.40 earlier this fiscal year for a total excess fees of $120,821.68.

Besides the discussion on roads and the acceptance of the final settlements. the court heard the claims read and approved them for payment. No other matters were brought up during the

In 99-Day Strike

New Coal Contract Proposal Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite striking miners' overwhelming defiance of a back-to-work order, federal officials are trying to avoid a coalfield confrontation in the hope that negotiators are nearing a contract settlement that could end the 99-day coal strike.

"We don't plan any hasty or illconceived actions. ... We don't seek any confrontation," said Justice Department spokesman Mark Sheehan. "What we don't want to do is create any situation ... that could interfere with the collective bargaining process.

Meanwhile, bargainers for the United Mine Workers and the coal industry planned to resume negotiations today amid hints they were closing in on a new agreement.

The two sides, which held intensive talks throughout the weekend, did not meet Monday but remained in telephone contact during the day. White House press-secretary Jody

Powell said some officials involved in negotiations were "at least cautiously optimistic" about putting together a settlement

But a United Mine Workers spokesman said Monday that UMW President Arnold Miller had not yet summoned the union's bargaining council to Washington. The council must approve any contract settlement before it can be submitted to the rankand-file for ratification.

The Carter administration obtained the back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Act last week, hoping it would allow at least some mines to resume production while bargaining con-

Monday was the first real test of the court order, as strike-bound mines stood ready to reopen and federal marshals completed serving copies of the order to more than 800 UMW

But only a handful of the 160,000 striking miners in Appalachian and Midwestern coalfields obeyed the order. In most areas the number was too small to even form maintenance crews, and companies simply sent the

But in Pennsylvania, club-carrying pickets traveled in a 150-car caravan to shut down non-union mines. "If any mines are open, they shut them down, then they move on," said state police Maj. Homer Redd. "We've had some rocks thrown, but most of it's heckling.

Some picketing — specifically for-bidden by the court order — was reported in Colorado, Kentucky and West Virginia, although most areas were quiet.

In the face of almost total defiance of the order, administration officials said they remain hopeful that the miners gradually would return to their jobs.

"We never expected they would go back immediately," Sheehan said, adding that the administration has adopted a policy "of responsible restraint" while waiting to see if the union and industry can put together a settlement settlement.

But, while trying to avoid a confrontation, Sheehan added, "We can't just turn the other way and ignore our law enforcement responsibilities."

Attorney General Griffin Bell reminded U.S. attorneys that they should "consider arrests of any persons threatening to interfere with coal miners returning to work" under the

The latest round of bargaining was convened in the face of government intentions to pursue company-by-company settlements to end the strike. Such deals could lead to the breakup of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association as well as raise questions about the future of the UMW.

The Mayfield City Council gave initial approval during a regular meeting last night to a reduced city budget for 1978.

Following recommendations by the council's Finance Committee, the council approved a city budget of $1,544,691, compared to last year's budget of $1,849,508.

against the amendment.

Before the vote, a leading Senate opponent of the treaties said President Carter has the votes to win ratification.

"I think the president has the votes," said Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, the assistant Republican leader.
The amendment adopted Monday gives warships of Panama and the United States the right "to transit the canal expeditiously" after this country relinquishes the waterway to Panama in the year 2000.

It guarantees that ships of both nations may pass through the canal "without any impediment ... and in case of need or emergency, to go the head of the line of vessels in order to transit the canal randly."

And with a crucial vote scheduled Thursday on the pact guaranteeing the neutrality of the Canal Zone after the year 2000, the administration was taking no chances. Officials continued an intensive effort to pick up the votes of a handful of uncommitted senators who will settle the issue.

The idea has won the support of both Baker and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, and is considered crucial to obtaining the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification.

The treaty modification would not require that U.S. troops or warplanes remain in Panama. But it would replace a requirement now in the treaties which would force a complete U.S. withdrawal.

Senate Approves Resolution To Rescind ERA In Kentucky

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Op-ponents of the Equal Rights Amend-ment overcame two months of parliamentary roadblocks in the state Senate and pushed through a resolution Monday to rescind Kentucky's 1972 ERA ratification.

Despite strong opposition by Lt. Gov.
Thelma Stovall, its presiding officer, the Senate voted 23-15 in favor of rescission and sent the controversial issue to the House in the final week of the 1978 General Assembly.

The Legislature ratified the ERA in 1972. A resolution to rescind that ratification had been tied up in Senate committees since it was introduced Jan. 11.

The anti-ERA forces mustered the 20 votes needed to take the stalled resolution away from the Elections and Constitutional Amendments Committee last week, but the issue again became stalled in the Rules Committee, on which Mrs. Stovall serves.

mittee, on which Mrs. Stovall serves.

Another discharge effort was expected Monday, but backers of the resolution, led by Sens. Richard Weisenberger, D-Mayfield and Gus Sheehan, D-Covington, decided late in the morning to tack the resolution onto one that had already as a service of the Market Service of the Parket Service of t one that had already passed the House.

The move caught opponents of recission by surprise. An angry Mrs. Stovall at first refused to recognize the motion from Weisenberger to-suspend the rules to allow his amendment to a resolution relating to military service credits for state retirement systems.

The Senate overruled Mrs. Stovall twice and beat down two other delaying motions before finally approving the amendment Monday's move also apparently sidesteps the House committee system

Glancing Blow At County Last Night

Severe Weather Hits

Severe weather hit a glancing blow at Graves County last night. Amid tornado and flooding warnings, an extremely heavy rain, some lightning and high wind rumbled across the county early Monday night.

Wind in the north section of the county blew roofs from some buildings toppled tree limbs in some locations. Almost two inches of rain soaked already-soggy roads throughout the county. Power was interrupted in some locations in Mayfield during the storm.

What was reported as a tornado blew roofs from buildings in the west Mc-Cracken Co. community of LaCenter.

The Weather Bureau had a large section of West Kentucky and Northwest Tennessee under a tornado and local flooding watch until near mid-night when the storm front moved outside the area.

Program On Flower Arranging Presented For Woman's Club

Ernie Nelson, local florist, was guest speaker at the meeting of the Mayfield Woman's Club, held Thursday at the Rural Electric Association building on West Broadway.

Mr. Nelson, introduced by the club president,
Mrs. Steve Creighton, gave several demon-strations of flower arranging. His first arrangement was an allaround basic arrangment using greenery and spring flowers. Using the Easter theme, he arranged a large basket of flowers artificial grass. An attractive door

Demonstrating the simplicity of some arrangements, Nelson showed daisies in a clay pot. A unique Oriental arrangement, using dwarf iris, was prepared by the florist as he ex-plained the meaning of each flower and its placement. During his demonstrations, he also explained the lines and focal points in arranging, and the necessity of love for all flowers might be used in any

SHELTERS LOOK GOOD AT TAX TIME

With the deadline for income tax filing only a month away, the tax status of some 1977 corporate dividends becomes an important consideration. The number of companies paying dividends wholly or partly exempt from current income taxes is steadily declining. In most cases, the dividend (or part of it) is sheltered from current income taxes, but must be used to reduce the original cost price of the stock. In effect, then, the shelter takes the form of converting current taxable income into a long-term capital gain taxed at much lower levels.

In most cases, this form of tax shelter is provided by utilities benefitting from bookkeeping regulations. If you own stock in these companies, you should be aware that all or part of the dividends you received during 1977 enjoy some tax

The list is provided by the tax department of

Bache Halsey Stuart Shields:
Dayton Power & Light common (an estimated 30 to 50 percent of dividend is exempt); Franklin Corp, 14.22 percent; Forest Oil, 100 percent; Long Island Lighting common, 80 percent; N.Y. State Electric & Gas common; 85 percent; Niagara Mohawk Power common, 40 percent; Ohio Edison common, 26 percent; Pacific Power & Light common, 20 percent; Philadelphia Electric common, 33 to 37 percent - on various quarterly payments; Portland General Electric 60 percent on various preferred dividends, 100 percent on the common dividend; Public Service of New Hampshire, common 33 percent; Value Line Development Capital, 28 percent; Virginia Electric & Power common, 60 percent (estimate); Western Union common,

In addition, various real estate corporations offer some tax shelter on their dividends. It's best to check directly with the company.

Q. We have some N.Y. Central bonds. Are they a total loss? Should we hold on?

A. They are not a total loss. As a matter of fact, your particular issue - last I noticed - traded at about 30 to 40 cents on the dollar, or $300 to $400 per $1,000 bond. Should you hold on? That depends upon what room you have in your budget for patience and hope.

Q. We are looking forward to retirement in 5 years. Should we use about half our savings to pay off a 734 percent mortgage on our home. Or buy savings bonds?

A. I'd let the mortgage stand - for several

1) 734 percent is not a high rate of mortgage interest today. And it is reduced by income tax

2) The savings bonds over the next 5 years would grow at a rate of 6 percent with all income taxes on that growth deferrable until you retire

when I assume, your tax bracket will be lower;
3) An assumable mortgage at 734 percent would be helpful in selling the house if you decide, at retirement, that you want to live elsewhere;

4) Wiping out the mortgage would reduce your cash and your ability to make any changes in lifestyle at retirement.

Let the bank wait for its money. You're in the "catbird" seat. You can always pay off the mor-tgage at retirement if it then suits your book.

Q. My mother recently bought some bonds which come due in 2005, are not top-rated, and yield only 21/2 percent. Is this a normal yield?

A. Without knowing anything about the bond including even its name - I can't say. But bonds issued in 1975 (as I assume this one was) generally carried coupons far higher than 21/2 percent. You'll have to be more explicit.

My Answer By Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I used to believe, but a few years ago I decided to tell God to let me alone so I could enjoy life a little. Now I want to return to God, but I feel like my heart is calloused and indifferent. Do you think

I can have any hope? - J.C.
DEAR J.C.: Your story is similar to the parable that Jesus told in Luke 15 about the prodigal son. The son decided he did not want to stay at home, and he went into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living" (Luke 15:13). As time went on he became miserable, and eventually he returned home You will notice that the father accepted him back joyfully

Yes, there is hope for you. God still loves you, just as the father in Jesus' parable still loved his son in spite of his rebellion and sin. God wants you to return to Him. and He is waiting to forgive you and receive you back One of the greatest promises of the Bible is found in I John 1:9: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." This is God's promise to you.

Frankly, is there really any reason for you to remain the way you are? You have found out by now that the devil always promises us happiness and joy if we will follow him instead of Christ, but the devil is a liar. You can know true joy and peace only in Christ. You were foolish to turn your back on God, but it would be even more foolish for you to remain out of fellowship with Him. It also would be dangerous.

You worry now about the hardness of your heart. But the Bible warns us there comes a point when we can go too far away from God, and we will never turn back because of sin's hold on us. "He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy" (Proverbs 29:1).

Your letter is also a warning to many who may be tempted to turn their backs on God. It is a dead-end road, as you have discovered. "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death" (Proverbs 14:12). Christ wants to give each of us a full and satisfying life, if we will let Him be Lord of our life.

What's Next In Coal Strike?

By S. C. VAN CURON

The United Mine Workers of America issued an ultimatum to the people of the United States over the weekend, and a few individual miners issued president Jimmy Carter an ultimatum. We expected President Carter to issue his ultimatum to the miners ...back to work under the Taft-Hartley Act.

There is no argument here against the UMWA representatives going back to the bargaining table with representatives of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association. Up to this past weekend, the procedures for arriving at a new contract between the two adversaries have been followed to the best of my knowledge according to the contract and the rules governing labor disputes.
The thistle in the roses now is that the UMWA members, or at least some of the more militant ones, are saying they are not going back to work under the Taft-Hartley Act that says the miners must return to work and have another 80 days of negotiations. In effect, they are defying the United States Govern-

This is just part of the problem. The more serious part involves the remainder of the mine working force of this nation. Less than 50 percent of the coal miners are members of the UMWA. Others belong to the Southern Labor Union, the Progressive Mine Workers Union, and some are non nation is in dire need of coal.

Over the weekend, I read a lot about the strike, and it was well covered by newspapers, and I listened to radio and television. There are some radicals that say they will defy the United States Government and refuse to return to work. The inference in some of their voices was that they are not going to allow any other miners to work and try to drive this nation into a position that the people will have to be subservient to the UMWA.

In all fairness, this group of militants is in the minority. Several who voted against acceptance of the contract said they would return to work under the Taft-Hartley Act, and others seemed afraid to express their feelings.

UMWA members turned down the contract because the health benefits are not as good as their last contract. They will be forced to contribute under the proposed contract to their health insurance program, just as millions in business and industry do today.

Everybody wants to get this labor dispute settled as quickly and as peaceably as possible without any infringement upon the rights of the UMWA members.

But when they defy the United States Government and destroy private property to keep other miners from going to their jobs, then it's time for the governments to act - both state and

The members of other mine unions and the non-union members have just as much right to go to their jobs as the UMWA members have to stay away

The UMWA has no right to bully and badger other workers with such tactics as beating miners wanting to work, destroying trucks, tipples and railroads, or stopping trucks and forcing them to dump their coal.

This is supposed to be a nation of law and order. It is incumbent upon the governors and the President of the United States to protect mine owners and miners who want to work from a gang of destructive hoodlums

Dear Editor,
The ERA is needed to fulfill the American promise of equality.

The general principles on which the ERA rests are simple -- essentially the amendment requires that the federal govern-ment and all state and local governments treat each person, male and female, as an individual.

The amendment applies only to governmental action, it does not affect private action or the purely social relation-ships between men and

The ERA will not alter family structure. Obligations for family support will be based on individual circumstances and not on sex. "A Conservative View"

Mr. Spelvin Goes To Cairo

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

CAIRO — Driving into Cairo by night, says my friend Spelvin, is like rowing across the River Styx. It is one helluva way to get acquainted with Egypt.

J. Tolliver Spelvin, who hails from Rappahnnock County, Va., has been spending a few weeks abroad. I ran into him in the lobby of the Nile Hilton. He was in a state that can be described only as deep cultural shock.
"We flew in about 8 o'clock," he said,

"and got a taxi and headed into town. never had a ride quite like it. Take all the traffic jams of New York and Rome. Throw in the traffic jams of Tokyo and Paris. You haven't even approached the traffic jams of Cairo.

"Whatever the tie-ups are by day, they're worse by night. Most of the buses spew a filthy gray exhaust. The cars and taxis swim through the murk like phosphorescent fish. At twominute intervals, everything stops and they all honk their horns. Pedestrians go dodging across the streets. Whenever a driver spots an opening, he hits the floorboard. Missing a pedestrian by two inches isn't even a near miss. I tell you, it is hair-raising.

"The next morning, I looked out the hotel window. The Hilton people are building on some more rooms, and the workers were shuffling around like ants below. It was 9 o'clock, and most of them still in their bathrobes. I saw one hard hat in the whole lot. I looked over toward the street, expecting to see a hundred dead pedestrians left over from the night before, but I couldn't count but 22 bodies. Turned out they were OSHA safety inspectors from the States. It was in the papers. They took one look at that construction site, and all 22 dropped dead.'

Jaytee, as my friend Spelvin is known back home, ordered a drink to steady his nerves. He had been getting acquinted with Egyptian currency, which comes in pounds and piastres His martini was 2 pounds, 200 piastres, or about $3.25, plus tax and service charge, and there wasn't that much gin in it. Every time He turned around, Jaytee complained, he was putting out a few more plasters.
"We went down to Luxor to see the tombs of the pharoahs," he said, "and we took a buggy ride through the town market. Driver's name was Bedawi, or something like that. Had a kid with him. Little boy, maybe five, six. We rode around for half an hour through the damndest squalor I ever saw. Horses, goats, camels, dogs, cows, burros - you name it, they had all done their thing on the narrow streets. "We had agreed upon three pounds for the buggy ride, and when we finally finished the lovely trip, I gave him the three pounds and started off. He rai after me, hollering baksheesh. He wanted a tip for the horse. We haggle around in sign language, and I gay him 50 plasters for the horse.

About that time the kid runs up and grabs his leg. The little feller probably came from Central Casting. We settled on 75 plasters for the boy. Then he wanted 25 plasters for wear and tear of the buggy. He was about to ask 2: plasters for his dog, when he saw I was about to blow up. Steam was coming out my ears. All of a sudden he smiled warmest smile you ever saw - and stuck out his hand to shake. 'Lovely trip,' he says, and he and the kid tro Jaytee had found the tombs in the Valley of the Kings immensely im pressive. He had been staggered by the exhibits in the Cairo Museum of objects found in the tomb of Tutankhamen "The stuff that was sent on loan t America," he observed, "was the second-hand furniture." As for Top Uncommon, as he insisted up identifying the lately deceased b king, "it's a wonder his soul cou move around in the middle all stuff.

Like all other tourists, Jaytee been to see the pyramids and the sphinx. He had paid a pound and belasters to ride up the hill on a camel. The memory of the experience required a second martini. Ancien Egypt, he at last observed, must have been a fabulous place for the pharaohs especially the dead ones, but it couldn' have been all that great for the or dinary voters of Luxor and Thebes "And after five thousand years," he said, "it's probably worse today."

Jeffrey Hart Says

Ticking Catholic Bomb?

My good friend Malachi Martin has just published a book about Vatican policy called "The Final Conclave." If Martin is correct in his allegiations, the West faces a crisis of truly ominous proportions in its relationship to the Catholic Church. If Martin is right, it is inconceivable that either the West or the church could emerge from that crisis in anything like its present form.

Malachi Martin comes forward with impressive credentials. He is a former ofessor at the Pontifical Biblical Institute in Rome, was closely associated with the ecclesiastically and intellectually important Cardinal Bea and was also close to Pope John XXIII A former Jesuit priest, he left the order with the permission of Pope Paul.

In "The Final Conclave," Martin reports as follows on the political

course of the Vatican in the near DOMINANT TENDENCY

Pope Paul and a substantial portion of the church hierarchy favor a radical shift to the left in the policial stance of the church. The anti-capitalist tendency which has always been a part of Catholic social thought has become dominant among important sections of the church, and what looms in the future is an accommodation between the Vatican and the communist and socialist nations of Europe and the Third World

"A lot of bishops," says Martin, "are saying that starving babies will not be fed by capitalism and that the only thing that will (feed them) is some sort of socialism." He claims that the leaders of the church have given up on Western democracy, some because they oppose the "dictatorship of capital" and some because they have come to believe that democracy cannot

I fervently hope that Malachi Martin's predictions are mistaken, but they do touch upon some familiar

In Chile last summer, for example, I found that many Catholic clergy had allied themselves with the left - with, that is, what in my opinion are the truly reactionary forces in the life of that country. Chilean socialism under Salvador Allende was not "feeding babies." It was bankrupting the country and achieving an inflation rate of 800 percent. The present minister of the economy, a Chicago-trained economist named Pablo Baraona, is doing more for the economy - for "feeding babies" - than all the sentimental socialist clergymen put To put the issue here more generally:

the church is in very great danger, if Martin is correct, in putting itself on the wrong side of the classic "Gemeinschaft" versus "Gesellschaft" collision, "community" versus "Society." Socialism is really a backward-looking faith, its bureacratic collectivism an effort to recapture the warmth and fellowship of the traditional community, the "Gemeinschaft." Marx, in a way, was the last medieval schoolman. PREDICTABLE EXPLOSIONS

But the traditional community cannot be resurrected, certainly not by socialist bureaucrats. The advance of freedom is absolutely irresistible, and social explosions are predictable in present and future socialist systems.

Martin fears that the alliance between the wealth and influence of the church and leftist governments around the globe could "cut short the American experiment. Conceivably.

But before it did it would certainly produce a violent rupture within the church between its reactionary socialists and those with an understanding of modernity.

To Your Good Health By DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can emotions cause asthma? My youngster, a well-adjusted boy, suffers from severe asthma. After reading that emotions can be a cause, I began to worry that we were not treating the problem correctly and that maybe there was some mental factor we were ignoring. Please enlighten us so we will do what's best. - Mr. and Mrs. H.S.

Emotions won't "cause" asthma initially, if that's what you mean.

The so-called "asthma personality" is a myth. Asthma is a definite physical lung problem involving the inability to breathe properly. Where psychological factors nter the picture, they do so after the fact. That is, the asthmatic child can become emotionally unstable. Much of this may be due to unwisely overindulgent parents.

For this reason, it is important for parents of an asthmatic youngster to be well-instructed in handling the problem sensibly without producing over-depen-dence on his part.

I'm sure you are doing everything you can for your boy medically, and, from your letter, I assume otherwise as well. Forget about psychology and continue as you are.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I want to know if it's possible to have the same cold almost all winter Once I get one I never seem to get rid of it. I also have a sinus condition. Is it possible to actually feel dizzy from this? I'm getting fed up. I'm not on any medication. I'm 31. Also, the rest of the family seems to get colds frequently. - Mrs. L.B.

You would not have the same cold all winter. The virus infection (which is rejected the application of Hal Dekle, who two years ago resigned uner the what a cold is) usually runs its course in no more than 10 days.

However, there are nearly a hundred viruses that cause colds. If you are from a large family, the viruses other family members are getting are probably reinfecting you. Persons with certain sinus problems are more prone to being infected, especially when indoors and close to other cold victims. This may give the impression of having a all winter Actually, it's several colds in succession.

You say you are not on any medication. This can be either a proud blessing of the healthy or an empty boast of the sick. You need to have your sinus situation evaluated. Allergy is often involved. If others in the family are bothered with colds, it could be a matter of improper humidity in the house, either too much or too little. Sinus infection ordinarily is not a cause of dizziness. See my booklet on sinus problems, "You Can Stop Sinus Trouble." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, selfaddressed envelope to me Depression is common to some extent after surgery or illness. There may be feelings of not being whole or normal, and this, too, is common. It is particulary true in a young woman of 26 who has lost her childbearing potential.

Rare Insight Into How Legal Profession Shields Its Members of a problem. In some cases hearing loss can be corrected by medical treatment. In other instances use of a properly selected hearing aid will improve a person's ability to hear. There are also cases in which neither medical treatment nor a hearing aid will help the in-dividual hear better. Since August 15, 1977, hearing laids may be sold only to people who have been examined by a licensed physician within six months before the aid is purchased. It is possible, however, for people 18 years of age or older to waive the requirement by signing a statement indicating they know why a medical examination is advisable. The Food and Drug Administration recommends that consumers who are considering buying a hearing aid should select a seller who will let them rent an aid on a trial basis, to make certain that the device will actually improve their hearing and that they will feel comfortable wearing it. The FDA reports that the average price for a hearing aid is between $300 and $450. Useful information and a list of hearing aid models "reatined on contract" for 1977 by the Veterans Administration is available (Hearing Aids Selected, IB 13-2) from the Supply Service Department of Medicine and Surgery, Veterans Administration, Washington, D.C. 20420.

HEARTLINE: I am now 60 years old. I have been in business for myself all my life and have paid my Social Security through self-employment. Since I am selfemployed, there is no one to tell me when to retire. I plan to work past the age of 65. I know that there is a reduction in Social Security for drawing it before age 65. However, are there any extra benefits for working beyond the age of 65? J.J.

A.: Yes, there is a delayed retirement credit for those people who work beyond the age of 65 and do not draw their Social Security benefits. Presently, the delayed retirement credit is 1 per cent per year or one-twelfth of one-per cent for each month beyond the age of 65 that a Social Security check is not drawn.

Now, for workers reaching age 62 in 1979 and after, the delayed retirement credit will be increased 3 per scent per year or ¼ of one-per cent per month that a person continues to work and does not draw a Social

This provision becomes effective in January of 1979. However, since workers reaching age 62 in 1979 will not reach age 65 until 1982, it will have relatively little ef-Feet before 1983

This new law was passed primarily to give people an extra incentive to work beyond the age of 65. Adding 3 per cent to your Social Security benefit sounds very good until you look at the situation closer. For example, a person is eligible for $300 per month Social Security benefit at age 65. By working until age 66, this person might increase their Social Security benefit to $315 and then add 3 per cent to this and it gives them a monthly benefit of $324.25 per month. So by working for one extra year, this person has increased his Social Security benefit approximately $25 per month.

However, for earning this extra $25 a month, this person gave up $3600 in Social Security benefits that he could have been drawing during the year he was 65. To make up this lost $3600, the person would have to draw

Social Security benefits for 12 years. It is possible that many people might need to work that extra year because the money they will earn should far exceed the $3600 that they could have been drawing from Social Security, or, it could be that this person really wants to continue working. However, if meone does not want to work another year nor do they need this income, then they should not work just to receive the delayed retirement credit. The new provision is a step in the right direction, but it is not a big enough step to continue work.

Sources who requested they not be identified said Dekle's request for Supreme Court bar membership was discussed by the justices in a closed meeting Feb. 24 and they decided not to

The executive director of the nation's largest consumer organization says the Supreme Court should revamp its policy 'so consumers can have as much relevant information as possible so as to enhance their ability to make intelligent decisions in the marketplace." But Kathleen O'Reilly of the Consumer Federation of America emphasized that the rights of lawyers would have to be safeguarded. She said the high court "and all courts should develop specific eligibility guidelines as to what does constitute professional and personal turpitude."

Denials of bar membership made public should be accompanied by reasons, and lawyers should have the opportunity to place a written reply in the public record, said Ms. O'Reilly, who also is a lawyer.

John C. McNulty Minneapolis, chairman of Association's professional disciplinary committee, said his panel has never studied bar applications policy.

He said that unless the court had guidelines that would prevent arbitrary decisions, public an-nouncement of a denial "would not be fair or necessarily in the public interest.

"If there are significant guidelines, then there is a legitimate question,' McNulty said.

To the public, membership in the Supreme Court bar would appear to be almost automatic. Only the names of persons granted the right to practice before the high court - 5,000 lawyers in the past five months alone - are ever revealed.

Lawyers who are turned down receive their application — and an explanation for the rejection — in the mail.
The court retains no record. It is as if the application was never submitted.

Most requirements for Supreme Court bar membership are per-functory dealing with years of experience and other bar memberships. One section states that a lawyer's "private and professional character shall appear to be good. It is not known why the high court rejected Dekle's application. One that the justices were "troubled" by it.

Dekle resigned from the Florida Supreme Court on April 30, 1975, while a legislative impeachment committee was inthat he had tried to influence a county judge in favor of a Dekle campaign worker involved in a land case and another allegation that Dekle used a secret memo from a utilities lawyer in a Supreme Court case involving utility taxes.

The impeachment committee dropped its probe when Dekle resigned. The state's Judicial Qualifications Commission had recommended that he be removed from the bench, and a special state Supreme Court panel reprimanded Dekle for using the memo.

He was not disciplined by the Florida bar and remains a member in good standing in that organization while working in a successful law firm not far from his former state chambers.

Lady Blue Devils To Open Girls State Tourney, Wed.

By MIKE TURLEY Messenger Sports Editor

The Lowes Lady Blue Devils will be riding a nine game winning streak packing a season record of 26-2, and sporting a perfect nine-for-nine mark in tournament-game competition when they tip off in the initial battle for the Girls State Tourney title in Richmond tomorrow

(Wednesday) at noon.
The Lady 'Devils claimed the first Region crown to be taken by a Lowes High School team in modern history Saturday afternoon when they ripped the Carlisle County Lady Comets, 82-51, in the finals of the First Region Girls Tournament, at the Mayfield High School sports arena.

For their efforts, they'll face the Barren County girls, champs from Region-Four, in the 12 o'clock, noon, (local time) clash at Eastern Kentucky University's Alumni Coliseum in Richmond tomorrow as the State Girls 'Sweet(er) Sixteen' gets underway.

Owensboro and Anderson County tangle in the second game tomorrow afternoon, beginning at approximately 1:30 p.m., and then four more teams collide in a two-game nightcap.

At 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Ft. Knox and Ashland battle it out, and then at approximately 8 p.m., Breathitt County and West Hopkins tangle in the final game on the openingday's slate.
The same time schedule is to be followed in four more opening-round games on Thursday.

That day's action will find Sheldon Clark and the 10th Region winner fighting it out in the opener, followed by a holders sport a front line of 6-1, 5-11, and 5-10, making between Laurel County and Louisville

Cawood and Covington Notre Dame meet at 6:30 Thursday evening, while Assumption and Lexington Layafette will be the final opening-round foes, set to meet at approximately 8 p.m. on Thursday.

Quarter-final matches again follow that same time schedule on Friday, with two games at the noon session, and two more that

Semi-finals will be staged at 9:05 a.m., and at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, with the winners there set to meet in the title-decider at 7:10 p.m. Saturday

Lowes, 47-4 for the past two seasons, got to the Richmond affair by winning their second straight Third District crown (with victories over Mayfield, Symsonia, and Fancy Farm), and then taking the First Region title, via wins Murray High, and Carlisle

(At the year's opening, the Lowes girls also won the St. Mary Invitational Tourney, with victories over Paducah Tilghman, Carlisle County, and Ballard Memorial, thus aecounting for their per-fect nine-for-nine showing in tournament play this

Fancy Farm, which eventually fell victim to the Lady 'Devils in the Third District finale, accounted for the first Lowes setback of the season, a 55-49 Lady Demon loss at Fancy Farm, back on Nov.

After that, the only other slip came via a 57-55 overtime loss to hosting Fulton County on Feb. 14.

A 55-39 win over Mayfield in the District Tourney opener was the closest score recorded in a post-season game with the Lady 'Devils.

College Football "Class" Plan Said To Be Failing, AP Says

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A plan to segregate big-time college football schools from the game's lesser lights is failing, the Associated Press has learned, with potentially ludicrous results.

Today marks the end of the 60-day period the NCAA's football-playing schools had for declaring a three-year commitment in divisions I-A or IAA. which were created at the NCAA's convention in January.

A check by the AP discovered the five conferences and perhaps all 17 independents being urged to comprise the bulk of I-AA, the "minor lague," are adamant in their decision to opt for big-time IA.

restructuring plan hoped for roughly 80 members in I-A and 80 in I-AA. But now it appears I-AA will members - comprised mostly of the Big Sky, Yankee, Ohio Valley and Southwestern athletic conferences. And a bulky I-A will contain as many as 130.

A spokesman said the NCAA would have no announcement of the divisional breakdown for several days. And after the results are announced the schools will have another 30 days to change their minds.

But confusing Roman numerals aside, if they stick by their decisions several things are likely to happen:

—A relative handful of small football programs will begin reaping windfall television profits while another, larger group faces dwindling finances and uncertain futures

The 60-member College Football Association can be expected to discard its low profile. The CFA, chief spearcarrier for the bigtime powers, may become more aggressive, launching renewed efforts to gain a measure of autonomy within the NCAA membership for the Notre Dames, Oklahomas, Penn States,

The four-year, $118 million contract the NCAA signed with ABC-TV last spring lies at the heart of the issue.

The contract guaran teed 16 appearances each two years for a "tier group' of 57 schools - 17 independents who had not been on television the past three years, plus the

Busby In Line For 'Comeback' Laurels

That was one inning less than all last season, when Busby made one lone appearance for Daytona Beach in the Florida State League and was tagged for 11 hits in three innings. Quite a comedown for the only pitcher in baseball history to throw a no-hitter in each of his first

Now, Busby is trying to go from comedown to comeback, although it didn't seem that way when Cincinnati's Pete Rose rapped his first pitch

Farm Receipts Up 13 Percent Over Last Year's Record High

Cash receipts from farm marketings in Kentucky amounted to $1,829.6 million in 1977 — 13 percent above last year's record high of $1,626.1 million, the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service of Louisville says.

Unfavorable weather pushed marketings later into spring than in 1976 with the result that receipts from crop sales February through May were well ahead of the previous year, a spokesman for the service said. In all but three months of 1977, receipts were equal to or ahead of were equal to or ahead of 1976, he added. For the fourth con-secutive year crop receipts exceeded gross income from livestock and livestock products. In 1977, over 59 percent of receipts were from crop items. Crop receipts were valued at $1081.9 million, nearly 21 percent greater than in 1976. Unusually high tobacco marketings, the service said, February through May and in November and high tobacco prices account for the increase. Almost offsetting were increases in soybean receipts and decreases in corn

Marketings of livestock and livestock products during 1977 totaled $747.7 million — up two percent from 1976. Higher prices for cattle and milk and dairy products only slightly outweighed the decrease in hog prices. Marketings of both cattle and hogs were slightly ahead of the previous

Nutritional Deficiency In Cattle

By The Jackson Purchase Veterinary Medical Ass'n.

The most common nutritional deficiency in cattle is a lack of end total digestible nutrients This is more widespread and insidious than one might suspect. Cattle often are group fed. and the food requirements of certain individuals (usually the timid weak) may not be satisfied

The deficiency usually is not a simple lack of feed, but insufficient feed during periods of critical requirements, such as late pregnancy or early lactation. Undernourished cattle

"The use of proper equipment, carefully maintained, can go a long way toward stopping injuries before they happen," advises Larry Piercy, extension safety specialist in the UK College of Agriculture.

'Use only equipment that is designed for handling anhydrous ammonia," Piercy says. He warns that copper, brass or galvanized parts should not be used where they will come in contact with the substance.

'Coat tanks with white or light-colored reflective paint to keep down inside temperature and pressure," Piercy says. And park tanks in the shade when you're not using them." He advises that concentrated vapors may ignite and should be treated with care.

The specialist recommends wearing rubber gloves and tightfitting, unvented goggles while working with anhydrous ammonia, pointing out its particular danger to the eyes.
"While anhydrous

ammonia is dangerous to many parts of the body, the eyes are most subject permanent damage from contact with the chemical," he says. Federal law requires that a least five gallons of fresh, clean water be kept with the application unit at all times, to flush out the eyes in case of contact. This water should be checked daily to assure that it is not contaminated with the chemical.

Proper maintenance of equipment is another important step in preventing accidents. Before using it this year, make sure all valves and Take Action Now To Reduce Fly Problem This Yr.

Farmers who feed livestock in confinement can take action while the weather is still cold to reduce spring and sum-mer fly problems.

"If producers would clean manure out of pens now and spread it over frozen fields, they would start the season off with a low fly population," says Chris Christensen, ex-tension entomologist in the UK College of Agriculture.

Flies live through the winter as pupae in dry manure and from this stage they emerge as adults in spring. The pupae are dark brown, seed-like structures about 1/4 inch long. Christensen says these pupae are most likely to be in undisturbed places in corners, up on concrete foundations and under feed troughs and racks. He emphasizes that farmers should make a special effort to clean manure from these areas. pointing out that one female fly can lay about 500 eggs. Stable flies and houseflies are the two pests whose life cycles would most likely be cut short by this late winter cleanup, according to the entomologist.

"Besides providing good fertilizer to crops, good lettilizer to crops, spreading manure on open fields exposes pupae to field mice and other predators," he notes. "This can give producers a head start on fly control for exercing."

such accidents.

Determining the frequency and type of farm accidents which occur each year in Kentucky — and what causes them — is the object of a survey planned by the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture. There hasn't been a lot of data on what the farm accident problem really is," Larry Piercy, a UK extension safety specialist, said recently.

"We're trying to survey 30 counties in the state to get a better idea of what the accident problems are so that we can do a better job of developing educational information through the extension program."

The surveys, conducted by volunteer interviewers in each county, will begin in April, Piercy said.
"On an average there are 10 to 15 volunteer interviewers (in each county) and each will interview 12 of their neighbors," he added. The volunteers will meet with the families for background information. then will check back with them every three months for a year to see if they have had any accidents during that time. After the data is compiled, Piercy said, it will be used to develop farm safety publications which will be sent to the state's 120 counties. During the next year or two, he added, "we'll developing educational programs. The object of the survey is not just to find out the number of accidents.

Piercy said, but to determine the cirhave completed their surveys to provide farm accident information on a ational level. With that information, he said, safety specialists

How to save over 7000 gallons of hot water each year

If you're an average homemaker washing about 34 loads of clothes each month, you can save over 7,000 gallons of hot water each year and dollars on each month's electric bill. Simply switch from hot water to warm water for the wash cycle and from warm water to cold for the rinse cycle.

If you want to go a step further, try one of the cold water detergents. You may want to switch entirely to cold water for some loads.

For extra savings, wash only full loads, (but not packed), or be sure to adjust the water level to the size load you're washing.

See us for more information on using hot water efficiently.

Brave Crewmen Abort Hijacking Attempt Of United Airlines Jet

DENVER (AP) - The quick thinking of three crewmen who leaped from the cockpit of a United Airlines jet to the runway 15 feet below was credited with aborting a hijacking by a man who said he had terminal cancer and wanted to fly to Memphis or Cuba.

"We did not know that the crew was going to escape,' said Ted Rosack, special agent in charge of the Denver FBI office. "They did it on their own. Their actions ended what could have been a tragedy. I think it's extremely commendable. We were prepared to refuel the plane and let it continue on."

Clay Thomas Jr., 27, of Mountain View, Calif., surrendered shortly after the crewmen jumped from the aircraft, leaving him alone in the plane a red-and-white flight bag which he said contained a bomb.

The bag contained some books and papers and a lollipop. There was no bomb," said Rosack. The crewmen escaped about an hour after the plane, flying from San Francisco, landed here at Stapleton International Airport. Thomas had gone back to the passenger to the passenger compartment, apparently to see if his demand that the plane be refueled was being met.

As agents converged on the Boeing 727- and lowered its rear stairway, Rosack used a car loudspeaker to call for Thomas to surrender.

Moments later, as it was growing dark, Thomas threw the bag off the plane and walked down the stairs with his hands over his head.
"I surrender," he was quoted as saying.

Thomas was arraigned Monday night before U.S. Magistrate Royce Sickler

Most Miners Ignore T-H Work Order

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer
All but a few of the nation's 160,000

striking coal miners ignored a federal back-to-work order Monday, and the handful who returned to the mines had virtually no effect on coal production.

In Pennsylvania, hundreds of clubcarrying pickets took to a road in a 150 car caravan to shut down non-union mines. Some picketing was reported in isolated incidents at mines in Colorado Kentucky and West Virginia. But most other areas were quiet, with union mines remaining idle even in the ab-

It was the first real test of whether the United Mine Workers rank and file will obey a Taft-Hartley court order obtained last Thursday by President

But with the order still not in full effect in some areas, a Justice Department spokesman in Washington said there would be no hasty action to force compliance. Spokesman Mark Sheehan said the administration expects miners to gradually return to work this week.

Meanwhile, bargainers for the union and coal companies talked by telephone in Washington and agreed to resume face-to-face talks in Washington Tuesday. There were hints that a settlement might be near.

Over the weekend, according to sources, the industry had offered concessions on a key issue - reducing from a possible $700 for active miners to $200 the health care costs to which miners would be subject under a new plan that would substitute for nowbroke independent health funds since the 1940s had paid all health care costs. Since the strike began Dec. 6.

rebellious union officers and rank and file members had already scuttled two tentative settlements on grounds that they eroded union medical benefits, did equalize pension benefits among old and younger retired miners, and allowed companies to discipline those who lead wildcat strikes.

The strike, which was in its 98th day Monday, has cut national coal production in half, forced power companies in much of the Midwest and mid-Atlantic regions to ask for or order power conservation, and thus led to ens of thousands of layoffs.

Last Thursday, a federal judge granted the Carter administration a granted the Carter auministration a temporary back-to-work order under the Taft-Hartley Law, and by Monday the Justice Department said the necessary papers had been served on virtually all UMW locals in the coun-

Over the weekend, and on Monday local union leaders were performing their legal duty to pass the word on to members, and to have mines inspected by union safety committees - a step eeded for reopening.

But while union leaders and locals can be penalized for failure to comply, there is no mechanism for forcing individual miners back to work. And at most mines that reopened Monday, no miners showed up.

Even when miners did report, there were usually too few to form main-tenance or mining crews, and the companies sent them home

One of the few mines where work was done was in Keystone, W.Va., where 30 members of a 150-man shift showed up at 8 a.m. — too few to mine enough for maintenance

U.S. Dollar Continues Slide Despite U.S., German Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) -The United States and Germany threw the sinking American dollar a life preserver Monday, but the help apparently fell short of expectations, and the dollar resumed its long slide on world currency markets.

The two governments announced that another $2.7 billion in German marks will be available to the United States to buy up surplus dollars when the U.S. currency is threatened by disorderly buying and selling pressures

The German central bank disclosed it already had spent about $1.9 billion worth of marks in the past two months to support the ailing dollar.

"Both sides reaffirm that continuing forceful action will be taken to counter disorderly con-ditions in exchange markets and that clo cooperation to that purpose will be maintained. said the announcement, which was made simultaneously in Bonn and Washington.

However, a high U.S. official said the announcement does not mean the United States will try to maintain the value of the dollar at a particular level, an in tervene to protect the dollar from a further decline in value as long as it-was orderly.

The dollar has lost about 15 percent in value against the mark in the past year, 27 percent against the Swiss franc and about 15 percent against the Japanese yen. Until recently, the Carter administration hadn't been particularly unhappy about the decline, because it improves the U.S. position in world trade.

After the joint an-nouncement, the dollar dropped sharply against major currencies as European currency dealers said the dollarsupport operation fell far short of expectations.

The dollar was quoted at 2.04 marks at the close of business Monday, down from 2.08 before the an nouncement, and at 233.7 yen, down from 236 on Friday.
