FULTON, KY., FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1941.

NUMBER TWENTY-FIVE

I. C. TRAIN JUMPS TRACK NEAR FULTON

A northbound freight train, pulled by Engine No. 1436, had seventeen cars to be derailed Thursday morning at 5:37 o'clock, about one-quarter of a mile south of McConnell, Tenn., near Fulton. The crew in charge of the train was J. C. Hefley, engineer; E. H. Taylor, conductor; R. F. Mosby, fireman; C. L. Lane, flagman; Ras Stinson, brakeman.

An L. & N. car, No. 26794, loaded with pig iron, jumped the track and was dragged a distance of about one mile before a section of the train consisting of 17 cars piled up in a heap. Eight cars turned over along the right of way, and nine cars were derailed but remained upright.

Wrecking crews were sent out immediately from Paducah and Jackson to clear the tracks of the wreckage. It was believed that traffic along this route would be reopened Thursday night.

A broken flange on the wheel of the car which first jumped the track is believed to have been the cause of the accident.

Nobody was hurt in the wreck, although some hoboes riding on the train narrowly escaped injury or death, as the car in which they were riding remained on the track.

State Parole Officer Visits Fulton County

J. D. Moore, state parole officer for West Kentucky, visited Fulton county this week on official business. It was learned while he was here that there are about 25 parolees in Fulton county, and that eight men will come before the parole board this month from Fulton county.

Besides those who are out on parole, there are approximately 25 released on probation for violation of the law. These persons are given their freedom and an opportunity to go straight. Many of these people who have become involved with the law, correct their lives and become good citizens.

In discussing the parole system with Mr. Moore, it was pointed out that complexities of modern civilization are responsible for much delinquency. Much blame for criminal traits can be laid upon laxity in the home, in the schools and the churches, and it is the purpose of parole boards and other agencies, to encourage better discipline in the early lives of the young people. It was pointed out that most persons sentenced for crime are under 24 years. In recent years general economic stress has been responsible for many criminal acts.

ELKS HONOR EXALTED RULER MONDAY NIGHT

Meeting in regular weekly session Monday night, the Elks Club honored its exalted ruler, Foad Homra, by presenting him a beautiful engraved watch. It came as a complete surprise to him. After he had been called out of the clubroom by K. P. Dalton, he returned to find the members had prepared the gift for presentation. The Elks Club charity fund committee of which Frank Wiggins is chairman, sponsored the baseball game at the Kitty League Park Tuesday night, and it was stated that about $60 was realized for the charity fund.

YMBC Endorses Move To Collect Aluminum

In conformity with a nation-wide movement to collect old aluminum from householders, such as pots and pans, the Young Men's Business Club of Fulton will sponsor such a drive here on July 23-24. Bertie Pigue introduced a plan for collection of old aluminumware in this vicinity at the meeting of the club Tuesday night. Local Boy Scouts will assist in the program.

Due to a shortage of aluminum in the United States, and the importance of this metal in our defense program, all citizens having any old pots and pans are urged to have them ready to give to the Boy Scouts when the drive is conducted under the auspices of the Young Men's Business Club.

Cravens took a special six weeks' naval elimination course in Florida early last fall, and entered the naval flying school at Pensacola on Dec. 9, graduating on May 19 at the top of his class. He then went to Miami where he completed a course in advanced flying.

JUSTIN ATTEBERY

R. C. Peeples Announces For Mayor Of Fulton

R. C. Peeples, well known business man of this city, makes his official announcement for the office of mayor of Fulton in this issue of The News. For some time it has been known that Mr. Peeples intended to ask for election as mayor, subject to the action of the Democratic primary to be held Saturday, August 2, 1941.

It will be remembered that Mr. Peeples participated in the mayor's race four years ago, receiving an encouraging vote at the hands of the people at that time. His deep and sincere interest in civic affairs has caused many of his friends to urge him to seek the mayor's office this time. He is a young man, aggressive and progressive in his ideals, and fully realizes that the duties of the office which he seeks will require much time and effort. He feels that if the people choose him for the mayorality, that he can assist the council in its labors for the community, and promises that he will devote his best efforts toward economical operation of the city's business (as is so vitally necessary at this time), and encourage such steps that will bring about general civic improvement. His interest and assistance was helpful in obtaining the garment factory in Fulton, and he believes in any program that will provide additional payrolls and income for the people of this city. He will appreciate your consideration of his candidacy, and solicits your influence and vote. His formal announcement follows:

TO THE DEMOCRATIC VOTERS OF THE CITY OF FULTON

In making my formal announcement as a candidate for the Democratic nomination as Mayor of Fulton, subject to the action of the voters in the August 2, 1941, primary, I make my appeal for your support in this endeavor in as few and simple words as possible.

Four years ago you saw fit to give me a large vote in the race for mayor, or which I lost by a small plurality to a man who was given endorsement then, but who is not running again. Although I lost the race, it has been indeed gratifying to know that such a large number of voters gave me their support in my first effort to obtain the office. To those persons who did not see fit to support me four years ago, I have no doubt that their reasons were good ones, but I am glad to (Continued on Page Five)

Fulton County Men Hear Defense Talk

Bob Montgomery, prominent speaker of Texas, talked to a group of farm leaders of Western Kentucky, at a meeting held in the Davis high school building in Owensboro Tuesday. He stressed the important role that agriculture will play in the defense program, and called upon rural America to respond to the patriotic cause of food production and conservation.

H. M. Pewitt, chairman of the Agricultural Conservation Committee for Fulton county; Ronald Elliott, Chas. Wright and Homer Weatherspoon, attended the meeting from this county.

Since 1924 Mr. Pewitt has been an active member of farm groups in Fulton county, and has served on committees working toward better farming methods and improved economic conditions for farmers.

YMBC DINES WITH CHESTNUT GLADE

Members of the Young Men's Business Club visited with citizens of the Chestnut Glade community Tuesday night, and enjoyed a delightful six o'clock dinner served by ladies of the Homemakers club in the basement of the Chestnut Glade school.

Foad Homra, president of the YMBC, presided over the meeting expressing the gratitude of the club for an opportunity to join with the Chestnut Glade people in a get-together meeting. Paul Nanney extended a welcome to the visitors from Fulton, and leaders of the Homemakers invited the YMBC to come again.

Various members of the club talked briefly, as did a number of the Chestnut Glade hosts. Mr. Nanney extended appreciation for the co-operation given the Chestnut Glade community fair last year by the YMBC, and President Homra promised that the club was ready to co-operate with them again this year.

A business meeting of the club was held immediately after the social get-together. Plans were made to continue the work to be done on the Ken-Tenn Exposition catalog in the immediate future. A good program of entertainment is being arranged for this annual livestock and poultry show, which will be held this year Sept. 8-14 at the fair grounds in Fulton.

Paul Bushart called attention to the plans now being considered for remodeling the passenger station or erecting a new one in Fulton. The club voted to extend a letter of appreciation to the Illinois Central System, and to encourage the construction of a new station on Fourth-st with a subway leading to the tracks.

When he did not stop at their command they began shooting. He was only slightly injured and was given treatment at the Fulton Hospital. He is now under guard at the Bernice Hotel where he will remain until he recovers. He will then be tried in city court.

DEFENSE DEVELOPMENTS

The defense program, which according to a recent Department of Commerce statement, called for total expenditures of approximately $41,000,000, almost all of which is to be expended this year and next, includes $37,300,000 in appropriations and contract authorizations and $3,700,000 in British orders being filled by American industry, states the current of The Guaranty Survey, published by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

Recent defense contracts and expenditures according to the official report, bring the aggregate for the eleven months since July 1, 1940, to $15,597,000,000 including $7,138,000,000 for the navy, $6,486,000,000 for the army, $727,000,000 for the emergency ship program and $546,000,000 for the Defense Plant Corporation, with the remainder divided among various other defense agencies.

The even greater defense expenditures in prospect for the coming fiscal year are reflected in the War Department appropriation bill for the 1941-42 period, which passed the House of Representatives carrying a total of $10,010,000,000 in appropriations and contract authorizations. The Survey continues. The committee report on the bill pointed out that it would bring the total amount of defense appropriations, contract authorizations and recommendations since July 1, 1940, to $30,115,000,000, exclusive of the $7,000,000,000 provided for the lease-lend program and the $6,000,000,000 required to complete the two-ocean navy.

A report made public by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America describes the aircraft manufacturing industry as having made "amazing progress" in its expansion program. Production of warplanes in the first four months of this year totaled 4,746, only about 1,000 less than the output for the entire year 1940. Another recent report of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce estimated that about 1,500 planes would be produced in June. New plants for plane, engine and propeller production, now under construction, are expected to be operating within the next six months. When all these plants attain maximum production, the total output is expected to reach between 25,000 and 30,000 planes a year. Unfilled orders now on the books of manufacturers total 41,000 planes with a value of $5,152,000,000, and it is estimated that the backlog may eventually approach the $10,000,000,000 mark.

The Shipping Situation
The Maritime Commission announced recently that the President's proclamation of an unlimited national emergency automatically put into effect the wide powers over the merchant marine and the shipbuilding industry granted the commission by the Shipping Act of 1916. The principal effect of the new powers is to extend the control of the commission over transfer of registry to all vessels owned by Americans, whether flying the American flag or not. In this way the commission gains control over more than two hundred vessels that have been transferred from American to foreign registry since the beginning of the war. The new powers also give the commission broad authority to keep domestic shipyards in American control and to prevent them from engaging in work not approved by the government.

The bill giving the President power to requisition all foreign vessels lying idle in American ports became law last month, and immediately after signing the measure the President issued an executive order authorizing the Maritime Commission to take over all such vessels. It is reported that eighty-four ships are subject to seizure under the order, including eighty Danish, French, Italian and German vessels that had previously been taken into custody by the Coast Guard.

Shipbuilding activity in American yards has risen to the highest level since the World War period, according to the American Bureau of Shipping. During the first five months of the year, thirty-three ships of 264,451 tons were completed, as against nineteen vessels of 147,052 tons in the same period last year; and the margin of gain over the 1940 figures is expected to widen steadily as expanded facilities reach the stage of active production. It is estimated that about 120 ships of nearly 1,000,000 gross tons will be completed this year, as compared with 53 vessels of 444,703 tons in 1940 and 28 ships of 241,052 tons in 1939.

FOUR TYPES OF SEEDS AVAILABLE AS ACP WINTER COVER CROPS

Four types of seeds will be available as conservation material for winter cover crop seedlings in Fulton County this fall, H. M. Pewitt, chairman of the County Agricultural Conservation Association said today.

The seeds, which can be ordered through the county office and charged against the farm's soil building allowance for the 1942 agricultural conservation program, are rye grass, Austrian winter peas, hairy vetch and Williamette vetch.

Supplies of the seeds to be made available in the county probably will be limited, Mr. Pewitt advised, and farmers interested in using them to earn part of their 1942 soil building allowances should place orders at an early date.

Last year approximately 480,000 pounds of vetch seed was furnished as a conservation material in Kentucky counties, Mr. Pewitt said. Although the seed was received late in the season, he added, very favorable reports have been received from farmers who seeded this winter legume.

Though this is the first time Austrian winter peas and rye grass have been offered in Kentucky as conservation materials, both have been grown by a number of farmers in the State. Rye grass, especially, has proved to be a valuable winter cover crop and early pasture crop, H. M. Pewitt said.

IMPROVED PRODUCTS

Improved processing of American-grown crops will play an important part in providing substitutes for certain products heretofore imported, but which are now difficult to obtain because of the war, according to a recent writer in the Farm Journal. Among such developments noted is a new process for "cracking" soybean oil, to make it more adaptable to industrial uses.

Many products in the industrial field are now manufactured in whole or in part from soybeans and the list is being rapidly extended. However, the enormous increase in the American soybean crop which has been witnessed during recent years is due principally to the growing use of soybean oil meal in feeds for all kinds of livestock and poultry.

In fact, about 95 per cent of this meal goes into feeds, while probably 85 per cent of the oil extracted from the beans finds its way into various edible products. Predictions of recent years that the soybean is destined to rise to great heights as a cash crop of the American farmer are being fulfilled, thereby adding to the resources of the nation.

Agricultural authorities point out that the use of soybean oil meal as a protein ingredient of feeds for meat animals has proved to be an important factor in enabling stock raisers to improve the quality of meat products from their cattle, hogs and sheep. Proper feeding practices, they add, mean more dollars of profit in the pockets of livestock farmers.

ARE YOU A PART TIME CITIZEN

By Ruth Taylor

Being a citizen in a democracy is a full time job. In other forms of government, the citizenry make up the background, appearing only in mob scenes to cheer on the rulers of the nation.

But there is no room for part time citizens in our form of government. Our government is us—what we make it. Ours is the fault if the wheels of government do not run smoothly, for the laws we made are the roadbed, and the men we elected are the machine.

Are you a part time citizen? Do you fulfill all your duties as a voter—or do you just show up at election time to cast your vote without due consideration of the full qualifications, record and principles of all candidates?

Are you a part time citizen? Do you obey the laws you have had a hand in making—or is your only thought when you break what seems like a nonconsequential little law that if you get away with it, it's all right?

Are you a part time citizen? Do you evince interest in all issues or only in those problems which directly concern you—and then object when other groups do the same and infringe on your prerogatives? Only as citizens work for the common good of all can democracy progress.

Are you a part time citizen? Do you lend an ear to alien subversive elements who tell you how much better conditions are or would be for you were there a dif-

BRIEF SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS THIS WEEK

President Roosevelt's action in occupying Iceland with our armed force has brought us a long step nearer to "shooting war" with Germany and her allies. The number of British troops on the island is not known but it has been estimated at from 50,000 to 60,000. American troops will replace British, and enable Great Britain to remove some of her fleet from that area to patrol other sea lanes.

Down South America way, a German conspiracy is feared as responsible for the Latin American warfare between Peru and Ecuador. Dispatches from Quito, Ecuador, said that republic has charged Peru with aggression following the week-end of border fighting and bombing raids over a century-old frontier dispute between the two nations.

Commentators state that the RAF's steady hammering of German targets from Brest to Norway must be making serious inroads on the enemy's communication system as well as contributing to the battle of the Atlantic by disrupting and diverting Nazi seapower. In the past month the RAF is said to have carried out 41 raids on enemy shipping in coastal waters, destroying 14 enemy ships, damaging a number of others, destroying 112 German aircraft, while losing 81.

United States citizens' bank accounts were opened to withdrawals Monday in the first relief from credit - blocking regulations by Italy, by which they were frozen June 16.

In the Russian-Germany conflict, Russia claimed this week that almost 1,000,000 of Hitler's invasion army had fallen or been captured in the past 16 days of warfare. Germany declared on the contrary, that the Stalin Line had been breached in several places and thus that a break-through deep into Russia appeared imminent. The Nazis also claimed that 750,000 Russians have been killed or captured.

In Washington there is a division of thought on whether the United States should turn on Hitler now, or remain out of the conflict and risk the chance of a Nazi victory over Russia, which would be extremely detrimental to this country and democracy. There seems to be, however, a stiffening attitude toward Nazi aggression, and a grim determination among political leaders and army and navy authorities.

GARDEN REMINDERS

July is the month in which there is a trend toward the neglecting of gardens. Beans are often turned over to the bean beetle at this time of year which means no dried beans for the winter, no lima beans to put up and probably not sufficient amount of beans for canning. It takes constant watch to keep the bean beetles out of our gardens. Since the splendid season we should be preparing the ground where we had early vegetables so it can be replanted in corn and beans. July is the month for planting beets, for storing and drying beans for winter use. While the ground is moist prepare for August planting. The August planting will include turnips, turnip greens,

'Old Hickory' Would Do This To Hitler

By Marquis James

(Celebrated Biographer of Andrew Jackson and Pulitzer Prize Winner)

I HAVE frequently been asked what I thought Andrew Jackson would do if he were here today—in the White House, presumably.

He would lick the living tar out of Hitler, that's what he would do.

Who can doubt what Jackson's foreign policy would be? Witness his settlement of the Spoils of War against France, totalling 25,000,000 francs, owing since the Napoleonic Wars. France had paid all nations except us. Presidents came and went; none of them getting anywhere against France's barrier of polite evasion and delay. Jackson ordered the Secretary of the Treasury to write out a draft on France for the first installment due.

When the draft came back unpaid, he ordered the Navy ready for sea duty. France honored the draft.

The incident was typical, not exceptional. Genuine respect for American rights abroad dates from Jackson. He reduced complex problems to terms anyone could understand. He would have seen the present conflict as presenting the American people a choice between continuing their way of life and fighting for it—or accepting Hitler's. He would have had the courage to launch that fight and the will to carry it through to victory, whatever the cost.

More than any other chieftain of our Republic, Andrew Jackson exemplified the power of will—the ascendancy of spirit to lead men to deeds beyond their strength and to triumph over odds so great that ordinary folk stood in terror of them.

Jackson's Louisiana campaign is a feat which almost challenges belief. Neither in France nor in the Balkans has Hitler burned, Nantucket captured, the Cape Cod towns sacked or laid under tribute, the British went on down the coast scaring the daylight out of New York and Philadelphia and filling the East with appeasers. Baltimore was shelled, Alexandria plundered, Washington occupied and the Capitol and the White House burned.

The British moved South for the crowning blow—the subjugation of the Mississippi Valley. With the Government in flight, the Treasury empty, and the cry of disunion raised in New England, Andrew Jackson, in Alabama with some 500 regular and 2,000 militia, was given the job of beating off the invasion.

Jackson reached New Orleans on December 1, 1814. The British were on their way with 7,500 men, the most powerful and best equipped military force to set foot in the New World up to that time.

Against such might, what could Jackson do? That was heard on every side. New Orleans was a rich commercial town. New Orleans merchants argued that if they had to do business with the British they could, much as they might prefer otherwise. At any rate, that would be preferable to defeat and the loss of all they had.

But Jackson said he had come to fight. He would fight below New Orleans and, if beaten there he would fight in New Orleans; if beaten there, fight above New Orleans—fight until no living thing could stand in his path. He proclaimed martial law, and instituted a head-and-stem program with himself as beneficiary. Of materials and men, he took what he required. He filled jails with traitors and appeasers.

Twenty-three days after his arrival Jackson fought his first battle, beating the British advance. Thirty-nine days after his arrival, he fought his last battle, obliterating the British army.

Our situation now is serious. The war will probably be long. But contrast our position with Jackson's in 1814. Then ask yourself what you think Jackson would do if he were with us today, and what would be the ultimate result.

For myself, I think that enough of Andrew Jackson survives in enough of us to bring about the same result.

Now is the time to prevent your grape crop from mildew or rotting. This is done by spraying with Bordeaux mixture. To make this spray, dissolve one fourth pound of Blue Stone into one quart of water; dissolve one fourth pound of lime in another quart of water; when ready to spray, mix the two solutions into two and one half gallons of plain water, spray the grapes well and as often as the rain washes the last spraying off.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Sacrament" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, July 13, 1941.

The Golden Text is: "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." (John 13:34, 35).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart." (Acts 2:46).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Love for God and man is the true incentive in both healing and teaching. Love inspires, illumines, designates, and leads the way." (p. 454).

OUR NEW BATTLESHIPS

By the recent commissioning of the new battleships North Carolina and Washington, the United States Navy received its first addition in capital ships since 1923, when the Colorado and West Virginia were completed.

The new ships are only slightly larger than their predecessors of 18 years ago, but there is an immense difference in their cost. The older ships were of about 32,000 tons and cost approximately 25 million dollars each, while the North Carolina and Washington are 35,000-ton ships and cost about 70 million dollars each.

Four more battleships of this class—the South Dakota, just launched, the Indiana, Massachusetts and Alabama—are nearing completion, and will be ready to join the fleet in a few months. There are 17 battleships included in the expansion program to give the nation a two-ocean navy. With 15 old battleships still in service, these will bring the total to 32 capital ships.

The new battleships are 750 feet long, with a designed speed of about 27 knots. Each has a main battery of nine 16-inch guns, capable of firing a broadside of projectiles weighing 10 tons for a distance of 20 miles. Each will carry a complement of 75 officers and about 1,200 men.

Some idea of the comparative cost of a modern battleship with those of former days may be gathered from the fact that the new Washington cost almost as much as all the battleships of the United States Navy at the time of the Spanish-American War.

Charging that her husband became violent when they played bridge, Mrs. Leon Janney of Los Angeles was asked: "Had you trumped his ace?" "No, he would have been justified if I had done that," was the reply.

H. L. Hager of Oakland, Calif., earns his livelihood out of holes in doughnuts. He fries the cut out centers and coats them with nuts and sells them by the dozen.

After studying 18 years at night school, Anthony Mag, 39, of Pittsburgh, has been rewarded with a degree of bachelor of science from a university.

Judge J. J. Anderson of Urbana, Ill., recently ruled out a lawyer's plea to introduce a skeleton into the courtroom as evidence in an accident case.

PEEPLS FOR MAYOR

say that many of you have expressed yourselves to me that you intended to support me this time, although you did not before. For this I am indeed grateful, and I assure you that I shall strive to do everything in my power, if I am elected, to warrant this trust and faith.

I have hoped that I might come back this year and attain my goal by the combined support of the people who voted for me before, and with the aid of those who have since turned their loyalty to me because they feel that my efforts will best represent their ideals of improved city management.

Realizing the responsibilities of the office of Mayor of Fulton, I assure you I am not being boastful in the assertion that I feel myself qualified for the position I seek. The people of Fulton know my qualifications and the interest I have taken in my community, and I am willing to abide by their decision.

No political bosses owe me their support, and I have no rich or powerful relatives to aid my cause. I offer myself as a man who realizes that success never comes to a person who sits and waits. I have always wanted to achieve something in life and be of service to my fellow men. To gain this end I am willing to work hard, and I fully realize that the mayor's job is going to require much time and effort in order that the job may be done well.

My interest in civic matters, and my service on the city council, have acquainted me with the many problems which will confront me as mayor, if you choose to elect me.

My campaign is not fostered by any individual, firm or group, and I assure you that if elected as your mayor I shall enter upon the discharge of the duties of the office with that freedom which the Divine Father of our being has given us. I will at all times be guided by what I conceive to be the best interest of the whole people and shall strive persistently and earnestly to serve them. I will make no job-promises, or any other promises to gain votes, then find myself facing a handicap in carrying out the one big promise I do make: To serve you faithfully.

So as I make my formal announcement, I wish to say again that I am in the race to stay to the finish. If I did not have confidence that I would be the choice of a majority of the voters, this announcement would have never appeared. I shall be unable to see many of you before election day, for I am a working man, and coupled with the extended illness of my wife, I will not be able to see everyone personally. Knowing there are many I will miss, I beg that readers take this as my personal appeal for their vote and influence. Remember I appreciate your efforts in my behalf in my race four years ago, and shall be ever grateful for your support this time.

Sincerely,
R. C. PEEPLES

WHAT FOODS ARE NEEDED?

If Americans were eating all the food they need, the country would consume 70 percent more green vegetables and fruits, 35 percent more eggs, 15 percent more butter and 20 percent more milk. Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard told the 1000 delegates attending the National Nutrition Conference for Defense at Washington in May.

"We not only have the resources to produce all our people need for better nutrition," Secretary Wickard said, "we also have the methods. Whatever the Nation summons the will to do the job, agriculture can meet the new demands."

As part of the program to see that nutritive foods reach those who need them most, the Secretary pointed out that surplus foods furnished by the Department of Agriculture are now providing free lunches for about 5,000,000 school children. The stamp plan is being expanded to reach 5,000,000 people by summer, while the program to distribute low cost milk to poor families is being expanded.

BURNING THE WIND

When something went fast in the good old days, we said it "burned the wind." In our slow world that did not mean, necessarily, that the something was going at terrific speed, either. But the very slowness of our lives made speed exciting.

In our play we often burned the wind. When an occasional ice storm coated the ground over, we slid down hills on skides or chairs or planks and felt that we were literally setting records for speed. On one such occasion I went so fast that my overcoat, handed down as a relic from several older brothers, was left hanging in tatters on the ice. I was afraid to rejoice, but I know now that I did not grieve much over such a tragedy, for it meant that I might get a new one for myself. Sometimes we would stand up in the swing and "pump" until we fairly went up into the limbs of the trees and would burn the wind as we made a huge arc across the yard. On the see-saw we went up rather slowly but often came down with a rush. To this day a similar motion, such as going down a small hill too fast in a car, makes me think of the nausea I suffered when the see-saw broke or else descended a bit too fast. One of the best ways to burn the wind was to get the running gear of an old buggy, take off the bed and shafts, and guide the clumsy old thing with a plow line or a piece of baling wire as we whizzed down hill. Skiing and tobogganing were never my experiences, but I know that the wildest dare-devil of the White Mountains never felt any bigger than we youngsters did with our crude ways of making speed.

People older and more sophisticated than we could burn the wind in another spectacular way. Our by the State AAA office. This threat to the Department of Agriculture's food-for-defense program prompted removal of the forage-crop restrictions, he added. The action was taken upon recommendation of the State AAA Committee and is in line with the 1942 program changes outlined June 6, by the Secretary of Agriculture. The 1942 agricultural conservation program changes, announced by the Secretary permit farmers in designated counties to plant emergency forage crops in excess of total soil-depleting allotments without incurring deductions. "All counties in Kentucky have been so designated by the AAA," O. M. Farrington, State Executive Office of the AAA, has announced. "In effect," Farrington stated, "this removes general acreage allotments and total soil-depleting allotments during the current 1941 program which ends June 30. "It does not in any way affect special crop allotments for tobacco, cotton and wheat," Farrington said, "and does not affect corn allotments in the 12 Kentucky commercial corn counties. "Corn growers in these 12 counties, however, already have been granted permission to plant up to their usual acreages without incurring deductions from any payments except those for corn," he said. In announcing the 1942 program changes the Secretary of Agriculture pointed out that rainfall deficiencies responsible for drought in the eastern half of the United States have been cumulative since December. Therefore, he said, effects of the drought cannot be entirely offset by recent rains in some areas and he emphasized that "unolder brothers might own fine horses, fine for our part of the world. These same horses ridden or driven might excite the wonder and covetousness of the whole neighborhood. On Sunday morning, when people were supposed to be in a pious frame of mind, the sight of a dapper young fellow dashing up to the doors of the country church on his steed or, better still, driving up equally fast with the pretty girl from up the creek by his side provoked violations of the tenth commandment among the younger set and caused the bearded fellows to recall vividly some of their own escapades at burning the wind. When people gathered at the country store for election or Saturday afternoon or just gathered, how great it was to come driving by as if you were oblivious of all the world, though we all knew that you were showing off the gait of your horse!

Even the old people could burn the wind occasionally by purchasing something above their usual level: some furniture, a new buggy for the family, some fancy wall paper, or other equally prosaic but exciting thing. Then the older neighbors had their turn of envying and talking behind their hands. When Mother's mother died, there was a small sum left for each of the children. Mother invested hers in a new guest room suite: bed, wash stand, dresser, all of golden oak. One of the neighbor women came, apparently just for a call but really to see the new things. She asked to see them, for, of course, the front room was shut up except on particular occasions. When she saw them, she gave this somewhat puzzling remark: "I ain't got nothing, I never had nothing, I never want nothing." This, you may guess, let Mother down from her splurge, simple as it had been.

less emergency measures are taken in the east the food-for-defense program could be seriously handicapped. "Although our situation has been affected by unfavorable weather conditions at a time when we need increased amounts of dairy and poultry products and meats and certain vegetables, we can use the machinery of the farm program to help compensate for the drought damage that has occurred," the Secretary concluded.

PEOPLE NEED FACTS

Much controversy over the effectiveness of the nation's defense effort might be avoided if the government departments would be more frank in giving the people uncolored facts. Everyone recognizes that there are many kinds of information which must be kept secret, but this is no excuse for misleading the public regarding obstacles which must be overcome. The tendency in Washington has been to give the impression that the defense program is being carried out with efficiency and speed, when this is only partially true. From reliable sources it is known that there are serious defects in the organization and administration of production efforts.

For the most part, published articles and radio comments by capable observers who have called attention to these defects have been sincere and well-meant. There have been exceptions, in which comment has been irresponsible and tinged with political or personal bias, but constructive criticism has been helpful. The people do not want alarmist interpretations of the facts, neither do they want optimistic assurances that everything is progressing satisfactorily when such is not the case. At present so many conflicting reports are going about that the average citizen does not know what to believe.

One thing seems certain: The mass of the American people are not yet awake to the dangers which confront this nation, and until they are awakened they will not be disposed to make the sacrifices and efforts which must be made if these dangers are to be overcome.

SUGGEST SOWING EMERGENCY CROPS TO PRODUCE FEED

To help provide stock feed in sections affected by drouth, crops men at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics suggest sowing soybeans, cowpeas, millet, and sudan grass.

Soybeans are given first choice as a hay crop, because of their high yield, quality and feeding value. They should be sowed by July 15. Cowpeas also make good hay and are especially valuable for sowing after July 1 on rather poor soil.

Sudan grass is considered the best crop to sow after the middle of July.

It is further suggested that farmers in August or early September sow barley, rye or rye grass with crimson clover and winter vetch for fall and winter pasture. Sufficient acreages should be sowed to alfalfa, clover and grass in August to replace the stands of young grasses and clovers that have died. Because of the possibility that drouth has killed much of the les-
