State Highway Dept. Approves Jordan Road

Improvement of the Fulton-Jordan road has been approved by the Kentucky State Highway Department, and immediate steps are being taken in placing a gravel surface on this section of highway, according to K. P. Dalton, chairman of the road committee of the Fulton Chamber of Commerce.

On July 10 Mr. Dalton wrote to Governor Keen Johnson, explaining the need of repairing and maintaining the Fulton-Jordan road. Judge Claude L. Walker of Hickman has agreed that gravel for this project will be furnished by Fulton county, and the state will grade and repair a few bridges. Governor Johnson referred the letter from Dalton to J. Lyter Donaldson, commissioner of Kentucky Highways, who answered as follows:

"Your letter of the 10th instant, addressed to the Governor, concerning the State Line road has been referred to me by the Governor, and I am pleased to advise that after having this subject thoroughly investigated, I have authorized and directed the Maintenance Division on this section of the highway at the earliest date possible, and also make necessary repairs and replacements to the drainage structures on said road, and an official order has been prepared and signed by me to this effect. Therefore, you may expect this improvement in the immediate future."

Boaz Tops Peeples In Mayor's Race Here

Last Saturday marked the hottest primary election of a mayor and city councilmen that Fulton has witnessed in many years. T. T. Boaz, grocer, was successful in winning over R. C. Peeples, laundryman, by a margin of 73 votes. The race was so close that neither side ventured to predict a victory until the final vote was counted. Boaz polled 524 votes to Peeples' 446.

T. T. Boaz

446, with the vote close in every precinct except Fulton 3A, the home precinct of Mr. Boaz, who has served 16 years on the city council. Mr. Peeples has served on the council one term. Following is a complete tabulation of the votes:

Police Department Acts On "Gambling"

Early this week local operators of slot machines and tip jars felt the authority of the law, as orders were issued to clamp down on such devices and "gambling" inside the city of Fulton. K. P. Dalton, as chief of police, took the necessary action to check such operations, as the result of public demand, it is alleged.

Pressure was brought to bear to bring about better control of such activities prior to the primary election, when a mayor and six city councilmen were chosen. There is a definite trend toward more rigid enforcement of the law in respect to alleged "gambling" by the use of various devices, and the crusade is said to have the support of church leaders in the community.

There has been considerable effort made by temperance organization in this section to arouse the public sentiment against the open saloon, and it is rumored by some that a petition may be circulated to bring about a local option vote. However, this is merely rumor, and so far no definite steps are known to have been made along this line.

AUGUST PRIMARY HELD SATURDAY

In the Democratic primary held in this county Saturday Harry Lee Waterfield, candidate for reelection to the state House of Representatives from Fulton and Hickman counties, defeated James H. Warren, his only opponent, by a good majority, tho Warren had 2100 votes in this county, compared to 1857 for Waterfield. Waterfield's margin came through his large vote in Hickman county. This will be his third term.

Homer Roberts was elected County Judge, polling 1541 votes. Claude L. Walker, candidate for reelection, was next with 1217. C. P. Mabry received 943 and M. E. (Mill) Shaw had 402 votes. Roberts received a good vote through the entire county but received a land slide majority in this end of the county.

G. J. (Gip) McDade, candidate for jailer, was given a good majority in the Fulton precincts but was defeated in the county by Will T. Shanklin, who was re-elected. McDade received 785 votes in Fulton, to 172 for Shanklin. Shanklin, however, polled 1,409 votes in the county and Almus G. Wynn was second with 1,259. McDade received 1,063, Roper 249, and Darnall 93. The race between Shanklin and Wynn was close and the Sassafraz Ridge vote gave Shanklin a late lead which Wynn never overcame.

Holland received 3229 votes and Guy Barnett, his only opponent, received 563.

ABOUT ICELAND

Few Americans had any interest in the island of Iceland until recently, when it became virtually an outpost of the United States. Its importance as a base for naval and airplane operations is very great in the present war, in spite of its high latitude.

Iceland lies between Greenland and Scotland, just south of the Arctic Circle, and is 500 miles from northern Scotland. It has an area of nearly 40,000 square miles, but only about 7,000 square miles are habitable, and in 1939 the population was 118,888. Reykjavik, the capital, has a population of 37,366.

The climate is quite variable, but not as cold as its latitude would indicate, the mean temperature of Reykjavik being 53 in summer and 29 in winter, with an annual mean of 39 degrees. This may be compared with an annual mean of about 49 degrees in Chicago.

In 1939 the Germans sought permission to establish bases for an air service between Germany and Iceland, but at that time Prime Minister Jonasson said no foreign company would be granted any air concession. He at first protested against the establishment of a military base in Iceland by Britain, but later agreed, and it is estimated that about 60,000 British troops, with accompanying naval and air units, are on the island.

At the suggestion of Britain, Premier Jonasson recently invited the United States to replace a portion of the British, and upon this invitation President Roosevelt ordered American military forces to Iceland. It is agreed that there will be no interference with the island's government, and that the Americans will be withdrawn at the end of the war.

CROP PRICE INCREASE

An increased demand for oils and fats, coupled with decreased imports, has contributed to the striking rise in soybean prices which has occurred in recent months, according to press dispatches from Chicago, where market quotations have been the highest in four years. This comparatively new cash crop, whose production was almost negligible up to about a dozen years ago, is now grown on more than 10 million acres with every prospect of a continued and rapid increase. The largest acreage is found in Illinois, but production is large in all states of the commercial corn belt.

A bushel of soybeans yields approximately eight and one-half pounds of oil and 48.5 pounds of soybean oil meal, the meal being one of the most valuable protein ingredients of commercial feeds for all kinds of livestock and poultry. Due to the rapidly growing demand for feeding purposes, the output of this meal has increased from 21,000 tons in 1929 to its present volume of around a million tons annually.

The amazing growth in popularity of this product is attributed to its palatability, digestibility and high nutritional value for hogs, dairy cattle, sheep and poultry, as well as to its comparatively low costs.

Many farmers, particularly in the middle West, now consider soybeans as one of their most dependable and profitable cash crops, and a stabilizing factor for their farm program.

BOY LEADS NBC SYMPHONY

Youngest conductor to lead a first rank symphony orchestra in the United States is 11-year-old Loren Maazel, who amazed New York critics and music-lovers recently when he directed two concerts by the NBC Symphony Orchestra.

Time magazine credited him with "real musicianship and understanding," noting that "his beat is precise and his gestures graceful." Among the numbers of his first program were Wagner's Rienzi Overture and Mendelssohn's Italian Symphony, which he conducted from memory. He is said to know 22 symphonic works by heart, and he has the rare gift of absolute pitch.

Young Maazel was born in France to American parents, his father being a singing teacher, but late removed to Los Angeles, where he studied piano and violin. Four years ago he began the study of conducting under Vladimir Kakelekoff, assistant conductor of the Pittsburgh Symphony, who is still his teacher.

Maazel has appeared as guest conductor with seven symphony orchestras, but his engagement with the NBC Symphony, developed into one of the world's finest by the great Toscanini, is an unprecedented triumph for one so young.

In addition to his incredible musical gifts, the boy conductor appears to possess becoming modesty and common sense. He recently said, "I still have a lot of hard work ahead of me; I am constantly studying."

MONEY TALKS

Small business men all over the country are wondering what their chances are of surviving the registration essential in all-out war effort. In Great Britain the small retailers were the first to feel the full impact of the war economy. More than 20,000 were forced to close down within two months after England entered the war, and another 20,000 were forced to close early in 1940. Many of these small shopkeepers were handling non-essentials, both domestic and imported, and were compelled to close after their stocks were used up. Their owners have gone to work in the defense industries or in the armed forces.

You may be sure our government is not going to put out of business the smaller firms if it can help it. The fact that it has insisted that defense orders be allotted to small manufacturers is an indication of its desire to keep small industry alive. Another reason for this policy is that modern war makes decentralization rather than concentration of industry the better and safer policy.

But with essential materials becoming scarcer and with production of consumer goods declining, retailers will find it increasingly difficult to stock many items. An excellent illustration of this is the proposed 50% cut in production of electric refrigerators and washing machines. You can readily see the effect this will have on retailers handling these commodities.

Recently in Chicago the National Association of Retail Grocers at their annual convention devoted a special session to a consideration of what may happen to them if the U. S. actually enters the war. Whether we enter the war or not, we may be assured that retailers will find it more difficult to secure the goods they desire. And that, consequently, means the consumer may expect to do without many commodities to which he has been accustomed.

AN OLD MONOPOLY

One of the smaller islands of the Netherlands East Indies is Amboyna, which for more than two centuries had a world monopoly in the production of cloves, for which several battles were fought. First settled by the Portuguese about 1509, the island was taken in 1605 by the Dutch, who also destroyed an English settlement in the Amboyna massacre of 1623.

While the Portuguese held the colony, cloves were grown on several islands in the vicinity, but the Dutch destroyed all the clove-bearing shrubs except those on Amboyna, and made the monopoly more complete by selling cloves only at prices set by the government.

About 1770 the French succeeded in getting hold of some of the shrubs and began clove raising on a small scale on Mauritius and Reunion in the Indian Ocean. Later they were transported to the West Indies and to Zanzibar on the African coast, the latter becoming an important producer by the middle of the last century.

In 1872 a great storm destroyed most of the trees on Zanzibar, and the thrifty Dutch, who had stored large quantities of cloves for many years, reaped a rich harvest when the world had to come to Amboyna again for its almost exclusive supply.

Besides cloves, Amboyna produces other spices, also a large variety of tropical products, which make it one of the richest islands of its size in the world. But it no longer has the complete clove monopoly it once enjoyed.

Conscience makes cowards of us all.

Blessed is the peacemaker, not the conqueror.

OUR LOSS ...THE NATION'S GAIN

EACH one of the many men who are daily stepping out of the dress of the telephone worker into the uniform of our nation's defenders, is a distinct loss to the telephone organization, but a valuable asset to our nation's defense.

They are men already trained, self-disciplined and imbued with the true spirit of service which develops steadiness and self-reliance under the strain of emergencies. Bell Telephone workers acquire these characteristics through training, and the experience gained in maintaining the Bell System's ideals of service.

While these telephone men are performing their duties to the nation, they and their families feel secure in the knowledge that when their country no longer needs them in its armed services there is a place awaiting them with the telephone company.

At home are 25,000 telephone workers, who, though not wearing the uniforms of our nation's defenders, are working harmoniously to expand and safeguard the lines of telephone communication so vital to the nation's defense program.

Clearance USED CARS

When We Urge You To Buy Used Cars Now It's Because You Will Save Money!

It isn't scare psychology when we urge you to "Buy Used Cars Now!" Chances are we could make more money on them by holding them . . . because prices are sure to go UP. Why? Just consider the fact that prices on all kinds of auto-building materials are going UP . . . that Federal taxes are going UP . . . and that defense shortages are forcing manufacturers to cut production for the coming season. Higher prices . . . ### SHARP TOOLS IN THE HOUSE

Practically everywhere it is regarded as bad luck to carry sharp tools into the house. People who laugh at superstition are quite as persistent in preventing this as those who are believers in luck. I have heard many people object when an ax or a hoe or a scythe was brought in, saying that the careless boy or man would be injured the furniture with it, knock over the lamp, or something. I wonder just how much the woman who said this really was giving the excuse she meant. Some of the people whom I have known said right out that it was bad luck and let it go at that. This sort did not stop to give reasons; the belief in the thing carried its own defense in their way of thinking.

In spite of this superstition I have known other people who defied neighborhood tradition and allowed hoes and scythes and axes to be brought into the house whenever it was necessary. On very cold winter days it was criminal to make the men folks sharpen the ax in the raw air; I have seen many an ax sharpened by the open fireplace, with never a suggestion of bad luck. One of the habits of some of the Fidelity people was to put the broadax under the bed, ostensibly to keep the children from feeling with it and cutting themselves. I have often asked myself whether some good-luck may not have been connected with this, since some of the old-time Negroes put an ax or a plowpoint under the bed of a woman in labor.

A knife as a gift is still regarded as a bit daring, even in some highly respectable places. When my fiancée gave me a knife for Christmas a year before we married, some people who saw the knife or knew of its history warned me of the disaster that awaited me. Just whether any of the bad luck falls on the giver I do not know. Whatever the bad luck was, I must say it is a long time working and could be overcome by some later misdeed, such as cutting out a shirt on Friday and not being able to finish it before the next week.

A scion of a rather famous family in American history was quite ill a years ago. A relative of mine, who had to go the house to help wait on the sick man stumbled over something stuck up in the floor near the open door. When the lamp was brought she discovered that a butcher knife had been placed there by man's wife to keep bad luck away. I suppose that evil spirits fear knives as they used to fear any kind of metal. So far as I can now remember, the sick man got well and lived a long time afterwards; he may be alive today, and, by the merest chance, may read this. I sincerely hope that he will not use any sharp, edged tools on me because I cannot share his faith in the good old family butcher knife.

THE MONTHLY STORY MAGAZINE

In this essay I am not attempting to advertise any pulp magazine now in existence; hence I shall not call names, though I am sure that many of the readers of this column can supply them instantly, for pulp magazines had a great vogue thirty years ago. I sometimes wonder whether the general reader has advanced as much as we like to think; when I see the trashy things exposed for sale in any news stand, I believe that many people would be better off with the cheap little harmless magazine, fifty cents a year or less, which brought the outside world to many a rural home.

Continued stories were their stock in trade. We readers thrived on this sort. When we had got our hero into a very tight place, we discovered that it would be a whole month before we could find out what happened. We discussed the possibilities with the neighbors and watched the days go by until the next issue appeared. Sometimes we got so interested in the story that we could not wait until our turn came to read silently but got some member of the family to read aloud the thrilling adventures of the sentimental characters. Fortunately, most of us had colds practically all the time and were not obvious when we blew our noses fiercely during the reading of the story.

We regularly took two of those Augusta, Maine, pulp magazines, which came, accommodatingly, with a small interval between the two. In this fashion we could all get our reading done up in time for they carry on a good dozen exciting stories that ran indefinitely. I recall that I read St. Elmo in this fashion, in twenty-two monthly installments. I nearly wore my nervous system threadbare with the monthly tension. One installment left us right in the midst of a "waiting-at-the-church" episode; a month later we discovered that the girl left rudely by her betrayer had a hemorrhage and died in the next installment.

Not all the stories were serials, but most of them were tearful and pious. Such villains as they contained! And such heroes and heroines! We would get positively wrathful (we probably excused ourselves by calling it "righteous indignation") at the villain and wish we could kill him. We shed many a sweet tear at the plight of the furtive, helpless little heroine; some of the pages of the pulp magazine were rather pucky after a whole family had cried over the same sad story.

But there were other things besides fiction, though that was the most important. One magazine ran a column for young people, presided over by a cripple of some pretensions to being a poet. His advice to the rather wooden correspondents was practically always sensible and straight-forward. Many a country home held as a treasure the autographed volume of his verse. And some of us saw our names in print when we sent in our artless and painfully written letters to his department.

Women and girls got ideas for clothes from the patterns advertised, but, of course, these were useless pages to us boys. There were recipes, but again they seemed silly; pies and cakes and such-like truck just grew. Our mothers did not need a lot of foolish directions about taking a spoonful of this or that; quantity was what we wanted, whether it was teacakes or hot biscuits.

I wonder what the farm women are reading today.

How often have you read this in the paper, "DEAD ON ARRIVAL?" That can be avoided. I wrote some rather sharp comments on the Fourth of July behavior of some of our automobile drivers, but I still feel justified for making them. It is difficult to call some of our drivers "dumbbells," but in reality that is just exactly the term they deserve for the bad habits they exhibit when driving an automobile. Probably my comments were too severe; however, I hope that the readers who believe they were will write me.

Sometimes it takes a shock to bring people to their senses about their responsibility when they sit behind the wheel.

"It's smart to be careful!" More have repented of speech than silence. If you be not ill, be not ill-like. What is learned in the cradle lasts till the grave.

U. S. READY TO LEASE PART OF REELFOOT LAKE

Preservation of Reelfoot Lake as one of the nation's finest fishing and duck hunting spots was assured this week when word reached Nashville that the federal government is practically ready to sign an agreement to lease about one-third of the lake and spend at least $500,000 to improve it.

Only one or two minor details are still to be worked out, but it is expected this will be done when Governor Cooper meets H. C. Chaney, attorney for the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, in Washington.

The governor is in Washington and it is believed he will bring back the contract for approval of the commission.

Basin for the agreement was recently reached when Governor Cooper and the Reelfoot Lake Commission conferred with representatives of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Union City.

Under the agreement practically one-third of the Reelfoot area, including one-fifth of the lake's water surface will be leased to the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service which will spend more than $500,000 to control erosion, eliminate sawgrass, dig channels, build a fish ladder at the spillway, control the level of the lake and make other improvements to keep the lake from filling up with silt and sawgrass.

Governor Cooper and J. Charles Poe, Commissioner of Conservation, have hailed the agreement by which the lake will be saved from becoming a swamp as one of the outstanding conservation projects in the history of Tennessee.

The federal government will lease only one-third of the area, it will improve the whole lake. Fishing will be allowed on the entire lake in the future, subject to state laws, but duck hunting will only be permitted by the state. The portion leased to the government will be converted into a waterfowl sanctuary, where no hunting will be allowed, but this will greatly improve hunting on the remainder of the lake.

False friends are worse than open enemies.

A fault once denied is twice committed.

Grow angry slowly; there's plenty of time.

He who swells in prosperity will shrink in adversity.

Be ever vigilant, but never suspicious.

WAR PRICES HELP FARMERS GET "HOUSE IN ORDER"

Increased prices of many farm commodities will enable Tennessee farmers to make reductions in their debts, make needed improvements, and perhaps put a little cash in the bank for a rainy day, Frank Joyce, assistant farm management specialist with U-T Agricultural Extension Service, says.

If farm people generally can think of the relatively good prices of the next few years and take advantage of them, and at the same time think of the hard times to follow the war, when they are about to spend their hard-earned cash, they should be able to increase their security and well-being, Joyce says.

During this emergency period, farmers will be encouraged to expand the production of certain farm products for national defense. In making this expansion in production, the difficulty of adjusting back to normal after the war period is over should be kept in mind. Careful planning can prevent many of the woes which result from the usual runaway expansion. Particular care should be used if expansion involves large amounts of cash or going heavily into debt. More and more fixing of prices and control of supply by government decree can be expected as time passes.

The prospect of any material increase in the foreign demand for U. S. farm products is not in the picture at present, Joyce says. The lend-lease program is expected to bring about a considerable increase in exports of hog products, dairy and poultry products, and some specialty crops; cotton, tobacco, and wheat, still have no foreign market of any consequence.

A tattler is worse than a thief.

Smith Cafe has made steady progress since it was taken over by L. L. Moss, October 6, 1937. Mr. Moss came here from Jackson, Tenn., where he had been connected with the Fox Cafe, with thirteen years of experience in the restaurant business. He purchased the local cafe from the widow of the late L. J. Greene, who bought the business from the late Albert Smith.

The first improvement to be made was the removal of the old wooden tables to install modern, lake-o-lite tables and counters. Then came new, upholstered booths designed in beautiful red and cream pattern. From time to time other changes for the better have been made by Mr. Moss.

Ward Refrigeration Service of Fulton installed refrigeration units for the front counters and the large and spacious refrigerated box where fresh meats are kept, ready for preparation by the chef to be served sizzling hot to patrons. When Mr. Moss took over the Top Hat Cafe at Union City, Maurice Ward installed a handsome McCray chill bar there.

A beautiful, new front was built to the building with appearance. The color scheme is composed of harmonizing stalling by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. Other improvements to the exterior of the building which gives it a modernistic appearance.

In the kitchen a hardwood floor of Bruce's hardwood Pierce-Cequin Lumber Co., which firm also furnished other making other improvements. A beautiful tile floor adds building, with fluorescent lights shedding "daylight glow" a wide variety of selections is provided by a handsome Machine supplied by Harold Midyett of Union City.

Provision has been made for counter, table and booth for special banquets or parties when the occasion demands comfortable—winter or summer—a Carrier Air-Conditioning System automatically regulating the temperature inside the building, installed by Emmett Hannan, of the Ed D. Hannan Supply.

An abundance of chinaware makes serving of special individualistic. J. C. Calhoun of Evansville, Ind., supplies restaurant equipment, such as slicing machines, potato peelers and washers.

The Krey Packing Company furnishes U. S. government Smith Cafe, including those famous "Sizzling" Steaks served to patrons alike. Mr. Moss advertises "steaks belong to me."

Getting the Railroad Ready

Nothing is surer than that the railroads will have their hands full this fall to handle BOTH the upturn in civilian traffic AND the added defense load. You may be interested in what the Illinois Central is doing to prepare for it.

We have added 5,377 new freight cars in 1940-41, and 2,400 more will be delivered before the end of the year.

Our stepped-up repair program has produced a record low of only 1.8 per cent of freight cars out of service.

Locomotives have been overhauled and improved, with greater coal and water capacities, increased speed and tractive effort.

Running tracks have new rail, new ties, new ballast; sidings have been lengthened; new yard and storage tracks are being provided, plus added trackage to serve defense plants and army posts.

To get the utmost out of what we have calls for HEADS UP railroading. We pledge ourselves to conserve materials—and cars—and time in every way we can.

Shippers and receivers of freight can assist greatly by loading cars to capacity, loading and unloading cars promptly and moving this summer whatever they can—such as coal—to lighten the demand later on.

With the help of our patrons, ON WHOM WE SHALL GREATLY DEPEND, we hope to carry through—to the benefit of our country's needs and of our railroad's reputation.

INCREASED PENALTY ON EXCESS COTTON TO BE IN EFFECT

Penalties on 1941 cotton marketed in excess of the farm marketing quota will be considerably higher than last year, H. M. Pewitt, chairman of the county AAA committee, pointed out this week.

The penalty on 1941 cotton under the present law likely will be between 6 1-2 and 7 cents a pound, as compared with 2 cents a pound in 1938 and 3 cents in the 1939 and 1940 crops. There will be no increases, however, in the total amount of penalties due on carry-over penalty cotton marketed in excess of the quota in 1941.

In order to simplify the collection of penalties, the new and higher rate will be collected on all cotton marketed in excess of the farm quota. In the case of carry-over penalty cotton, however, the higher rate will be applied only to that portion of the carry-over which will yield the same amount of penalty as all of the carry-over cotton would have yielded under the former penalty rates. At the same time, the remainder of the carry-over will become penalty-free.

Should the penalty rate be set at 77 cents, here is what would occur in the case of a farmer who has 700 pounds of carry-over penalty cotton from the 1940 crop. Had he marketed this excess in 1940, he would have had to pay a penalty of 3 cents a pound, or a total of $21. This year, however, this carry-over would be converted into 400 pounds of penalty-free cotton, with the remaining 300 pounds being subject to the new 7-cent penalty. If he should market this 300 pounds in excess of his quota this year, he would have to pay 7 cents times 300, or a total of $21, the same total amount he would have paid last year.

The higher penalties will be in effect this year because of recently enacted legislation which established loan rates for the major commodities at 85 per cent of the parity prices and also provides that penalties on excess marketing be 50 per cent of the basic loan rate.

The basic loan rate will be set at 85 per cent of the parity price as of the beginning of the marketing year, which, in the case of cotton, is August 1.

For example, if the August 1 cotton parity price should be the same as at present, or 16.12 cents a pound, the basic loan rate would be 85 per cent of this, or $13.70. In this case, the penalty on cotton marketed in excess of the farm quota would be 6.8 cents a pound.

Mr. Pewitt said the 85 per cent loan will be available only to AAA cooperators. Non-cooperators can obtain loans at a rate 60 per cent of that offered to cooperators, and then only on that portion of their 1941 cotton crop which is in excess of the farm quota and subject to penalty if marketed. Excess cotton which is placed under loan by the non-cooperator remains subject to the penalty when marketed in excess of the quota.
