Fulton Bulldogs To Play Union City Friday Night

CHESTER BRUNSON

Chester Brunson, senior at Union City High, weighs 170 pounds, 5 feet, 10 inches, plays either strong side end or tackle. He is a good defensive player and a good blocker.

With two victories to their credit this season the Fulton Bulldogs journey to Union City Friday night to meet the Tornado in their first home game. The Union City team is fairly strong and their passing attack is fair, according to Coach Billy Barnes, who says, "We're looking forward to as tough a tougher game with Fulton as we had with Mayfield. I believe Fulton has one of their best teams this year. The competition between these two teams should be exceedingly thrilling with action promised in every play."

Fulton Is Eliminated From Playoff Series

The Fulton Tigers were eliminated from the Kitty League playoff series when the Hopkinsville Hoppers defeated them 7 to 2 here Thursday night of last week. Each team had previously won two games. The Tigers grouped three hits to score two runs in the second inning and after that they were not able to hit in any pinch. Lake pitched for Fulton until the seventh inning, when he was relieved by Burgess.

The Hoppers played a steady game, both at bat and in the field. Wilburn, manager, had four hits and drove in four runs.

Score by innings: R H E
Hopkinsville 202 100 002—7 14 0

An old time fiddler's contest will be held at 7:30 p. m.

HOME TOWN THOUGHTS

One reason why some people are disappointed because their home town does not make faster progress, is that they hamper the home town by buying goods away from home.

The so-called "forgotten man" is not the only forgotten thing. Many people forget stores capable of giving fine service, because they are not well advertised.

The horses do not pull the load by kicking, nor do the motors pull the car by stalling. Men and women, as well as animals and machines, have to keep pulling and pushing, to get the home town over the road.

NOTICE TAXPAYERS

I will be at the City National Bank in Fulton on Tuesday, September 30, for the purpose of collecting State and County Taxes. Those who have not paid their taxes should see me while here, and save a trip to Hickman.

YMBC ELECTS NEW OFFICERS

The Young Men's Business Club met Tuesday night at the Rainbow Room in its regular business meeting at which time the semi-annual election of officers was held. A large crowd of members attended the meeting. Officers elected are as follows:

F. A. Homra, president, re-elected; Carter Olive, vice president, re-elected; P. G. Boyd, secretary; M. L. Parker, assistant secretary; B. J. Pigue, treasurer, re-elected; Bill Houston, sergeant at arms, re-elected. The new board of directors includes Hendon Wright, Dr. Ward Bushart, R. E. Sanford and Robert Burrow. These officers will take office at the regular dinner meeting October 14.

Mr. Homra reported on several collections made from the Ken-Tenn Exposition.

The high school had asked the club for the use of the bandstand which was built for the Ken-Tenn Exposition and the club voted to allow the school to use it at football games in order that more space may be provided for spectators in bleachers.

On a motion by Robert Burrow the club voted to buy $750 in defense bonds in order to help the government in the defense drive.

Hendon Wright suggested that a banquet and some kind of entertainment be given soon for members and their wives or friends. A committee, composed of Orion Winstead, chairman, James Meacham and Enoch Milner, will decide the time, place and kind of entertainment.

Mr. Holland made a talk regarding the Union City-Fulton football game to be played Friday night in Union City. He urged that everyone who plans to attend the game buy tickets before leaving Fulton as the Fulton school will receive one-half of the proceeds from sales here. The club decided to take part in the parade in Union City before the game and Billy Blackstone was named chairman of a committee composed of H. L. Bushart, M. L. Parker. The committee is asking that everyone who drives a car Friday night to either decorate the car with blue and white or to stop at the railroad crossing in Union City and allow members of the committee to decorate the car for the parade. The parade will begin at 7 p. m.

The club voted to sponsor the Homecoming game here on Oct. 17 and a committee was appointed to have charge of complete arrangements. This committee is composed of Donald Hall, chairman; Uel Kilbrew, Tolbert Sawyer, Maurice Ward, and P. H. Shelton.

The club bandstand on Lake-st is badly in need of painting and this project was turned over to F. G. Boyd.

The club voted to put on sale the motion picture camera and equipment, which is valued at $100 wholesale. Enoch Milner, W. E. Holloway and Thomas Exum were appointed for this sale.

Kellie Lowe suggested that since the YMBC sponsored the idea of clearing Lake-st of its congested parking areas and assisted in the improvement of parking situations, and also started the idea of turning the local fairgrounds into a community center instead of letting it go into individual hands, the club now start a movement to obtain an airport for Fulton. Paul Turbeville has made some valuable contacts in Chicago, Memphis and Louisville, and it is believed that the time is now right for action to obtain this project. Hendon Wright was appointed chairman of a committee to start immediate action, with Tolbert Sawyer, Paul Bushart and W. E. Holloway and Kellie Lowe from the club. Dr. J. L. Jones, Charles Robert Bennett and Paul Turbeville were appointed as outsiders to assist the committee.

The meeting was then adjourned and the club will meet next on Oct. 14.

New Kroger Super Market Will Be Formally Opened With Two-Day Event This Week End

VETERANS TO STAFF NEW SUPER MARKET

Paul James Heads New Kroger Store As Its Manager

A staff, carefully trained and representing many years of experience in serving the public in the food business, mans the new Kroger Super Market in Fulton. Heading the list as store manager is Paul James, who has been manager of the local store for the past four years. He joined the Kroger organization seven years ago, and came here from Humboldt, Tenn.

Paul, as his friends and customers know him, during the past four years has made many friends. He is devoted to his duties, and is conscientious in his efforts to make the local Kroger store serve the public efficiently and satisfactorily.

One of the outstanding features of the new Kroger Super Market is the meat department. In charge of this department is Kenneth Watts, a veteran of more than six years with the Kroger company, and one of the most expert meat cutters the company has developed. Mr. Watts came to Fulton from Jackson, Tenn., and has been connected with the local store for a number of years.

Leon Fields, a Fulton boy and a graduate of Fulton High, will be the checker. He has been with Kroger only one year, but has earned a place of responsibility by his earnest and sincere efforts.

Leon Dawes, who has been with Kroger since last November, is also a Fulton boy. He will be in charge of the produce department.

Moulton Gambill and Russell McMorris, also of this community, will be in charge of the stock department. Their job will be to keep shelves filled, and stock properly displayed.

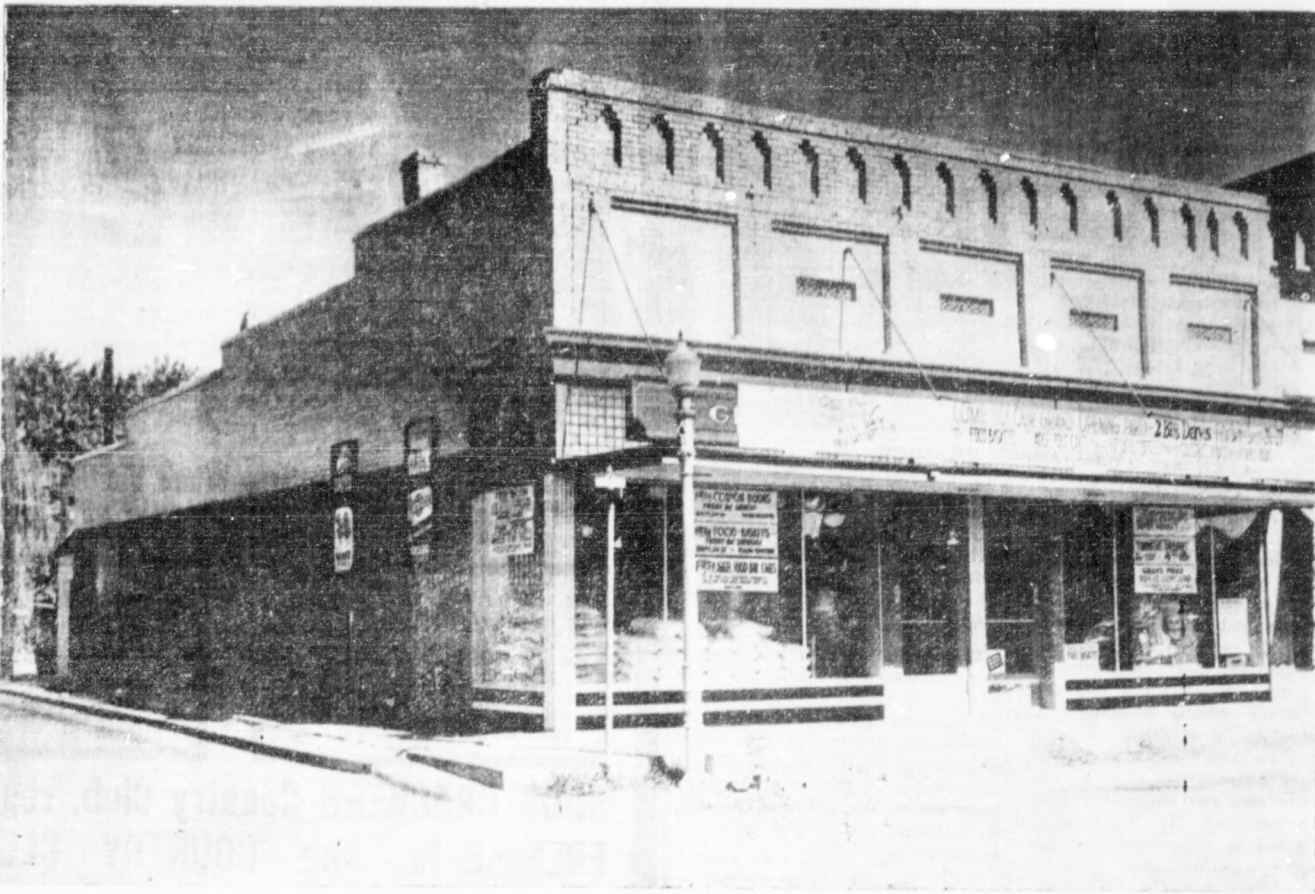

Kroger a Crank For Quality

The late B. H. Kroger, who founded The Kroger Grocery and Baking company in 1882, started a canned goods salesman during the early days of his company by insisting upon sampling the contents of a can of corn instead of following the customary procedure of choosing canned goods merely for the colorful and attractive labels.

Snapped Mr. Kroger to the protesting salesman, "My customers don't eat the labels."

Today the Kroger Food Foundation in Cincinnati carries out Mr. Kroger's idea of controlling quality in a thoroughly scientific manner. Chemists, scientists and home economists at the Foundation run countless tests on nearly every product that finds its way to Kroger store shelves.

Hot-Dated Coffee

"Not To Be Sold After"

This statement stamped on the bottom of each Hot-Dated Coffee bag as it leaves Kroger's roasting plant is the final step in insuring fresh, flavorful coffee when it is purchased in a Kroger store.

By carefully experimenting, Kroger Food Foundation experts have determined how long after roasting the coffee still is at its peak in freshness, aroma and flavor. The date on the bag tells the customer that the coffee within is roaster fresh, for the coffee may not be sold after this time.

Only the finest green coffee is used, and although forty-eight million pounds are roasted annually at the Kroger plants, the greatest care is used in its preparation. First, samples of each shipment are roasted in miniature ovens and coffee brewed from these beans carefully checked by sipping tests before entrusting the shipment to the huge roasters.

Into each of the battery of roasters, built to handle as much as 500 pounds at a time, only 300 pounds of the green coffee is placed, leaving plenty of room for the escape of gases which might in some way impair the coffee's flavor. From time

Free Poultry Service Offered By Kroger

Kroger Food Foundation Maintains Laboratories Where Advisory Service Is Given Farmers Without Charge

Poultrymen facing problems in prompt personal attention to his other angle of poultry raising are asked only that full details about the situation be included with the questions.

In those instances where conditions of disease are suspected or where sickness is obvious, Kroger's Poultry Service Department will conduct a post-mortem examination on a bird from the ailing flock.

The owner is asked to send by express the carcass of a dead bird, or a living bird that is sick and shows symptoms that are causing trouble in the flock. Also, he must write complete details as to feeding practices, sanitation, size of flock, housing conditions, number of birds affected, practice concerning water, symptoms as he observes them and any other points he thinks will be of assistance in making an intelligent diagnosis.

The department then will make a prompt report on the examination, and to the best of its ability, make recommendations to correct or avoid the condition encountered.

By writing the Poultry Service Department of the Food Foundation, a flock owner may obtain

Wesco Dairy Feeds Are Well Balanced

"Visiting royalty receives scarcely more attention at meal time than the aristocracy of American dairy farms," declared George Garnatz, chief of laboratories at the Kroger Food Foundation, where research on Kroger's Wesco dairy feed is conducted.

"While molded ices and rare wines are not included in the dairy cow's diet, Bossy's meals are probably far better balanced than the majority of elaborate banquets," he added.

Constantly checking and experimenting, a staff of scientists at the Food Foundation in Cincinnati puts ingredients through rigid tests, and balances them to provide the dairy animal with a food which is not only palatable, but designed to bring milk production to a maximum and insure the cow's general good health.

"The importance of making dairy feed palatable should not be underestimated," Garnatz said. "Dairy cows must be fed to capacity at all times and the palatability of feed contributes to that end. By using a number of different grains in the feed mixtures we are able to incorporate the variety of food factors that are essential to a balanced ra-

U. S. Maturity Bond To Be Given Away—Many Other Free Gifts

The New Kroger Super Market one of the finest food markets in this section, will be formally opened with a big two-day event Friday and Saturday. The market, located on the Lake-st. a few doors west of the old store location, has been open for business since Monday morning and has been visited by hundreds of residents of this territory.

The formal opening celebration will include numerous special features. Many valuable free gifts will be distributed and an extra special feature will be the presentation of a $25.00 U. S. Maturity Bond Saturday night at 9:00 o'clock.

In addition to this grand gift, there will be many other valuable free gifts, including grocery coupon books and other articles. Every adult who visits the Kroger Super Market during the formal opening and registers there will be eligible for the free gifts. No gifts will be presented to children.

The New Kroger Super Market will provide Fulton with a food market comparing favorably with any in the country in modern design and arrangement for a maximum of convenience to patrons.

On the hundreds of feet of shelves in the modern, new store are thousands of pounds of produce, canned goods, and other grocery merchandise, all departmentalized for the convenience of the shopper.

Every can and package is within an easy arm's reach. Every label is in the direct line of eyesight, eliminating stretching and stooping to determine the brand or contents of a package. Judson Davis, sales promoter, from the Memphis Kroger branch, has been in Fulton several days directing the arrangement of the new store.

The merchandise is arranged in six-foot departments or in larger sections, depending upon the type. The specially constructed shelving on the left side of the building is divided into six-foot sections, each containing hundreds of items. The smaller and lighter items are located in the rear of the store, while the heavier packages are situated near the checking stands.

The meat department is equipped with the latest in modern refrigeration equipment, including a sea foods glass-enclosed container, a 20-foot display counter and a 10-foot display case for dry sale meats and other similar items.

A gigantic cooling room for the meat stock is located in the back of the market. The meat department will be completely stocked the year around with a large supply of all kinds of meats.

A dairy products case—complete with a refrigeration unit and air-conditioning equipment—is located

All these young men are natives of Fulton and vicinity, and are well known by patrons of Kroger store.

Here's a good view of the interior of the new store. In this group are Paul James, manager; Kenneth Watts, market manager; and Leon Fields, the checker. They await your visit, and stand ready to render courteous, efficient service.

ed near the produce department. There will be stored the butter, eggs, cheese, etc., all within easy reach of the shopper.

The produce will be concentrated near the dairy products case. Two floats—especially designed for use in Kroger stores—will carry the dry produce, such as oranges, apples, lemons, cantaloupes, etc. The vegetables will be located a few feet away in modern vegetable cases. Plenty sacks will be available in all sizes. The store will be cooled in the summer by large blow fans and heated in the winter months by an overhead heating system.

Two entrances, one for incoming shoppers and one for outgoing customers, will speed up the traffic at the exits. Passageways to the doors will be separated by a railing. Near the entrance will be many double-decked steel gliders or push carts to carry the shoppers purchases. When the customer completes his order, he will proceed to one of the two modern checking stands near the front, and push his glider loaded with merchandise through an opening in the counter.

His purchases will be checked according to departments, produce, groceries, and meat. The check will show these items by departments. The checker will compute the price of the purchases and hand the items to a clerk for sacking. Another clerk will be waiting to carry the orders to the cars outside.

Every item of merchandise will be absolutely new. Every can and package has been purchased especially for the Super Market and will not be transferred from any other store.

SMASHEY, KROGER CHIEF, ROSE RAPIDLY FROM RANKS

WILLIAM G. SMASHEY

William C. Smashey, Memphis branch manager of the Kroger Grocery & Baking Company, made a connection with the Kroger Company 21 years ago, but not by mere chance or coincidence. Fired with ambition and possibilities afforded by the Kroger Company, he resigned a position that was paying him more than three times the starting salary offered by Kroger and entered his new work. In three weeks he was made manager of a Kroger Store.

After one and one-half years as store manager, Mr. Smashey was promoted as supervisor and then grocery superintendent. Later he was advanced as district manager, and as another advancement he was sales manager, remaining in that capacity only three months, when he was promoted to the position of grocery operator. Seven months later he was made branch manager of the Little Rock branch, where he operated that branch exactly two years to the day.

Because of outstanding results there, he was selected almost two years ago as branch manager for the stores operating out of Memphis.

This background of wide experience furnishes Mr. Smashey with the qualifications he possesses for his present position. Being "the Boss" does not handicap him in any of the employee's sports or so called activities, for he enters into them all in the spirit of fun and is "at home" with any group in the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Smashey live at 1891 Lyndale, in Memphis. They have two daughters, Wilma Jean, 14, and Patricia Ann, 11.

Mr. Smashey says golf is his favorite recreation. He is an ardent sportsman and a past master in the Masonic Lodge.

to time samples from the large roasters are compared with coffee from the miniature ovens so that the roasting is uniform.

When ready, the entire contents of the roaster are poured into a scientific cooler where air is drawn through to cool the smoking hot beans and prevent their charring.

Properly cooled, the coffee is placed in bags and rushed by truck to Kroger stores. Except in the case of the vacuum packed coffee, which is ground before packing, the coffee is not ground until purchased by the customer, thus adding another safeguard to its freshness.

Dairymen know that a well-balanced feed must contain protein for body building, fats and carbohydrates for body heat and energy, and minerals to keep bones, teeth, blood and tissues in the best of conditions. These food elements must be present in adequate proportions in order to be utilized most effectively by the cow.

After careful experimentation, Foundation chemists have selected nineteen different ingredients for Wesco dairy feeds. These they have combined in proportions they believe will provide a balanced diet to answer all needs of the dairy herd.

However, feeding conditions are not always the same, and in order to provide for most of them, Wesco feeds are manufactured with three different protein contents. Feed containing 16 per cent protein is used to supplement home-grown feed stuffs during periods of drought or in the summer with good pasturage.

Dairy feed containing 20 per cent protein is used in the summer when pasturage may be short and in the fall and winter, together with a limited quantity of roughage, or with low protein roughage.

Under conditions of intensive dairying where maximum milk production is desired and where the feeding program, milk production, and feed costs are watched closely for efficiency, the 24 per cent dairy feed is recommended.

Naturally, during some years the amount and quality of home-grown feeds for dairy cattle will be better than in other years. Sometimes the roughage grown on the farm, such as various hays, timothy, clover, prairie hay, corn shucks, stover and ordinary ensilage are plentiful. These, of course, can be used in connection with Wesco dairy feeds.

To facilitate their use, a chart is available from the Kroger Food Foundation which shows combinations of farm-raised crops, particularly roughage, and Wesco feeds to be used for a balanced ration.

Mr. Garnatz says that he and the Dairy Service Department staff at the Foundation welcome letters from dairy owners who wish to submit their feeding problems. These experts give each problem their careful consideration and advise the owner.

LOW FOOD PRICES EVERY DAY

Low prices every day simply mean this: That day in and day out you save money by buying at Kroger Super Markets. There is not a special price in this circular. Market permitting, prices are down to stay. Talk about getting your money's worth!—You certainly do that at Kroger Super Markets. And here is the unusual thing about it: Every Kroger Super Price is a Low Price. We can do this because we cut every possible expense, buy in huge quantities, buy direct from manufacturers, producers, millers, and we ship the least expensive way. All this means savings to us and we pass these savings on to you in the form of LOW PRICES EVERY DAY.

GET MORE FOR YOUR MONEY

Our Kroger Super Markets sell ton upon ton of food per market per week. And it's a known law of retail selling that the more you sell in a store the less it costs of each dollar you do in business. So the more we sell the less per dollar it costs us to operate. And the less it costs us to operate, the less your food costs you! It's as simple as A. B. C.—this reason Kroger Super Markets sell for less. Come! See for yourself the savings you can make at Kroger's Super Market.

SELF SERVICE SHOPPING GLIDERS

Use the shopping gliders—light weight steel baskets on wheels. Simply place your purchases in baskets and wheel through the store. You "glide" through your shopping at Kroger's Super Market. No more carrying parcels in your arms. Save your strength. Shop at Kroger's Super Market where shopping is easy and enjoyable. Serve yourself and save. Shop as hurriedly or as leisurely as you like. Everything arranged to make it easy for you to select from a display. Every item plainly price-marked. You know what you pay. When you've finished shopping simply take the shopping glider to one of the check-out counters and pay for all your purchases at one time. Checker will give you itemized receipt so that you can check your savings when you get home.

KROGER COMPANY HISTORY

From a small store on Cincinnati's busy riverfront in 1882 to more than 3,600 modern grocery and meat markets in nineteen mid-western states is the story of the development of The Kroger Grocery and Baking Company.

Founded by the late B. H. Kroger nearly 60 years ago, the company's growth was relatively slow and conservative, increasing store by store in Cincinnati and a few surrounding towns until by 1903, twenty-one years after the first store was opened, there were 58 Kroger stores in Greater Cincinnati, Dayton, Hamilton, Miamisburg and Xenia, Ohio.

Now Kroger stores are an established part of several thousand communities throughout the Middle West. Under the direction of a general office in Cincinnati, the territory is divided into twenty-five branches, each with its own group of retail trading centers from Atlanta, Georgia, to Madison, Wisconsin, and from Kansas City, Missouri, to Pittsburgh, Penn.

As early as 1903 Kroger was manufacturing many of the products sold in its stores. At that time there were bread, cake and cracker bakeries, a coffee roasting plant, and a factory where Kroger's own brands of baking powder, flavoring extracts, catsup, jelly and household supplies were manufactured.

As the number of stores increased, the manufacturing division gradually has been expanded. Today there are bread bakeries located in fourteen Kroger branch cities, with a total output of some 150,000 lbs. of bread and rolls each year.

Five dairies, an evaporated milk plant, two coffee roasting plants, three meat packing houses, two cracker and cookie bakeries, two beverage bottling plants, a printing plant and a general factory complete the list.

With approximately 22,000 full-time employees and nearly a third more working part-time, the Kroger company has a well-established personnel department.

Since the first, this company has followed the policy of promoting men within the organization to responsible positions. A survey of branch managers shows that seventeen of them started in minor positions in offices, warehouses or stores, many of them as part-time clerks working Saturdays and after school while still too young to have full-time jobs.

HARRIS NEWS

The revival closed here last Friday night. There was a good attendance at the singing Sunday night with singers from Union City and other places.

Our school has been closed for the last two weeks for cotton picking but will resume work again next Monday. Miss Cayce of Union City will be our music teacher with three classes a week.

The P. T. A. had a special call meeting at the school building Monday night. Important business was discussed. Eight new members were added to the society and a social hour was enjoyed by all.

Your correspondent was ill last week. Mrs. Joe Faulkner has returned to her home and is much improved.

Mrs. Nute Melvin is improving. Mrs. D. Ferguson underwent an operation at Haws clinic last week. Mrs. Claud Crutchfield has been very ill for the past week and is not much improved.

Miss Moren Allen and Bro. Lewis entertained the faculty of the Union City school with barbecue supper recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Frazier had as their callers Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt Giffin and son.

Mr. and Mrs. Theo Brockwell entertained with a hamburger supper last Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus McClain, Herbert Dunn and Miss Lucille Taylor called on Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dunn and family Sunday night and attended singing.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Sullivan and family attended services at Shady Grove Sunday and were the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Olive Coach and Mrs. Fannie Hubbs.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cooper and daughter, Erdis, visited Mr. and Mrs. Lutstone and Mrs. Easterwood Sunday afternoon who accompanied them home and attended singing Sunday night.

A Kroger Employees Mutual Benefit Association was started in 1933 to provide social and athletic activities, group life, sickness and accident insurance and a credit union for its members.

More recently, KEMA presidents decided to extend hospital insurance to all branches. Hospital insurance has been offered employees of Cincinnati and Cleveland branches on an experimental basis, and proved so satisfactory that it now will be available to all Kroger employees.

Nearly half of the employees belong to credit unions which offer them a convenient method of saving money and an opportunity to borrow money at a low rate of interest.

Operation of both KEMA and credit unions is handled entirely by employees.

Because Kroger operations now cover an extensive territory, it is necessary to serve stores from a network of thirty warehouses, each with its own standardized fleet of modern trucks and trailers.

With each trailer well insulated, it is possible to carry a load of even the most perishable fruits and vegetables safely during the entire trip. Refrigerated trailers are used for meats and other merchandise that must be especially well guarded against spoilage.

With its splendid distribution facilities and large number of retail outlets, the Kroger Company has been able to participate very effectively in producer-consumer campaigns sponsored by the National Association of Food Chains in cooperation with various producer groups. Since 1936 this grocery firm, together with other NAFC members, has taken part in more than a score of such promotions, helping move tremendous surpluses in fruits, vegetables, dairy products and meats when an oversupply threatened to demoralize the market for these products.

To name but a few, successful sales campaigns have been staged by this company on canned peaches, beef, eggs, dairy products, apples, peas and cotton, with increases in the sale of these products ranging from 10 to 253 per cent.

In the case of such commodities as milk and butter, increases have been relatively small because it is difficult to increase demand for products so widely used.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Frazier were Mrs. Bettie Edwards, Erdis Cooper, Mrs. Ruby Neisler and Billie, Mrs. Sallie DeMyer called in the afternoon.

Hurk Lynch was Sunday visitor of Dr. L. D. Boaz.

Friday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roberts were Mr. and Mrs. O. Williams, Miss Allie Williams, Mrs. Bettie Edwards, Mrs. Sallie DeMyer and Rev. J. A. Kelly.

You could hardly expect good team work of a man who always feels the world is against him.

Also people of that type are not usually good team workers in a community. Some of them complain that the church people have not called on them sufficiently, or they were not elected to office in some organization, or were not invited to some card club.

Such people could well offer to teach a Sunday School class, or get up a supper for some society, or serve on a table at some church fair. If you smile on the world and try to do something the world wants done, the world will smile on you.

TO THE FULL EXTENT OF THE LAW

When young fellows trespassed on property around Fidelity, particularly on property belonging to people who resented intrusion, they were threatened with being prosecuted "to the full extent of the law."

Accurate WORKMANSHIP At Low Cost

the law," whatever that means. That phrase had drifted into the neighborhood from some lawsuit at the county seat and sounded big and dangerous. I did not know then, and fear I am not much wiser now, what these harsh words mean. Fortunately, I never heard of anyone's actually applying the law to the offenders. The saying of the phrase must have relieved the feelings of the man who had lost some watermelons or apples.

Lawsuits as such were rare. Most of us lived in great fear of the law, a sort of invisible monster that might grab us when we were off guard. Occasionally some neighbor would be summoned to appear on the grand jury; we, including the neighbors and family, were hardly free from fear until he returned safe and sound, and with a few dollars extra for his services. Even this inducement never made the post of juror especially attractive to most of us, though I have known several people less fearful who would ride out to the county seat and hang around during circuit court in the hope that their services as good men and true would be required. A very few civil suits involving any of our citizens appeared on the docket; I grew up to believe that each party to such a suit was disgraced forever. When a sensational suit to break a rich old man's will came up, the whole neighborhood took sides and probably still do. I doubt whether the old fellow's monument in the Fidelity graveyard has ever been taken for what it was worth because of this trial, which divided a family and the rest of us.

But the magistrate's court was a solemn thing, attended by all men and boys with much the same zeal they would have shown in a dog fight, without any of the noise and open partisanship. The magistrate himself realized that he was important, and he rattled off fine points of the law as if he were a modern Moses. The young lawyers from the county seat spread their stuff before us yokels and felt amply rewarded by the open-mouthed wonder that we showed. The county attorney cut the biggest swath of all, for he was law incarnate, interpreting for us all the beauties and rigors of abstract justice.

It was a great day in my life when I was allowed to be a spectator at a trial in the magistrate's court. The charge was running a horse on the public highway (the little dirt road down the creek toward the Tennessee river). The offender had imbibed more than his usual portion of mountain dew; his horse was a spirited fellow that needed little coaxing to perform his best. Away off in a field I stood watching him do his antics and let off a lot of superfluous steam. I was rather loud in my telling of it until I found that the boy had been arrested and would be tried at Fidelity. I went to the trial as mute as a mouse fearful that I might be called. It seems that the testimony of a minor was not needed, as plenty stalwart citizens had been unconscious witnesses (I mean unwilling, I suspect). The whole affair was conducted like an international court, and with just about as much decorum. The lawyer did a great piece of defending the boy; the county attorney quoted a deal of Scripture, and the jurors, who did not own fast horses, brought in a verdict of guilty. The magistrate adjusted his specs, consulted a musty law book, and fined the young fellow ten dollars. The law was satisfied, we had had a great afternoon, and the two lawyers departed arm in arm for the county seat. That was my one time to see the law in action in Fidelity.

and Rochelle Hardison left Monday for Round Lake, Fla., to attend the bedside of a relative, Mr. Billy Hardison, who is very ill. Friends wish him a speedy recovery.

LOOK AT THE FACTS
Those who urge socialized medicine seem to blind themselves to facts. For the plain truth is that our system of private, independent medicine has been responsible for practically all of the medical discoveries and advances of modern times.

It was independent medicine that discovered vaccination, developed abdominal surgery, and has practically abolished diphtheria and typhoid. It is independent medicine that has put tuberculosis, a disease which was once considered incurable and the harbinger of certain death, "on the run." It is independent medicine that has reduced childhood deaths and illnesses to but a fraction of what they were twenty or thirty years ago. And it is independent medicine which is making great strides in combating other bacterial killers.

Under a system of socialized medicine, the doctor is simply a creature of the state. The competitive urge—which makes for progress in every field of life—no longer exists. There is little opportunity for advancement. The security of his position depends on pleasing the politicians in power—not on the success with which he handles his practice. That is not theory—the history of socialized medicine in the many countries in which it has been tried, tells the story.

Americans have become the healthiest, longest-lived people on earth. In the past few years this country has seen many "socialized" movements fostered upon the people by our legislators. Enough is enough. Let's keep our medicine independent of political power.

Strange as it sounds, the only way to please some critics of the nation's foreign policy would be to enter into an alliance with Hitler for the purpose of defeating Great Britain.

An old-fashioned girl who believes in safety first is the one who takes her cigaret out of her mouth before pulling her nightgown on over her head.

Nine of the Commodity Credit Corporation corn loans made to Kentucky farmers on their 1940 crop have been repaid, the U. S. Department of Agriculture announces.

NEWS and FACTS . . . of Statewide Interest
Why Blame Beer?
Occasionally, beer is blamed for unwholesome conditions, anti-social practices or other abuses in a handful of law-breaking taverns.
Such blame is entirely unwarranted. Prominent authorities—physicians, psychiatrists, dieticians and others—have definitely said that beer is a wholesome and healthful beverage, a true beverage of moderation.
Kentucky's legalized beer industry is determined to protect beer's good name—determined, therefore, that beer should be sold in Kentucky only under clean, wholesome conditions in law-abiding places.
You can help us, if you will, by patronizing only reputable beer retailers; and by reporting any disorderly outlets to this committee.
