Fourteen coed semifinalists will be vying for the title when the curtain goes up on the ninth annual Miss Murray State University Scholarship Pageant on the campus Saturday evening, March 13.

When selected in the competition to begin at 7:30 p.m. in Lovett Auditorium, Miss Murray State University will also win the right to wear the crown into the Miss Kentucky Pageant in Louisville next summer. Semifinalists are:

They were selected by judges from among 38 hopefuls last fall in a preliminary judging based on talent, interviews, and stage appearance. The winner will compete in the state pageant from where that winner will advance to the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N. J., next fall.

Nancy Spann, a Murray junior, is serving as the pageant chairperson in behalf of the sponsoring Student Activities Board of the Student Government Association. The theme of the production this year is "In the

Easy Passage For Budget Predicted

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - The administration's $5.7 billion budget, which zipped through the Kentucky House 98-0, is on its way to the state Senate for a predictably easy passage.

The vote in the house Friday came after less than 30 minutes of discussion most of it praise from Democrats.

Even Republicans spoke favorably of Gov. Julian Carroll's 1976-78 budget proposals, and offered no amendments to change the bill.

House Minority Leader Harold DeMarcus, R-Stanford, said he had learned that trying to amend the budget is futile.

"Once I tried to amend it," DeMarcus recalled. "Morgan (Rep. Fred Morgan, D-Paducah, who was then majority leader) told me to sit down and shut up - the steam roller was going to roll right over me." Rep. Joe Clarke, D-Danville, chairman of the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, commented executive budget "that received the scrutiny this one did." ## Century Club Scholarship Enables Dale Mathis To Pursue The Ministry

Dale Mathis, 18, wants to become a Methodist minister, and, thanks to a Murray State University Alumni Association Century Club scholarship awarded him for his freshman year, he is getting the opportunity to work toward that objective.

Dale graduated second in a class of 177 last spring at Calloway County High School with an academic mark of 97.62 of a possible 100. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hale Mathis, and lives with his parents and a brother, Chris, 15, on a 60-acre farm east of Murray on High-94. Unris is a sophomore at Calloway County High.

Majoring in English and history at Murray State, Dale has been interested in the ministry several years. An active member of the Palestine Methodist Church in the eastern part of the county, he frequently speaks before the congregation and is a substitute teacher of a young people's Sunday School class.

For the past nine years, Dale's father has been employed by the Calloway County Road Department. His mother. the former Jerldne Dick of the Hardin community, is employed in the cafeteria of the East Elementary

"The Century Club scholarship certainly has meant the opportunity for me to go to school," he says. "I doubt it I could have started had it not been for it since my father has been in ill health and my brother and I have been helping more and more on the farm.

"A lot of people around Murray don't realize what educational opportunities are available to them right here at home," he went on. "We can go all the way through elementary, junior high and high school and still have a fine University right here at home to attend if our financial resources are limited."

Dale's scholarship is one of 42 made possible last year by contributions from members of the Century Club, an organization composed of alumni, public officials, business leaders and individuals interested in and concerned about higher education and Murray State University.

The county-wide Century Clubs have been formed across West Kentucky. Each year their members make contributions ranging from $100 to $1,000 to provide the $500 scholarships for promising high school seniors wishing to continue their education at Murray State. No funds are carried over from one year to the next. All are awarded the year they are contributed.

John Edd Walker, manager of the West Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperative at Mayfield, is the general chairman of this year's Century Club

Jack Gardner, retired assistant director of personnel services at the University, is the chairman of the Calloway County chapter, which last year contributed $10,600 to the program. The Calloway County club has 73 members, which includes a net gain of 40 contributors in the past two years when Guy Billington was the county chairman.

The 1976 fund campaign currently is underway with a new group of scholarships recipients scheduled to be selected this spring from the top graduating high school seniors in the

Sen. John Berry, D-New Castle, said that he's "against the idea of government becoming the answer to everything." He said providing free books to all pupils benefits the rich as well as the poor and the money earmarked for the program could be spent more wisely.

Instead, free textbooks should be provided only to those pupils whose parents can't buy them, just as free lunches are given to indigent children,

Sen. Tom Ward, D-Versailles, said 'this is not a welfare program" and said it was the first step in carrying out Gov. Julian Carroll's pledge to provide free books to all pupils by the end of his education, not because they can't afford books Under the bill, not all textbooks for high school pupils would be free. But it would relieve the pupils from buying social studies and language arts books, beginning in the fall. Lackey said Kentucky currently is enjoying a revenue surplus because of a booming coal industry and as a result has the money to spend on the textbook program. But he warned that may not always be the case. Senate President Pro-Tem Joe

Final Audubon Series Lecture Slated Tuesday At University

"Treasure of East Africa" is the title of the film-lecture to be presented by Bower E. Rudrud at Murray State University Tuesday, March 2, as the last of a series of five programs by the National Audubon Society on the campus this year.

Open to the public at no admission charge, the program at 7 p. m. in the auditorium of the University School is sponsored by the Department of Biological Sciences.

A full length color motion picture (approximately 90 minutes), the Audubon Wildlife Film is a skillfully photographed portrait of East Africa. showing scenes that range from the modern capital city of Nairobi, Kenya, to the most primitive of spear-carrying Masai tribesmen who are just minutes away from the beautiful city with its new college, lovely boulevards, and flowering trees.

A variety of fascinating wildlife is shown as the camera captures a panorama of East Africa - from the shadow of Mt. Kilimanjaro, from a flight over the Great Rift Valley, Lake Victoria, and the Ruwenzori Mountains to Uganda, from the famous Kazinga channel connecting Lake Edward with Lake George, from the Lake Manyara area in the rain forest of Tanzania, from the top of the Ngorongoro volcanic crater, one of the world's largest, and from the Serengeti Plains.

Filmed by Rudrud and his wife Alice. the motion picture follows the animals as they roam their environments. Among those shown in the spectacular wildlife shots are the Thomson gazelle, elephant, vervet monkey, Cape buffalo, giraffe, hippo, kob, impala, bushbuck, zebra, wildebeest, dik-dik, rhino, and an array of birds that includes the most beautiful of all, the bee eater, along with the inevitable carnivores, the lion, cheetah, and leopard.

Rudrud, an ardent naturalist and environmentalist, is a professional photographer who holds the coveted Master of Photography degree awarded by the Professional Photographers of America.

The North Dakotan has also made several photographic expeditions to the Caribbean and to Midway Island in the

Tributes To Be Paid To Dr. Carr, MSU's First President, March 15

Some of the events of the life and administration of the first president of Murray State University will be highlighted Monday, March 15, when the University observes its first Commemoration Day.

preparation for a career as a Methodist minister.

Tributes will be paid, both at rededication ceremonies for the school's newly-remodeled health building and a Commemoration Day dinner immediately following, to Dr. John Wesley Carr, who lived to be more than 100 years of age before his death February 18, 1960.

Three of Dr. Carr's grandchildren are expected to be on the campus to participate in the activities, which University officials hope will develop into a traditional mid-winter observance for the campus and the community. Miss Ruth Holton of Tulsa, Okla., will be present, as will Frank C. Carr, Barrington, Ill., and Charles Carr, participate.

participating in the dinner program, they also will take part in the unveiling of an oil painting of the first president in the health building, which bears his name, during the rededication program, which begins at 6 p.m.

FUTURE MINISTER: Dale Mathis, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hale Mathis, Highway 94 east, accepts his spring semester scholarship check from Jack Gardner, chairman of the Alumni Association's Calloway County Century Club, while others of the 42 recipients in 1975 look on. Dale, a graduate of

Calloway County High School, is majoring in English and history in

Tours of the remodeled health building will be conducted from 4 to 6 p.m. by members of Sigma Delta, an honorary physical education fraternity at the University. Father Martin Mattingly, pastor of St. Leo's Church in Murray and an avid sports enthusiast, will give the dedicatory prayer, and Dr. Constantine W. Curris, president of the University, will make the dedicatory

Miss Holton, the only daughter of Dr. Carr and Mrs. Rachel Ashcraft Carr and a school teacher for 45 years, the last 36 at Central High School in Tulsa, also is expected to discuss her grandfather's life and some of his philosophy at the Commemoration Daydinner following the rededication.

It will begin at 6:45 p.m. in the ballroom of the Student Union Building, and a large crowd of alumni, former students and faculty and friends of the Carr family in the community are expected. Tickets to the dinner are $4.00 each, and reservations should be made by calling 762-2798 at the University. Dr. Carr was 64 years of age when he became president of the University when it was first founded in 1923. Many of its "firsts" occurred during the first of his two administrations. He also was president from 1933 until 1936.

It was under his administration that the first student body was assembled, the first faculty employed, the library established, the orchestra, chorus, football, baseball, and basketball programs started.

He also employed the first athletic director, offered the first teaching certificates, and directed the establishment of the departments of science, history, geography, education, English, music and others as well as the college yearbook.

Dr. Carr, known as the "Grand Old Man of Murray," also served as dean during the administration of Dr. Rainey T. Wells, founder and second president. When he was 74 years of age, he accepted the joint duties of president and dean after Dr. Wells resigned in 1933.

In 1953, at the age of 94, he "took his vacation" and resided there-after in New York where his sons had their homes. His 87 years in the classroom had been "a glorious adventure," he wrote shortly before his death at the age of 100.

U.S. Could Be Wasting Billions

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - The United States may be wasting billions of dollars a year by failing to concentrate medical and health research where the problems are, Walter McNerney, president of the Blue Cross Association, McNerney said it is increasingly evident that the betterment of national health and well being is to be found in a study of environment, life-style and culture, from which many modern ailments arise.

Nevertheless, he said, the often uncoordinated efforts of the vast health care industry seem to focus on research areas that offer relatively minor possibilities of improvement, and on development of exotic equipment and

Referring to the costs involved, he said: "We're doing a good job of doing some old things, but it won't change even if we do an excellent job."

Traditional approaches to delivering health care leave the country "in a bind between cost and payoff," he said. Proof that new approaches must be tried, he said, is evidence that increased expenditures no longer produce improved results.

McNerney said that health care now costs $120 billion a year, but that "we could double that and not make a major impact on some of the key health indices" by continuing existing methods. Instead, he said, a holistic approach must be attempted, that is, a coor-dinated attack on the problem rather than the current fragmented emphasis on only various aspects of the problem.

Studies that offer the greatest possibilities for raising the general level of health, he said, are indisputably in the areas of environment, life-style and culture.

Blue Cross, he said, already has a contract from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to examine its records in search of clues to occupational causes of disease But, he said, hospitals must cooperate by beginning to ask more searching questions about possible occupational

In the United States, occupational hazards alone have been estimated by the National Safety Council to cost $15 billion in 1974, a figure even the council concedes "is likely to be a gross un derstatement."

As an indication of what he termed a 'disjunction between the problem and the resources," McNerney noted that the Department of HEW spends $200 million on biochemical cancer research and under $10 million on possible en vironmental causes, where study is more likely to produce results.

Who is to blame for the misplaced emphasis that McNerney maintains is widespread? "We're all to blame," he said. "It is only recently that we began

The new, holistic approach, especially as it relates to environment, life-style and culture, will take time to develop, he conceded. "The health establishment needs a shakeup," he

FTC Conducting Investigation Of 72-Million Member Blue Shield

By DAVE RILEY

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Trade Commission is investigating the huge Blue Shield insurance system to letermine if physician control of the 72-million member program stifles competition and contributes to the care costs for all Americans. Blue Shield now provides physician-care insurance for 40 per cent of the nation's population and pays out over ees, the FTC said.

FTC officials gave no details of the planned investigation, except to say they would study control of Blue Shield by physicians and its impact on competition and delivery of dramatic increase in health healthcare services to all Americans. But it was learned that the Shield varies from plan to plan but physicians involved in administration of Blue Shield basically are determining the amounts that Blue Shield will pay them for services performed for subscribers. A three-month investigation last year by The Associated Press concluded that Blue Shield's practices encourage physicians to raise their bills.

The national Blue Shield association requires local boards of directors to have a majority of "public" members representing subscribers instead of doctors. But The AP investigation found that many of these "public" members are chosen by doctors and hospitals rather than by that doctors' fees have risen 85 per cent in the past 10 years, compared to a 68 per cent increase in the over-all cost of living. The AP investigation concluded that the soaring medical costs resulted in part from the failure of Blue Shield to impose cost controls on physicians.

It has been indicated the FTC will attempt in its probe to determine if doctors involved with Blue Shield are in a conflict-of-interest situation in setting the formulas that establish the fees they and other doctors are to be paid for their services.

The FTC said, however, that the investigation of Blue Shield does not imply that there are any violations of the law and the probe could end without any action being taken by the government.

Bass fishing has busted out with a bang! Several local fishermen have taken some tremendous strings of bass up to eight pounds. The warm rain coupled with the bright sunshine during the past week has brought the water temperature up to 57 degrees. So lots of bass have moved up on stumps and rocky points to forage for bait fish. Armed with casting or spinning tackle, bass enthusiasts have used small crank type lures to entice some real lunkers from Cypress Bay and Blood River.

It has been reported that crawfish colored lures worked real slow parallel to the bank have produced the best results. Baits such as the Wee R, Little Scooper, or 200 series bomber have caught fish.

When using the smaller type baits, many fishermen use lighter line than has traditionally been used in this area. ## Kentucky Is Host For Conference Frankfort, Ky., February 24-Next week Kentucky plays host to fisheries administrators and biologists from four states as the 1976 Tri-State Fisheries Conconvenes ference Covington.

The conference, slated for March 1-3, will be opened by Commissioner Arnold L. Mitchell of the Kentucky of Fish and Department Resources. Wildlife Discussions and other fisheries-related addresses will follow.

The annual conference attracts Fisheries personnel from Kentucky, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia. The Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission (ORSANCO), U.S. Forest Service, Army Corps of Engineers and several universities are also expected to be represented.

Highlighting the meet will be panel discussions on fishery agency organization and operation, black bass management, and fishery management on the Ohio River. Charles Walker of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is scheduled to discuss PCB and pesticide contaminants in fish from the Ohio River drainage. PCB, a hydrocarbon used as insulation for transformers and capacitors, is a growing source of fish contamination and is thought to interfere with eproduction.

The discussion of Ohio River fish management comes as an improvement in water quality and the creation of embayments in tributaries along the river have vastly improved sports fishing over the past decade. When the temperature drops, you can be sure you're going to use more kilowatthours to keep your house warm electrically. Even if you've set your thermostat at the recommended 68 degrees and left it there, colder weather means your heating system has to work harder to maintain that temperature.

Electric heat represents the biggest single bite of each dollar you pay for electricity. And your electric bill is based on the kilowatthours you've used.

So during a cold spell expect to use more kilowatthours to heat your home. Then expect to pay more because you've used more. It's just a fact of life. West Ky. Rural Electric Cooperative Corporation
