NEW BANK CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY—This is an architect's conception of the new Bank of Murray building which will add 27,000 square feet to the existing bank building at Fourth and Main streets. Construction was begun today on the building which will serve as the main office for the bank's operation.

Bank of Murray Begins Building Construction

Construction on a new three-story facility to house the Bank of Murray's main operations began today in downtown Murray.

The new building, which will be the largest single business building in downtown Murray, will add 27,000 square feet to the existing structure at the corner of Fourth and Main streets.

The exterior finish will be precast concrete and aggregate and will be very similar to the bank's University Branch, which opened on North 12th Street in 1972. New aggregate sidewalks and landscaped areas will further compliment the building and the entire downtown area.

The lower level of the building will feature three drive-in windows which will be approached by customers from Maple Street with an exit from beneath the building on South Third Street.

The main banking lobby will feature the teller line, new account area, safe deposit boxes and private coupon booths, and conference rooms all in the area that encompasses the existing first floor of the present bank building.

The second level will be reached from the rear of the existing building or from an entrance on Main Street. This level will include the commercial loan department, the installment loan department and the auditing department of the bank. Private offices and conference rooms will be featured in this area of the building.

The third floor of the building will feature an expansion area for the bank's proof, bookkeeping, central file and credit departments.

The three bank levels will be reached by elevators which will be directly across from the Main Street entrance. The architectural design of the building and the construction will be such that four additional floors can be added in the future.

"The Bank of Murray is taking an initial step in downtown construction which bank officials hope will lead to a rejuvenation of downtown Murray," a bank spokesman said.

Kentucky No-Fault Insurance Takes Effect In July of 1975

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky now has a no-fault auto insurance law and one circumventing broad form deeds—both to take effect next year—and one of the nation's strongest campaign finance laws.

Those were among the bills signed by Gov. Wendell Ford Tuesday, some of them in ceremonies in his office.

Any bill enacted by the late general assembly that Ford does not sign or veto by midnight tonight automatically becomes law. He has not yet acted on about 35 of the 400 bills enacted by the legislature.

Signed late Tuesday was House Bill 68, tightening Kentucky's law on reporting of political contributions to the extent that its backers say make it one of the strongest nationally.

The bill prohibits anyone from contributing more than 1,000 to any one candidate or more than $3,000 to all candidates in any one election.

The no-fault bill will take effect July next year. Besides no-fault provisions, it will make any Kentucky motorist not having liability insurance subject to a $50-$500 fine.

The broad form bill will require coal mine operators to get the consent of surface landowners involved before applying for a state strip-mining permit, beginning next January.

The court of appeals has held mineral rights owners having broad form deeds can get the coal any way they want—including by strip-mining, although that technique was little known when the deeds were signed.

The no-fault law also includes a mandatory 10 per cent insurance rate reduction for motorists now having full bodily injury coverage. The reduction does not apply to other types of coverage such as motorists have.

The principle of no-fault is that a person's own insurance company pays for his medical expenses and lost wages resulting from an accident, no matter who was at fault. Its purpose is to speed up the payment of claims and perhaps to lower rates by eliminating lawsuits.

Under Kentucky's new law, all motorists will have three options:

- Remaining under the present tort, or fault, system, by rejecting no-fault in writing.
- Accepting no-fault coverage

University Honors Day Scheduled For April 21

About 700 Murray State University students who have distinguished themselves through academic achievement and leadership will share the spotlight during the annual Honors Day Program on the campus Sunday, April 21.

Scheduled at 2 p.m. in Lovett Auditorium, the program will include 177 individual presentations of grants, cash awards, certificates and citations by the university and by various campus scholastic and honorary organizations.

Charles L. Eldridge, director of school relations and chairman of the Honors Day committee, said he anticipates a large turnout of parents and friends to recognize award recipients.

"Honors Day holds special meaning on the campus because it symbolizes both purpose and fulfillment for young people dedicated to high goals," he added. "And it gives us bystanders, especially parents, an opportunity to show our pride."

All parents are invited to attend the program, he continued, with parents of students to be recognized on stage to receive a personal invitation from Dr. Constantine W. Curris, university president.

David Curtis, a LaCerte senior who served during the year as president of the Student Government Association, will preside during the honors program.

Curris will welcome guests to the campus, and Dr. William G. Read, vice-president for academic affairs, will introduce the academic deans. The deans will preside as department heads from each undergraduate school make presentations.

Among those to be recognized during the program are the outstanding senior woman and man, outstanding students from various academic departments and honor societies based on scholarship, students named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities," the ideal freshman woman and man, recipients of awards made by the Student Government Association, and students who have achieved a cumulative scholastic standing of 3.3 or better of a possible 4.00.

Udall Predicts Conservative America In Insight Opener

By DAVID HILL
Ledger & Times Staff Writer

"We are at a turning point in history," conservationist Stewart Udall told a crowd of about 1,000 at the opening session of Insight '74 Tuesday.

"The energy crisis will change American life more in the next 15 or 20 years than anything since the Industrial Revolution. We must learn to think small, think slow, and think snug."

The former Secretary of the Interior also came down rather sharply on the coal industry, saying it is "playing a bad game in Washington" by trying to defeat a federal strip-mining bill that would tighten reclamation requirements for mining areas.

"The Senate has passed a good bill," Udall told a press conference of about 15 reporters prior to the program, "and the coal industry is trying to beat it in the House."

Udall predicted the end of the automobile culture, and called the era of the big cars, "a weekend joy ride in history."

The former U.S. Representative praise the young Americans for slowing down the population explosion in this country, and even bringing about a negative population growth in recent years. He said this policy will "make all our problems more manageable."

"We are at the end of the era of cheap power...we are moving into an age of shortages," Udall called the energy crunch of this past winter an "exercise in conservation" that will become the American way of life in the future.

"We are running on oil, and we're running out," he went on. "We are becoming almost overnight an oil have-not nation." Udall predicted an abrupt rise in public transportation, with railroads becoming more popular. He predicted that the giant freeways of Southern California will become little more than "bus routes and bicycles paths."

Udall pointed to the now-under-construction Alaskan Pipeline, but said that there is only enough oil in Alaska to last America for two years, if we used only that source on a constant basis.

"We are in deep trouble and the sooner we recognize it the better...we're running out of oil."

Tonight's Insight guest will be consumer advocate Ralph Nader. A live televised press conference will precede the program. The conference will be telecast on MSU-TV, cable Channel 11, at 7 p.m.

Department of Special Education.

Dr. Jack Baker, an associate professor in the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, will be in charge of the track and field events. He will be assisted by students at Murray State majoring in special education and physical education.

"The purpose of the Special Olympics is not only to assist the physical development of the retarded, but also their social and psychological development," Dr. Smith said.

"The program is unique in that it provides for competitors at all levels of ability by assigning them to 'competition divisions' based on both age and actual performance. Even the children in the lowest-divisions may advance all the way to a national finals," she said.

Application forms for participants may be obtained by contacting the Division of Mental Retardation in the Department of Special Education at Murray State, Dr. Smith said, emphasizing that the deadline for entrants is April 10.

Direction Of MSU Industrial Technology Program Discussed

Future directions for both the four-year industrial technology program and the two-year technicians program at Murray State University were among a variety of matters discussed Monday at the second meeting of the Department of Industrial Education's Advisory Council.

The council is made up of industrial education and technology personnel at the University along with 10 Kentucky industrial and educational leaders, most of whom are from the western end of the state.

Current trends in industrial teacher education programs across the state and nation as relating to changes and implications for future programs also were discussed in the fact-finding, exploratory meeting.

Dr. A.F. Rosenberg, manager of the chemical analysis laboratory at the General Electric plant in Louisville, projected specific needs for plastic technology for both two and four-year programs, a springboard from which University personnel will make manpower studies and investigate existing programs in that area.

Participating along with Dr. Rosenberg in the meeting, the last of the council until the fall, were: David Dickson, manager, The Tappan Company, Murray; Morris Henderson, personnel supervisor, South Central Bell, Owensboro;

The juvenile was turned over to the juvenile authorities by the City Police.

Over 800 Students Enter Projects In Science Fair

More than 800 elementary, junior high and senior high school students have entered more than 500 projects in the seventh annual West Kentucky Regional Science Fair to be held at Murray State University Saturday, April 6.

To include competition in five categories—biology, chemistry, earth sciences, physics and mathematics—the fair is sponsored by Murray State.

About 100 awards will be presented to individual and group project winners in afternoon ceremonies.

Nick Britt, assistant professor of mathematics at Murray State and director of the fair, said visitors may see the exhibits in the Fieldhouse and the old gymnasium of the Carr Health Building from noon to 3 p.m. after they are judged in the morning.

Britt, Dr. Walter Blackburn, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences, and departmental chairmen will present the awards in a program to begin at 3 p.m. in Lovett Auditorium.

Besides an overall grand prize winner, who will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond and a plaque, a top award winner will be recognized in each level of competition—elementary, junior high and senior high—and receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond and a plaque. The teacher of the grand award winner will also receive a plaque.

Gold, silver and bronze medallions will also be awarded to first, second and third place exhibits at each level of individual and group competition in each category.

Britt said the fair is designed to promote interest in the sciences and in mathematics at all levels and to assist teachers in motivating students.

He also called it "a wonderful opportunity for students to be exposed to other students for exchanging ideas and to become acquainted with the campus and people in the university community."

As the guests assembled a program of nuptial music was presented by recordings of the Harding College Chorus. Miss Andrea Morris, cousin of the bride, kept the guest register.

Bride's Dress

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of silk organza over taffeta. The front of the gown featured a wide panel of embroidery with a Victorian neckline. The full sleeves ended in wide cuffs. A chapel train fell from the waistline and the bottom edge of the skirt had a wide ruffle edged in lace. Floral motifs of embroidery were applied in an all over pattern over the gown.

She wore a three tiered veil of silk illusion that fell to the waist and was attached to a crescent shaped headpiece of satin edged in pearls. The bride carried a colonial style bouquet of lily of the valley, white and red mums edged in lace accented with white and red streamers, tied in love knots.

'Doggie bagger' takes the cake (and carrots)

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Can you explain why a wealthy woman, when eating out, always takes home the leftover dinner rolls, carrot sticks, crackers, and anything else that's served and isn't eaten?

This lady is very generous where charity is concerned. We are four women who meet once a week for bridge and lunch, and her conduct puzzles me.

I can understand a "doggie bag" for leftover portions of meat, but what about taking home every morsel of edible food on the table?

On occasion we all meet with our husbands, and when this woman asked my husband for his leftover carrot sticks to take home, he thought she was kidding. Yet her husband seemed indifferent. How do you figure this? AMAZED

DEAR AMAZED: The lady can't bear to see anything wasted. [There are many people who, if they had the courage, would collect all the leftovers.] There is nothing wrong with it. If she were poor, she'd be "chintzy." But since she's rich, she's "eccentric."

DEAR ABBY: My wife passed away three months ago. She was 52, and a wonderful woman. My children are married and have homes of their own. My mother-in-law is constantly plying me with advice. Example: "Don't ever marry again. All women are gold diggers. All they want is your money."

Abby, my life seems so empty. I don't know anyone I want to date, but my mother-in-law's constant harping on the subject has made me think about it.

How long a mourning period should be observed in my case? How soon is "too soon" to seek female companionship? Would my dating before a year be considered disrespectful to the memory of my late wife?

Our marriage was a happy one and we had 30 good years, but I think 55 is too young to resign myself to a life alone. What do you think? LONELY

DEAR LONELY: It's your life, obviously not that of your departed wife or certainly not that of your mother-in-law, that counts. If you dislike living alone, do something about it and don't worry about what others think. Who named them as your judge?

DEAR ABBY: My son and his wife have been married for three years. They are both bleeding heart liberals and miss no opportunity to announce that they have no children because they don't want any!

I believe their decision to have no children is a very selfish one. The Good Book implores us to "Go forth and multiply." Our son is an only child, and my heart is broken because he is depriving us of the pleasure of being grandparents.

Do you blame us for feeling DEPRIVED DEAR DEPRIVED: I don't "blame" you, but I don't agree that your son and his wife should have children because you want to be grandparents.

Couples who remain childless by choice shouldn't be made to feel guilty. When the writers of the Good Book implored us to go forth and multiply, the world needed more people. Not so today. Quite the contrary.

Nixon Acts To Help Veterans

AFTER WEEKS of protests which culminated last weekend in some new demonstrations, President Nixon has appointed a high-level committee to investigate the needs and problems of veterans.

One of the most pressing problems is the failure of the Veterans Administration to overcome its own snafus in delivering checks to Vietnam veterans who have been attending schools under the GI bill. Some of those veterans have been complaining that they haven't received the checks due them since last fall.

But the dissatisfaction with VA performance has been much more widespread, including complaints about treatment at VA hospitals or the lack of such treatment for certain needs and the failure of the federal government to provide sufficient job opportunities and training programs to prepare veterans to hold jobs.

The President tries now to make it appear that these short-comings in veterans programs are the fault of the nation as a whole, perhaps even of the press. "The lens of the camera and the pen of the journalist has focused so often on those who had deserted America that those who bravely served were sometimes forgotten," he said over the weekend.

The President certainly has not been reading the newspapers very carefully if he has that impression. They have had columns of news about the problems and needs of returning Vietnam veterans. Indeed, veterans' spokesmen have been saying it is the President who has been neglecting them, devoting all his attention to the returned prisoners of war.

And it was a member of the press, Sarah McClendon, a correspondent for some Texas newspapers, who shocked even some of her fellow journalists by engaging in a shouting match with the President at a televised news conference and who forced the President to look into the problem. Even he now admits that.

THE PRESIDENT has appointed to his special committee the secretaries of health, education and welfare; labor and defense, along with the director of the Office of Management and Budget. But the committee is to be headed by VA Administrator Donald Johnson who is blamed by many of the veterans for the difficulties they have been having.

The committee will not have an easy task. As the President noted, programs for veterans have been scattered over 18 federal departments and agencies. In addition, the latest and most vocal group of veterans is much more diversified in its needs and problems than were those who served in previous wars, partly because they have been filtering back into civilian life over a span of years and partly because the conditions under which they served were different.

But their needs and problems are real and must be dealt with fairly and promptly. Attention to those needs and problems has been delayed far too long.

No Shortage Of Words

If there's a true shortage of paper, as the reports indicate, Washington would be a fine place to begin the cure. Does anyone consume more paper than the Federal Government, the ultimate multi-copy, word-happy, don't-use-a-sheet-when-a-ream-will-do-consider?

The message was duly noted last week when Rep. Harold Froelich of Wisconsin put a notice on the House Press Gallery bulletin board in Washington.

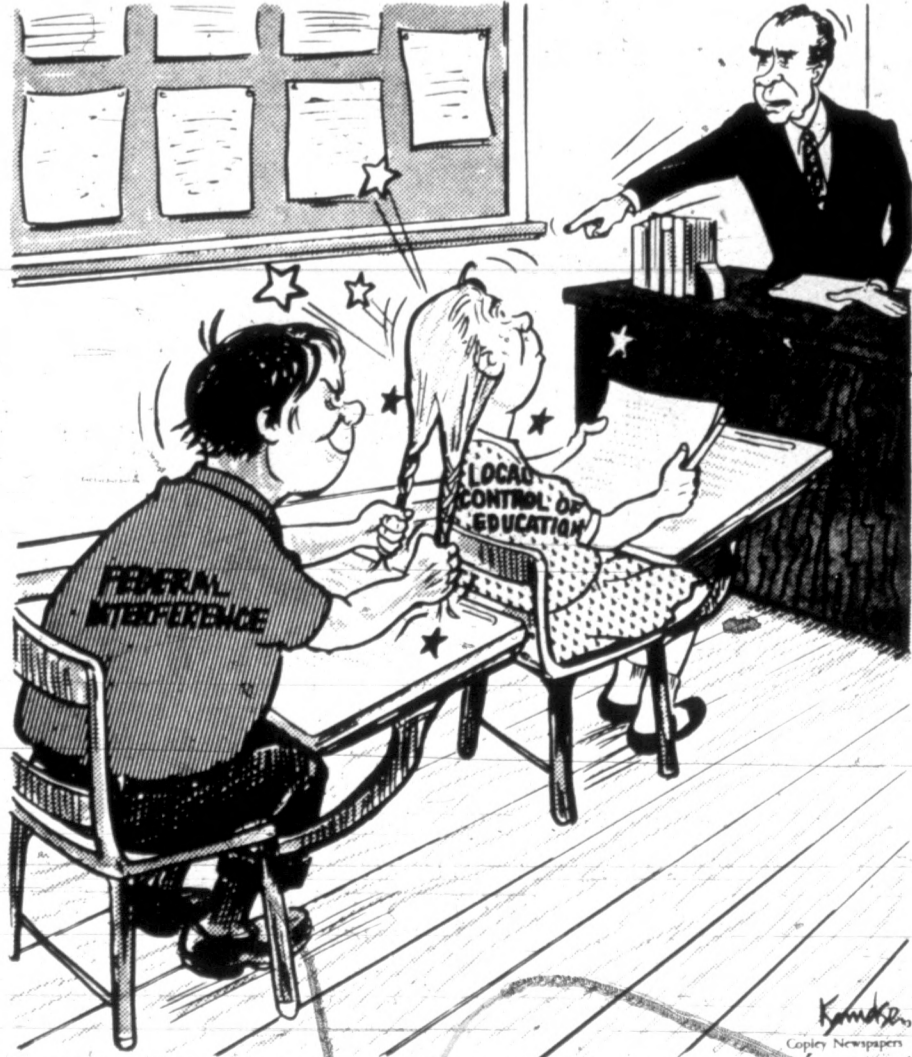

"The Federal Government is running out of paper," it said. Froelich lamented that the Joint Committee on Printing, which buys paper for Congress, can get only 58.7 per cent of the amount it wants for the next three months.

His call for price decontrol of the paper industry was placed on the bulletin board in double-spaced type on two legal-sized sheets with wide margins. —Tulsa (Okla.) World

God's Time

Complaints are mounting over Daylight Saving Time as an emergency energy measure. Farmers want to return to "God's time" and many others are concerned about children going to school in the dark these winter mornings. Hence some Senators, including Mike Mansfield, the Majority Leader, are calling for repeal of the DST proviso.

The experiment is unpopular and the energy savings seem to be illusory or marginal. But, fortunately, the problem is of the self-solving sort. Waiting for Congress to act is always iffy, but one can be fairly sure that the days are going to get longer in the coming weeks. The government hasn't screwed that up yet. —Norfolk (Va.) REPORTS TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY

BUDGET REFORM SHOULD CUT DEFICITS

For many years critics of Congress and even members of Congress have been calling for reform of the method whereby Congress appropriates money and thereby enacts what amounts to an annual budget. I have referred to the present system as a "hydra-headed monster" in which there is no coordination between total spending and expected revenue, nor is there any effective means of making judgments about the priority of one program versus another because all program budgets are enacted separately with no overall limitation on total spending.

The Senate has now passed a bill aimed at reforming the budget process. I was fortunate enough to be a member of the subcommittee and the full Government Operations Committee which did the original drafting of this legislation. Although I would have preferred a somewhat stronger bill, I do believe that the one passed by the Senate, which must now go to conference with the House, provides the basis for a thorough reform of the Congressional budget-making process.

The key factor in the reform process is a requirement that each year new budget committees in the House and Senate recommend annual budget ceilings or guidelines, which would then be approved by Congress as a whole. Any later changes in the spending targets would have to be reconciled with the original guidelines. Hopefully, this would enable us to prevent some of these huge budget deficits that we have had in recent years.

The economic situation in our nation hits each of us squarely each day. We in Congress know that from our own experiences. We know that from the many letters we receive from constituents who find it difficult to meet the growing costs of such basic items as food and heat.

It is beyond time for change. Our economic house must be put in order; and, since charity begins at home, federal spending is a good place to start. Congress cannot live in a glass house of inadequate information and analysis and fragmented budget-making. Nor should we want to. The use of public funds is a special responsibility that should not be taken lightly.

Hopefully, with this legislation we are building the foundation of a process which will lead to detailed consideration and understanding of the federal budgeting process and the important part it plays in the overall fiscal and economic conditions.

Fuel Crisis Hits Where It Hurts

By RON WELLS
Copley News Service

The brief, officious, somewhat apologetic note inside the gas and electric bill read: "Dear Customer: We regret to inform you that due to increasing fuel costs and a marked decrease in total customer consumption, your gas and electric company is forced to raise your rates. This is done in order to help meet ongoing expenses and continue plans for future expansion. All this is done in an attempt to bring you better service and greater comfort. Sincerely, Your Gas and Electric Co."

As I sat in the corner of my den under the dim glow of a 40-watt light bulb where once I had basked under the homey radiance of a 100-watt beacon, I felt an uncontrollable urge to switch on the color television, turn the thermostat up to 72 degrees and flip on a few more lights.

Using all the willpower I could muster I finally managed to suppress this foolhardy desire for pointless, open defiance of my patriotic duty to conserve energy at all costs.

Besides the warm, heavy afghan I had wrapped around me had entangled my feet making any sudden attempts at walking more than a little hazardous.

"Ah, who wants to go rummaging through a dark house anyway," I rationalized and began pondering the obvious and hidden meanings of the utility company's message.

The message was printed on a grade of thick, white bond paper. It came to my straining eyes in red and blue ink, giving it an air of good old American patriotism, the scent of fresh-baked apple pie and the glow of motherhood.

"Nothing second class about my gas and electric company," I murmured while adjusting my knee-length wool socks and tucking the cuffs of mittens under the elastic cuffs of my parka.

"They're really thinking about my well-being through this whole energy crisis."

"Here they are sending their buyers and geologists all over the world in attempts to get fuel at the best price," I mused, as I stifled a sneeze. "So I can't kick about paying a higher rate. After all, they're paying more than double what they paid for fuel six months or a year ago."

An euphoric sense of dedication to duty swept over me as I clapped my hands together and rubbed my legs to get the circulation going again.

I, like millions of other Americans, had cut back, slowed down and turned off. I was happy to do my part, even if it did mean mild cases of frostbite and pneumonia.

But as I reached for the Chap Stick my gaze riveted on one phrase of the message which I had merely passed over in my first reading.

It read, "... and a marked decrease in total customer consumption, your gas and electric company is forced to raise your rates."

My mind recoiled and stumbled blindly back into the past to a time when shortages were something experienced by other countries but not the United States.

When it ceased its retreat it transmitted a vision, a vision of red, white and blue on a grade of thick, white bond paper that bore a message of bountiful, inexpensive energy and the admonishment to use energy for comfort and pleasure because the more that was used, the lower the over-all customer rates would be. The vision passed and left me stunned and alone in my den, under the dim glow of a 40-watt bulb.

I don't remember much after that. My loving wife, Susan, apparently entered the room only minutes afterwards.

She had been in the kitchen filling hot water bottles to put in the bed since we had removed our electric blanket as another energy conservation step.

She later told me she found me clutching a tiny American flag close to my breast and staring blankly straight ahead while I mumbled, "... going and coming, going and coming. They got us going and coming..."

Our family physician wasn't the least bit surprised or puzzled by the account of my revelation and its chilling aftereffects.

He reassured me I would be all right and prescribed a mild tranquilizer.

Then as we stared at each other through bloodshot eyes across his large mahogany desk in his dark wood-paneled office, illuminated by a single 40-watt light bulb, he mutely handed me a plastic bottle of eye wash, gazing blankly past me as if searching for a ray of light at the end of a long tunnel.

Comments From Others

SUPERIOR, NEBR., FARMER-STOCKMAN OF NEBRASKA: "One of the problems with the interest of the majority of the people in our environment and ecology generally is the fine balance between being practical and being a nut. The latter has his place because it is usually he who stirs up the interest, creates emotionalism and gets things started. It is the practical person who must sort out what is reasonable, what is possible, what is best."

HAMILTON, OHIO, FAIRFIELD ECHO: "Learning to manage money takes time and experience so be prepared for some ups and downs. It helps to keep your basic goals in mind. Remember, too, that wise money attitudes and values don't come ready-made nor do they appear magically at age 21. They are built carefully and steadily through guidance and opportunity up the nickel, dime, and quarter route to maturity."

Our Blue Bell is in bloom. It usually does its thing before the leaves come out to shade the spot where it lives.

We don't think too much of those tissues that are scented. When we have a sneezing fit, the scent in the tissues seem only to aggravate the situation.

A pair of Blue Birds inspecting the bird house. We don't think they'll stay since the Woodpeckers have enlarged the hole to larger proportions than they like. We are going to have to nail a piece of plywood over the hole with a smaller hole in it.

Ah, what a sight. We heard this arrk-arrk in the front yard and go to investigate and it's a Red Headed Woodpecker. We just don't see too many of them. They are not as gregarious as the Red Bellied Woodpecker that frequents the feeders.

The Red Headed Woodpecker has a lot of white on him, front, and half the wing, and his head is completely red from the neck up. The Red Bellied Woodpecker has a lot of red on his head, but the head is not completely red. He has a pinkish spot on his belly, from which he gets his name. Hard to see it unless he sits just right, but it's there.

The spring break is over. We got a lot of work done last week, but found it difficult to really get some studying done. It is different this week because there is something motivating about having to have something ready the next day.

Sincerely, Your Gas and Electric Co."

As I sat in the corner of my den under the dim glow of a 40-watt light bulb where once I had basked under the honey radiance of a 100-watt beacon, I felt an uncontrollable urge to switch on the color television, turn the thermostat up to 72 degrees and flip on a few more lights.

Using all the willpower I could muster I finally managed to suppress this foolhardy desire for pointless, open defiance of my patriotic duty to conserve energy at all costs.

Besides the warm, heavy aghast I had wrapped around me had entangled my feet making any sudden attempts at walking more than a little hazardous.

"Ah, who wants to go rummaging through a dark house anyway," I rationalized and began pondering the obvious and hidden meanings of the utility company's message.

The message was printed on a grade of thick, white bond paper. It came to my straining eyes in red and blue ink, giving it an air of good old American patriotism, the scent of fresh-baked apple pie and the glow of motherhood.

"Nothing second class about my gas and electric company," I murmured while adjusting my knee-length wool socks and tucking the cuffs of mittens under the elastic cuffs of my parka.

"They're really thinking about my well-being through this whole energy crisis."

"Here they are sending their buyers and geologists all over the world in attempts to get fuel at the best price," I mused, as I stifled a sneeze. "So I can't kick about paying a higher rate. After all, they're paying more than double what they paid for fuel six months or a year ago."

An euphoric sense of dedication to duty swept over me as I clapped my hands together and rubbed my legs to get the circulation going again.

I, like millions of other Americans, had cut back, slowed down and turned off. I was happy to do my part, even if it did mean mild cases of frostbite and pneumonia.

But as I reached for the Chap Stick my gaze riveted on one phrase of the message which I had merely passed over in my first reading.

It read, "... and a marked decrease in total customer consumption, your gas and electric company is forced to raise your rates."

My mind recoiled and stumbled blindly back into the past to a time when shortages were something experienced by other countries but not the United States.

When it ceased its retreat it transmitted a vision, a vision of red, white and blue on a grade of thick, white bond paper that bore a message of bountiful, inexpensive energy and the admonishment to use energy for comfort and pleasure because the more that was used, the lower the over-all customer rates would be. The vision passed and left me stunned and alone in my den, under the dim glow of a 40-watt bulb.

I don't remember much after that. My loving wife, Susan, apparently entered the room only minutes afterwards.

She had been in the kitchen filling hot water bottles to put in the bed since we had removed our electric blanket as another energy conservation step.

She later told me she found me clutching a tiny American flag close to my breast and staring blankly straight ahead while I mumbled, "... going and coming, going and coming. They got us going and coming..."

Our family physician wasn't the least bit surprised or puzzled by the account of my revelation and its chilling aftermaths.

He reassured me I would be all right and prescribed a mild tranquilizer.

Then as we stared at each other through bloodshot eyes across his large mahogany desk in his dark wood-paneled office, illuminated by a single 40-watt light bulb, he mutely handed me a plastic bottle of eye wash, gazing blankly past me as if searching for a ray of light at the end of a long tunnel.

SUPERIOR, NEBR., FARMER-STOCKMAN OF NEBRASKA: "One of the problems with the interest of the majority of the people in our environment and ecology generally is the fine balance between being practical and being a nut. The latter has his place because it is usually he, who stirs up the interest, creates emotionalism and gets things started. It is the practical person who must sort out what is reasonable, what is possible, what is best."

HAMILTON, OHIO, FAIRFIELD ECHO: "Learning to manage money takes time and experience so be prepared for some ups, and downs. It helps to keep your basic goals in mind. Remember, too, that wise money attitudes and values don't come ready-made nor do they appear magically at age 21. They are built carefully and steadily through guidance and opportunity up the nickel, dime, and quarter route to maturity."

Ah, what a sight. We heard this arr-arrk in the front yard and go to investigate and it's a Red Headed Woodpecker. We just don't see too many of them. They are not as gregarious as the Red Bellied Woodpecker that frequents the feeders.

The Red Headed Woodpecker has a lot of white on him, front, and half the wing, and his head is completely red from the neck up. The Red Bellied Woodpecker has a lot of red on his head, but the head is not completely red. He has a pinkish spot on his belly, from which he gets his name. Hard to see it unless he sits just right, but it's there.

The spring break is over. We got a lot of work done last week, but found it difficult to really get some studying done. It is different this week because there is something motivating about having to have something ready the next day.

Murray 22-6 Following 10-4 Pounding Of Brown

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor
Freshman southpaw Dana Pearson became the first Murray State pitcher to work a complete nine inning game this spring as the Cobden, Ill., native scattered 10 hits Tuesday at Reagan Field in pitching the Thoroughbreds to a 10-4 win over Brown.

Murray had previously played only one single game, that being a 13-9 win over 13th-ranked South Alabama on the road in the season opener. Through six innings, Pearson, who was drafted out of high school by the St. Louis Cardinals, gave up only five hits and had a shutout. The 'Breds, who are now 22-6 with the win, took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning when John Howland singled, Rick Weisman walked and shortstop Leon Wurth smacked a double to send home Howland. In the fourth inning, Murray added another run when Wurth reached base after being hit by a pitch, David Hughes drilled a double and Don Derrington dribbled a single down the first base line to send in Wurth and give Murray a 2-0 lead. Pearson seemed to be in complete control until when with two men out in the top of the seventh, Brown's Bob Cirullo drilled his third homer in three days to cut the 'Breds' lead in half. The next man reached on an error and then advanced to second on a stolen base and came across to score on a single. The unearned run tied the game at 2-2 and brought Murray to bat in the home half of the seventh. After the leadoff batter was retired, Howland, Jack Perconte, Steve Barrett, Weisman and Wurth all drew successive walks and Murray led 4-2. Hughes grounded the ball toward first and the fielder threw the ball past second in the attempt at the double play and two more runs crossed. The only hit of the rally until that time came when Robert Mantooth shot a single over the second base bag for two RBI's. By the time the inning had ended, Murray led 10-2. In the ninth, a walk and then a two-run shot by Bob Almon gave Brown its final two runs of the game. Pearson struck out seven batters in the contest, walked four and was charged with three earned runs. Murray banged out 12 hits, including three by Howland and two apiece by Wurth and Hughes. Perconte, Barrett, Mantooth, Derrington and Mike Cathey all had a hit apiece. The 'Breds will be at home today for a 1 p.m. twinbill with Purdue followed by a 3 p.m. single game Thursday and another doubleheader Friday.

TRIPPED UP—John Howland of Murray State is tripped at the plate by the Brown catcher who is covering. Howland, who had three hits in the contest, was safe. Watching is the slugging outfielder of the 'Breds, Rick Weisman.

Tiger Girls Tennis Team Opens Season

Tennis season opened Tuesday afternoon for the Murray High Girls as they took a 9-0 win at Paducah St. Mary. The Murray girls won each of the singles matches in straight sets and swept through the doubles, losing only one set. Jill Austin won the number one singles by defeating Jackie Remaud 6-0 and 6-1. In the number two singles, Kathy Outland, a student at Murray Middle School, defeated Paula Cuengros 6-1 and 6-2. Eighth-grader Mary Smock won in the number three singles as she easily defeated Denise Kelso 6-2 and 6-0. Tammy Boone had to go an extra game in the first set to defeat Lynn Bradley of St. Mary 7-5 but in the second set, Miss Boone won 6-2. Candy Jackson took the number five singles as she won 6-0 and 6-1 over Gail Cuengros while in the sixth position, Stacy Overby defeated Tammy Cooper 6-0 and 6-0. Smock and Outland combined to win in the number one doubles, winning the first set 6-4 and losing 1-6 in the second set. But in the third set, the two won 6-3 to take the match. In the number two doubles, Boone and Austin won 6-1 and 6-1 while in the third position,

Jackson and Overby won 6-0 and 6-2. The Murray girls will play again next Wednesday when they travel to Clarksville. Nine girls are on the team including the six who played yesterday and Debbie McIntosh, Mary Anne Littleton and Robyn Burke.

Track Meet

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue will play host to six other Indiana schools tonight in the annual running of the Purdue Invitational track meet at the Boilermakers' Lambert Fieldhouse. Joining Purdue in the meet will be Butler, DePauw, Indiana State, Manchester, Marion and Wabash. Purdue's Alex DiMarzio, last year's Big Ten outdoor hurdles champion, will be making his first appearance since undergoing surgery for cartilage damage to his knee suffered in football.

HE'D LIKE TO TAKE IT BACK—Dana Pearson, a freshman from Cobden, Ill., serves up a homerun pitch in the ninth inning to shortstop Bob Almon of Brown. Almon, who turned down a $100,000 offer of high school, slammed the ball over the right field fence for a two-run shot which accounted for half of Brown's runs as Murray won 10-4.

HUGGING THE LINE—David Hughes of Murray State watches as the ground ball he has just hit hugs the first base line. The ball, which hit fair in front of the plate, eventually rolled foul. Hughes had two hits in the 10-4 win over Brown.

Cinderella Braves Tie Up Series With Boston

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Some people would be satisfied with the improvement the Buffalo Braves have shown this season. They doubled their victory total in the regular season from 21 to 42, turned last season's National Basketball Association's Rookie of the Year Bob McAdoo into the NBA's leading scorer, and on and on.

But suddenly, the young Braves are throwing a scare into the Boston Celtics in their Eastern Conference semifinal playoff series. Buffalo's 115-105 triumph in Buffalo Tuesday night evened the series at one victory apiece, and the fourth-year club appears to be gaining confidence with each game.

The Celtics had defeated the Braves in five of their seven regular season games and in Saturday's opener in Boston.

In the other NBA playoffs, the Los Angeles Lakers trimmed the Milwaukee Bucks 98-96, and the Capital Bullets downed the New York Knicks 88-79.

There were no playoff games scheduled in the American Basketball Association.

"I think we can beat them when we play our game," said rookie guard Ernie DiGregorio, who had 18 points in a balanced Buffalo scoring attack. "The big thing is, we have to play defense."

McAdoo, who led the Braves with 23 points, doesn't seem worried about that. "It's the toughest defense we've played this year," he said.

The Celtics, led Tuesday night by Jo Jo White's 27 points, Don Nelson's 21 and John Havlicek's 20, have the extra game at home in the series.

Lakers 98, Bucks 96

Elmore Smith, traded earlier in the season from Buffalo to Los Angeles, scored 30 points and grabbed 17 rebounds to help Los Angeles trim Milwaukee and cut the Bucks' series lead to 2-1.

Smith outscored Milwaukee center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar by a point and collected two more rebounds in a game which saw a brief return to action by the Lakers injury-plagued star guard Jerry West, who finished with four points.

Bullets 88, Knicks 79

Capital took a 2-1 lead in their series with New York behind a 22-point performance by little Kevin Porter on the Knicks' home court.

In the other NBA playoff, the Chicago Bulls and Detroit Pistons resume their deadlocked Western Conference semifinal with Game Three at Chicago

Friday night.

In the American Basketball Association, the New York Nets take a 2-0 lead to Hampton, Va., for Thursday night's third game against the Squires and Kentucky leads Carolina 1-0 entering tonight's second game in the East Division series.

The Utah Stars own a 2-0 advantage while travelling to San Diego for Games Three and Four tonight and Thursday night against the Conquistadors and the Indiana Pacers-San Antonio Spurs series is one-all going into tonight's third game at San Antonio in the West Division semifinals.

Foreman Is Able To Get Away From Tax Problems

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Heavyweight champion George Foreman, who had several brushes with the law here during his youth, says his post-fight tax problems in Venezuela made him feel like a tramp and prisoner.

He returned home early today, six days later than he intended after being detained in Caracas, Venezuela, by a tax squabble which followed his victory over Ken Norton.

"I was gangstered," Foreman told a newsman on the plane en route from New York to Houston. "For a world heavyweight champion to be treated like a tramp isn't a good feeling. For the first time in my life, I felt like a prisoner."

Despite his long ordeal and apprehension about returning to visit his ailing mother, Foreman talked graciously with newsmen on his arrival here, although offered an option to leave by a side exit by an airlines employee.

Smiling and carrying a bouquet of multi-colored roses, Foreman revealed that maybe things are starting to come up roses outside the ring as well as in.

He had to pay $241,000 in taxes before he was allowed to leave Venezuela, but Don King, who co-promoted the March 26 fight, said he will reimburse Foreman for the taxes.

With that understanding, Foreman said the $16 million bout with Muhammad Ali in September in the African nation of Zaire was still on.

"There is an understanding, so it's my understanding that the fight will be held in Africa," he said. "I'd jump out of an airplane for $5 million and then fight five Muhammad Ali."

"Right now Africa seems more likely for the fight and that is more fitting. That way I can knock him all over the jungle."

Laker Baseball Team To Open Play Friday

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Can good defense be enough to overcome the lack of inexperience in the pitching department?

That is what Coach Denny Potts of Calloway County High School is wondering about the 1974 baseball Lakers.

Potts will find out Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. when the Lakers open their 15-game schedule at home with a single game with Farmington.

Gone from the mound corps is big Dan Thompson, who last year opened the season for the Lakers by pitching a 1-0 gem over Murray High.

And to replace him is going to be the most difficult task facing the team.

There is experience at every position and there are some good bats in the lineup and Potts is hoping for those elements to produce a winning season.

Last season, the Lakers played only six games because of the spring monsoons and finished with a 4-2 record.

Five people will be in the running for starters roles on the mound this season.

Mark Miller, who pitched in one game last year, is the "veteran." Joining him on the hill are Randy Shelton, Randy Conner, Joel Smith and freshman Tommy Chavis.

When he is not pitching, Miller will be holding down first base and the same with Conner at second.

Shelton will be at the short-stop position and he will be helped out by Danny Chadwick.

Veteran Rich Scarborough returns to the hot corner.

In the outfield, Craig Dowdy will be in left, David Thorn in center and Keith Wilkerson in right.

Behind the plate for the Lakers will be Greg Howard, who spent last season in the same position and also caught in the summer for the Murray American Legion.

Other members of the team include Larry Geib, Barry Joseph, Joe Futrell, Dickie Nesbitt, Lloyd McClure and Jewell Wilkins.

Met Machine To Face Tougher Road In '74

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

When the New York Mets were driving to the National League pennant last season, someone suggested to Wayne Garrett that "supernatural forces had gripped their vehicle and steered it toward the Promised Land."

"It certainly does seem that way," said the third baseman after a typical victory of lucky breaks and bounces.

The Mets' machine will have a tougher road in 1974, though. The Pittsburgh Pirates seem to have a faster, sleeker model. And, besides, if the Mets do happen by some "miracle" again to get by the Pirates in the NL East, there's always the "Big Red Machine" at Cincinnati.

With a bunch of expensive hitters, the Pirates have added some gold-plated pitchers and as a result, could make a monopoly of the East race.

Ken Brett and Jerry Reuss, a pair of sturdy left-handers, have been brought to Pittsburgh for virtually nothing—a second baseman the Pirates didn't need and a second-string catcher they hardly used.

With all their pitching, the Mets wouldn't be a bad long-shot bet for first, though. Tom Seaver heads a deep staff probably better than Pittsburgh's, but their hitting is nowhere near as good.

The St. Louis Cardinals traded away too much good pitching to be considered a threat to the Pirates, and the same could be said for the Montreal Expos, who gave up star relief pitcher Mike Marshall in an off-season deal.

The Chicago Cubs simply traded away too many veterans, pitchers and everyday players alike, to be considered serious pennant material. The Philadelphia Phillies hardly traded anybody, which is worse. They'll probably finish last again because of it.

In the West, it would appear to be the Reds, with those perennial all-stars Pete Rose, Johnny Bench and Tony Perez. If the Reds are challenged at all, it'll be by the Los Angeles Dodgers, a team of pitching depth that acquired more pitching ammunition in Marshall.

The San Francisco Giants have so much "hitting it hurts," but will be hurt themselves by inadequate pitching. The Houston Astros have been runners up with better teams. The Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres each have some fancy names, but aren't in this year's pennant picture.

Zaire To Be Sight For Ali-Foreman Title Bout

By NOEL HUGHES
AP Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — Zaire sounds an unlikely place for a world heavyweight title fight between George Foreman and Muhammad Ali. But a British company is so sure of success that it is ready to pump $3 million into it.

Hemdale Leisure Corp. says it has put up $1.5 million in front money to ensure the fight takes place next September.

A spokesman said the firm expects the promotion to cost it an additional $1.5 million to $2 million besides the front money.

Doubts have been cast on a world title fight in Africa. There are problems over television relay, hotels and press facilities. But if the fight comes off it could be the most lucrative sports spectacle in history.

The Hemdale group is active in movie production and distribution, music and gambling.

"We are aware of the technological problems," said Daly. "But we are confident they can be resolved."

The fight will be shown on closed-circuit television in the United States, Canada and Britain and on home television elsewhere, Daly said. It was expected the worldwide audience would be in excess of one billion viewers.

Daly expects the fight to take place Sept. 30. It is planned to stage it at 3 a.m. African time, or 10 p.m., EDT.

He said the fight would be held at the invitation of Zaire's president, Mobutu Sese Seko.

Estimates of the total revenues that could be generated by the fight range upwards from $20 million.

By comparison, January's "Fight of the Century" between Ali and Joe Frazier in New York's Madison Square Garden grossed around $16 million and netted an estimated $8 million.

Both Foreman and Ali "will receive a flat $5 million, with no percentages," Daly says.

Water Enforcement Division Prepares For Boating Season

FRANKFORT, Ky. —Two recent developments will enable Kentucky's water enforcement personnel to step up their activity during the upcoming boating season, said Doug Shoulders, administrator of the state Division of Water Enforcement in the Department of Transportation.

The 1974 General Assembly's passage of House Bill 390 gives officers in the Division of Highway Enforcement the authority to enforce state boating laws.

"This will give us 70 additional enforcement officers to police the Commonwealth's waterways during holidays and other peak activity periods," said Shoulders.

"Another recent development which will help," he said, "is the addition of 12 new patrol boats to our fleet."

Shoulders outlined some of the laws which the Division of Water Enforcement is responsible for enforcing and of which boat owners should be aware.

All motorboats primarily used in Kentucky must be registered and numbered in Kentucky. However, boats registered in other states may use Kentucky's waterways up to 60 days without re-registering. The registration certificate in either case must be on board at all times.

It is against Kentucky law to pollute its waters by any means, so litter bags should be kept on board and used.

House Bill 176, which was passed in the 1974 General Assembly, makes it illegal to operate a boat on Kentucky waters without a muffler to insure quietness of operation, except during authorized races, regattas or trial runs for same. This law should become effective by July of 1974.

The federal boating regulations, which became effective in October of 1973, require boats 16 feet in length and over to carry a wearable flotation device (life preserver) for each person on board.

The law also requires that at least one throwable device, such as a buoyant cushion or ring buoy, be on board.

Boats less than 16 feet in length, including all canoes and kayaks, are required only to have a personal flotation device (not necessarily wearable) on board for each passenger.

Shoulders advised boaters to closely inspect the seaworthiness of their boats and equipment before going out on the water. "Life preservers are especially susceptible to damage due to dry rotting during the winter, he noted.

Federal boating laws require that all personal flotation devices be in good, serviceable condition.

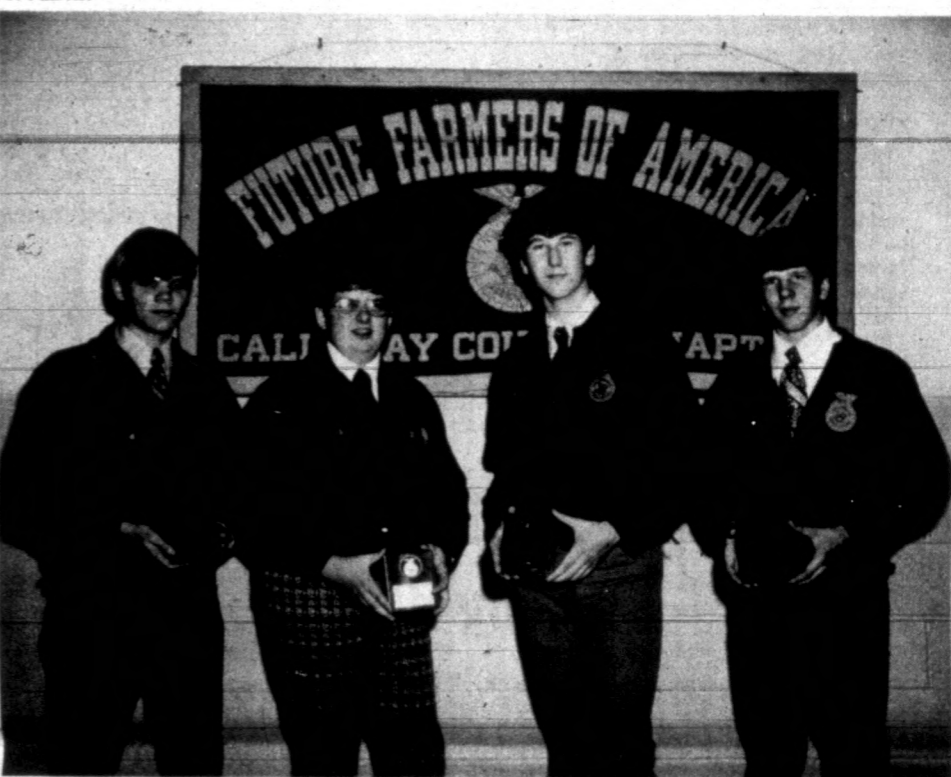

Other awards were made to winners of FFA speech events. Phil McCallon won the public speaking contest; Krit Stubblefield won the impromptu dairy speech contest; Mark Wilson won the impromptu beef speech contest; Don Nance won the impromptu hog speech contest; Leonard Stevens won the horticulture speaking contest and Don Green was the creed winner.

The dairy judging team and the tobacco judging team that both placed second in state competition were also recognized. Members of the dairy team were Larry Tucker, Krit Stubblefield and Steve McCuiston. Members of the tobacco team were Bill Ed Murdock who had the highest individual score, Donald and Ronald Armstrong and Phil McCallon.

The following chapter winners were also announced: corn, Mack Harris; hay, Anthony Webb; burley tobacco, KEYS KEEL, of the Jackson Purchase Production Credit Association, presented achievement awards to FFA members Doyle Webb, Gerald Stone, Steve McCuiston, and Larry Tucker at the recent FFA banquet.

Applicants Sought For Personnel

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Kentucky Department of Personnel has initiated a recruiting effort to attract applicants for clerical and secretarial positions in Kentucky-state government.

The department reports there are numerous job opportunities in Frankfort, Lexington and Louisville for stenographers, typists, keypunch operators and clerks.

The positions are covered by the state merit system and offer fringe benefits in addition to salaries based on applicants' qualifications and skills. Workers earn 12 vacation days and 12 sick leave days annually, receive free life and health insurance, participate in a retirement program and may participate in credit unions and educational programs.

Personnel recruiters are visiting high schools, vocational schools and business schools throughout the state. If enough applicants show an interest at a school, the department will administer merit system exams there.

Applicants will be counseled as to the positions for which they qualify, and competitive merit system processes, including written and skills tests, will determine an applicant's employability.

In addition to any special exams given at schools, the department offers exams in Frankfort Monday through Friday, except holidays, and once a month at 18 area test centers in the state.

For more information, contact the Division of Recruitment and Examinations, Kentucky Department of Personnel, Room 280, New Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Louisville Becomes A Ten-Day Festival During Kentucky Derby

The Kentucky Derby Festival, geared this year to the 100th running of America's most famous turf classic, is shaping up as a gigantic 10-day birthday party, with the whole world invited to Louisville.

Already Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband, Lord Snowdon, have accepted an invitation to attend this milestone event in the history of the Kentucky Derby, a race deliberately patterned after the famed English Derby.

It all means that the Derby Festival, which has been running like a thoroughbred that sets a new record every time out, is set to do it again. The birthday-party theme will be reflected in the two-hour Pegasus Parade, for instance, reports Festival President Samuel H. Klein, who is also board chairman of the Bank of Louisville. "The floats will concentrate on outstanding Derbies of the past and on important historical events of various years during the Derby's long history."

Louisville is definitely mint-julep country, and it holds its big Derby Festival when the magnolia blossoms perfume the air and redbud and dogwood are in full bloom. That makes a colorful setting for the festival package of events that range from the internationally known Louisville Orchestra in pop concert (with fireworks, yet) to country and western music and everything in between; from bicycle races downtown to the Derby Festival Basketball Classic at the Fair & Exposition Center; from a Smithsonian traveling exhibit of charming primitive paintings of Kentucky scenes to an exhibit of Kentucky tourist attractions, arts and crafts; from the posh Derby Festival Coronation Ball, where the Festival Queen receives her glittering crown, to square dancing in the streets.

That's just a sampling of the something-doing-every-minute kind of fun on the Festival agenda, and it doesn't even include the big dramatic events that have catapulted the fun-and-rollic week into national consciousness.

For instance, there's The Great Balloon Race that's set to soar off at 9 a.m. Saturday, April 27, from a hilltop in Louisville's Iroquois Park. Sponsored by the Yellow Cab Company and first held last year, this exciting "hare-and-hounds" race of the colorful, hot-air-filled giant silk bags was a smash hit, indicative of the rising public interest in ballooning as a sport. There were 10 entries in 1973, and 12 are expected this year.

In addition to balloons, the Louisville sky will also present the spectacle of a Goodyear blimp cruising effortlessly along, displaying lighted notices at night of what's coming up next day on the Festival calendar.

The Great Steamboat Race between the sternwheelers Belle of Louisville and the big Cincinnati-based Delta Queen will be the 11th annual recreation of an authentic old-time riverboat race, pitting the last two passenger-carrying steamers on the Ohio against each other. The Belle, which lost last year's duel after four successive wins, will be gamely trying to recover the gilded antlers, symbol of river championship, by outmaneuvering the bigger, more powerful, but more ponderous Queen. The exciting event is set to begin at 5 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, from the wharf at the foot of Fourth Street, preceded by a show of water acrobatics.

The Pegasus Parade, two hours of elaborate floats, 40 marching bands, drill teams, equestrian, clowns, specialty performers and beauty queens, is all set to step off at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 2. The parade will have a historical theme this year, tied to the 100th running of the Derby, and will depict historical events, past Derby winners, scenes from Louisville's past and the like. One of the most unusual new entries is the Schlitz 40-Horse Hitch, a team of 40 Belgian draft horses pulling an exact five-ton reproduction of an old-time circus wagon.

That historic theme will be reflected in an important and unusual art exhibit from the Smithsonian Institute that will be on display all through the Derby Festival and beyond. The delightful and colorful "primitive" paintings by the late Mary Bruce Sharon, largely scenes from her Kentucky childhood in the 1880s, will be shown in the lobby of First National Bank of Louisville.

One of the most charming is her Grandma-Moses-like recollection of her "First Visit to the Kentucky Derby" in 1886, when she and her family sallied forth to Churchill Downs in a horse-drawn tally-ho. The Derby, like the artist, was then still in its early youth but was already a big event.

Since the Derby is perhaps America's greatest sporting event, the Derby Festival mixes sports into its 10-day run.

There's the Kentucky Derby of Cycling, for instance, in which the top amateur champs of bicycle racing from all over the U.S. will compete for awards in the 30-mile "Run for the Roses" over a course laid out in downtown city streets. It's the second stop in the Miller High Life Classic series of national bicycle races, and it's also just one of four cycling events set for Saturday, April 27, from 1 to 4 p.m.

And there's the Derby Festival Basketball Classic, to be held in huge Freedom Hall, pitting the top high-school all-stars from Kentucky and Indiana against the top all-stars from the rest of the nation. This night game will present a unique opportunity to see likely future college champs and pros in action. Last year the Kentucky-Indiana squad pulled an upset and won 106 to 101 over the U.S. team.

Back in May, 1875, when the first Kentucky Derby was run on the first day that Churchill Downs opened for business, a Louisville newspaper declared that "The race week should be a festive week."

The editor wouldn't believe how festive it has become.

CUTE is the acronym for Cooperative Urban Teacher Education. Bobby Malone, Don Shelton and Wayne Williams of the Department of Educational Services represented MSU.

The CUTE program is conducted in the inner city - not on the college campus. It is sponsored by the Mid-Continent Regional Educational Laboratory and Office of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

In the CUTE program participating student teachers leave their schools for a 16-week experience in the environment which they must learn to understand and are assigned to inner city schools. In the first eight week segment the student teacher learns the neighborhood and families of their students. Each student spends one weekend during his training "living in" with a disadvantaged family. The second eight week segment the actual classroom work takes place. In CUTE there is an attempt to merge the educational, mental health, and sociological components of student teaching by using three professionals working closely with a specific group of student teachers for the 16-week assignment.

Two student teachers from MSU are enrolled in the CUTE program at Louisville, Kentucky during the spring semester, Eugenia Black and Daniel Madison.

Touch Of College Now At Eddyville Prison

FRANKFORT, Ky.—At least one Western Kentucky campus still seems to be ignoring the current "streaking" craze. In fact, the all-male population there engage in few frivolities normally associated with college life.

The Kentucky State Penitentiary at Eddyville just doesn't allow its inmates that kind of freedom of expression—even its 25 inmate students enrolled in a new experimental college educational program recently started under the supervision of Dr. B. L. Jorgensen, a faculty member from Western Kentucky University (WKU).

Jorgensen commutes once a week to Eddyville where he teaches an introductory, college-credit course in sociology for inmates. Started last month, the class is scheduled to run 13 weeks.

Barry Bannister, principal of Eddyville's academic department, said future development of the penitentiary's college curriculum hinges on how well inmates react to the program during the current semester. "If most of the men get through the sociology course, it will demonstrate that the Eddyville penitentiary is ready for a larger college curriculum," said Bannister. If inmate reaction proves successful, he said that a full-time college instructor probably will be added to the penitentiary's regular academic training staff.

Sociology is the first college-credit course offered at Eddyville since WKU cut off its extension program there several years ago. At that time, there was not enough inmate demand for college-level work.

Corrections Education Director Arthur Reynolds said that "some giant steps have been taken at Eddyville as well as other state correctional facilities in the area of college course work."

Besides Eddyville, Reynolds said college-credit courses are currently being offered inmates at the Frenchburg Correctional Facility in Menifee County, Blackburn Correctional Complex near Lexington and the State Reformatory at LaGrange. In all, 68 inmates in the state correctional system currently are enrolled in college classes.

New Navigation Charts Available

Revised navigation charts on both the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers can now be obtained at the Nashville Office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, according to Col. William F. Brandes, District Engineer.

The Cumberland River is charted from Smithland, Kentucky, to Celina, Tennessee. The cost of the folio is $2. In the folio on the Tennessee River, it is charted from Paducah, Kentucky, to Knoxville, Tennessee, and is priced at $2.50. No tax or postage is required.

Folios can be purchased from the Map and Chart Section, Room 302, Federal Building, 701 Broadway, Nashville, Tennessee, or ordered by writing to the District Engineer, Map and Chart Section, P.O. Box-1070, Nashville, Tennessee 37202. Check or money order should be made payable to the Treasurer of the United States. Col. Brandes stated that regulations do not permit the issuance of charts prior to the receipt of remittance.

SMALLER CLASSES URGED

TORONTO (AP)—Metro Toronto School Board is hoping for a smaller pupil-teacher ratio in elementary and secondary schools.

Top priority is to be given to improving the ratio in the board's 1974 school budget. A report is being compiled on class size and the quality of education for Education Minister Thomas Wells.

Add A Bit Of Dash To Your Recipes... Use Olives

The Asket Basket
By Sally DuFord

Got a question or a comment about homemaking? Address it to "The Asket Basket," in care of Mrs. Sally DuFord, P.O. Box 1203, Paris.

Dear Sally,

Still enjoy the Asket Basket. If any one has a MARSHMALLOW FROSTING, I would like them to share it with us readers.

Mrs. Pauline Hall, Como

Dear Sally,

Do any of your readers have the following recipes?

STRAWBERRY CAKE OLD FASHIONED JAM CAKE
CARAMEL PIE VANILLA WAFER CAKE

Thank you Mrs. Paul Bradberry, Paris

By SALLY DUFORD
Noah's dove returning an olive twig to the Ark did a lot to make olives famous. But their ebony hue and gentle nutty flavor made them a taste favorite down through the ages. Olive trees live longer than most other fruit trees. Some of the trees brought by the Spaniards to California are still alive. There are olive trees in Palestine which probably date back to the beginning of the Christian era.

There are basically two types of olives: ripe or black olives and green olives—stuffed or plain. Canned ripe olives are prepared from partially mature olives that have been specially treated to remove the bitterness and cured in a salt brine. They are oxidized to produce the black color.

Green olives have not been oxidized and range from yellow-green to green. Because most of them are imported from Spain (where hand stuffing is inexpensive) stuffed green olives are often called "Spanish Olives".

Their eye catching dark accent, their meaty texture and their versatility make olives a great asset in today's food. These recipes are a sampling of ways to use olives in your everyday meals.

TAMALE PIE

1 C. Cornmeal
1 1/2 tsp. salt
3 C. water
1/2 C. chopped onions
1/2 C. chopped green pepper
1 lb. ground beef
2 Tbs. fat if necessary
1 1/2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 tsp. cumin (optional)
1 C. pitted black olives

Mix cornmeal, salt and half of the water. Heat the remaining water to boiling in a heavy pot.

Slowly stir the cornmeal mixture into the boiling water. Cook, stirring until mixture thickens. Cover and cook slowly for 30 minutes. Stir occasionally. Cook onion, green pepper and ground beef until done, use the fat if necessary.

Add tomatoes, chili powder and cumin, heat thoroughly.

Grease a 9 inch square baking pan or a 2 quart casserole. Line the bottom with a thin layer of cooked cornmeal. Add the meat mixture and sprinkle on the olives. Spoon the remaining cornmeal mixture on top. Bake at 400 degrees for 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

SALADS

For a new taste in crisp green salads, sprinkle with sliced or chopped ripe olives before or after dressing it. For a dark note, add sliced ripe olives to a creamy dressing before serving with a fruit or a molded salad. You can add new interest to a slice of iceberg lettuce by sprinkling it with sliced olives before adding a dressing.

CHICKEN OLIVE NEWBURG

1/2 C. ripe olives
3 Tbs. flour
1 tsp. salt
dash pepper
2 C. milk
2 tsp. lemon juice

2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
3 C. diced cooked chicken
Chinese noodles or toast

Cut olives into large pieces. Melt butter in a saucepan then stir in flour, salt and pepper. Slowly add milk stirring until mixture comes to a boil and is thickened. Stir in lemon juice. Stir a little hot mixture into the egg yolks, then combine with remaining hot mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Gently mix in chicken and olives. Heat through but do not boil. Serve over Chinese noodles or hot toast. Serves 5 to 6.

1/4 C. finely chopped celery
Cut eggs in half lengthwise; remove yolks. Mash yolks and add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Fill whites with the yolk mixture. Chill. (Any filling left over may be used as a sandwich filling.)

RIPE OLIVE SANDWICH SPREAD

1/4 C. ripe olives
1/2 C. chopped green peppers
1-3 oz. pkg. cream cheese
2 Tbs. french dressing
Garlic powder to taste, if desired

Combine all ingredients and mix well. If used for open faced sandwiches, garnish with sliced ripe olives.
