One Person Injured In Car-Train Wreck

A 16-year old Benton youth was injured in a car-train collision near Hardin Tuesday afternoon.

Kentucky State Police identified the youth as Danny Glen Nelson, Route Five Benton, and said he sustained a broken jawbone in the mishap.

State Police said Nelson was going east on Highway 80 and the train was going from Paducah to Bruceton when the accident occurred. State Police said the car skidded 116 feet before hitting the train. The intersection is controlled by a signal, police said.

The train, engineered by S. A. Parker, of Bruceton, was reportedly moving at about 35 m. p. h. when the accident occurred.

Nelson was taken to Western Baptist Hospital for treatment, according to police.

A LARGE CISTERN was discovered Tuesday afternoon while the crew for the Edwin Cain Construction Company were excavating for the new addition to Bank of Murray at the lot on the corner of Main and Third Streets. A map of the city in 1902 shows the cistern was for the W. L. Whitnell Tobacco Factory, located on the lot between Main and Maple Streets. The cistern had been capped over when the buildings were constructed later on the lot. The 1902 map also showed cisterns on the south side of the court yard and on the northeast and northwest corners of the court square. A wagon shop was located where the Murray Post Office now stands. Names of present streets and their former names as listed on the map were: Pool for Third, Cud for Fourth, Main for Fifth, Main Cross for Main, and Linn for Maple.

Kissinger Answers Three Questions In Plumbers Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger testified for 90 seconds in the plumbers trial today and said he never requested that a psychological profile be prepared on Daniel Ellsberg in 1971.

Kissinger answered only three questions, one from an attorney for John D. Ehrlichman, the others from an assistant special Watergate prosecutor.

Ehrlichman's attorneys subpoenaed Kissinger in an attempt to shake the credibility of a key prosecution witness, David R. Young, who worked separately in the White House for both Kissinger and Ehrlichman.

A CIA official had testified that Young told him in August 1971 that both Kissinger and Ehrlichman had requested that the agency prepare a psychological study of Ellsberg, who had two months before leaked the Pentagon Papers study of the Vietnam war to the news media.

Ehrlichman's attorney, William Frates, asked Kissinger, "On or prior to Aug. 12, 1971, did you authorize David Young to directly or indirectly obtain a psychological profile on Daniel Ellsberg from the CIA?"

Kissinger replied: "I did not."

The defense said it had no more questions. Assistant prosecutor Philip Bakes asked if Kissinger knew whether such a study was in the works, or if he knew of any plan to gather psychological information about Ellsberg.

To both questions, Kissinger answered, "I had no such knowledge."

Kissinger in 1971 was Nixon's chief national security advisor.

Kissinger was the final witness in the trial, now in its 10th day.

Miss Nancy Beth Mathis Married To Mr. Slinker In Church Ceremony Here

The sanctuary of the First Baptist Church of Murray was the setting for the June wedding of Miss Nancy Beth Mathis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ray Mathis, to Joseph Lawrence Slinker, son of Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Slinker.

Vows were exchanged at four-thirty in the afternoon before an altar decorated by two white columns and a center basket all filled with arrangements of spring flowers. The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. R. A. Slinker.

The white tapers on two spiral candelabra flanking the altar were lighted by David Mathis, brother of the bride, and Todd Mitchell, cousin of the groom. The family pews were decorated with small bouquets of multi-colored daisies and blue ribbon bows.

Preceding the ceremony Richard Jones, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. His selections included, "The Wedding Prayer," "Hawaiian Wedding Song," "Wedding Bells," "Bless This House," and "Whither Thou Goest." He also played the traditional wedding march and processional.

Following the vows Gus Robertson, Jr. sang "The Lord's Prayer" after which the bride and groom lighted the Unity Candle.

Bride's Dress

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a formal gown of white silk organza, Venice lace and satin flowers. The fitted bodice was graced with lace and satin flowers. The raised waist, high neck and bishop sleeves complimented the gown. The circular skirt swept softly into a chapel train. She wore a Camelot head piece of Venice lace and satin rose buds. The attached tiered finger-tip veil was of imported silk illusion. Her bouquet was spring flowers including roses, daisies, carnations and baby's breath tied with white streamers. Her only jewelry was a diamond pendant, gift of the groom.

Miss Patsy Mathis served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of lavender nylon dotted-swiss. The dress featured a high neck, empire waist and long full sleeves accented with wide cuffs. The empire waist and neckline were highlighted by white lace insertion with lavender ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white and lavender daisies tied with lavender streamers.

Don't pussyfoot with catfood

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is something I need to know but I'm too embarrassed to ask anyone else, so I'm asking you: For years I've heard that in order for catfood and dogfood to be sold in grocery stores, it has to be fit for human consumption.

Well, I know that tuna fish is rich in protein, and with regular tuna so expensive, I tried making a casserole with catfood tuna. My family really went for it. I hid the cans so nobody would know what I had done.

My family has been asking me to make that special tuna casserole "like last time," but I'm worried. Is there something in catfood that will harm humans? The price is certainly right, but I don't want to take any chances with my family's health. Please advise me.

SLIGHTLY WORRIED

DEAR SLIGHTLY: I didn't pussyfoot around. I went right to the leading catfood manufacturers, and the word from them is: "Don't serve catfood to humans."

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think this is a stupid question, but can an unwed mother join Parents Without Partners? And if so, how do I go about finding out if there is a chapter near me? Thank you.

INTERESTED

DEAR INTERESTED: Parents Without Partners, Inc. is for divorced parents, separated parents, unwed parents and widowed parents. In other words, it's for any and all single parents with living children. Look for their telephone number in your directory. Or write to their International Headquarters: 7910 Woodmont Ave., Washington, D.C. 20014.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I bought a lovely suburban home. I became friendly with a neighbor who taught me a lot about gardening. She and I liked each other. Suddenly my husband became desperately ill. He fought hard to live, but it was terminal. During his illness, this neighbor came over often to cheer me up. After my husband died, my neighbor came over. I told her how grateful I was to her for all she had done, then she said: "May I ask a big favor of you?" Then she asked if I would SELL her a bracelet I had. I told her it was a gift from my husband, and I didn't want to sell it.

Abby, she begged and begged, telling me how much she liked that bracelet, so I finally agreed to let her have it for $150—exactly what my husband had paid for it some 15 years before.

Well, that woman wore the bracelet constantly. Finally I couldn't bear to see it on her, so I asked her to please, please sell it back to me. At first she refused. Then she said she would—for $500! (It's worth $350 in today's market, but the money isn't important.)

The thought of that greedy woman wearing my memories on her wrist makes me sick. What would you do?

WRONGED

DEAR WRONGED: I'd buy the bracelet back, before she raises the price.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Nixon's Lawyer Playing Down Differences In Tape Accounts

EDITOR'S NOTE: We have omitted certain objectionable words and phrases from the two articles appearing on today's "Opinion Page" concerning the Watergate transcripts in keeping with the long-standing tradition of being a family newspaper.

The editors feel that these words and phrases would offend many of our readers. A blank space appears in the articles where words were deleted.

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyer is playing down differences between the White House account of Watergate and newly released House Judiciary Committee transcripts that quote the President as telling aides to cover up the scandal from Senate investigators.

"I don't believe the relationship with the Senate Select Committee was necessarily relevant" to the impeachment inquiry, said presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair when asked Tuesday why a long passage dealing with the Senate Watergate committee was omitted from the White House transcript of a March 22, 1973, conversation.

"We furnished the tape to the (House) committee, so if they felt it was relevant they could publish it, which they did," he said.

As for other differences between the White House and committee transcripts of eight presidential Watergate conversations, he added:

"My experience has been that if you have three people listen to a tape, you get three variations."

John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry, said his staff utilized the latest sophisticated electronic equipment in preparing the transcripts, and they represented "the best job we can do."

After a full day of listening to testimony in closed session, few members had any comments on the staff study.

Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md., said, "You've got to listen to the tapes. It's still a matter of opinion who said what."

Hogan said he was certain there were errors in the committee transcripts but that he thought they were more accurate than the White House versions.

"There are places where the person transcribing heard the wrong word," Hogan said of the committee transcripts. But he declined to cite an example.

Committee members heard the tapes in closed evidentiary sessions in May, but they didn't get the staff comparison with the White House transcripts until Tuesday, the day it was made public.

In the March 22 passage omitted from the White House transcripts, Nixon is quoted in the committee version as telling aides "I don't give a what happens. I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else," if called before the Senate Watergate committee.

Other differences were less dramatic. It often was unclear whether they represented anything more than simple differences in what transcribers heard.

For example, earlier in the March 22 conversation, there was discussion of the possibility of White House aides citing executive privilege as the basis for refusing to testify before the Watergate committee.

The White House version quoted Nixon as saying former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell was arguing that "now we use flexibility in order to get off the cover-up line."

According to the committee transcript, Nixon said Mitchell was arguing "that now we use flexibility in order to get on with the cover-up plan."

In other cases, the comparison confirmed versions that had leaked from the closed committee sessions.

It confirmed that Nixon's comment about Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr.'s hush money demand was, at one point, "Well for sake, get it ...". The White House version was, "(Expletive, deleted), get it."

In his introduction to a 130-page volume entitled "Comparison of Passages," Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said the study, which listed the differences side-by-side, "does not draw any conclusions, or the significance of the differences."

Doar also emphasized that committee members would have to make the final decision on the significance of differences and on which version to accept. Members are scheduled to begin debating next week whether there are grounds to impeach President Nixon.

Release of the transcripts was the first step in scheduled disclosure of thousands of pages of evidence the committee has received from its impeachment staff. More material is expected to come out by week's end.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler called release of the transcripts "a hyped public relations campaign."

He said the committee should release "the full body of evidence all together, all at once, and not in piecemeal fashion."

The committee transcripts were drawn from tapes of conversations Sept. 15, 1972, Feb. 28, March 13, two on March 21, March 22 and two on April 16, all in 1973. Those were the only cases in which the committee had tapes covering conversations included in the White House transcripts released April 30.

In a nationally televised speech April 29, the President disclosed he was releasing edited transcripts of 43 conversations he had with aides about Watergate.

"They include all the relevant portions of all the subpoenaed conversations that were recorded," Nixon said. "All portions that relate to the question of what I knew about Watergate or the cover-up and what I did about it."

They were Nixon's response to a Judiciary Committee subpoena demanding tapes of 42 conversations. The committee refused to accept the edited transcripts as compliance with its subpoena.

WATERGATE COMMITTEE
Both versions showed Nixon and his staff early in 1973 regarding the Senate investigation, to be headed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., as a partisan Democratic effort to embarrass the Republican administration.

During the Feb. 28 conversation, White House counsel John W. Dean III suggested Ervin was "merely a puppet for (Sen. Edward M.) Kennedy (D-Mass.) in this whole thing."

A few moments later, Nixon is quoted as saying, "Yeah, I guess the whole Kennedy crowd is just laying in the bushes waiting to make their move."

On several occasions discussions touched on how to contain the Watergate committee probe.

On March 22, Nixon, Dean, Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman discussed offering Ervin a report to be written by Dean on Watergate and urging the senator to conduct his investigation in closed session.

The purpose, said Mitchell, would be "to limit the number of witnesses which are called up there instead of a buckshot operation."

Nixon said Ervin could be told:

"This is everything we know, senator ... This is everything we know, I know nothing more."

A short time later, Nixon recalled the case of Sherman Adams, who had been forced to resign as a top aide to President Eisenhower. Adams had been accused of accepting favors from Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine.

Nixon said he thought Adams had been mistreated and he didn't want the same thing to happen in the Watergate matter. For that reason, he said that he wanted them "to stonewall it."

Then he added that "I would prefer ... that you do it the other way," an apparent reference to offering Ervin the Dean report.

Ervin commented that the March 22 conversation reflected the White House plan "to pretend in public to cooperate, but at the same time to do everything possible to obstruct and impede the committee's investigation."

HUSH MONEY

There were differences in emphasis between the two versions of March 21 discussions of Hunt's demands for money.

In the White House transcripts, Nixon said Hunt "might blow the whistle and his price is pretty high, but at least we can buy time on that, as I pointed out to John."

According to the committee version, Nixon said Hunt might "blow the whistle and he, his price is pretty high, but at least, uh, we should, we should buy the time on that, uh, as I, as I pointed out to John."

Later, according to the White House transcript, Nixon said, "Well, it sounds like a lot of money, a million dollars. Let me say that I think we could get that. I know money is hard to raise. But the point is, what we do on that—Let's look at the hard problem."

The committee version quoted him as saying:

"But let's now come back to the money, a million dollars and so forth and so on. Let me say that I think you could get that in cash and I know money is hard, but there are ways. That could be (unintelligible). But the point is, uh, what would you do on that—Let's, let's look at the hard facts."

But Nixon told Mitchell and Dean it should be presented to the Watergate committee as if it were complete.

"This is everything we know, Mr. Senator," Nixon suggested he would say in turning over the report. "... This is everything we know; I know nothing more. This is the whole purpose, and that's that. If you need any further information, my, our counsel will furnish it ..."

Fate Of All-Star Game Left Hanging In Balance

By BEN THOMAS
AP Sports Writer

As the warring sides in the pro football strike continued their "Alphonse and Gaston" routine today, the fate of the 1974 College All-Star Game hung in the balance.

Management said it was ready to meet, but ...

The striking football players union said it was ready to meet, but ...

And Chicago Tribune Charities, sponsor of the College All-Star Game, said it would hold a news conference tonight—9 p.m., EDT—to announce the fate of the 1974 contest. An ultimatum had been issued Monday by the agency of the Chicago newspaper giving both sides in the dispute 48 hours to make ironclad assurances that the July 26 All-Star Game would be played without interference.

The old "Alphonse and Gaston" routine, you will recall, is "After you." "No you first." And so on.

That is exactly how the warring sides sounded in exchanges in the early morning hours today.

The National Football League Management Council, bargaining agency of the 26 club owners of the NFL, repeated that it was ready to resume negotiations and claimed that the NFL Players Association, which went on strike July 1, was stalling.

The NFLPA said, in effect, the opposite.

The union wants management to come to the bargaining table with 63 counterproposals, in writing, to the 63 demands the union made when talks broke off some 10 days before the strike started. Management says it wants to talk about it.

"There will not be any meeting between the owners and the players because Jim Seacare, the federal mediator, said he couldn't assure any kind of meeting except on Friday, so there won't be a meeting," Ed Garvey, the NFLPA executive director, told The Associated Press in Washington early today.

In New York, John Thompson, executive director of the owners' bargaining unit, countered: "It is totally and grossly unfair when Garvey says we won't meet until Friday."

"If there is not going to be a meeting between the owners and the players, it only confirms the intent of Ed Garvey and the union to destroy the All-Star Game," Thompson added.

Neither side would officially say what the significance of Friday had to do with the resumption of talks, but it was learned that management negotiators had told Seacare on Monday that labor lawyer Theodore Kheel, counsel for the NFLMC, had long ago scheduled a mid-week trip, not connected with the strike, to California.

NFLMC sources said Kheel would have canceled his trip if it appeared that the two sides would start talking again, but he went ahead with his plans when the federal mediator couldn't get Garvey to agree to new negotiations.

The union's 63 demands include the so-called "freedom issues," which call for players to have the right to negotiate with any team they wish and to veto trades, as well as an end to the reserve and waiver clauses and drastic curbs on the disciplinary powers of coaches, owners and the league commissioner to impose fines.

"We will not consider eliminations, but we will consider modifications," repeated Thompson early today.

But Thompson wouldn't suggest any modifications. And the union says it is management's time to make a counterproposal.

In other developments Tuesday—NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle told The Associated Press that granting total freedom to the players from binding contracts would mean that a few rich teams would dominate the league, some poorer teams would eventually go out of business, over-all revenues would drop and fan interest would decline.

Officials of the Pro Football Hall of Fame at Canton, Ohio, said the second scheduled NFL exhibition, the July 27 game between St. Louis and Buffalo, would not be played if the players' strike halts preseason training for rookies. Except for the College All-Stars, who stopped practicing until negotiations resumed, rookie drills are under way in all training camps that have opened.

The Los Angeles Times said this year's charity exhibition game it is to sponsor, the Los Angeles Rams vs. the Cleveland Browns on Aug. 2, would be played "players' strike or no."

Owner Carroll Rosenbloom of the Rams told the Times: "As far as we are concerned, we intend to play the game. As a matter of fact, we may play with the same team with which we will play all season long."

Pickets from the NFLPA marched near the eight NFL camps which were open by Tuesday.

And Johnny Unitas, the veteran quarterback of the San Diego Chargers, said he would report to camp as scheduled on Friday, joining such players as center Jim Langer of the Miami Dolphins, tackle Ralph Neely of the Dallas Cowboys and linebacker Mike Curtis of the Baltimore Colts in announcing defiance of the union.

DeVincenzo Sentimental Favorite Of British

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

LYTHAM ST. ANNE'S, England (AP) — He's golf's globe-girdling gaucho, winner of more tournaments than any player who ever lived, and he's teeing it up again in the British Open, 26 years after he made his debut at Muirfield in 1948.

His career has spanned three eras which have covered the titles of Henry Cotton, Bobby Locke, Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

He thinks Sam Snead is the greatest.

"How can you compare anyone with Sam Snead?" Roberto de Vincenzo of Argentina said Wednesday as he prepared to tee off in the 103rd Open at Royal Lytham and St. Anne's.

"Sam began winning tournaments in 1938. Now, 36 years later, he still wins tournaments. He still holds his own with the best of the kids," De Vincenzo said.

never see anyone like him."

De Vincenzo, the sentimental favorite of British galleries, is 51. He is straight as a soldier, trim as a boxer, an imposing six-footer. Only a balding pate gives away his age, but he usually conceals even that with a tartan checkered cap.

At last check with his computer, De Vincenzo had won 189 tournaments throughout the world.

He compiled an impressive record of challenges in the British Open before he finally stormed through to the title at Hoylake in 1967. He was 44 then. They say many in the gallery cried.

In his 1948 debut at Muirfield, he tied for third behind winner Henry Cotton. He was third the next year at Sandwich and in 1950 was runner-up to Locke at Troon.

De Vincenzo was fifth when Ben Hogan, the "Wee Wee Man," won at Carnoustie in 1953. He tied for third at St. Andrews in 1960 and was third behind the late Tony Lema on the ancient course four years later.

"I have no chance this year," Roberto said. "There are too many good players. When I started you needed to beat six, maybe seven men, to win a major title. Now 30 or 40 can win anywhere."

The popular Argentinian is not ready to concede too much to the modern breed, however. He considers them test tube precisionists.

"Snead and Hogan learned to hit the golf ball properly with hours on the practice tee, changing their grips, experimenting. Now young golfers get their knowledge out of text books," he said.

Twilight Golf Will End Friday At Murray Club

The final of four evenings of twilight golf at the Murray Country Club is scheduled for Friday, July 12, beginning at 6 p.m.

Immediately following the golf, a pot-luck supper will be served in the clubhouse for participants and their families, according to Bill Emmer, who is in charge of the program. Each family is requested to bring at least one covered dish for the table, he said.

Emmer and Betty Hunter were low July 5 when the third round of the tournament was played, posting a three-over-par 39. Jim Payne and Inus Orr were second with 40, while Bill Fandrich and Agnes Payne were third with 41.

The others playing and their scores were:

42 — Gene McCutcheon and Sue Brown.

43 — Scott Pricer and Toopie

Thomas.

43 — Johnny McCage and Euladene Robinson.

43 — M. C. Garrott and Nancy Fandrich.

43 — Lawrence Philpot and Rae Emmer.

44 — Don Robinson and Judy Muehleman.

45 — Gene Landolt and Phyllis Kain.

45 — Dick Orr and Cathryn Garrott.

46 — Chester Thomas and Karen Pricer.

46 — Tom Muehleman and L. Powderly.

46 — Howard Koenen and Betty Lowry.

47 — Roy Kain and Anna Mary Adams.

48 — Gene McCutcheon and Elizabeth Slusmeyer.

54 — Joe McCoart and LuAnn Philpot.

57 — Ed Powderly and Urbena Koenen.

An Editorial Comment On Sports

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

Tonight will mark another era in the history of professional sports.

For tonight, a new football league, offering mid-week games to fans, will begin.

Perhaps, had it not been for the National Football League Players' strike, the opening of the World Football League might have gone almost unnoticed.

But with the possibility of the NFL exhibition season being called off, fans are growing restless and welcoming the opportunity to watch the game, instead of hearing the dismal reports of strikes and picket lines.

In how many professions can an individual work so few years and retire on such benefits as given to players in the National Football League?

In how many professions can people be so admired and held in such esteem as an O. J. Simpson or a Johnny Unitas?

In how many professions can a person have a five-month vacation?

Professional athletes have become spoiled, their God is the dollar.

When they are so selfish as to refuse to play in an All-Star game for charity, the striking NFL players are a discredit to the sport.

If playing under contract for an NFL team is so much like slavery, then a football player can step aside and choose some other profession.

Let him go to work in a coal mine for the next 30 years, risking his life each time he goes under the earth.

Let him go to work in a factory, where he is one of a number and like anything else on the production line, can be replaced.

Let him be like millions of senior citizens across the United States and live on a small government pension.

Let him eat cake!

Bartow, sitting with his team in the still-darkened Roberto Clemente Coliseum 45 minutes before the game with Cuba Tuesday night, wasn't prepared to look ahead to the Saturday-Sunday clashes with defending champion Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union.

Yugoslavia beat the Russians 82-79 a couple of hours earlier leaving the Americans and Yugoslavians as the only unbeaten teams.

"This is the only game I'm worried about," said Bartow of Cuba. Cuba battled the U.S. on nearly even terms for the first half. The lead changed hands twice before the Americans finally forged a 47-41 halftime lead on two straight long shots by Luther Burden of Utah and a basket by Eugene Short of Jackson State.

An unusually poor shooting performance by flashy guard John Lucas of Maryland against Cuba's zone was a big reason for the tight score. He made only four of 13 field shots in the first half, and starting forwards Gus Gerard and Tom Boswell were equally frustrated with identical two for seven shooting totals.

The breaking point came early in the second half when 7-foot Richard Kelley of Stanford blocked a shot, stole the ball and grabbed a rebound on three successive plays.

Kelley threw three long passes to Lucas for layups. The three scores shot the U.S. ahead 67-54 and Cuba never rallied.

The U.S. is idle until Friday night, when it plays Brazil.

After playing with the Los Angeles Stars for two years, Warren was traded to the Memphis Tams where he played another two years. North Carolina and Utah had his services for one year each before he was landed by San Antonio this past season.

While playing for South Marshall High School, the 6-5, 190-pound athlete was selected to the All-District, All-Regional, All-Purchase, and third team All-State teams his senior year, when he averaged 21 points a game.

Aside from being named the First Region's Most Valuable Player in All-State selections in 1964, he was named to the all-tourney team in the Paducah Tilghman Invitational that year.

After his senior season at Vanderbilt, Warren was voted to the Coaches All-SEC Team and was also named honorable mention All-America. During the 1967-68 season he was co-captain of the Commodores and was named the Outstanding Senior Athlete. As a two-year starter, the Kentuckian received the Sportsmanship Trophy each year.

After signing with the Los Angeles Stars six years ago, general manager Jim Hardy said, "Bill (Shannon) felt he was the brightest prospect in our camp. He's all you look for in an athlete and is the type of guy who will really turn the fans on when he gets on the floor."

During his senior season with the Commodores, Warren was labeled by some as being the best backcourt man in the country.

Little League All-Star Team

The Little League All-Star Team has been chosen and has already had a practice session.

And it could well be that this year's team might be one of the best ever.

Last year, if you recall, the All-Star team lost a 3-2 game to Mayfield in 10 innings at Benton.

This year, the tournament will be played in Murray.

The single elimination tourney opens at 7 p.m. next Monday with Lyon County playing Mayfield Western and then at 8:30, Murray will play Dexter-Hardin.

Tuesday's games will find Paducah American playing Mayfield Eastern at 7 p.m. with Marshall County and Paducah National playing at 8:30.

Murray will play again at 7 p.m. Wednesday against Fulton, providing they win their Monday game with Dexter-Hardin.

Semifinal games will be played Thursday with the championship contest set for 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Here is the 1974 Little League All-Star Team: From the Yanks, Mark Erwin, Robert Santagado and Charles Wells; Twins, Alan Gibbs, Nicky Swift and Kim Kendall; Cubs, Timmy Graham and Mark Young; Astros, Ricky Smith and Don Rodgers; Reds, Fred Kemp and Mike Vaughn; A's, Ricky Garland; Cards, Bob Murray.

Alternates are Gary Emerson of the Yanks, Bradley Wells of the Twins, Mark Denham of the Cards and Keith Edwards of the Reds. Coaches are Hamp Erwin of the Yanks and Barry Stokes of the Yanks.

Recruiting Goes On

Recruiting is still going on in several of the sports at Murray State University.

Two brilliant New York prospects, Mario Donawa and Derrick Melvin, were in Murray this past weekend as the guests of the basketball program.

Melvin is exceptionally quick and has already been labeled by Coach Fred Overton as a starter.

All Melvin needs to do is to ink a scholarship and in talking with him over the weekend, I got the impression he might become the next recruit.

Donawa, as mentioned last week, will be ineligible for next season. He told me Saturday he plans to come to Murray this fall and sit out a year and then play the following season. He would be a sophomore in eligibility while Melvin will be an incoming freshman.

It would also appear the Racers just might nab 6-8 Jerome "Goose" Shanks of Chicago. But whether or not he'll be able to play this coming season remains to be seen.

Recruiting is also taking place in baseball and in track. There will be more information later on the new people in these sports.

In talking with Racer track coach Bill Cornell, he is pleased thus far over his recruits.

It is very well possible Murray track fans might be seeing several Englishmen running for the Racers this fall in cross country and next spring in track.

Most of OVC Champion Western Kentucky's distance men are from England. Western will be the team to beat this fall at the national cross country championships.

Congrats Howard!

Congratulations to Howard Boone of Murray for his performance Monday in Frankfurt at the State Junior PGA Golf Tournament.

Boone, who plays at the Murray Country Club, won the title in the boys 12-13 year-old division by firing a six-over par 76. There were 32 players entered in the division.

Weiskopf Is Calm And Relaxed For Tourney

By RONALD THOMSON

Associated Press Writer
LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, the American golf star who used to brood and sulk when things were going wrong, set off calm and relaxed Wednesday to defend his British Open title.

"The man who is going to win over these next four days will be a patient kind of fellow," said the once-explosive Weiskopf from Columbus, Ohio.

"I don't worry so much any more, I don't get hung up and I feel good," said the man who has yet to win a 1974 tournament but claims his game is sharper than it has been for years. Weiskopf, third favorite to win his second straight British championship at bookies odds of 12-1, is a player all the 153 other competitors fear.

Tony Jacklin, who became the first Briton to win the home championship for 18 years at Lytham in 1969 and went on to add the U.S. Open crown in 1970, picked Weiskopf to repeat his 1973 triumph over the 6,822-yard, par-71 links here beside the often turbulent Irish Sea.

"Tom is playing better than anyone I've ever seen play in practice for a major championship," Jacklin said.

Weiskopf, 32, shrugged off the compliment. "It's nice of Tony to say that," he said, "but if I was picking a winner in advance it would have to be Jack Nicklaus or Lee Trevino."

Nicklaus was the 5-1 betting choice for the title he has won twice before.

Gary Player of South Africa, hitting the ball better than he's done in a decade, was listed at 8-1 second favorite along with grim-faced Johnny Miller of San Francisco, who tops the U.S. money list with $200,000 after five major 1974 victories.

Trevino, the fast-talker from El Paso, was listed at 10-1 to crash back into the British golf scene that he dominated as an Open winner at Royal Birkdale in 1971 and Scotland's Muirfield the following year.

"I just hope it rains and keeps cold and the wind blows all day long," said Trevino. "I'm one of the few Americans who loves it here in the worst weather."

"I hit the ball so low that no one can keep up with my company."

Weiskopf, nursing a hairline fracture of a bone in his left wrist, was defending his title against doctors' orders.

Weiskopf said that winning the British Open changed his life.

"It altered my whole outlook about the game," he said. "I used to be mean and moody but I'm not like that any more."

"You see, now I know I can win the British Open."

"At Troon last year I finally achieved something important in golf."

dium, the site of Philadelphia's home stand against Portland, Legion Field, where Birmingham entertains Southern California, and Orlando's Tangerine Bowl, where Florida hosts the Hawaiians.

In a nationally televised game Thursday night in the Gator Bowl, hometown Jacksonville plays New York.

Owner Bill Putnam of the Birmingham Americans is the most optimistic, envisioning between 50,000-60,000 fans to nearly fill his 70,000-seat Legion Field, while the Florida Blazers appear to have the least to be optimistic about. They have been relegated to the smallest opening-night WFL stadium, the 27,000-seat Tangerine Bowl, and anticipate around 10,000 spectators.

Chicago Fire owner Tom Origer thinks he can attract 35,000 to opening night at 55,000-seat Soldier Field and Philadelphia business manager Ken Bogdanoff says 32,000 will attend the Bell's opening night at 90,000 seat John F. Kennedy Stadium.

Memphis General Manager Leo Cahill forecasts an attendance of between 25,000-30,000 for opening night at 55,000-seat Memorial Stadium, and the Jacksonville Sharks feel they can attract 30,000 to their opener Thursday at the Gator Bowl. League officials and WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson are optimistic that an innovative WFL will draw support. There are owners in the league willing to absorb first-year losses in anticipation of picking up some National Football League stars in 1975.

Among the new-look features the league is offering fans are newly designed uniforms which the league combined in buying on a "color-coordinated" basis and radical changes in some hallowed football traditions, such as the new seven-point touchdown.

Punt receivers may find things tougher for them, since the WFL has banned the fair catch.

Kickoffs will be from the 30-yard line, and missed field goals beyond the 20-yard line will be returned to scrimmage.

Wide receivers will be able to catch a pass with one foot out of bounds, and running backs will be allowed to go in forward motion before the snap. Extra points will be run or passed instead of kicked, and overtime periods will be used to break ties.

The WFL will play most of its games during midweek to avoid competition with college football on Saturday and the NFL on Sundays and Mondays.

Datsun B-210, best mileage of 50 cars tested by Motor Trend Magazine.

For its March issue, Motor Trend tested 50 cars in town and highway. Each car was driven over a 73 mile route of congested city streets and freeways. The mileage on the 50 cars ranged all the way from a not-so-economical 14.8 to a phenomenal 35 miles per gallon. Motor Trend's economy champion at 35 MPG was Datsun's lowest priced model, the B-210. If you're looking for a combination of great value and great gas mileage, look over a Datsun B-210 2-Door 4-Door or Hatchback. Beautiful ways to save.

Mike Marshall Pitches In 58th Game Of Season

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Today's Quickie Quiz, sports fans, is a multiple-choice question that's really not a multiple-choice question.

Q: Mike Marshall (a) did, (b) did not, pitch in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 8-4 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

Even the class dunce knows there's only one answer to that. Of course Marshall pitched...for the 58th time this season. But don't get the idea the Dodgers' relief ace is overworked.

"He had a day of rest," explained Manager Walter Alston. Marshall relieved Los Angeles starter Al Downing with the Dodgers on top 8-2 following a pair of two-out singles in the seventh inning. He got out that jam, but was nicked for a couple of runs in the eighth.

get the next batter (Dave Cash) out," said Downing. "He thought I could get Cash out, too, but he didn't take a chance and let a big inning get started."

Alston bristled a bit when someone asked if bringing Marshall in with a six-run lead wasn't stretching things a little too far.

"No, I wouldn't have done it if I thought so," replied the dean of major league managers. "I made the move because they had been hitting Downing—harder, he hadn't pitched that much and it was 20 degrees hotter than he's used to pitching in. There is no need for my starters to overdo it."

But isn't Marshall overdoing it, someone wanted to know. "The more he pitches, the better he is," Alston said. "He even threw on the sidelines before the game."

Phil's Manager Danny Ozark, who used to coach for Alston, agreed with his former boss.

"You can't say use somebody else when you have so much confidence in the guy," Ozark said. "If I had him, I'd have done the same thing. The guy is capable. He wants to pitch. Use him."

Bill Russell drove in three Los Angeles runs with a single and a homer and Steve Garvey also homered.

Reds 8, Cubs 5
The Reds smashed six home runs, including a three-run shot by George Foster in the sixth inning following five solo shots in the first three innings—Joe Morgan in the first, Tony Perez and Cesar Geronimo in the second and Dan Driessen and Johnny Bench in the third. The first five all came off Steve Stone. Rick Monday and Jose Cardenal homered for the Cubs. "They didn't pick on any one pitch," sighed Stone. "They hit them all."

Astros 5, Cardinals 2
Lee May hammered two home runs and Dave Roberts fired a six-hitter as Houston handed St. Louis its fourth consecutive setback. The Cardinals staked John Curtis to a 2-0 lead in the first two innings, but May smashed his first homer in the bottom on the second and Curtis was chased in the fourth when the Astros scored twice on hits by Roberts and Greg Gross. May hit his second homer in the fifth off Mike Garmon following a single by Bob Watson.

Expos 5, Giants 4
Tim Lincecum's two-run single capped a four-run third inning for Montreal and Mike Jorgensen homered in the fifth for what proved to be the winning run. Winning pitcher Dennis Blair started the third-inning uprising with a single off loser Tom Bradley and was sacrificed to second. A walk to Larry Lintz and an intentional walk to Ken Singleton after the runners moved up on Willie Davis' groundout loaded the bases. Bradley then walked. Bob Bailey and Jorgensen, forcing home two runs, and Foll greeted reliever Charlie Williams with his two-run single.

Pirates 5, Braves 4
Manny Sanguillen's two-run double keyed a four-run fourth inning outburst that helped Ken Brett to his 11th victory. Brett, who is known as much—if not more—for his hitting than his pitching, set up what proved to be the winning run with a hit-and-run single in the seventh. It moved Mario Mendoza to third and he scored when the throw to the infield was mishandled. "It sure helps a lot when you have a pitcher who can also handle the bat," said Manager Danny Murtaugh.

Richie Hebner and Richie Zisk singled to open the fourth against loser Phil Niekro and Sanguillen smacked his double. He moved to third on a single by Rennie Stennett and scored on a passed ball. Mendoza singled Stennett home.

Padres 5, Mets 4
Fred Kendall drove in three runs with a double and single and Dave Roberts socked a two-run homer for San Diego. The Padres built a 5-1 lead and then withstood a three-run homer in the ninth by New York's Ron Hodges.

San Diego went ahead 2-1 against Jon Matlack in the second when Nate Colbert and Clarence Gaston singled and Kendall drove them home with a double. In the sixth, Colbert singled, stole second and scored on Kendall's single before Roberts hit his fourth homer of the season.

Yankees Scoring Runs Easily, Red Sox Win

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Suddenly the runs are coming for the New York Yankees, but Manager Bill Virdon says he doesn't know just why.

The Yankees, who scored only 19 runs in 11 games a while ago, have erupted for 45 in their last five starts, including Tuesday night's 8-2 pounding of the Kansas City Royals.

"I wish I knew," said Virdon, when asked to explain the spurge. "Whatever it is, I'd keep doing it."

"But really, this is closer to what we should be doing," Virdon said. "They say everything even up. I'd settle for leveling off—nine or 10 hits a game, plus some runs."

The Yankees wasted no time against the Royals, belting out six runs in the top half of the first inning, four of them on Graig Nettles' first major league grand slam.

Nettles said his blast, off Paul Splittorff, came on "a fast ball over the outside of the plate. I didn't hit it real good. It didn't look like it was going out at first. It got up in the breeze, and the breeze took it out."

It was the 14th homer of the season for Nettles, who had 11 of them in April before going into a prolonged slump.

"It's picking up again," he said of his hitting. "June, July and August are usually my best months. I usually don't hit well until warm weather."

Rookie Dave Pagan, 1-1, pitched the distance for the Yankees and notched his first major league triumph with a six-hitter.

"He has a good arm," said Virdon of the 23-year-old right hander. "He threw great baseball. Is this his first big-league win? I would think there will be a lot more."

Splittorff, 9-8, gave up a bases-loaded walk to Otto Velez and a bases-loaded single to Thurman Munson before being kayoad by Nettles' opposite-field homer into the Yankee bullpen in left field.

Amos Otis drove in both Kansas City runs with a pair of doubles.

Red Sox 2, Rangers 1
Luis Tiant and Jim Bibby hooked up in a basic, old-fashioned pitching duel in Boston, and Tiant came out on top.

Bibby, the Texas Rangers' hard-throwing young right-hander, fired a six-hitter but it wasn't good enough as Tiant allowed just four hits in pitching the Red Sox to the victory.

"That was a pretty darn good pitching performance on both sides," said Texas Manager Bill Martin, and Boston skipper Darrell Johnson concurred. "You can't get much better pitching from two starters," Johnson said.

"Luis is our big stopper," Johnson added, "and he showed it tonight."

"I had a good fast ball, keeping it low, and a good breaking ball, but the big thing was control," said Tiant, who posted his 12th victory against seven losses.

"In a game like this, you just try not to make mistakes. They have five or six guys who can hit it out, so I just tried to make the good pitch."

The only run off Tiant was unearned and came in the first inning. Cesar Tovar singled, moved up on a bunt single by Dave Nelson and a throwing error and scored on a sacrifice fly by Jeff Burroughs.

The Red Sox tied the score in their half of the inning on an RBI single by Dwight Evans, then with one out in the second Cooper doubled and Yastrzemski drilled a triple off the wall in straightaway center for the decisive run.

Brewers 6, White Sox 5
Big George Scott drove in four runs for the Brewers, finally winning the game with his ninth home run of the season leading off the ninth inning.

Earlier, Scott had three times driven home rookie Robin Yount.

Jorge Orta belted a three-run homer for the White Sox.

Twins 3, Tigers 2
Harmon Killebrew drove in the winning run in the 11th inning with a single off Detroit relief ace John Hiller. Steve Brye had opened the 11th with a single and Rod Carew sacrificed him to second, then Larry Hise was purposely passed, bringing Killebrew to the plate.

The Tigers, who suffered their fourth consecutive loss, had tied the score with two out in the ninth on Bill Freehan's RBI single.

Orioles 3, Angels 1
Boog Powell drove in two runs and Mike Cuellar and Bob Reynolds combined on a four-hitter for the Orioles, who moved into a flat-footed tie with Cleveland for first place in the AL East.

It was the fourth consecutive victory and seventh in eight games for the Orioles. The Angels have lost 10 in a row, including nine since Dick Williams took over as manager.

A's 7, Indians 0
Jim "Catfish" Hunter spun a three-hitter for his second consecutive shutout, raising his season's record to 12-8 and boosting the first-place A's lead over Kansas City in the AL West to 4½ games.

Joe Rudi drove in three runs and Reggie Jackson two for Oakland, while Pat Bourque hit his first home run of the season.

Coach Steps Down
JACKSONVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Jacksonville State's head basketball coach has resigned.

Coach Mitchell Caldwell resigned Tuesday after three years with the Gamecocks, giving no immediate plans for the future. He said he has had several offers. His teams had a 38-38 record.

FOR THURSDAY,
JULY 11, 1974

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(Mar. 21 to Apr. 20)

Some complex situations indicated, but don't be anxious. Your innate competence and proficiency in handling the unforeseen should see you through. Just be prepared to "expect the unexpected."

TAURUS

(Apr. 21 to May 21)

Interruptions? Irritations? You can cope! You will, if you remember that discretion is your better part, and if you emphasize your innate graciousness and understanding.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Pitch into activities with verve, confidence, your usual know-how. If new propositions are made, however, give them careful study. Don't be caught off guard by surface glitter.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Routine, the things you planned and expected would run "just so" may suffer a setback now. Take in stride, however, and go on to something else until clouds lift and you get a better perspective.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

You need not be spectacular or showy in any way to attract or solidify gains. You may even receive more than you give. Good Solar influences!

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Keep everything ship-shape, lest things get out of hand through inattention. Experience should teach—not discourage. Your best efforts will net satisfying reward.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Take precautions in written and verbal agreements and scrutinize all situations carefully. You could discover hitherto unrecognized benefits.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

It will be important to put forth best efforts now. Don't take gains or recognition for granted. Day has plenty of potential, but needs your cooperation.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Be especially careful in personal matters, how you project your aims, desires. Act with discretion, perceptively.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Work for top gains but do not expect them immediately. Be concise in arrangements, stipulations, speech. Narrow the margin for error.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

You will probably be called upon to help persons with overstimulated emotions, to assuage hurt feelings. Be your understanding self.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Manageability must be your keyword now—especially in areas where divergent opinions may be encountered. A day calling for your innate poise.

YOU BORN TODAY:

Unlike most persons born under your Sign, you have an extremely outgoing nature and love the limelight. The stage, therefore, is a natural outlet for the expression of your personality. However, there are other fields in which this characteristic could be an outstanding asset, notably in the legal profession, which could lead to politics or statesmanship; on the lecture platform or, if you have a religious bent, as many Catholics have, you could be a most eloquent clergyman. Highly articulate, you could also succeed as a writer or teacher. If business attracts you, merchandising would be your best bet. Traits to curb: Jealousy and excessive materialism. Birthdate of: John Quincy Adams, 6th Pres., U.S.A.; John Wanamaker, Amer. merchant; Yul Brynner, actor.

According to the Jamaica Tourist Board, many items can be bought there for 60 per cent below the North American price. It says most of the big brand name china and crystal runs about half the mainland list price.

CLU Accuses CIA Of Meddling In Affairs Of Ex-Agent-Writer

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — An American Civil Liberties Union lawyer says the CIA meddled in the personal affairs of an ex-agent who has written what he says is an expose of CIA's Latin American operations.

Melvin L. Wulf, an ACLU lawyer who has corresponded with the former agent Philip B.F. Agee, said Monday night: "CIA tried to interfere in the settlement of the separation proceedings with his wife, to make it difficult to reach a settlement."

Wulf said he thought the CIA intended to lure Agee back to the United States, where the CIA could go into court in an effort to prevent disclosure in his book of secret information. Wulf is representing two former intelligence officials now in a court battle with CIA over publication of secret information in their book.

John Greaney, assistant general counsel for the CIA, refused to comment on Wulf's remarks Monday night.

The CIA has described the Agee affair as a threat to its Western Hemisphere operations. An official source has said that when CIA learned of three trips the former agent made to Cuba since becoming disenchanted with the agency, a review was made of what Agee knew and defensive measures were taken to terminate projects and move undercover persons or arrangements in Latin America.

The official source said it was presumed the ex-agent was forthcoming in Havana. But there was no indication that CIA had evidence that any secret information was given the Cubans.

Agee, 39, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Monday from Great Britain that he has complete a 200,000-word manuscript describing

"what we did in Latin America, why we did it."

Wulf said the Penguin publishing house in London was planning to print the book this fall.

Agee worked as a deep cover agent for CIA in Ecuador, Uruguay and Mexico from 1960 to 1969, when he resigned, according to a source outside government, who has corresponded with him.

Agee said former CIA director Richard Helms "sent a man over to visit me in 1971 in Paris. He wanted to know what was going on." Agee would not discuss other incidents.

Agee on Monday would not talk about details in his book but said the CIA's role in Latin America is to keep insurgent movements below a level requiring the United States to send in troops.

"What we did in Latin America and what we do in so many other countries of the third world is similar to what the United States did in Vietnam," Agee said. "But it is on a lower level; it is not visible."

"It is all under the rubric of counterinsurgency," he said. "The agency's job is to keep the level of insurgent activity below the point which requires sending in troops as we did in Vietnam and the Dominican Republic."

Agee said this "has the result of strengthening minority governments, which perpetuate great wealth for a few and widespread poverty. It has the result of strengthening injustice."

Agee said he had written the book because "I decided the American people should know what we do and make a more conscious decision as to whether they want to continue it."

ROBERT M. HOWES, director of Land Between The Lakes, TVA's big outdoor recreation and environmental education area in western Kentucky and Tennessee, welcomes the Richard W. Eevers family of Sycamore, Illinois, to the newly opened demonstration sites at Hillman Ferry Campground in the northern portion of Land Between The Lakes. Thirty-six sites were recently dedicated in a small ceremony. The sites are part of a 70-unit addition which will serve as experimental campsites to determine the needs and desires to campers to the Kentucky Lake-Lake Barkley area. The sites feature single, double, and triple units and a variety of campfurniture.

Blind Magician Does Not Depend on Secret Signals

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Nigel Richards can't depend on marked cards or secret signals when he names the card a person picks. The 16-year-old magician is blind.

"You never can tell when something could go wrong and show up in front of people," says the Fort Lauderdale youth.

But he says he really has an advantage over sighted magicians.

"They have preconceived ideas and think that everything is done with secret compartments," he says. "I had to start from scratch. It really is a slight of hand."

Richards refuses to divulge any of his secrets, but he says he can do any kind of card trick and most conventional tricks such as cutting and restoring ropes and producing a string of handkerchiefs from a pocket.

Richards, who performs at parties, admits there are a few magical tricks he still has to perfect. However, he says there isn't one that his blindness prevents him from doing.

"I just have to get over my stage fright," he says. "I'm always afraid of fouling up somewhere."

Richards, an outstanding math and science student, says he became interested in magic when a friend told him about a man who could make things disappear.

"I know things can't just disappear because Newton's law says that matter can neither be created or destroyed," he says. "So I decided I could do it myself."

BREAKING ICE

Instead of ramming through thick ice, as many people mistakenly believe, an icebreaker actually slides up onto the frozen water and then crushes down through it with the weight of its hull, breaking the ice. — CNS

Carroll Speaks To High School Editors Meeting

RICHMOND, Ky. — Journalism students were told of the importance of communication in government by Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll during the 6th annual state high school newspaper seminar at Eastern Kentucky University.

"Government must be responsive and that requires an effective system," Carroll said in explaining the functions of the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) and interim legislative committees.

Carroll is chairman of the LRC by virtue of his office, but a law enacted by the 1974 assembly removes that authority as of Dec. 9, 1975.

Carroll said interim committees should "be utilized more fully" since it is impossible for legislators to hear from all Kentuckians. Citizens may attend such meetings to discuss proposed legislation with general assembly members before the official session.

"Interim committees are perhaps the best avenue for communication," Carroll added.

He offered the comparatively easy passage of Senate Bill 280 during the last session as an example of effective study and preparation. The measure recognizes special needs for exceptional children rather than allotting the same amount for every student.

"Senate Bill 280 is an example of what we are trying to do, but it is not a typical bill," he said. "Most everything that can be thought of has been done, but it probably can be done better."

Early discovery vital in Hodgkin's disease

Hodgkin's disease involves primarily the cells of the lymphoid tissue and may start in any lymph node but commonly is first discovered in the nodes above the collarbone or lower nodes in the neck region.

It is most important to discover Hodgkin's early in the hope that it may be stopped locally before spreading into other areas. X-ray treatment is proving successful in the early stages. — CNS

Prison Softball Lowers Barriers Between Inmates Corrections Staff

FRANKFORT, Ky. — "Strike three," bellowed umpire Roscoe Plowman. "Why, you blind. . . That pitch was a mile outside the strike zone," retorted the bristling, red-faced clean-up batter.

Before long, however, the batter's scowling expression melted into a boyish grin and the heated exchange was readily chalked up as one of those things that made the first softball doubleheader matching Kentucky State Reformatory inmates at LaGrange and probation and parole officers unique.

Under normal conditions, the Rev. Plowman would be found behind a desk serving as the reformatory's chaplain and the batter behind bars at the reformatory serving time on a grand larceny charge.

But softball was the name of their game and it encouraged participants to forget their roles for at least a couple of hours. "That's one big reason for having the game and that's what's behind the bureau's efforts to knock down barriers between inmates and corrections personnel," added Plowman.

There were eight probation and parole officers from the Louisville offices on the "state" team pitted against an inmate squad which was two or three-deep at each position.

Ms. Marsh Sorry She Let Women's Lib Down

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "They worked me to death and I couldn't keep up."

So bruised, but determined Marsha Morgan quit her job after 2½ days of hauling 18,000 pounds of old appliances, worn couches, broken televisions and tons of grass clippings each day.

"I couldn't take it anymore," said Ms. Marsh, who uses the title by preference.

She fought long and hard to be allowed a 60-day trial with the Suburban Sanitation Co. at $3.75 an hour.

At first, she was denied the job because the company said women's toilet facilities were unavailable and she might cause trouble with the men.

She sought help from the Ohio Civil Rights Commission which intervened on her side and gave the company a choice: hire her or see her in court. Confronted by unfavorable odds on the field and hostile spectators, the state team brought along two additional men from the Louisville Office

The company signed her on and she began work a week ago. The manager "put me on runs that were heavy loads up to 18,000 pounds of garbage. I worked three days and I died" on Wednesday (her last day) she said.

In a resignation statement, the manager said she wrote, "The work was harder than she thought and it wasn't fair to the men, having to do their work and half of hers."

"There was no pressure from the company for her to resign and there are no hard feelings at all," the manager said. He said none of the men commented on her work, but "some of their wives complained."

Ms. Morgan said she's looking for another job and: "I'm sorry I let women's lib down."

of Economic Security.

"We needed all the help we could muster. . . and then some," chortled Bob Bryant, captain of the state team and administrator of probation and parole in Louisville and Jefferson County.

Bryant said the idea for the game came from Steve Ball, supervisor of the probation office and also a member of the team.

Both Bryant and Ball said they would like to make the game a yearly or even monthly affair at the reformatory. They also advocated similar contests between officers and inmates at other state correctional facilities.

By the way, the final score of the first game was: Inmates 25, State 2. The nightcap also resulted in an inmate romp, 14-0.

Coffee 'cherries' picked by hand

Coffee must be picked by hand to make sure that only the ripe "cherries" are selected.

The fruit does not ripen all at once, so that a 6-year-old tree may yield from one to 12 pounds of green coffee.

Death Of Earl Warren Removes Figure Linked To Landmark Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The death of Earl Warren, a champion of the Bill of Rights in his 16 years as chief justice, removes a figure indelibly linked to landmark decisions of the Supreme Court in one of its most controversial eras.

Warren, 83, died in Georgetown University Hospital Tuesday night, a little more than five years after his retirement from the nation's highest judicial post. A hospital spokesman said he died of heart failure.

Plumbers. . .

prosecution attorneys will present final arguments Thursday. Gesell plans to issue final instructions to the jury of six men and six women Friday.

In anticipation of Kissinger's appearance, hundreds of persons had lined up outside the courthouse and the courtroom itself. Kissinger was just back from Europe where he consulted with NATO allies about President Nixon's Moscow trip.

Ellsberg leaked the Pentagon Papers study of the Vietnam war to The New York Times in June 1971, an incident that led to creation of the plumbers, a special White House investigative unit of which Young was codirector.

Young testified last week in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

The plumbers planned and carried out the Sept. 3, 1971, break-in at the Beverly Hills, Calif., office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, in an unsuccessful search for Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

Through his approval of the entry, Ehrlichman, 49, is accused of conspiring to violate Fielding's rights. He also faces four counts of lying to the FBI and a grand jury.

G. Gordon Liddy and Miamians Bernard L. Barker and Eugenio R. Martinez, also are charged in the conspiracy count.

In his final two hours of his own defense Tuesday, Ehrlichman was questioned about a series of inconsistencies between his trial testimony and documents.

Generally, the former chief White House domestic affairs executive cited a bad memory for any conflicts.

In the closing minutes of his testimony Ehrlichman was asked whether he knew that to examine Ellsberg's medical records someone would have to get inside Dr. Fielding's office.

Ehrlichman answered that in 1971, "My mind just didn't dwell on the various possibilities. My mind didn't run over means and methods at that time." Ehrlichman has claimed in the trial that he authorized only a covert operation against Ellsberg, not the break-in.

Barker and Martinez, who actually raided Fielding's office, also took the stand on their own behalf Tuesday. The two veteran CIA agents said they believed the break-in was nothing more than another CIA operation pulled off with full approval of high-ranking U.S. government officials.

The last testimony is to be heard today.

Under his leadership, the court struck down segregated schools, laid down the rule of "one man-one vote" and greatly expanded the rights of the accused in criminal cases.

Tributes came swiftly for the man whose years on the court were marked by criticism, which included demands for his impeachment.

President Nixon, who often was at odds with Warren in their years as California politicians and who criticized many of his court decisions, saluted him as "a partisan for America."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, named by Nixon to succeed Warren and steer the court toward "strict construction" of the Constitution, said "his contribution was large indeed."

Rosa Parks, the black seamstress whose refusal to give up her seat to a white man started the Montgomery bus boycott, said, "We have lost a great friend to humanity."

Warren was admitted to the hospital July 2, suffering from a heart ailment. It was his second hospitalization in two months.

With him at his death were his wife, Nina, and the youngest of their three daughters, Mrs. Stewart Brien. The Warrens also had two sons.

Only a few hours before, two of the former chief justice's closest associates on the court, Justices William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan, had left his bedside.

A court-spokesman said Warren wanted the two to stay, but they felt he was too tired.

Warren served as chief justice from 1953 to 1969 after a political career in which he served 11 years as governor of California and twice sought the Republican presidential nomination.

He was vice-presidential candidate on the 1948 GOP national ticket headed by the late Thomas E. Dewey, then governor of New York. They lost to President Harry S. Truman.

Though he disapproved of outside assignments for members of the high court, at age 72 he took on the additional load of heading the commission to investigate the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

One of the Warren court's most acclaimed decisions came in June 1954 when it struck down the doctrine of separate but equal schools for the races.

But the decision Warren thought most important was the "one man-one vote" ruling in 1962 that forced states to reapportion legislative and congressional districts to make them more equal in population.

"Legislators represent people, not trees or acres," he said.

As Alameda County, Calif., prosecutor, and state attorney general and governor, Warren

Mitchell Faces More Questioning From Committee On Hunt Payment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell faces more questioning by the House Judiciary Committee about a $75,000 payment to Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt Jr.

Mitchell, who approved the March 21, 1973 payment, told the committee Tuesday he did so with the understanding it was for legal fees, not to keep Hunt quiet. He returns to the stand today.

He also said there was no mention of the payment in a phone call he received from former White House Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman shortly after a March 21 meeting between President Nixon, Haldeman and former presidential Counsel John W. Dean III.

Haldeman's call is a key bit of circumstantial evidence in the Watergate grand jury's indictment of Mitchell and Haldeman, and its naming of Nixon as an undicted coconspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

Mitchell, charged with perjury, obstruction of justice and conspiracy, agreed to testify only within the narrow area of the $75,000 payment and his general relationship with Nixon.

His terms touched off an hour-long argument over whether the committee should be so limited in its examination of Mitchell.

Nixon counsel James D. St. Clair, who requested that Mitchell be called, has focused his defense on the March 21 payment, attempting to prove it was not initiated by Nixon.

Some Democratic committee members objected to being tied to St. Clair's defense strategy in their questioning of Mitchell.

Vinyl Chloride Limit Criticized By Official

CALVERT CITY, Ky. (AP) — A consultant to the Kentucky Labor Department has criticized federal moves to lower the limit on vinyl chloride concentrations to "zero levels" in plastic plants.

Dr. J. Bradford Block, medical consultant, said he supports the contention of the industry that a federal standard of no detectable amounts of the chemical in the air would have grave economic effects on the industry.

"I don't think they're bluffing," Bradford Block told a group of B. F. Goodrich Co. employees here Tuesday.

The U.S. Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration has been trying to set standards that would lower to zero the current vinyl chloride limit of 50 parts per million of air.

Jr., D-N.J., quieted the argument for the moment by ruling that the questioning by special counsel John Doar be held within Mitchell's guidelines. But when the time comes for members to ask questions, the dispute is expected to erupt again.

The limit of 50 was set after reports last winter linked the gas to a rare liver cancer. Five workers at the B. F. Goodrich plant in Louisville have died of the disease. No cases of the cancer have been reported at the plant here.

"I doubt if Goodrich could operate at zero level with the equipment they have now," he said, referring to Goodrich's Louisville plant.

Block told the workers here that if they follow company safety procedures and the company keeps the levels "down to say 15, then I think this is essentially a safe environment, although some people will argue with that."

Block said he hopes the outcome of Labor Department hearings in Washington will be to "get the level as low as possible without putting the companies out of business."

Cows may be sacred in India, but there was a time when they were almost sacred here in America.

You see, when Columbus discovered America, there were no cows here at all. Later, the first settlers at Jamestown Colony neglected to bring cows, and the lack of milk was blamed for their high death rate, especially among children. So when the first cows finally were brought to Jamestown in 1611, they were treasured. And woe to the hunter who mistook one for a deer!

Today, of course, we have cows and milk in abundance. And it's far better milk than the Pilgrims drank. For one thing, theirs wasn't Pasteurized, homogenized, or refrigerated. For another, we have made great progress in the breeding and feeding of dairy cows, and feeding of dairy cows, and in our methods of protecting the purity and quality of milk.

And we're not only getting better milk... we're getting more of it. A good cow today actually produces several times her own weight in milk every year. And any cow worth her salt would feel that she had a bad year if she didn't turn out ten thousand pounds of milk.

Finally, milk is one of today's best bargains. Back around the end of World War II, the average American worked about ten minutes to earn one quart of milk. Today, after years of inflation, he works only about five minutes for a better quart of milk. That's progress!

And that's your reminder to enjoy milk with every meal. If you ever run out, run to Jim Adams IGA where you will find all of today's best bargains.

KKK Grand Dragon Says Carnegie Course Helped

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Dimmie Johnson, elected a Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan at 19, says he owes it all to a Dale Carnegie personality improvement course.

Johnson, a Houston machinist, said the course "has really helped me in the Klan work. I've shown a great improvement."

He was elected Grand Dragon of the Texas Fiery Knights of the Ku Klux Klan at a meeting Sunday in Dallas. Johnson beat out two other men for the No. 2 post in the Fiery Knights behind Imperial Wizard Scott Nelson of Houston, who estimates membership at 200.

Johnson said he has been in the KKK about a year and is anxious to use his new position to improve the image of the organization.

"Our major problem in public relations is the image of the Klan," he said Monday in a telephone interview.

"We're trying to stay away from this violent sort of thing. Every now and then we get somebody in who wants this violence thing, but I don't know anybody in it now who believes that way, although we're not going to be pushed around by other people."

He said he joined "because I'm a white racist and I believe in the separation of the races and I believe the Klan is the best way of achieving that goal."

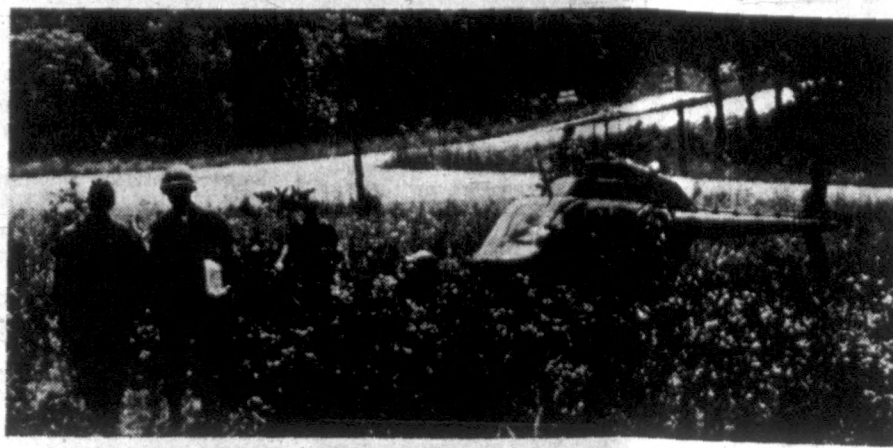

Johnson said he's the only member of his family in the Klan and his parents "are not used to the idea."

Johnson, a bachelor, said his active membership in the Klan hasn't affected his personal life, but he said, "I don't find many girls who think as I do on this. A girl won't expand on racist ideas as readily as a man will."

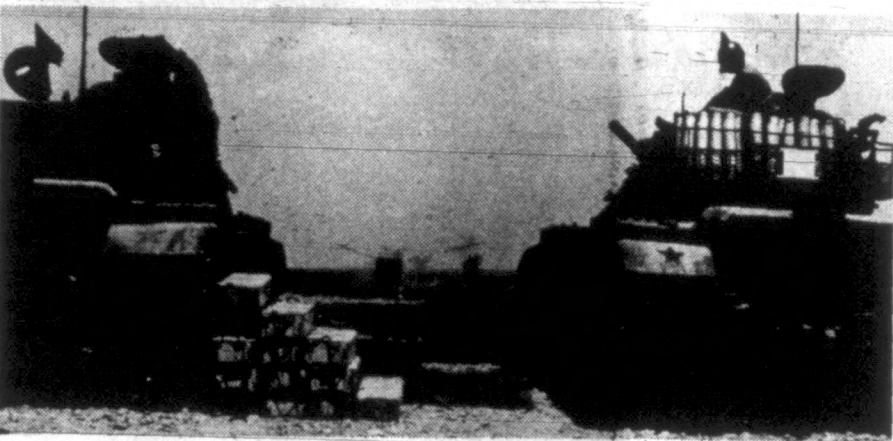

He said some Klan members have had trouble with employers, but he said there's been no noticeable effect at the sheet metal firm where he works.

"I'm planning on running for political office one day, probably as a state legislator," he said. "I don't know if the Klan will help or not."

Frymire Leads Attack Exercises

KENTUCKY NATIONAL GUARD—Maj. Gen. Richard Frymire, (ABOVE, far left) adjutant general of the Kentucky National Guard, participated in training exercises recently at Fort Knox as part of the Guard's annual two-week training session. He accompanied members of the 123rd Armor Division in a simulated armor attack exercise and practice firing on a tank firing range. The 123rd Armor Division has a membership of approximately 1,100 guardsmen from Kentucky.

Guard Enters Annual Summer Training Meet

FORT KNOX, Ky. — Maj. Gen. Richard Frymire, adjutant general of the Kentucky National Guard, participated in various training exercises recently conducted at Fort Knox as part of the Guard's annual two-week training session.

Frymire, an Air Force general and a member of the Kentucky Air National Guard, donned a tank's helmet and mounted an M-60 tank to participate in a simulated armor attack exercise conducted by the 123rd Armor Division.

After the attack was completed, Frymire and other visiting dignitaries boarded helicopters and flew to a practice to increase the accuracy of the armored weapons.

At one point, Frymire watched from atop one of the tanks as it fired rounds at large white targets some three miles down range.

Accompanying Frymire were Gen. Oliver W. Dillard of Fort Hood, Texas, and Brig. Gen. William E. Hall, assistant adjutant general of the Kentucky National Guard.

Nixon And Advisors Looking To Voluntary Restraints As Curb

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and his top economic advisers are looking toward voluntary restraints as a means of curbing inflation without tax increases or new wage-price controls.

Aides say the President is determined to seek voluntary restraints by the federal government and the public sector to battle inflation, which he considers the nation's No. 1 problem.

Nixon planned to devote much of today to a thorough review of the entire economic situation with his economic advisers, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

Summoned to a morning session at the White House with the President were Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, chief economic counselor Kenneth Rusk, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers Herbert Stein, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns and director of the Office of Management and Budget Roy L. Ash.

White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren disclosed Monday that Rusk already has embarked on a campaign of jawboning sessions with representatives of industry, labor and consumer groups to appeal for voluntary restraint. Warren said Nixon is pursuing "with great determination" a program of restraint in federal spending and reducing the budget wherever possible. He said the President believes it is necessary "to educate the American people" to the need for restraint in all segments of the economy to hold down inflation.

Returning to his White House desk for the first time since his Middle East and Soviet summits, Nixon got right down to domestic matters Monday.

He told Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Casper Weinberger he wants to hold down federal spending and described inflation as the nation's No. 1 problem.

Government figures for May, the latest available, place the inflation rate at 10.2 per cent annually. The administration has indicated it hopes to reduce this rate to 7 per cent by the end of the year.

Warren said neither a tax increase nor a return to mandatory wage-price controls is under consideration by the administration.

White House spokesmen said they do not contemplate any announcement from the White House resulting from Nixon's economic conferences today. The President also scheduled a separate session with Simon, who leaves for the Middle East Thursday to direct energy and economic matters there and also at meetings with finance ministers in Bonn, London and Paris afterwards.

Also on Nixon's agenda for the remainder of the week was a Cabinet meeting Wednesday and a Thursday briefing on his Soviet summit for Republican and Democratic congressional leaders.

On Friday, Ziegler said, the President will head for his California White House at San Clemente, where he will stay for about two weeks.

Ocean floor may yield minerals

An estimated hundred million tons of nodules dotting the Pacific Ocean floor may prove a valuable source of scarce metal for the United States.

Kennecott Co. is carrying out experiments in extracting concentrated metals like copper, nickel, manganese and cobalt from these chemical reserves in the ocean hoping to help reverse the U.S. trade deficit for these four metals, currently running about $500 million per year and projected to approach $2 billion in 1985. — CNS

Cowboys Still Active On California Ranch

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Not far from the smog, superhighways and subdivisions is cowpuncher country.

"Once you get your horse out of the trailer, nothing in this business has changed in 100 years," drawled one cowboy on a pre-dawn roundup.

A dozen riders in blue denim, chaps and Stetsons silently guided their horses up a verdant hill toward 1,000 head of beef on the hoof.

The cattle were prodded downhill to waiting trucks that would carry them to feedlots and eventually to butchers and meat counters.

The cattle were grazing at the Hollister Ranch, half an hour west of Santa Barbara along Highway 101 and a couple of hours north of Los Angeles — 14,000 acres of mostly open land along the Pacific.

The ranch is owned by a mortgage insurance company based in Milwaukee. The land is divided into 100-acre parcels, most of it still used for grazing. Other parts have 400,000 houses.

Actor James Arness — also known as television's sheriff Matt Dillon — owns one of the houses.

The cattle belong to the company and others. The cowboys — about a dozen — live in small houses and collect up to $500 a month branding and rounding up the animals. They also keep an eye open for rustlers.

Harold Coach was the most talkative of the generally reticent group.

He retired from the Air Force, after 24 years, in 1965, worked for five years at the base calibration shop and then "I just up and quit one day after my wife died, and I've been cowboying the last two years."

"I've never been more relaxed," he says.

Red River Restoration Of State Capitol May Cost Taxpayers $3 Million

Dam Scored By Society

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Urging Gov. Wendell Ford to avoid a "short sighted mistake," the president of the National Audubon Society has asked the governor to block construction of the proposed Red River Gorge dam.

Elvis J. Stahr said in a letter that the dam "not only will largely waste $30 million of American taxpayers' money but in the process will seriously damage an irreplaceable Kentucky (and American) asset. That's terrible economics as well as terrible ecology."

The governor already has endorsed the project, planned for a compromise site five miles downstream from the scenic gorge.

In his letter, Stahr also argued that tourists visiting the gorge outnumber those who would visit the new lake, and said valuable and rare wildlife would be destroyed or reduced.

He also contended the economic benefits of the dam would not outweigh the costs and said Lexington doesn't need the water supply that would be provided by the dam and there are alternative methods of providing more water.

By SY RAMSEY
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The 1972 legislature appropriated $2 million to restore Kentucky's old capitol. By the time the job is done next spring, the cost will be $3 million.

Nobody is particularly at fault, said Jim Hall, deputy director for state budgeting.

"It's just a set of various circumstances, mainly inflation," he said.

The original capitol, completed in 1829, is the oldest tube in the nation built in the Greek revival style. It stands at the edge of downtown Frankfort and the new Capitol Plaza Tower complex.

The chronology of cost rises may indicate what occurs these days after a project is conceived by the state, after federal aid is sought, after architects and engineers get through modifying it and after the state enacts new regulations.

After the $2 million legislative appropriation the 1974 session added $300,000 to cover inflated costs since 1972.

Meantime, Gov. Wendell

Ford had to make three grants from his contingency fund totaling $506,000.

For federal aid the interior department gave $110,000 and the housing and urban development agency $83,000. Grand total: nearly $3 million.

The original $2 million also was increased $150,000 by the architects. But when it was bid, the lowest offer was about $2.5 million, much higher than the architects had projected.

"It took longer than it should have from programming to the bid stage," Hall said. "That's one main cause of the over-run."

The federal government did not help by changing plans several times.

Hall said the federal revisions, though not major, "caused some confusion" because the officials involved were new at that stage and not familiar with all project details.

He has no argument with some changes, such as less obtrusive lighting fixtures, concealed ductwork for heating and certain revisions which will give the building a more exact original appearance.

State regulations played a role by requiring establishment of access facilities for the handicapped.

Some Kentucky historians won their plea for installation of equipment that would adhere to specifications of the last century.

And engineers also decided $50,000 additional should be spent for air conditioning.

Hall said that during several months of delay the cost of furnishings for the old capitol rose $50,000.

Gen. William Bustee, president of the Kentucky Historical Society supervising the project, said major renovations should be finished by November although opening date is not scheduled until next June 7 — Daniel Boone Day.

That will allow plenty of time for setting up displays, moving in suitable period furniture and obtaining and arranging paintings.

The two front rooms will be furnished in the two dominant styles of the 1800s. The two back rooms will house the Kentucky hall of fame and art gallery. The legislative halls will be restored.

The capitol's annex will house a museum to give a chronological history of Kentucky from prehistoric times.

Is fish really 'brain' food?

Almost all parts of the body contain some phosphate, with the brain containing more than most.

Fish does contribute phosphate to the diet, especially if you eat the bones in sardines and canned salmon, but the brain obtained the phosphate it needs, regardless of how much fish you eat — CNS

Experiment In Year-Round Schools Underway In New Albany, Indiana

By DALE BURGESS
Associated Press Writer
NEW ALBANY, Ind. (AP) — The present ferment in Indiana education nowhere bubbles more briskly than in the office of Robert Holmes, superintendent of New Albany-Floyd County consolidated schools.

It seems an unlikely site for educational revolution.

Holmes operates out of a building where wounded were treated after the Battle of Shiloh. His domain includes Indiana's oldest high school, founded in 1853—a claim disputed by Evansville Central before it disappeared in a consolidation.

But New Albany has never been afraid to try something new in education. The state's first high school radio station, WNAS, went on the air here in 1949.

Now Holmes and his staff are making one of the six studies of a year round school program for the state while pursuing their own unique park-school project with broad implications. He also has delivered a rasping criticism of the 1973 state tax laws, as they apply to schools, to the Senate-House School Finance and Accountability Study Committee.

New Albany was selected for one of the year round school studies, in part, because its school population is growing while most are shrinking, and because it has no kindergartens. The state school superintendent's office has mandated kindergartens everywhere by 1976, which means New Albany has to find about 1,000 seats somewhere.

Running the schools 12 months a year, with one period optional, means a smaller attendance at any one time.

New Albany set up a $7.85 million school construction program in 1973 but inflation probably makes the figure $10 million by now. Year round school might save some of that.

Holmes warns, however, "Nowhere, to my knowledge, when year round education has been pursued, has there been a decline in general operating expenses. But capital expenditures have gone down or been kept even."

He prefers to call year round school "continuous education." He points out that New Albany has an unusually strong summer program taking in 1,978 of 5,960 pupils for the eight weeks. It could be converted fairly easily to a full term.

Holmes has a coordinating council instead of a project director for the year round study. He said, "School is so vitally tied to the daily lives of everyone that I don't think anybody should be solely responsible."

He sees problems from teachers who say they are exhausted by June "but you also hear the cry that many have" to moonlight in the summer. They could work year round at their chosen profession.

The schools, the city and other agencies propose to develop the area between the senior and junior high schools into a center for year round activities. They would include an all-season pool, ice skating rink, handball and tennis courts, a building for organized recreational activities, and possibly a fine arts building.

The same idea of making education part of a community gathering place is behind "the barn." A structure being built with federal revenue sharing funds at Floyd Central High School, which had no auditorium.

Holmes asked area legislators to try for a state law permitting intergovernmental cooperation in such projects and found there already was one, although seldom used.

Meanwhile, in day-by-day operations, Holmes has informed the state school finance committee and Gov. Otis W. Bowen that "the schools are reeling."

He said the 1975 tax package froze the school levies and provided for about a 5 per cent increase in budgets through flat grants. "These have been more than absorbed by 8.8 per cent in inflation," Holmes said.

"They the legislature mandated special education for the handicapped and collective bargaining for teachers. The teachers know they will only get salary increases from something else and there is in-house squabbling for the bones," Holmes said.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—On July 1, a new national education organization came into being: the National Association of Trade and Industrial Educators (NATIE).

Kentuckian Fred A. Martin will be the first president. Martin, a Frankfort resident, is a Floyd County native who is the director of the trade and industrial unit in the Kentucky Department of Education.

Still in its infancy, the national organization has charter members in more than half of the 50 states, "with more applications coming in every day."

Martin pointed out that until NATIE came into being, there were a number of trade and industrial education organizations but no unified voice.

"For example, other disciplines in vocational education for years have had national organizations—these have had a voice in, and in most cases, helped to determine the structure of the programs," Martin said. He added, "There are over 100,000 trade and industrial educators in this country—those concerned have awakened to the fact that they need a strong voice to give visibility to the vocational education programs they represent."

"The job is to unite trade and industry into one force. It can be one of the most influential voices in vocational education in the country."

Industrial Financing Seminar Set

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky Industrial Development Council is sponsoring a Regional Industrial Financing Seminar at the Executive Inn in Louisville July 17.

The seminar, scheduled for 10 a. m.-3 p. m., is open to any person in Kentucky, Indiana and Tennessee interested in industrial community development.

David D. Drake, secretary-treasurer of the council, said that the seminar is designed to acquaint community leaders and industrial developers with current conditions affecting industrial financing and the sources of this financing. The seminar will deal with Small Business Administration financing, Farmers Home Administration financing for industrial development, and revenue bond financing.

Speakers include Jack Ireland, Small Business Administration in Louisville; John Burris of the Farmers Home Administration in Lexington; and John O. Peterson of the Institute for New Enterprise Development in Belmont, Mass.

Reservations to attend the seminar should be made by contacting David D. Drake, Kentucky Industrial Development Council, 40601, by July 12. Reservations may also be made at the door. A fee of $10 will be assessed to cover the luncheon.

Job Corps Reshaping The Earth At Morganfield Site

MORGANFIELD, Ky. — Young men, recruited into the Job Corps by the Department for Human Resources' Bureau for Manpower Services, are literally reshaping the earth. Riding astride giant bulldozers and other mechanical monsters, trainees in heavy equipment operation from the Camp Breckenridge Job Corps Center, near Morganfield, are reclaiming land long since considered lost.

The impetus for this program was initiated by Gov. Wendell H. Ford, who in a press conference held in October, 1972 stated, "Today we begin restoring and returning land rather than writing off this acreage as having fulfilled its usefulness — Man's concern for the environment is worthless, unless man does more than fret and fume. — We had an idea which resulted in a plan. We funded the program and are ready to begin working."

As a result of the Governor's announcement the state has provided a master plan and the engineering specifications necessary to reclaim the land. The initial site, some 260 acres deeded to the state by the Peabody Coal Company, was christened the Satellite Ecology Center.

Though hampered by extremely wet weather, in the early part of 1973, the earthmoving work by corpsmen got under way in June.

A National Guard battalion-size training area was made available and proved beneficial to corpsmen and Breckenridge officials. Dubbed "Tent City" it provided a rallying point at which meals and other creature comforts were made available. Corpsmen stayed at the area to help combat a 15-hour weekly loss in training time due to travel to and from the ecology center.

While much of the training in heavy equipment school on the satellite site is conducted in Muhlenburg County, students at Breckenridge wanting this skill have to spend an initial two-month orientation period on the main campus. After this period is completed students are accepted into the heavy equipment training school.

One basic requirement, however, is that the students either have a high school diploma or are working on their general education development (GED) high school equivalency degree.

Jim Smith, Manager of Operations, points with pride at the work already accomplished by the corpsmen although the stresses that this is only the initial assault on a complex problem. He said, "Our trainees have taken to this like ducks to water. They have accepted the challenge presented us here and regard every gully that is filled, every bank that is leveled as another personal victory achieved by them through sweat, perseverance and the employment of their newly acquired skills."

Ira Bozarth, Manager of Training and a 20-year Army Veteran, who specialized in heavy equipment operations, observed the movement of men and machines from a vantage point overlooking the operations. "I've been in a lot of outfits all over the world but this group is something special," he added. "The esprit de corps we've got here matches any I've seen anywhere. These men have a goal and it's that goal that gives them a common bond. We have an unofficial slogan here, 'Men, not boys, wanted.'"

Much has been accomplished in the past year. Three pre-engineered dormitory buildings, a cafeteria, a combined academic and administration building, a shop-classroom-warehouse building and septic sewer facilities now set firmly on what was once eroded and barren banks. Where marshland and acid pools once dominated the landscape, level stretches of lush grassland now grace the scene. Once naked banks stood hopelessly exposed to the noon day glare. Twenty-five foot-deep gullies criss-crossed the land like unhealed and festering scars. Now gently rolling land presents a pleasant picture to the beholder.

There is much yet to be done. Kentucky has approximately 150,000 acres of strip-mined land. The United States Department of Interior estimates surface mining will adversely affect more than five million acres in the United States by the year 1980. Kentucky is the pioneer in the land reclamation movement. Other projects are going forward.

A 410 acre site in Hopkins County, deeded to the State by the Island Creek Coal Company, has already been surveyed and awaits the imminent arrival of the first corpsman astride his "earth mover". Kentucky is showing the way.

Governor Ford further stated in his press conference, "this marks a new approach in America, to bring old land back to life. I predict other states will follow our example. But even more important, I see a solution to waste, a solution benefiting communities throughout Kentucky, and perhaps countless other states."

Survey Reveals Women's Rights Movement Has Had Little Effect

CHICAGO (AP) — A Loyola University psychologist says he has found that the women's rights movement has had virtually no effect on the way women are portrayed in magazines and children's books.

Dr. John D. Edwards said Monday he had three students survey magazines in the university archives to find out how many women authors appeared and what they wrote about and to find out how women were portrayed in magazine fiction and children's books.

He said the purpose was to determine the effect of the women's liberation movement.

The conclusion: "The role of women in certain publications is very narrow and has not changed over time," Edwards said.

But he added that the media reflect what is happening in society and usually lag behind, so that as the position of women changes their image will change.

Edwards' students, Gale K. Stolz, Gary Hicks and Sharon Gaik, each did one of three segments of the study.

One surveyed nearly 4,300 articles in three magazines—Reader's Digest, the Atlantic Monthly and the Partisan Review—from 1940 through 1970, checking the number of male and female authors and their subjects.

Contrary to expectations, there was no increase in the percentage of women authors through the period, Edwards said. And the percentage never exceeded one-fifth of the total—"an indication of the extent to which male domination of magazines still exists," he said.

Another portion involved the image of women in magazine fiction in 1957, before the movement started, and in 1972.

The magazines studied were Ladies Home Journal, McCall's, Good Housekeeping, The New Yorker, the Atlantic, Saturday Evening Post and Harper's.

Edwards said it had been expected that there would be a difference in occupational images of the women characters, but in fact there was a slight rise in the percentage of housewives portrayed.

Women's magazines showed a slight rise in working, non-married women, while general interest magazines showed a slight decrease.

The smallest category in the fiction studied was always the married, working woman.

The third portion of the study involved a survey of 30 books for children for 1960-64 and 1968-73, randomly selected from the nonfiction list by a public librarian.

While the percentage of women as "occupational models" in these books increased between the two periods, Edwards said the study found no difference in the average prestige level of jobs held by men and women at either time period.

The newspapers named defendants are The Courier-Journal, The Lexington Herald and The Lexington Leader.

The Powell Circuit Court suit says the warning and stories in the newspapers about the warning indicated the two officials "were unfit to be a county sheriff and county judge."

The suit seeks $500,000 in actual damages, $100,000 in special damages and $500,000 in punitive damages, and demands a trial of the case by jury.

Trade Conference Is July 17-18 Navy Scrapping Nearly 300 Ships In Reduction Of 'Mothball Fleet'

FRANKFORT, Ky.—The Governor's Council on Agriculture is sponsoring an Export Trade Conference at the Galt House in Louisville July 17-18.

The conference, which begins at 8:30 a.m. each day, is open to all interested farmers and food processors and is designed to provide information dealing with potential sales of Kentucky agricultural products on the local, state, and foreign export levels.

Scott Sawyers, managing coordinator of market development for the council, said the conference will concentrate on Kentucky's four major agricultural areas: livestock, grain, processed foodstuffs, and tobacco.

Speakers at the conference will include Guy Vanhaeverbeke, deputy director of the European Community Information Office in Washington, D.C.; Oren Staley, president of the National Farmers Organizations (NFO); William Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Dan A. Klingenburg, technical director for agriculture for the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York; and other known authorities on livestock, grain, processed foodstuffs, and tobacco production.

The conference also will include an address by Gov. Wendell H. Ford at the luncheon July 17.

Persons interested in attending the conference should contact Scott Sawyers, Governor's Council on Agriculture Office, Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call Sawyers at 502-564-3450. A fee of $6 will be assessed for each of the luncheons.

Passion play actor shows real anguish

The mayor of Uldecona, Spain, playing the part of Christ in the small town's passion play, was roped to the cross for the crucifixion scene when the town's carpenter and his assistant moved in with hammer and nails to add a touch of realism.

An inaccurate blow fractured the mayor's foot, causing him to let out a heartfelt cry of pain but he limped through the remainder of the play before being carried off to the hospital amid cheers from the audience.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is scrapping nearly 300 old carriers, cruisers and other ships in the first major reduction of its "mothball fleet" since World War II.

Describing them as either worn-out or outdated, the Navy said the 291 ships being sold for scrap "can no longer be economically utilized."

Most were built more than 30 years ago to fight in World War II and the increasingly sophisticated missile systems, electronics and other advanced equipment are incompatible to such old ships, the Navy said.

Their scrapping will leave 536 ships and smaller craft in the Navy's reserve fleet, including many retired in the past five years as the active fleet was cut back sharply.

The Navy said it expects to net about $20 million, which will buy about one-third of a new patrol frigate.

The Navy developed scientific cocooning techniques around the end of World War II which permitted the layup of much of the then-huge fleet for future emergencies. Machinery, guns and other equipment were preserved while the ships were moored like ghosts along the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and in the Gulf of Mexico.

Ships were demothballed and recalled to active duty in six crises and wars after 1945. The biggest such recall came during the Korean War when 549 ships and craft were recommissioned. This was only five years after World War II and many of the ships still were young.

By the time the United States launched into large-scale war in Vietnam, many of the mothballed ships were more than 20 years old. But 50 vessels were reactivated for duty, which included naval shelling of North Vietnam. It took many months to get them ready for sea, and there were reports during the war that some elderly destroyers showed signs of breaking up under structural strain caused by the heavy firing of their gun batteries.

The battleship New Jersey was brought out of mothballs, but more than eight months and about $22 million were spent to get it in shape for bombardment duty off Vietnam. Critics said it was a waste of money.

The Navy said none of the remaining four battleships the New Jersey, Iowa, Wisconsin and Missouri—is on the list to be scrapped.

The list does include five aircraft carriers and 10 cruisers.

The first manned flight with an orbital maneuver (in the U.S.) was Gemini II on March 23, 1965.

Writing an ancient art in China

Chia-ku Wen, the ideo-pictographs found on the "oracle bones" of the Yin-Shang dynasty which ruled China 3,500 years ago, are the oldest known form of China's written language.

The style of writing is not like the writing of today, but some 600 out of the 2,500 characters on the oracle bones are recognizable, suggesting that as early as 3,500 years ago the Chinese already had a fairly sophisticated language system.

Nature Center To Open Soon At Carter Cave

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A new addition to Carter Caves State Resort Park near Olive Hill soon will offer visitors another dimension in environmental awareness.

In the park's Cascade area, an interpretive nature center will open by mid-July and feature museum-type exhibits of the natural history of Carter Caves.

The center, in the making for six months, was developed by park naturalist John Tierney and is designed to reveal the habits and lifestyles of particular birds, animals and reptiles.

Mountain wildflowers, animal tracks imprinted in clay and a map showing the migratory patterns of birds are among the center's colorful and informative displays.

Another highlight is a 16-foot cave diorama—a three-dimensional exhibit depicting the interior of a cave.

In addition to the new center, the park sponsors hikes, cave tours and audio-visual programs.

High Standards Set For Cosmetology

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Hair-dressing has run a gauntlet of extremes, ranging from the elaborate pompadours paraded around the 18th century French court to today's "no-fuss" styles.

Yet another important difference has emerged: a concern with cleanliness and professionalism, thanks to standards set by cosmetology boards.

Carroll Roberts, administrator of Kentucky's Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists, explained that scalp diseases were prevalent until the early 1930's because women wore their hair longer and only washed their tresses every few weeks or once a month.

Then in 1932 General Assembly created the board to promote health standards and regulate the licensing of beauticians.

Today the organization encompasses 25,000 Kentuckians, including apprentices, schools, beauticians and the 4,700 licensed shops in the state. Twelve inspectors routinely check the schools and shops to evaluate sanitary conditions and report any violations.

Ms. Roberts said the board occasionally receives complaints of a person styling hair without a license. An inspector then is notified and a visit to the person's home is made. Sometimes the "defendant" admits his guilt and is given a chance to attend a beauty school to obtain a license.

More often the charge is denied and the case is taken through the local courts if the board can verify the complaint. Violators may be fined $50-$500.

Even a license does not ensure a beautician from further immunity to violations, as they may be sued for malpractice. The board usually is contacted in such cases, but Ms. Roberts noted that they were rare in Kentucky and that she knew of only one settlement in favor of the client.

The requirements for a licensed beautician include 1,800 hours of study at a reputable beauty school and both a written and practical

Spend Or Save Is Question

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—The surveys of consumer sentiment suggest that you are mired in pessimism about the economy and entangled in a dilemma over how to handle your personal finances.

You might say it doesn't take a survey to convey this truth to you—that you could pick up the same results in a few minutes at a supermarket checkout counter. Quite likely you are correct.

But it is the professional surveys, by the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan, by Sindlinger & Co. of Swarthmore, Pa., and by The Conference Board which have the wider audience.

The surveys show, among other things, that you the consumer are struggling to make up your mind about whether to remain entrenched, saving what money you can, or to spend now to avoid still higher prices later.

During past periods of consumer pessimism, the Survey Research Center explains, opinions about spending also were unfavorable. People became aware that the rainy day might be just around the corner, and they saved for it.

This behavioral pattern helped explain in part the curious proliferation of bank outlets on almost every corner in some areas of cities while outlets of almost every other sort were complaining about poor business.

As anyone knows who has seen his favorite restaurant dispossessed by another pennant-waving, gift-giving savings bank, that tendency still persists. But it is being offset to some degree by the buy-in-advance psychology.

In May, for example, the Survey Research Center found that 40 per cent of respondents said it was a good time to buy large household goods, while only 22 per cent said it was a poor time to buy.

The percentages do not total 100 per cent because some respondents answered "don't know" and others gave answers that fit neither yes or no categories.

Behind the buy-now thrust is the growing cynicism of many Americans who feel that little economic good can come to them by practicing the old-fashioned virtue of thrift so long as prices continue to rise. And they believe they will rise.

A widespread lack of faith in government combines with the sense of hopelessness about inflation to produce the pessimism that is so commonly reported now by the surveyors.
