GOP May Salvage Energy Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) Republicans, long left out of efforts to frame compromise energy legislation, think President Carter may turn to them in hopes of salvaging his plan.

One House negotiator, Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said the sentiment has arisen in the "the last few days."

Archer's fellow Republicans generally are more sympathetic to the kind of compromise backed by Senate negotiators than are Democratic House conferees, who are holding out for tighter federal controls over the price of natural gas.

Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohie, said on Wednesday that the president told

Rex Granum, a White House spokesman, said later in the day that Carter was flexible on a deregulation date. "Continued inaction on energy will cause far more serious damage to the nation's economy than the kinds of compromises that are under consideration," he said.

House Republicans point to past Democratic failures to break deadlock among themselves and say they think Carter will come to them as

Budget Committee refused Wednesday to leave room in next year's budget for a rollback of Social Security taxes, but it went on record in favor of a major income tax cut and a college tuition tax

The surprising vote against a reduction in Social Security taxes was 8-6. The committee's vote contrasted with actions of the House Budget Committee and the House Democratic Caucus, which advocate a reduction in the tax increases that were enacted only last December.

The Senate Budget Committee's action does not block a reduction in Social Security taxes this fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30. But it indicates that sentiment for a rollback apparently is not as strong in the Senate as it is in the House.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, the committee's chairman, said Congress should not rush into any rollback because "if we begin to tinker (with Social Security) every year ... what we'll succeed in doing is shake public confidence in the system.'

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., who offered a specific plan to cut Social Security taxes by $10.1 billion next year, said a rollback seems inevitable because of political pressure on House

Bloodmobile Goal Reached For 99th Time

For the 99th time, Graves Countians again rallied to the plea for blood donors and met the goal for the 5th visitin the 26th year of the blood program in

A total of 293 pints of blood were donated here Tuesday and Wednesday. according to Rufus Harris, local Blood Program chairman. The goal for this two day visit was 265 pints of blood. Donors are to be highly commended for responding to the plea at a time when many are on vacation and farmers are busy planting spring crops, Harris said.

Harris expressed special appreciation to all donors who made this tremendous success possible. Three hundred and thirty three persons offered to give blood. Forty were deferred for health reasons and thirty were first time donors. Harris stated.

Chairman Harris, Lonnie Moffitt, vice chairman, Mrs. Ryan Isbell, chairman of volunteers and Mrs. Homer Pace, vice chairman, expressed their thanks to everyone who helped make the program a success. Harris praised Red Cross volunteers, Red Cross Youth and local nurses for their fine job in assisting Red Cross personnel.

Special thanks were expressed to the telephone committee, without whose help the program would be impossible: blood committee, and to those who distributed posters to local businesses and industries; to Boy Scout Troop No. 36 for volunteering at Bloodmobile; to Sr. Girl Scout Troop No. 184 who distributed posters in downtown Mayfield; and to businesses and industries who let their employees off to give blood.

Miss Mary Ann Riley of Route 6, Mayfield, won the $25 Savings bond donated by Gibson's Discount Pharmacy. This was Miss Riley's first time to give blood.

Special appreciation was expressed to the First United Methodist Church for the use of the church facilities and to the Mayfield Messenger and radio stations WNGO and WYMC for the appeal for donors prior to and during

'Stop ERA' Group Honors Legislators

Mrs. Margaret Perkins Public Relations Stop ERA Chapter

Citizens from Graves, Marshall, Carlisle, Hickman, McCracken and Fulton counties recently gathered to express their appreciation to State Senator Richard Weisenberger, State Representative Ward "Butch" Burnette, State Representative Lloyd Clapp and Mrs. Phyllis Green, state co-chiarman of Stop E.R.A. for their tremendous efforts in rescinding E.R.A. in Kentucky.

Those persons were honored guests at a reception and open house Sunday, April 9th at the United Rubber Workers Local 665.

The hall was beautifully decorated in the colors red, white and blue. The patriotic theme began with the entrance table where guests continued to sign the guest register throughout the two hour celebration. On the table was a replica of the Liberty Bell and a quill pen. The Federal Blue cloth was decorated with gold cord marked at points with Commonwealth Gold Seals.

A red clothed table held various Stop E.R.A. momentoes collected and used since 1972.

A silver tray and coffee service along with a crystal punch bowl adorned the stars and a striped clothed serving Congressman Carroll Hubbard sent his regrets that he could not attend due to a conflicting engagement, but sent his congratulations.

The victory celebration was opened by Mrs. Phyllis Green who welcomed everyone and called upon Jerry Steele, Church of Christ minister, to lead in prayer. Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag was led by Mrs. Otis Cunningham.

The legislators were presented gold engraved cigarette lighters and boutonnieres. Mrs. Green was presented a gold engraved bracelet and a corsage with special thanks from the Mayfield Stop E.R.A. group.

Speeches were made by each legislator. One statement by Rep. Burnette urged the chapter to continue to work together for the betterment of the state. Rep. Clapp opened his speech by stating that there shouldn't have to be thanks for doing what is right and that the legislature did what was right. He also said we all should join together in government affairs for without people involved, there would be no family unit, and no church in which to worship.

Sen. Weisenberger drew a round of applause when he said, "We have won the victory." Sen. Weisenberger presented framed vote sheets from the House of Representatives and the Senate as momentoes of the victory

LOSSES CAN BE SPREAD OUT

Q. - I have been advised to sell out some AT&T common at a profit, offset that gain by taking a loss in some low-yield growth stocks, and then put all the proceeds into some 8-81/2 percent bonds in order to boost income. I'm retired

A. - If you are retired and seeking additional income, low-yield growth stocks are not your dish, whether they show you a profit or a loss. They should be sold and the proceeds put to work earning around 81/2 percent in higher yielding

However, I don't see the necessity of taking an offsetting profit in AT&T common which, on the day your letter arrived, was yielding 71/2 percent. You can use the growth stock losses to reduce other taxable income, and if they are too large to deduct in one year, they can be spread over several years.

Q. - I bought some Commonwealth Edison 81/4s of 2007 at 99% before they began trading on the exchange, expecting them to trade at par when listed. I saved commissions by buying them prior to listing but still have a loss. Furthermore I was told they were rated AAA but find Standard & Poor's lists them as AA.

A. - I assume you mean you bought them on the original offering, thus saving commissions. I don't understand your assumption that they would trade at par on the exchange. I don't know where you got the AAA rating, but the guide book does show AA, which is a good rating. The fact that you have a loss on your purchase stems primarily from the fact that interest rates have firmed up since the bond was originally sold. There's nothing wrong with saving brokerage commission by buying a security on the original public offering. But that guarantees nothing as to subsequent profit or loss.

Q. - I paid $10,000 into a mutual fund from 1969 to 1972 and now hold shares with a current price of $6,900. I maintain I have a loss of $3,100 for income tax purposes but my accountant says no.

A. - You have a loss of $3,100 plus any dividends and-or capital gains reinvested in acquiring additional shares.

Q. - I am a 70-year-old widow living on a small pension and income from $20,000 in savings. How can I earn more interest?

A. - If the money is being kept at day-to-day rates you are obviously giving up a few hundred dollars a year. If you have most of it in 4-to-6 year sayings certificates at 734 percent I would be reluctant to disturb it.

Q. - I'm a married woman, 55, who has just resigned from a position and will soon receive $18,000 from the profit-sharing fund. How can I reduce the tax bite? How should the money be protected from income taxes? My husband is still

A. - I suggest you discuss this matter with a tax advisor who can help you determine what options are open to you. You may be able to "roll over" the money into a tax-deferred IRA account. Or he may suggest different methods of withdrawing the money. Once free of restrictions, the money can earn tax-exempt income if reinvested in municipal bonds.

Q. - I think you have scared some elderly people who need income from cashing in their E bonds because income taxes on past accumulated interest then becomes due. You neglect to point out that many old people in this country retire on modest incomes which fall well below even the lowest tax bracket.

A. - You are obviously correct. I have pointed out many times that certain income and interest is taxable. But that doesn't mean everyone pays the same tax on it, or in fact, necessarily pays any

Q. - You frequently mention high rates of income from savings certificates. Is there a clearing house for such information?

A. - Not that I know of. You must check your local bank advertisements.

The Yardsticks Of November

WASHINGTON - Jimmy Carter's political stock having tumbled these last months in a style hitherto reserved for the Dow Jones industrial average, all sorts of Democrats, Republicans and even normally dispassionate pundits are now predicting that the president will face some unhappy decision-making after worse-thanexpected Democratic losses in November's elections. The choice foreseen: to either change his style of governing or run a real risk of defeat in

I wouldn't be so sure of this. Say what you like about Mr. Carter - and my own comments are invariably negative - the November elections may not be nearly as bad for his party as some are predicting. As a matter of fact, those elections hold the prospect (albeit not the promise) of considerable succor for the president. And the Republican Party, meanwhile, could find itself in dire straits if it fails to rebound from record lows in circumstances tailormade for such a rebound by presidential weakness and growing public economic indignation. After all, any useful electoral measurement must consider the scope of party opportunity as well as the statistics of actual victory.

Two Perspectives Let's look at November 1978 from two First, suppose the Democrats do lose 1-2 senators and 30-35 U.S. House seats. Party leaders and legislators will deliver their private verdict on Mr. Carter in harsh and severe tones. His defeat in 1980 will be pronounced a real possibility. The pressure on him to replace the Hamilton Jordans and Jody Powells with more seasoned advisers will Alternatively, though, suppose the Democrats lose only 10-20 House seats and actually break even in the U.S. Senate? That ought to do wonders for Jimmy Carter, however little he himself has to do with the outcome. By historical yardsticks, such an off-year election verdict would affirm him as a secure president heading toward 1980 re-election. Chamelon-like Democratic congressmen and party officials would begin to rally around. They would forget the long shadows of April and May, remembering only that their enormous, vulnerable-seeming congressional majorities had proved secure, and that the incumbent president who had seemed like such a drag on his fellow Democrats turned out otherwise.

And the Republicans? Well, if they do gain 30 House seats and 1-2 Senate seats, you will be able to hear the cheering at Capitol Hill Republican National Committee headquarters all the way to Seattle. By recent historical yardsticks, such a defeat for a president's party in the first round of off-year elections would be unprecedented. Probabilities would favor the election of a Republican president in 1980, and thus the survival and recovery of the Republican Party. Perhaps the GOP, like Israel's Negev Desert, could even bloom again.

Endangered Species But suppose, in accord with most current predictions, the GOP gains only 10-20 House seats and can do no better than break even in the Senate? Then we can expect neural observers to say as follows: That even with the massive opportunities of 1978 - a tax revolt, soaring inflation, a weak and low-rated president - the Republican Party could not muster the public credibility for a serious comeback. That for the first time since the Depression, the GOP has been beaten roughly 2:1 in the U.S. House of Representatives for three straight elections. That the GOP is unlikely to pull itself together to elect a president in 1980. That the perils of 1981 reapent could truly make the elephant an endangered species. Facing such comments and prospects. the Republican Party's dim 1980s future would come to the conversational fore once again.

In such a context, even short, softspoken Jimmy Carter could begin to look like a political Arnold Schwarzenegger. Thus the irony. Jimmy Carter's 1978-80 prospects are being sketched so negatively these days, with such emphasis on potential 1978 Republican gains, that Mr. Carter is in a position to pick up considerable unearned profit if things turn out differently. Should the Democrats more or less hold their congressional strength in November, it'll be because the electorate does not popular Democratic congressmen and senators for the performance of Jimmy Carter. But the man from Georgia would, in the end, probably be the biggest beneficiary.

The Dollar Aspects

Of Our Energy Problem

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

There's a glut of oil on the Pacific Coast as the ships come in from Alaska. The Mexican oil monopoly, PEMEX, is proceeding in a leisurely way to develop new oil fields to the south of us. The news from Britain is that North Sea oil may bail out the labor government by solving its balance of payments problems. Drilling for oil and gas has begun off the east coast of America, in the Baltimore canyon. Maybe none of this solves the world energy crisis, but the

In any case, what the United States is faced with is not so much an energy problem as it is a money problem. With an annual $46 billion bill for oil imports, there is no way to protect the dollar without developing a strategy of at least relative self-sufficiency in energy supplies. The trouble is that Washington, which ought to be concerned with home-grown energy expansion, keeps thinking of conservation without considering that the consumption of energy is the source of the production which people need for their businesses can be counted on to burn as little oil as is necessary to keep production going. But it is the production that keeps the unemployment statistics from rising.

Thinking of conservation alone will get

John E. Swearingen, the chairman of Standard Oil of Indiana, put it succinctly the other day when he said that separating energy consumption from production in a highly industrialized society is like taking the bug out of lightning bug. In both cases, you end up with something different from what you began with. Without energy, you don't have industry...you cannot Swearingen has one answer to the problem: take off the regulatory shackles and let the normal workings of the price system entice the drillers for oil and gas to go to work. We don't know what reserves of oil we have.

prospect of easement is there.

considered a dead area...In recent years our exploration technology has improved and today there are eight producing wells in places we thought parren just a few years back. This difficult geological area...now appears to be rich in oil and gas.'

This sort of thing, says Swearingen, happens all the time. Even if our natural gas is in danger of running out. there would be no dearth of gaseous energy if methane from simple garbage or redundant crops were to be substituted for it. This is the gospel now being preached to uncomprehending ears in Washington by Eugene Luntey, president of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. Mr. Luntey notes that the United States has a $50-billion investment in a million miles of gas pipeline that is tuned and ready to carry methane anywhere. If deregulation fails to uncover new natural gas fields, methane can be derived from almost any vegetable

Four Ideal Sources

Mr. Luntey mentions the peat bogs of Michigan, Minnesota, Maine and New York. Peat is an ideal source of gas. Kelp from the sea, and water hyacinths from Southern bayous, could feed methane into our pipelines, and the wheat that we are now paying our farmers not to grow would make another source.

Mr. Luntey says that if we could double the supply of gas, or methane, in our existing pipelines, we could release enough energy to enable us to dispense with all the oil we now buy from overseas. Of course, the Persian Gulf states would react to the threat by drastically lowering the international oil price. In any case a new balance would be reached - and the U.S. dollar would be saved. The integrity of the dollar is what it is all about.

My Answer By Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A friend of mine belongs to a group that wants to take all the best things from the various world religions and combine them into one new religion. I think that sounds like a good idea, don't you?

DEAR S.P.M.: No, I'm afraid I can't agree with you. Although this idea may sound logical to many people, it is actually based on the assumption that all religions -without exception - are mixtures of right and wrong ideas. There are at least two things wrong with that assumption. First, even if it were true, how would we know exactly which ideas were the true ones and which were the false ones? Second, I believe the evidence shows conclusively that Jesus Christ alone gave us the full truth about God.

You see, Jesus Christ made a startling claim. Most of the founders of the world's various religions admitted that they were men searching for God; they could give us only their own ideas about God. But Jesus claimed to be God himself. He said He was giving us not His own ideas about God, but the truth about God. "He that seeth me seeth Him that sent me...For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak" (John 12: 45-49). Now if this is true, then we don't need to look elsewhere for the truth. That is why Jesus could say, "I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me" (John 14: 6)

Was Jesus who He claimed to be? Yes! How do we know? Because He rose again from the dead! This forever sets Jesus apart from all the eligious leaders of the world. And it also means that He alone can forgive us and save us if we put our trust in Him.

Nunn Calls State Plane Purchase 'Outrageous Misuse Of Tax Dollars'

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — State Republican Chairman Lee Nunn Tuesday called the state Democratic administration's purchase of a new 10-passenger plane "an outrageous misuse of tax dollars.'

He said in a statement "only within the distorted perspective" of Gov. Julian Carroll's administration would the purchase seem warranted.

Nunn said the governor showed exceptional consideration for his friends when he bought an airplane equipped with not one bar, but two."

Peanut butter, a spread rich in vitamin B, phosphorous, thiamine and niacin, was originally concocted by a St. Louis doctor who wanted a food that his patients would find easy to digest, says National Geographic.

"He knew that since the new plane could land on less than half of the state's airstrips, it might be circling the field for long periods of time and he didn't want these very important persons to be left 'high and dry,' " the GOP spokesman said.

The state has bought a 1975 Merlin IV-A craft for $845,000 to fill what Air Transport Director William Eddins called a gap between the 16passenger Fairchild and the six-passenger Merlin

"The thousands of new roving bureaucrats and political hacks hired by the Carroll administration have created a greater demand than even the expanded state air fleet could ac-commodate," Nunn said. "And with the state's highways deteriorating to a very dangerous state, it would be unreasonable of the taxpayers to expect these highly-paid, wide-

travel over the potholed roads of the common people.

Nunn contended that from the point of view of the hard-pressed Kentucky taxpayer, "the outright waste of nearly a million dollars" is further proof "the Carroll administration it out of touch with reality."
The Republican

chairman said the governor in the legislative session refused to cut utility bills, raised energy costs, doubled dozens of fees and increased spending by nearly $2 billion. 'There is a gap, not in the state's airfleet, but between a wild spending government and the overburdened taxpayers," he said. The administration said the used Merlin cost $845,000 and would have cost more than $1 million if new - with no delivery possible for another year.

Teenager Charged In Beating Death Of Tenn. Walking Horse

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A teen-ager was charged Tuesday in the beating death of a Tennessee walking horse that was one of the last descendants of world grand champion Midnight Sun, police said.

Metro Police Detective Greg Stewart said James Washington, 15, of Nashville, was charged with wanton killing of a mare, a felony.

Stewart said an adult would face a maximum imprisonment of up to five years if convicted, but said it would be up to a Juvenile Court judge to decide how Washington's case would be handled.

The mare, Little Merry Girl O, died April 5 after it was found beaten two days earlier at its owner's farm northwest of Nashville, Stewart said.

Stephanie Bailey, the horse's owner, estimated the animal was worth $8,000. The mare was a foal of Midnight Black Ace and Merry Boys Fairy. Midnight Black Ace was a foal of Midnight Sun, world grand champion walking horse in 1945 and 1946 that stood at stud for 28 years.

"I think it was more or less a psychological type thing," Stewart said when asked about the motive for the killing. "None of the kids around here like him to fool around with the horses.

The detective, one of three assigned to the case, said the horse's killer went to the barn, put a rope around the animal's neck and dragged it out into the barnyard, where it was beaten with an iron fencepost.

Stewart said the attacker then tied the horse to a hay baler, continuing beat the animal. Fighting back, the horse cut itself on the hay baler, starting to lose blood and weakened, he said.

Stewart said the attacker then stabbed the head with a pitchfork and jammed an instrument into the animal's rectum before leaving.

Efforts were made to revive the animal, but it died, according to the detective.

Rate Hike Due To New Coal Contract, TVA Says

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Because of the new United Mine Workers contract, users of Ten-nessee Valley Authority power can expect a 3 percent increase in their electric rates this year, officials said Tuesday. TVA spokesman Lee Sheppeard said the government utility pects its coal prices to rise about $1.50 a ton this year as a direct result of the higher wages and benefits miners get immediately under the pact. "Not including the various indirect effects, that represents about a 7 percent increase in our fuel costs and will require about a 3 percent increase in electric rates on the average," he said.

Sheppeard said TVA's power office estimates the impact over the threeyear life of the UMW agreement will be a 14 percent increase in fuel costs and a 6 percent increase in rates. TVA already has raised its charges $1.05 per 1,000 kilowatthours because of the 110-day UMW strike. Two weeks before the strike ended March 27, TVA announced its April bills would hit an all-time high of $27.23 for the first

1,000 kwh. The agency blamed the April hike on having to purchase power from other utilities to keep its stockpiles from falling to a critical level that would have required forced reductions to some industries. Sheppeard said the strike is continuing to have other lingering effects on the coal market. As an example, he cited a 50 percent increase in the price of coal purchased on the spot market.

Gabriel Is Back With LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) -Los Angeles Rams Coach George Allen, known for using veteran players, has added Roman Gabriel to the National Football League team's quarterbacking corps.

The signing Wednesday of Gabriel, a free agent, marked a reunion for the coach and quarterback. Gabriel had played for Allen at Los Angeles in the late 1960s.

"Roman is in great shape; it's nice to have him back and I think he can help us," said Allen. who returned to the Rams this year after coaching the Washington Redskins.

The 37-year-old Gabriel, who was traded to the Philadelphia Eagles by the Rams in 1973, set many club passing records during 10 years with Los Angeles.

He was the NFL's Most Valuable Player in 1969, and played in three Pro the Rams and one while with the Eagles.

The University; of Louisville signed Jerry Eaves of Louisville Ballard and Morehead signed four players, including a transfer from Georgia Tech.

Wednesday was the first day for signing of high school prospects to national letters.

Kentucky Coach Joe Hall signed the 6-foot-6, 215-pound Verderber at his home in Illinois, said UK spokesman Jack Perry Verderber led Lincoln High to a 28-2 record last season, averaging 25.8 points and 12.8 rebounds per game and hitting 57 percent of his shots from the field, Perry said.

Verderber scored school record 44 points last season in a game against Danville, Ill., and had 17 points and 12 rebounds last weekend for the U.S. All-Stars, who defeated the Pennsylvania-New York AllStars 114-79 in the Roundball Classic at Buffalo.

Eaves, one of the state's top high school stars, averaged 24 points a game last season for Louisville Ballard.

U of L Coach Denny Crum says he will use the 6-foot-5 Eaves at guard, though he played in the front line this past season for the Ballard Bruins.

LUNCHEON FOR TWO Crab Cakes Fruit Tart

CRAB CAKES We adapted these from a Chinese recipe and highly recommend them.

7-ounce can tendon-free

- king crab
- 1 large egg 1 scallion, finely chopped 4 water chestnuts (from an 8ounce can), finely chopped
- 14 cup flour 14 teaspoon (generous) salt
- Vegetable oil for deep frying Chinese Plum Sauce, home made or bought Drain and flake the crab. Beat the egg slightly; add the crab, scallion, water chestnuts, flour and salt and stir together well. Heat the oil to 350 degrees; drop the crab mixture, by heaping teaspoonfuls and a small number at a time, into the oil. Fry, turning to brown on all sides, until golden brown and crisp. Drain on brown paper and keep the batches hot until all the cakes are fried. Serve with the Plum Sauce. Makes 16.

For a delicious and nutritious sandwich filling, cook a half pound of chicken livers in a little butter and mash with two hard-cooked eggs blus a little mayonnaise and salt and pepper.

Carter Has No Plans, Yet, For Re-Election Bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Do you definitely plan to run for re-election?" President Carter was asked Tuesday at his question-and-answer session with the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

"The answer ... is no," said Carter. "I don't definitely plan to run for re-election. I've not addressed that question at White House press secretary Jody Powell, asked later whether the president was serious about his 1980 plans, replied "I don't know," then went to question Carter.

"He just said he had not made up his mind," Powell reported sub-sequently. "He just has not thought about it."

Ga. Bus Crash Leaves 3 Boys Dead, 16 Injured

INAHA, Ga. (AP) The boys were shooting baskets in a strange gym in a strange state, killing time in a day turned upside down by a bus crash that had sent many of their friends to hospitals.

Late Tuesday, the boys' adult adviser, Randy Carpenter, gathered them together and told them: three of their friends were dead. Sixteen others would have to stay behind in hospitals, including three in critical condition.

The rest of the 56 boys - who had been bound for a vacation in Disney World in Florida - would be returned home in a chartered bus.

There were tears. Some boys fled to the arms of local ministers who had come to the gym.

A bus carrying members of the Ypsilanti, Mich., Boy's Club apparently lost its braking power, skidded and turned over at a highway rest stop earlier Tuesday.

"The brakes went out on us," said Tim Cole, 12. 'The bus started tipping. All I said was 'Oh, my God.' I put my hand up through the window and got out. I was glad I was all right. People were bleeding. I didn't know what to say.

The driver, Sue Condon, was hospitalized in shock. One of the dead, Sam Bates, 11, was president of his student body. The others were Jasen Freeman, 11, and Tony Sablowski, 13. In Los Angeles, a bus carrying 60 morning rush hour passengers swerved to avoid a turning car

Tempt Them With Topped 'Burgers

This new recipe for Beef and Blue Patties, featuring sour cream and blue cheese, adds another tasty burger variation to your recipe file. It's one that will be requested often, says Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board home economist.

Beef and Blue Patties

2 pounds ground beef teaspoons salt

1/2 teaspoon pepper

1/2 cup dairy sour cream cup crumbled blue cheese

Lightly mix ground beef, salt and pepper and shape into 6 patties, 1/2 inch thick. Place patties on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat and broil 6 to 8 minutes on each side, depending upon degree of doneness desired. Meanwhile combine sour cream and blue cheese. About 2 minutes before end of broiling time, top each patty with about 11/2 tablespoons of cheese mixture and continue broiling.

Cooking With Love: Walnut Oat Bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor DEAR CECILY: Do you have a good recipe for oatmeal bread made with yeast? My kids love oatmeal cookies and I often bake them for after-school snacks. Now I'd like to make gatmeal bread for them. I enjoy hearing them say, "Mom's a great cook!" -WILLING TO TRY.

DEAR WILLING TO TRY: The combinaton of whole wheat flour, unbleached white flour, brown sugar and walnuts in this Walnut Oat Bread is delicious for snacktime fare. I hope your children enjoy these loaves because I know how good it feels to have family and friends appreciate one's cooking and baking efforts. - C.

WALNUT OAT BREAD 112 cups boiling water 2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar 2 cup butter or margarine 2 teaspoons salt package dry yeast

1 cup warm (105 to 115 degrees) water cups fine whole wheat

2 cups quickcooking oats 2 eggs, unbeaten 314 to 334 cups unbleached

white flour 2 cups coarsely broken walnuts

In a large bowl, stir together the boiling water, brown sugar, butter and salt until butter melts; cool to lukewarm (about 95 degrees). In a measure, sprinkle the yeast over the warm water and stir until dissolved: stir into the lukewarm water mixture with the whole wheat flour, oats and eggs. Add 1 cup of the white flour and the walnuts; with a spoon beat and it's great snacktime fare.

Gradually stir in enough of the remaining white flour to make a stiff batter; if necessary work in the last additions with your hands. Cover; let rise in a draft-free, warm (80 degrees) place until doubled - 1 to 112 hours. Punch down dough. With a spoon or your hands turn into two well-greased 9-by 5-by 3-inch loaf pans; smooth the tops as best you can with a small wet metal spatula or wet fingers. Let rise as before, but uncovered this time, until doubled - 50 to 60 minutes. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven, on the rack below the center, for 35 to 40 minutes. Turn out on wire racks and cool at least 1 hour before slicing. Makes 2 loaves.

Note: The stiffer the batter the breadier the texture; the minimum amount of flour produces a more cakelike texture and a smoother top.

To Your Good Health

By DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send me your diet book. I am a 23-year-old woman, 5 feet, 6 inches, 145 pounds and medium frame. I want to lose 20 pounds Here is a sample of what I eat: Breakfast: cup of coffee (no sugar) or juice. A bowl of unsweetened cereal and a multi-vitamin pill. Lunch: Bologna and cheese sandwich, an apple, coffee.

Supper: a hamburger. patty (or tuna fish), an eight-ounce glass of milk, two types of vegetables (moderate servings), usually of beans, squash, etc. Am I following a sensible diet? My family and I have always had weight problems but I'm tired of being fat and really want to lose sensibly. - Miss M.E. This sounds like a sensible weight-loss diet to me. I estimate it at roughly 1,200 calories a day on average. There still might be some adjustment to pare off a few additional calories. I'm thinking of such things as using lean meat for the patties, being sparing with the butter or margarine, and trying fat-free milk. Finally, and probably more important, you could add in a bit of formal exercising.

According to weight charts you are about 20 pounds over desirable weight for height more if you are measuring your height with shoes on.

I wouldn't want to see you go into a more stringent diet regimen if you can manage to shed pounds with a bit more activity and some of the suggestions I made above. The booklet plan will probably give a bit more flexibility.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The doctor has told us that my daughter may be deaf. It has to do with a little gray streak in her hair. She is a healthy child.

Get a headstart

in your new town.

Don't waste time wondering about a fast way to get your bearings. Call me—your WELCOME WAGON Hostess. When you 've just moved, you're pressed for time. And the gifts, community and business information I bring will save your family time and money.

FOR INFORMATION CALL:

MRS. JIMMY BROWN 247-6367

Let me hear from you soon

There will have to be some tests. She is three months old. I wonder if you have any information on this condition .- Mrs.

This is not an absolute sign of deafness, but may be part of Waardenburg's syndrome. In this there can be a shock of white hair, eyebrow peculiarities and certain pigment changes in the irises of the eyes. Deafness is another aspect of the syndrome. With modern techniques the child's hearing can be tested quite early in life. An ear specialist should be consulted. The syndrome is an inherited defect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am arguing with my wife that egg yolk is not the richest source of cholesterol. I say brain is. Your answer, please. -

You are right. Egg yolk contains about 2,000 milligrams of cholesterol for each 100 grams of yolk. Beef brain contains about 2,200 mgs. per 100 grams. At the low end are fruits and vegetables, which contain none. See my booklet, "How to Control Cholesterol Sensible," for a complete rundown on cholesterol content in most important foods. It's in a new printing available for 50 cents and a stamped, selfaddressed envelope to me care of this newspaper. Dear Dr. Thosteson: Xrays show there is a bone pinching my sciatic nerve. This affects my right leg and is very painful. I would like to know what medication is available to treat this .--

Conservative treatment is usually effective in this kind of problem. For example, back braces can help, but you may have to lose weight before they can be effective. Certain exercises can be tried if you doctor approves. This is to lessen muscle spasm, sometimes as much a problem as the actual nerve compression.

It's a mechanical problem and the only medicine required is that needed to relieve pain. Any muscle spasm would likely produce low-back pain and this can proceed from the sciatic nerve situation if the cause is not relieved. Arthritis can be involved if it has altered bone formation in the spinal area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Kindly tell me if vitamins or minerals are fattening .- Mrs.L.M.

They're not. You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, Secrets "Lost of Reducing," tells you how--naturally and with gimmicks--to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Russellville Service Station Blast Injures 3

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky. (AP) - An explosion at a service station here Tuesday night left three Russellville residents injured, one seriously, according to local officials.

Donald Morr Jr., 17, identified as an attendant at the station, was taken to Logan County Hospital for treatment of first and second-degree burns over 30 percent of his body "and some third-degree burns," a hospital spokesman said. Morr, reported in "guarded" condition, was tran-sferred to Vanderbilt University Hospital.

Edgar Adamson, 57, and Robert Burr Wilkins Jr., 38, both identified by officials as customers at the service station, were admitted to Logan County Hospital for treatment of burns. Both were listed in 'stable" condition. A motorist who had just pulled into Bob Ballance's Shell Service Station just after 7 p.m., CST, told attendants he thought his car was leaking gasoline, police said. The car was put on a rack in the station, then there was an explosion at 7:19 p.m., officers reported.

"I had to turn it in," she told a Huntington Herald-Dispatch reporter Tuesday. "It wasn't mine, it didn't belong to me."

She gave the money to Mike Jones, the inn manager, and he put it away for safe keeping, waiting for someone to report the loss. But day after day went by and nobody claimed the cash.

Then, last Thursday morning, James Browning of Whitman in Logan County was returning from breakfast to his room at the Holiday Inn East when he happened upon Mrs. White. She recognized him immediately.

They cited similar reasons for their actions.

"Chartered vessels that carry the coal overseas from Hampton Roads, Va., have not been available," said Hugh Flaherty, a Pittston spokesman at their Greenwich, Conn., offices.

The strike made it impossible for our foreign coal customers, mainly the Japanese, to schedule vessels into the port until they were certain the strike would be over," Flaherty said.

Flaherty said Pittston doesn't expect to bring the miners back until the transportation snags are smoothed out, which will not come before the end of April. Pittston cannot even load railroad cars and send them to port to await the ships because Norfolk and Western Railway will not make the cars available.

The railroad will not give the company the cars because it doesn't want to tie up stock which could be used by mines producing coal for domestic consumption, according to Bill Martin, an N&W spokesman in Roanoke, Va.

Of the 215 mines served by N&W, 47 were closed Tuesday, Martin said. The railroad serves parts of West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio.

Transportation difficulties are only part of the problem, Martin said. "The market is really the problem. The worldwide market has been in decline

Hints From Heloise

-WILL CUPPY

Many gals - and guys want to save the flowers or boutonnieres received for some special event. And we have been asked for ideas for preserving these precious flowers.

There are several ways that have been tested and found to be successful and we would like to share our ideas with you.

One method that you might like to try to press the corsage or boutonnieres and retain their color is to get a large, old book, sprinkle a thin layer of powdered boric acid across the page. (But be sure to read the cautions on the container of boric acid before using.) Place the corsage or flower in position then sprinkle a layer of boric acid across the top of the Close the book and stack some more books on top to keep the book closed as snugly possible. Leave it pressed for about three weeks.

Then, gently raise the book and peek inside to see without moving the floral arrangment, if it has dried sufficiently. If it is dried, it may be removed, otherwise leave it for another

The color will remain in the corsage or flower indefinitely. If you don't want to press the flowers, there is another way to preserve them. Mix equal amounts of cornmeal and borax, adding three tablespoons of salt for each quart of mix. Select a roomy cardboard container and spread the mixture about an inch thick over the bottom. Do not use anything metal. Undo the bouquet and select only the freshest flowers. Throw away the others. Lay the flowers on the mix and then gently sift the mixture. a little at a time, over the petals until the flowers are completely buried. Pack it very carefully around and under the petals too. Store in a warm, dry, airy place for 10 days or more until the petals have stiffened. Later, tip the container and let the mix run out slowly. Tap the flowers gently to remove the mixture, and brush lightly with a soft brush.

Reassemble into a bouquet, adding the original ribbons and store under glass or plastic. A terrarium would be nice for this

If you want to wear the corsage again the following night (while it is still fresh), spray it with hair spray then sprinkle glitter on it. This is about the cutest thing I've tested... After the glitter is poured on, turn the flower over and shake off all you can. If you don't have enough glitter on it, put on some more hair spray and sprinkle a little more on. Then add a few more squirts of hair spray. This holds the glitter in place. Have you ever thought of using acrylic plastic spray paint? Spread newspaper out on the ground and place the corsage in the center. Then apply one thin layer of spray paint. Let dry about half an hour and apply another thin layer of paint. Be sure to turn the corsage so that all parts of each flower and bud are completely covered with the fine spray. Let dry. It can be stored or used as a decorative piece most any place in your home. Teenagers like hanging them on their walls.

Any color paint can be used, but gold or silver are beautiful. So, gals and guys, if you have a special corsage or bouton-niere you wish to keep, you might try one of these methods. A nice way to preserve pleasant memories. - Heloise

DEAR CUTE CHICKENS: This is especially for those of you whose fortune it is to have one of those wonderful refrigerators that makes its

I happen to be fortunate enough to have one and always had the unfortunate experience of having all that ice fall into that "plastic" tray.

It sticks to the plastic tray and there ain't no doubt about it. Last week I decided to try something else so the dang ice wouldn't stick.

I lined the bottom of the plastic catch-all-for-the-icecubes with a piece off of my roll of foil. Dad gum if it doesn't work!

> fruitful? The ice does not stick to the plastic tray in which it drops and neither do we have to hotwet it. (That means to hold the tray under the hot water faucet until all that melted goop plops

Isn't that something really

Now all I do is pick up the piece of foil, take it with all that melted ice, "fob" and "glaciers" on it, to the sink and Hooray! Try it, honeypots. I know. I tried. I tested - and I never have told you a lie or story yet. Have I? Bless all you angels. -

WALL CARPETS

Carpets are often use decorative wal hangings, but there is a more practical value. Car pets on the wall will help the acoustics in a building where sound bounces of the walls.

Wall - carpets are especially helpful in deadening excessive noise n apartment buildings with thin walls which do not shut out sounds from the adjacent apartments. Even a carpet wall hanging on one wall will often make a great difference in the noise level.

Of course, our main usiness is selling carpet. Use them for whatever pur pose you desire. Please see our varied selection before making a commitment to

Arnold Miller Suffers Heart Attack In Hospital

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller suffered a mild heart attack Wednesday, shortly before he was due to be released from Mount Sinai Medical Center, the hospital announced:

Miller, 54, had been hospitalized since March when he suffered a slight stroke while resting after settlement of the 111-day coal strike.

Hospital · spokeswoman Susanna Barger said Miller was in stable

Dr. Joel Dokson, a neurologist treating Miller, said last week that the UMW chief was undergoing physical therapy to regain control of some functions weakened by the stroke. Dokson said Miller had an "excellent" chance for a full recovery.

The union president, who also suffers from high blood pressure, arthritis and a respiratory ailment, had held a hospital news conference Tuesday, in which he said that he had some difficulty walking but otherwise felt fine, and that doctors told him he could expect a complete recovery within a

Soviet Renegade In UN Requests Captialistic Money, Protection

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - Arkady Shevchenko, the Soviet government's renegade at the United Nations, is reported demanding money and U.S. protection to get Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim off the Russian hook.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the top Soviet U.N. employee wanted "a mixed bag of money and personal security" to resign from his $76,000-a-year job

When he resigns, Waldehim told reporters in Vienna, "this will become an affair between the Soviet and U.S. governments.'

Some diplomats expressed concern that the affair would foul the atmosphere for Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's talks in Moscow next week on nuclear arms reductions.

Informed sources said Shevchenko wants the money he has paid toward the U.N. pension for which he is not yet eligible, a lump sum for the two remaining years of his contract and assurances he can remain in the United States.

One Soviet informant predicted he would get more than $100,000.

In Washington, State Department spokesmen Tom Reston said Shevchenko "is free to stay here, return to the U.S.S.R., or go to another country as far as we are concerned."

The 47-year-old Ukrainian was scheduled to return to Moscow on leave this week but instead left his job as undersecretary-general for political and Security Council affairs April 5 because of "differences with his government," a spokesman for Waldheim announced Monday. He has not been seen in public since.

Shevchenko's American lawyer, Ernest Gross, says the missing man is in seclusion near New York but is not a defector. Gross said Shevchenko intends to remain a Soviet citizen.

The Soviet government accused the U.S. government of a "detestable frameup" and a "premeditated provocation" and charged that U.S. intelligence services were holding Sheychenko under duress. The State Department denied the charges.

Although Shevchenko's post is reserved for a Soviet citizen nominated by the Soviet government, Gross contended that the U.N. Charter prohibits Waldheim from firing him at the demand of the Russians. But a wellplaced source said the Soviet mission asked Waldheim to get Shevchenko's resignation, and the secretary-general told Soviet Ambassador Oleg A. Troyanovsky he would do his best to Mikhail A. Kharlamov, Troyanov-sky's deputy, said Waldheim had accepted Moscow's nomination of Victor Issraelyan, a veteran Soviet diplomat, to succeed Shevchenko.

Gross said Shevchenko was waiting to see Waldheim, who had been scheduled to return from Europe Sunday. But a U.N. spokesman announced that the secretary-general would go from his native Austria to Beirut and Jerusalem and might make other stops in the Middle East.

Smith's Supermarket

Undergoes Facelift

Smith's Supermarket here is now undergoing a new face-lift. According to Robert Smith, owner of Smith's Supermarket at 9th and Farthing Streets, plans are underway to expand the present store facilities from 16,000 to 22,000 square feet.

Among the provements planned are several innovations inside the store, including new check-out counters, new cash registers, and a revolutionary new scanning system. Smith said that he will double the size of his delicatesson department. The produce department will be completely remodeled and new dain cases will be installed. Along with these expansions, the meat department will be enlarged. A new store front will complete the remodeling and expansion plans of this market. Additional parking areas are also to be included in the ex-
