New Government Rationing on Foreign Trade

Involved in the drive to avoid the possible economic consequences of a post-war depression, the United States government has been working on a plan to ration foreign trade. The new system is designed to prevent the dumping of goods on foreign markets, which might lead to an over-supply and cause prices to fall. The plan aims to maintain a balance of trade and keep prices as high as possible.

The system of rationing will be imposed on foreign trade involving goods that have been produced in the United States. The goods covered by the new system will include automobiles, textiles, and other manufactured goods. The plan will be implemented in stages, with the first phase scheduled to begin next month.

The government will also establish a special board to oversee the implementation of the new system. The board will consist of representatives from industry, labor, and government agencies. The board will be responsible for setting priorities and determining which goods will be rationed.

The new system is expected to have a significant impact on the economy. It is hoped that the new system will help to stabilize prices and prevent a post-war depression. However, the system is likely to be controversial, and there may be resistance from some quarters.

In conclusion, the new system of rationing on foreign trade is a crucial step in the post-war recovery. It is expected to help stabilize prices and prevent a depression, but it is also likely to be controversial. The government must carefully consider the implications of the new system before it is fully implemented.
We pledge ourselves to this cause

A Statement by
The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

We make this pledge publicly to our national government and to the people of the United States:

That we will cooperate unselfishly in every effort of authorized government agencies to prevent unwarranted rises in prices of foods.

That we will continue our efforts to reduce the spread between prices paid to the grower and prices charged to the consumer.

That to this end we will continue to do everything in our power to assist the farmers and growers of America in the orderly marketing of their products at the fairest possible prices to them.

That we will make every effort to hold our inventories at the lowest point consistent with good service to our customers because hoarding, by wholesalers, retailers, or consumers, will cause higher prices.

That we will endeavor to continue to pay our employees the highest wages and to give them the best working conditions in the grocery business generally.

That we will make every effort to continue to sell food at retail at the lowest gross margin of profit in the history of the retail grocery business.

Today we are providing food for our customers at the lowest gross profit rate in the history of the retail grocery business. This means that we have achieved efficiencies in the distribution of food never before attained. More of your food dollar goes for food and less for overhead expenses than ever before. No other great retail business in the United States in any field is operated with such a low cost of distribution.

No one in the food business can control the wholesale price of food. Only the government of the United States has power to do this, and for the protection of our people this power in the government is now a necessary power.

Today, with the nation at war, we believe that no private interest has any rights in conflict with the general public interest.

The armed forces of the United States are today receiving more and better food than ever before in our national history. It is equally important that all of us who produce food and living behind the lines, men, women and children, shall be better fed and better nourished than ever before in our national history.

FULTON BOY TELLS ABOUT ARMY LIFE

Following is a letter from Private James Grubbs, formerly of Fulton, to a friend who wished to know what life was like in the army. So far as he could tell, the letter was sent this week.

Dear John:

I left home Friday night last and arrived here the following day. Last week, I was taken to the headquarters, the first time I ever saw those big, heavy stove lids. After gorging ourselves with our meal, we were told to get in line and go to our barracks to help pass away the times. We also have two radios in quarters. We listen to them mornings until 5.00 o'clock. This isn't bad, but it soon wears off for there are times when they're didn't talk at all. Last week I fell sound asleep after the radio was on for about an hour.

We are stationed in a very nice place, about 50 miles from Paris, Tenn., where Old Glory waves till it's end.

Before leaving the barracks, the soldiers and officers were ordered to get out in the yard with their equipment and was told to make clean and orderly, and then they were sent into quarters. After being told to go to bed, we had to make a half dozen times before we could fall asleep.

We then immediately felt the pinning help of being a soldier and bent our noses to the ground and grubbed away the hours by the time we found our bayonets.

We played a little bit of baseball in the morning, but it was hard to catch the ball because the sun was so bright. We also spent a little time in the afternoon, playing a game of checkers.

The harvest is always in proportion to the sowing of the seed. The one who is stingy with his seed at sowing time will reap nothing, but if he makes but撒hoot the seed, he shall have much fruit. Therefore, given that the need for a higher law, I was handed down to us thousand.

THE WORLD TODAY, when there is NO much thought about gifts, is a most appropriate time for a lesson on Christian stewardship. "Give to the Lord the glory due his Name."—Psalm 29:2. Faith in Christ"Martha said, 'Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died.' Of all the true disciples of Christ, she was the one who was completely aware of the presence of Christ in the heart. Faith causes Christ to be present in the heart, and where Christ is, eternal death cannot be. —Dean Howson.
