How to Avoid Telephone Service Interruption

Whenever you are having work done on your premises, avoid possible interruption of your telephone service by summoning workmen against disturbing telephone wires. In most homes, the telephone "ground wire" is connected to a water pipe. If this is a removal of the house, you must first have the telephone disconnected. If you have a telephone, you must have the wires disconnected. This is important to prevent damage to your telephone or other wires. In many cases, if the wires are not disconnected, the workmen may unknowingly drive nails through wires, or break the wires with a hammer. Care should be taken not to damage any phone wires or other wires which may be behind the wall or involved. If you are not sure whether wires are behind the wall or involved, call and one of our skilled workmen will help you of course.
