THE LISTENING POST

● I have always understood that salmon have a peculiar custom of coming back to their place of spawning just before they spawn and die. I have always read of this, and have seen pictures in the movies of salmon fighting their way up the Columbia River, up rapids and over falls, for the sole purpose of spawning and then dying. It is a pretty theory, and an odd custom, and I presume it is true. I thought of this a few days ago in relation to something totally different. My thought was caused by a sack filled with old linotype slugs which came to the office, and by a more or less casual examination of the slugs. Slugs, let it be explained, are bits of metal which contain certain lettering, and each line of this column is a linotype slug. These are cast on a linotype and then remelted and used over again day after day for other lines.

● I looked through these old slugs and by certain characteristics saw that some were in the neighborhood of twenty-five years old. Different faces of letters are used on linotypes, and certain of these faces had been discarded around 25 years ago. A relative of mine was a postal clerk, and postal clerks work with things which are called slugs. These are bits of paper which indicate where certain mail is going. These slugs can be bought from supply houses, or they can be typed or written by hand, or they can be printed. This relative of mine had been a printer in early life and remembered the craft quite well. Many years ago, after trying some of these linotype slugs, he hit on the idea of printing his slugs from them, and the plan worked out quite well. He inked them on an ink pad and printed by the pressure of his hand against the paper. Perhaps the printing was not as good as that done on a press, but it was neat and readable and quite simple. So, for many years, he kept up this practice and on practically every visit to this shop he had one or two slugs to be cast. He never got very many and I never realized that much metal could be involved. Two or three of those slugs would weigh only a couple of ounces, for they were very short lines, containing such mystic lettering as "St. L. & Crab," or "St. L. City," or "Lou and Full" and things like that. I never could make heads or tails out of them, although I saw the slugs every once in a while, but they served a certain and definite purpose in his daily work. So, for 25 years or more this went on.

● His life ended a year ago and more, and a few days ago his family gathered up those slugs and sent them back to their spawning place. I unwrapped the sack and looked at the slugs. Once bright and shining and fresh-looking they were now tarnished and dull and dead. Metal gets that way after its first flush of youth, even as do human beings, but to me these seemed deader and more tarnished than usual. I picked many of them up one by one, and saw certain type faces which had long since been discarded. They were still readable, although the lettering showed the wear which comes with steady use. On a press such slugs wear down in a few days, and used in the manner these had been used it is likely that they received more "battering."

● I thought of the salmon and their return to the place of youth as I handled these battered old slugs. Like the salmon, they had come back to their spawning place.

16-INCH SHELL REQUIRES 140 GALLONS ALCOHOL

New York.—Every time the navy fires a sixteen-inch gun, 140 gallons of ethyl alcohol are required. That is the quantity needed to make the necessary amount of smokeless gunpowder for one of the shells, according to Dr. A. J. Liebmam, director of the Schenley Research Institute, which controls the quality of large quantities of alcohol being manufactured for munitions.

Draft Board Refuses To Re-classify Newspaper Man

New York.—The classification of Ralph Ingersoll, editor of the newspaper PM, was continued as 1-A today by his local draft board. Ingersoll, whose induction in the army as a private June 24 was delayed to permit reconsideration of his status after Marshall Field, PM's owner, called him indisputable, appeared before the board last night at a rehearing of his case.

Field or Ingersoll may appeal from the local board's decision within ten days.

In an open letter in PM yesterday Ingersoll accused the draft board of attempting to draft him because of prejudice against the paper.

He said in an editorial preface that he was ready to go into the army or continue as editor, but added:

Extra Gasoline Approved For Candidates In Rationed Area

Washington.—Regulations for the permanent East Coast gasoline rationing, issued today, provided special rations for bona fide candidates campaigning for public office and for automobiles which "carry persons to and from the polls for the purpose of voting."

The Office of Price Administration said the "special rations" would be issued only when necessary.

Congressmen, members of State Legislatures and other Government officials, under the new permanent regulations, may obtain "preferred mileage" for the following transportation needs:

Louisville, Ky.—Matthews J. Connelly, investigator for the Truman committee of the United States Senate, today began a complete audit of books and records of Ben H. Collings, the Louisville contractor who gave Senator A. B. Chandler a swimming pool.

He hopes to complete his investigation by Saturday night and the committee will make a report "one way or another" before the August 1 primary in which Chandler is opposed by John Young Brown of Lexington, Connelly said.

Brown has charged that restricted materials needed for war industries were used in construction of Chandler's Versailles home and questioned propriety of the junior Senator's accepting it as a gift from a contractor who has done government work.

Both Chandler and Brown requested the inquiry by the Truman committee, which is charged

"I'm going to get a complete list of all Mr. Collings' contracts obtained since July 1, 1940," Connelly said. "Then I'll check the manner in which they were obtained—by bid, negotiation or lump sum."

"Finally I'm going to get the complete breakdown of the quantity and types of materials that went into Senator Chandler's pool."

SCRAP WON'T GET RUBBER BALL 1000 YEARS OLD

Was Discovered In Ancient Indian Ruins

Los Angeles.—The southwest museum has a hunk of rubber that isn't going into the scrap drive. It's about the size of a baseball and was discovered recently in Indian ruins near the Santa Cruz River south of Toltec, Ariz.

Curator Mark Raymond Harrington said today the ball is likely more than 1,000 years old, and the oldest rubber specimen in the United States.

The dark brown ball, now slightly lopsided, is still remarkably elastic, said Harrington, but too valuable a relic to go into somebody's tire tread.

He believed it may have been made from guayule, the plant now being set out on a large scale by the Federal Government.

Museum Director Frederick Webb Hodge said the ball's discovery established the fact that the ancient ball-court game, once believed to have been played only in Mexico and Central America, once was a popular sport in the Southwestern United States.

U. S. Air Transport Moves Equipment To Far Australia

Melbourne.—The United States Army Air Transport Service was disclosed today to have flown 5,000,000 miles in the past five months to rush vital equipment and personnel to strategic points on the Australian front.

This is a service where things often must be done in a hurry. Yet only one plane has been lost, that by an accident.

Carried Entire Battery

In one instance, it was called on to transport a complete artillery battery—men, guns, equipment and munition—to a vital area hundreds of miles away. The haul involved 500,000 pounds.

It was finished in a fraction of the time that overland transport would have taken. The planes landed the battery in small balanced units with guns and ammunition ready for instant action.

When the United States and Philippine forces were hard-pressed on Bataan, the service flew a transport to the Philippines with quinine and other medical supplies.

Serve As Ambulances

Week by week these air fighters are carrying personnel, ammunition, plane parts and other equipment thousands of miles to points where they are urgently needed.

On their return trips they often serve both as flying ambulances, bringing home wounded men, and as cargo carriers hauling back airplane engines and other equipment needing repair.

One plane carried 300 tons of supplies 2,000 miles in one month. Most of the aircraft are a special type of American transport plane converted from former airliners.

THREE FULTON DOCTORS TO GO INTO ARMY SERVICE

Drs. Bushart, Rudd And Hancock To Leave Before Aug. 15th.

Three more Fulton physicians have now been called for military service, this making a total of six doctors taken from Fulton so far. Dr. Glynn Bushart and Dr. R. T. Rudd were both inducted in the United States Army yesterday at Paducah with commissions of captains.

Dr. J. C. Hancock, local eye, ear, nose and throat doctor, has applied for a rank of major and he will not be inducted until his commission is approved by Washington. Dr. Hancock has previously done Civil Service work in New Mexico, Arizona, North and South Dakota, working with the Indians.

The three other Fulton doctors who have already gone into military service are Dr. E. S. Weaver, who is now stationed in Alabama, Dr. Peter J. Trinch, who is in Oregon, and Dr. J. A. Poe, who is at Camp Grant at Rockford, Ill.

Even doctors and three dentists of West Kentucky were accepted for service in the U. S. Army Medical Corps at Paducah yesterday. Their rank is determined by age and experience. The majority of the doctors accepted yesterday will leave for Army service around August 15. Some may leave earlier but all will be called to active duty in not later than 60 days.

SENATE COMMITTEE APPROVES FLORIDA CANAL AND PIPELINES

Hear Forecast East Coast Needs Might Be Met

Washington.—The Senate committee today approved a $93,000,000 measure authorizing construction of the Florida barge canal and two pipelines and enlarging of the gulf waterway after hearing a forecast that the east coast's petroleum requirement might be met by the end of the year.

When it voted its 11 to 3 approval the committee had before it a report by J. R. Parton, director of transportation in the petroleum coordinator's office, estimating potential daily deliveries of 1,429,000 barrels of oil with completion by Dec. 31 of upwards of a dozen pipeline construction and readjustment projects.

Parton said this was 62,000 barrels in excess of average needs for this year, but added that increased demands were likely because of the accelerated war production program.

The director said the pipeline program now contemplated, including construction of a 24-inch line from Texas to Southern Illinois, was calculated to speed up deliveries to the east by 275,000 barrels a day above the 954,000 barrels he reported had been moved overland on June 20.

In addition, he estimated deliveries of 200,000 barrels by tankers, indicating hope for solution of the submarine menace off the east coast.

The bill approved by the committee carried two pipeline projects designed to hasten transportation of petroleum and its products into the gasoline-starved eastern states, in addition to the $44,000,000 high-level lock barge canal across Florida which would take about three years to complete.

SPIDERS MILKED TO MAKE SILK FOR BOMB SIGHT

New York.—Harassed spiders are "in production" for Uncle Sam's war program.

"Flying," authoritative aviation magazine, reveals that vital silk for our bomb sights, gun sights, telescopes and microscopes is obtained by "milk-ing" a herd of more than 200 spiders at a "spider ranch" at Fredericktown, Ohio.

"There, harnessed in a contraption which prevents them from snipping the silk with their hind legs, more than 200 spiders of the Golden Garden Miranda Aurelia breed are "in production" for Uncle Sam's war program."

The silk, as it emerges from the spider's pouch, is wound on reels, about 100 feet to a reel. The operators of this unique but necessary "factory" charge $9 a reel for their product.

INVENTOR SAYS BODY IGNORED RUBBER METHOD

Washington.—Eugene J. Houdry, who claims to have invented a process of making ingredients of synthetic rubber cheaper and faster than processes now in use, said today he had been unable to get the government-owned Rubber Reserve Company to make any careful consideration of his process.

He told a press conference that although engineers of three leading oil companies had verified his claims, and engineer of the Rubber Reserve Company examined his plant for two hours and apparently made a report which resulted in a decision by the Rubber Reserve Company "that the process was not sufficiently developed for use at the present time."

A spokesman of the Rubber Reserve Company would say only that the letter also told Houdry that the government was asking the Phillips Petroleum Company to make an investigation of the Houdry process and promised inclusion of the process in any additional synthetic rubber plans that might be forthcoming if the claims were substantiated.

New York.—Oswald W. Knauth, president of the Associated Dry Goods Corp., advised business men to become politicians again if they would avoid handing themselves over to rules others make.

Speaking to the Apparel Buyers' Association, the store executive said: "Business men must again become politicians as a part of our way of life. Not just isolated ones and not just at election time, but all the time. If we continue to neglect that important element we will hand ourselves over to the rules others make. We have done it already and we cannot let it continue. We must study more carefully the relations of business and politics so that we cease being negatives, and hence victims."

Meredith-Talbott Pay Dispute Continues To Flare In State

Frankfort, Ky.—Threats by State Finance Commissioner J. Dan Talbott to cut off the pay of two of Attorney General Hubert Meredith's office employees set the stage today for another intra-administration law suit.

Meredith recently refused to permit the two women to take efficiency examinations, declaring that as an elected official he was responsible to the people for the qualifications of his office force and not to any other state agency.

After receiving a letter from Talbott warning that pay for the two would be withheld until the courts voided the personnel tests section of the 1936 state reorganization act, Meredith asserted:

Paris, Ky.—Attorney General Hubert Meredith gained two victories over the state administration here late today when Circuit Judge William B. Ardery restrained assessments of state employees for political campaign funds and held the 1942 lawyer bill unconstitutional.

In another opinion, Judge Ardery approved the $11,270,000 1942 general assembly appropriations measure with the exception of $200,000 for capital outlay at the University of Kentucky. Judge Ardery said this money was intended for use in building a field house there and was "in no sense an emergency."

Meredith launched each of the suits against Governor Keen Johnson and administration leaders.

The lawyer bill, passed by the legislature with administration support, would have permitted state departments to hire their own legal counsel with no attachment to the attorney general's staff. Meredith denounced it as a "ripper bill," aimed at him and declared it would result in waste of public money.

Grant Ardery Right

Judge Ardery granted J. J. Leary, Frankfort attorney and partner of Clifford E. Smith, administration adviser and a defendant in the suits, the right to carry today's rulings to the Court of Appeals for final determination.

The anti-assessment ruling, which carried a proviso that it did not prevent "voluntary" donations by any citizen," was argued today.

When Meredith obtained a temporary injunction from Franklin Circuit Court Clerk Kelly C. Smith restraining state officials from collecting and employs from contributing political funds, he accompanied the order with a long petition condemning the practice and alleging that the administration machine had destroyed the republican form of government in Kentucky.

THE VALUES OF CIVILIZATION

(Lexington Herald-Leader)

A distinguished Britisher, Mr. C. E. M. Joad, in a recent article discusses the values inherent in civilization, and which give it character and significance. He disposes of the idea that wealth can make a man civilized. That possession of power can do so. That mere scientific progress, and comforts, can make a society civilized. In fact mastery over the means to civilized living, if unrestrained by moral principles, may lead to the ruin of civilization, and wealth and power may become destructive rather than constructive.

Civilization consists in the discipline and development of those attributes of humanity which distinguish men from the lower creatures, reason, the sense of moral values, and the sense of order and beauty. These can be cultivated and brought to perfection only under the benign influences of freedom, never under any system of compulsions. Only in the atmosphere of freedom can men and women bring to any high state of perfection reason, conscience, said the appreciation of the beautiful.

The really typical human beings in every age have been those who have most successfully developed

These distinctive attributes of humanity, reason, the moral perceptions, and the sense of beauty, which is the sense of order and proportion.

A civilized society will be one in which the greater number of citizens in a free state develop these, in whom the attributes of intelligence, morality, and love of order have been highly developed.

Reason, the moral powers, and the sense of beauty can never be cultivated and disciplined successfully under a regime such as that of Germany, where private opinion is suppressed, where no one is allowed to question any judgment of the ruler, or rulers, where there are compulsions on every hand, where men are ordered about as men on a chess board are moved from station to station, where the state is strong only as the individual becomes weak.

The local administrative units for New York City and the District of Columbia also were ordered closed.

DURING THE WAR —and After

WE ELDER members of the Illinois Central family have been inspired in recent months by the sight of many new faces among our customers. On the other side of the counter, our experienced customers have been noticing new faces also among the railway personnel.

That's one effect of the war, and it calls for an increase of acquaintanceship all around. Another effect of the war is to increase the difficulty of rendering satisfactory transportation, and that calls for both friendship and understanding.

Perhaps some of you customers—both old and new—would like to listen over our shoulders to learn what we are telling the members of the Illinois Central family, both old and new, regarding the lasting importance of cordial service, even in wartime. It goes like this:

"We've got a real job to do—and a vital and necessary job—in the wartime movement of men and materials. Ours is a service indispensable not only to the successful prosecution of the conflict but also to the maintenance of civilian life meanwhile.

"Yet we know that when the conflict ends we must look to peacetime commerce, industry and travel alone for our revenues. What we do today to combine cordial service with the handling of wartime traffic will in a large measure influence the results to be obtained by our efforts after the war.

"There is no priority on cordial service, no rationing of friendly courtesy, no blackout of a genial smile.

"The present situation offers us a twofold opportunity to contribute our maximum effort to victory and at the same time to build a strong reservoir of public good will and understanding which will be of tangible and worth-while value to our country and to us when peace returns.

"That we propose to do with all our might."

At home it is our duty to conserve and protect the things we have. Insurance is one of the safeguards which provides this protection. Let us help plan your protection.

And in the meantime, all of us need to buy all the War Bonds we possibly can. In that way we who stay at home are providing the things for our men to use in battle.

SPORT TALK

Reports from Union City indicate that another football coach must be secured before the first of September. Bryan Robinson, who was coach at Benton at one time, and who served as assistant coach at Grove High of Paris recently, has notified the Union City school that he will be unable to accept the post there, due to having taken a position at the Army camp in Paris. Supt. Ozment announced that he had no one in mind, but would try to fill the position within a few weeks. It becomes increasingly apparent that coaches are going to be hard to secure and hold for the coming school year. Pay in other lines is more lucrative, and many of the coaches also believe that there may be difficulty in maintaining school teams for the coming year as the rationing begins to bite deeply, and gasoline rationing may come at any time.

I have heard the report that Trigg County at Cadiz may give up football for the duration. The school is without a coach at present and material is said to be skimpy also, and while no official announcement has been made it may be that the Wildcats will give up the sport for this fall at any rate. If so, it will remove one opponent from the Bulldog schedule, for the local team was due to travel to Cadiz this fall. The teams have played three years, with the Bulldogs winning two of the games and dropping one 18 to 0 in the first year of Coach Giles tutelage. Last year the Bulldogs won in a heavy rainstorm here 33 to 0.

Ed Kellow, former coach who is now writing sports for the Paducah Sun-Democrat hints at a change in coaching, which will bring a well known Marshall County coach to a better paying job in a West Kentucky school. Personally this scribe has been wondering if Kellow might not be secured for Central at Clinton. There is a big opening there, for basketball is the only sport played in this big school, and with Jim Phillips leaving, it seems likely that Clinton folks will be trying to get a first-rate coach to fill his shoes.

Kellow remarks that championships are already being awarded Hickman and Arlington, due to sterling holdovers. Arlington will have the thirteen feet of the Gaddie Twins and Hickman retains the big Jones boy who towers more than six and a half feet. Well, this may be all true, but I have seen teams which did right well when there was no hope to indicate it. While Fulton lost four of its five starters, instead of all five as Kellow said, good coaching, if we get it here, might turn out a good team here. If we had Coach Giles, or a man as good as the Mountain Man, I would say that the Bulldogs would do all right in both football and basketball. Presumably we have a good coach coming in Coach Gill, but these days it won't do to count your coach until the season is about half over. Coaches sometimes come and sometimes they remain away, and here in Fulton we are keeping our fingers crossed until we actually have a coach.

Carol Peterson, sterling right fielder on Fulton's lameted baseball team, dropped into town unexpected yesterday. Pete is now with Pittsfield, Mass., of the Canadian-American League and probably came back to Fulton to transact some personal business. He reports that the Pittsfield team is doing all right and drawing cards of around 1500 each game. The town has a population of 60,000, so the crowds should be better than they were in Fulton. At that, the ratio is no better, for we sometimes drew two or three hundred—and Pittsfield is at least ten times as large as Fulton.

REDDY KILOWATT says—

Folks, This Looks Like
LUCKY 13
For You Home Electric Customers

DURING the last thirteen years—from 1929 to 1942—your home electric service costs have been cut 52%. If you are our average domestic customer, you get more than twice the amount of service today that you got for your money in 1929. Your service costs you less than half what it cost thirteen years ago. In the same period have you had any comparable cuts in the cost of your food, fuel, rent, clothing, gasoline or taxes?

AND SPEAKING OF TAXES—During the same thirteen years our yearly taxes jumped 280%. In 1929, we paid the government in taxes 7½¢ out of every dollar you paid us. But in 1941, we paid in taxes over 21¢ out of every dollar you paid us . . . much of which comes back to you in benefits: schools, hospitals, roads, libraries, police, fire and public health service, defense, etc.

DO YOU WANT TO PAY MORE TAXES?—In spite of our low-rate and good-service record, socialist-minded politicians want to take over our industry and replace business management with political management and all its evils. If they had been running our company in 1941, the taxes on our electric properties would have been only $579,470, instead of the $2,295,936 tax expense we incurred last year. The difference of $1,715,936 would have been saddled on other taxpayers. Remember, with government ownership of the utilities—

You would have to pay still higher taxes!
