Over 2,700 Enrolled In Calloway Schools

Unofficial enrollment figures for the Calloway County Schools show 2711 students enrolled in the six elementary centers, the high school, and the EMR Unit, according to Charlie Lassiter, Director of Pupil Personnel for Calloway County Schools.

This is an increase in enrollment of 65 students over the enrollment figures listed at the end of the first month of the school year in September 1973. Nine hundred students have enrolled at Calloway County High School, unofficial figures show. The enrollment at the end of the first month at the high school last year was 850, and at the end of the school year in May the school had an enrollment of 817.

Unofficial enrollment figures for the six elementary centers for the current school year are as follows: New Concord 312, Faxon 340, Almo, 368, Kirksey 300, Lynn Grove 245, and Hazel 213.

Enrollment figures for the six centers at the end of the first month last year were New Concord 306, Faxon 333, Almo 400, Kirksey 302, Lynn Grove 246, and Hazel 207.

Lassiter said the present enrollment for EMR Unit is 33 as compared to 14 at the end of the first month of school last year and 12 at the end of the school year in May 1974. These units will be divided into three sections when the new elementary schools are opened in October.

Ron McAllister is the principal of Calloway County High School. Bob Allen, principal at East Elementary, is working with the Faxon and New Concord Elementary Schools, Roy Cothran, principal at Southwest Elementary, is working with the Lynn Grove and Hazel Elementary Schools; Johnny Bohannon, principal at North Elementary School, is working with the Almo and Kirksey Elementary Schools.

School opened Monday with students attending only a half day. The first full day of school was on Tuesday, August 20.

SENIOR HOME ROOM teacher Bob Toon passed out student handbooks to Terri Stokes, left, and Mark Schmidt, as school got underway at Murray High this morning.

Four Persons Have Filed For School Boards

Four persons have filed for school board seats in the city and county, according to County Clerk Marvin Harris.

Kenneth Humphreys has filed for a position on the Murray City School Board. Robert A. Baker has announced for district three in the county, as has Joe R. Dyer, and Walter Byars will run for the county board from district one.

The last day to register to vote in the November general election is October 7, according to Harris.

Registration At University Begins Saturday

Registration for the fall semester of the 1974-75 academic year at Murray State University will begin Saturday morning, Aug. 24, with a session restricted to a limited number of students.

Wilson Gantt, dean of admissions and registrar, emphasized that only graduate students, students registering for Saturday and evening classes only, and student teachers assigned for the first eight weeks may register beginning at 8 a.m. in the Waterfield Student Union Building. Saturday classes also will meet for the first time on that date.

General registration will begin Monday, Aug. 26, and continue through two days from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. before classes begin Wednesday, Aug. 28. Gantt gave this registration schedule for Monday and Tuesday in the Student Union Building.

Monday—Seniors from 8 a.m. to noon, and new freshmen and juniors from noon until 4 p.m. Tuesday—Sophomores and new freshmen from 8 a.m. to noon, and late registrants from 3 to 4 p.m.

A major percentage of the new freshmen were pre-registered during the six, two-day Summer Orientation Programs held on the campus in July.

Enrollment packets for students will be available in the Student Union Building beginning Thursday morning, Aug. 22. Gantt urged students to pick up their packets in advance to save time when the registration process begins.

Freshmen and other new students to the campus will get a special welcome during the annual President's Reception to be held by Dr. and Mrs. Constantine W. Curris Sunday, Aug. 25, from 2 to 4 p.m. in Winslow Cafeteria.

An orientation session for all new undergraduate students is scheduled for 6 p.m. in Lovett Auditorium Sunday, Aug. 25.

New faculty and administrative staff at Murray State will meet for the first time at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 22, in the University School Auditorium. A full faculty meeting is scheduled at 12 noon and following a smorgasbord luncheon in the ballroom of the Student Union Building.

The 33 new faculty members will fill vacancies created by normal retirements, resignations and other personnel changes with the total number of faculty approximately the same as last year, according to Dr. William G. Read, vice-president for academic programs.

Friday, Aug. 23, faculty meetings are scheduled in the University's five colleges and 29 departments to complete the pre-registration activities.

Council To Meet Thursday

Bids for city equipment, street paving and personnel matters are the major items to be discussed by the Murray Common Council at its regular scheduled meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at City Hall.

Also on the agenda will be consideration of a resolution concerning revenue sharing.

Bids on this year's street paving program and bids on a backhoe for the street department are scheduled to be opened at the meeting.

Promotions in the Police Department, the hiring of two policemen, and authorization to take bids on radar equipment will also be considered.

Break-In Is Reported At Cook's Grocery

The Calloway County Sheriff's office investigated a burglary at Cook's Grocery on Highway 94 East today, according to department reports.

Taken in the break-in were 30 cartons of cigarettes, and an assortment of grocery items. Deputies said the thieves made their entrance by breaking out a window in the front door.

Two Local Men Charged With Rape

Two Calloway County men have been charged with rape in connection with an incident Monday night involving two 15-year old girls.

County Attorney Sid Easley said Reggie McNutt, 1405 West Main, and Mike Adams, 18, 1610 Kirkwood, are being held on the charge. McNutt is being held in the Murray City Jail and Adams is in the county jail.

No bond has been set, Easley said. Judge Robert O. Miller is to be back in Murray Thursday, and will consider bond at that time.

The men were arrested by Calloway County Sheriff's deputies at about two a.m. today.

Planning Commission Meets Tuesday Night

Four items were considered on the agenda of the Murray Planning Commission, which met Tuesday night.

A special meeting has been called for Thursday at five p.m. to vote on a public hearing, which will be held Tuesday, Sept. 3, at seven p.m. at the City Hall. The hearing is for landowners in the newly annexed area north of Chestnut to air their views on zoning of the property.

City Planner Richard Nash encouraged landowners to attend the meeting Sept. 3 to relate their views to the city on the zoning decisions.

Brandwood Subdivision, to be developed by Howard Brandon south of Glendale Road, was accepted in final plan pending an appropriate surety bond to be posted by Brandon. The subdivision will consist of nine lots at this time.

Two items were tabled by the commission, dealing with refunds of surety bonds to subdivision developers. Jimmy Rickman and Clarence Horton appeared asking for their bonds to be returned. The commission tabled the appeals pending further investigations.

City School Board To Meet

Several items appear on the agenda of the Murray City School Board, which will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

In addition to routine reports and actions, bids will be opened on a 1974 automobile, a house at 107 South Ninth will be disposed of, personnel recommendations, and the superintendent's report will be on the agenda.

The meeting will be held at the board office at Ninth and Poplar.

Purposes Of Faculty Organization At University Outlined By Officers

The Murray State University Faculty Organization will hold its initial meeting of the fall semester on Thursday, August 22 at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the Nursing Building.

The purpose of the organization, which was formed in June of this year, is stated as being to provide a formal structure which would serve as a forum for faculty debate, opinion, and expression on any and all matters of faculty concern at the university.

Dr. Charles H. Daughaday, associate professor of English, is chairman of the organization. Other officers are: Dr. Charles Homra, professor of psychology, vice-chairman; Dr. Alta Presson, professor of home economics, treasurer; and Dr. C. D. Wilder, associate professor of biology, secretary. Dr. Daughaday, a native of Mayfield, said that the organization hopefully would grow during the fall semester to include all the faculty. He stressed the necessity for patience and concern in establishing the beginning of a tradition of full faculty involvement.

During the summer the organization has been active, working in various areas, to develop positions to be modified and accepted by the full faculty this fall.

Dr. Wilder, a native of Paris, Ind., listed several areas of concern currently being dealt with in committee. Included were: tenure policies, curriculum study, personnel equity, public relations and search and screening.

Standing committees are already in operation in these areas, he said, and ad hoc committees dealing with finance and faculty governing bodies will soon be formed.

"A university is defined by its academic programs and its faculty, not by its administrative structure and buildings," Dr. Homra said. "It is the human element, so necessary in effective teaching, that our organization can help voice," he added.

Dr. Presson expressed the feeling that the new faculty organization will contribute greatly to breaking down the professional isolation that has been so pervasive on the Murray State University campus in the past.

The organization is seeking a multipurpose campus location which could serve for both formal and informal faculty gatherings and functions. Such a location would enable faculty members to "break away from departmental confines, renew themselves by interchanges with their colleagues and discuss new ways to continue to

Mansfield Promises Quick Action On Veep Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield promised quick action today on Nelson A. Rockefeller's nomination to be vice president.

Mansfield told reporters every effort would be made "to get it done before we go out in October."

With overwhelming praise except from some longstanding Republican foes, Rockefeller's confirmation by Congress is virtually assured, but there is some question about how long it will take.

Congress plans to meet only about six more weeks between now and November. Congress is scheduled to begin a Labor Day recess Thursday and is tentatively scheduled to recess again in October for re-election campaigning.

Chairman of both House and Senate confirmation committees declined Tuesday to set any target date and House Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., did not rule out confirmation after the November elections.

"I'm not going to set any timetable except whatever timetable is necessary for thorough and responsible consideration," Rodino said.

Rodino and Senate Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., set confirmation machinery, including requests for a full FBI investigation, in motion immediately after President Ford named Rockefeller his nominee.

Both chairmen said a major question is how long it will take to investigate Rockefeller's multimillion dollar financial holdings to see whether there are any conflicts of interest.

Rockefeller flew into Washington in his own plane Tuesday morning to accept the nomination, held his first news conference, paid courtesy calls on some congressmen and then flew out to continue a vacation in Maine.

Before he left he told newsmen he believes President Ford "has every intention" of seeking election in 1976 to a full term.

McBrayer To Speak To Murray Rotarians

State Rep. Terry McBrayer, who has been mentioned as a candidate for Lt. Governor of Kentucky, will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Murray Rotary Club at the Woman's Clubhouse Thursday at noon.

McBrayer, who lives with his family in Greenup, has served five consecutive terms in the Kentucky General Assembly.

United Methodist Women Of Paris District Hold Meet At Good Shepherd

Plans for the annual meeting of the United Methodist Women of Paris District were made Thursday, Aug. 15 when the Executive Committee met at ten a. m. at the Good Shepherd United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Davis Dixon of Wesley Church near Fulton, vice-president, has charge of arrangements and a fine program is being planned. The annual meeting will be in the First United Methodist Church, Paris, Tenn., Sunday, Sept. 15 starting at 2:30 p. m.

The president, Mrs. L. E. McCord of Cottage Grove, Tenn., called the meeting to order and presided. She was assisted by the secretary, Miss Tommye Hunt and the treasurer, Mrs. M. R. Duke, both of Dresden, Tenn.

The Coordinator of Christian Personhood, Mrs. T. J. Oliver of Dresden, presented a devotion on "Love" based on the 13th chapter of First Corinthians. Reports were made by each officer present.

Mrs. McCord announced that the Memphis Conference Annual Meeting would be at Lambuth College, Jackson, Tenn., Oct. 26 and that Officers' Training Day would be at Murray First United Methodist Church Nov. 16. She also announced that the local units should have election of officers in August.

Mrs. Oliver reported that fourteen attended the Prayer Retreat at Lakeshore in April and fourteen attended the Prayer Retreat at Lambuth

College in July from Paris District.

Mrs. H. L. Hearne, Coordinator of Global Concerns, announced that twenty-two attended the School of Christian Mission this year. Also that next year, it would be an expanded school for all to attend Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 1, 2 and 3.

Mrs. Maurice Ryan of Murray, Memphis Conference treasurer, was present and made a short report. She said that the cost of keeping missionaries in the field has increased 45 per cent and if it had not been for additional funds sent in by the members, seventeen missionaries would have had to be recalled. But through "Missionary Support" enough additional funds were given that this did not happen.

Rev. E. L. Crump, Jr., Superintendent of the Paris District United Methodist Church was welcomed and gave the invocation before the meal.

A delicious planned luncheon was served in the Fellowship Hall with Mrs. Maggie Woods and Mrs. Mary Ridings as co-hostesses. They were assisted by two local women, Mrs. Hafford Smith and Mrs. Lois Morris.

Mrs. Wayne Cox, president of the Paris Unit, was a visitor and helped in planning the annual meeting. Other members of the committee present were Mrs. Frank Coles of Hazel, Mrs. Reed Logan of Paris, Mrs. Charles Jackson of Murray, and Mrs. E. B. Cardwell of Fulton.

Fandrich-Simmons Vows Read

The First United Methodist Church of Murray was the scene of the wedding of Miss Susan Elizabeth Fandrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Fandrich, and Bennie Steven Simmons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Simmons, on Saturday evening, August 3.

Dr. James A. Fisher officiated at the candlelight ceremony read at seven-thirty o'clock.

Centering the wedding scene were two arrangements of white gladioli, daisies, snapdragons, baby carnations, and baby's breath placed on each side of the brass altar cross. The pews were decorated with bouquets of white carnations, daisies, and baby's breath.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was presented by Richard Farrell, organist, and Mrs. Vernon Shown, vocalist. Selections included "I Love Thee," "One Hand, One Heart," and "A Wedding Prayer."

Mrs. Charles T. Williams, sister of the groom, kept the register.

Bride's Dress

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She was radiantly lovely in a formal gown of ivory silk organza combined with ecru lace. A delicate neckline was etched in ecru lace and Edwardian sleeves were accented at the wrists with a bias flounced ruffle.

The graceful bias skirt was voluminous with a godet flounce rising from the hemline to mid-knee which floated into a chapel train. Scattered at intervals on the skirt were re-embroidered lace motifs and the flounce was defined with an elegantly applied lace border.

Her headdress was a raised Juliet crown which was richly encrusted with ecru lace adorned with seed pearls. A tiered bouffant formal veil of imported illusion was attached to the headpiece.

She carried a bridal bouquet fashioned of gardenias, pink roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath. Her only jewelry was a diamond pendant in the shape of a flower which was a gift of the groom.

Miss Sharon Fandrich, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a formal gown of silk screen printed organza in blue and lavender tones poised over blue and white gingham check imported cotton. The empire bodice featured a permanently pleated collar with self ruffle which created short sleeves. The full a-line skirt was unadorned with waistline accent of lavender satin that terminated in a back bow.

She wore a scalloped picture hat of lilac braid, bonded in matching satin ribbon; and carried a French bouquet of a single lavender orchid with white roses, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Miss Carolyn Fandrich of Belvidere, Tenn., and Miss Mary Jane Hagan of Madison, Tenn., both cousins of the bride, Miss Gay Crass, Miss Connie Lawson, and Miss Tonya Carroll, friends of the bride, all of Murray.

They were attired identically like the maid of honor and also carried bouquets like that of the groom attendant.

Gary Crass, friend of the groom from Murray, served as best man. Ushers and groomsmen were David Fitch, Mark Blankenship, Cary Brandon, David Morris, and Alan Smith, all of Murray. The latter is a cousin of the groom. They all wore boutonnières of stephanotis, and the groom had a boutonniere of stephanotis with baby's breath.

Lighting the candles in the two seven branched candelabra on each side of the altar were David Fitch and Mark Blankenship.

Dawn Chapman, cousin of the bride, and Cathy Williams, niece of the groom, were the flower girls. They wore identical floor length dresses of ivory silk broadcloth designed with empire waistslines with ivory satin ribbon that tied in a bow in the back. The color was of French ecru lace with insertions of accordin pleats.

The flower girls carried white baskets with rose petals. They wore pink rosebuds accented with baby's breath in their hair.

The bride's young brother, Bill Fandrich, Jr., served as ring bearer. He wore an English Eton suit of ivory imported cotton with the collar, sleeves, and front bodice trimmed in French ecru lace. He carried the rings on a heart shaped satin pillow.

Mrs. Fandrich, mother of the bride, chose to wear a formal gown of citrus green silk chiffon designed with a draped bodice, featuring floating panels with which she wore matching accessories and white gloves. She wore a white orchid with lavender center.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Simmons, was attired in a floor length dress of ice blue, classic design, with v-neck which she complemented with accessories of blending hue. She also wore white gloves and her flower was also a white orchid with lavender center.

Mrs. John A. Ramsey, maternal grandmother of the bride, wore a floor length pink chiffon gown with empire waist and v-neck line with ruffled sleeves.

The bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. John S. Fandrich, Sr., chose a gold and beige metallic dress with a matching jacket and accessories of matching purple and gloves.

Mrs. Lewis Anderson, Jr., maternal grandmother of the groom, wore a floor length dress of beige with brown design. She wore matching accessories with gloves.

All grandmothers were presented with green cymbidium orchids.

Reception Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception at the Murray Woman's Club House.

James Lawrence entertained the guests by playing selections on the piano.

The bride and groom's table was covered with a white satin cloth and held the five-tiered wedding cake topped with three wedding bells. The cake was encircled with summer flowers in the wedding colors. Flowers also surrounded a silver punch bowl. Completing the table setting was a candelabrum holding white tapered and summer flowers.

Other floral arrangements were used at vantage points throughout the club house. Serving at the reception were Mrs. James Boone, Mrs. John McCage, Mrs. Charles Shuffett, Mrs. James Sullivan, Mrs. Bob Hibbard, Mrs. William Ferguson, and Mrs. Pete Hulser.

Also assisting in the entertaining were Miss Nan Shuffett, Miss Debra Kavanaugh, Miss Traca

Walker, and Miss Lisa McReynolds.

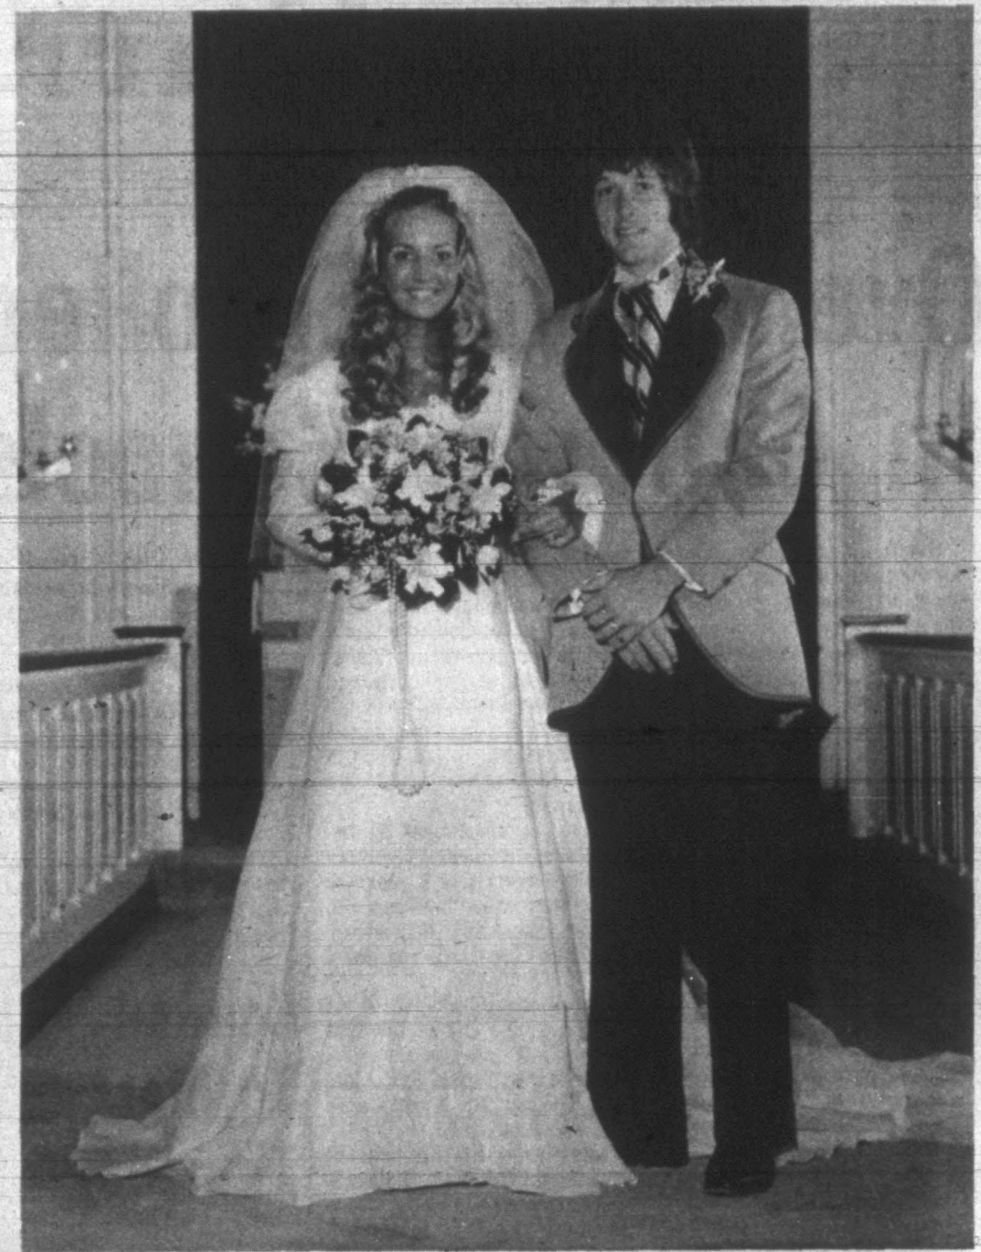

Later in the evening the couple left for a wedding trip to Florida with the bride wearing a blue floral jersey dress with a matching jacket. Pinned to her shoulder was her mother's orchid corsage.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are residing in Murray. She is a 1974 graduate of Murray High School. Mr. Simmons attends Murray State University and is employed at the Murray Division of the Tappan Company.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John S. Fandrich, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. John Fandrich, Jr., and sons of Belvidere, Tenn.; Dr. and Mrs. George Hagan and sons, Miss Janet Nowers, Madison, Tenn.; Mrs. John A. Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. Pride R. Chapman and son, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ramsey, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Buford Jennings, Mrs. Gayle Douglas and children, Miss Mary C. Ramsey, all of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Frnak Miller and Miss Doris Miller of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Anderson and children, Springfield, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Anderson, Sr., Mayfield; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woods, Paducah; Miss Shannon Cox and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Anderson, Jr., California; Mr. and Mrs. Cleatus Glover and children, Ohio; Mrs. Denise Valetine, Michigan.

Rehearsal Dinner Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Simmons, parents of the groom, entertained with the rehearsal dinner on Friday, August 2, for the bride party and out of town guests at the Colonial House Smorgasbord.

The tables were centered with arrangements of summer flowers in the wedding colors of blue, lavender, and green. Paper flower cups holding pastel colored mints were placed at points on the tables. Thirty-five persons were present for the dinner.

Craig-Clary Wedding

In a double ring ceremony at Point Pleasant Baptist Church Linda Sue Clary and Jerry Dwayne Craig were united in marriage by the Rev. Vernon Turner.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Clary and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Craig, all of Buchanan.

Miss Pam Thompson, pianist, played several wedding selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wed in a formal length dress of white knit lace. The bodice, studded with seed pearls, had a high collar and long, full sleeves with deep cuffs closed with pearl buttons. The skirt had a row of small buttons down the front and swept to a train in the back.

Her waist length veil was bordered with satin and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

The bride's maid of honor and only attendant Miss Peggy Clark, wore a long dress of pink with lace and ribbon trim around the short sleeves and the empire waistline. She carried a single pink carnation.

Jeff Hutson served the groom as best man. Ushers were the bride's brothers Lewis and Henry Clary.

Miss Brenda Clary greeted the guests at the register. The bride's mother chose a pink suit and the groom's mother a blue crepe dress. Both used white accessories and had white corsages.

At the reception held at the church the bridal table was covered with white lace and was adorned by an arrangement of pink and white carnations complemented by pink candles in gold holders.

Mrs. Kay Alexander served the wedding cake and Miss Brenda Clary assisted in serving punch, mints and nuts.

The new bride was wearing a pink dress and pink carnation corsage as they left for a wedding trip.

Mr. Craig and his bride are at home at Buchanan.

Among pre-nuptial courtesies for the bride was a shower given by Miss Peggy Clark; and a tea hosted by Mrs. Jackie Boyd.

Dear Abby

Should she conveniently "forget" the Pill?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: John and I have been married for 14 months. He had a 3-year-old son by a previous marriage. We had no trouble getting custody of the boy because his mother didn't want him. (She hasn't come to see him once.)

I am 29 and John is 35, and I want to have a child of our own. John's son, whom I honestly couldn't love more if I had given birth to him, would dearly love a little brother or sister, and I desperately want one, but John says no. His excuse is lame. ("The world is in such a sorry state, we shouldn't increase the population now. We have one healthy, normal child now, why press our luck?")

I am on the pill, and could conveniently "forget" to take it a few mornings, but I hate to be dishonest. If I were to get pregnant, he couldn't force me to have an abortion, and I'm sure that after the child was born he would grow to love it like he loves his son.

Please help me sort out my feelings, Abby.

TORN IN CHICAGO

DEAR TORN: About your scheme to "conveniently forget" the pill: Forget it. (The scheme, not the pill.) Ideally, you and John should get some counseling together. Most clergymen are well equipped; also Chicago has many expert marriage counselors. If John refuses to go, you can't force him, but do go alone. You need some sound, objective counseling to help you resolve this knotty problem.

DEAR ABBY: A writer was unhappy about her flat chest and asked you whether breast implants were considered deceitful and therefore sinful in the eyes of the Lord. You suggested that she ask her clergyman for a ruling. I disagree. Every clergyman cannot keep abreast of new developments in plastic surgery; some clergymen are big busts as advisers on these points.

The writer should look behind her breast—where her heart is—for the answer. Whom is she trying to deceive or please?

"Capping" one's teeth for cosmetic reasons has been an accepted practice for years. Are teeth more important to beauty than breasts?

BEVERLY HILLS M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Only to those who have trouble keeping their mouths shut.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SHIRLEY: I agree. Something is wrong. Maybe he gave at the office.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Gardening Tips from Extension Specialists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture

Any gardener with a toad in residence in his garden can consider himself downright fortunate. This little creature which poets have reviled as the "ugliest of all God's creatures," is truly a gardener's good friend and for this reason:

The toad is born with a seemingly bottomless stomach and works overtime keeping it filled. It regards cutworms as a delicacy and will collect every mosquito coming within reach of its whiplash tongue. It is also very fond of tent caterpillars, beetles, flies and weevils, and—according to some zoologists—will eat up to 30,000 or more injurious insects in a single garden season. It seldom takes a second look at anything that might be food and, hopping down a row of beans or potatoes, can and often does clean off every bug.

The toad works hardest by night. With huge eyes that enable it to see in a very dim light, it roams the vegetable patch avidly harvesting insects. At dawn, it breaks off its patrol, seeks out a shady, moist spot under a cabbage or squash leaf, and squats all humped up patiently waiting for the sun to go down again. If the weather is damp and muggy, however, it may venture out during the day to hunt more food.

But even while shading and resting from a night's activities, it still remains alert and any heedless and unwary beetle, weevil, or caterpillar wandering by is in mortal danger.

The toad's life work is eating insects and it comes well equipped for the vocation. Its tongue, fastened at the front rather than at back of its mouth, can flick out at a target too fast for the human eye to see. The range of the tongue is about two inches, and woe betide any insect coming within this danger zone. Its doom is sealed and its execution swift.

One afternoon recently, while hoeing in the garden, we observed a large toad starting out on its dusk patrol

Mrs. Geritzen Presents Program At Meeting Of Golden Age Club

Members of the Golden Age Club held their regular meeting on Friday, August 2, in the social hall of the First United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Ruby Harrell, vice-president, presided over the meeting in the absence of Harry Lepinske, club president.

A delicious pot luck luncheon was served at noon with Dorothy Attkisson, Ruby Harrell, Ovie Sue Galloway, Ruby Barnes, and Floy Caldwell as hostesses.

Mrs. Joe Geritzen presented the program following the luncheon.

O. C. McEmore announced plans for the overnight outing to Brandon Springs in the Land Between the Lakes on Monday, August 26, and urged all members to attend.

Two new members of the club are Mrs. Novella Butterworth and Mrs. Eunice Shekel. Two visitors were Mrs. Marelle Kingins and Mrs. Ivan Outland.

Members and guests attending were Otis Harrison, Paul Kingins, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Attkisson, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. McEmore, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Tolley, Mr. and Mrs. Will Rose, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Geritzen, Miss Erin Montgomery, Mesdames Mary Lamb, Eunice Shekel, Lillie Outland, Mary Louise Baker, Sadie Harrell, Katie Overcast, Tennessee Outland, Robbie Harrison, Meme Mattingly, Gladys Hale, Novella Butterworth, Ruby Harrell, Lula Dunn, Lenore Jones, Mildred Sharp, Mattie Parker, Modena Butterworth, Marelle Kingins, and Ivan Outland.

The next regular meeting will be held on Friday, September 6.

Miss Janie Lamb Named, Appear In Who's Who

Janie Lamb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Lamb, 213 Ivan Avenue, Murray, has been notified that her name will be featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students for 1973-74.

Miss Lamb will be a senior at Murray High School. She is active in Girl Scouts, sports, and the International Order of Rainbow for Girls.

The Murray High senior plans to attend Murray State University.

Mrs. Lilly Recommended For Special Award

Mrs. G. T. Lilly

Mrs. G. T. (Lucy) Lilly has been recommended by the Kentucky Vocational Association and the Kentucky Association of Home Economics Teachers for the Distinguished Service Award.

This award, given by the National Association of Vocational Home Economics Teachers, will be presented at the national meeting to be held in December.

Mrs. Lilly was recommended for this award at the meeting of the Kentucky Association of Home Economics Teachers held August 13-15 at the Galt House in Louisville.

The Murray woman, supervising teacher of home economics at Murray High School, is now serving as president of the National Association of Vocational Home Economics Teachers. She served as president of the Kentucky Association in 1971-72 and has served in various other duties of the association.

Mrs. Lilly was the speaker at the banquet held by the Indiana Association of Vocational Home Economics Teachers on August 12 at the Stouffer's Inn in Indianapolis, Ind. She shared with the teachers a mutual concern for the future of home economics and told them about the national organization and what she had done as president this year.

The local teacher also spoke at the banquet for the South Carolina Association of Vocational Home Economics Teachers held at Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C., on August 7.

Mrs. Lilly spoke on the topic, "Commitment to Better Teaching—Better Learning—Better Living." She was accompanied by her husband, G. T. Lilly, professor of the Department of Industrial Education, Murray State University, to the South Carolina meeting.

Lowell Burkett, Executive Director of the American Vocational Association, was a special guest at the last meeting.

Paula Jo Williams Named To Appear In Who's Who Publication

Miss Paula Jo Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williams of New Concord, has been notified that her name will be featured in the Eighth Annual Edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students 1973-74.

Students from over 20,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the books.

Miss Williams is active in sports and has been elected as an officer of the Calloway Chapter of the Future Business Leaders of America.

After graduation Miss Williams plans to attend Draughton's Business College, Paducah.

GOOD LUNCH
Quick Lima Soup
Fruit Salad
Cheese
QUICK LIMA SOUP
A pantryshelf vegetable and a canned broth make good partners.
16-ounce can cooked dry baby lima beans
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 tablespoons minced carrot
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
10½-ounce can condensed chicken broth, undiluted
Milk
¼ teaspoon salt
White pepper to taste
Turn the undrained beans into an electric blender and puree. In a 1½ or 2-quart saucepan melt the butter; add carrot and green pepper and cook gently for about 5 minutes. Add enough milk to the chicken broth to make 2 cups; add to saucepan with bean puree, salt and pepper. Heat, stirring often. Makes almost 3½ cups — 4 servings.

'Power' To Spare

Of late there's been considerable debate about how much "power" the nation's governors do or don't have.

But some unsung political punster in Frankfort, Ky., has pointed out that Gov. Wendell H. Ford is one governor who has "power" to spare these days.

It seems that when a tornado knocked out electricity in much of Frankfort, the governor's office was in the dark—literally.

Ford stayed on the job but had to coordinate emergency efforts by candlelight.

Candles, however, shouldn't be needed in the governor's office ever again. With an eye to a possible repeat of what happened when the tornado hit, Ford directed that his office be tied-in to an emergency generator used by Civil Defense.

We can't help but suspect that the governor wishes he had the "power" to solve all his other problems as easily.

End Littering

Littering is still a problem in Hickory. For a while, at the beginning of the ecology movement, it looked as if we were going to beat it, but a look at today's streets tells the same old story.

That most unaesthetic object—the beer can—still mars almost any available clear spot. Littering is not confined to official and unofficial dumps; few private yards or public parks escape the filth.

All those who appreciate the beauty of nature should unite to fight this blight. Cleaning up once or twice a year is not enough; year-round dedication to ending litter is necessary.

Democrats Back To Hair-Pulling Strife

WASHINGTON (AP) — After two years of trying to settle their reform controversy, Democrats are back to the same kind of hair-pulling strife which tore the party apart in 1972.

Probably the last chance to salvage the party's reconciliation effort in time for the 1976 presidential year will come this December at the first mid-term Party Conference, a miniaturized version of the national convention.

It may be too late to restore unity for this year's elections in the wake of a walkout by blacks, women and white liberals from the final meeting of the Democratic Charter Commission on Sunday. They charged that party "regulars" were bent on an item-by-item overhaul of reform efforts.

The disenchanted reform wing left threatening to retaliate in the fall by withholding support from some Democratic candidates.

Although the party regulars outvoted the more avid reformers by three to one at the commission's closing session in Kansas City, the balance will be much closer at the conference in December.

Ironically, the blowup which derailed party chairman Robert S. Strauss's unity campaign was brought on by efforts to push through modifications he felt would avert just such a split.

The Strauss-backed changes were aimed at giving the reformers some of what they wanted but not enough to alienate the regulars who are still smarting over the McGovern Commission rules that kept many of them from the 1972 convention in Miami Beach.

But once the rollback got started and the regular-labor-conservative bloc saw how much muscle it had, Strauss's lieutenants lost control and were unable to stop it.

The break-up of Strauss's approach began over an article designed to open up the party and which contained the ghost of the 1972 quotas.

The black members protested when the regulars began chipping away at this article. The Kansas City commission voted to report four alternatives to the mid-term conference which must now make the painful choice.

The alternatives range from required quotas to virtually no requirement to encourage minority participation.

The more moderate members wanted to report the draft charter to the December conference as it then stood.

But the labor forces, encouraged by their strength and angered by black and liberal threats of a walkout, pressed on. First they knocked out a plank that would allow the national party to "establish criteria for participation in the Democratic party."

Then they introduced an amendment that would have stricken, among other things, the ban on the unit rule which allows a majority of a delegation to cast all of the group's votes.

This is what brought the walkout, and with less than a quorum remaining, chairman Terry Sanford was forced to adjourn the meeting, saying the charter as it then stood would be forwarded to the December conference.

What Strauss has to do between now and December is either to take sides and let the losers take a walk or try to restore the fragile spirit of compromise.

An indication of his course came Monday when he called the walkout a publicity tactic by the black who led the move, California Assemblyman Willie Brown Jr.

The Democrats would be in dire trouble without the coalition of labor, blacks, liberals, the women's movement, the intellectual community and the various other groups which traditionally have formed the national party.

These divergent elements have been allies since the reign of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Now they are split over reform and over the power which reform rules can give or take away.

Russian Roulette

Among the tasks that President Gerald Ford faces is that of strengthening the defenses of the United States. America's military power has declined in recent years while the Soviet Union's armed might has increased dramatically. In large measure, America's decline is the result of the diplomacy of the SALT I agreement which gave the USSR a considerable advantage in the arms race.

To those who fully appreciated the significance of SALT I, therefore, the deadlock of the recent Moscow negotiations came as now surprise. Indeed, nearly six months before the event, Prof. James Dornan of Catholic University warned that the Russians would adopt precisely such a hard line against a further reduction in arms. In a speech before the Alumni Association of the Intercollegiate Studies Institute, Prof. Dornan declared that the rosy picture of détente painted by our Secretary of State has served to obscure the calculated risk they assumed in entering into the SALT I agreements—risks tantamount to playing Russian Roulette with our national security.

While Dr. Kissinger's rationalizations may have satisfied the public that the government's policy on arms reduction had not jeopardized defenses, informed observers like Prof. Dornan have not been so easily put off. Informed observers know, as Sen. James Buckley (R-N.Y.) said recently, that "the SALT I agreement provided the Soviets with an overwhelming quantitative superiority in missiles—a three to two numerical advantage in the number of intercontinental ballistic missiles." More over, as Prof. Dornan noted in his talk, the Soviets have a technique for launching two or more missiles per silo for every one of ours.

Vice Adm. Vincent P. de Poix, director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, recently told the American Defense Preparedness Assn. about the Soviets' current work on new warheads, new type silos, new launching techniques, new command and control facilities and new missile-guidance concepts. "Virtually all Soviet ballistic missile submarine production," he noted, "probably now is shifting to the Delta Class, with its 12 tubes and 4,200-nautical-miles SS-N-6 missile."

It should be obvious to anyone that since the Russians are clearly not serious about limiting arms that we should be making every effort to strengthen our own defenses—not relying on an illusory détente. In particular we should pursue Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger's missile targeting strategy and push ahead to produce a warhead that can be maneuvered in flight.

Should we fail to do so, the prospects are fearful. As Prof. Dornan concluded: "Even among those liberals who enchantment with the USSR has of late recently faded, there is no appreciation of the significance of the Russian military buildup." He added that "the conviction that détente is a reality has inspired and perpetuated a strategy which, if long continued, may threaten the very survival of the United States. Even if we should survive, the question remains: under what circumstances?"

These are the grim realities facing the United States. These are the realities with which President Ford and Congress must be concerned. It is imperative that the new President, in Sen. Buckley's words, be given "an improved set of tools with which to deter a nuclear attack on us or our allies."

NUTRITION TODAY IN A NUTSHELL

For the past few months, a television program titled "Nutrition for Today" has been presenting a series of panel discussions by nutritionists. The series was produced by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare and WRC-TV, the NBC station in Washington, D.C. Other NBC stations also have been telecasting the program.

Highlights from the series are worth passing on to you—in this time of heightened public and professional interest in nutrition.

How have our eating habits changed in recent years?

• There are more and more packaged "convenience" foods in supermarkets; fewer foods are cooked "from scratch" at home.

• Fast-food chains provide fairly inexpensive food; families eat away from home often.

• For many of us, the pace of life has speeded up and more meals are eaten "on the run." Fewer families sit down to eat three, or even one or two meals together.

• Few of us eat three balanced meals a day that have been planned and prepared by one person who is trying to meet the nutritional needs of the entire family.

It seems to me the real crux of change has been the breaking down of the family group eating at home. Under the new situation, family members, except probably very young ones, do not now nourish themselves under the watchful and careful eye of mother. This means we may well have lost one of the most important values of "mothercraft."

In its place, the individual must now know more of what he or she is doing, nutritionally. We probably need motivation as well.

Which brings us to the importance of nutrition education. The need is enormous. The public, I think, is aware of this—thus the tremendous sale of every kind of diet book, whether the author is a faddist or really knows his stuff. And reams of articles appear each month in the popular magazines. Also, improved nutritional labeling on our food products is in the offing.

Varied, Balanced Meals

You are achieving good nutrition when you eat varied, balanced meals that give you the nutrients you need and, in doing this, you take in only the calories you need to perform each day's activities. Thus you need to know what nutrients you need, which foods offer these ingredients, and what your total energy requirements are. When you know that, you know nutrition pretty well.

There are poor people and elderly people with special problems who are malnourished in this country. But a lot of other people are either underfed, or overfed, through simple ignorance or lack of sufficient motivation.

Rockefeller Emphasizes Role As A Subordinate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller is going on duty as White House understudy with a pledge to do President Ford's bidding and a forecast that his new boss will be running for a full term in 1976.

Rockefeller, at 66 a durable if unsuccessful presidential campaigner, took pains to emphasize that he understands and accepts his subordinate role as Ford's vice president-designate.

He said that what he does now is entirely up to the President.

Rockefeller underlined that theme by declaring that he expects Ford to top the Republican ticket in 1976, while declining to talk about his own political future. The former New York governor has sought the GOP nomination three times, twice as a declared candidate. He was widely regarded as a likely entry in 1976.

Ford's candidacy would foreclose that last chance. And Rockefeller said he is convinced the President indeed will run for the office he now holds by appointment and succession.

"He has every intention of it," Rockefeller said Tuesday as he called on the congressional chairmen who will supervise the vice presidential confirmation process. "That was my impression, that's what I urged, that's my assumption."

As vice president, Ford had said he would not be a candidate for president in 1976. But after Ford succeeded to the presidency, a spokesman said the chief executive had not decided whether to seek election to a full term.

Rockefeller also said that he will be on the road campaigning for Republican candidates this fall. He said he had discussed that 1974 campaign role with Ford and is delighted at the prospect.

But a one-time political adversary warned that not all Republicans are going to be delighted with Rockefeller. Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who beat Rockefeller in a bitter contest for the GOP presidential nomination a decade ago, said the vice presidential nominee "is not going to sit well with the conservatives in the Republican Party."

Goldwater said he had warned Ford of that prospect, and "I am sure he understood." He also said Rockefeller is eminently qualified, and had been one of the names on his list of suggestions for the vice presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's background, experience and easy manner were major assets at the polls, although he never managed to convert them into nominating strength at a GOP national convention.

Ford evidenced no concern that Rockefeller might upstage the president. He said Rockefeller would be a good teammate and partner. For his part, Rockefeller emphasized his role as No. 2: "... To preside over the Senate of the United States and to otherwise simply carry out any assignment ..." from Ford.

For, said Rockefeller, "the role of a vice president totally depends on the President. If the President wants to use him, wonderful. If he doesn't, fine." Rockefeller said he had no detailed understanding with Ford as to what he will be assigned to do in his new job.

He said that and the problems facing the nation led him to accept the vice presidency he once had dismissed as only standby equipment. While he didn't say so, the appointment also offered what was almost certainly his last chance for national office.

(A compilation of notes gleaned from the daily mail—some of which will interest many, others that may interest only a few.)

Jazz and Blues and a tribute to W. C. Handy, with Charlie Banks and his Beale Street Originals, starring the immortal Furry Lewis and Little Laura Dukes, will throw over the Ohio River at Henderson, Aug. 31.

The festival of jazz and blues featuring some of the people who knew Handy "when," will offer jazz buffs an opportunity to hear the music that Handy once described as "the songs from down deep" for $1 a head, thanks to the grant of the Kentucky Bicentennial Commission.

The program August 31 will begin at 7:30 p.m., at the Henderson County Middle School Stadium, and will move indoors later in the evening for dancing and an in-depth repeat of the brass, bluesy, notes that raked Beale Street in Memphis in the days of W. C. Handy.

The Blue Cross and Blue Shield Mobile Information Center will be in Murray, on Tuesday, August 27, 1974.

The Mobile Information Center will be located in front of the First United Methodist Church. All Farm Bureau Members with questions regarding health care protection are invited to visit the Blue Cross and Blue Shield service unit. Mr. Michael Chandler, Manager, will be available to serve you.

For the last 72 years Goodwill Industries has dedicated itself to working with the handicapped members of our society.

Through Goodwill's program of rehabilitation, job training and personal counseling, thousands of men and women have been able to rebuild their lives. While learning a new job skill, the handicapped also develop a new sense of self-worth, self-confidence and determination. Through its nationwide network of 154 workshops, Goodwill is able to serve over 25,000 people daily. But there are still many more who need help to move off the welfare rolls and onto payrolls. It is through your support that many handicapped Americans can become productive citizens.

To keep you safe and alive this summer, the Red Cross recommends that you always swim with another person and swim in a safe place. Know the area and don't dive before examining water depth and hidden obstructions. Don't swim right after eating, or when overtired or overheated. Try to stay calm in case of trouble. Assume a face-up, floating position, keep your hands under the water, and slowly move your hands and feet.

Murray State Grid Team Puts On Pads And Gear

Murray State's Football Racers have worked on conditioning and learning the Murray offense and defense since reporting for fall practice last Thursday, but they'll move on to more strenuous things the rest of this week.

They finished the mandatory four days of practice in shorts Monday and scrimmage sessions were held Tuesday, their first day in pads.

"We've been rather pleased with the squad's progress thus far," Coach Bill Furgerson said. "Most all of them reported in good condition and they've worked hard on conditioning and learning drills. There have been a minimum of organizational problems and the freshmen have fit in quickly. We've been working mostly with the people who will play in our first game (Cameron State at Murray, Sept. 7) but we've spotted a couple new players who look as if they can help us immediately."

The most pressing problem facing the Racers coaches was finding a successor to Joe Echert, declared ineligible last week along with 26 other Ohio Valley Conference athletes by the NCAA. Echert, an all-conference defensive end last season and an alternate captain, was being groomed for middle linebacker this fall and was picked on the pre-season, all-OVC team. He has transferred to Syracuse for his senior season.

Don Hettich, who had considerable game experience last year and who intercepted two passes against Eastern Kentucky, has moved into the middle linebacker spot and, according to Furgerson, looks as if he will work most capably there.

Miller And Erwin Call End To Vacations And Return To Golf

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP)—New fathers Johnny Miller and Hale Irwin, two of the young men who have dominated the pro tour this year, have called an end to their summer vacations and will return to action this week in the $250,000 Westchester Classic.

The 72-hole chase for a $50,000 first prize has lured one of the strongest fields of the year to the 6,614-yard, par-72 Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York.

The lineup includes Jack Nicklaus, defending champion Bobby Nichols, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf, Hubert Green and Dave Stockton.

Major absentees for the Thursday start of this event are Lee Trevino, No. 10 money-winner Rod Curl, former champion Julius Boros, John Schlee and Forrest Fezler.

Trevino rarely plays well on this hilly, heavily-wooded course and is taking a break. Curl, who won the Colonial National, withdrew because of continued trouble with tendinitis in his left hand.

Miller, the season's leading money-winner and holder of five 1974 titles, and Irwin, who won the U.S. Open championship at nearby Winged Foot, both have acquired new off-spring.

Miller has played but once in this country since the U.S. Open and Irwin hasn't competed in seven weeks. While their credentials are among the best on the tour this year, their long absences make them something less than the top choices.

In fact, a clear-cut favorite is almost impossible to determine. The strength of the field, the season-long tendency for obscure longshots to come through and Nicklaus' failure to exert his usual dominance all help make it a wide-open race.

Although he's won but once this season, Nicklaus always must be considered a major factor and has the added incentive of usually playing very, very well on this course.

Green, Player, Stockton and Nichols are other major standouts. Player, of course, has acquired the Masters and British Open titles this season. Green and Stockton each has won three times and defending champion Nichols has picked off two titles.

Palmer, who has won but one individual title since his victory here in 1971, and 62-year-old Sam Snead are the sentimental favorites.

More Than One League Team In NCAA Tourney?

ST. LOUIS (AP)—More than one team from a conference will be eligible to participate in the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament in the future, according to action taken Tuesday by the NCAA Executive Committee.

The committee, which held its annual meeting here, announced a policy change which permits a team other than the conference title holder to be eligible for one of the 12 "at large" berths in the national tournament.

Sixteen of the 32 tournament spots go to conference champions and four others are taken from regional tournaments conducted by the East Coast Athletic Conference.

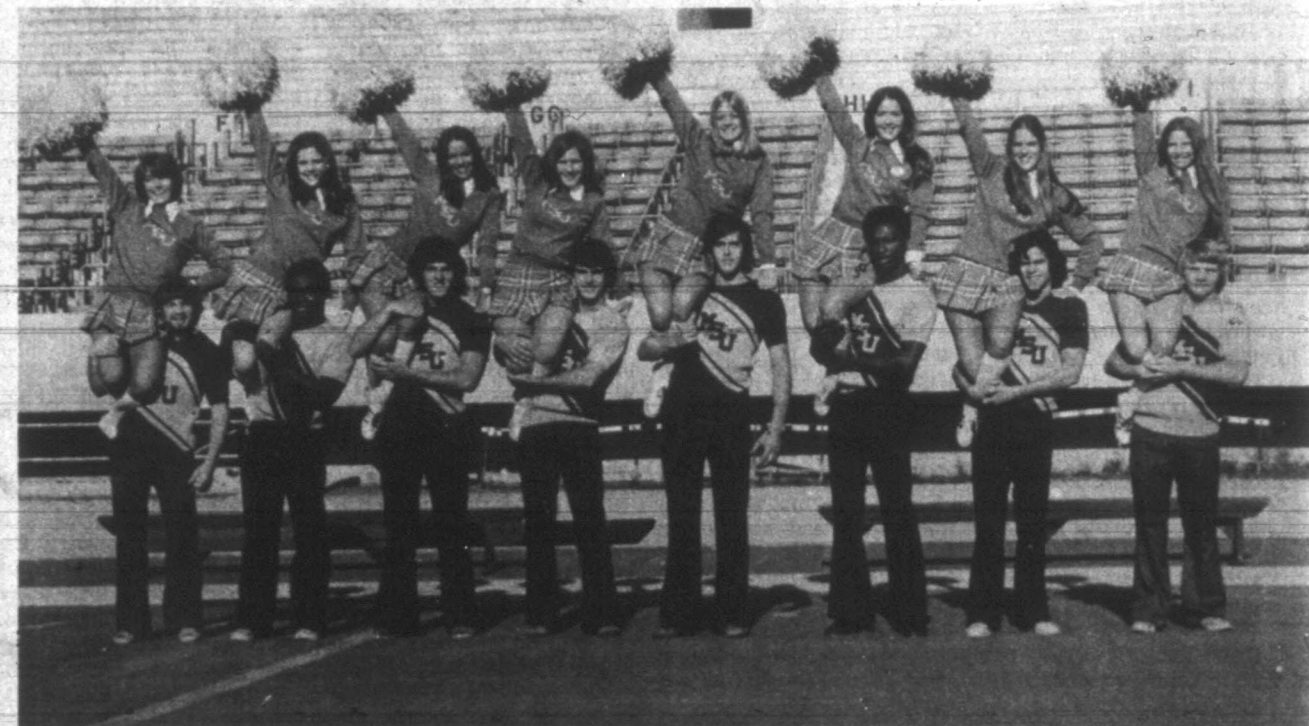

Under the new policy, however, no more than two teams from a conference may play in the national tournament.

Tickets for the 1975 tournament will cost more than before, the NCAA said. Ticket prices for early-round action will go up from $4 to $5 and prices for the finals—to be held in San Diego—will go up from $10 to $12. The price for admission to the 1976 finals in Philadelphia will go up to $12.50.

The policy makers also announced that a 1974-1975 operating budget of $2,495,000 had been approved. The budget includes $200,000 for use in enforcing the NCAA's recruiting rules.

Also adopted was a rule requiring coaches to open their locker rooms to newsmen 10 minutes after the end of a game.

Reenactment Of Civil War Skirmish Set At White Hall

Crashing volleys of musket fire, smoke-belching cannons and parading ranks of soldiers in Blue and Gray will all be part of the third annual White Hall Civil War Skirmish, to be held August 30-September 2 on the grounds of Kentucky's White Hall State Shrine near Richmond.

The weekend of events will feature black-powder rifle, carbine and pistol matches between teams of men dressed as Civil War soldiers, an antiques fair, an art show, a turkey shoot, a band concert by the 44th Ohio Volunteer Infantry Band, a bluegrass music jamboree, and square dancing.

Sponsors will be the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Historic Homes Foundation of Louisville, Inc., and the 9th Kentucky Cavalry, CSA.

One of 170 reactivated Civil War units east of the Mississippi River, the 9th Kentucky Cavalry is a member of the North-South Skirmish Association (NSSA), the nationwide ruling body for all such skirmish events.

A sanctioned skirmish is a shooting match with competition on individual, unit and brigade levels. Standard Civil War weapons are used: black-powder muskets, carbines and revolvers. There are also drill contests (under Hardee's Manual of Arms used during the Civil War) and a parade of men marching as a brigade behind regimental flags.

Authentic and colorful uniform reproductions, modeled after the Zouaves, dashing and brave Algerian volunteer units of the French Army whose dress was later adopted by some Civil War volunteer units, will be among the highlights of the uniform competition which will take place at White Hall in the mid-morning of Sunday, September 1.

Individual and team match shoots in the musket, revolver and carbine classes will start Friday, August 30, at 1:00 p.m., and Saturday at 7:30 a.m. All target competition will be at 50 yards; many of the team events are adaptations of Civil War training exercises, as in the case of the brigade shoot where entire unit teams concentrate their fire to see who can cut a 24-inch-thick log in half the fastest.

After the company and brigade shoot, the Commissioner's Trophy will be awarded to the winning musket team of the weekend's competition. Winning carbine and pistol teams will also receive awards; individual winners and members of winning teams will receive medals.

Over 400 men are expected to compete in the skirmish, in units from as far away as New York, Alabama, West Virginia, Michigan and Georgia, including the 4th Texas Volunteer Infantry, 2nd Virginia Cavalry Regiment, 19th Indiana Volunteer Infantry and 1st Richmond Rifles, the oldest NSSA unit.

White Hall State Shrine, south of Lexington and northwest of Richmond off US-25E at the Boonesborough-Winchester exit of I-75, is the ancestral home of Kentucky's famed statesman Cassius Marcellus Clay (1810-1903). The 44-room mansion, which will be open to the public all weekend, was restored by the Kentucky Department of Parks.

Additional information on the skirmish is available by writing Edgar G. Archer, State Skirmish Coordinator, Historic Homes Foundation, Inc., Suite 381, 400 Sherburn Lane, Louisville, Kentucky 40207.

Funerals

Gardie R. Jones Dies Monday; Rites To Be On Thursday

Gardie R. Jones of New Concord died Monday at about nine p. m. He was 74 years of age and was a cattle trader.

His death was due to a self-inflicted gunshot wound, according to Max Morris, Calloway County Coroner, who was called to the scene along with deputies from the office of Calloway County Sheriff Maurice Wilson.

Coroner Morris said Mr. Jones had been out of town and arrived home sometime late Monday. He parked his car near the vacant house down from the Jones' residence and left a note in the car telling his intentions of taking his life in the basement of the vacant house. Morris said his wife saw the car Tuesday morning, found the note, notified a neighbor who discovered the body and called authorities.

The deceased was born November 29, 1899, in Marshall County, and was the son of the late Lonnie Jones and Lena Hopkins Jones. He and his wife, Mrs. Grace Kolb Jones, were married March 21, 1928. He was preceded in death by one daughter, Mrs. Evelyn V. Smith in November 1969.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Grace Jones; New Concord; two daughters, Mrs. John D. (Mary Wilma) Calhoun of Hazel Route Two and Mrs. Herschel (Thelma Lou) Grace of Greenbrier, Tenn.; two sisters, Mrs. Cary (Lucky) Rose, South 12th Street, Murray, and Mrs. Lola Holland of Florida, Ill.

Also surviving are six grandchildren who are David Ray Smith of Lakeland Air Force Base, Texas; Lisa Gail Smith of New Concord, John Michael Calhoun of Hazel Route Two, Donna, Keith, and Cheryl Grace of Greenbrier, Tenn., and three great grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Jones reared the two Smith children and are their official guardians.

Funeral services will be held Thursday at two p. m. at the chapel of the Blalock-Coleman Funeral Home with Rev. Paul Welch officiating. Burial will be in the Coles Camp Ground Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home.

Funeral Thursday At Local Chapel For Mrs. Free

The funeral for Mrs. Beatrice Henry Free will be held Thursday at two p. m. at the chapel of the Max Churchill Funeral Home with Bro. Lonnie Knight and Bro. Joe Allen Youngblood officiating. Organ music will be by Mrs. Oneida White.

Burial will be in the Mt. Carmel Cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home.

Mrs. Free, age 32, died Monday at 9:30 p. m. at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington. Her death followed an illness of about two weeks.

The deceased was a resident of Farmington Route One. She was a member of Owen's Chapel Baptist Church and had been employed at Roses Department Store. Born December 15, 1941, in Michigan, she was the daughter of the late Arvin Henry and Lucy Shotwell Henry.

Mrs. Free is survived by one daughter, Miss Connie Lynn Free of Farmington Route One; three sons, James Hayden Free of Dexter Route One, Robert Wayne Free and Will David Free of Farmington Route One; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Henry of Paducah; one sister, Mrs. Barbara Camp of Kirksey; two brothers, Billy and Richard Henry of Chicago, Ill.

Ford Accuses Cook Of 'Wobbling' On Issues

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Wendell Ford has accused Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., of "wobbling" on issues, saying Cook changed his mind about the Red River Dam project between 1968 and 1974.

The Democratic governor, who challenges Cook in the U.S. Senate race this fall, made the remarks when the two candidates appeared Tuesday at a Kentucky Chamber of Commerce luncheon in Louisville.

Ford quoted a statement he said Cook made in 1968 supporting the dam. The governor then quoted a statement Cook made this year in which the senator said "anyone who supports the flooding of the Red River gorge is totally insensitive to the grandeur of nature."

Cook said he made the 1968 statement as much out of a "lack of enthusiasm" for U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas as anything else. Douglas had visited the gorge in at that time and condemned the project.

"I'm glad I changed my mind because I have been there many times since then, and I hope to be there in the future," Cook said.

"This state will lose a great natural resource if the dam is built at either the higher site or the lower site."

While the Democratic and GOP candidates appeared, the state American Party chairman, Dr. W.S. Krogdahl of Lexington, said his party's senatorial candidate, W. Ed Parker of Louisville, was deliberately excluded from the luncheon program.

"It is clear that the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce is unwilling to have the real political issues discussed fully and fairly under its auspices," Krogdahl said.

MSU Marching Band Arrives On Campus

Members of the Murray State University Marching Thoroughbred Band arrived on the Murray State campus today, for their annual band camp in preparation for the 1974-75 school year.

Under the direction of Wendell C. Lewis, the band will meet daily for a week preparing its routines for the upcoming football schedule, the first of which will be during the dedication activities Saturday, Sept. 7, for Roy Stewart Stadium.

The band will be marching at six home football games, one away game and will make a guest appearance at the Kentucky Music Educators Association Marching Festival.

FLUSHED BY SUCCESS
HULL, England (AP) — Dennis Bateson, 23, who formerly flushed 2,000 toilets a day as tester at a bathroom equipment factory here, has been promoted to the position of junior foreman.

Bateson was known as Britain's top chain puller and had held his previous post for two years. Now the company reports having trouble finding a new man for the flushing job.

Ford To Be In Washington

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Wendell Ford will be in Washington, D.C., until Thursday for meetings involving both state government and his Senate campaign.

Ford left Louisville's Standford Field on a flight to the nation's capital Tuesday night. The governor's office said he plans to meet with officials of the Federal Energy Office, Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and Transportation Department and with staff members of the Appalachian Regional Commission.

He is also scheduled to meet with national Democratic Committee Chairman Robert Strauss.

Ford flew to Washington on a commercial airliner, and his office said his expenses were being paid by his Senate campaign. He plans to return to Frankfort Thursday.

Buford Pusser Killed In Automobile Accident

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Buford H. Pusser, 36, the former sheriff of McNairy County whose brushes with violence and death were made into the motion picture "Walking Tall," was killed early today in an automobile accident, authorities said.

Highway Patrol Trooper Paul Ervin said Pusser was killed when his 1974 Corvette ran off U.S. Highway 64 near his home town of Adamsville, Tenn., and struck an embankment. Ervin said Pusser was thrown from the vehicle and apparently was killed instantly.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol said there was no evidence of foul play.

The accident occurred hours after Pusser had told a news conference in Memphis that he improve the academic and intellectual atmosphere of Murray State University," a spokesman for the group said. "Make no mistake about it," Dr. Daughaday said, "such improvements can only come from the faculty; this is where the real work is done; the potential is already here; we desire only that it should be realized to its fullest; and I sincerely hope the faculty returning this fall will find the accomplishments, and the aims and ideals of the Murray State University Faculty Organization worthy of its whole-hearted support, for it is only with such support that we can truly succeed."

would play himself in a sequel to "Walking Tall." Filming for the sequel, which was to have been called "Buford," had been scheduled to start Sept. 20 near Jackson, Tenn.

Because of his attempts to clean up McNairy County, the 6-foot-6, 250-pound Pusser was the target of killers seven times during his six-year tenure as sheriff, which ended four years ago. He was wounded several times and his wife was killed in an ambush assassination attempt on his life.

Ervin said Pusser had attended a fair at Selmer, Tenn., and was returning home at the time of the accident at 12:55 a.m.

He said Pusser's daughter, one of his three children, was following Pusser in a second car filled with young people and witnessed the accident.

"There was no apparent reason for the accident that I could find," Ervin said. "I don't know if there was a tire blowout or not. I couldn't tell from the burned car. There was no evidence of foul play as far as I could determine."

Pusser, among the youngest sheriffs in Tennessee history when first elected at 26 after serving in the Marines and working as a professional wrestler, said plans for the new film called for it to pickup where "Walking Tall" left off — just after the Aug. 12, 1967, ambush of a patrol car in which he and his wife, Pauline, were riding. Mrs. Pusser was killed in the barrage of automatic rifle fire and Pusser's jaw was shot away.

Ecevit Says Turkey Ready To Negotiate Reasonable Changes

By The Associated Press
Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit said today Turkey is ready to negotiate "reasonable" changes in the demarcation line carved out by Turkish forces on Cyprus, and that he is "more optimistic than before that Cyprus negotiations can start again."

He said he and British Ambassador Sir Horace Phillips met for 45 minutes in Ankara and discussed possibilities for restarting the talks and that Britain is contacting all the parties involved.

Ecevit told newsmen he is willing to meet with Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis "anywhere, anytime."

Ecevit said Turkey has made an open call to all parties — Greek Cypriots, Greece and Britain — for immediate negotiations on a Cyprus settlement. "Until the final status is settled chaos will reign on the island," he said. "The Greek Cypriots will suffer from this at least as much, in fact more than the Turks."

Ecevit said there is an absolute need for separate areas for the Greek and Turkish Cypriots because of ethnic, religious and cultural differences.

"There is no concept of a Cyprus nation on either side. No one can speak of a Cypriot nation. If they live separately but side by side they will find the possibility of an agreement," he said.

The Turkish Cypriot community on Cyprus numbers 120,000. The Greek Cypriots number 520,000.

The Turks invaded Cyprus July 20, five days after a Greek national guard coup overthrew the constitutionally elected president, Archbishop Makarios, with a plan to join Cyprus to Greece.

The Turks now control more than one-third of the island in the northeast. The boundary runs roughly from Lefka in the west 65 miles to the main port of Famagusta in the east. The United Nations reported that Turkish forces already have ordered U.N. peacekeeping personnel out of Famagusta.

Informed sources in Ankara said Tuesday the Turkish government is going ahead with plans to set up a self-sufficient Turkish Cypriot state in the northern part of Cyprus.

Cost Of Living Up .8 Per Cent In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living rose eight-tenths of a per cent in July despite an easing in the increase in food prices, the government said today.

The July report marked only the second time this year the monthly increase in the government's Consumer Price Index has been less than 1 per cent.

The July increase would amount to an annual rate of inflation of 9.6 per cent, still ahead of last year's 8.8 per cent inflation rate.

Prices as of July 31 were 11.8 per cent higher than in July 1973, the government said. That is the biggest 12-month jump since the year ending September 1947, when the increase was 12.6 per cent.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said, however, workers managed to gain ground last month in their race with inflation.

Spendable earnings, after taking account for inflation, moved up by two-tenths of 1 per cent.

But since it was only the second month this year, real spendable earnings were 5.3 per cent less than a year earlier.

The major factors pushing up prices in July, the department said, were higher interests costs for home buyers and higher prices on cars, medical care and restaurant meals.

The increase in prices for regular gasoline showed from six-tenths of a penny in June to a two-tenths of a cent jump in July. The latest national average price worked out to 55.8 cents a gallon.

House Accepts Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Impeachment proceedings which once threatened to dominate congressional attention the remainder of this year have come to an official halt with House acceptance of a report on the case against former President Richard M. Nixon.

The historic inquiry, which was muted by Nixon's resignation Aug. 9, ended quickly Tuesday with no debate or explanation of the impeachment report from the House Judiciary Committee.

The report was accepted on a vote of 412-3.

Now it becomes an official House document. It will be printed and made available for public distribution, probably by Thursday afternoon.

Final drafts of the report obtained by newsmen last week showed the 38-member committee agreed unanimously that Nixon should have been impeached for obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up.

The three articles of impeachment adopted by the committee included the Watergate cover-up, abuse of power and defiance of committee subpoenas for material.

Roy Knight supervises as Wayne Johnston and Richard Arnold work on underground drainage problems on South Ninth St.

Part of the work of the street department includes the actual construction of city streets. Here, the street department put a bridge in to connect Cardinal Drive and Shady Lane.

staff photos by David Hill

Street Department Has Many Duties

In case you haven't noticed, the Murray Street Department is alive and well and living on North Second Street, and doing an excellent job at its designated tasks.

Few of us realize how many different and varied jobs face the street department. The employees of the department must be jacks-of-all-trades on most days.

Lee Bolen is the head of the street department, and it would be hard to find a man more dedicated to his job. He bends over backwards to sometimes ridiculous lengths to please the people who pay his salary—the citizens of Murray.

Although Bolen doesn't remind the citizens very often, the City does own a right-of-way alongside each street in Murray, and can pretty well do as they please with it, as far as ditching and drainage work. But Lee tries to please each property-owner, and does as good a job as possible with each task.

The street department is involved in countless tasks for the city, including: the building and upkeep of streets; complete charge of the cemetery, with the exception of digging the graves; ditching; surface and underground drainage; bridge work; all street signs in the city; the upkeep of all parking meters and posts; striping and painting; upkeep of sidewalks; curbs and gutters; water inlets and drops; deter and prevent erosion in several areas; hauling gravel; sweeping and flushing city streets; and keeping trees and weeds away from street signs and out of the way of motorists' vision, as well as many other duties.

The department does all this with only 11 full-time employees, five summer youth workers, and one EEA cemetery worker.

The cemetery alone is quite a responsibility—the grass must be mowed around each stone, and the streets must be kept in good repair, and the entire 40 acres must be kept clean.

There are 40 miles of streets in Murray proper, and the addition of the new annex north of Chestnut brings at least 10 more miles under the care of the street department.

The staff is on call 24 hours a day, and is out helping in clean-up after storms, and clearing streets on snowy days. Supt. Bolen receives an average of five calls per week for jobs, and as many complaints per day from citizens.

Sometimes, valid requests must be placed on a waiting list, however, emergency situations are taken care of promptly. No valid complaint is ever ignored, though.

In the spring and fall, the street department conducts a sidewalk trash pickup system city-wide, a practice that is quite popular with local residents.

Supt. Bolen is a Calloway County native, and has a long history of construction experience. He worked from 1952-1957 with the W. Stockton Excavating Co. in Southgate, Mich., starting out as a laborer and moving up to General Superintendent in charge of all field work. He worked for the Orange County Pipeline in California as General Superintendent until 1967, when he returned to Murray. Bolen has been with the street department for three years, and was named superintendent earlier this year.

Bolen is married to the former Virginia Ross from Trigg County, and they have three children, Vickie Overbey, Renee, and Ross Lee. They attend the Hickory Grove Church of Christ.

Lee gives much of the credit due to the street department to the City Council Street Committee, consisting of Chairman Art Lee, Melvin Henlen and Howard Koenen. And, he praises the other municipal departments, electric, water and gas, for their help in the street department tasks.

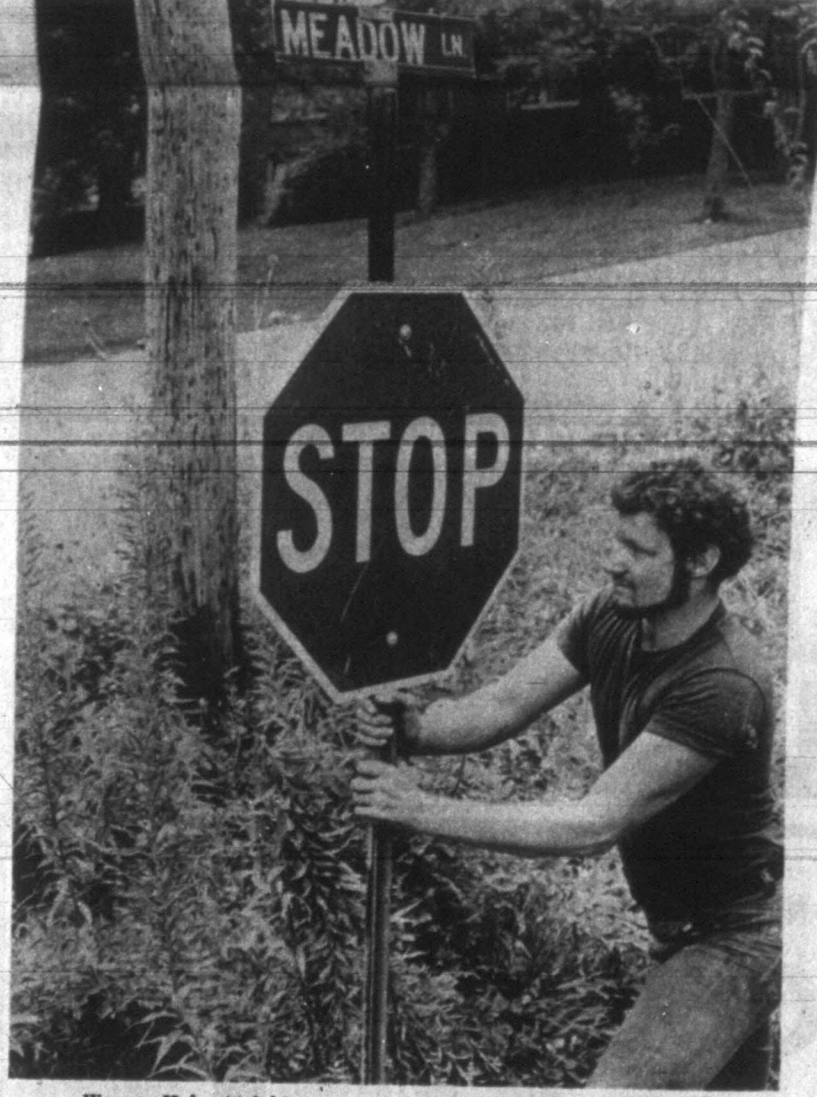

Lee has asked the citizens of Murray for suggestions in the street department work, and asks that they call him first with complaints; instead of the mayor or a councilman. Lee can be reached at the street department office, or a message can be left with the city clerk or city planner.

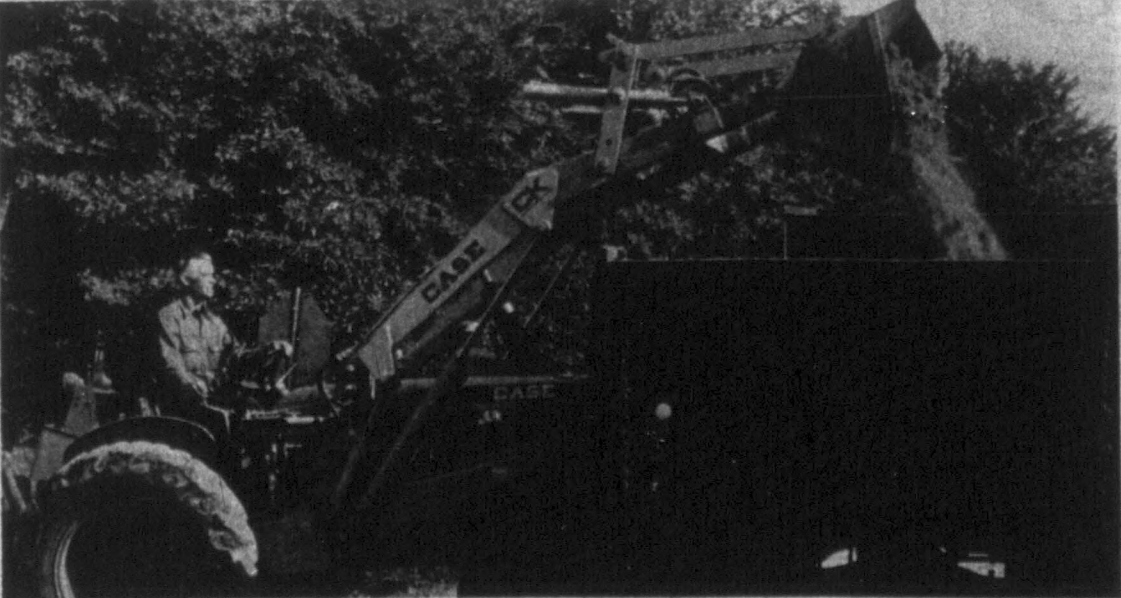

A big part of the street department's summer work includes ditching along city streets. The department workers obviously take pride in what they're doing, and try to do a job that the property owner will be proud of.

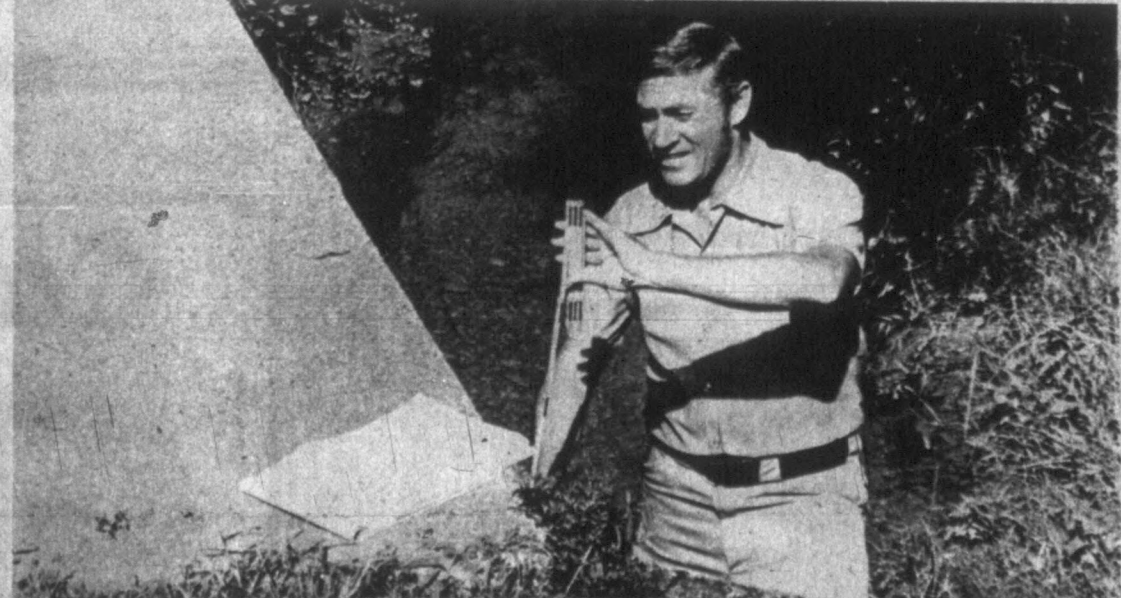

The street department is preventing erosion on Meadow Lane with rip-rap placed along creek bank.

Warren Hale straightens a stop sign, which the street department must maintain and erect. In the background is a street sign, which the department makes, erects, and maintains. The street department workers also straighten parking meters around the court square.

Robert Butler operates a tractor in the grading operation on Cardinal Drive.

It would be impossible to depict all the tasks performed by the Murray Street Department, but these photos are somewhat representative of the many duties that fall in the department's workload.

Doomed lion finds a home

By FRANK MACOMBER
Copley News Service

Man's inhumanity to man unfortunately is a fact of life sometimes, but happily it usually doesn't extend to the animal kingdom.

Take Sampson, the friendly lion, who was to have been given a permanent sleep last month because his San Marcos, Calif., owners had abandoned him, kennel fees were mounting up and an acceptable new owner could not be found.

When the story hit the newspapers, there was an outcry against those who would abandon a lion, leaving him helpless in the human jungle, and a flood of offers to take Sampson in.

Imperial Kennels of San Marcos and the nearby Escondido Humane Society were deluged with requests for the 14-month-old, 300-pound African lion's custody.

"The responses we've received were overwhelming," says William Huskey, Escondido Humane Society executive officer. "Several of the offers were from bona fide organizations that could take Sampson and give him a good home."

Offers came from places like Sea World in San Diego, Lion Country Safari in nearby Orange County — both in Southern California — and several zoos.

Even television-screen actor James Brolin and his wife, Jan, who own a ranch near Paso Robles, Calif., wanted Sampson. They had agreed to build a special open compound on part of the 230-acre ranch as Sampson's new home. But Brolin had to change his mind on advice of his veterinarian, who warned that Sampson might not get along with the actor's exotic cats.

So Sampson is going to Lion Country Safari, where thousands of animal lovers may view him from their cars each year, in a man-made setting which resembles the native habitat of jungle animals.

In West Dundee, Ill., a suburb of Elgin, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shapiro fooled Mother Nature with a margarine container and at the same time provided a new nest for a homeless bird family.

When a neighborhood child found a baby bird on the Shapiros' front lawn, they tried to find its nest. Failing, Mrs. Shapiro built a prefabricated nest from an empty margarine dish, lined it with dry grass and suspended it from a tree branch with wire.

Then Mother Nature took over again. Soon after the baby bird was put in the nest, a mother robin flew to it, followed moments later by her mate. They began the schedule of feeding the youngster as though nothing had happened.

No one will ever know whether the robins are the natural or foster parents, but who really cares?

Shapiro is a police sergeant often called the "dog man of West Dundee" because he compiles the police department's list of possible homes for stray dogs.

"Now my wife Jeanette probably will be known as the bird woman of West Dundee," Shapiro says.

Betty Ford a candid, 'middle American'

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Six months ago Betty Ford said the idea of being First Lady scared her to death.

Today, even though she says she "never envisioned that I would be in this position," she is ready to head up the country's first family with her husband, who was elevated to the presidency by Richard Nixon's resignation.

Yet to the end, Betty Ford was playing out her stance of "not speculating" she would assume the role as First Lady.

On the day before the change of power, Mrs. Ford was proceeding with plans to move into the newly designated vice president's residence — supervising the mixing of the yellow paint she had selected for some of the rooms and proceeding with plans to be at the State Department the next morning to pick out the vice presidential crystal.

On what turned out to be her last day as "second lady," Nancy Howe, Mrs. Ford's assistant, said it was a "normal" day.

"Mrs. Ford went out to lunch, then to the foot doctor (she had a toe operated on recently for a spur)," said Mrs. Howe in a telephone interview.

It was a normal day, also, for the Ford children: Susan, 17, was at school; Steve, 18, was doing his summer job — mowing lawns; John, 22, was fishing in Yellowstone National Park; Michael, 24, and his wife were driving up to Boston where he is in theological graduate school.

"Normality" is a mood Betty Ford is likely to stress as she takes over operation of the White House's east wing. For if there is one way that Mrs. Ford impresses, it is as being down-to-earth, open, candid, friendly, unaffected, middle American.

That was her background. She was born Betty Bloomer 55 years ago in Chicago, Ill., but grew up in Grand Rapids, Mich. — which was also Ford's home.

She attended public schools and went on to attend Bennington College in Vermont where she studied modern dance and later with the Martha Graham concert group in New York City.

As First Lady, she is expected to take a particular interest in dance and the arts. "I would hope to find ways to improve the arts because that has been my background," she said, speaking of her role as second lady, in an interview in February.

Betty Ford didn't pursue her career in dancing but she did become a Powers model for awhile.

In her early 20s, she married a Grand Rapids furniture company representative, William Warren. In 1947 — four years later — they were divorced, she said, on the grounds of incompatibility. She was awarded a token settlement of $1.

It was a marriage "I could have easily skipped," she told reporters, but added it offered one advantage "because I certainly learned, and probably appreciate more, what a good marriage can mean."

She said when she and Ford started dating after her divorce, "he was practicing law, and when we decided that maybe it would be a good idea to get married, I thought I was marrying a lawyer and would probably live in Grand Rapids and have the usual circle of friends and golf and tennis and the Saturday night country club dance."

But he then decided to run for Congress "so we announced our engagement." They were married Oct. 15, 1948, just 18 days before he was elected to his first term of Congress. She was 30 and he 35.

Mrs. Ford found being second lady a "very busy-busy, helter-skelter" sort of life with a much faster pace than she first expected. Yet she said she enjoyed it and found it "fascinating."

In the last four months of her nine-month tenure as second lady, Mrs. Ford increasingly made more public appearances and was received by the public as being an effective, polished and yet totally natural public figure.

She was the official administration representative at the funeral of the slain mother of Martin Luther King. She gave several commencement addresses and opened numerous cultural events, including the Harkness Ballet Theater in New York City.

Betty Ford is — as any American mother — very wrapped up in her children.

She led the average American mother life: Sunday School teacher, Cub Scout den mother, Parent-Teacher Association participant — all during the time her husband was a congressman and minority leader.

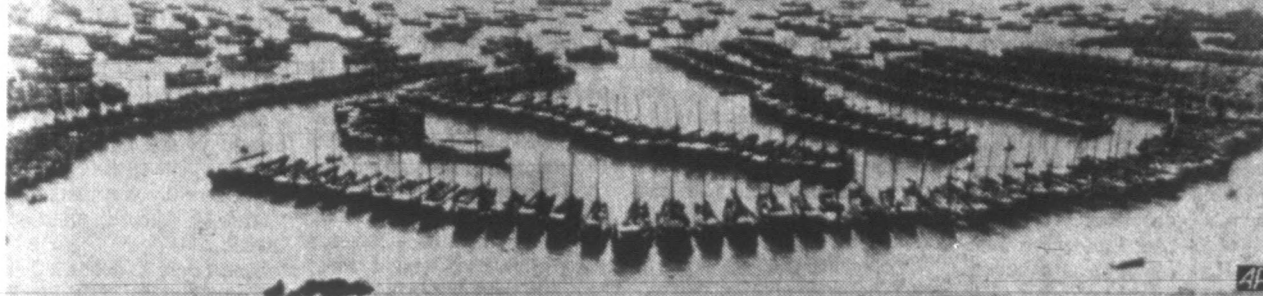

She never abrogated day-to-day children chores to an underling, even when she easily could have as the second lady.

When she was late to an interview recently, the reason, it turned out, was that she had spent her morning calling doctors and Steve's high school to set up an emergency appointment for her son, who suffered from an eye ailment.

A pinched nerve in her neck, "caused when I overreached trying to put up a window nine years ago," has limited her physically. She had to give up tennis, golf, skiing and dancing — but she still continues to swim in their backyard pool, a favorite sport of her husband.

She has long been considered one of official Washington's best dressers. At 5 feet, five and a half inches, she is a slim size 8, sometimes even a 6.

VIENNA BOYS CHOIR IS 50

VIENNA (AP) — The Vienna Boys Choir will observe its 50th anniversary this year, and part of the celebration includes moving into a new building.

The building has rooms for instrumental training, a swimming pool and a large gym. The construction cost of approximately $1.1 million was raised from the choir's funds and by credit grants.

The successor to the Boys Choir of the Imperial Court, which sang daily masses and performed at banquets as early as 1498, the Vienna Boys Choir today supports itself from its concert tours, recordings and films. Including apprentices who have not yet been assigned to one of the four touring ensembles of 24 singers each, the organization's membership stands at 140.

Preacher Says Choir Lifeblood Of Services

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The stamping, clapping gospel beat of a 100-voice choir is the lifeblood of his church, says a black Baptist pastor.

At Union Baptist Church, one of the largest black congregations in central Illinois, more than half of the two-hour Sunday service is filled with rousing gospel songs and blues-tinged spirituals.

"If the black church does not have a vital choir, it almost dries up—dies," says the Rev. Dr. Rudolph S. Shultz, pastor of Union Baptist. "I wouldn't want to pastor a black church without a choir. I wouldn't be going anywhere."

The choir inspires the pastor to preach and the congregation to listen, he said.

"The black clergyman takes his cue from the music," Dr. Shultz said. "The music must be attractive to bring the people closer to him."

"The central point is the preaching, but the choir sings songs that relate to everyday experience. Music is a very vital part of religious worship."

Dr. Shultz said the style of music is shifting from the solemn strains of spirituals to the hand-clapping, foot-stamping beat of gospel. "Black people have to have this rhythmic food," said Mary Louise Smith, a choir soloist. "The beat is the difference. The spiritual tells the story, the gospel has the beat."

Dr. Shultz adds, "When the black man was in slavery, he was not privileged to communicate with other workers. They communicated through songs."

"For example, if the slaves were going to have a meeting, they would sing, 'Meeting tonight, meeting tonight, meeting at the old campground.' All the boss man would hear was the song."

He said the music eventually made its way into the black church and developed into a significant part of the service.

At Union Baptist, teens and senior citizens alike take up their hymn books and sing, accompanied by piano and organ. Church officials said the choir and its style of music has much to do with attracting young people to the church.

"It's really their bag," said Hazel M. Taborn, minister of music.

And Louis T. Jones, a young organist, said, "It's the best part of the service."

Sports Club Is Leader In Corrections Therapy

FRANKFORT, Ky.—A decade-old sports club at the Kentucky State Reformatory at LaGrange has emerged as a leader in the current trend in corrections therapy.

"Don't get us wrong. We still promote sports activity, but we do it from a slightly different angle," says Larry Spaulding, inmate president of Action, a club formed nearly 11 years ago for sports-minded inmates under the name Alter Athletic Club.

That angle includes religious therapy, rational group therapy, drug abuse therapy and sports therapy. All four programs are centered around the theory that "a man can better himself and solve his own problems through group involvement," Spaulding said.

The drug program reportedly is the most popular among club members.

He said the drug program's ritualistic activity helps create "an atmosphere and a feeling for these guys who really want to either shake the (drug) habit or stay away from the stuff for good."

The sports therapy program deals with behavior and attitude problems of men engaged in sports competition. Spaulding said he zeroes in on the problems directly after club members have participated in a game.

"It helps them understand why anger motivates them to throw bats or cuss at the referee or umpire," he explained.

In addition, club members undergo therapy in religion and philosophy, plus rational therapy, which allows discussion on a wide range of subjects. William Easley, a caseworker at the reformatory, said each Action program lasts three months. Afterwards, inmates are certified to serve as counselors on a limited basis to other inmates.

STRIKING FIGURE

Some 5,600 strikes are estimated to have begun in 1973—an increase of almost 500 over 1972 and the third largest number of strikes on record for a single year.

Tuition Waivers

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Want to go to school tuition-free this fall? Many people will.

In fact, the Kentucky Center for Veterans Affairs probably will grant more tuition waivers to students at state colleges and vocational schools this year than ever before. Last year, the center issued more than 400 tuition waivers, a record according to manager L. S. Roberts. Since the program began 10 years ago, about 2,000 waivers have been granted.

"But," cautioned Roberts, "anyone who wants to join that group of tuition-free students by this fall semester better hurry up and apply for the waiver."

To receive a waiver, a person must be the child of one of Kentucky's 400,000 veterans of wartime service. That veteran must be a permanently and totally disabled Kentuckian or must be rated 100 per cent for compensation purposes. The child of a deceased wartime veteran also is eligible.

"Many people probably don't realize they are eligible for a tuition waiver because their parent's injury was not related to his years of service. However, it doesn't matter when the injury or death occurred."

"In fact," continued Roberts, "it is because the injuries do not have to be service related that the number of applications for waivers is increasing. As the veterans age, more and more of them become disabled. Therefore, more children become eligible for tuition waivers."

Anyone in doubt about eligibility, or who wishes to apply for the waiver may contact the Kentucky Center of Veterans Affairs, 600 Federal Place, Room 122, Louisville, Ky. 40202, or call (502) 584-3042.

Marriageable Females Come With A Price

By IVAN STEFANOVIĆ Associated Press Writer
GOSTIVAR, Yugoslavia (AP) — Djemal Eypri, a laborer in this Macedonian city, worked hard to save enough money to buy a wife.

He reached his goal. They married. And she ran off — with the money.

Djemal started saving again. In many villages and towns in Macedonia girls are heavily outnumbered by men and consequently at a premium. And although the Yugoslav Penal Code forbids the sale of brides through dowries, marriageable girls in these communities carry heavy prices on their heads.

Kadri Biljali, 23, gave his prospective father-in-law a $1,750 down payment on his 15-year-old daughter. To complete the marriage agreement he then had another $3,500 to find, half of it in gold.

Inflation on the marriage market is increasingly bothering Macedonian men. One of them, Nevzat Biljali, was moved to complain to President Josip Broz Tito recently in a letter imploring his aid.

"We must pay between 40,000 and 60,000 dinars — $2,300 and $3,500 — to the girl's father to set up the wedding," Biljali, 29, wrote from the village of Cergan, near here.

"We get this money together through hard labor. Then we have to pay another 40,000 dinars in gold."

"We are asking you, the dearest friend of Albanians living in this country, to abolish this excessive burden."

Nevzat's letter found its way to the Cabinet of the Macedonian state government.

A spokesman pointed out that Commercial banks expect to sell 125 million newly issued U.S. Savings Bonds this year as a public service. Some $56 billion worth of the bonds are currently outstanding.

'Don't Take Wooden Nickel' Is Not Always Good Advice

By JIM GREIF
Associated Press Writer
POMONA, Calif. (AP) — Don't take any wooden nickels. Remember that adage? During the Depression, the citizens of Blaine, Wash., accepted wooden nickels — and they were legal.

With the value of the dollar fluctuating from day to day, wooden money has turned out to be a good investment, too, although it is no longer legal tender.

Legal wooden money was first issued in Tenino, Wash., when the local bank failed in December 1931, says Earl O'Cathey, the president of the Wooden Money Association, headquartered in this Los Angeles suburb.

The town's newspaper publisher and the chamber of commerce joined forces to obtain congressional approval for the first legal wooden money issued in the United States.

"The money was made by laminating two thin slices of wood to a sheet of bond paper," Because the money was made of flexible cut spruce and was roughly the same rectangular shape as paper money, Tenino citizens could carry it in their wallets.

It wasn't until 1933, though, that a legal wooden nickel was issued. The bank in Blaine failed that year, and the citizens there followed the lead of Tenino and issued wooden money.

But Blaine issued its money in the form of coins. Perhaps because the Blaine coins did not have an expiration date on them as the Tenino bills did, Congress removed wooden money from legal tender a few years later, says O'Cathey, 70, a retired construction engineer.

"Those two cities are the only ones to ever have legal wooden money in the United States," he says.

Even though wooden money is no longer legal tender, it remains legal to this day if it is intended for use in only one business, says O'Cathey.

During the Depression many shopkeepers continued giving their private wooden coins to customers in change. It is likely that the saying, "Don't take any wooden nickels," originated with a Spokane mother exhorting her child not to accept in change any privately issued wooden tokens, O'Cathey says.

Today a Blaine wooden nickel is worth more than $1,000 and climbing upward annually. Wooden money is owned by the more than 100 members of the California Wooden Money Association and by coin collectors across the nation.

Only $40 worth of the $10,000 of the wooden money "minted" was ever redeemed by the town banks.

O'Cathey owns the first bill issued in Tenino and the first wooden nickel from Blaine.

Ancient window glass reassembled

An almost complete pane of Roman window glass has been pieced together by Dr. Donald B. Harden, an accepted authority on ancient glass.

The glass was found near the Wealden, England, site of a Roman-British settlement which included a complete Roman bath building.

Same Name Driving Other Gerald Ford Up The Wall

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — From the barrooms in Middle America to the salons of Paris come the telephone calls to Gerald T. Ford on who should be picked as vice president.

The leading contenders? California Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

But groaned Gerald T. Ford: "I try to tell them I'm not the President. I'm Gerald Tierney Ford—the accountant. I'm young and I've got all my hair."

The 21-year-old Ford has an Alexandria address—as does President Gerald R. Ford, who lives 5 miles away but has an unlisted telephone number.

Bachelor Ford said his phone began ringing, and hasn't stopped, since the eve of Richard Nixon's resignation.

"The first few times I thought it was a joke," said Ford. "I played along. But now they're calling at two or three o'clock in the morning. It's a pain in the neck."

He says he has gotten more than 50 telephone calls for the President since his namesake became chief executive on Friday.

Foreign newsmen call. Just plain folk call. Paris calls, Luxembourg calls. Drunks call.

"Hang in there, Jerry; we're rooting for you," they tell me," said Ford. "Others tell me to get to work on inflation."

He said another contingent tries the personal touch, like "this is so-and-so, don't you remember me, I met you in Connecticut."

Ford said he attempts to explain to them the telephone mix-up, but often they don't believe him.

And when he hangs up in desperation they just call back.

Still others are truly sincere and offer prayers for the President, he said.

"I figure when President Ford moves into the White House, things will cool off," said Ford. Otherwise, he's thinking about unlisting his phone number, too.

What did the switchboard operator at Ford's apartment building have to say? "Them people—they're driving us up in the wall," she said.

Maui Business Can't Keep Up With Demand

KAHULUI, Hawaii (AP) — The Kobayashi family on the island of Maui has a business problem at their potato chip factory that would be the dream of every potato chip company in the capitalistic world.

They produce a potato chip which is more expensive than other chips on the Hawaiian market, but which is so popular the family finds it hard to keep up with the demand.

The Kobayashis — father Yoshio, 71, and sons Dewey, 45, and Joe, 35 — run the family-owned Maui Potato Chip Co., whose "kitchen-cooked" chips are snapped up whenever they appear anywhere in Hawaii.

The family began their operation on this island in 1957 after being forced out of the grocery business by the large chain stores. They bought a small one-pot cooking operation and started experimenting with ways to make potato chips.

After more than 15 years of experimenting, the Kobayashis have perfected a chip unlike any mass produced potato chip from the mainland — a chip that everyone in Hawaii wants, but only a few can get.

"We produce potato chips primarily for the people on Maui," said son Dewey. "Whenever we get requests from outside of this island, we try to fill the orders, but most of the time we can't."

And this is the family's main problem.

"It's a shame that we can't supply everyone's orders, but we're a small operation ... and that's the key to our good potato chip," he said. "You can't produce our type chip on a large scale, believe me."

The Kobayashi's Maui chip, first of all, is thicker than the conventional chip from the mainland and it's brownish in color, almost burnt looking. It's usually larger and slightly brittle too.

"The darker color of our chips is caused from the sugar content in the potatoes we use," said Kobayashi. "The larger companies use the kind of potatoes that make a white-looking chip ... which is okay if you're only interested in how a chip looks and not how it tastes."

Only nine employees and the three Kobayashis make up the entire work force at the small chip-making factory. The potato peeling and cutting is done by machinery, but the rest is done by hand, including the cooking, salting and packing.

Yoshio Kobayashi, the father, handles all the cooking — which is done every week day from 11 p.m. to 1 p.m. the next day. Dewey and his brother Joe handle the mass packing and shipping chores.

The plant consumes about 30 sacks of potatoes, all imported from California and Washington, per day.

The fuel crisis has also had its effect on the operation. Diesel fuel is used to heat the large cooking vats, and since the company is allocated fuel by its 1972 usage level, "company growth" is being held back.

Kobayashi, even though he makes what he calls "the best chip in the world," is not his own biggest fan. He says he prefers baked potatoes to his chips.

Falling Cattle Market Prompts Family To Drift On Houseboat

CORONA, S.D. (AP) — Stung by the falling cattle market and anxious to get away for a while, the Marcus Joachim family is planning to drift through life for a few years on a giant homemade houseboat.

Joachim, 28, who raised 100 head of cattle on his father's farm near here before the bottom dropped out of the market, drew up the plans himself and began building the vessel in May.

He plans to launch it on the Missouri River, and is constructing the 70-foot long and 20-foot high vessel on a trailer so all he has to do is pull it 200 miles south to the launch ramp at Sioux City, Iowa.

"He's been playing with the idea for four years and we just decided to do it," said his wife Barbara, 22. "The cattle weren't making much of a living ... and he figured that before the kids are in school, we'd all get away while we can. I think it will be fun."

The couple and their two daughters, Selissa, 4, and Nicole, 8 months, live with his father, Victor.

Joachim, who worked on boats in Alaska, hopes to have his finished in October. The family will leave then, unless they're short of money, in which case they'll save and sail next spring.

The boat's main structure is constructed of 2-by-6-inch planks, and the bottom and sides will be covered by fiberglass. The living quarters, 14 feet by 40 feet, will be built on the main deck with a wheelhouse mounted on top. There will be two bedrooms and three watertight compartments for storage. Tanks will be built in the hold to carry 1,500 gallons each of fuel and water.

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, Lincoln Center will present an outdoor festival of 50 free performances of musical comedy, dance, cabaret, recitals, chamber music and street theater as "Lincoln Center Out-of-Doors," beginning Aug. 20 and running for two weeks.

Gas Rationing Coupons Are Stored In Case Of Shortage

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency gasoline rationing coupons printed during the recent energy crisis are stored in secret warehouses in case of future shortages.

The 4.8 billion coupons have been a source of embarrassment for the FEA since Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla., disclosed in May that they could be used to trigger dollar change making machines.

The coupons contain an image of George Washington. The identical image appears on dollar bills.

An FEA spokesman said the coupons, which cost $12.5 million to print, have been stored in several government-owned warehouses across the nation. He declined to specify the locations, but said all were in "secure locations guarded by such government agencies as the Defense Supply Agency, the Federal Reserve and the Bureau of the Mint."

The spokesman claimed little or no money was involved in the storage since all of the facilities are government-owned.

He said the coupons were transported to their storage facilities "in armored vehicles and treated with the same care as currency."

The spokesman said FEA felt the chances of anyone breaking into the government-guarded facilities and stealing the coupons were minimal.

Gunter had claimed the FEA would have to destroy the coupons to keep them from being used in the change machines, but the spokesman said there are no present plans to destroy or alter them.

He noted that the coupons would be worth more than a dollar on the open market if rationing ever should occur. As a result, it would not be advantageous for persons to use them in dollar-changers during rationing, he said.

He noted that the coupons would be worth more than a dollar on the open market if rationing ever should occur. As a result, it would not be advantageous for persons to use them in dollar-changers during rationing, he said.

Gunter has been a persistent critic of the coupons, which were printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing as part of a contingency rationing plan.

Monday, Gunter announced his first "Bumbling Bureaucrat of the Month" award was going to James A. Conlon, administrator of the Bureau of Engraving.

The congressman said Conlon was awarded the trophy—a crumpled piece of waste paper—for completing production of the 4.8 billion coupons even after it became clear they were not needed.

Ford To Tighten Purse Strings Of Pentagon In Administration

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a strong defense advocate, President Ford will make the Pentagon pull in its belt to save money, close associates predict.

The first belt-tightening move may come within two months. A source familiar with Ford's thinking says the Pentagon "probably will have to eat" a pay increase of about $1.5 billion due in October for more than 2,160,000 military men and women and about one million civilian employees.

By this, the source said he meant the Pentagon will have to absorb the increased cost, perhaps by cutting the number of personnel below levels planned by the Nixon administration.

Some of those advising Ford believe the biggest spending cuts should come in manpower costs, which now account for about 55 per cent of the defense budget. Besides pay, such costs cover housing, food, clothing, medical care and other support of military personnel and their families.

A new White House push to trim military manpower further could bring the first strain between the new President and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who has said U.S. forces already are thin.

Associates of both men say Ford and Schlesinger agree on most major defense questions, including a cautious approach to a new strategic arms limitation agreement with Russia.

Like Schlesinger, Ford has called attention to the pace of Soviet weapons developments and said that "to prevent a serious imbalance, we must continue to modernize and improve the readiness of our combat forces."

While supporting detente as a goal, Ford has said, "we must insure that our good will is not misconstrued as lack of will." Ford, who served for years on the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee, supports many of the key weapons programs which have been urged by Schlesinger and former President Richard M. Nixon.

But Ford would not neces-

Murals Exchanged For Whiskey, Gin

HARROGATE, England (AP) — Frank Bowers returned home with his four children after a week's vacation and found somebody had drunk two bottles of his whiskey and a bottle of his gin.

In exchange the mysterious intruder left four oil paintings and eight big murals—including a Disney cartoon in a bedroom, large abstracts in the dining room and master bedroom, two nudes in the bathroom and Superman going "zap" in another bedroom.

"I don't know who's done this, but it's a fantastic job," Bowers, 36, said on his return Monday. "I'm leaving them as they are. The kids won't even let me rub out the nudes in the bathroom."

Bowers, who is separated from his wife, added that one of the paintings was unfinished. "I would willingly pay the artist a few quid (pounds) if he would come back and finish it off," he said.

Tobacco Growing Same In Many Ways

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
WHITAKERS, N.C. (AP) — In many ways, growing tobacco is the same for Raymond R. Bradley Jr. as it was for his father.

Young black boys still follow mule carts through his fields, plucking the leaf from the stalks by hand. They still have to get it into the curing barns at just the right time.

Bradley still finds that "There is nothing that gives me more pleasure than watching a clean crop grow. My daddy loved it himself."

Many other things have changed, however. It costs Bradley more now to put a pound of tobacco on the warehouse floor—more than he sold it for not two many years ago. Everything connected with growing tobacco has become more expensive in the past year, Bradley said, echoing farmers' complaints from all over the flue-cured growing region in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia.

Fertilizer, a combination of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, has almost doubled in price. Curing oil to heat the tobacco barns in which the leaf turns from green to deep yellow has risen by as much as ten cents per gallon.

Bradley estimates that it costs him 70 cents to put a pound of tobacco on the floor of People's Warehouse in Rocky Mount, where buyers from the tobacco companies purchase it at auction.

He had 20 piles of it on the floor early this week and came to watch the sale. From its color, size and texture, it was obviously from the middle of the stalks and of high quality.

Tobacco is picked from the bottom of the stalk upward and the first leaves to be pulled, known as primings or lugs, are generally inferior as smoking material. They bring lower prices.

Marching slowly to the rhythm of the auctioneer the 11 buyers moved down one side of the row of piles; warehouse personnel walked down the other side.

As they came to Bradley's piles, the warehouse's starter said, "One hundred dollars." That was supposed to be the starting price for the auction.

But there was no real bidding, although all the buyers wanted some of Bradley's tobacco. Instead, the auctioneer simply went down the line of buyers and sold them each one or two piles at $100 per hundredweight or $1.00 per pound. In a minute, it was over.

"Thank you, gentlemen," Bradley called, his leathery face creased in a smile. "I'm pretty well pleased," he said.

But afterwards, Bradley said he had some doubts about the good faith of the tobacco buyers, although he was reluctant to talk about them. He said he didn't want to say anything he couldn't prove and didn't want to take a chance that the companies might retaliate by paying lower prices for his tobacco.

Floods Taking Toll On Bangladesh Crops

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer
SUNAMGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — Two months of floods have demolished most of the summer rice harvest in Bangladesh, already critically short of food.

The farmers of this township about 160 miles northeast of Dacca saw their summer crop destroyed and their winter seedlings ruined by floodwaters twice, as the water came, receded and returned.

Saiful Islam, the 29-year-old subdivision officer for Sunamganj, said his people are waiting for the water to recede again to plant their seedlings a third time.

"We still hope to get the winter crop, but if there is more flooding you can write off the whole area," he said.

Behind him, workers unloaded loaves of bread, enriched with extra sugar and salt, helicoptered in from Dacca to feed the 1.2 million inhabitants of Sunamganj subdivision.

The 71 million inhabitants of Bangladesh have always faced floods at monsoon time, when waters from the Indian highlands drop through the Bengali Delta into the Bay of Bengal.

But this year the floods surpassed their usual fury, covering uncounted acres of rice paddies.

Relief and Rehabilitation Minister Abdul Momin calculates he needs 750,000 extra tons of grains from abroad to feed the people until the winter harvest in December.

Foreign Minister Kamal Hossain appealed for foreign aid two weeks ago, particularly for food. Relief supplies such as medicines and powdered milk have been flown in by half a dozen nations. The United States has donated $25,000.

But the additional large-scale food imports that Momin says are essential remain to be seen. Officials fear the real disaster will come as the floodwaters recede and villages across the country find their foodbins empty and their fields bare.

Students support lady for president

A poll of more than 50,000 students in over 1,200 junior and senior high schools across the country shows that 65 per cent would support a woman for president.

Eighty-four per cent of the teen-aged girls and 48 per cent of the boys said they would support a woman for the office. — CNS
