THE LISTENING POST

Well, in my years in Fulton I have seen many different carloads of freight pass through the local yards, but during recent days I have been seeing a new sort—a sort that gives me a sort of tight and drawnup feeling when I realize what is in those box cars. I do not know that I am violating any censorship, for everybody in town sees what I am talking about and all know what is in those cars in a general way. I am talking about high explosives which are moving from some of the shell loading plants in this section to some unnamed and secret destination. I take it that some of this stuff is bound for all the fighting fronts, although it is likely that some may go to the West coast and some to the various defended places on the East coast. At a guess, and knowing nothing of the procedure, I would guess that the bulk of what we see here is bound for tide water somewhere and from there will cross some of the seas to become the weapons of embattled American troops.

Almost every day I see some sign of the new shell loading plant at Milan—at least, I guess this plant is involved. I see dozens of box cars marked explosives bound in that general direction and have been told that these cars carry the powder which is used in loading those shells. This powder comes from powder making plants in other sections, and when the powder and shells are put together at Milan we have a bit of a sudden death all ready for enemies of our Nation. When we happen to see forty or fifty box cars loaded with these deadly things we begin to get a small idea of what modern war is. Those shells cost a lot of money and millions of them must be won and fired before this war is won. No thought is given to the matter of waste, although any person knows that many are wasted. But when an army is fighting it must have plenty of shells for every need, for an army which runs out of ammunition ceases to exist in short order.

I have not the remotest idea of how many shells can be loaded in an ordinary box car, but I can fully realize that when dozens of these cars roll along the railroad, there is enough sudden death there to blast a town or city out of existence. Whenever I happen to stop at a railroad crossing to wait for a train to pass and suddenly realize that all this high explosive is rattling and bumping along within fifteen or twenty feet I begin to sit very lightly on the car seat, and now and then I catch myself holding my breath. There is always a sense of relief when the train passes on and is gone. I know that the stuff is carefully packed and the chances of an accident are slight—but just the same the mere presence of all that explosive in my neighborhood is enough to make me virtually walk as though treading on eggs.

I have been wondering, too, if Big Sam Steele, Fulton yardmaster shares my feelings in this matter. I have noticed many times that he takes personal charge of the switching of these cars and trains. Several times recently I have seen him actively at work with the train crews, and he certainly keeps that big stick of his working overtime as long as the train is being moved around. Somehow that big stick gives me a lot of confidence. Big Sam is a big lad, towering upwards into the air nearly seven feet and his girth is not slight. Merely looking at his big frame gives me a

Realignment Of Top Officers Made In WPB, As Nelson Says First Phase Of Task Completed

Big Industries Have Been Converted To War Work

50 MEN FORGET DRAFT CARDS AND GO TO JAIL

Kansas City. —Men who go strolling without their draft registration cards can bank on it—there's a good chance their destination may be the city jail. Fifty of them spent the weekend holiday locked up until police were able to check records to determine if they really were registered.

Most of them were taking casual strolls when police stopped them, explained Richard Foster, supervisor of the police department's internal safety unit. One man walked into the police station to file a complaint. He was asked the routine question, but couldn't produce a card. He joined the others.

DRAFT BOARD GRANTS INGERSOLL REHEARING

Editor Accuses Officials Of Prejudice Against PM

New York. —Ralph M. Ingersoll, publisher-editor of the newspaper appeared before his draft board for a rehearing on his 1-A classification Tuesday night—a few hours after he declared in an open letter that the board wanted him drafted "because it doesn't like PM."

The board said Ingersoll, whom PM's owner, Marshall Field, has called indispensable to the paper's continuance, would be notified of its ruling within 24 hours.

If the board stands by its decision, either Field or Ingersoll may appeal within 10 days. The matter finally may be placed before President Roosevelt.

Ingersoll was to have been inducted as a private June 24, but the induction was postponed to permit the board to reconsider upon representations made by Field who appealed directly to Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director.

Most of the PM's page one headlines Tuesday were devoted to Ingersoll's letter and the following three pages contained the text with an explanation by the editor who asserted in an editorial preface that he was ready to join the Army or continue in his job.

"What I am kicking about," he added, "is the decision being made by a draft board which has betrayed prejudice in my case—apparently because it doesn't like PM."

Now is the time to subscribe for the Leader.

Washington. —Donald M. Nelson announced realignment of the top directing officials of the War Production Board today and happily reported that the first, difficult phase of the production task had been completed.

The objective of converting big industries from the manufacture of automobiles and other civilian items to the making of planes and other military essentials has been accomplished, he said.

Now, he said, a new phase lies ahead, one of controlling production by directing the flow of the limited supply of raw materials into the making of the things which the Army and Navy consider urgent, with a simultaneous regard for producing, too, the things the civilian economy needs.

First consideration will be given of course, to the requirements of the fighting forces, he added, but it may become necessary to ask that they reexamine their schedules in some instances in the light of shortages of raw or other materials.

To supervise the new production phase, Nelson created four new offices between himself and the actual operating committees, to handle details of administration which he has attended to personally in the past. Thus he will be left free to decide matters of policy, visit key production areas, and possibly make a trip to England.

He named William L. Batt, vice chairman of the board to serve as his assistant and deputy, and to help him in the determination of policies and the direction of operations. Batt had been serving as chairman of the committee on requirements.

He also created a new post, vice chairman on program determination, to direct the already functioning divisions dealing with that subject. To the job he named James S. Knowlson, formerly director of industry operations.

SHOOTING OF AIR RIFLES, GUNS, ETC. IS FORBIDDEN HERE

There is a City Ordinance stating that air rifles, shotguns or rifles shall not be shot within the city limits. The police Department warns today that persons guilty of violating this ordinance will be brought into City Court and fined. In the case of children disobeying this ordinance their parents will be held responsible.

INFANT DIES AT HAWKS CLINIC YESTERDAY

Little Patricia Ann Newson, 4-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Drewery Newson of near Haws, Tenn., died last night at the Haws clinic, following a short illness.

Scotch Lad, Used To Bombs In Native Land, Fears Coney Island

New York. —All the hair-raising adventures young Hugh Bright experienced during bombing raids on his native Glasgow were as nothing compared to the terrors he underwent on a pleasure trip to Coney Island.

For while his three fellow British "blitz scouts" took the beach resort by storm yesterday, thrilling to the parachute jump and other attractions, Hugh blanched on one occasion and blushed on another.

At home Hugh's exceptional and courageous service as a stretcher-bearer won him a tour of the United States and Canada with the other British scout heroes—nicknamed "blitz scouts" because of their bravery.

But at Coney, Hugh didn't quite make the grade, and it was all because of his kilt.

British House Told Publicity Missions To U. S. Do Harm

London. —The House of Commons cheered today as Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, declared that "a high-powered publicity mission instructed to force Britain down the throats of the American people" would do more harm than good, and no more British lecturers would be sent to the United States because their efforts already had turned out that way.

Bracken spoke in reply to criticism of Britain's propaganda effort from both right and left.

Responding to complaints that he had sent "socialists" to propagandize in the United States, Bracken said he had laid down an "absolute rule" that no more lecturers be sent.

"They did so much more harm than any possible good that I thought they should stay home," he declared.

He added that a prominent American had estimated that less than 8 per cent of the American population was irreconcilably anti-British and "could only be cured by the undertaker."

Bracken disclosed also that he had created a political warfare executive to co-ordinate the work of many diverse propaganda agencies.

He said Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden formulated the policy and he himself administered it, and "we have always been in complete agreement."

With some critics charging inefficiency and others alleging Leftist tendencies in British propaganda services, Parliamentary Secretary Ernest Thurtle disclosed that Britain would spend about $84,400,000 on propaganda at home and abroad during the current fiscal year, an increase of $9,740,000 over last year.

Of the Information Ministry's budget $18,000,000 was spent on publicity services. Thurtle said, with more than half of this going for overseas propaganda.

The secretary said postal and telegraph censorship, for which $12,000,000 was being spent annually was now closely co-ordinated with that of the United States.

P-39'S AS TOUGH AS THEIR PILOTS ARNOLD SAYS

Buffalo, N. Y. —Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Force chief, advised Bell Aircraft Corporation employees today the P-39 (Airacobra) fighter planes they make "are as tough as our American pilots who fly them."

"General MacArthur reports that Lieut. Paul G. Brown attacked eight Jap Zero fighters single-handed in his P-39. As he roared down on them, the leading edge of his left wing smashed the tail of a Zero. The Jap plane tumbled out of control and crashed, but the P-39 was only dented.

"You keep making planes like that and our fliers will show the Axis what Uncle Sam means when he says, 'we'll fight'."

NEW ENGINE MADE FOR U-BOAT WAR

Washington. —Foreshadowing an early start of a new and mighty phase of antisubmarine warfare in American waters, the Navy announced Tuesday the invention of a lightweight, highspeed Diesel engine made especially for use in subchasers and already in mass production.

The new power plant, along with a new variable pitch propeller, was understood to be ready for installation in quantities of small craft destined soon to join the fight against the U-boats, and authorities declared that these would be craft of superior performance.

"This is the best engine any sub-chaser ever had," one expert declared.

Developed as the result of more than 20 years' experimentation undertaken after the last war, the new engine has four banks of four cylinders each, centered around a vertical crankshaft. Because of its unusual shape it has come to be known to the Navy as "the Pancake."

Built as a unit with the engine is a new type of reversible propeller which eliminates the need for complicated, heavy reverse gears and thereby further reduces the weight of a subchaser's machinery and increases its capacity for fuel and ammunition.

Craft equipped with these new power plants, it was said, have greater cruising radius, speed and maneuverability than those propelled by standard equipment. The Navy asserted the engine was believed the lightest ocean-duty engine in the world and it occupied about "one third the space of the most successful previous Diesel engines of the same horsepower." Exact specifications and performance figures were kept secret.

Now is the time to renew your subscription to the Leader.

Lexington, Ky. —The Truman committee of the United States Senate launched an investigation here today of circumstances surrounding construction of Senator A. B. (Happy) Chandler's swimming pool and the group's chief investigator announced a report of its findings would be made before the August 1 primary.

The investigator, Matthew J. Connelly, beginning his inquiry, said that should apparent offenses be disclosed, the information would be referred either to the Department of Justice or the War Production Board.

Connelly conferred here for a half hour with John Young Brown, Chandler's opponent for the Democratic senatorial nomination, who charged WPB regulations were violated in construction of the pool in the back yard of Chandler's home at Versailles.

Following the conference, Brown said he submitted what factual information he had about the pool, a picture of it and newspaper clippings about it to the federal investigator.

The pool was given to Kentucky's junior Senator by Ben Collins, wealthy Louisville contractor, who last year gave a similar pool to Lieut. Gov. Rhodes K. Myers of Bowling Green.

Before leaving Lexington for Versailles to view the pool, Connelly told newsmen that the Truman committee's chief interest in the inquiry was to determine whether undue influence was being exerted in awarding war contracts.

Connelly said his investigation also was designed to determine whether government restrictions on non-essential civilian construction were violated in constructing the pool.

Brown asserted it was built in May after stocks of steel, brass and rubber were "frozen" and could not be obtained without a permit and private construction was limited to $500.

Saying he expected to complete his inquiry by Monday and submit his findings to the Truman war-efforts investigating committee, Connelly expressed intention of conferring at Louisville with Collins.

Meanwhile at Washington a War Production Board spokesman said the WPB would investigate the construction of a swimming pool for Senator Chandler "if any circumstances are presented to show priorities orders were violated."

New Road Restrictions Studied By Many State Road Officials

Chicago. —Administrative details for handling proposed asphalt and tar road surfacing projects under restrictions imposed last week were worked out by highway department representatives from Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Michigan in a meeting here today with J. T. Voshell, district engineer for the U. S. Public Roads Administration.

Road surfacing and repairing projects must have the approval of the Public Roads Administration which can be obtained only by showing the projects are essential to the war effort, Voshell said.

Application for private drives must be cleared directly through the office of the Petroleum Coordinator for War, who is responsible for administration of the order freeing all stocks of bituminous road materials.

SPORT TALK

Jack Bushart, president of the Country Club, made three of the women players extremely happy for a few minutes the other day. The story well illustrates Buck's helpful spirit and also the happiness which comes to every golfer when a shot appears to be good. Three of the women, Mary Howard, Virginia Rogers and Gladys Moore, were playing the long Number Three fairway. On this hole the second shot is more or less blind. The green can be seen all right; but between the ball and the green is a mighty ditch, which falls off steeply from the upper level of the fairway. From long experience I have learned that if one merely thinks the second shot has cleared the ditch the ball will always be in the ditch. One must KNOW that the ball went over to really clear the ditch. Likewise, if other players happen to be in the ditch or near it, they cannot be seen by the person taking a second shot on this hole—unless the first shot is a mighty wallop of 250 yards or more.

The three girls had fair drives, but the second shot was a blind one for all. They cut loose and sent the ball spinning over the abyss. Virginia believed hers had gone over, the others had doubts, and so they walked on to the edge of the cliff and the ditch. On the bank stood Buck carrying on a conversation with Harley Dunn, the groundskeeper. The girls asked if he had seen the balls come over and he said quite innocently: "I didn't see any, but it seems that I heard some of them hit around here." So they began looking and quickly found three balls, well spaced out, and resting in the fairway over the ditch. All three felt that surge of happiness which comes when a shot, through bad, turns out well, and so they went on. Virginia, who passed closest to Buck finally joined the other day and she was immensely amused over something.

Another Year Counted Out!

The month of July marks our anniversary for it was 34 years ago this month that the Browder Milling Company came into existence. While this firm did not "grow-up" and flourish overnight, we are proud of our record of service in this community. It is gratifying to look back over 34 years of service wherein we have enjoyed the confidence and good will of a majority of the people.

So on the brink of a new year in business, we believe it fitting to look beyond the uncertainty which war brings and find time to say THANK YOU for your loyalty during these years. In the months that lie ahead may we continue to merit your confidence.

BROWDER MILLING CO.

She finally broke down and confessed. "Buck could not keep his secret," she said. "All three of the balls were in the ditch, and he moved them out and placed them for us." As a matter of fact, the ladies have no penalty when they go into the ditch on second shots, and all they really gained was that if they had found the balls they would have played from their own side of the ditch.

Frank Carr, one of the steadiest players in the club, had an eight on a par five hole in Sunday's tournament, and when the scorekeeper was putting down this big fat eight on the card he was struck by the fact that Frank does not have many figures of that sort. A five is more his style, and not long ago he carded an eagle three on Number One. So the scorekeeper called Frank's attention to the matter. "Do you want a recount on this, or do you have anything to say before sentence is passed on you?" was the question. Frank considered the matter judiciously and finally said, "No, I have nothing to say. That is one time when words really speak louder than words."

A former Fulton boy and his charming wife have been playing the course during the past few days. W. M. Butt, Jr., reared here, but more recently of Louisville, is preparing to join the Army and will leave Friday for his new duties. Taking a week off, he and his wife, the former Ruth Sanger of Hickman, have played several days during the week. W. R. says he can still make 47, which is about as good as he does on his best days, but appeared to be having a fine time. Many old-time friends of the family have been glad to welcome the couple during the week.

CANNED GOODS HIKE ISN'T YET EFFECTIVE

Atlanta. —Oscar R. Strauss, Jr., regional O. P. A. administrator, said prices on stocks of canned fruits now on the market must not be raised above the original ceiling. Strauss' statement was issued to clarify the situation regarding commodities on which the first punchuring of the March-level price ceilings will go into effect later. He emphasized that the new formula for figuring maximum prices, expected to be increased 15 per cent and more, applies only to the 1942 pack, which has not yet reached store shelves.

DIAMOND SALE 'PLOT' TRIAL IS POSTPONED

New York. —A crowded court calendar forced postponement of July 13 of the trial of Werner von Clemm and his company, the Pioneer Import Corporation.

Von Clemm and the corporation are accused of attempting to unload on the American market several millions dollars worth of diamonds looted from Holland and Belgium by the invading German armies. Money from their sale allegedly was to be used for Axis propaganda.

HE ADMITS HE 'DDOD IT'

Dallas, Texas. —Alfred Anderson twice wrote his Minneapolis draft board telling them of his change in address.

The next thing he knew he wound up in the Dallas jail for failure to keep his board posted concerning his whereabouts. His protests led to a search of the dead letter office where authorities found the letters —both mailed without stamps. "Gosh," explained Anderson when released, "I thought because it was government business I didn't need to use any."

WIRE-TRAILING ROCKETS OF BRITISH FOIL PLANES

London. —Wire-trailing rockets were disclosed today as one of Britain's newest weapons against aerial raiders. The weapons, used to protect merchant ships, was described as an apparatus which shoots a projectile that opens into a parachute from which wires dangle. The rocket, fired as planes attack, often force them to veer off or risk entanglement in the wires.

SIR WALTER RIDES AGAIN —THIS TIME IT'S HOSE

Tacoma, Wash. —Chivalry bloomed when Lloyd Wright slipped and fell while walking on a downtown street. In falling, he unwittingly struck a woman shopper, knocking her down and causing her to tear a silk stocking. Did Wright brush his clothes and walk away? No—he took the woman to a nearby store and bought her a new pair of silk stockings.

POCKETBOOK LOST IN PUBLIC STATION

Portland, Maine. —Peter Pompeo lost his pocketbook containing $95, but at least he picked a good place. Discovering his loss, Pompeo was puzzled over where to start looking when police notified him the pocketbook had been found on the floor of the police station, which he had visited that morning.

NEW INVENTIONS' VALUE IN WAR IS EMPHASIZED

Charlottesville, Va. —In war the getting there first with the newest is as great a problem with production and military action as getting there first with the most. Watson Davis, director of Science Service,

MAN IS POPULATION OR ARIZONA TOWN

Meteor City, Ariz. —"Meteor City, Population 1," says the sign beside U. S. Highway 66.

The figure checks exactly with the fact. Jack Newsum is the population. He always had a desire, he declared, to live in a city, so started his own. It's a desert service station and trading post between Flagstaff and Winslow on the transcontinental route across Northern Arizona.

The State Highway Department made it official by putting up the sign.
