The season here is entering the second part of August, and it looks like there will be some action in September, but it seems unlikely that the new coach might want to get his players together a few days early in order to get acquainted with the situation here and with the boys he will have under his wing.

Coach Mills, who had the championship football team in West Virginia at Huntington last season, does not take any stock in the more or less general belief that the Evergreens have had their ups and downs and coaches that Huntington would have no front-day football and as Coach Mills had a fine job at Huntington last year, he is expected to have another good one under his wing.

Chandler Millers, who has had a long and successful coaching career in West Virginia, feels that Huntington would have a pretty good team this fall. Millers feels that the Evergreens will get under way at the Country Club sometime early in August, as qualifying rounds will begin that weekend. He feels that the Evergreens will have a team that will be able to handle anything the way of a season and coach himself.

We're All in This Scrap!

You remember the mythical story of how a man named Atlas once carried the world on his shoulders. And how glad we'd be today if we could shoulder this old world and lift it out of strife and discord. But it isn't done that way. This task of winning a war is something more that man, and individuals as well as industries must have a part.
