Second Huge Surplus Announced By Governor

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Some state legislators are questioning state revenue estimates after Gov. Wendell Ford announced his second huge surplus of state funds in six weeks, this time one of $33.2 million.

MSU To Receive Part Of State Surplus Funds

Murray State University will receive its share of the newly-announced state surplus funds in the form of $780,000 to renovate the Carr Health Building, according to an announcement by Gov. Wendell Ford Friday.

No details of the renovation were announced, nor any timetable for release of the funds.

Here is a breakdown of projects to be funded from the $33.2 million in surplus state funds which Gov. Ford announced Friday.

Higher Education, total of $12.6 million:

—Health Services Building at Eastern Kentucky University, $1.7 million.

—Renovation of Young Hall at Morehead State University, $750,000.

—Educational and Student Service Building at Northern Kentucky State University, $5.6 million.

—Renovation of Jackson Hall at Kentucky State University, $685,000.

—Renovation of Health Building at Murray State University, $780,000.

—Renovation of Continuing Education Center at Western Kentucky State University, $650,000.

—Central steam and chilled water system at University of Louisville, $2.4 million.

nue, led such questioning Friday after Ford announced the latest surplus to it. Ford announced allocation of a similar surplus, of $40 million, in early June.

Ford's allocation of the new surplus included $12.6 million for several construction or renovation projects at state colleges and $8 million for libraries, vocational schools and other educational uses, to cope with inflation.

It also included $6 million for a new economic development program, to help install utility services at area industrial parks which will serve several communities.

Another $2.5 million will go for raising physician fees paid by the state under its medical program and $2 million will go to continue operating Outwood State Hospital until a private firm can build a new one.

Ford's appearance before the interim committee was itself a first. It resulted from a 1974 law giving the Legislative Research Commission and the A&R Committee more authority in keeping up with state spending.

Ford said he welcomed the first. It resulted from a 1974 law giving the Legislative Research Commission and the A&R Committee more authority in keeping up with state spending.

Faculty Organization Announced At Murray

Several teachers at Murray State University, expressing unhappiness over administrative actions, have set up the Murray State University Faculty Organization.

The acting chairman of the organization, Dr. C.H. Daughaday, said one issue of concern to the teachers was the faculty reorganization proposed by President Constantine (Deno) Curris and approved by the board in February.

"The plan was a bombshell to the faculty because it wasn't consulted," declared Daughaday. "The president told us in the fall of 1973 that he was going to propose a reorganization plan but we never heard anything more until the plan was drawn."

He contended that faculty opinion and representation are vital to an organization and we feel we should have had a say in the reorganization."

Daughaday also accused Curris of failing to keep a promise to give teachers more voice in university affairs.

He said there was some dissatisfaction because 20 teachers were told they wouldn't be granted tenure and would be dismissed at the end of the 1974-75 year. Daughaday said some have been on campus more than 10 years.

Daughaday estimated that 70 to 80 per cent of the 100 teachers working this summer have joined the organization.

The summer faculty is setting the groundwork so that when the full faculty of about 340 return this fall, we can really get this thing off the ground," he said.

Thieves Escape With $6,300 From Storey's

Two bandits escaped undetected with $6,300 from Storey's Food Giant in a daylight robbery of the store Friday.

Murray Police said the two subjects, who are still at large, pretended to use the telephone at the store, and used a fly swatter to rake the money, which was in the office, into a tray.

The tray was then reportedly taken behind the bread counter, where all but about $250 was taken.

The theft was discovered, according to police, after an employee returned from lunch and noticed the money was missing.

Area authorities are still searching for the men, who are said to have left by automobile. The theft occurred sometime around 12:45 p.m. Friday.

Ford Won't Try To Stall Impeachment

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said he won't engage in any "arm-twisting lobbying" to ward off President Nixon's possible impeachment by the House.

"I think that's an insult to most members of the House," Ford said.

At the same time, the vice president, who maintains evidence does not exist to prove Nixon has committed any impeachable offense, said he will campaign for Republicans in this fall's elections on a "highly selective" but still unspecified basis.

Ford himself appeared slightly confused as to what that basis is. He told a news conference Friday afternoon in Roanoke, Va., that he might well campaign for and support Democratic candidate who had shown support for Nixon administration policies.

En route by plane to Hot Springs he modified that stand and repeated earlier statements that there may be some Democratic candidates whose districts he will not enter in support of their Republican opponents. "I have no plans to campaign in person for any Democrats," Ford said through a press spokesman.

Ford did campaign for Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., a member of the House Judiciary Committee which soon must vote whether or not to issue a bill of impeachment against Nixon.

Ford told reporters he would campaign for Butler again, no matter how Butler votes on impeachment.

And he said that holds true for any Republican House member.

Referring to critical comments by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, Ford said: "I certainly would not call the manner in which (the House Judiciary Committee) has operated a kangaroo court. I think they've worked very hard to do a responsible job."

Ford is to spend the weekend playing golf at a resort hotel in Hot Springs. He will address the Virginia Bar Association tonight.

Fighting Rages On In Cyprus In First Hours Of Invasion

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Bloody fighting raged on Cyprus today in the first hours of the Turkish invasion by sea and air.

Greece declared a general mobilization and moved troops toward its border with Turkey.

Fires burned in Nicosia. Turkish fighter-bombers hit a mental hospital, killing at least 20 persons and wounding 60, an Associated Press photographer reported.

Wave after wave of Turkish forces landed on the strategic Mediterranean island where a military coup led by Greek officers last Monday ousted President Makarios and revived Turkish fears of annexation by Greece.

Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said "a high number of Turkish troops have arrived on the island safely. Other troops are continuing to pour into Cyprus in waves."

Turkey regards the coup by the Greek-officered Cypriot national guard as a threat to the island nation's Turkish minority, outnumbered 4 to 1 by Greek ethnics.

Ecevit told reporters there were no casualties among the Turkish troops in the landing operation at Kyrenia. Two Greek Cypriot soldiers were reported killed by a bazooka shell that hit the Lydra Palace Hotel in Nicosia.

A United Nations force of some 2,300 men, sent to the island 10 years ago to keep peace between Greek and Turkish Cypriots, took positions along a line dividing the two communities. U.N. sources said (See Cyprus, Page 12)

Break-In Reported, Demo Headquarters

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Thieves broke into State Democratic Headquarters here one night this week, apparently taking less than $100 in petty cash, it was disclosed Friday.

William Wester, co-chairman of Gov. Wendell Ford's Senate campaign, said the prowlers' attention seemed to have been focused on the party's financial reporting data and his desk.

Wester said his locked desk was broken into but apparently no one else's was. He did not notice anything missing in his desk, he added.

Wester said headquarters staff still was taking inventory to determine if anything else was taken. Financial records were strewn around, he said, but so far nothing appears to be missing except the petty cash.

Wester declined to comment on whether he thought the break-in was similar to the Watergate affair. But he acknowledged he had ordered a sweep of the building to see if any listening devices had been installed.

Doar Recommends Articles For Impeachment Of Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Articles of impeachment holding President Nixon personally and directly responsible for the Watergate scandal are under consideration by the House Judiciary Committee.

The articles are part of a package presented by Special Counsel John Doar, who says the evidence in support of them warrants Nixon's impeachment.

Doar's analysis of that evidence continues today in another closed-door session, dealing with charges of illegal intelligence gathering, misuse of government agencies, tax fraud and contempt of Congress.

More discussions and a presentation of arguments against impeachment by the minority staff are scheduled for early next week and on Wednesday the committee will begin its fateful deliberations, with the possibility of a vote on whether to recommend impeachment by next Saturday. The committee sessions are expected to be televised.

Any recommendation by the committee will go to the full House, which would decide whether to impeach Nixon. If the majority votes impeachment, the charges would then go to trial in the Senate, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

In his opening presentation Friday, Doar dropped the role of the impartial investigator presenting facts without conclusions and laid down what most Democrats described as a strong case for impeachment on the basis of Watergate alone.

His performance produced an angry response from Nixon's press secretary, Ronald L. Ziegler, who said Doar was "out of order in the extreme" in marshalling facts on the side of impeachment.

Several Republican committee members said they thought Doar did a good job in pulling together a case from the mass of material before the committee.

"I think it was a fair time for him to tell us how he thinks," said Rep. Caldwell Butler, R-Va., one of the uncommitted Republicans. "He has been very restrained up until now and I think he was fair today."

Rep. David Dennis, R-Ind., a staunch Nixon defender, said while Doar's presentation was pro-impeachment, "I thought he did it very well."

In a 306-page summary of the evidence, Doar said that Nixon decided shortly after the June

Equipment Maintenance Workshop Now In Progress

Thirteen men, 10 from the West Kentucky area, are participating in a 12-day equipment maintenance workshop at Murray State University, one week of which will be conducted at a McMinnville, Tenn., manufacturing plant.

The group, directed by John Belt, an instructor in the Department of Industrial Education at Murray State, is studying and being trained in the maintenance and repair of wood and metal processing equipment.

At McMinnville, they will be the guests for five days, beginning July 21, of Powermatic Haudaile, Inc., a firm which manufactures all types of wood and metal processing equipment.

There, in a classroom situation using every type of equipment manufactured by the company, the workshop participants will be instructed eight hours each day by company officials and the plant's equipment specialists. They will return to Murray July 26.

The workshop, which carries three hours of credit, opened today and will continue until Aug. 2. Participating are:

Jimmy D. Lee, Donald Beaver, Johnny Burlison, Joe C. White, and Jerry S. Vaughan, all of Murray; Alan N. Cherry, Calvert City; James Edwards, Cadiz; Richard Melton, Hopkinsville; Bruce Mudd, Arlington; and Pepper Tyler, Benton.

Ed Coffman, Elizabeth, Ind.; Gerald S. Fitts, Poseyville, Ind.; and Edd Lee Goodman, Port Charlotte, Fla.

NEVER TOO OLD TO LEARN: William M. (Mike) Fitzsimmons, Lone Oak, right, loves astronomy and looks forward to discussing it with people at Murray State University like Dr. James M. Kline, chairman of the Department of Physics and Astronomy at the University. Retired since 1966, the 74-year-old Fitzsimmons is a self-taught astronomer, and has become a recognized area authority on sun spots, or flares, on the sun, which he scientifically observes twice daily.

MSU Visitor Enjoys Hobby Of Astronomy At Lone Oak Home

Since he was a small boy, William M. Fitzsimmons, 74, of Lone Oak has seen spots before his eyes.

Partly cloudy, hot and humid through Sunday, with a 30 per cent chance of afternoon or evening thundershowers today. High today and Sunday in the upper 80s to mid 90s. Low tonight near 70. Hot and humid on Monday.

Below dam 301.6 up 0.1.
Barkley Lake, 7 a.m. 357.3 up 0.1.
Below dam 303.2 down 0.4.

Not because of any physical illness, however. He's an enthusiastic astronomer, and his primary interest is in the sun spots, or flares, on the sun.

Every morning, weather permitting, he gets out the engineer's transit he uses and peers into the sun, generally between 8:30 and 9 a.m., to check for sun spots. Each evening "just before sundown" he repeats the process.

Using a 3-by-5-inch card each time, he indicates in a drawn circle the position of any sun spot observed, dates the card and notes the time.

If he notes something significant, copies are made of the card and sent to government space agencies, many of which acknowledge his interest by sending him actual photographs of the phenomenon as well as related published materials.

Fitzsimmons, who lives at 226 Eleanor, says he has been observing and studying the galaxies "since I was big enough to get out and look at the moon."

In 1910, he recalls watching Halley's Comet streak across the sky. More is known about his comet than any other, he points out, emphasizing that it will not be visible again until 1986. Records, he says, indicate it has appeared 29 times within the past 3,000 years.

The planet Jupiter is perhaps his favorite. For years he has kept close records on Jupiter and her 10 or 12 "moons," especially when the planet appears as the "evening star."

Retired since 1966, Fitzsimmons spent 24 years with the Tennessee Valley Authority and 20 years as a construction welder. During World War I, he spent two years at sea on a U.S. Navy cruiser.

Gardening Tips from Extension Specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture

As a breather in this succession of things to do when and where in the garden, this week we are going to digress on the subjects of lawns. At the same time and in an oblique sort of way, we are going to give thanks to inventors and others who in recent years have contributed so much to make the job of lawn-keeping less tiresome and difficult.

There's nothing that contributes more to the attractiveness of a homestead than a well-kept lawn. In times past, this took some doing. Sharp scythes or flocks of sheep were first used to keep the grass at a desired level. Rakes and brooms made of twigs were used to remove the scythe cuttings and heavy stone or wood rollers helped keep the lawns reasonably smooth.

We might still be maintaining our lawns with scythes or sheep had it not been for a character by the name of Edwin Budding of Old England.

Back in the dim days of 1830, while observing a machine used by a weaving factory to shear the nap off cloth, Budding put his imagination to work and using the nap-shearing principle as a basis, invented the first contraption for shearing lawns.

A historian for the company that manufactured the Budding mower leaves this description of the invention, which is very similar to mowers still on the market and in use today.

According to this description, the original mower had a cylinder to which spiral knives were fixed and a horizontal blade against which they worked. The cylinder was caused to rotate by gears driven by a large roller at the back of the machine. Then, there was a front roller that could be raised or lowered to adjust the height of the cut.

An advertisement for this new machine stated that it cut the work of cutting grass by half, that it was much less tiresome than using a scythe, and that it did a much neater job.

The ad emphasized that even women "unpracticed in the Art of Mowing may cut the grass on Lawns, Pleasure Grounds, and Bowling Greens with ease."

If Budding were alive today he no doubt would be amazed and not a little delighted to see what has resulted from his imagination and skill. From his original machine has come the handy and highly efficient rotary and reel grass cutters, some gas and some electric powered. Some can be ridden, others are self-propelled, and some have accessories to catch the clippings.

Budding did mankind a great service and could very well deserve the title as patron saint of lawn mowers.

PLAY CLOTHES

Are your children's summer play clothes in sad condition? Some outgrown, some just too short?

"Take a good look at them before discarding and see what can be matched or paired with something else," suggests Helen Rader, University of Tennessee Extension clothing specialist.

Long pants which are now too short can be cut off to make shorts, she points out. And a too-short dress can be made into a smock-type blouse. Perhaps the fabric left from shortening the blouse could be used to hem shorts, thus coordinating the outfit.

Long dresses which are too short can be made into short dresses to be worn now, continues Miss Rader. Or skirts or shorts can be made of the long dresses.

Remove the sleeves from blouses or dresses and bind armholes. Shorten blouses or dresses to make bare-midriff tops to wear with shorts or pants. Other blouses which are too short can be made into bare-midriff tops by tying a knot in front.

"Look through your fabric scraps; occasionally there will be one-half yard of fabric left over from making a garment," suggests the specialist. "Use your ingenuity. Several of these scraps can be combined to make a patchwork single garment. Or they can be made into garments which can be worn together, like pants and tops or skirts and blouses."

Perhaps some of the discarded clothing items of other family members can be used to make wearable clothing for younger children. "With the high cost of clothing, every means of stretching the budget should be taken," points out Miss Rader.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert McCuiston

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert McCuiston will be celebrated on Sunday, July 28, with an open house from two to 4:30 p. m. at their home, one-half mile north of Kirksey.

All friends and relatives are invited to attend. The couple was married July 24, 1924, in Paris, Tenn., by Rev. E. M. Mathis. Their attendants were Crellis Edwards and Lois Smith.

Mrs. McCuiston, the former Novelia Riley, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Riley of Graves County.

Mr. McCuiston, a retired die setter from Dearborn Heights, Mich., is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. M. McCuiston of Calloway County.

They have one daughter, Violet Mae, who is married to Rev. William T. Newsome, and resides in Louisville. Two granddaughters are Sharon Newsome Collings and Pamela Newsome, and three great grandchildren are Donald Earl Collings, Jr., Stacey Marie Collings, and Stephanie Leigh Collings.

Health-wise

By Helen F. Andrew, M.S., Health Educator

Do It Yourself

This column is devoted to the premise that good health is essentially a do-it-yourself project. This does not mean self-dosing with pain-killing, sleep-inducing, anxiety-lowering drugs. It does mean acquiring a basic knowledge of how the body functions and what it requires to maintain a state of health.

What we are talking about from the doctor's point of view is preventive medicine — a field which is receiving increasing attention from the medical profession.

Preventive medicine is concerned not so much with what a doctor can do to or for a patient but with discovering and changing faulty habits of living which are known to produce disease. Success depends upon educating and motivating people to take an active role in maintaining health.

The vital importance of do-it-yourself health care has been demonstrated by scientific research into the cause-and-effect relationship between smoking, drinking, underexercise, and poor nutrition and the whole array of degenerative diseases that are producing disability and premature death.

Your doctor can check your weight, test your blood pressure, X-ray your lungs, measure your cholesterol level. He can point out your body's warning signals of heart disease, stomach ulcer, lung cancer, arthritis, and many other ills. He can provide diet sheets and exercise charts, and advise you to stop smoking or drinking or overeating.

But only you can make the decisions and exercise the will power to bring your lifestyle into harmony with the laws of your being physically, mentally, and spiritually.

We subscribe to the definition that health is not simply the absence of disease but an active state of physical and mental well-being. For this reason the major emphasis of these brief weekly health chats is on those aspects of health which are under your personal control rather than upon miracle drugs and dramatic breakthroughs in surgery, which at best can only patch up a permanently impaired body.

Since the food we eat is the single most important aspect of healthful living, good nutrition gets a proportionate amount of attention — perhaps to the neglect of another important subject, exercise.

Next week we want to share with you some good advice from Dr. Leon Root, an orthopedic surgeon who believes that "more than 90 percent of the chronic back pain problems that are plaguing Americans in epidemic proportions can be overcome through one's own efforts."

And that brings us back to our starting point: good health is a do-it-yourself project.

Married In June

In a double ring ceremony at one o'clock, Saturday afternoon, June 15, Mrs. Imogene Malone and Roy Arlon Willoughby were married by the Rev. John Hedges, pastor of the New Cross Roads Baptist Church of Vale.

The ceremony took place at the New Bethel Baptist Church, north of Henry. The altar was centered by a basket of pink glads and blue daisies with candle trees and pink candles and Jade palms at each side.

Mrs. Rita Thomas, pianist and vocalist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte, "Wedding Prayer" by Dunlap and Bond's "I Love You Truly".

As the bride was given in marriage by her son Jackie Malone, she was wearing a peacock blue street length suit, and a navy blue blouse with a pink orchid corsage. She wore drop pearl earrings and necklace that belongs to a friend.

Her attendant was her daughter Mrs. Jerry Jackson who wore an aqua knit outfit and a white carnation corsage.

Dallas Willoughby of Murray served his father as best man. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Vester Stallings and the groom's parents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Willoughby.

The new Mrs. Willoughby chose a white suit and pinned on her wedding orchid for their trip to the Smokey Mountains. They are now at home on Route 3, Paris.

Out-of-town people attending the wedding were the bride's daughter and husband Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Wiggins of Tupelo, Miss.; Earnest Ratterman of Cincinnati, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wallace of McKenzie; the Rev. Harold Owen, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Willoughby, Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Chadwick, Mrs. Ruby Harris, Hugh Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Lubie Wallace, all of Murray; Wallace Willoughby of Alabama; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wallace, Clarksville, Tenn.; Mrs. Charlie Beard, Mrs. Lovie Scarbrough, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Parker, Paris.

How to choose

When banana prices hit the 10-cent per pound level, don't hesitate to stock up. Bananas at all stages of ripeness can be used.

•Green-tipped or "turning ripe"—The peel is pale yellow with green at the stem end and tip. Pulp is firm, starchy and slightly tart; may be baked or fried. Leave at room temperature to further ripening process.

•All-yellow or "hard ripe"—The peel is all-yellow, sometimes with a trace of green at the tips. Pulp is firm and 80 percent to 90 percent of starch has been changed to fruit sugars. Some people prefer eating out-of-hand at this stage.

•Flecked with brown or "fully ripe"—The peel is deeper yellow with brown flecks. Pulp is mellow and practically all starch has been changed to fruit sugars. These are best for use as fresh fruit, salads, drinks, desserts, pies, all bakery products and infant food.

To extend the keeping quality of bananas a few days, refrigerate at desired stage of ripeness. The peels will darken, but quality is not affected.

To keep up to one month, mash fully ripe bananas and freeze in one-cup portions in proper freezer containers. Thaw in unopened containers; use for baking.

Olives in hubby's nose are embarrassing

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a radiologist. He's a wonderful husband and an excellent provider, but he has some peculiar ideas.

For example, when we go out for an evening, he orders a vodka martini with eight olives. If for some reason he doesn't get the eight olives, he cancels the order and asks me to leave with him, which is very embarrassing.

This is not the worst of it. If he gets the olives, one by one he puts them in his nose and sniffs out the juice. He claims it clears his sinuses.

I don't mind when he does this at home, but when he does it in public, I want to crawl into a hole.

He doesn't have any allergies or sinus trouble, so I can't see the sense of this. Should he find a psychiatrist?

RADIOLOGIST'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes, but he should find one who drinks martinis with a twist of lemon so they won't fight over the olives.

DEAR ABBY: What does a mother do when her 20-year-old daughter insists on going with a fellow who has no ambition or drive? She is pretty and smart and could do so much better. He is such a nothing. It just tears me apart to see her heading toward a marriage with him. I have talked my heart out, but it does no good.

They have gone steady since she was 17, and she won't even look at anybody else. How can I keep her from throwing her life away on this boy?

HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If she won't look at anyone else, she is obviously in love with him. Don't knock him, or try to tell her how much better she could do or she will feel compelled to defend him. And instead of talking her out of marrying him, she will talk herself into it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a pet peeve. There are parking places marked "For handicapped only" near some stores and office buildings as an accommodation for those who have difficulty getting around.

Although I am handicapped, I can still drive, but more often than not, those "reserved" parking places are taken by people who are not handicapped, but are too lazy to park elsewhere. I have seen them jump in and out of their cars while I hobble along on my crutches trying to hold some packages in my arms. If you think it's easy—try it sometime!

ANGRY

DEAR ANGRY: I don't blame you for being angry. Next time, speak up. You'll feel better, and it might penetrate.

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you because I thought I had V.D. I never thought you'd answer my letter, but you did. After I got your letter, I took your advice and went to a clinic and got a blood test. I could hardly wait until I got the results.

Well, I called up the clinic and they told me the results were negative! Abby, I don't think I have ever been happier in my life.

I hope other people who suspect they have V.D. don't wait as long as I did to take a test. I am a married man, which made matters worse.

After I got the results, I promised myself that I would never let myself get into a spot like that again.

LUCKY IN N.J.

DEAR LUCKY: V. D. is still one of our most serious health problems. I hope this reminder will serve to jar others into acting. Those who can't afford a private physician can get FREE and confidential examinations and treatment through their county health departments. This includes minors.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Dr. Strohecker Honored By Murray UDC Chapter

Dr. Edwin C. Strohecker, director of the Murray State University Library, was guest of honor at a recent meeting of the J. N. Williams Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

The members had voted unanimously that Dr. Strohecker be received into the chapter as an honorary member and a certificate of merit from the Kentucky Division UDC was presented to him. The certificate read "For Courtesy, Interest, and Helpfulness Shown The J. N. Williams Chapter."

Miss Maude Forrest Nance, chapter president, made the presentation and said:

"Dr. Strohecker is probably the first Pennsylvanian ever to receive this award from the UDC. Perhaps we should warn him that we mean to make a Kentuckian of him. Really, Dr. Strohecker, it is quite useless to struggle against your fate; when Kentuckians decide to take over and assimilate a product of Pennsylvania, history will prove to you that Pennsylvania simply doesn't stand a chance. For example, who remembers that Daniel Boone was born in Pennsylvania? He is known throughout our nation as one of our first great Kentuckians. What happened to that long-barreled gun that a Pennsylvania gunsmith started making back in Boone's early days? It is now our famous Kentucky rifle."

"We Kentuckians are a proud people. We are willing to accept from Pennsylvania and to make our own only the best Pennsylvania has to offer: Daniel Boone, the Kentucky rifle, shoo-fly pie and apple pan-dowdy, and our good friend, Dr. Edwin C. Strohecker."

In a short address Dr. Strohecker expressed his appreciation for the honor to him by the Kentucky Division UDC and the local chapter. He said "I hardly know how to thank you ladies. In accepting this award I feel that I am also receiving something even better; a share of the genuine friendliness and hospitality for which your state is so well known. I cannot look upon the prospect of becoming a Kentuckian as anything but a very pleasant experience; you see, I married a Kentucky girl, and my wife began my conversion the moment we met."

Dr. Strohecker was born in Allentown, Pa., near Gettysburg. Allentown is remembered by historians as the place where, in its Zion Church, our country's Liberty Bell was hidden for a time from the British. Dr. Strohecker received his Doctorate at the University of Michigan, but he has resided at various places in the south since 1950. He is married to the former Virginia Nunn of Barren County, only sister of Former Governor of Kentucky, Louie Nunn. They now make their home in Murray.

July Yard Of The Month Named By Department

The Garden Department of the Murray Woman's Club has selected the offices of Hurt, Christopher, and Jones, Attorneys at Law, 105 North Sixth Street, for the July Yard of the Month award among business establishments.

The overall landscaping design with its impressive variety of plants, practical use of natural mulches, and effective minimizing of large paved areas through extensive plantings of trees and shrubs creates a highly attractive environment in the downtown area.

Triangular arrangements of Taxus Intermedia flank the entrance pillars, and three varieties of holly - Foster, Ilex Rotunda, and Helleri - appear alongside the walk and front entrance to the building.

Large beds containing blue rug juniper, ajuga, and periwinkle, completely mulched with pecan hulls, provide easy maintenance and eliminate the need for mowing the front lawn. Common Boxwood beneath the windows completes the landscaping of the front yard.

The sidewalk leading to the right entrance is flanked by dwarf burfordi, Chinese, and Helleri hollies, and a Nellie R. Stevens holly is situated near the side door. Flowering dogwoods add beauty to this area and provide shade for the parking lot.

An immense bed adjacent to the parking area features an attractive design of pecan hulls interspersed with a graceful, curving formation of white pebbles. A large pin oak serves as a focal point of this bed, and low growing andorra junipers appear near the railroad ties which separate the yard and parking areas.

Dwarf flowering crab trees, Mahonia Beall, and Chinese and Japanese hollies planted alongside the right wall contribute to the beauty of the side lawn.

A rear courtyard features silver edged English holly and red geraniums along its interior wall. Azaleas and strap-leaf laurel on the left side of the building complete the landscaping of this attractive office.

SELECTED AS the July Yard of the Month for business establishments by the Garden Department of the Murray Woman's Club was the building for the offices of Hurt, Christopher, and Jones, Attorneys at Law.

Moon Walk Day July 20, 1969

For centuries the moon hung tantalizingly just beyond man's grasp, challenging his imagination and ingenuity. Then, on July 20, 1969, two U. S. astronauts did the impossible—they set foot on the surface of the moon.

Since that time, July 20 has come to be known as Moon Walk Day. The memorable moon exploration by Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin, Jr. lasted 21 hours, 36 minutes and 16 seconds while the moon walk, initiated by Armstrong, took two hours, 15 minutes. During the exploration Apollo command module pilot Michael Collins orbited the moon in the command ship

"Columbia."

Beyond the historical significance of the moon venture, which did not stop with the initial exploration, lies an even greater potential for technological advances surpassing even the wildest imaginings of Jules Verne.

In the midst of unlocking the mysteries of the universe, man has found it possible to apply the knowledge and skills of the U. S. space program to solving problems here on Earth.

Our opportunities to further the condition of mankind are as limitless as the starry heavens that surround us.

Inflation And The White House

From The Christian Science Monitor

The latest Gallup Poll put at statistic on what everyone already knew: that Americans see inflation as the country's number one problem. Inflation outranks the "lack of trust in government" by a margin of three-to-one.

The poll indicated that it wasn't just the poor who feel squeezed by inflation. The group most anxious over it were where most voters are - in the $10,000- to $15,000-a-year earnings range.

The administration is just beginning to take up inflation as its next visible cause. Last week the White House invited a group of business leaders to talk with the President. Mr. Nixon was in a listening mood.

There is really no consensus on what to do about inflation, among businessmen or economists. The administration has no big plans for tax increases to help dry up excess demand and reduce the federal deficit. Nor is it likely to go for tax cuts to try to steer clear of recession. Inflation itself is boosting federal spending levels by making it more costly for the government to meet interest payments on the federal debt, and is jacking up prices of the goods and services the government buys. The President's promise to swell mortgage funds to help the housing industry, plus Congress's attempts to boost veterans and housing outlays, also make budget cutting a not too promising route for attacking inflation.

The most likely course for the administration to take is a variation on its "Gradualism" approach of 1969. This is in effect no change from the present course of letting high interest rates bear the brunt of cooling the economy. The trouble is that gradualism largely failed in 1969, and then inflation was 6.1 percent or half of what it is today. Businesses are already paying a prime rate of 12 percent on loans and continuing to borrow as much as they can, so the high rate approach appears to be having little effect.

Time is against the administration's doing much to affect the economy by November's election. It takes six months for economic programs to start to show results, and after the White House announces its new economic plans next week only four months will remain.

Besides, 1974 is a year of impeachment politics, not normal election politics. In 1971 and early 1972 the White House favored liberal spending and credit actions to heat the economy after the recession of 1969-1970. This helped trigger the inflationary surge that began in 1973 and continues this summer. No such action is likely now.

The impeachment calendar puts a House vote back into late August or early September at best. If a bill of impeachment is voted, this suggests a Senate trial starting Oct. 1, or possibly after the Nov. 5 elections. Within this framework, the White House will avoid antiinflationary actions that would send unemployment higher than the 6 percent forecast for the fall.

Looked at another way, the calendar for the summer and fall gives White House and Congress an opportunity to take some actions - such as support credit restraints on consumers and certain nonessential industries - that would begin to halt inflation.

As it is, labor is getting ready for large wage demands, after more than two years of relative restraint. If higher wage settlements are added to the inflationary thrust of high interest rates, the inflation challenge will be compounded.

Your Individual Horoscope Frances Drake

FOR MONDAY, JULY 22, 1974

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) ♈

Some challenges possible, but face them — with confidence. With the Aries' excellent foresight and ingenuity, you should solve all situations handsily.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) ♉

A good day for promoting business matters, with some unexpected good luck possible. Look for unusual cooperation from associates.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) ♊

A new week which should bring you strengthened purpose and stepped-up ambitions. You can achieve much, both on your own and with backing.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) ♋

Don't put anything into operation without knowing if you can follow through. Your fervent desire to attain must be thoughtfully directed.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) ♌

Your receptive mind should be stimulated now, so don't let down in purposeful, vigorous action. A good day in which to design measures for increasing efficiency.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) ♍

This day's success will depend largely on your mental attitude. Do not be disappointed if all your wishes are not granted immediately. Take delays in stride.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) ♎

Beneficent stellar influences heighten your perception. Your ingenuity in a tricky job situation will win laurels from superiors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) ♏

Do not get caught up in a dilemma of indecision or scatter efforts in so many directions that you accomplish nothing. Use that good judgment of yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) ♐

Auspicious Jupiter influences fan the fires of enthusiasm for dedicated purpose, popular enterprises. This should be a day never forgotten.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) ♑

Protect assets. Don't let money slip through heedless fingers, nor let talents be wasted on fruitless ventures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) ♒

Ask questions, but listen well to the answers, and use care in interpreting relevant facts. You will encounter both high caliber motives and dubious ones.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) ♓

Competition may be keen but, where you have the know-how, don't be afraid to enter the race. Especially favored: maritime pursuits and occult interests.

YOU BORN TODAY are a highly sensitive and idealistic individual, often at a complete loss in a crassly materialistic world; should, therefore, avoid a business career unless you can develop a harder shell and live your dreams through an avocation such as writing, music, poetry or painting. Your love of family and friends is outstanding, as is your respect for heritage and tradition. You make intuitive, understanding companions, nurses, doctors, homemakers and teachers. In the proper niche, yours can be an extremely happy life, and your achievements of the enduring type. Birthdate of: A. Ashley Cooper, Eng. statesman.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 21, 1974

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) ♈

The Aries' innate good judgment should help you to find satisfactory solutions to possible problems. Benefits indicated as a result of past good efforts.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) ♉

Stellar influences now stimulate your personality and your talents, but you must USE them. A day for logical thinking and acting.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) ♊

Less than your finest will not be acceptable now. Others know what you CAN produce, and will expect it.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) ♋

A self-possessed, unruffled manner, coupled with a sound investment of time and energies, are this day's requirements. Heed!

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) ♌

If you do not understand a situation, seek counsel from more experienced heads. Do not rely on guesswork. It could only lead to confusion.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) ♍

Your planetary influences will be highly stimulating on Sunday, but be careful not to overtax yourself. Skilled action, evenly paced, should bring progress in keeping with high hopes.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) ♎

Keen perception needed. Don't risk assets on the basis of "information" backed by nothing substantial.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) ♏

Don't let yourself be influenced by first thoughts, first impressions. You could be mistaken about motivations, indications, your own ideas. Give all the benefit of the doubt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) ♐

You may run into snags or obstacles, but you can handle them. Think over similar experiences of the past — and profit by them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) ♑

Stellar influences favor marital happiness, business partnerships, dealings with the opposite sex generally. Should be an all-around pleasant day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) ♒

Some recent puzzling situations and trends begin to clarify, so it will be easier for you to plan ahead along lines which are not only pleasing, but beneficial.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) ♓

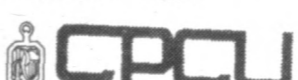

Much competition indicated. Don't think too long before taking due action but neither forge ahead impulsively.

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely versatile — especially along artistic lines. Unlike most Cancerians, you are not especially studious but you gain a great deal of knowledge through reading, traveling — and observation. When you ARE interested in a subject, however, you will engage in intensive research and learn all there is to know about it. You could succeed in either the business world (especially as banker or investment counselor) or in a profession, depending upon your inclinations, but you would probably be happiest in writing, music or acting. The mystic has a strong fascination for you and it may evidence itself in either religion or an extraordinary interest in the occult. Birthdate of: Ernest Hemingway, Amer. author; St. Phillip Neri, founder of the Oratorians.

Q. The house I'm buying is already covered by a homeowners policy that gives enough fire protection, abundant liability coverage, and everything else I need. I figure that at the closing, I'll pay the seller for the unexpired portion of the policy, which will have another six months to run, and then let the company know that I'm the new owner. That will do it, won't it?

A. No, not The insurance policy doesn't protect you until the insurance company agrees to it, and if you delay in asking for this agreement until after the closing is completed, there may be hours or days when your big investment is utterly unprotected by insurance!

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think

by S. C. VAN CUREN

By Todd Duvall and S. C. Van Curen

Frankfort—Kentucky, in conjunction with Texas Gas Transmission Corp. of Owensboro and hopefully the federal government, has embarked on what could be an historic effort to commercially produce clean synthetic natural gas from West Kentucky's environmentally dirty high sulfur coal.

If "synthetic natural gas" sounds like a contradiction in terms, it is, but no one has yet come up with a better name for it. Maybe "coalon" or "Muhlenberg Vapor" or "Stripper's Steam" might be appropriate?

Anyway, the recent agreement signed here between Gov. Wendell H. Ford and Texas Gas commits the state to at least $23 million to study and develop plans for a West Kentucky coal gasification plant. Contingent on the federal government coming into the picture with $100 million or more for actual construction of a demonstration gasification plant, Kentucky is willing to go as high as $35 million—with Texas Gas matching that—to build the pilot facility near Slaughters, Kentucky.

Then, if all goes well, Texas Gas will spend up to $600 million to expand the demonstration plant to a commercial capacity of about 80 billion cubic feet of synthetic natural gas a year, some 10 percent of the firm's average daily sales in 1973.

If it all sounds just a little chancey—and expensive—it is, but that's probably the only way to get the job done and find out if coal can be economically turned into gas to heat the homes and businesses of Kentucky and ultimately the nation.

Ford says the gasification project represents a potentially substantial economic boom to Kentucky and he's right, although, like most projects of this magnitude, it will be 1980 or beyond before the people begin to see the rewards of their tax dollar investment.

And, by making the full $35 million state commitment hinge on federal participation, the state has guaranteed only about $3 million will be spent if the feds decide they don't want to get involved.

Sadly, however, the whole project has been tainted by politics in this highly political year and, although it does make good copy, Ford had every right to be resentful of Senator Marlow Cook's attempt to grab some kind of publicity out of gasification the night before the agreement was signed.

It makes one wonder why intelligent men of high station spend their public careers trying to act like statesmen only to begin playing childish one-upmanship games when election time comes around. "My daddy's bigger than your daddy," should only be heard on playgrounds.

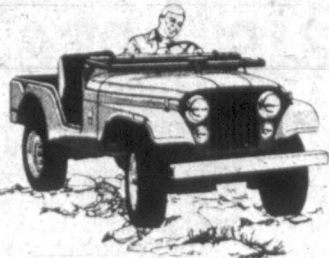

Ford, himself, is not entirely blameless of the politicians' election year reversion to pubescence. The Red River Gorge controversy reeks of the kind of "Cook's against it, I'm for it" that does nothing whatever for either the office of Governor of this Commonwealth or the position of United States Senator that Ford wants.

Speaking of the Red River Gorge controversy, the inch-thick Corps of Engineers environmental impact study of the proposed Red River dam is a fine example of bureaucratic orgiastics to anyone mad enough to try and figure out what it says. Example: "In development of the project, objectives were optimized subject to the constraint of minimizing the possibility of undesirable and irreversible changes in the ecological system of the Gorge area."

The summary of the Corps' findings says, "The water supply pool (that's a lake) would seasonally inundate 1,546 acres of the project land, eliminating thereby 15 miles of free-flowing stream and the associated agricultural, educational, forestry and fishing and hunting uses." All those millions just so 590,000 (Corps figures) people can rip around in gas-guzzling motor boats and the City of Lexington can have a stand-by water supply that it doesn't even want.

Well, the Corps has to have something to justify its existence, sort of like Congressmen.

Smokey Still Needed

Once almost revered as motherhood, the flag and apple pie, Smokey The Bear is now being put down because some of his critics say his firefighting propensities just aren't ecologically sound.

For more than a quarter of a century, Smokey has effectively preached care in handling fire in the woods, and his message has affected a lot of people. But now, his creators, the United States Forest Service's rangers, see Smokey's views as a bit outmoded. The Forest Service's land managers are turning more and more to using fire to help the woods grow the way they want.

Techniques such as controlled burning are part of a massive revolution that is upsetting American forestry more than anything in the past 75 years. The Forest Service, started under President Theodore Roosevelt, was a result of new ideas about the forest resource—a realization that the old cut and run philosophy of forest exploitation had run its course. The time had come for a new conservation-oriented way of supplying the nation's wood needs.

The first job of the Forest Service was to control the sale of government owned timber and to keep fire from destroying it. To do this, the service had to educate both the logger and timber user in the fact that forests could be managed to continue producing wood forever. The task resulted in the development of the "big tree" outlook in many professional foresters. The "big tree" outlook is the belief that the only justification for the government owning its vast forest tracts is to produce logs large enough to be sliced into lumber.

Smokey was born to conserve that kind of forest.

As the years passed, the multiple use concept came to the forest. The multiple use concept means that the forests can be used not only for timber production, but also to safeguard the nation's water supply, keep its air pure and even provide recreation for its people.

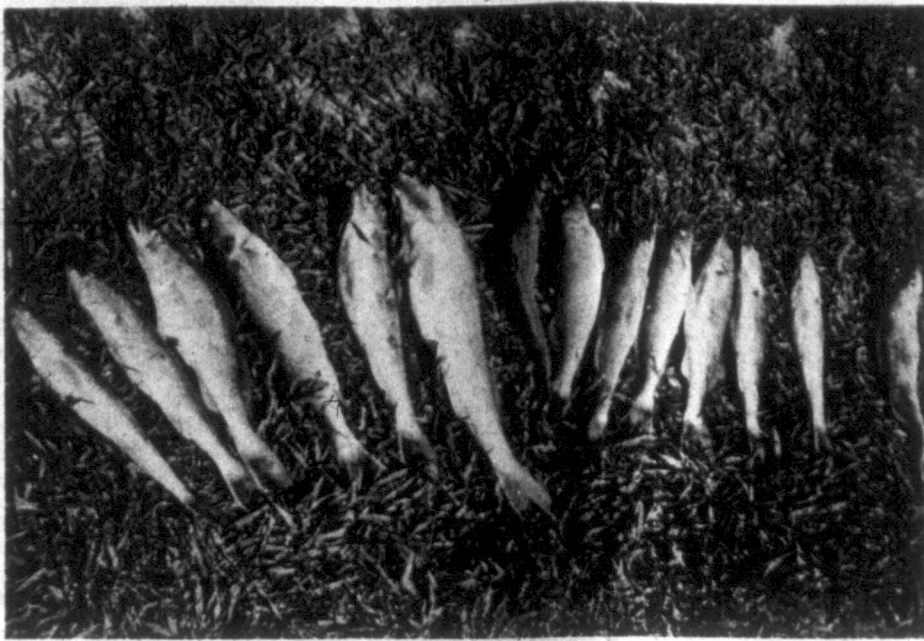

Smokey's message is interpreted to mean that NO burning should be done in the forests. But the good bear does not mean the scientific burning of our forests by the professional managers. His message is to the good, but sometimes careless, American public to be careful when handling matches and fires in the forests. And any bear that preaches that philosophy can't be all bad.

A string of Kentucky Lake sauger caught by Ken Dean of Murray and Gene Bailey from Portageville, Missouri. The sauger were caught by trolling off deep ledges.

Kentucky Lake Sauger

By KEN DEAN

Sauger are making a comeback on Kentucky Lake, and fishermen are taking some nice catches. Several limits of the warm water cousin to the walleye are being taken off deep ridges near the main river channel.

Methods used to catch sauger differ but often bring satisfying results to the persistent fisherman. One widely used method is trolling a deep running artificial bait six to fifteen feet deep along underwater ledges near the river channel.

An electronic depth finder is a helpful aid in maintaining appropriate depth and following the underwater contours. Once a fisherman has learned to "read the structure" on his depth finder, he can consistently troll his lure over breaks in the contour where sauger often school and chase bait fish, which also congregate around underwater ledges and stumps. Again, the depth finder is a great help but not a necessity.

Several good trolling lures are available in sporting goods stores in this area. Some good baits to use are bombers, small hellbenders, mud bugs, spoonplugs, and humpback rebels. There are other good trolling lures available.

The bait may be trolled at varying distances from the boat. A good rule of thumb is to let out just enough line so that the bait will touch or "bump" bottom every few seconds. If too much line is let out, the line drag in the water will kill the bait action or the line will bow up toward the surface, pulling the bait up off the bottom.

Often the light sensitive sauger will school up along a deep ridge or group of stumps. When the first fish is caught, throw out a marker toward the shallow side of the ridge and troll back through where the fish was taken.

Use a medium to heavy action rod and seventeen to twenty-five pound line on your trolling rig. Deep running lures often snag on stumps, rocks, or other cover around which sauger congregate. A strong line and heavy rod are necessary to pull baits free from the opposite direction which they snagged. Also a short, stiff rod helps in setting the hook when a fish strikes.

Trolling speed may vary depending upon the current, wind, and water depth. Troll fast enough to get the lure to bump bottom, then vary the speed until a fish or two are caught and then try to maintain that speed.

Another effective way of catching the wary sauger is by fishing with minnows along the ridges and underwater cover mentioned earlier. Again, the depth finder is helpful but not absolutely necessary.

The most frequently used method of minnow fishing is to bump bottom, directly below the boat, with a one ounce sinker and crappie rig, allowing two live minnows baited on three or four-ought hooks to dart back and forth near the bottom. The sauger will usually bite quick and hard. When he bites, jerk hard on your pole or rod in order to sink the hook barb into his tough mouth.

When you catch a sauger, use caution in removing the hook or hooks from his mouth. He has several rows of razor sharp teeth adapted to catch and hold his food, which is primarily bait fish such as shad and other small fish. Also, be wary of the equally sharp spines on his gill covers. It would be wise to wear an oversized glove when holding the fish and to have a pair of pliers handy for removing the hooks.

After catching sauger, be sure to put them on ice or in a live well, especially if you plan to fish very long. Sauger will die quickly, especially during these hot days. To insure the best condition of the meat come eating time, take proper care of your catch.

When cleaning your catch, fillet them and remove the skin. Wash them good in salt water, then roll them in cornmeal and deep fry in vegetable oil. Another way to prepare the fillets for frying is to dip them in mile and egg batter, then roll them in cornmeal or finely ground cracker crumbs. For best results in frying the fillets, maintain a steady temperature of about 365-375 degrees F., cooking them until they float to the top. You'll have a tasty meal you won't soon forget.

Ignorance Is No Excuse

BY BUTCH GREER

Have you ever had a question about a fishing or hunting law and didn't know the answer? Sometimes a "lake," or "field" lawyer will tell you all there is to know about your question. His services are free but it may cost you in court if he is wrong. A law may have been changed or he may have just given you some wrong information.

Each year laws and regulations are changed or amended and whatever information someone has given you may have been right five years previous, but not up to date for the present season. As an example, a few years ago according to a Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife regulation, it was proper and legal for a Kentucky resident who didn't have a resident fishing license to fish in Kentucky Lake (up to the dam) with a Tennessee non-resident fishing license. The case would affect vacationers or weekend travelers who have gone to Tennessee and decided to try their luck at angling. Now, however, the law being recently changed, requires that a Kentucky resident who buys a Tennessee non-resident fishing license and wishes to fish north of the bridge at Paris Landing, must have a Kentucky resident fishing license.

Why are these laws changed? Reciprocity with adjoining states concerning wildlife laws may change or technicalities may develop in wildlife enforcement, or a law may need to be changed to benefit wildlife. Other civil laws are treated in the same manner when needed. Describing the various technicalities that have constituted the changes in wildlife laws would be too lengthy for this column, but would be an interesting book for anyone energetic enough to compile all the facts.

The previous example might well be an extreme example of a changed law, but it and other laws that we can more closely relate to, are released to the public as the new laws are filed. According to Kentucky Revised Statute 150.025, "The commissioner shall also mail two copies to the county court clerk of each county in which the regulation is applicable, one copy of which shall be posted on the courthouse door or bulletin board. The commissioner shall also cause to be prepared news releases concerning all regulations for distribution to radio, television and newspaper media." The Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources makes the effort to inform the public of the wildlife laws but it may well be improbable that everyone will hear or see all of these applicable regulations by the way of the news media. That is why the provision in KRS 150.025 requires the regulations to be sent to the county court clerk's office. He will have a copy on file and one posted on the courthouse bulletin board. If you are in question about a fishing or hunting regulation that will directly affect you, it is your responsibility to find the answer from a reliable source. Remember the cliché, "Ignorance is no excuse in the face of the law."

I know there have been many times that I have had questions about fishing or hunting that weren't answered in the small guides that can be picked up where licenses are sold. Other area outdoorsmen have had the same problem. Some have been contacting me requesting information about the laws and at times I am at a loss for an answer. Even after checking a regulation I am usually more confused or have trouble interpreting what I've read. More often than not I turn to Jerry Maupin and ask him how it is.

To help answer a lot of specific and technical questions we might have and offer a good source for quick reference, Jerry has suggested running a weekly column devoted to the wildlife codes. All questions sent to Fins 'n Feathers would be reviewed and answered by him.

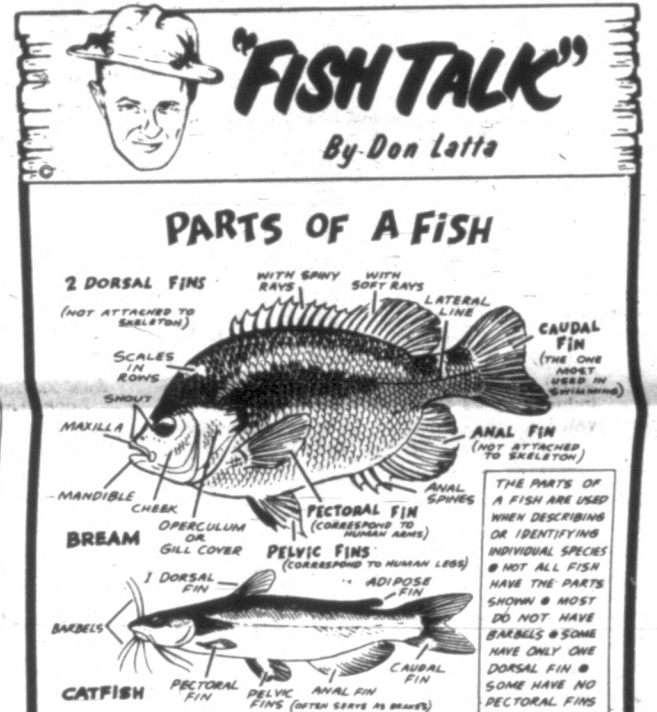

Send all questions to Fins 'n Feathers in care of The Murray Ledger and Times, P. O. Box 32, or call me and we will be glad to publish your questions and the answers to your subject.

HOLDER OF BASS RECORD IS KILLED

George Washington Perry, the man who caught the world-record largemouth bass, was killed in a light plane he was flying on January 23, 1974. George Perry caught his 22-pound 4-ounce bass in Montgomery Lake in Georgia over 40 years ago, and the record stands to this day.

Perry never attempted to cash in on his remarkable catch or to seek publicity. He was the owner and operator of a successful flying service in Brunswick, Georgia, and continued to fish for pleasure and relaxation through the years.

One of the most complete accounts of Mr. Perry's outstanding bass, and how he caught it, was carried in the May 1969 issue. The story, "The World Record Bass: Angling's Impossible Dream," was based on a personal interview with Perry by writer Vic Dunaway. Sports Afield

There are many variations in size and shape of fins. They not only help the fish to maintain its balance in the water, but they sometimes serve as the fish's "revenge" against the fisherman. Yep, the experienced fisherman who has never been pricked by a needle-sharp fin when handling a fish is a rare specimen. The fins to avoid are the Dorsal fin with spiny rays, the Pectoral and Pelvic fins and the Anal spines. Also, beware of the razor-like edge of gill covers on certain species like walleyes, etc.

And beware of paying bills with cash. Pay by check — it eliminates loss or theft of money and the cancelled check becomes your receipt that the bill was paid. Open a checking account today.

Today They Bury Diz, A True American Hero

By JERRY ESTILL
Associated Press Writer
WIGGINS, Miss. (AP) — He was like a grandfather to all, but had no children of his own. So Dizzy Dean's family invited all his "grandchildren" to his funeral today.

The family issued an open invitation for all of his friends to attend the 11 a.m., EDT, funeral at the First Baptist Church of Wiggins—including the entire population of Wiggins, about 3,000 persons.

Dean considered them all his friends. Town officials prepared for a large crowd, but said they had no way of knowing how many people would show up.

Dean made the baseball Hall of Fame, but more importantly, made the game of baseball more than a pastime.

He made it fun. Dean's grave is on a piney hillside in the country, a few miles north of the tiny Mississippi town he adopted as home 16 years ago.

He blazed into the nation's consciousness as a baseball star in the 1930s and remained there as one of the country's most colorful sports broadcasters until his death. He died of a heart attack last Wednesday in Reno, Nev., at age 64.

The family that gathered for his funeral consisted of Pat, the school teacher-wife who tempered his free-wheeling ways, and, intimates say, helped him manage his money into the millionaire category; his brother, Paul, and two nephews.

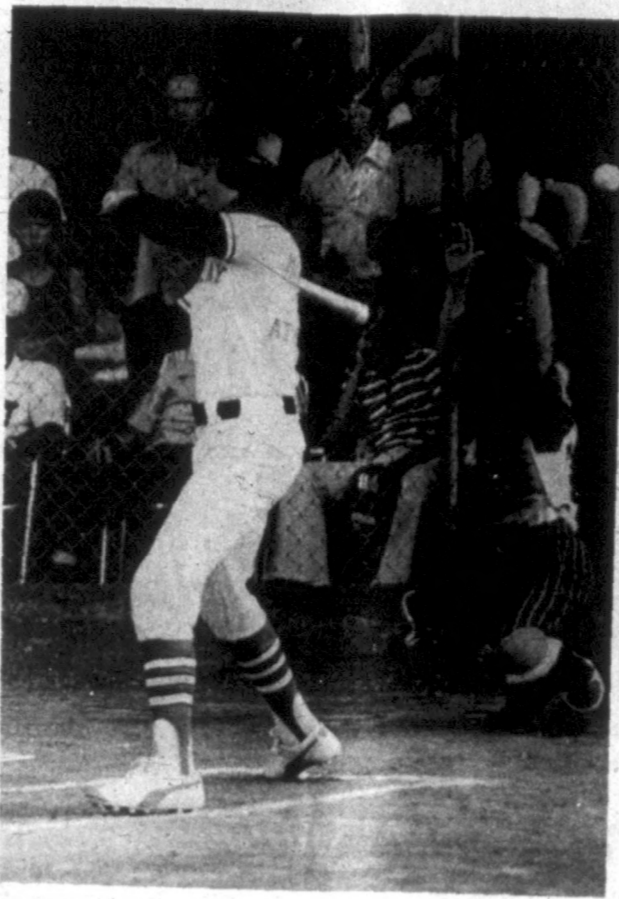

The men selected by the family to carry the world famous personality to his final resting place were the simple men of Wiggins, the men he hunted and played golf with.

But the honorary pall bearers included former baseball star Pee Wee Reese and country music star Roy Acuff.

Mainly, it was a funeral for the everyday folks of Wiggins like Christine Henze, who used to serve Dean breakfast nearly every Sunday morning at McHenry's restaurant.

"I guess we didn't think much about him," she said. "We would just yell at him and joke with him."

"We just took him for granted because we loved him, I guess."

STICK 'EM UP—Mayfield catcher Alan Melton throws up his hands as if he's in a holdup but actually he's trying to grab a foul ball hit toward him off the bat of Murray's Ricky Garland. Garland had a hit in the contest.

A Tribute

By MIKE BRANDON
Ledger & Times Sports Editor

There is something in a voice that can tell a person a lot about another individual.

The voice of Dizzy Dean was like that. I can remember sitting and watching the Saturday Game of the Week on television, not simply because I liked the game so much but because "Ole Diz" added something to it.

It could be a boring game but just the presence of Dizzy made it exciting. How many times did the lawn fail to get mowed on Saturday afternoon because of that voice?

Dizzy Dean talked about things of the people, in a language simple and plain. And when Dizzy talked, everyone listened, for nobody knew what he would say next.

In the middle of a game, you'd suddenly see an old straw hat resting majestically upon his head and then that old Mississippi voice would break out into the familiar version of the "Wabash Cannonball."

A man who had a third grade education, but yet in the experience of life, was far more educated than most.

Today they buried Dizzy Dean.

That voice that was once my friend is silenced forever. But I shall never forget.

Unser And Foyt Favored To Get Front Spots

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Junction, Mich. (AP) — Bobby Unser and A.J. Foyt were favored to capture the front-row starting positions today in qualifications for Sunday's 200 mile Indianapolis race.

Butch Hartman, Foyt, Wally Dallenbach and Unser also were among top contenders for favored berths in time trials to set a field for a companion 200-mile for United States Auto Club stock cars.

The first of Sunday's two races is for the red-hot championship drivers. Officials of Michigan International Speedway say a sellout crowd of 55,000 is possible.

The lineup for the championship race, scheduled for a payoff of $70,795, will be limited to the fastest 26 qualifiers from about 30 entries.

Thirty-six drivers will start the stock car event, including several from the championship half of the twin bill. The stock car purse totals $38,675.

Bobby Unser, a noted speed record-setter last year, posted Friday's top practice lap, 196.19 miles an hour, in the same Oldsmobile Eagle he drove to runner-up finishes behind Johnny Rutherford in both the Indianapolis and Pocono 500s.

Rutherford, looking for his fourth straight USAC triumph, had to prove to officials he could extricate himself quickly from his car's cockpit, despite his left leg being in a cast. He broke the leg last week in crash.

Hank Aaron will be honored at game

ATLANTA (AP) — It's Hank Aaron Day at Atlanta Stadium and if baseball's all-time home run king gets into the ballgame he will set another major league mark—most games played.

Aaron tied Ty Cobb's record of playing in 3,033 major league games by appearing in Friday's night's game with Pittsburgh. The Pirates play the Braves again tonight.

Before tonight's game, a 45-minute ceremony is scheduled in which the 40-year-old slugger will be showered with gifts from cities throughout the Southeast.

Heafner Holding Lead In Tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Four golfers have moved within six strokes of North Carolina State junior Clayton Heafner with 18 holes remaining in the 68th annual Southern Golf Association championship.

Heafner had a whopping seven-stroke lead entering Friday's round but soared to a 39 on the front nine and a three-over-par 75. His 54-hole total of 210, six under par, was only two shots ahead of insurance agent Danny Yates of Atlanta entering today's final round.

Yates recovered from a 74 Thursday for a 212 total on the 7,055-yard, par-72 Bay Hill Club course. Two strokes further back at 214 was Florida amateur champion Jerry Pate of Pensacola, who also had a 70.

Atlanta teen-ager Tim Simpson shot the best round Friday with a 68 for a 215. At even par 216 was Andy Beach of Lakeland and the University of Florida.

Reds Keep Pace With Win, Cardinals Lose

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

A sore-armed pitcher helped Cincinnati to its 4-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday night, but a Los Angeles hurler with a pain in the neck kept the Reds from gaining ground on the National League West Division leaders.

Jack Billingham, troubled with stiffness in his right shoulder since spring training, struggled to gain his 10th triumph of the season.

"I was going to yank him at the start," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "But Jack said resting the arm wasn't the answer. He wants to pitch."

So Billingham pitched—pain and all. "It's funny," Billingham said. "When I start warming up there is pain, but if I can throw through it the pain goes away and I can pitch freely until the late innings."

The late innings arrived early. He lasted until the Chicago sixth inning before Pedro Borbon relieved and finished the game with four innings of two-hit ball.

Elsewhere in the NL, the Dodgers blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0; the New York Mets topped the San Diego Padres 4-2; the San Francisco Giants clipped the Montreal Expos 6-2; the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Atlanta Braves 2-0, and the Houston Astros downed the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1.

Bill Plummer and George Foster each drove in, two runs to pace Cincinnati's 13th victory in 16 games. The hot streak has brought the Reds within 6½ games of the Dodgers, but stiff-necked Doug Rau beat the Philadelphia Phillies to keep the margin from dwindling further.

Unlike Billingham, Rau didn't suffer much before the game. But he wasn't around at the finish. Mike Marshall was, as he has been in most Los Angeles games this season.

"I know I can pitch nine innings," Rau said, "and if the manager wants to protect my win that way, that's fine."

It was the second time Rau and Marshall combined for a 4-0 decision. They beat the Expos by that score on April 28.

Bill Buckner singled twice, drove in one run and scored another for Los Angeles. Jimmy Wynn's 68th and 69th RBI of the season produced two other runs while the fourth scored on an error.

Mets 4, Padres 2
Jerry Grote had two hits and drove in two runs to back Jon Matlack's five-hitter and lead New York past San Diego.

Padres second baseman Horace Clarke opened the way for four unearned Mets runs to score in the sixth inning, when he muffed Rusty Staub's ground ball.

Matlack had singled and Bud Harrelson walked, then Cleon Jones moved Matlack to third with a fly ball before Clarke's miscue. Ed Kranepool scored Harrelson with a single, then Grote singled for two runs to sink San Diego.

Clarence Gaston's sixth home run of the season gave the Padres a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning, then Dave Roberts and Enzo Hernandez hit eighth-inning doubles for the other run.

Giants 6, Expos 2
Gary Matthews hit two-run singles in the third and fifth, while Mike Caldwell and Randy Moffitt teamed for a six-hitter to carry San Francisco past Montreal.

Garry Maddox hit a run-scoring ground ball in the first inning and Moffitt singled home the Giants' final run in the eighth.

Montreal turned three of its hits into two eighth-inning runs.

Pirates 2, Braves 0
Ken Brett pitched a five-hitter and drove in one run with a fifth-inning sacrifice fly, highlighting Pittsburgh's sixth consecutive victory.

Frank Taveras led off the fifth with what appeared to be a routine single to right field, but the ball took a funny hop past Atlanta's Ralph Garr and Taveras ended up on third. Brett followed with his sacrifice fly.

The Pirates added a run in the ninth when Ed Kirkpatrick walked and pinch hitter Bob Robertson doubled to left-center field.

All-time home run king Hank Aaron started for the Braves after a three-game absence due to a knee injury, tying Ty Cobb's major league record of 3,033 games played.

Astros 5, Cards 1
Houston's Lee May drove in three runs with a single and his 17th home run of the season and Tom Griffin raised his record to 113 with a 7-23 inning performance to beat St. Louis.

Joe Torre drove in a run with a fourth-inning triple for the Cardinals, who suffered their seventh consecutive loss and 13th in 14 games. Cesar Cedeño got Griffin out of further trouble on the next play, making a lunging back-handed grab of a Jerry DaVanon line drive to end the inning.

Babe Ruth Birthplace Opened For Inspection

By GORDON BEARD
BALTIMORE (AP) — The

Babe Ruth Birthplace Shrine and Museum, honoring a native son who gained nationwide acclaim through his baseball prowess, is finally open for public inspection.

The project to restore the slugger's homestead, which was scheduled for demolition in 1967, was an uphill battle and in recent years there were several premature pre-opening ceremonies.

But on Friday, memorabilia from Ruth's storied career went on display after brief ceremonies on the sidewalk outside the rowhouse where Ruth was born in 1895.

Among those in attendance were Ruth's widow, Claire; his sister, Mrs. Mary Moberly; Gov. Marvin Mandel of Maryland; and Mayor William Donald Schaefer of Baltimore.

Yet another ceremony is scheduled for July 29, when the formal dedication will be made in the presence of various baseball luminaries including Hank Aaron—who this season broke Ruth's record of 714 lifetime home runs.

Mandel, who said that as a youth he was once given an autographed baseball by Ruth, told the crowd that the Hall of Fame player "was not only a legend but also an inspiration to all youngsters."

Ruth's home run ability and his magnetic draw at the turnstiles is credited with helping to save the sport after it reeled under the Chicago Black Sox scandal of 1919. Before turning slugger, Ruth also won 94 games as a pitcher.

Prominently displayed just inside the entrance of the museum are life-sized wax figures of Ruth, who died in 1948, and a young autograph-seeker.

The stairway is lined with baseball bats, and plaques commemorate Ruth's 714 homers, listing the date each was hit and the name of the opposing pitcher.

For a $100 donation, sponsors may "purchase" one of the home runs and have his name permanently listed alongside it on the plaque.

Murray Golfers Do Well In Junior Black Patch

Tom Lepping blistered the course in a two-under par 69 Friday afternoon to claim the championship flight in the Junior Black Patch Golf Tournament held at the Princeton Country Club.

Lepping, who is from Louisville, shot a 72 on his opening round Thursday and finished with a one-under 141 total for the 36 holes.

The first round leader, Gary Sullivan of the Murray Country Club, had a 76 Friday to go with his opening round 70 and finished in fifth place with a 146.

Another Louisville golfer, Vic Groat, finished one-stroke off the pace with a 142.

David Paxton of Paducah had a 143, Randy Wilkins of Russellville a 144 and then Sullivan with a 146.

Lee Stewart of the Murray Country Club had rounds of 74-74 for a 148 in the championship flight.

In the first flight, the only Murray golfer entered was Howard Boone who had rounds of 78-83 for a 161.

Lynn Sullivan took fourth in the third flight as he carded rounds of 87-83 for a 170.

In the girl's play, Beverly Parker of the Murray Country Club, the first round leader with an 81, shot a 90 Friday and took second place with a 171 total.

Ann Rush of Thompsonville won the title with rounds of 87-82 for a 169.

Three Tied For Lead Open Play

LA GRANGE, Ill. (AP) — A former champion, a confident amateur and a shaky first-round leader formed the pacesetter trio as the U.S. Women's Open today moved into the third round of a wide open championship.

Carol Mann, the lanky 1965 Open champion; Debby Massey, heading a strong amateur contingent; and Kathy Ahern the fading first-round leader paced the charge into the final 36 holes of the $40,000 Open with a top prize of $6,000.

The threesome wound up Friday deadlocked at even-par 144 for the first two rounds over the La Grange Country Club course. The tricky par-72 course has yielded only four sub-par rounds so far.

Heafner Holding Lead In Tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Four golfers have moved within six strokes of North Carolina State junior Clayton Heafner with 18 holes remaining in the 68th annual Southern Golf Association championship.

Heafner had a whopping seven-stroke lead entering Friday's round but soared to a 39 on the front nine and a three-over-par 75. His 54-hole total of 210, six under par, was only two shots ahead of insurance agent Danny Yates of Atlanta entering today's final round.

Yates recovered from a 74 Thursday for a 212 total on the 7,055-yard, par-72 Bay Hill Club course. Two strokes further back at 214 was Florida amateur champion Jerry Pate of Pensacola, who also had a 70.

Atlanta teen-ager Tim Simpson shot the best round Friday with a 68 for a 215. At even par 216 was Andy Beach of Lakeland and the University of Florida.

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Cleveland's Dick Bosman was perfect throwing to the plate but imperfect throwing to first base and that one imperfection cost him a chance to be absolutely perfect Friday night.

Making only his fifth start of the season, the 30-year-old right-hander threw 79 pitches to the plate against the Oakland A's and 60 of them were either strikes—he fanned four—or resulted in outs. Bosman also threw twice to first base and one of them was high, glancing off the glove of Tom McCraw for a two-base error.

The miscue cost Bosman a perfect game and he had to settle—settle?—for a no-hitter as the Indians snapped a six-game slide and Oakland's six-game winning streak by defeating the world champion A's 4-0.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Boston Red Sox downed the Texas Rangers 3-1, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the California Angels 5-4 in 10 innings, the Kansas City Royals edged the New York Yankees 5-4, the Chicago White Sox trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 7-3 and the Minnesota Twins outlasted the Detroit Tigers 7-5.

Ironically, Bosman led American League pitchers in fielding in 1970 while hurling for the Washington Senators. He handled 51 chances that year without an error.

"I've made hundreds of plays like that before," the 6-foot-3, 205-pounder said of Sal Bando's slow hopper to the right of the mound. "I felt like I had taken a long time to get to the ball and I threw it too quickly. Then I realized I had a lot more time."

The realization came too late. So did a good throw Bosman made on Bando's comeback in the seventh.

"I didn't even look at the scoreboard when I made that play in the fourth inning," Bosman said. "I really wasn't concerned about a no-hitter at the time, but it was one of those games that I was aware of the possibility all night. My slider was working well and my fast ball was sailing and sinking."

Colt Leaguers Defeat Mayfield 6-4 Friday

By JIM PIERCE
With their backs to the wall, the Murray Colt League All-Stars defeated Mayfield 6-4 Friday night in Calvert City.

The loss eliminated Mayfield and kept the Murray title hopes alive.

Facing 101-degree heat, Lindy Suiter rose to the occasion, pitching a complete game and scattering seven hits.

Suiter combined a sharp-breaking curve and a blazing fastball to throttle the Mayfield attack.

Suiter had six strikeouts and walked only two in obtaining the win.

The Murray offense was all Tom Chavis. Chavis, who caught an excellent game, allowing no stolen bases while gunning down one runner, blasted a homerun to left in the fifth frame.

Perhaps more important was Chavis' heads-up baserunning in the fourth. With Murray down 2-1, Chavis walked. The Mayfield pitcher bent to tie his shoe and Chavis set sail for second.

The pitcher threw the ball to center and on came Chavis to third where he again slid safely as the ball trickled away from the third-baseman.

Sifford Predicts He'll Win B. C. Open Golf Tournament

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — "Leading is nothing new to me," Curtis Sifford said. "I just haven't won."

"But I'm going to win this one."

Sifford, a 32-year-old nephew of old pro Charley Sifford, offered the observation after his four-under-par 67 had broken a massive logjam of players and staked him to a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the $150,000 B.C. Open Golf Tournament.

Sifford was one of the last players to finish on the wind-swept, 6,804-yard En Joie Golf Club course and he was tied with four others until he chipped to four feet and made the short birdie putt on his 17th hole.

That got him in with a two-round total of 135, seven under par, and dropped Don Iverson, Bruce Fleisher, rookie Mark Hayes and Tim Collins back into second at 136.

Iverson, Fleisher and Hayes all shared the 18-hole lead and had 70s in the gusty winds. Collins, who has made the cut only twice before this year, birdied his last two holes for a 67.

None of the five leaders has ever won a regular tour title.

All face the problems of the Monday morning qualifying rounds.

Blistering Heat Burns Your Electric Bill

Spring and fall weather is usually ideal. Not too hot. Not too cold. Little electricity is needed to stay comfortable.

You're outside more, working in the yard and garden, which leads to more showers and baths.

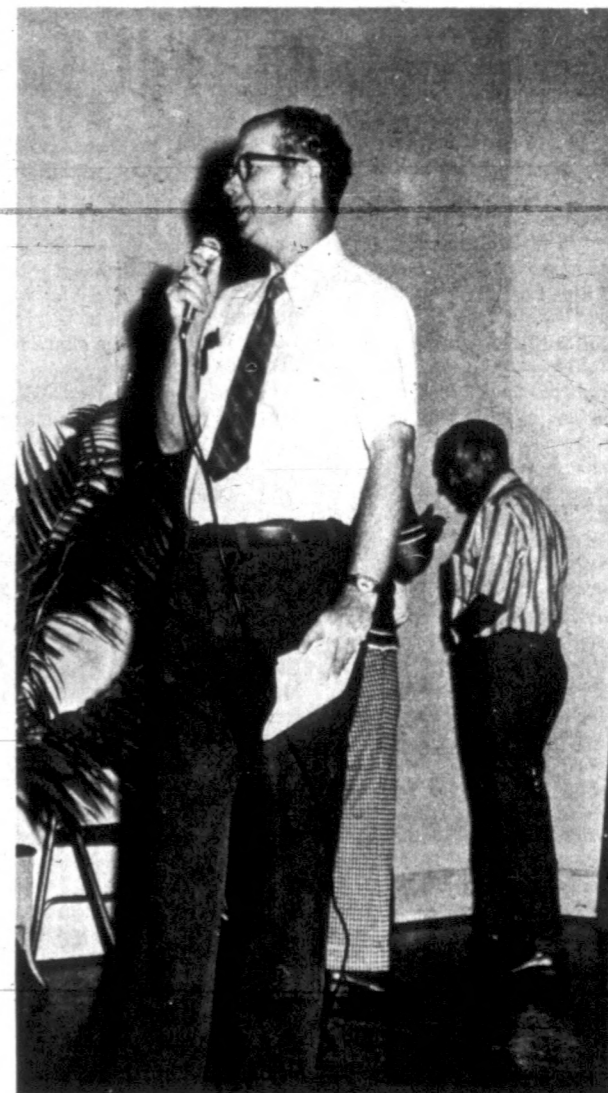

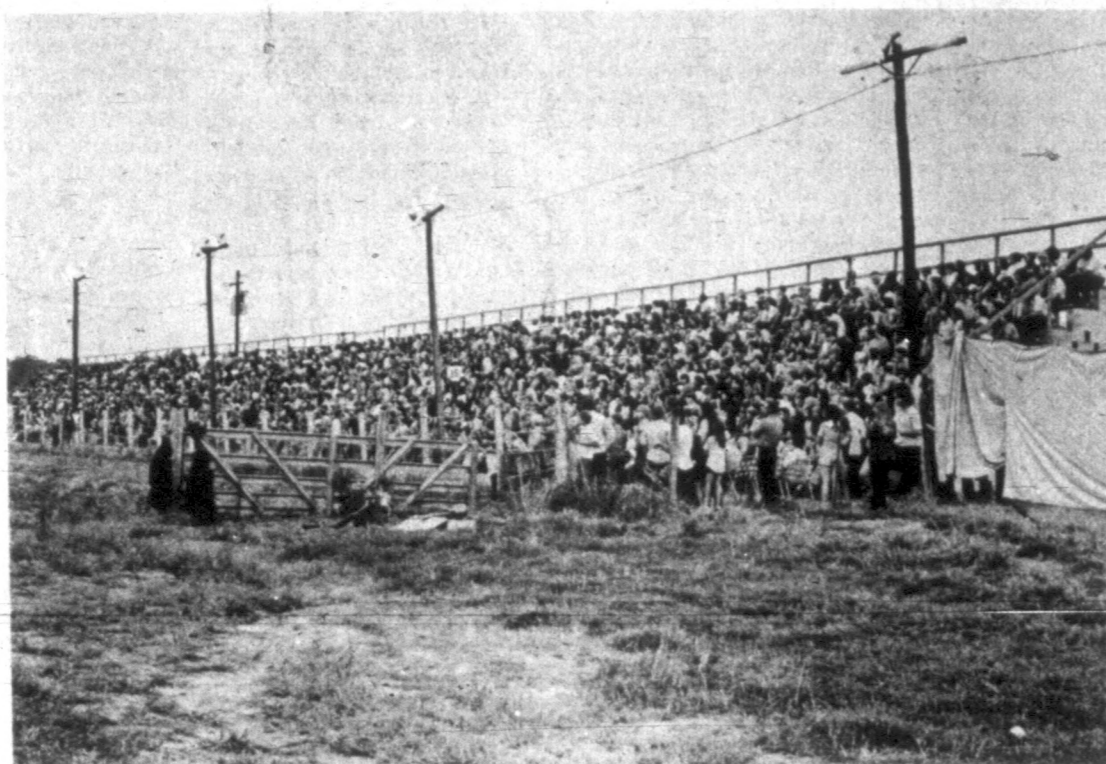

Air conditioning, clothes washing and drying, showering and bathing — all combine to drive up your electric bill. Want to know how to hold down their cost? Ask us for a copy of our "Conserve Energy" booklet. It's yours free.

GATB Test, Workshop To Be Held, MSU

A free General Aptitude Test Battery (GATB) training session and workshop will be conducted on the campus of Murray State University Saturday, July 27, for certified Kentucky counselors and psychometrists.

To be held from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Room 652-653 of the Education Building, the session is jointly sponsored by the department of professional studies at Murray State and the Division of Guidance Services of the Kentucky Department of Education.

Robert W. Rowan, assistant professor of professional studies, said all materials will be supplied for participants, who must be employed in a Kentucky school system as a counselor or as a psychometrist, who are the authorized administrators of the test, must have completed a program similar to the one to be offered July 27.

Eligible persons may register for the training session and workshop by writing to Ms. Angela Wilkins, Department of Professional Studies, Room 349, Education Building, Murray State University, Murray, Ky., 42071.

Each registrant should include his qualifications for taking the training in his registration letter. Registration will close on Tuesday, July 23.

Beshear To Be Cited For Honor

Milwaukee — Ronald W. Beshear, Murray agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., will be cited for outstanding life insurance sales among the company's more than 3,200 agents nationally during the 1973-74 agents' honor year.

He is associated with the Marvin L. Smith general agency, Evansville, Indiana.

Beshear achieved membership in the Marathon Club.

Beshear also is a winner of the Gold section award. The Gold section award is presented to an NML agent who has previously received the bronze and silver awards—the first two for which the agent may qualify in his initial years with the company—and has increased his sales over the past year's volume.

An NML agent becomes a member of the Marathon Club by insuring 100 or more people during the agent's year.

Honor presentations will be made at the 94th annual meeting of the Association of Agents of Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., at the company's home office, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, July 22-24. Award winners will be cited for record sales in the agents' honor year, ending May 31.

Fall Series Of Graded Feeder Calf Sales To Begin August 1

The fall season of special graded feeder calf sales in Kentucky will get underway August 1 at Lebanon. A total of 51 sales will be conducted at 21 different locations, according to Everett Mackey, extension marketing specialist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Mackey says some 60,000 head of calves will be offered at the fall series of sales, which will close with the November 22 sale at Danville. At the special sales, calves brought in by many different farmers will be sold in large groups which are uniform in size, sex, color and quality.

Mackey cites several advantages for grading and grouping calves for sales:

1. Larger lots of more uniform calves can be offered to buyers. Seventy-one percent of all calves in the special sales in 1973 were offered in lots of 10 or more. This year, some 75 percent of all calves are expected to be sold in lots of 10 or more.

2. The calves bring higher prices. Marketing studies have shown that calves sold in large lots bring higher prices. A calf sold in a lot of 20 or more averages about two dollars per hundredweight more than a similar calf sold in a lot of five or less.
3. Selling time can be reduced because of larger pens. Last year, the selling time averaged about 500 head per hour of sale time. This year, with larger pen sizes expected, buyers may be able to look at over 600 head per hour.

4. Producers have an opportunity to see firsthand the advantages of having good quality calves. They can see and compare the quality and other factors that buyers are seeking.
5. Producers have an opportunity to work with their auction market and as a result a better understanding develops between farmers and the auction market.

Approximately 36,000 steers and 24,000 heifers will be offered in the 1974 fall sales. The estimated numbers by breed are 28,000 Angus; 11,000 Hereford; 7,000 Charolais; 8,000 black white-face; 5,000 other crossbreds; and 2,000 Holsteins.

Steers should average about 550 pounds and heifers about 475 pounds, according to Mackey. Almost one-third of the calves will grade prime or high choice. About 45 percent will grade choice and another 20 percent will grade good. A change in grading procedures in 1971 to separate the short, early-maturing calves has made it possible to pretty well eliminate these compact animals from the choice pens of calves.

Special sales will be held this fall at Lebanon, Danville, Lancaster, Somerset, Springfield, London, Tompkinsville, Albany, Catlettsburg, Monticello, Campbellsville, Russell Springs, Richmond, Winchester, Edmonston, Paris, Maysville, Columbia, Guthrie, Marion and Owensboro. Marion will have its first special sale, and will have the westernmost of the 1974 special sales. A reorganized feeder calf association will be conducting the sale at Edmonston, and the sale at Springfield will be held in a new auction facility.

Local county extension offices and participating auction markets can provide a list of the sale dates along with detailed information on the number, grade, breed and sex of calves expected at each sale. Farmers interested in selling calves through the special sales should contact their local county extension agent.

The special feeder calf sales are sponsored by local feeder calf associations in cooperation with local livestock auction markets, the Kentucky Beef Cattle Association, and the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

AUDUBON SOCIETY WORRIED ABOUT WHALES

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Audubon Society has called on its 300,000 members and the general public to boycott goods from Japan and Russia until those countries "stop their needless slaughtering of whales."

The board of directors' action was taken, it said, after appeals to the governments of Japan, Russia and the United States proved fruitless.

Japan and Russia are the only two nations that have refused to abide by quotas set by the International Whaling Commission, the society asserts.

It has canceled all advertising for Japanese and Russian products in Audubon Magazine, and canceled two ecology workshops scheduled for Russia and one for Japan.

NO NAME... JUST THE ADDRESS...

I'VE DONE IT! NOT ONE PERSON COMPLAINED ABOUT MY MEATBALLS THIS TIME

THERE ARE FOUR OF US EATING THREE TIMES A DAY

THAT'S 12 MEALS A DAY, OR 84 MEALS A WEEK. NOW THAT MAKES 4,368 MEALS A YEAR

AND THAT DOESN'T INCLUDE YOUR SANDWICHES OR MEALS FOR OUR DOGS!

I NEVER THOUGHT OF ANY OF THAT STUFF THE NIGHT I PROPOSED!

HI, MR. ADAMS—YOU MUST BE EXPECTING YOUR WIFE BACK FROM HER MONTH'S VACATION TODAY

YES, HOW DID YOU KNOW?

HEAT!! SHMEAT!! COULDN'T WE HAVE A FEW RAW SCORCHS NOW? WE'RE HUNGRY!!

THE HEAT IS CONTROLLED BY NASA FROM HOUSTON—

WOULD YOU INTERRUPT REMBRANDT WHILE HE WAS CREATING A MASTERPIECE??

IF IT HAD A CHUNK O' MEAT IN IT, AND TRY!!

Mrs. Fitzsimmons died in 1966, the year he retired. They had one daughter, Mrs. John P. Brandel of Mansfield, Ohio.

Since his retirement, he "just takes life easy," getting up at 5 a.m. to devote most of his time to his hobby of collecting pictures, books and scientific papers on astronomy and autographs of internationally-known astronomers.

Among his most treasured autographs is that of Sir Edwin P. Hubble, noted British astronomer and director of the Jodrell Bank of Radio Telescope.

Although he never completed high school, Fitzsimmons has a vast knowledge of astronomy, according to Dr. James M. Kline, chairman of the Department of Physics and Astronomy at Murray State University and in whose classes Fitzsimmons frequently visits.

"I enjoy coming to Murray State," he says, "because it gives me an opportunity to talk with people who are interested in and know something about what I'm most interested in—astronomy."

"I have to be careful, though," he said with a chuckle. "Lots of times I know the answers and want to speak up when questions are asked, but I don't. I don't want the young people to think that I'm trying to take over."

Fitzsimmons, whose home is littered with "papered" with pictures, charts, scientific papers and materials related to astronomy, has but one regret as he looks back across his 74 years. He would have liked to have been an astronaut.

"Thanks to television, I feel I already have made six round trips to the moon," he says, "and if I had the training and was 30 years old, I'd go on one of those trips in a minute!"

Dr. Fisher Gives His Sermon Topic

Dr. James A. Fisher, Sr., will speak on the subject, "My Eyes Have Seen The Glory" at the 8:45 and 10:50 a.m. services on Sunday, July 21, at the First United Methodist Church.

The text for his sermon will be Luke 2:27-32.

Paul Shahan is the director for the music and Mrs. Richard Farrell is organist.

Church School will be held between the morning services.

The United Methodist Youth Fellowship will meet at six p.m. followed by supper at seven p.m.

LDS To Hold Conference

The Kentucky-Missouri District of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons) will hold its District Conference in Murray this Sunday.

The general session, under the direction of Pres. Arnold Foster, will be held at 10:30 a.m. in the University School Auditorium.

Members from branches in Fulton, Paducah, Poplar Bluff, Cape Girardeau and Murray will be in attendance.

Visitors are invited and welcome to the services, a spokesman said.

Textbooks, to meet a 30 percent increase in costs due to inflation, $855,000.

Books for libraries, to maintain the level of service planned in the budget, $196,000.

Kentucky Educational Television, $110,000 to pay a rate increase on its leased lines.

Educational Television Consortium Study, $175,000.

Library for the blind and physically handicapped, $126,180 for more telephone lines, more cassette programs and a subregional library in Louisville.

Revision of local school district budget and accounting manual to comply with federal guidelines, $139,000.

Human Resources, total of $4.7 million:

—Continue operation of Outwood State Hospital for the Mentally Retarded at Dawson Springs and to correct defects, $2 million. The state had planned to close the facility but now has decided to continue operating it until a private firm builds a new one at the same site.

—To pay physicians in the Medicaid program 50 percent of usual and customary fees, instead of just 40 percent, which has been in effect since 1968, $2.5 million.

—For inflationary increases in pharmacy fees paid by the state, $168,000.

Development, $6 million:

All to be used to help finance utility development for area industrial parks serving several communities. Guidelines are to be submitted to the interim legislative committees later and specific projects will be identified before funds are committed.

Other:

—To maintain health insurance coverage for state employees at the present level, to reflect increased costs, $1 million.

—Additional funds for water and sewer plans on a river basin basis, which will make Kentucky communities eligible for more than $65 million in federal grants, $340,000.

Missionary Will

Knee Deep In Clover

By Nevlye Shackelford

UK College of Agriculture

Of the many species of clover now to be found growing in hay and pasturefields across the land, most are native of Europe and Eurasia, and the plants have much more going for them than the casual observer might imagine.

For centuries this plant has been a most valuable forage crop for livestock, and for some it has been a special partner of bees, giving them nectar in exchange for their services in spreading its pollen. Also, as has been discovered in more recent years, some species enjoy a mysterious and undoubtedly ancient partnership with underground bacteria that adds fertility to the soil.

If we are to believe Old Pliny, the Elder, clover can also be used to forecast storms.

"When the leaves thereof do tremble, fold together, and stand right up," says Pliny, "look for the coming of a storm or tempest."

Delving deeper into the shadowy world of superstition, as a good luck charm the four-leaf clover is the chief rival of the rabbit's foot, and countless hours have been spent looking for it in clover patches. The origin of this superstition is lost in the annals of antiquity, but there is a legend to the effect that upon being expelled from the Garden of Eden, Mother Eve took a four-leaf clover with her. This bit of verdure from Paradise and the possession thereof came to be regarded as a token of good fortune in the way of fame, wealth, faithful love, and glorious good health.

As a matter of fact, this belief in the four-leaf clover is still so strong that growing it and sealing it in plastic has become a profitable commercial enterprise.

In other ways too, clover has been a boon to mankind. For years, small boys secured prizes and spending money by door-to-door selling of boxes of salve made from extracts of clover blossoms. Then, according to old medical books of yesteryear, an excellent remedy for ulcers, burns, and scalds can be made by boiling clover blossoms in lard.

More recently another important medical use for clover was discovered. This was a few years ago when a Wisconsin farmer suffered the loss of

Woman General Thinks Combat Roles Should Be Saved For Men

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — One of the two women generals in the U.S. Army thinks members of her sex should remain in a supportive military role.

"Women should not be trained for a combat role unless it's necessary," said Brig. Gen. Mildred Bailey. "There are so many other ways we can be valuable."

In an interview taped Friday for screening Sunday afternoon on WLEX-TV, Gen. Bailey said despite sweeping changes that have occurred in the last few years she does not think women should be placed in a direct combat role "unless there's need for it, unless the national survival is at stake, or there is fighting in our own territory."

The 32-year career officer said she doesn't think excluding women from combat duty limits their advancement. Of 163 occupational specialties in the Army, only 37 are closed to women, she said.

"Women can't drive the tank but they can repair it, they can't fire a gun as the infantrymen do, but they can repair it," she said.

Women can now command any kind of troop or unit, not just other women, she said.

The general noted that the majority of men in the Army are in supportive jobs. "It takes many, many people to put one person in a combat role."

Next July, women will be admitted to boot camp at Ft. Knox for the first time. The only difference in their training from that of the men will be in the type of exercises they do and that they will learn to fire weapons on a voluntary, rather than mandatory basis.

Gen. Bailey said although women would probably never use the combat training in actually engaging the enemy in warfare, they would find it useful in planning and strategy.

She said most women are not interested in combat duty.

"I could count on two hands the number of women who want combat duty," she said.

Sporting a triple bar of decorations on her new Army uniform — a bright mint green jacket and skirt with a black beret, Gen. Bailey said it was an experimental color and would probably be toned down.

"If you put a platoon of women in this color it would look like a neon sign," she joked.

The general said the acceptance of women in military command positions and the opportunity for women to have a career in the military results from societal changes.

Until 1967 a woman could not obtain the rank of colonel. Mrs. Bailey is one of just four women generals in the history of the Army.

The Army's efforts to open the way for more female recruits include accepting married women and women with dependents.

"In the past a woman reached a point early in her career when she had to make a choice," Gen. Bailey said. "For example, if she had children — until 1971, that was it."

"When we first came into existence in World War II they called us patriots and said, 'bless their little hearts.' We drove trucks, we were motor mechanics, we did everything that needed to be done — but the minute the emergency ended the support for women doing jobs that were not traditional was completely withdrawn," she said.

"Almost as though overnight it changed — yesterday I'm a patriot, today my motivation, my character and my morals have become suspect."

"We have spent 30 years overcoming that," she said.

The general said the Army plans a "drastic increase" in the number of women recruits.

She said two years ago the Army's recruitment goal for women was 6,000. The past year it rose to 14,400 — "and we recruited 15,000," she said.

opportunity to discuss the carrying out of his 1972-74 executive budget with the committee "voluntarily and cooperatively."

Clarke said after the meeting he would propose the committee approach its new function by taking up specific areas, such as investment of state funds, rather than looking at a whole department at one time.

State Sen. Michael Moloney, D-Lexington, was elected vice chairman of the interim committee.

After Ford left the meeting, Clarke grilled two of his top aides on how such large surpluses could come up in June when the administration was so upset about legislative tinkering with small sums in March.

In particular, Clarke cited apparent administration concern about efforts of his committee to shift around or add a total of $1.5 million in Ford's budget.

Clarke reminded the aides the committee had asked in early March if later information suggested the state might have some more revenue than had been estimated in early January. At the time, Clarke recalled, the Revenue Department said it could see no change.

Revenue Commissioner John Ross said his staff was "just beginning to get an inkling" in March that coal prices would be going up sharply. The raise in severance tax receipts that followed those increases accounted for much of the revenue received above the estimates.

But if the weather should be worse than last year, when it was unusually good, he said, strip-mining would be hurt and the state would get less severance tax money.

Ross said receipts from the usage tax on car set a new record in June, much of it coming from eastern Kentucky when suddenly more affluent coalminers were buying new cars. He said there was no way that could have been anticipated.

Ross said he probably could adjust revenue estimates "up or down by a couple million dollars every week" but felt he should not do so until the anticipated change became significant.

Budget Director Jim King said the Ford administration had not asked the revenue department to adjust its revenue estimate in any way. The administration took the estimate at face value and tailored its planned spending accordingly, he said.

Sen. Moloney objected to the criticism of the revenue estimates, saying they should be conservative so the state does not have to cut programs toward the end of a fiscal year.

He said that happened the last time a governor directed the department to come up with a higher revenue estimate. He apparently was referring to a raise in the estimate under former Gov. Edward T. Breathitt's last budget. The higher estimate matched the cost of a pay raise given to school teachers but then it did not come.

Clarke asked if it would not be to a governor's advantage to estimate revenue low as long as he has the power to decide on his own later how surpluses can be spent. No one gave a direct answer but some committee members indicated they agreed with his point.
