Citizens Urged To Help Beautify Community During Clean-Up Program Next Week

Final plans for the big Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week activities were made at an executive meeting of the committee held at the Chamber of Commerce Building last Friday night. The campaign is aimed at improving the residential and business areas of the Twin-Cities.

To kick off the week, there will be a parade through the downtown area. There are more than twenty-five entries in the parade which will take place this Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p. m. Charles Gregory is the parade marshal. There will be no prizes and no entry fees.

On Sunday there will be Church Cooperation Day. All of the ministers of the twin-cities will deliver sermons with the theme, "Cleanliness Is Next To Godliness". Reverend J. L. Leggett is in charge of the events on this day.

Monday will be Safety and Fire Prevention Day, with Dr. J. L. Jones serving as chairman of the committee for this day. All residents of Fulton and South Fulton are asked to cooperate by cleaning their basements and attics and checking for defective wiring, chimneys, heating equipment and other fire hazards.

Paint-Up and Clean-Up Day will be held on Tuesday with Nathan Wade in charge of the day's activities. All citizens are urged

Inspection April 24

Mrs. Robert Rudolph, Chairman of the Health and Sanitation Committee for the annual Clean-Up, Paint-Up campaign here announced today that the Committee has arranged an inspection of all public rest rooms service stations, bus handle food, and the schools.

The inspection will be handled by a team of more than 18 registered sanitarians from Hickman, Carlisle, Ballard, Calloway, McCracken, Marshall, Graves, Trigg, Fulton and Obion Counties. At noon on that day the City of Fulton will be host to a luncheon for the group.

Besides Mrs. Rudolph, the committee includes Harry Barry, John Carroway, Dr. Bob Peterson, Charles Binford, Mrs. Gene Hatfield, Mrs. Lillian Lee and Mrs. Ida Mae Hutchison.

to start paint jobs inside and outside of their homes and to clean up their yards, sidewalks, alleys and garages.

Wednesday has been set aside as Pick-Up Day with Paul Boyd as chairman of the events. On this day, pick-up trucks will go around the twin-cities picking up any rubbish and debris that is put out for them.

Crepe Myrtle and Planting Day will be observed on Thursday and Mrs. W. S. Atkins will be in charge of the activities. All of the crepe myrtle on the highway approaches to town will be pruned and cleared. It is hoped that crepe myrtles will be available for residential planting at that time. Downtown planters in the business districts will be planted and cleaned. It is also hoped that many more merchants will add the planters to the front of their business establishments.

Friday, April 28, will be Industrial Day with Frank LeMaster serving as chairman. Open house will be held by Southern Bell Telephone Company and guided tours will be made through the plant. Also holding open house will be the City National Bank, Fulton City Hall and South Fulton City Hall. All visitors are welcome at these places.

Check-Up Day will be held on Saturday and the chairmen of the various committees will make sure that all of the planned projects have been completed.

On Sunday, the final day of Clean-Up Week, an Inspection Day will be held when all citizens are invited to tour the twin-cities to inspect the improvements and the results of the campaign.

All residents of Fulton and South Fulton are asked to do their part to make the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week a big success.

Girls Softball May Be Added To Summer Schedule; Funds Asked

The Board of Directors of Boy's Baseball of the Twin Cities has mapped an ambitious program of expansion for the coming year here, to include a new girls' softball program as well.

Some 900 letters appealing for support and funds were sent to local parents this week. Said the letter, in part:

"We ask your whole-hearted support to the program which we for the past year have called the Twin Cities 'Boys' Basketball Program.' We have hopes of expanding that program a bit this year, but whether or not we can expand, depends on your generosity.

"We'd like to see the start of a Girls' Softball program this year with girls from 10-14 years of age in active participation. To start that program the initial expense will be quite high, but if everyone helps financially it can and will be done.

"We'd like to see more Dads (and Moms, too, if we can get a girls' program going) participate actively as managers, coaches, umpires; we'd like to see a big rootin' tootin' cheering section at every ball game; we'd like to see our boys' and girls' learn sportsmanship, teamwork and fairplay; we'd like to see our 'little guys' look forward to becoming participants in the program; and we'd like to see our 'bigger guys' have a twinge of regret that they're too old the program; we'd like to see everyone—kids, grownups, and in-between—build memories of the summer of 1961. 'Won't you please help us build?'"

Yo-Yo's Fire The Imagination, Disrupt School Decorum, Create Hazards As Experts Let Fly

(Karen Dublin)

For several weeks now, the American public has been plagued by a fad that is going around among college, high school and grade school students. People have learned to keep a sharp eye out at all times and dodge any small object that seems to be coming straight at them from all directions. They have learned also to keep well down in their seats at the movie houses and ball-games.

Yet, up until about a week ago, the people of Fulton have gone sedately on with their daily tasks without a care in the world. Then suddenly it hit. The yo-yo came to town!

It started creeping in among the younger set. One by one they trekked into the local dime stores, bought those little round objects and began testing their skill by aiming at the floor and firing.

When the Fulton and South Fulton High school boys began to try their luck at the new pastime, however, it became a much more skilled craft. They began to tire of the regular method and became interested in hitting the nearest nose at ten paces. Then came the art of hitting the center light bulb of the second light in the study hall ceiling without even chipping the glass.

When several boys attained the

'Bottoms Home Burns To Ground

An early-morning fire in Missionary bottoms completely gutted a large 1½-story house occupied by Governor Haley and his family Tuesday morning.

The Fulton Fire Department reported that by the time they arrived on the scene the fire was "well underway," and they were unable to save any of the house or its furnishings. The Negro family managed to escape from the building without harm.

The fire was attributed to a defective flue.

A "slave auction" will be held on the bandstand, Saturday morning at 8:00. The "slaves" are the members of the Senior department of the First Methodist Church who will be offering their services for housecleaning, car washing, yard work or any other odd jobs, to the highest bidder. The proceeds will go into the department treasury.

NEGOTIATIONS ON FARMS

Further negotiations in Hickman County for the optioning of farms in the Columbus area have been abandoned. The unidentified industrial firm who has been sponsoring these negotiations has made no formal announcement of its decision but it is believed that the original plans, still unknown, may be dropped.

More than a half dozen farms were not optioned and are not expected to be. Several of these are located in the center of the area and thus make the other farms virtually useless as an industrial site.

The options extend to 1963 and a final decision by the company could be held until that date.

NOTEBOOK FROM FLORIDA:

Jo's Full Of Rest Notes And An Island In The Sun

By Jo Westpheling

Clearwater, Florida: The name of this perfectly beautiful and charming home, with the Gulf of Mexico as its back yard, is called "Rogue's Roost," and if rogues we must be for two glorious weeks in the sun, then we're for the program all the way.

If we may be permitted a homeowner's exemption from the title, we'd like to call it a "hen-house in the sun." For that's what it's been these past, all-too-short days since Ellis Merrifield, Helen Price and I opened the doors of this fabulous Florida home owned by my old-time Washington friends Phil and Kitty Stull. For fifteen years or more Kitty and Phil have invited me to enjoy the incomparable hospitality of this gracious home in the heart of the Florida sunshine. In close proximity to St. Petersburg, Tampa, Sarasota and all the other enchanting vacation-lands of Florida, the home is a land-lubber's idea of a dream house on the sea. Every one of the nearly ten rooms looks out on the sometimes turbulent, sometimes placid Gulf of Mexico. But angry or serene, sometimes during the day the sun bears down on these tired Kentucky home-bodies and the palm trees, the friendly pelicans, and even the swash-buckling porpoises come up to the private pier and bid us "welcome and good resting."

Driving the nearly 850 miles to Clearwater all of us planned some special kind of excitement to enjoy while not soaking up the warm and penetrating sun-rays. But somehow the extra-curricular entertainment has thus far succumbed to sun-bathing, cooking our own meals in the evening and wondering how we ever stayed up past nine o'clock at night in Kentucky. Ellis, who has lived in Florida, says that the first few days in Florida brings on a mild case of sleeping sickness, and she couldn't be more informed on the subject. The disease has been therapeutic for all of us, and we're thinking seriously of bottling the anti-fatigue remedy and using it as a serum for weary home-folks who have not been able to take their places in the sun.

It was the third day after our arrival that we ventured into Clearwater, proper, for groceries, The Courier-Journal and post cards to send to you back home. The small absence from our palace in the sun created such nostalgia for the place, that it was two days later that we got up enough courage to drive to St. Petersburg so that we could go to Al Lang Field to see if we could get some autographed baseballs for our small fry. Helen has a little girl, Ann, who is seven and would have loved a souvenir from the "famous" of the baseball diamond, and my two said, that in school, they are called the Micky Mantles of Sacred Heart School.

It was with great disappointment that the caretaker at the baseball players had departed, but ball park told us that the famous we're going to try to find those autographed baseballs if it hair lips the Gulf of Mexico. You see, St. Petersburg, as I am sure you know, is the spring training camp for the big leaguers in baseball, and we missed a treat ourselves by not seeing an exhibition game. They left two days before we got there.

Not having accomplished our mission at the ball park we reluctantly agreed that while in St. Pete, as the natives call it, we ought to see the points of interest. With Ellis as the tour director, and a former resident of St. Pete, we drove around the fabulous residential district of the city to view the almost incredibly beautiful homes along Snell Isle. Mrs. John Carson a former native of Paducah, has a home overlooking the water that we at first thought was a luxury hotel. The word "fabulous" is an over-worked part of the language down here, and we have accepted the adjective with far more emphasis than the natives. We haven't had time to consult our Thesaurus for more adequate words of description and until we do, we'll say that this part of Florida is... "that word."

But while we toured the luxurious residences of some full-time and some part-time residents, we could not help but be impressed with the hundreds and hundreds of smaller, liveable and comfortable cottages everywhere inhabited by the hordes of retired couples who come to Florida to live their remaining days in comfortable leisure. We took some pictures of several of the streets in St. Petersburg and Clearwater too, lined with the green benches, where the oldsters could perform their daily chores and still "rest awhile" in the sun. Many of them just saunter into town and sit for hours watching the busy world go by and reminiscing perhaps, of the hurly-burly days of their past.

You wouldn't believe it if we told you, but along the way, there are "blood pressure stations" for those persons who want to be sure at all times that their sauntering isn't getting a little too hectic. A postal employee told us that on the first of the month the postoffice is badlam with persons calling for their social security checks, and

"If You Can't Read, Ask The Blacksmith"

By Dorothy Park Clark

This is said to have been the post script to an old-time sign at a cross-roads near Lexington. As a child I thought this was a good joke until it occurred to me that anyone who couldn't read road signs could also never have the fun of reading a book. I soon had the shock of finding out that some people who could read road signs still didn't feel as I did about my best-of-all recreation - reading books.

The only reason for this peculiarity that I could think of was that they had probably never honestly read very many good books, and I still believe this. I believe too, even in this age of television, radio, movies, and all the outside diversions, that reading (aside from study or any utilitarian convenience) is to many, and could be to many more, an unfailing, constructive, and beloved privilege and delight. I am positive that non-readers have no idea of the pleasure they're missing, too.

Reading for pleasure is an acceptable habit. The adjective "well-read" is generally considered complimentary. I can't remember hearing anybody reasonably intelligent who pointed with pride to his lack of reading background, though many people bemoan the fact they don't read very much.

Reading, after all, is a skill. The only way to master the first mechanics of any skill is to practice. Until a skill is second-nature, the effort of using it prevents its full enjoyment and nobody could expect good swimmers, however effortful, to develop without water, or skiers without snow, or musicians without instruments. So it seems certain that as young readers come on, books, good books of all varieties and levels, plenty of books, well-bound, accessible, clearly printed, are essential to their development.

And once a true reader, born or made, has his habit fully set, no household book-shelves can possibly have enough material to keep him happy, or to keep up with the times, either. A really excellent library and bookmobile service is the only way to provide the wonder of great books and small books, books to suit every taste and ken, improve that taste and create bigger and better appetites.

The excitement of discovering a book you love, of living in it and with it, of breathing it, of seeing the width of pages narrow and of mourning the thought that this means the end is near, is such a nice gift from life. Unlike food, drink, or clothes, one copy of a book can be read by hundreds of readers. It does seem that the least we can do as Kentucky citizens is to promote our libraries and give our people the opportunity to read for the sake of better learning, understanding, and deep, satisfying joy.

The old saw, "You can lead a horse to water" is true enough. Maybe he won't drink. There may be some who won't. But what a sad, really tragic pity it would be to have a fine thirsty young horse, and neglect the simple responsibility of leading him, just once, to water.

Dorothy Park Clark is a successful Kentucky author who usually writes jointly with Isabel McMeekin under the name, Clark McMeekin. Their better known books are, Show me a Land, Reckon with the River, Gaudy's Ladies and others.

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

Learn To Live!

By April Oursler Armstrong
Author of How to Read the Bible

"What - tell me - What is the purpose of existence?"

THE ANSWER comes from God Himself. God wants us to be saints. To be His children. To be holy.

There are enough wrong ideas about holiness to confuse even an angel. People think holiness is simpering, soft-voiced, mealy-mouthed piety—and it is not. People think holiness is gaunt-cheeked, bleeding-backed austerity, grim, laughless—and it is not. People think holiness is being half-dead. But holiness is being supremely, joyously, sublimely alive. Holiness is an extra measure of life.

Holiness is the Life of God Himself. When God asks us to be holy, He is asking us to share His own life.

It is so tremendous an idea that the mind reels before it. Almost incredible, this invitation from the great God to His creature—almost too much to believe, but it is true. We have His word for it.

THE TRUTH IS that even the most ugly duckling of human beings hides within himself the shining white secret of what he can someday become. There is not a man or woman alive who cannot with God's grace become caught up into the terrible loving intensity of God's inner life.

REMEMBER, when you were very young, how you hugged to yourself the private certainty that you were an extraordinarily important person, destined for great things, though no one around you might suspect that the child they scolded and teased was truly a genius? Have you lost that dream? You must not. Now, yes, you may know that you will not after all be Byron or Keats or Perry Como. But do not lose the sense of wonder and conviction you had of the secret potential within you.

Do not lose it, because it is true. You are meant for wondrous things.

ONE OF THE dismal ideas of the world is the notion that human nature is so wretched and foul that it could never be saved, and, indeed, is hardly worth saving. Some men even go so far as solemnly to declare that in itself human nature is bad, and that human bodies are even worse. That is a sad idea, and a completely un-Christian one.

JESUS CHRIST, remember, is truly God and truly man at the same time. The Son of God, Who is God, became a man. He brought human nature and divine nature into the most intimate union. He was not just "sort of" God, or merely "sort of" man. He was, and is truly both. He united the human and divine once and forever.

God the Son became Jesus Christ the God-Man to show us what WE must do. "I am the Way," He said. "I am the Life."

TO BE THAT HOLY? At first hearing they seem the words of pride, the most presumptuous nonsense man can contrive. They are not nonsense. They are not the words of pride, but of obedience!

That is what we're here for, that's what life is all about, that is the purpose of existence—that we should reproduce God in ourselves, and share in His life.

100 Years Ago This Week

An Historical review of THE CIVIL WAR DAY-BY-DAY (Material is from publication of exactly one hundred years ago; original wording from references in the Library of Congress, Washington. Reporting in the papers was usually very one-sided; we seek to be fair in coverage and preserve a national balance . . . ED.)

BY WILLIAM H. McHENRY

By William H. McHenry

Immediately after the bombardment of Ft. Sumter, Lincoln in Washington said that "insurrection" existed. On April 15 he asked for 75,000 volunteers to restore the Union.

Virginia seceded from the Union on the 17th, but the western counties (what is now West Virginia) opposed the move.

Washington papers reported knock-down-drag-out fights between important men. General Nye was "credited with two knock-downs of secessionists." An editor deplored what he called "swaggering Naval officers, with filthy language" who crowded the hotel lobbies.

Office seekers swamped Washington.

Lincoln received, in a letter, a five-dollar bill. The money was offered to help pay the expense of reinforcing Ft. Sumter. The bill was on the Union Bank of South Carolina.

Col. Ellsworth, the "first man to die in the Civil War," came to Washington. He had raised a regiment of fire zouaves who were on their way to Washington. Ellsworth offered to help the local militia companies drill. (Ellsworth would be killed by an innkeeper in Alexandria when he tore a Confederate flag from the inn. The inn-keeper was killed by one of Ellsworth's soldiers. Each victim was glorified as the "first martyr of the war.")

Quick plans had been made for three Federal armies. On April 15 it was announced in Washington that the following divisions would be set up: "An army of 62,500 for the Eastern, 54,500 for the Central, and 37,500 for the Western. This would do for a beginning." (Students of the Civil War were to become familiar with the "Army of the Potomac, the Army of the Ohio, and the Army of the Tennessee." But in April of 1861, those armies were still in the future.)

Governor Curtin of Pennsylvania optimistically said he could have an army of 100,000 Pennsylvanians in Washington in two days. (He didn't!)

Northern papers published a report of the militia strength in each state. They didn't count Kentucky, Maryland, and Missouri, for those were "Border States." Each of those states furnished men to both sides during the war . . . but then, before the fighting was over, every state had men on both sides!

800 men were at work in the Charleston, Mass., Navy Yard where the ships Minnesota and Cumberland were being fitted out for war. (Merrimack, the first iron-clad, would destroy the Cumberland and drive the Minnesota on a mud bank in Hampton Roads, but the timely arrival of the Monitor would save the Minnesota from destruction . . . but that is in another year from 1861.)

The call for volunteers in the U. S. Army had something important . . . the "Oath of Fidelity to the U. S." The officers and men could be 18 to 45. Not over, or under, said the call. Every soldier must have physical strength and vigor. (The Civil War would be a "young man's war," with many boys lying about their ages so they could enlist on either side.)

April 15th, had the news of Ft. Sumter . . . and on that same day a flatboat arrived in New Orleans from the interior of Illinois. . . with ice for the mint-juleps of New Orleans. The closing of the Mississippi River would go hard with the southern gentlemen who liked their drinks well-frosted!

Southern reaction to the fall of Ft. Sumter was mixed. At first Virginia considered calling a conference of the Border States. Virginia papers reported that " . . . the general sentiment is that Lincoln, having repudiated all the good efforts of Virginia to prevent the war, she has no other course but to aid in the defense of the South."

In Virginia there had been many Unionists who had hoped for a settlement of the crisis, but after Sumter they said that " . . . if Lincoln really wanted to subjugate the South, Virginia has but one course to pursue."

And in Charleston, the Mercury blamed Virginia for the war saying: "Had Virginia taken her stand with South Carolina in the beginning, there would have been no war . . . etc." The same paper in speaking of Lincoln's call for volunteers, said it was a "Lincoln Declares War" move. Said the Mercury: "Northern scoundrels are thirsting for Southern blood!"

Some of the South Carolina soldiers were not allowed to fire at Ft. Sumter. Capt. Tupper said his men, the Vigilant Rifles were terribly disappointed. His men were stationed too far away. However, "Their battery was given a pile of Sumter Rifle Balls to use against Lincoln's fleet at the mouth of the harbor."

North Carolina had recently voted to remain in the Union, but after Sumter the North Carolina troops were told by Gov. Ellis to take the North Carolina forts. These were Ft. Caswell below Wilmington, and Ft. Macon at Beaufort.

In New York, the State voted three million for thirty thousand troops. Indiana's Gov. Morton assured the Government of the same number of men.

And just the same, the New York Post reported that in one single factory, 150 men were working day and night to fill orders for patented Sharps rifles . . . for the South! Business as usual!

Down in Charleston harbor the steamer "Caroline" was advertising a sight-seeing trip to the ruins of Ft. Sumter, fare, one dollar.

SENIORS PICK MOTTO

On February 9, 1961, the senior class met and selected their class colors, blue and white. For their class flower, the red rose was chosen. "We build the ladder by which we climb," was selected as their motto.

From The FHS "KENNEL" Juniors Receive Rings

There are many happy juniors running around F.H.S.-this week. If you are wondering why they all have a big grin on their face and are waving their hands around in the air for everyone to see here is the reason: All the juniors have received their class rings.

The rings arrived on March 16. Most of the juniors got the traditional ring with the solid blue stone and the Fulton High School emblem on it.

She has also been a member of the Future Nurses Club for two years and a member of the YWA organization of the First Baptist Church of Fulton.

The final plans for the always entertaining "Evening of Music" were discussed at the April meeting of the Music Department of the Fulton Woman's Club held last week. The program will be held on May 1 at the club home. Members of the department will perform along with members of the Beethoven and Junior Music Clubs. The affair becomes better and better each year and we are sure that this year will be no exception.

In a preview of what the program will be like this year, several members of the Beethoven and Junior Music Clubs presented a series of the numbers which won them Superior ratings at the district music festivals in Paducah and Murray. Barbara Brown and Judy Moore, the presidents of the two clubs, presented the numbers.

The following piano solos were on the program: Betty Beadles, "Little White Burro" by Finlayson; Molly Alexander, "To A Wild Rose" by McDowell; R. Paul Westpheling, "Sonatina In A Minor" by Cobb; Sally Williams, "Holiday Play" by Aaron; Margaret Omar, "Praying" by Wilson; Andrea Melton, "Peacock" by Dungan.

Also playing piano solos were: Joy Fagan, "Scherzo" by Beethoven; Jane Edwards, "The Bear Dance" by Bartok; Nancy Treas, "Sonata in D Minor" by Scarlatti; Ophelia Speight, "Romanza in F Sharp Major" by Schumann; Bob Anderson, "La Roxalane" by Hyden.

Don Reed, who won several honors this year in music, also presented a clarinet solo, "Andante from the First Piano Sonata" by Mozart. Don was accompanied at the piano by Bob Anderson.

The big spaghetti supper held at the First Methodist Church last Saturday night proved to be a big success as approximately 130 people came between the hours of five and seven.

The supper was sponsored by a group of local teenagers. The girls said that it was a lot of hard work, but "it was worth it just to see the boys washing dishes afterwards!"

We have always said that Fulton has some of the prettiest girls in the country and our statement seemed to be greatly substantiated this week when we received word that a former Fultonian, Miss Carolyn Ann Ruddle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. (Skinner) Ruddle, was named Miss Fix-Up in the recent Memphis City Beautiful Contest.

The lovely Southside senior placed fourth in the contest out of a field of 67 entrants. She received a $25 bond, a gold key to the City of Memphis, a silver charm bracelet and a dozen red roses.

The Junior Woman's Club is holding a benefit card party at the Club home tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p. m. The proceeds will go to the Fulton Kindergarten, a club project. There will be many nice prizes given and refreshments will be served.

Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Junior Woman's Club.

A very interesting program on color harmonizing was enjoyed by the forty members in attendance at the April meeting of the Home and Garden Department of the Fulton Woman's Club. Mrs. Virginia Stokes was in charge of the program. After a short talk by Mrs. Stokes, the members divided into groups and participated in the discussion by selecting colors for a room including walls, floors and furnishings. All the necessary sample materials were provided.

Miss Carolyn Roberts and Mr. James K. Edwards Are Married April 6 In Golconda, Illinois

Wedding vows were exchanged Thursday, April 6, 1961, by Miss Carolyn Roberts and James K. Edwards, both formerly of Fulton. The ceremony took place at the First Baptist Church of Golconda, Illinois with the pastor, Rev. Nolan Smith, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Roberts of Jackson Street in Fulton. She graduated as salutatorian in the 1955 class of Fulton High. She received her Bachelor of Science degree at Murray State in 1959 and her Masters degree at Ole Miss in 1960.

The groom, the son of Mrs. Joe Cochran of Fulton, graduated from Fulton High and from the University of Kentucky School of Pharmacy. He was an honorary member of Rho Chi and Phi Delta Chi fraternities.

The couple will make their home in Golconda, Illinois, where he is employed as pharmacist in the Davis Rexall Drug Store.

While Mid-South Freezes, Cherry Blossoms Emerge Colorfully In Nation's Capital

... AND THE CHERRY BLOSSOMS SCENT THE BREEZE ... IN OUR NATION'S CAPITAL ...

(By Mary Nell Wright)

Indeed, the Japanese cherry trees have emerged in all their glory in Washington for the past two weeks . . . and another year has gone by for your poor scribe who has always had the misfortune to arrive in the capital city too early or too late for the National Cherry Blossom Festival.

Others have been more fortunate and this year hundreds of thousands of visitors flocked to the city for the festival which has become one of the world's outstanding celebrations.

We find ourselves wondering if Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of our 27th President, ever dreamed of the heritage she gave our nation when in March 1912 in a very simple ceremony, the first Japanese Cherry Tree was planted on the bank of the Tidal Basin.

This very first little tree, you will remember, was a gift to the American people from the city of Tokyo.

I think Mrs. Taft was a person whom I should have liked to have known, because the various stories I have read about her prove that she always thought of others. This characteristic was evidenced when she invited Viscountess Chinda, wife of the Japanese ambassador to the United States to plant the second cherry tree.

Much consideration was given to the planting of the Japanese the following amounts to various school projects: $105.00 for the elementary school aquarium; $35.00 for repairs on the piano; $35.00 for refreshments for the recent open house; $20.00 for high school tests.

Mrs. Fowler and Mrs. Paul Blaylock served refreshments of cake and coffee to the members and guests.

Mrs. Gene Hatfield was installed as new president of the Terry-Norman P-TA at their meeting last Thursday. Also installed as new officers were Mrs. Bill Stokes, vice president; Mrs. Jasper Vowell, secretary and Mrs. Alvin Burrow, treasurer.

A very interesting program was brought to the group by Marvin Sanders, South Fulton Civil Defense director and Mrs. Chester Gregory, associate director. The program was entitled "Civil Defense". Mr. Sanders explained to the group the reasons for the defense system and told of the organization on a nation-wide scale.

Mrs. Gregory, who lived in Germany during the bombing of World War I, answered questions put forth by the P-TA members.

During the business meeting, the group voted to sponsor an entry in the Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Parade on April 22. They also heard a report on the Spring Conference held recently at Lone Oak.

The South Fulton P-TA held their annual installation of officers last Thursday at the school library. Mrs. R. L. Harris installed the following officers for the coming year: Mrs. Oden Fowler, president; Mrs. Mac Burrow, first vice president; Mrs. Otis LeCorno, second vice president; Mrs. W. W. Jetton, treasurer; Mrs. Mick Sanders, secretary.

The organization voted to give

Mt. Moriah Community By Mrs. Marion Milam

Hello folks, I'm back on the job again. It is a pleasure to write the news for this column. If you have any news for the paper just give me a ring.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Matheny of Covington, Tennessee were last Thursday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Grissom.

We welcome Mr. and Mrs. Coy Harrison back to this neighborhood.

Several from this community attended open-house at the South Fulton School last Sunday.

We wish Paul Howard and Harold Muzzal a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Terrell are still visiting in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Graves and children were weekend visitors of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Jones.

Miss Paula Howard spent the weekend with Miss Philis Harris of McConnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Milam and children attended church at McConnell Sunday.

May God bless each and everyone.

This year the Honorable Pearl Mesta was Chairman of the Cherry Blossom Festival Ball. She selected Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to spin the wheel of fortune. Immediately after the Queen was chosen, the Vice President vested the Queen with her official robe of Cherry Blossom design and formally presented her to the gathered throng.

Your scribe is confident that Mrs. Taft and Viscountess Chinda could say that "theirs was a job well done" when they envisioned such loveliness for our nation's Capital City. We give our sincere thanks to those two ladies who made it possible for all Americans to boast of a Capital City with its unmatched splendor of Cherry Blossom Time.

Farmers Warned About Working Children

Farmers and commercial growers may not hire children under sixteen to work in the fields when school is in session.

This reminder came from Pat Melone, Regional Director of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage, Hour and Public Contracts Division, the agency which administers the federal Child-Labor Law.

The only exception to the law is when a child is working exclusively for his parents or guardian in their home farm. Melone said that farmers should ask for and obtain a certificate of age from each youngster which they hire. In Tennessee, these certificates are available from local school authorities.

YO-YO'S—

high honor of being able to send their yo-yos flying out the slightly opened window and bring them back ten times in succession without breaking one single pane of glass, everyone thought that the impossible had been achieved. With no higher goals, the fad would soon die out. But never underestimate the power of a highly imaginative teen-age boy. From latest reports, there is one boy who is planning the ultimate in yo-yoing. He is planning to attach a tiny hook on the outside of his little instrument and attempt to snatch the glasses off of one of the teacher's face, whirl them around his head twice, and then put them back without that teacher's knowledge of the feat. If this can be done, he will have earned his last merit badge toward the title of "Yo-yo Champion of the World".

By the way, will "Yo-Yo" Williams, "Dead-eye" Hurst and all of the other straight-shooting yo-yoers of the local area please take note. Rumors have been flying around lately that the girls, too, have taken an interest in this fad. They have been practicing (in secret of course) and are almost ready to challenge any brave foe who dares match his skill against theirs. This chance may come in the near future when the KENNEL will sponsor their first annual "Fulton High School Yo-Yo Championship Contest". Inquiries about the contest may be made to any KENNEL staff member during the next week. Meanwhile, happy yo-yoing, everybody!

just as likely as not, their dividend checks. It reminded us so much of a poem Paul's mother sent me one time about the sheer beauty and sanctity of an old couple joining hands to support each other as they crossed the streets of life's passing years.

No visitor to St. Petersburg leaves without visiting the highly advertised Webb City. The "city" has been written about in national magazines as being a combination circus, carnival and panacea for bargain hunters. Helen and I had visions of seeing a huge merchandise mart under a roof the size of the Pentagon and Ellis didn't dispel our imaginations because she didn't want us to be disappointed. Actually Webb City, or "old Doc Webb's place" as the natives call it, is an area several blocks long and square housing every imaginable kind of merchandise that can be purchased by legal tender. The one aspect of Webb City, that undoubtedly makes it unique, is that a huge public address system booms into all the stores and the streets, blaring forth the bargains of the moment. For instance as we departed, in some disenchantment, we heard the loud speaker say: "Attention please. Here's a bargain in the novelty department. Artificial roses, that regularly sell for 29 cents, are now selling for just 15 cents and this special lasts for just thirty minutes."

Shoppers started scurrying to the novelty department at the first mention of the bargain, not even knowing what it was. People are funny, and you can bet every red hot penny you've got on that statement.

Coming home we drove along the beach route from St. Pete to Clearwater. The drive is lined with hotels, motels, medium priced and high priced shops and every other kind of establishment catering to customers with vacation and rest aforesight. This is "off season" in Florida, and we were amused to see that some of the finer shops were closed for the season and gave their present address as some far away land where cool breezes beckon the call to the leisurely.

HIGHEST VOTER TURNOUT

For the highest percentage turnout of voters in any east-south-central state going to the polls in last November's election, Kentucky has been awarded the American Heritage Foundation's Outstanding Citizenship Award. A total of 59.9 per cent of all Kentucky civilians of voting age cast their vote in this election.

The vacation thus far has revealed several startling facts to me. One of them is that I can sleep until nine O'clock in the morning when the occasion presents itself, and it is now! The other is that the busy days in Fulton steal from me the pleasure of reading as much as I want to. With colorful shelves filled with leisure-time books and periodicals I am "catching up" a little on my all-time favorite pastime. I have read John Kennedy's "Profiles in Courage," and this I recommend to you wholeheartedly. Dauphine Du Maurier's "Breaking Point," a collection of fascinating stories, I have devoured from cover to cover. A. J. Cronin's "Shannon's Way," does not receive any kudos from me, but having read most of his other works, I felt compelled to read it. Time, Ladies Home Journal, Look, Life and the Saturday Evening Post have never received more avid attention from me as they have these past few days. And of course I can tell you most of the fine bargains in the Courier-Journal, for I have read even the want ads in my favorite Kentucky newspaper.

Helen is almost finished reading Alec Waugh's "Island in the Sun," and although she says its fine, I must read it for purely esthetic reasons as you can well imagine with such a setting as we have here.

Friday, we again journeyed to St. Petersburg for a bit of Kentucky camaraderie. Mack and Joyce Sisk and their lovely little Susan flew in from Louisville for a visit in St. Pete. Mack will take off Sunday to attend the Southeastern Industrial Exposition in Orlando where our very own Elvis Stahr, Jr. will be the principal speaker Monday night. Joyce and Susan will stay in St. Pete until he returns for a visit with Mack's mother, who is with the Veterans' Administration Hospital at nearby Bay Pines.

Florida, we think, can become easily a state of mind, or a way of life. Last week's Time magazine reported many facets of this growing, booming, bustling State. You should read it. And if you do, we might just meet you coming this way as we wind our way home, come Thursday or Friday.

This amazing bit of America can be all things to all people.

I have thought so often of my mother and her love for flowers and I have thought of my neighbors The Grahams, the Callihams and the Mace McDades. To them it would be a Valhalla of the fragrant blossoms. All around me as I write this little message to you I see bright red hibiscus, peeping out from almost artificial like bushes that surround all the houses around us. A strange looking plant that Ellis says is sea grape welcomes the approach to the pier. Lilies, of the names I wish I knew are in full bloom, that look all the world like they were placed there by the tender hand of the Greatest Grower of them all.

In this section of the State the citrus fruit is in harvest all the time. I remember once being in Florida with a group of Fulton friends and Mary Nelle Wright looked all over the countryside to pick a real, live orange from a tree. It is not uncommon here, right now, to see your favorite breakfast beverage growing right in a front yard, and without the label "tree ripened" imprinted thereon.

A fisherman here need not fabricate his prowess. Water, water is everywhere and with the proper bait and equipment you can tell your favorite fish story with facts and loot to substantiate even the most discriminating braggart.

An architect or contractor could plan to his heart's delight and some ever-loving real estate agent would have a buyer for those special tastes. Florida is a fair-land that's not make believe.

We have been giving some serious thought to attending the Orlando exposition and may just do that. But we can't make any plans until we see that Old Sol beckons us to do on that day. Have an idea that as we hear the gulf waters breaking along the back-yard wall, and the sand pikes cooing that plaintive call perched on a chair on the patio, and with the delicious drowsiness of April in Florida engulfing us, we'll say, "Industry we can talk about in Kentucky, . . . where's the sun lotion?"

As surely as we are enjoying this basking in the sun, we're missing all of you and wishing you were here. But we're glad you're there, or perhaps you couldn't be here, and since the situation is at it is, we send you our very best wishes from our island in the sun.

Federal Agencies Start Mapping One Leg Of 'Great River Road'

Two federal agencies have started mapping the Tennessee leg of the proposed "Great River Road" which would extend from Memphis to the Kentucky border.

Present plans call for the road, which would be a divided highway, to run through the entire west section of Obion County along the eastern shore of Reelfoot Lake.

Spurring off from the road would be two scenic drives, one in Obion County along the bluffs near Walnut Log and the other on the west side of Reelfoot Lake, paralleling the Mississippi River and running to Hickman.

The road, long in planning, would parallel the Mississippi River from north in Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. The super-highway would pass through Tennessee just east of the river.

Mapping is being done by the National Park Service and Bureau of Public Roads.

From Dyersburg the highway would cross Obion River at Dew Drop near Cloverdale. From there it would follow the Gratio Road to Lassiter's Corner where plans call for it to follow Highway 22 through Samburg.

North of Samburg it would leave Highway 22 and swing westward to the Walnut Log Road, and would follow it north into Kentucky... along the foot of the Chickasaw Bluffs.

One scenic tour is suggested along the top of the bluffs, leaving the road near Bruer Hill and running north following the old Hickman-Dyersburg Road along the bluffs and paralleling the Great River Road.

This drive would then rejoin the Great River Road at Wilson Hill in Kentucky.

Union City Policeman Shot By His Wife

Aubra Cruse, Union City police officer, was shot in the stomach late Friday morning by his wife, Mrs. Viola Cruse. The shooting took place on the Henning Road, a gravel road off the Troy highway about one mile from Union City.

Mrs. Cruse stated that she borrowed a neighbor's car and drove out the road. She found her husband and another woman parked on the road and she decided to scare him. When he got out of the car, she took a 38 caliber pistol out of her purse and fired two shots at him. Apparently only one of the shots hit him.

The other woman fled the scene and Mrs. Cruse took her husband to the Union City hospital. She is now in the custody of the county authorities.

SCHOOL YEAR EXTENDED

Superintendent W. L. Holland announced Friday afternoon that the school term would be extended to June 2, in order to complete a full nine and a fourth months of school. He explained that the students would benefit from the extended year by having more time to satisfactorily complete their courses of study.

Many other schools continue until June and it is hoped that the students of F.H.S. will accept this fact and not complain, for they have had several vacations during the year. By the way, April Fool.

Route Of New Toll Road Has Approval Of Combs, Engineers and H-way Dept.

A modern network of highways for Kentucky came closer to reality when Gov. Bert Combs gave his approval to routing for the West Kentucky Toll Road.

The route proposed begins at the Kentucky Turnpike at Elizabethtown and extends westward toward Paducah on a line that would pass in the vicinity of Letchfield, Beaver Dam, Central City, Greenville, Madisonville, Princeton and Eddyville.

The Governor's decision on the route was made after reviewing recommendations by Highway Commissioner Henry Ward. Ward said a report from Brighton Engineering Company, consulting engineers for the project, stated that this route offers a more direct line between Elizabethtown and Paducah and would draw traffic from the primary roads which intersect throughout its entire length. The Brighton Company survey showed the location would serve an area widely by-passed by the Federal interstate system and "sorely in need of adequate highways to serve its industrial, mining, agricultural, commercial and recreational facilities."

The Governor in approving this route, noted it would serve Kentucky Lake, the new Barkley Lake, the new Rough River Lake, the new Lake Malone and the Penny-rille Forest State Park, and would encourage traffic to move into these recreational areas. Combs said, "Prospective investors with whom I have talked are impressed by the fact that it would provide a modern traffic facility to serve these parks and recreational areas."

Ward's recommendation to the Governor noted that the north-easterly route, which had the advantage of serving the Owensboro and Henderson areas, was abandoned when the Bureau of Public Roads moved Interstate 64 in Indiana to a location just north of Evansville. He said this places a free expressway within 20 miles of either Owensboro or Henderson, with travel distance to Louisville comparable to that of the proposed northern route.

The route approved by the Governor roughly parallels existing U. S. 62. Ward said he recommended the "southern" route because traffic studies showed that a considerable amount of traffic from Western Kentucky was to the Lexington-Frankfort area.

Ward said, "While the existing highways between Elizabethtown and that area are inadequate, further plans call for the building of a modern highway through this area linking Western Kentucky and Central and Eastern Kentucky."

He noted that this would give a more direct connection between the West and Eastern Kentucky Turnpikes. The location of the new highway is approximately midway between the Kentucky border on the Ohio River and the Kentucky-Tennessee border and would serve the interests of those residing south as well as north of it.

Food Buyers Asked To Be Cautious When Fake Ingredients Are Added

"Dynamite" dinners featuring adulterated meats which have been treated with sulfite are being served to many unsuspecting families throughout the state. Dynamite or embalming fluid is the butcher's nickname for this additive, sulfite, whose use in meats and meat products is prohibited by both state and federal pure food laws.

The presence of sulfite preservatives can only be detected by chemical analysis. When added to meats, it conceals spoilage and decomposition and enhances the appearance of the food by helping to maintain its color. The human body can tolerate small doses of the additive until large quantities have been consumed. Then the person's system reacts, and colic, diarrhea, circulation or nervous disturbance, and even death may result.

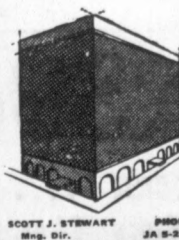

Food inspectors feel that the housewife herself is partially responsible for meat processors adulterating their products with artificial preservatives. Many shoppers believe that the best test for freshness is bright red color, but this is not always true. Frequently fresh meat may appear pale or slightly brown after it is exposed to air. Since consumers are likely to reject this as "old" meat, some processors add sulfite. It can be used on all fresh meats, but is particularly common in ground beef or sausage.

While food authorities believe that presently there are few processors in the state who are guilty of this practice, it is a problem that requires constant vigilance on the part of both consumers and retailers. The larger meat processors, who sell to chain stores and supermarkets, are far less likely to risk their business and reputations by illegally preserving meats than are the small local packers who may be tempted to adulterate their products.

The traffic study for the proposed location was made by Wilbur Smith and Associates, New Haven, Conn., the same firm which provided traffic studies on the Eastern Kentucky Toll Road.

Facts About Colleges And Qualifying Tests

Choosing A College

Students of today, as those of the past, are faced with the problem: "How to Choose a College." There are many factors and points to be considered. One of the first questions asked is: "Will I enjoy going to this college?" If you attend a college which your parents picked (the one some of the relatives attended), you may find that the college doesn't fit your standard. Attend a college that fits your needs, don't fit yourself to the college.

The next problems concern the price, the distance from home, the religious activities and the facilities of the school. Many graduating seniors remark: "I can't afford a college." Little do the students realize that they may obtain a loan from the government or from a relative; they may be given a scholarship; or a job at the college can pay from $200 to $800 a year. The distance isn't too much of a problem, for most students attend a school no more than 300 miles from their home. A student should find a college where the amount of religious activities fill his needs, but the school doesn't have to have certain religious ties. The facilities of the college are important and should be considered in your decision. If the school offers no agreeable courses, the teachers are uninterested, and the classes dull, hunt for another school.

The last but probably the most important question is: "Is the school accredited?" This is of great importance, for if the college is not, it may mean the difference between the students becoming a success or a failure. Many employees of big firms and companies want students that have gone to accredited schools. Follow the steps above and you will find that choosing a college isn't quite so hard.

College Application

It is a good idea to consider several colleges in your junior year and obtain information on them, so you will have sufficient time to make your decision as to which college best fits your needs. When you have made a list of several colleges you are interested in, write to the Director of Admissions, name of college, city and state, and request a bulletin.

Requirements of any applicant are the following: Male citizen; at least 17 years old; unmarried; high school graduate—(juniors are not eligible); 20/20 vision; heart and lungs normal; and they must serve 4 years in the Navy upon graduation from college.

The winner may take almost any course which will help the navy in some way.

This scholarship is a fine one and would be worth looking into.

The AFOTC and ROTC scholarships are practically the of information in the field in which you are interested in. This information will be sent to you, free of charge and will contain not only information on your specific field, but also general information on the college. By comparing colleges in this way, you can best choose your school.

When you have decided, make an application. This is usually done shortly after the first semester of your senior year. Do this by filling out an application blank from the college in which you wish to enroll. If one was not sent when you received your general information bulletin, you can obtain one by writing to the same address as given above.

Follow the directions on the application carefully; and after all forms have been completed, mail them to the Director of Admissions. You will be notified on whether or not your application has been accepted, and just exactly what to do to prepare for the college.

UK Placement Tests

The University of Kentucky Placement Test is a test given to all Kentucky senior students. The test is given in four parts: verbal, numerical, science, and social studies. Questions are asked concerning these four fields of study.

The report of each student's score is sent back to the school and reported to the student by the principal. The scores reveal a student's rank in a group by indicating the percent of students falling below him.

The test is for placement in the University of Kentucky if the student plans to attend there. This test is compulsory before or at the time of entrance to this school. These percentage scores can also be sent to the college of each person's choice.

Service Scholarships

The purpose of the NROTC scholarships is to educate and train highly selected young men for naval careers.

The Navy College Aptitude Test which is usually given in December is designed to measure an individual's ability to succeed in college work.

A selection committee, consisting of three members, study the scores made along with recommendations and then select those who are eligible for the NROTC scholarships. The committee is made up of one senior officer of the Naval Service, one prominent educator and one prominent civilian.

Many boys each year, pass the Aptitude test and the rigid physical examination but are turned down because of the limited quota selected.

The nearest place to take this test is in Paducah, at Paducah Junior College. The same as the NROTC scholarships except in different branches of the service.

ACT Program

The American College Test is given twice each year, February 25 and April 22.

This examination is often required in order to enter a college. The basic test covers four areas averaging 45 minutes each in length. These four tests represent the fields of English, math, social studies, and natural sciences.

The English and mathematics are designed for placing students in the proper classes so that they may have success.

The ACT test is an admission, scholarship guidance and placement test.

There are three places near FHS in which the test will be given: Paducah Junior College, Paducah, Kentucky; Mayfield High School, Mayfield, Kentucky; Murray College, Murray, Kentucky.

If you wish to take this test,

Mrs. Bennett has some information bulletins on it, or you may write to American College Testing Program, Box 168, Iowa City, Iowa. You must send in the registration slip three weeks before this test is given.

CEEB Tests

The College Entrance Examination Board is a non profit membership association composed of college and school representatives.

Perhaps its best-known activity is its program of college entrance tests required by many colleges as part of their admissions procedure and by sponsors of some scholarship programs.

The tests are administered on scheduled dates during the year at 100 test centers all over the world. The one nearest Fulton is Mayfield.

The Scholastic Aptitude Test, Achievement Test, and Writing Sample are separate tests. The college of one's choice may require only one or two of the divisions.

A student cannot be registered for tests unless his application is received in the College Board office four weeks prior to the date of the test. The application fee is $4.00.

To secure further information and to make an application, write: College Entrance Examination Board, Box 592, Princeton, New Jersey.

Quill and Scroll Holds Election; Chooses Four Additional Members

Four new members were elected to the Quill and Scroll at the last meeting. Bill Leneave, junior, Martha DeMyer, Mary Bondurant and Lynn Williamson, all sophomores, will begin their membership at the opening of the next school year.

Bill, who at the present time serves as sales manager on the KENNEL staff, began his high school newspaper career as the assistant sales manager. Other notable writing achievements include his placing in the top five bracket of the Conservation Theme contest last year and his receiving the Second Place prize in the district in the same contest this year. He works as linotype operator at the Leader office after school and on Saturdays.

Martha, who previously served as reporter for two years, is now assistant feature editor. Her extra curricular activities include her position as twirler on the majorette team.

Lynn is the exchange editor this year, after having been on the staff in various positions for two years. He, too, was one of the top five finalists in the conservation essay contest both last year and this year.

Mary, who was just placed on the staff this year, has done exceptional work as a reporter. She is also very active in GA, YWA, and other church work.

To be elected to the Quill and Scroll, one must do outstanding work on some high school publication and must maintain a B standing. After meeting these re-

The annual KEA meeting will be held this year at Louisville, Kentucky, on April 6 and 7. The students of Fulton High will have these two days as their spring vacation.

Mr. Charles Thomas will serve as the delegate from FHS and Mrs. M. W. Hawes will be the alternate delegate. A large percent of the faculty is also planning to attend.

DOUGHNUT BIT!

With Thanks To The Courier Journal

Remember those little proverbs that used to hang on nearly every office wall? You were sure to see "We do not need to change the work week as much as some of the weak work." Or "If you haven't the time to do it right, when will you find time to do it over?"

Businessmen called them Office Hangers. And there's one we'd like to see on office walls today. We mean the doughnut bit: "Keep your eye upon the doughnut, brother, and not upon the hole."

We at The Fulton News and Radio Station WFUL believe in the doughnut bit. We believe business will be as good as we make it. And we are by no means alone in this belief. From our close association with hundreds of Ken-Tenn Area firms, we know many who right now are keeping their eyes on the doughnut.

This kind of success convinces us: Offer a good value and promote it and customers will respond. We Suggest that you offer that product on
