Steven L. West To Join Hubbard's Capitol Staff

U. S. Representative-elect Carroll Hubbard has announced the appointment of Steven L. West of Murray to his Washington staff as a legislative assistant.

Steven L. West

"I am very pleased that an outstanding young attorney such as Steve West can join my staff in Washington with assistance in legislation," Hubbard said in making the announcement.

West, 26, a graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Law, served as legal aide at the Kentucky Child Advocacy Council and at present is in the law firm of Hubbard, Null and West of Mayfield.

The attorney, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Haron West of Murray and who is married to the former Tonda Parker also of Murray, will be going to Washington the first of January. There he will join Hubbard's staff which is comprised of several other Western Kentuckians.

The Wests have one son, Mark, who is a first grade student at Robertson Elementary School in Murray.

Estimated 4,700 Die In Earthquake In Pakistan

PATTAN, Pakistan (AP) — The earthquake that hit northern Pakistan during the week-end killed an estimated 4,700 persons and injured about 15,000 in nine villages, rescue officials said today. They said the final casualty toll could be even higher when reports arrive from isolated regions north of Pattan.

The villages were clustered about Pattan, nestled among the snow-capped Karakoram Mountains about 200 miles north of the Pakistani capital of Islamabad. The quake struck Saturday evening and tremors followed intermittently for the next 24 hours. First word of the disaster was brought out by runners.

The quake almost destroyed this village of 10,000, leaving hardly one house intact. Senior army officers taking part in rescue operations estimated 500 inhabitants of Pattan were dead and 2,000 injured.

Army rescue teams have been working around the clock since shortly after the quake struck, treating the injured, pulling bodies from the wreckage.

age and mounting a helicopter-borne mercy airlift.

Because of the widespread damage to houses many people have been sleeping in the open in temperatures that drop to near freezing at night. Nearly every family has reported losing one or more relatives in the disaster.

Efforts to bring in more blankets and tents have been hampered because the Karakoram Highway, the country's main one which runs through the disaster-struck region, has been either severed or demolished along a 70-mile stretch.

Ford Urged To Push For Tax Cut To Bolster U. S. Economy

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford has been urged by some of his economic advisers to push for a tax cut to bolster the faltering economy.

Ford also was reported ready to abandon his proposed income tax surcharge, a measure he urged earlier this year when he declared inflation to be public enemy No. 1.

However, the deepening recession reportedly has led some White House economic advisers to push for a tax cut. That advice was said to have been given to Ford over the weekend when he met with his economic advisers.

There was no indication whether Ford will propose a tax cut. Ford has sworn his advisers to secrecy, and press Secretary Ron Nessen has said that Ford will not announce any new programs until his State of the Union address sometime after the new Congress convenes on Jan. 14. But Nessen said Ford plans "fundamental changes" in the management of the nation's economy.

Miller Named As Honor Graduate

2LT William A. Miller, a 1974 Murray State graduate, was recently honored as honor graduate of the U.S. Army Engineer School Basic Officer Course, Fort Belvoir, VA.

The intensive course of instruction over a nine-week period covers various phases of Army engineering techniques. In four of the subcourses, 2LT Miller received the highest possible score.

2LT Miller and his wife, Terri, have been assigned to Germany after completion of his course of instruction.

The President's reappraisal of the income tax surcharge was widely predicted when it became clear that the surcharge had very little support in Congress, even among lawmakers from Ford's own party.

As Ford continues his working vacation here, he is facing decisions on 122 bills passed by Congress. He must act by midnight tonight on a controversial measure to control strip mining.

Ford has promised to veto the bill on the grounds that it would discourage coal production and add to inflationary pressures.

Nessen has said Ford has but two options on strip mining: to sign a formal veto message or simply let the legislation die without his signature. In recent days, however, some businessmen who presumably would be adversely affected by the bill have urged Ford to change his mind and sign it lest the new Congress vote a tougher measure.

Now in the homeward-bound stretch of his work-and-ski vacation that began Dec. 22, Ford sandwiched about two hours of skiing between work sessions at his snow-covered ski chalet Sunday.

Officers attending the course received training in a broad range of subjects including basic fingerprinting, disaster preparedness, laws of arrest, search and seizure, accident investigation, first aid and narcotics and dangerous drugs.

The officers also received instruction in Kentucky's new penal code, which is scheduled to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1975. Guest speaker at the graduation ceremonies was Louisville Police Chief John Nevin.

The Murray City Schools will reopen Monday January 6, 1975, with buses making their regular runs for Carter, Robertson, and Murray Middle School, according to Willie F. Jackson, Director of Pupil Personnel.

January 6 will be a professional day for the Murray High School Staff and students will not report to school. Murray High School will reopen Tuesday, January 7, with buses making their regular high school runs on the 7th.

Gov. Carroll Announces 90-Day Freeze On Many State Projects

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll announced today he was putting a 90-day freeze on state capital construction projects, leases of property and purchases of state automobiles and communications equipment.

At his first news conference since becoming governor Saturday, Carroll also said he was abolishing all existing vacancies on the state's payroll, "which are not clearly essential."

Carroll said he was taking the actions because of current economic conditions and in order to give him time to assess current practices.

Carroll held his news conference one hour after he had key aides in his office sworn in.

The freeze on capital construction projects would apply to all that are still in the planning stage.

In addition to freezing property leases, Carroll said he was directing his finance department to conduct an in-depth review of leasing policies and practices.

"Where there is a clear and convincing necessity for exceptions to the moratorium, I will give approval to avoid the directive," he said.

On personnel, Carroll said he had directed state agency heads to reveal all existing vacancies in the next 30 days and to abolish those which are not clearly essential.

He said new positions would be approved by the personnel department only after the agency had certified they are necessary.

One of Carroll's first orders of business today was to attend an emergency preparedness briefing by Adj. Gen. Richard Frymire.

Carroll's Expecting Baby This Summer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Julian Carroll announced Monday his wife Charlann was expecting a baby in June.

Carroll said as far as his staff knows this will be the first baby born in the governor's mansion.

The Carrolls now have three children ages 19, 18 and 10.

He has scheduled meetings throughout the day with state agency heads to complete the transition from Gov. Wendell Ford's administration.

Carroll was sworn in as Kentucky's 50th governor at 10:06 a.m. Saturday, 16 minutes after Gov. Wendell Ford resigned.

His first official action after that was to appoint Ford to the Senate, an action that was completed at 10:17 a.m. Republican Marlow Cook had resigned the seat a week early so the Democrat who had defeated him for it could get a slight seniority edge over other freshmen senators.

Carroll got in some extra working time Sunday when bad weather forced him to cancel his flight to Paducah for a traditional Christmas celebration with all his family at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elvie Carroll.

In addition to Ford, four former governors were among the 300 or so friends, relatives, citizens and state officials to witness Carroll's brief inauguration ceremony Saturday morning.

The ex-governors present were A. B. Chandler, Lawrence Wetherby, Bert T. Combs and Louie B. Nunn, the only Republican of the bunch. Neither Carroll nor Ford spoke publicly at the ceremony but Carroll did release a statement praising Ford for working "tirelessly" for three years to serve the people as governor.

"His dedication to this task is the example he leaves to those of us who shall succeed him," Carroll said of Ford. "His dedication to the people of our com-

Hopkinsville Mayor Announces For Position Of State Auditor

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The mayor of Hopkinsville, George Atkins, announced here Monday he will be a candidate for state Auditor in next May's Democratic primary election.

"Traditionally and for much too long many of Kentucky's

Atkins, 33, was a campaign director for former Gov. Wendell Ford's campaign for the U.S. Senate this year. He was one of five outstanding young men in Kentucky this year.

Atkins said: "The ultimate beneficiaries of an effectively administered auditor's office are the taxpayers of the commonwealth."

With so many government programs requiring detailed accounting procedures and a creditability-conscious public demanding accuracy in government fiscal reports, it becomes increasingly important that the auditor's office not limit itself to a reactive posture of catching someone in the act of wrong doing but that it takes a pro-active, positive position preventing improprieties.

Atkins said he would advocate training sessions in accounting and reporting techniques for everyone handling public funds.

Atkins has been mayor of Hopkinsville since 1972.

He said he was a member of the action corps for former Gov. Bert T. Combs and former Lt. Gov. Julian Carroll in their 1971 campaigns.

constitutional offices have been overlooked," Atkins said at a news conference.

He added, "No one with the exception of the candidates themselves has attached much significance to any office other than that of governor and lieutenant governor."

Mills To Remain In Congress Despite Illness Of Alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wilbur Mills said today he intends to remain in Congress despite an illness that he described as acute alcoholism.

"I know that I am a well man as long as I do not drink, and, by the grace of God and with competent medical advice and the support of friends, I will remain well," Mills said. He added:

"In light of the above, it is my intention to continue in the Congress of the United States. My years of experience have given me some ability to make a contribution toward the solution of the problems of the times in which we live," the Arkansas Democrat said.

Mills is in Bethesda Naval Hospital, which he entered after appearing on a Boston stage with Annabell Battistella, the strip-tease dancer in whose company he was found when police stopped his limousine at Washington's Tidal Basin earlier this year.

"I now realize, after several weeks of treatment by the doctors and soul-searching of my own, that I had developed a severe drinking problem, not as a daily drinker but as a periodic heavy drinker," Mills said.

Mills said that he had scarcely noticed in the last several years that his drinking habits had changed drastically.

He said he understands now that his pattern of drinking corresponds with alcoholism, which he called "a physical illness, as much as cancer and diabetes, and even more destructive in the sense that it affects far more people than the sufferer."

"I know now that I have been a sick man who did not understand the nature of the illness," Mills said. "I now have an understanding of the nature of this disease and I know how to live with it. The answer lies in total abstinence."

In what he said will be his last explanation of his conduct, Mills said his illness has caused him to suffer blackouts. "Periods during which I have had no knowledge of what I was doing. These were temporary in nature and happened only when I had ingested alcohol, but they do explain some of my recent activities," Mills said.

Mills said he will refuse to discuss the matter further with reporters and intends to dedicate himself to the work of Congress and of the House Ways and Means Committee which he served as chairman before the Tidal Basin incident made national headlines.

He was stripped of the post after the Boston appearance. Mills said the easier course would have been to resign his seat and disappear from public life.

"I have never been one to quit in the face of adversity and I will not be a quitter now," he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Steven E. Courtney

Miss Susan Lynn Enoch, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Enoch of Mayfield Route Four, became the bride of Steven Eugene Courtney, only son of Rev. and Mrs. Granville Courtney of Murray, on Thursday, November 28, at five p.m.

The double ring ceremony was performed in the sanctuary of the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Mayfield, with the groom's father, Rev. Grandville Courtney, officiating.

Mrs. Chester Grant, organist, Michael Grant, pianist, and Paul McWherter, soloist, presented a program of music. Songs selected included "Someday, Somewhere" and "Whither Thou Goest."

Vows were exchanged before the altar with three arched candelabra holding white candles, and baskets of gladioli on either side. Placed in the center was a white wrought iron prieu dieu on which the couple knelt for prayer. The windows were decorated with magnolia leaves with a single white candle in each.

Bride's Dress
The bride, escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal gown of silk organza over satin. Designed with a high neck, empire waistline, the gown featured long, puffed sleeves which were closed with self fabric buttons. Reembroidered galloon lace and pearls were applied to the neckline, sleeves and border of the gown and attached train.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a pearl and lace Juliet styled cap. The bride's dress and veil were fashioned by her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Lennie Jewell.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white gladioli accented with blue baby's breath tied with white satin streamers with detachable corsage.

Miss Kay Bazzell was the bride's maid of honor. She wore a floor-length gown of blue crepe knit featuring an empire waist and long puffed sleeves, with the bodice of dark blue velvet.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lisa Courtney, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Sharon Prince and Miss Marilyn Crawford. They wore identical gowns to the maid of honor.

Each carried a bouquet of white carnations with baby's breath and tied with blue and white satin ribbons.

The guest register was kept by Mrs. Carl Wells, of Mayfield.

Correlation

The Halston collection featured a revival of the mini-skirt, called the skimp. But there, skipping ran out, giving way to the outsize hand-bag shown throughout the collection. This was a huge, loose pouch, roomy enough to hold a weekend of clothes. Bobby Breslau created the shoulder bags for the Halston show.

Coffee Rates High In U.S.

Some type of coffee-making device can be found in almost every American home. A Gallop study shows that 28 per cent of the population ranks coffee as its primary beverage.

Many leading manufacturers offer either perk or drip-style coffee makers in various cup capacities. The most popular coffee maker is either a five- to nine-cup percolator or a two- to eight-cup drip pot.

Adventures in Eating

A sad commentary on America's eating habits is the experience of a food processor, reported in the National Observer, who undertook to produce a catsup with the natural flavor of tomatoes. The company spent millions developing the new process only to discover that the new flavor was not acceptable to shoppers accustomed to the overcooked, scorched flavor of catsup made by the usual methods.

The Observer reporter comments, "In researching the idiosyncrasies of the national palate, manufacturers have stumbled upon a surprising discovery: Despite the clamor in recent years for a return to 'Natural' foods, most Americans have grown so accustomed to mass-produced, artificially flavored foods that anything else tastes peculiar."

Scarcely anything would do as much to remedy America's good nutritional status as an open-minded acceptance of the idea that "different" does not necessarily mean bad. Here parental attitudes have far more effect than anything nutritionists or health educators can say.

Information about good nutrition is available to everyone today in magazines, newspapers, books, and government publications, in school, on radio and TV (along with much hard-sell of junk foods). Friendly family discussion of such information and an adventurous approach to new taste experiences can produce gradual replacement of empty calories with more nutritious foods.

Even housewives who find their families resistant to change need not despair. There is encouragement in the experiences of women like Jane Kinderlehrer, author of Confessions of a Sneaky Organic Cook. To begin with, she warns anyone who buys her book to cover it with a plain book jacket and hide it.

Cooks torn between responsibility for the health of their husbands and children and the desire to please will find much comfort and help in Mrs. Kinderlehrer's book. And she is only one of a growing number of women who are discovering the way to plan meals for good nutrition as well as taste appeal.

Good-natured, low-key persistence eventually wins family acceptance. Who can resist homemade bread, for instance, even if a cup of white flour has been replaced by a half cup of wheat germ and a half cup of soy flour? Eventually even half whole-wheat flour will prove acceptable.

In changing family eating habits, the old adage applies: Where there's a will, there's a way.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MEALS

Plan ahead! Plan a well-balanced menu which has a variety of texture, flavor, color and foods. Stick to the menu—don't prepare a dish of everything you know how to prepare and like. Think of how much food is usually left over. Evaluate your recipes and be selective. Do they call for a lot of expensive ingredients? If you want to have a special dinner consider a foreign-type meal. Many times you can have a more gourmet type meal using more inexpensive ingredients. Think Mexican, Chinese, or Italian. With the current oil situation and our high price of vegetable fats the price of butter is coming more in competition with margarine. Can you use less butter in seasoning and get as much flavor? Cut down, perhaps eliminate additional fat used to baste meats and make use of the meat juices. Have you tried the butter-flavored salt for seasoning? Cheaper and far fewer calories than using butter or margarine. Don't overlook your vegetables. They will be more colorful and most of all, more nutritional. Think before you add so many extra ingredients to your vegetable dishes. Would a dish of plain vegetables be more attractive and just as good as an expensive mixture? Experiment with herbs and spices for enhancing the flavor of our basic foods. — Mrs. Patricia Curtsinger, Benton.

AS YOUR FAMILY GROWS

Here are some tips to minimize the effects of favoritism: Avoid babying the youngest child in your family and overloading the oldest with chores. Accord each child privileges and responsibilities appropriate for his level of development. Praise each child for his or her accomplishments, and positive points rather than tearing him down for his failures. Avoid comparing one child's abilities to another's and holding up one child's successes as the model for the others to follow. Each should be free to develop his own abilities without being constantly reminded that big brother starred in sports and big sister always got straight A's in school. — Mrs. Sue Fraser, Bardwell.

BEFORE YOU GO SHOPPING

Before you leave home to shop for children's clothing, look over your child's wardrobe to get a good idea of what he has that he can still wear. Make a note of what he needs and decide what colors and styles would give his wardrobe the most mix-and-match flexibility. Never go shopping for children's clothing without a complete set of measurements: height, weight, chest, waist, and hip measurements are essential for a proper fit. — Mrs. Kate Thompson Hickman.

If you have an older home with high ceilings and a spacious living room, you might want to use a wallpaper with a large-scale, bold pattern to pull the room together a bit. A paper with small all-over pattern would add design interest to the background areas of smaller rooms. — Mrs. Mildred Potts, LaCenter.

Lettuce will keep better if you store it away from apples, pears and other fruits in the refrigerator. These fruits give off ethylene gas that causes russeting (brown spots) and rapid deterioration of the lettuce. — Mrs. Maxine Griffin, Clinton.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

Your social security number stays with you for life. If you need to make a name change on your social security card or you need a new card because you've lost your old one, apply for a name change or a replacement, not a new card. You must apply for any social security benefits you are entitled to—they will not simply drop down out of the sky. The Social Security protection you earn goes with you when you change jobs or move. Social security is not charity—it is something you have earned through your employment. — Mrs. Barletta Wraether, Murray.

"A STITCH IN TIME" — A dangling thread may develop into more than a ticklish situation if it happens to be holding two vital parts together. Thread it into a needle, take it to the inside of the garment and tie it off. Seams that will be under a lot of stress, like sleeve and crotch seams, can be strengthened with a second line of machine stitching just inside the seam allowance. — Mrs. Dean Roper, Mayfield.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

Please don't iron the sackcloth

DEAR ABBY: I used to be one of your most devoted fans, but not anymore. How dare you say that people who don't iron their bedsheets, pillowcases and towels are just plain lazy!

Abby, haven't you ever heard of permanent press fabrics? When they came in, ironing bedsheets and pillowcases went out at my house. And nobody irons towels anymore. They just fold them.

A young relative put me on to the greatest time and money-saver yet: Have one set of quick-dry bedsheets and pillowcases for each bed. They can be laundered and put back on the beds in a few hours. The set I am using on my king-sized bed is in its ninth year and it's still good as new. (No cracks, please.) EX-ABBY FAN

DEAR EX: You (and a lot of other people) have confused me with my twin sister—Ann Landers. You read that in HER column—not mine. I spoke with her a few minutes ago and she's reconsidered; she's now doing penance—complete with sackcloth (UNIRONED) and ashes.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm still a child, but I like the element of surprise on Christmas morning.

My husband insists on knowing what I want. He says he would rather get me something I want than spend money on something I don't want.

I keep telling him to "surprise" me, but he nags at me until I finally tell him. Then he orders it right in front of me. (This is a Christmas present?)

His mother is the same way. She asks me what I want for Christmas, too. It takes all the fun out of it for me.

I never ask anybody what they want. I use my imagination and enjoy shopping around to find things.

If I'm wrong, I'll take my lumps. If I'm right, I'll tape your answer on my husband's nose next year. Thanks. JENNIE

DEAR JENNIE: Not everybody likes "surprises," but if you do, then your husband should surprise you. But don't grumble if he surprises you with a little nothing for which he spent too much.

DEAR ABBY: I need your help. I am 19, and I've been seeing this guy who is 30. I know he is too old for me. But that's not all. He's married and has two kids. How I got involved with him I'll never know.

This has got to end because there is no future in it for me. I have tried so hard to tell him, but he keeps calling me and calling me and he won't take no for an answer. I never should have started up with this guy, but he is a real fast talker.

I am not much of a talker, so I would like to write him a letter. That's where you come in, Abby. Will you help me write it? I want to get it across to him that I don't want to continue our love affair and to please leave me alone. Thank you. WANTS OUT

DEAR WANTS: Don't put anything incriminating in writing! (You never can tell where a letter will wind up!) TELL HIM in plain English that you've seen him for the last time, and don't stick around for a debate. (P.S. If he calls you again, hang up on him.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NO BEAUTY" IN BEVERLY HILLS: I don't know who said it, but wise was he who quipped: "Beauty is a gift. Charm must be cultivated. A beautiful woman is one I notice. A charming woman is one who notices ME."

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Present everything in your thorough, affable manner; thus you will win points and outwit the competition. Do your best but don't undertake the unreasonable.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)

Both regular work and new ventures favored. Returns from past efforts indicated very soon. Whatever you do well will have long-range value.

YOU BORN TODAY are amiable, industrious and so practical and methodical that you can often get ahead where the road seems completely blocked, and others would turn back. You have a fine mind and seek out companionship which is intellectually stimulating; may take up a unique hobby which eventually proves remunerative. Don't anticipate trouble or negate your efforts through pessimism. Fields in which you could be especially successful: science, writing, diplomacy, statesmanship, instructor in literature or languages.

Down the Garden Path

By MRS. W. P. WILLIAMS

The old year is drawing to a close and what failures or successes we may have had in our gardens this year are a part of the past. But not entirely so, for we have learned by doing. That is why I constantly urge you to try something new each year. In addition to the excitement of seeing a new blossom show forth under your care, you have added to your gardening lore.

I plan to order some more of the Carved Ivory Zinnia seed this year. I had such enjoyment out of the ones I planted last year. There are so many new plants, or improved familiar ones, that the choice is wide and all so tempting.

The days are beginning to get longer again and that means spring is not as far away as it was. Seed catalogs are beginning to come in and I am getting that familiar desire to get my hands in the dirt again. This is the time for planning. While the evenings are still long and the days are chilly, is the best time in the world to sit by a warm fire and browse through the pages of a beautiful catalog.

There are several local places where we can get plants of various sorts when planting time comes. We can find bedding plants, or specimen shrubs and at such a reasonable price that we can afford to be prodigal with them. I am a great one to tuck a small group of bulbs or plants in a little corner somewhere and then forget them. But it is such fun to go out one morning and find a small cluster of blossoms in an unexpected place. Let me put it this way:

My Garden

My garden is really quite contrary. The plants don't lie in rows so neat. They grow in patches, helter-skelter in a riot of color hard to beat.

A landscape artist would disapprove. Would turn up his nose in scorn. For parsley grows among the roses And marigolds amid the corn.

But every flower has a meaning. And I never ask for pardon, For the prettiest rainbow in the world Is right here in my garden.

White and red and blue and yellow, And I never ask for pardon, For the prettiest rainbow in the world Is right here in my garden.

Onward & Downward

At times we get the feeling that progress is getting us nowhere, and the National Research Council is in the same mood. The council has published a report arguing that, all things considered, a cave is still the ideal place to live.

An underground dwelling could be heated and kept cool with one-tenth as much energy as an above-ground dwelling, says the report. It would be easier to maintain, because most of it would not be exposed to the elements. There would only be roofs, vents and windows poking above ground-level.

This suggests that our Neanderthal ancestors didn't know when they were well off. That's just the problem. We would no longer get settled in our subterranean split-level than someone in the family would start complaining about the damp. Then we'd start the whole cycle all over again.

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think

by S. C. VAN CUREN

FRANKFORT — There's an important question hanging over state government concerning Gov. Julian Carroll and his takeover as acting governor from Sen. Wendell Ford.

The answer isn't readily available, and will be sometime in coming, and that is probably the reason it hasn't been asked.

What has Carroll inherited from Ford? Is the question. This single question raises a bunch of others. Will Carroll inherit the wind? Will he inherit some questionable acts reported in the press? Assuredly Carroll will inherit the economic and monetary problems, but will he be blamed for mistakes of the Ford administration?

Carroll sought no credit for the advancements and improvements or the claimed advancements and improvements of the Ford administration. He has stayed aloof from these in the three years of the Ford Administration and did not seek to interfere with any of Ford's goals.

But he is the chief administrator and the question of responsibility remains for the full four-year term.

The recession and shortages will have to be dealt with by Carroll for the next year, and he must be held responsible for these in that period, but how about money?

Ford already has allocated much of the surplus forecast by Finance and Revenue for the fiscal year ending June 30, but problems can arise that will wipe out that portion that Ford claims is unallocated.

Three major problems of the Ford administration will be dumped into Carroll's lap. Ford has enjoyed the political plaudits of major promises yet unfulfilled. First, there is the promised Horse Park at Lexington that is estimated to cost $70 million. Then, there's the multi-million dollar civic center and basketball arena in Lexington for which Ford has pledged a bundle of state funds.

Next, comes the downtown Louisville Convention Center to which Ford has promised state backing bonds. Then, there's a $40 to $50 million Human Resources Department Complex in Frankfort. Another project is an announced state park in Owensboro.

The major projects, except the Horse Farm, have had bonds sold on them with state backing, but there are only short term notes for the Horse Farm. What if the economy goes sour?

The atmosphere between the first floor governor's office and the third floor where Carroll held forth was chilling to say the least until the 1974 session of the General Assembly when Ford decided to oppose U. S. Senator Marlow Cook for the Senate.

The thaw came quickly as an accommodation of convenience that would be mutually beneficial. Carroll threw all of his political resources and efforts behind Ford in the Senate campaign, for it would give him a year in the governor's office to run for a four-year term.

Ford has left the Red River dam question unresolved and Carroll must face this problem.

Surprisingly, Ford has succeeded in running an extremely hazardous obstacle course during his three years without raising much of a ripple that would blemish his public image. The public has given only passing attention to some of the peccadilloes or worse that have occurred during Ford's stewardship.

Personally, he managed to come out unscathed in the much-publicized Crech moving contract in which Crech was acquitted on a criminal charge, but in the civil case that state won a judgment of more than $200,000.

The spending of thousands of dollars of state money for land in Daviess County that was leased to a gun club for $1.00 per year raised hardly a pip from the public. Again, a state office building was constructed in phase contracts in Owensboro without advertising for bids. Its revelation by the press was passed over as a routine news story.

The unadvertised chairlift at Cumberland Falls State Park surfaced with the first public notice of the cutting of a swath of trees by the recipient of the secret contract. The public, at least a part, became inflamed, and Ford stopped this under provisions of the Wild Rivers act. In all of my experience, no commissioner commits the state to such a deal without acquiescence of the governor. There's a multi-thousand dollar suit in Franklin Circuit Court against the State on this contract, and the state may lose.

The purchase of materials and a negotiated supervisory deal without bids to restore a storm-damaged boat dock at Kentucky Dam Village made hardly a wave on the public conscience.

The unanswered question is, will Carroll be called to account for these in the 1975 gubernatorial campaign?

And, how about the $15,000 campaign contribution of the milk people to Walter Huddleston's campaign after the election was over and he had won the race?

Drug Control Key To Cure

The federal estimate that drug abuse and heroin addiction are costing America $10 billion a year is shocking enough, but there is a hint of something equally disturbing in the anatomy of that cost.

The $10 billion figure emerged from the first comprehensive study of the measurable economic costs of the drug problem — costs quite apart from the toll in human suffering. The study pegged at $6.9 billion — two-thirds of the total — the losses from burglaries, robberies and other crimes against property committed by drug users. Next in magnitude is $1.5 billion in lost productivity from job absenteeism or the inability of drug users to hold a job at all. Then there is a $1.1 billion cost for federal, state, local and private programs aimed at drug education and rehabilitation of drug users.

Near the bottom of the bill, and representing only about 6 per cent of the total, is the $620 million that police departments, the courts and prison systems estimate they spend on drug-related criminal cases. It is this figure that catches our attention. It is being calculated as part of the "cost" of the drug problem, but that is only one way of looking at it.

Putting it another way, the study shows we are investing only $620 million in arresting, trying and incarcerating criminals who account for $6.9 billion worth of crimes. It is fair to ask whether the huge cost of drug-related crime might be lowered significantly if we accepted a higher cost for finding and punishing those who commit the crimes.

It is also significant that the cost of drug abuse education and rehabilitation programs is calculated at $1.1 billion at a time when the effectiveness of those programs is coming under considerable doubt. A University of Michigan study last year showed that more cases of drug use turned up among high school students who had taken a drug course than in a matched group that did not take it. Prescribing methadone as an alternate drug for heroin addicts has backfired. Methadone is now part of the drug problem, not a part of the solution.

Robert DuPont, the drug abuse adviser in the White House, has reported that heroin addiction is on the rise again after appearing to subside a year ago. The ban on opium production in Turkey, and a resulting shortage of heroin, may have given us that respite. However, a new type of heroin from Mexico has hit the illicit market, and Turkey's decision to resume poppy-growing may see supplies again flowing from that source.

The only headway against heroin addiction was made when there was a dearth of heroin available on the streets. This should tell us with indisputable eloquence, that the best hope for reducing the appalling "costs" of the drug problem lies in bringing the full force of the law against those who traffic in this form of human misery.

Dear Consumer

Guidelines On Gold

By Virginia Knauer
Special Assistant to the President and Director
Office of Consumer Affairs
Department of Health, Education and Welfare

Now that Americans can once again own gold at home, many consumers are thinking about buying it as a hedge against inflation. But, as I have learned from Federal experts on the subject, gold can be a very risky business. Consumers should be aware of the possibility that dishonest operators may try misleading and fraudulent schemes to sell gold.

To help protect consumers who are considering investing in gold, my office—together with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the Department of Justice, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the U.S. Postal Inspection Service—has developed a list of suggestions for the small investor. These guidelines recommend the following:

1. Check the reputation of the seller. It is best to buy through someone you know and trust, like your local stock broker. Don't be fooled by firms using the term "Exchange" in their name. This term can be used by any company; it does not necessarily apply to an authorized association or group of firms that provide a public market for buyers and sellers.
2. Be wary of unsolicited letters or calls from strangers offering to sell you gold. There are already signs of unscrupulous operators setting traps for consumers.
3. If you are buying gold securities, check whether the company has filed with the SEC or a state agency.
4. Be skeptical of promises of spectacular profits. When you buy any commodity—like gold or wheat or corn—the price changes daily. Therefore, you have no way of knowing what the price will be when you are ready to sell the commodity. Also, remember that you will have expenses—such as storage fees, commissions to your broker, insurance costs—when you buy and keep gold.
5. Resist pressures to make hurried, uninformed investment decisions. Before you buy, make sure you will be able to sell. There may not be a ready market for gold in the form (for example, gold bars) being offered to you.
6. Be suspicious of claims of new, secret or exotic processes to extract gold. Such claims are a danger signal for the consumer.
7. Find out what costs, in addition to the quoted price, are involved. There may be refining charges, assay fees, commissions, shipping and storage fees, insurance costs and sales tax.

8. Ask for a written statement of the terms of your purchase, such as when and how the gold will be delivered and stored.

9. Find out what security precautions will be taken to insure that your gold is not shaved or that counterfeit gold is not substituted.

10. Obtain a written guarantee of the weight and fineness (purity). Some gold bears a refiner's mark giving this information; however, there are no Federal standards.

11. Ask whether the gold will be segregated and stored in your name (not the seller's or supplier's). Make sure you receive a written receipt showing that the specified amount of gold is being stored for you by a reputable concern, such as a bank.

12. Attempt to determine how much it cost the seller to purchase the gold that he is offering to consumers. The small investor does not pay the price for gold that is quoted on the financial pages of the newspapers. Because he is purchasing small amounts, he will have to pay retail prices for gold.

13. Consider the risks involved in investing in gold in relation to your own financial position and needs. Will you need convertible, ready cash? (Gold is not quickly convertible.) Is it worth losing the interest on your savings to speculate in gold? While you are holding onto your gold, you will not be making any income on it as you would with money in a savings account.

14. Seek independent advice from persons whom you trust and who are knowledgeable, like your stock broker and your banker.

Understanding Mental Health

a health column from the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration
U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare

Positive Approach

"It is amazing how much control you have over whether your world runs smoothly; the most important factor is you."

A good thing to know, you may feel—particularly for those times when it seems you are considerably pushed around by circumstances beyond your control.

Well, the fact is that you can't win them all, as the saying goes, but a positive approach to life problems is very helpful in building and maintaining your good mental health.

The opening quote is from a pamphlet, It's Good to Know About Mental Health, published by the National Institute of Mental Health, which is part of HEW's Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration.

Following are a few pointers from the pamphlet on how you can help yourself to better mental health:

- When an individual relaxes, so can others around him. When he is cooperative and outgoing, he stimulates the cooperative spirit in others.

- The "easy-does-it" approach may be best. It means getting the job at hand done without overreacting to a challenge and upsetting others.

- Try to analyze and handle anger. Knowing why you are angry and acknowledging it may help.

- Don't brood. A change of pace, a refocusing of energies and effort, may help you to do something positive and useful about a problem instead of brooding.

The pamphlet also offers an overview of the various kinds of mental and emotional disorders and a brief discussion of their causes.

Another section gives helpful information for recognizing some of the warning signs of mental health problems for which help may be needed.

What is a mentally healthy person? A full discussion is a large order indeed, but the pamphlet offers incisive general comment. For example:

A mentally healthy person can cope with life. It isn't always easy, but he manages to handle life's usual challenges and the different stages most of us go through—school, marriage, work, loss of loved ones, retirement.

The emotionally disturbed or mentally ill person, on the other hand, sees the bad things as exaggerated or larger than life-size. He loses his grip; life has him on the run. The joys that should come with healthy living escape him as life becomes essentially a grim experience.

Free single copies of It's Good to Know About Mental Health may be had by writing to the National Institute of Mental Health, ADAMHA, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, Maryland 20852.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Says Gold Buyers In Line To Be Fleeced

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez (Texas) "...Unless Congress changes existing law, unrestricted private ownership of gold will be legal at the end of (December 1974). Every commodity dealer, every security dealer, and every conceivable kind of con artist is gearing up for that happy day...Those who comprehend the potential for disaster say that Congress ought to look again at its decision..."

"I have said that a good many people will buy gilded lead. Earlier this autumn St. Mary's University, which is in my hometown, got suckered into lending a Denver con man $100,000 collateralized by gold. The gold was in fact lead. Even if it had been gold, the school could not have legally held it or sold it. But they did not stop to ask a few simple questions that any prudent lender would have asked, had the school not allowed itself to be hoodwinked by their own golden gullibility..."

"People, financial institutions, even supposedly sophisticated investors, are lined up and asking to be fleeced—and they will be, as the Treasury candidly admitted yesterday..."

"Investors in gold are not likely to make much, if anything. If they look carefully, they will see that gold pays no interest; its purity is always open to question; its storage and handling costs are great; and the possibility of converting it to cash are not very good..."

"Yesterday the Treasury and Federal Reserve issued some guidelines for banks dealing in gold. These guidelines, boiled down, say to the banks, that they cannot be stopped from dealing in gold, so go ahead—but be careful."

"Banks have no more business in dealing in gold commodities than they do in dealing with pork bellies..."

"The Federal Home Loan Bank Board is right in keeping savings institutions out of the gold business altogether. They recognize that gold dealing is exactly what their industry does not need; they understand that gold dealing is dangerous and represents a threat, not an opportunity to savings and loan industry."

"I think the Congress ought to reconsider its gold buggery. It is not enough to cynically say that a sucker is born every minute..."

Of Hospital Patients

By F.J.L. Blasingame, M.D.

Nutrition of some patients in our hospitals has come under attack and labeled as being inadequate. The principal blame has been placed on physicians.

Inadequate nutrition occurs most frequently in persons having extensive diagnostic studies and in others who have surgery, particularly that which interferes with the usual intake of food and its passage through the intestinal tract.

A study made by Bruce Bistrian, M.D., and associates earlier this year on all (131) patients in a surgical ward of an urban hospital showed that approximately 50 per cent of them were below accepted standards of nutrition.

The tests used consisted of measuring and correlating the arm muscle circumference and the serum albumin of the blood. The results showed a shocking prevalence of protein-calorie malnutrition.

In short, the nutritional support of patients was poor and not given appropriate attention. This particular hospital sample may be fairly representative of the nutritional state of similar patients in hospitals across the nation.

It is not feasible to maintain nutrition in many desperately ill patients. Apparently, many other patients, however, could be benefited by attempts to correct the nutritional deficiencies. Optimal nutrition promotes health and aids in the recovery from injury or illness.

Authorities feel that the average physician is not well trained in nutrition in medical school and postgraduate hospital residency and claim that more emphasis must be given to nutritional training in the future.

This research, which has received wide publicity, may serve — along with other similar studies which will likely follow — to stimulate more emphasis on nutrition in the continuing education of physicians and to alert them to potential deficiencies in the proper nutrition of their patients.

Q. Mr. J. E. is concerned because he cannot hold his hands steady. He is 24 years old and wants to know whether anything is wrong.

A. No one has hands that are perfectly steady, even though the tremor is not perceptible to the eye. Tremor has many causes. Here are a few examples: Recent muscular exertion, such as carrying a heavy suitcase, often causes tremor in the hand that has just been used. Wide, forceful separation of the fingers of an outstretched hand exaggerates tremor. Toxic conditions, such as an acute infection or an overactive thyroid gland, make tremor more prominent. Certain diseases of the nervous system are characterized by tremor. At your age, you may be having only a normal amount of tremor, but it would be better that you see a physician to determine the state of your health.

Q. I have heard about a so-called Zen diet. Please tell me what it is.

A. The Zen diet is a fad diet, relying almost completely on whole-grain cereals. The plants from which these cereals are made do not contain all the amino acids, which are the blocks from which we build proteins, that are essential to life.

Q. Mrs. R. M. thinks that she has read of a vaccination to prevent sugar diabetes and asks for comment.

A. Diabetes mellitus (sugar diabetes) is not preventable by vaccination but is an inherited tendency. As you may know, if insulin is required, it has to be injected into the body and is ineffective if taken by mouth, because the insulin is broken down by digestive processes. However, certain virus diseases, such as mumps, trigger the development of diabetes mellitus in certain people. Vaccinations against virus diseases reportedly lessen the chances of bringing on a diabetic condition by preventing such virus infections.

Southern Cal And Oregon Emerge As Contenders In West's Pac-8

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Except for UCLA, the Pacific-8 has been known as the "Pacifist-8" for a long time in college basketball.

No more.

UCLA continues to bully teams as usual, but now Southern Cal and Oregon have emerged as fighters to challenge for supremacy in the Far West and perhaps the country.

All three undefeated Pac-8 powers demand attention while building their combined records to 23-0 against outside teams, including these successes Saturday night:

—UCLA, the country's No. 3 team, won the Maryland Invitational Tournament at College Park with an 81-75 triumph over Maryland's fifth-ranked Terrapins.

—Southern Cal, No. 6, bombed 20th-ranked Rutgers 81-66 to advance to Monday night's finals of the Holiday Festival Tournament in New York.

—Oregon, ranked No. 19, plowed toward the championship of the Far West Classic in Portland by trimming Arizona State 80-76.

The Bruins, getting most of the headlines through the past decade, could be getting some of the headlines this year from their powerful PAC-8 colleagues.

Even with UCLA's domination out West, the Trojans' basketball program has improved steadily under Southern Cal Coach Bob Boyd's guidance and this is probably his best team. Oregon, with the likes of Ron Lee, considered the best guard in the conference, gives the Pac-8 the most balance it's had since UCLA started winning national championships in the 1960s.

North Carolina State, the team that finally ended the Bruins' fabulous dynasty in last year's NCAA playoffs, continued to look as good as ever this year with an 86-70 triumph over Pitt.

Elsewhere, among the ranked teams, No. 2 Indiana whipped Ohio State 102-71 in the semifinals of the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu; No. 8 North Carolina edged Utah 94-91; No. 9 Penn beat Florida State 100-88 in a Rainbow Classic consolation game and 10th-ranked Arizona stopped Columbia 94-73 in the consolation game of the Old Dominion Classic in Norfolk, Va.

St. John's, N.Y., upset No. 11 South Carolina 78-77 in overtime in the semifinals of the Ocean State Tourney in Providence, R.I. Providence, No. 12, moved into the finals with an 83-73 victory over Drake. Notre Dame, No. 13, lost to No. 17 Kentucky 113-96; 14th-ranked Marquette won its seventh straight Milwaukee Classic with a 73-55 success over Virginia and No. 18 Oklahoma defeated Oklahoma State in a Big Eight Tourney consolation game.

Southern Cal didn't look like the nation's sixth-ranked team until the second half Saturday night.

Losing by seven points at the half, they raced back behind Gus Williams and simply ran away from the worn-out Scarlet Knights. With Williams scoring 16 of his team-high 24 points, stealing and setting up a fistful of fast-break baskets, the Trojans made up the halftime deficit in short order and finally flashed in front for good, at 59-56, with less than eight minutes left.

Lee led Oregon with 23 points and made a game-saving play at the end to preserve the victory over Arizona State. The Ducks led 78-76 as one of their inbound passes headed out of bounds. But Lee leaped from 10 feet away, flew through the air with the greatest of ease and tipped the ball to teammate Bruce Coldren. Coldren was fouled and made two shots to lock up the game.

Oregon's victory earned the Ducks a crack in the Far West finals against Washington State, a 68-65 winner over Oregon in the semis. Art Johnson scored seven of his 13 points in the final three minutes, rallying UCLA past Maryland. Dave Meyers murdered Maryland with 32 points.

David Thompson and Phil Spence each scored 20 points to lead North Carolina State over Pitt for the Wolfpack's eighth straight victory this year.

Indiana rolled to its 10th straight victory behind Scott May's 24 points and earned a berth in Monday night's Rainbow Classic finals with Hawaii, a 75-65 winner over Villanova.

Mitch Kupchak scored 30 points and picked up 11 rebounds as North Carolina beat Utah despite a monster, 44-point performance by Ticky Burden.

Ron Haigler's 33 points led Pennsylvania over Florida. Arizona, leading by only one point with seven minutes to play, shook loose from Columbia behind Al Fleming and Bob Elliott.

Mel Utley's 20 points led St. John's shocker of South Carolina.

Joe Hassett's 22 points led Providence past Drake. In achieving their seventh straight victory, the Friars raced to a 60 lead on Hassett's three long shots and held a comfortable 46-31 advantage at the half.

Kentucky beat Notre Dame behind Kevin Grevey's 28 points in a game that was tied innumerable times and featured plenty of rough board play.

With freshman Butch Lee scoring 17 points, Marquette pulled away in the second half to beat Virginia and win its Milwaukee Classic for the seventh straight year.

Alvan Adams scored 38 points to power Oklahoma past Oklahoma State.

Iowa State beat Kansas State 82-64 and Kansas nipped Nebraska 63-62 to gain tonight's finals of the Big Eight tourney.

In the finals of the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City Sunday night, Centenary defeated Oklahoma City 91-80. Alabama, the nation's No. 7 team, defeated Houston 105-88 Sunday night in the first round of the Sugar Bowl Tournament in New Orleans. The Crimson Tide will play for the title tonight against LaSalle, a 69-64 winner over Furman. Virginia Commonwealth beat St. Peter's 86-68 and Texas A&M stopped Fairfield 62-57 to advance to the finals of the VCU Classic.

Zone-Trap Turns Game Around As UK Wallops Irish Saturday

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky used a ball-snatching zone trap to turn the game around shortly before halftime and race to a 113-96 basketball victory over Notre Dame.

The Cardinals, led by Kevin Grevey with 28 points, surged from a 34-24 deficit to a 41-36 lead in just over three minutes Saturday night and held a 50-46 advantage at the half.

"I don't think our press surprised them," said UK guard Larry Johnson. "I mean, UCLA used a press to come back against them. But I think maybe they were surprised at how effective it was."

While the Irish relied often on a full-court press against

UCLA, they hardly bothered with their press until the late stages of the game against UK. "We worked on our press of offense five days this week," Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps said after the game, "which maybe indicates that I'm not coaching our press of offense very well."

Johnson sank seven of nine field-goal tries, scored 16 points and added three rebounds and three assists in just 23 minutes. He was named the game's most valuable player despite Grevey's 28 points and the game-high 39 points of Adrian Dantley, who led the Irish.

"Larry was very deserving," said UK Coach Joe Hall. "Johnson is a kid who was not that avidly recruited, but he's a tremendously dedicated person...he's managed to develop a fine shooting touch."

Kentucky shot 59.3 per cent from the floor to 54.7 for the losers.

"In the beginning they were beating the boards to death and we were walking it up the floor and playing their game," said Grevey. "But the press got us five or six quick baskets and seemed to give us our spunk."

The Cardinals take a 7-1 record into next Saturday's contest against Louisiana State at Lexington, Ky. Notre Dame is now 4-3.

Vikings Roll To Second NFC Title With Victory Over Rams

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — In a strange, error-filled battle, the opportunistic Minnesota Vikings have rolled to their second straight National Football Conference championship and another Super Bowl appearance with a 14-10 victory over Los Angeles.

"We just made too many mistakes in opportune situations," said Rams' quarterback James Harris, who completed 13 of 23 pass attempts for 248 yards. "They played better than we did and beat us."

Minnesota, which has gained a reputation of turning opponent mistakes into championships, lost the ball four times Sunday on turnovers. However, the Rams were plagued by five turnovers and numerous tactical blunders — particularly seven penalties including an offside infraction which occurred at the Vikings' one.

Minnesota took a 7-0 lead in the second period when Jim Lash, a second-year wide receiver from Northwestern, hauled in a 29-yard scoring pass from Fran Tarkenton a step ahead of LA right cornerback Al Clark.

The Rams countered with David Ray's 27-yard field goal to cut the deficit to 7-3 by half-time.

Then, in the third quarter, a series of unlikely developments unfolded.

The Vikings' Mike Eischeid punted the ball out of bounds at the LA one. The Rams, sparked by a 73-yard pass play from Harris to wide receiver Harold Jackson on a broken play, moved to the Minnesota one. Jackson had dashed 50 yards after taking a desperation pass from Harris near midfield, and was knocked out of bounds inside the two by Viking defensive back Jeff Wright.

After the five-yard penalty set LA back to the six, Harris scrambled for four yards, but on the next play he was intercepted by Wally Hilgenberg in the end zone. Harris' pass, intended for tight end Pat Curran, was deflected by Viking defensive back Jackie Wallace.

Minnesota quickly drove 80 yards with veteran running back Dave Osborne hurdling the final yard to push the Vikings into a 14-3 advantage early in the fourth quarter.

Harris got the Rams back into the game three minutes later when he combined with Jackson on a scoring pass covering 44 yards to chop the Minnesota lead to 14-10.

However, many of the players expected to be central figures in the outcome of NFC title match had trouble throughout the game played in bright sunshine and a 31 degree temperature.

The Rams' Lawrence

McCutcheon was limited to 32 yards in a dozen carries. Minnesota's Chuck Foreman managed 80 yards in 22 carries, but fumbled four times. Tarkenton also was obviously not operating in top form, overthrowing his receivers several times and being intercepted on another poor throw.

"The Rams defense is the toughest I've ever played against," said Tarkenton. "They did a lot of things which took away a good part of our offense."

And the Rams did a lot of things to take away from their own offense.

"If you can't smile now you never will," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant.

Texas And Auburn Square Off In Gator Bowl In Jacksonville

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Texas and Auburn, a couple of teams who disdain the forward pass in favor of basic, old-fashioned, grind-it-out ground games, kick off the final wave of college football bowl games tonight when they square off in the Gator Bowl.

The meeting between the sixth-ranked Auburn Tigers and the 11th-ranked Texas Longhorns will be nationally televised by ABC with game time at 9 p.m., EST. A crowd of about 62,000, somewhat short of the 70,000 capacity, is expected at Jacksonville, Fla.

On Tuesday night Nebraska and Florida will meet in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans. Then, on New Year's Day, Penn State plays Baylor in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas and Southern California takes on Ohio State in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., with Notre Dame opposing Alabama in the Orange Bowl in Miami that night.

In Saturday's bowl action, Mississippi State nipped North Carolina 26-24 in the Sun Bowl, Vanderbilt and Texas Tech battled to a 6-6 tie in the Peach Bowl and Oklahoma State beat Brigham Young 16-6 in the Fiesta Bowl. In the Shrine All-Star Game, the East defeated the West 16-14.

The Gator Bowl game is expected to be anything but an aerial circus. Texas ranked 128th and last among major teams in passing yardage, while Auburn was 123rd.

Texas quarterbacks Marty Akins and Mike Presley have completed just 33 of 99 pass attempts. Texas compiled an 8-3 record on an attack built around the running of freshman Earl Campbell, senior Roosevelt Leaks and Akins. Campbell paced the Longhorns with 928 yards rushing, a 5.7 average per carry.

Auburn Coach Shug Jordan says he has nothing special against the pass. "We don't have a bad passing attack," he contends. "Phil Gargas and Chris Vaccarella, our quarterbacks, throw well. But we haven't had to pass that much."

Auburn fullback Sedrick McIntyre gained 863 yards on the ground, helping the Tigers to a 9-2 record. Rick Neel and Mitzi Jackson share the other backfield spot.

The Sugar Bowl matches Nebraska, 8-3, a team which depends on the passing of Dave Humm, against ground-oriented Florida, also 8-3.

Two of the premier runners in the country will be on display in the Rose Bowl, Southern Cal's Anthony Davis and Ohio State's Archie Griffin.

Griffin won the Heisman Trophy as the nation's outstanding player; Davis was the runner-up.

The Orange Bowl pits unbeaten Alabama, 11-0 and ranked No. 2, against Notre Dame, 9-2, which will be out to win its final game under outgoing Coach Ara Parseghian.

Alabama hopes that a big victory will give it the national crown.

Named For Award

BOSTON (AP) — Gabe Paul, who rebuilt the New York Yankees into a strong contender as club president, will be honored as "executive of the year" at the Boston Baseball Writers' 36th annual dinner Jan. 23.

The writers also announced during the weekend that Max Surkont will be presented the former Boston Brave award, and Jack Fadden, former Boston Red Sox trainer, will be honored for special achievement. Fadden still is trainer at Harvard University.

"If we beat Notre Dame, I think we'll be No. 1 because there ain't gonna be nobody else 12-0," says Alabama Coach Bear Bryant.

Top-rated Oklahoma is 11-0 but won't have a chance to add to that because it is on National Collegiate Athletic Association probation and ineligible for bowl play.

The final Associated Press poll for the 1974 football season will be taken after the Jan. 1 bowl games.

Bucks Hold Knicks To 6 In Third Quarter; Win 115-89

By SLEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

When Larry Costello talks to his Milwaukee Bucks about defense, he gets instant results.

Milwaukee held a 63-59 half-time lead over the New York Knicks Sunday night, but Costello wasn't happy with his team's defensive play, and he told the Bucks so during the intermission.

They responded by limiting New York to just six points in the third period, the lowest scoring quarter by any team in the National Basketball Association this season. The Bucks outscored New York 19-6 in the quarter, opened an 82-65 lead and coasted to a 115-89 triumph.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday night, the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Atlanta Hawks 110-103; the Kansas City-Omaha Kings edged the Portland Trail Blazers 103-99 and the Boston Celtics whipped the Seattle SuperSonics 121-101.

In the American Basketball Association, the Kentucky Colonels topped the Memphis Sounds 125-114, the Denver Nuggets nipped the San Antonio Spurs 124-121 and the San Diego Conquistadors beat the Spirits of St. Louis 126-114.

The Knicks shot a woeful 13 per cent in the third quarter, hitting only three of 24 field goal attempts. It was the poorest output in one quarter for the New York team since the advent of the 24-second shooting clock in 1964-65.

Forward Bob Dandridge scored 31 points for Milwaukee and center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 27 despite a sore back. The Bucks scored the last 15 points of the third quarter and the first two of the fourth to turn the game into a rout.

Cavaliers 110, Hawks 103
Jim Chones scored 25 points and grabbed 15 rebounds to carry Cleveland past Atlanta. Bobby Smith and Dick Snyder added 20 points apiece for the Cavs, who raised their record to 18-13.

Kings 103, Blazers 99
Kings backcourt men Jimmy Walker and Nate Archibald scored five points apiece as KC-Omaha outscored Portland 12-2 in the final four minutes for a comeback victory. Archibald led all scorers with 31 points and Walker finished with 19.

Celtics 121, Sonics 101
Center Dave Cowens scored 26 points and grabbed 19 rebounds, and 6-foot-6 guard Don Chaney added 19 points and 15 rebounds for the Celtics, who now trail the Buffalo Braves by just one game in the NBA's Atlantic Division.

Colonels 125, Sounds 114
Center Artis Gilmore, with a game-high 33 points, sparked a fourth-quarter rally for Kentucky. The Colonels, trailing 95-

93 after three periods, tied the game at 99-99, then outscored the Sounds 16-4 over the next five minutes.

Q's 126, Spirits 114
Travis Grant and Bo Lamar teamed for 61 points to carry the Q's to victory, Grant getting 33 points and Lamar 28.

Nuggets 124, Spurs 121
Denver boosted its record to 31-5, best in pro basketball, and raised its lead in the ABA West to 11½ games over second-place San Antonio as Ralph Simpson scored 25 points and Mike Green and Mack Calvin each added 21.

Steelers Heading For First Championship Game

OAKLAND (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers are heading toward territory in which they've never trod before.

Oh, they've been in New Orleans before. In fact, they've won all three games they've played there. But never in their 42-year history have they played in a National Football League championship.

But on Jan. 12 in New Orleans, one of Art Rooney's dreams comes true. His Steelers will be playing for all the marbles.

The other dream, of course, is to win them. To do that, the Steelers will have to beat the Minnesota Vikings. But for now, beating Oakland is satisfaction enough for one of pro football's grand old men.

"I feel like a big shot," the subdued, twinkly-eyed 73-year-old president of the Steelers said as he puffed on a cigar, savoring both it and the 24-13 victory over the Raiders in Sunday's American Conference championship.

And how would it have felt to accompany his players on the plane back to Pittsburgh had they lost? "It would have been like taking the body of a loved one back home," he said.

But his loved ones—like a doting, patient parent, Rooney suffered through 39 years of failure with them before they ever played their first playoff game — are very much alive and kicking.

In fact, they kicked Oakland's rushing game in the teeth, kicked apart Ken Stabler's dreams of a second straight miracle comeback and kicked the Raiders out of the playoff game they were favored to win.

If there really is a mystical force called destiny, Rooney will get his championship in two weeks. His Steelers already believe in it.

"It was meant to be. We were meant to win this thing," quarterback Terry Bradshaw said after his cool, precise signal calling and passing carried Pittsburgh to the summit of Super Bowl IX. "We knew we were going to win this game ... we came here with the confidence to win."

Bradshaw threw the ball only 17 times — and he didn't even have to do that. Not with Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier behind him, waiting to take the ball and run it down the Raiders' throats.

Harris bulldozed his way through the astoundingly malleable Oakland line 29 times for 111 yards and two touchdowns. And when the Raiders managed to stop him — which was rare — Bleier was right there, adding 98 yards on 18 carries.

Even Bradshaw got into the ground game, rushing three times for 15 yards. And astonishingly, his total was more than half the total yardage gained by entire Oakland running corps.

Twenty-one times the Raiders punched into Pittsburgh's front line of defense. The result was a meager 29 yards, a new low for an AFC title game.

"They gave us nothing on the ground," Oakland Coach John Madden understated. "Our passing was sufficient but we just couldn't get the run going. I can't remember when our ground game was shut down that effectively ... to win, you've got to have a mixture on offense. We were able to call the mixture, but we couldn't make it go."

And Pittsburgh's Mean Joe Greene, the mammoth defensive tackle who was supposed to wreak havoc on Stabler's passing game, observed: "We played for the run. We played them man-to-man up front. We felt we could beat them up there." And, with a grin creasing his sweat-drenched face, he added, "I guess we did."

With Oakland going nowhere

Crockett To Be Honored

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Speedster Ivory Crockett will be honored with a John E. Wray award at the St. Louis Baseball Writers' annual dinner Jan. 27.

Crockett, who attended high school in Webster Groves, Mo., and college at Southern Illinois University, owns the world record of 9.0 seconds in the 100-yard dash.

The Wray award, named for a former sports editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, is given for achievement in sports other than baseball.

on the ground, the Raiders had to ride Stabler's left arm, the same arm that had thrown for 298 yards and four touchdowns in their pulsating victory over Miami a week earlier.

For a while, it appeared he had plenty of ammo left for the Steelers. The teams started the second half tied 3-3 (George Blanda had kicked a 40-yard field goal for Oakland in the first period and Roy Gerela had booted one from 23 yards away in the second) and Stabler went to work, completing four straight passes, the last one a 388-yard bomb to Cliff Branch that put the Raiders on top 10-3.

Undaunted, the Steelers took the ensuing kickoff and blew the Raiders apart with a 61-yard, nine-play drive that ended with Harris crashing through the middle for eight yards and a touchdown of the first play of the final quarter.

"That was the turning point, when we went the length of the field and scored after they'd scored," said Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll. And linebacker Jack Ham added: "When we came right back, got that touchdown, and got right back in the game, that's when I think we got our momentum really geared up."

That wasn't really the turning point, though. It came about 1½ minutes later, when Stabler put the ball in the air again. It was intended for Charlie Smith. It was intercepted by Ham, who ran it back 24 yards to the Oakland nine. A few plays later, Bradshaw clotheslined a pass up the middle and Lynn Swann leaped to gather it in for a six-yard touchdown play and a 17-10 lead.

Back again came Stabler, unloading a 42-yard pass to Branch in a drive that moved the ball to the Pittsburgh six — but no further. The Raiders had to settle for Blanda's 24-yard field goal, cutting the edge to 17-13.

Suddenly, there was less than two minutes to play with the Raiders trailing by less than a touchdown, just as they had against Miami. And there was Stabler cranking up his arm again. But there was no pot of gold at the end of his rainbow passing this time. Just another interception, the third of the game.

Cornerback J.T. Thomas nabbed it at the Pittsburgh 39 and brought it to the Oakland 24. Two plays later, with a minute to go, Harris applied the coup de grace, barreling 21 yards for the final touchdown.

"I thought we'd still beat the Steelers until that last interception," said running back Clarence Davis, the hero of the victory over the Dolphins with his last-minute touchdown catch. And guard George Muehler philosophized: "You can't come back with a few seconds left to win too many weeks in a row."

Stabler finished with 271 yards in passing — 176 more than Bradshaw — and nothing to say about it. "I don't want to talk about the game ... I have nothing to say," he kept repeating in the gloom of the Oakland locker room.

MOTORWAYS 55 mph law to be stiffened?

American motorists are slow to change their driving habits unless the government gives them a nudge, even in these times of threatened new gasoline shortages and price hikes.

So the Department of Transportation is drafting a bill for the new Congress convening in January. It would penalize states which fail to enforce the national 55-mile-per-hour speed limit.

The present above-55 ban expires next June 30. The department's idea is to include in a renewal bill a provision that states which don't halt enough speeders be deprived of some federal highway construction funds until their speed law enforcement performance takes on some vigor.

The provision would be a potent political weapon in the government's battle to hold down speed, save lives and conserve auto fuel. The stature of congressmen — senators and House members alike — is gauged partly on their ability to bring their states millions annually in highway funds.

John Barnum, deputy secretary of transportation, explains his agency's antispread move this way:

The 55-m.p.h. limit has brought down traffic deaths and injuries dramatically, improving fuel consumption at the same time.

It has worked to lower speeds in cities, too, where accidents have dropped 22 per cent since the national limit was imposed. Motorists somehow are driving at slower speeds in cities after they leave the freeways. The freeway accident toll, meanwhile, has declined 26 per cent.

Barnum says the greatest value of the 55-m.p.h. limit is the resulting speed uniformity on most freeways.

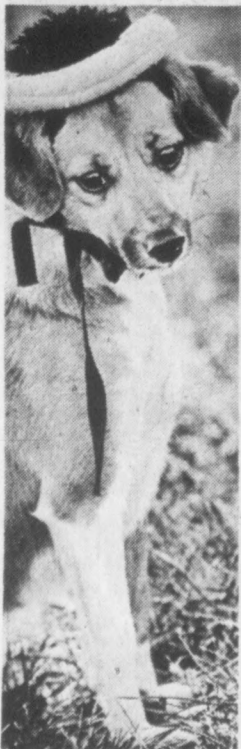

"We no longer find one motorist driving 80 m.p.h. and another 55 or 60," he points out. "It's those great differences in speeds which used to cause most of the crashes."

Yet some states, he concedes, aren't enforcing the 55-m.p.h. law with enough enthusiasm. These are the ones at which the highway fund withholding law would be directed.

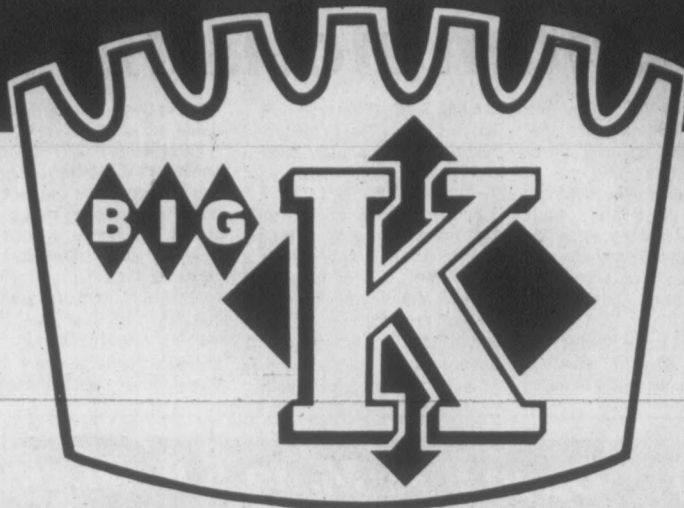

(In all fairness to high-population states, some lack enough highway patrol personnel to keep up with all the speeders.)

The trucking industry, which complained the loudest for a time about the 55-m.p.h. law, has subsided to a great extent, Barnum says, because truck operators have found out the lesser speeds conserve high-priced fuel and cut truck maintenance costs.

Now the industry's legislative campaign is turned toward congressional approval of heavier, longer trucks so they can haul more goods. So far Congress has taken no action on bills to achieve these industry goals.

Kentucky First To Have Agency To Locate Coal

FRANKFORT, Ky. — The Kentucky State Police are attacking the increasing death rate among motorcyclists by introducing a slide presentation stressing motorcycle safety.

While automobile traffic deaths have been on the decline in Kentucky, the death rate among motorcyclists has doubled every year since 1971. State police officials expect the 1974 rate to exceed last year's, which was an all time high of 62. Forty-six bikers have died on Kentucky roads through this September.

Injuries also are increasing. Through the same period this year, more than 350 reported injuries also have been attributed to motorcycle accidents.

Lt. Ernest Bivins, head of the state police's safety education program, attributed the higher number of deaths to various factors. Perhaps the most notable, he said, is the increasing number of motorcycles on the road. There are more than 50,000 registered motorcycles in the state, according to official estimates. Sponsored by the Kentucky Independent Life Insurance Group, the slide presentation is aimed at educating beginning bikers. Many of the points made throughout the slides and accompanying script can be learned through experience, "but by that time it may be too late," said Bivins.

As with automobile drivers, the motorcycle safety film stresses defensive cycle riding. It points out differences between riding a motorcycle and driving a car, "an obvious point many people seem to ignore or forget," Bivins said.

The presentation also gives tips on the difference between city and country riding. To reduce injury in the event of an accident, the need for a helmet (required by law) and proper clothing also is stressed.

The slide programs have been sent to all state police posts. Driver education classes, motorcycle dealers and persons interested in using the materials are urged to contact the nearest state police post or Lt. Bivins at the Frankfort post.

Financial Manual Now Available To Officials

FRANKFORT, Ky. — A new manual to guide county officials in the handling of public funds, including those received through federal revenue sharing, is being distributed by the Office for Local Government of the Executive Department for Finance and Administration.

Prepared by the Urban Studies Center of the University of Louisville, the new manual was made public by David Magill, state-local finance officer for OLG, at a Frankfort meeting of the state-wide County Officials Compensation Board.

The manual, "Uniform System of Accounts for Kentucky Counties," explains and analyzes the requirements of Kentucky's revised statutes and other regulations that govern the accounting and budgeting of county funds. It recognizes and responds to the growing complexity of county government and the increasing demands of citizens for services.

The practical approaches of the manual are noted in a foreword: "The affairs of county government have increased tremendously with revenue sharing and the demands of our citizens for municipal-type services in outlying areas. In all probability, the activities of county government will continue to increase. Adequate convenient financial information is essential to the sound planning and effective management needed to keep up with the demand for services."

The primary thrust of the new manual—for which Thomas Friedlob, CPA, was the principal author and Agnes D. Livingood the project coordinator—is to give county officials simplified and standardized techniques for developing the financial information necessary for sound planning and effective management. Not only does the new manual incorporate the techniques and processes for handling general revenue sharing, it also explores new bookkeeping equipment and accounting systems. Among examples used are new computer-based systems developed for the Kentucky River Area Development District.

Further information about the manual can be obtained from David Magill, the Office of Local Government, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or from Ms. Agnes D. Livingood, Urban Studies Center, University of Louisville, located at Gardencourt on Alta Vista Road, Louisville, Kentucky 40205.

State Police Urge Motorcycle Safety

FRANKFORT, Ky. — How much coal is under Western Kentucky? A six-man team from the Kentucky Geological Survey—the state's geologic research agency—intends to find out. The geologists are conducting a two-year investigation of coal resources in the 14 counties of the Western Kentucky coal fields. Their goal is to map coal deposits in that area accurately and to determine the most efficient use for that resource.

"Kentucky is the largest coal-producing state. It's only fitting that we determine what we have and what we can do with it," said Gilbert Smith, project director. Smith, who heads the coal research section of the survey, said that the program will add accuracy to existing knowledge about Kentucky coal.

"Existing maps tell us the location of coal deposits, but this is incomplete data," Smith said. "We're attempting to measure the amount and the quality of the coal and determine the likelihood of its recovery from the earth."

The study, part of the energy research package funded by the 1974 General Assembly, will also investigate the feasibility of using Western Kentucky's high-sulfur coal in gasification programs. Environmental regulations have restricted the use of this coal, which produces sulfur dioxide when burned. However, Smith said, it's ideally suited for the coal gasification process, in which coal is burned in a closed receptacle. But before such plants can be established, geologists must determine that enough coal exists to support a gasification program.

The members of the survey's coal research team are now mapping the 14 counties in the region. Using visual examination and drilling data, they estimate the thickness and quality of coal deposits and investigate the associated rock. They then can evaluate a deposit's mining suitability and estimate its recoverability.

After the field work is done, the geologists will compile their data, plot it on maps and charts and make measurements on reserve data maps. Tables of figures will be published for each county in the coal basin. After six months of work, the geologists have mapped half of the 14-county area. Smith estimates that another eight months will be spent in the field, gathering data through examination and drilling procedures. Completion of the project and publication of the data are scheduled for July, 1976.

Smith hopes his agency will receive funding for a similar study of Eastern Kentucky's coal reserves. "No state has ever attempted a project like this one," he explained. Most research about coal location is done privately by industry sources.

Several other states have expressed interest in duplicating the Kentucky project.

State Road Crews Work At Clearing Away Snow And Ice

FRANKFORT, Ky. — It's 7 o'clock Monday morning. You have just fought your way to your car through six inches of snow and wonder how you will drive to work in it. To your surprise, when you reach the main route, you find it is clear and traffic is moving at a close-to-normal rate. The State Highway garage in your county has been at work since the snow started accumulating.

George Asbury, director of the Division of Maintenance of the Department of Transportation, has had his office open since the first warning of a storm flashed across the division's National Weather Service teletype. Asbury proceeds to send alerts to all the district offices in the immediate path of the storm. The district offices, in turn, relay reports on the local conditions to Asbury's office as the storm advances.

Experience has shown Asbury several routes the storms take upon entering Kentucky. The heaviest storms arrive in the southwest section of the state from the Memphis, Tennessee area. The storms usually advance along Kentucky's southern border and then turn north into the central section or the mountain regions of the state. A number of ice storms enter from the northwest direction along the Ohio River, then sweep across the state.

When there is a chance of snowfall in Kentucky, a "night watchman" is sometimes placed on duty at each of the county garages that may receive some accumulation. He is kept informed of the condition of the county's highways by the local police departments and, when possible, by Bureau of Highways toll road centers. If there is no night shift at the county garage, police will notify the foreman at his residence.

According to Asbury, the road crews have a definite pattern in their cleanup procedures. Steep hills with major traffic, dangerous intersections, parkways and interstates are attended to first. The work then shifts to U. S. highways, such as routes 68 and 27. The crews will work overtime if necessary in these areas. After the major arteries are cleared, cleanup crews begin work on other roads in regular work shifts.

Case Stemming From Mine Blast To Be Scheduled

HYDEN, Ky. (AP) — A criminal case stemming from an Eastern Kentucky mine explosion that killed 38 men four years ago will be scheduled for trial in federal court at Lexington as soon as the docket permits, an assistant prosecutor, Elton Webb, told the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Criminal and civil lawsuits filed after the Dec. 30, 1970 explosion at Hyden have remained dormant in the courts up until now, while many families of the dead miners struggle to live on low incomes and food stamps, the newspaper reported in a copyrighted story Sunday.

Some people predicted the mountain families would become rich when multi-million-dollar lawsuits were filed in their behalf.

Federal charges were filed in June 1971 alleging negligence by the mine owners, and four lawsuits have been filed on behalf of surviving families, but none has reached a jury.

The criminal case against the mine owners has been awaiting U.S. Supreme Court action which took place last week.

The high court issued a decision last Monday upholding a lower court's dismissal of one count against the mine owners, clearing the way for trial on the 23 remaining counts.

Immediately after the disaster at the Finley Coal Co. mine, clothing, food and money for the dead miners' families flowed into Hyden and Leslie County, but many families say they've received little aid since shortly after the explosion.

Lester Burns, a Somerset attorney representing 26 survivors in a civil suit against the federal government, the mining company, and mine owner Charles Finley, said the survivors "have suffered and endured every hardship known to a modern-day poor man."

A Louisville attorney, Cecil Davenport, who represents 11 survivors in a similar suit, says his clients have had a difficult time making ends meet and keeping their children in school on meager incomes.

And 11 of the families interviewed by the newspaper agreed that soaring prices and the scarcity of jobs outside the mines were putting more strain on budgets already stretched to the limit.

"It's pressing me mighty bad just to pay my bills," said Mrs. Mae Hibbard, whose mine foreman husband, Walter, died in the disaster. "I was just wondering this morning now I'd make it until payday."

Mrs. Hibbard, 44, who owns a home in Manchester and has four children in school, receives $550.50 a month from Social Security and workman's compensation, much of which pays hospital bills.

She said she has been in the hospital four times since the disaster.

When Armond Wagers died in the explosion, he left a wife and six children, two of whom are now married. His wife, Elvia Wagers, is rearing the other four, all currently in school, on Social Security payments totaling $331.50 a month.

Alford Gibson's widow, Emily Gibson of Ulysses Creek near Hyden, must live on an income of $96 every two weeks from workman's compensation insurance.

Mrs. Gibson, 56, said she is too old to find a job, but cannot receive Social Security payments until she is 60 unless she becomes legally "disabled."

After paying monthly insurance premiums she usually has about $100 left for food and other necessities, she said, but she recently had to borrow money for coal to heat her house.

Survivors represented in two civil suits filed after the disaster stand to gain $126,000 to $500,000 each, but the suits are still pending in U.S. District Court in Lexington.

The 11 families said the only lump sum benefits so far have been $500 each in Social Security burial benefits, about $2,000 each from a benefit performance in Louisville by country music star Loretta Lynn, and about $800 each from a special miners relief fund headed by Clay Circuit Judge Clay M. Bishop.

Most received little cash from the miners fund because funeral bills were paid from each share. A few have received workman's compensation awards to build houses.

Entertainment Notables Attend Benny's Funeral

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Entertainment notables representing eras from vaudeville to television said farewell to Jack Benny, the humorist whom pal Bob Hope called "a national treasure."

Sunday's turnout was one of the largest and most emotional in recent years for a funeral of a show business personality. Hope's usual composure broke as he delivered a tribute, interspersed with references to old Benny punch lines.

State Earns First $2 Million From Interest On Funds

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state has earned its first $2 million in interest from the first year of overnight and over-the-weekend investment of state funds according to state Treasurer Drexell Davis.

The new program, begun last year by Davis and the state Department of Finance, involves investing a major part of Kentucky's operating cash balance in short term U.S. Treasury bills overnight and on weekends.

"In effect, the state is earning substantial interest income overnight while its citizens sleep," Davis said.

"For the first time, Kentucky is earning interest regularly on its operating cash balances," he added.

Davis recently announced that the state's compensating bank balance has been lowered by $5 million, and that amount has been freed each night for investment.

"This could earn the state as much as an additional $350,000 next year," Davis said.

"The overnight investment of state funds is another reason Kentuckians can be confident that their funds are being invested safely," he said.

Reports Shows One-Fourth Of Teens Drink While Driving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Half of the nation's high school students drink alcohol at least once a month and more than half of those who drink have driven at least once while intoxicated, according to a study conducted for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The agency's administrator, Dr. James Gergory, called the report alarming and noted the study showed most teenagers who drink do so away from home, a fact that may account for the high incidence in the number who drink and drive.

More than 56,000 persons died on the nation's highway's last year and more than 41,000 persons have died in traffic accidents during the first 11 months of this year. Studies have shown that alcohol plays some role in about half of the nation's highway deaths, a spokesman for NHTSA said.

The drinking study was done by Grey Advertising of New York as part of a two year grant from NHTSA to develop an advertising campaign to persuade problem drinkers to cut their driving. The study found that the percentage of high school drinkers is about the same as the percentage of adults who drink.

Half the students surveyed said they went to drinking parties at least once a month. The study, released Thursday, found that 61 per cent of those who drank admitted they got drunk at least once a month.

Gregory said the study was alarming because it showed a surprising number of high school students "do a significant amount of their drinking in driving-connected situations."

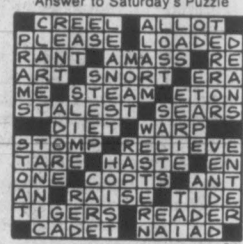

"What is new is the discovery of the degree to which high school youth are adopting the same drinking and driving habits as adults," he said.

Diagnostic Clinic To Be Held At Mayfield Church

The Mayfield-Graves County Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disabilities will sponsor a diagnostic clinic for children with specific learning disabilities on January 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, 1975 at the First United Methodist Church, 214 South Eighth Street, Mayfield.

Workshops will be held on the 7th and 8th to train parents and teachers to work with the dyslexic child.

Dr. Sister Mary Dore, research consultant of the Charles L. Shedd Reading Research Foundation, Lafayette, Louisiana, and the research staff will be testing these children.

Dyslexia produces reading, writing, spelling and math disabilities; poor ability to organize work; variability in performance; very short attention span and other characteristics which affect successful participation in school. Researchers in this field estimate 10 to 20 percent of the total population is dyslexic in varying degrees.

The Mayfield-Graves County Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disabilities has been in operation since 1971.

George W. Dowdy, director, states that over 1000 students have received remediation through Saturday programs, in-school programs or 5 day schools designed for this physical handicap.

Anyone wishing an appointment for their child is asked to contact Mrs. Joe S.

Cole, Jr., 502-247-1554 or Mrs. James H. Williamson, 502-247-5846.

Dexter, Missouri Elementary School, St. John the Baptist, Red Bud, Illinois and Poplar Bluff - Elementary School, Poplar Bluff, Missouri are having their students diagnosed after their school psychologists screened the students who had average to very high IQ but were not able to read, write or spell and some who were very low in math.

Other students from the four state area will be in Mayfield to be tested also. Parents will be here also in order to have a conference with Dr. Sister Mary Dore. These schools will be starting the Alphabetic, Phonetic, Linguistic Approach to Literacy in their school systems in January using para-professional volunteer tutors under the direction of the Reading Research Foundation.

George W. Dowdy of the Mayfield Graves County Association for SPMD, director of the Charles L. Shedd APSL Research Academy and Montessori Kindercare in Mayfield and Cape Girardeau In-School program, St. Thomas More school in Paducah and Saturday programs in Cape Girardeau, Red Bud, Illinois, and Cairo, Illinois, will be the advisor to the school systems.

Nursing Home Where Two Died Of Malnutrition On Approved 'List'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Two men who died of malnutrition in a small residential nursing home must have heard about the home through the state, a Kentucky official said.

Social Insurance Commissioner Gail S. Huecker said Frank Faircloth, 76, and Louis Kramer, 67, "had to have been given the name" of the home as part of a state-approved list given pensioners receiving state funds.

An arraignment was scheduled today in criminal court for the operators of Morris' Mini-Home on Torrington Road, where Faircloth and Kramer were found dead Saturday night.

Bob Yates, press relations officer for the Jefferson County Police, said the bodies were taken to General Hospital, where an autopsy revealed both men had died of malnutrition.

The operators of the home, Donald Ray Morris, 35, and his wife, Loretta, 30, were arrested Sunday and charged with involuntary manslaughter.

The only other residents of the home were two women. Yates said one, who was bed-ridden, was taken to Memorial Hospital, and the other was taken to the home of her sister.

He said police took "steps to correct what they felt was the deplorable situation at the home by contacting the necessary officials with local and state health agencies."

The Morris were lodged in the Jefferson County Jail and bond was set at $1,000 each.

Commissioner Huecker said both men had been receiving state grants to supplement Social Security payments. Police said neither appeared to have

Sirica To Instruct Jurors To Disregard Nixon Pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica is going to tell jurors in the Watergate cover-up trial that the pardon granted Richard M. Nixon should not be factor in their deliberations.

"Neither the pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon nor any other case or extraneous matters should have any effect on your deliberations or your verdict," Sirica said in the instructions he planned to read to the jury today.

After hearing the judge's instructions on the legal issues in the case, the nine women and three men who have listened to 11 weeks of arguments and testimony will begin the task of deciding the guilt or innocence of the five defendants.

The long trial was the climax of the scandal that forced Nixon to resign the presidency less monwealth has earned him esteem and trust which now carry him to the United States Senate where he will continue to voice our hopes for the American dream and to work for the improvement of the quality of life for every citizen in our land."

Carroll said Sen. and Mrs. Ford's "gracious and dignified presence in Frankfort more than prepares them for the work upon which they are about to enter."

"We know that they carry our best interests with them to Washington, as we carry theirs in our hearts," he said. "We pray God's grace upon them in the days that lie ahead."

Carroll said he would appoint the previously announced new state secretaries and commissioners on Jan. 3, the original date for the switch in offices of Governor and U.S. Senator.

One exception was to appoint William Scent, Hopkinsville, as Commissioner of Finance and Administration Saturday. That was necessary because James O. King resigned that post Saturday along with Ford.

Those to be appointed Jan. 3 are: John Stanley Hoffman, Henderson, as secretary of National Resources and Environmental Protection; C. Leslie Dawson, a Hardin County native, as secretary of Human Resources; Bruce Montgomery, Danville, Parks Commissioner; John Roberts, Frankfort, Highway Commissioner, and Russell McClure, Morehead, a deputy finance commissioner.

Carroll's office appointments include Terry McBrayer, Greenup, chief executive officer and Jack Hall, Lexington, and Roy Stevens, Frankfort, as chief administrative assistants. John Nichols, Frankfort, already chief administrative assistants. John Nichols, Frankfort, already has been appointed his press secretary.

Ford will begin the full term as senator to which he was elected last month on Jan. 3. Cook's resignation served to give Ford seniority over all the newly elected U.S. Senators except Ohio's John Glenn, who already has taken office.

Three More Top CIA Officials Announce Early Retirement Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three more top officials in the CIA's counterintelligence division are stepping down in the midst of a reported policy dispute and allegations that the agency was involved in domestic spying.

Along with the resignation of counterintelligence chief James J. Angleton, the three departures leave vacant the top command of the division, which is known to have disagreed sharply with CIA Director William E. Colby over detente with the Soviet Union and Colby's public discussions of agency activities. "Colby is using this to clean house," a well-informed source said of the departures.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Angleton, named in published reports as the overseer of the alleged domestic spy operation, once served on an interagency panel that reported directly to the White House on the threat of domestic demonstrations and disturbances.

The so-called Intelligence Evaluation Committee was headed by Robert C. Mardian, former assistant attorney general and now a defendant in the Watergate cover-up trial. The sources said the committee was assisted by a staff which included Richard Ober, who has been named as the man who ran the CIA's alleged domestic surveillance activities on a day-to-day basis.

Angleton has denied any involvement in illegal domestic spying. Ober, once an aide to Angleton and now on the National Security Council staff, has declined to comment.

In addition to Angleton, 57, whose resignation was requested by Colby 10 days ago, Raymond Rocca, 57, No. 2 man in the counterintelligence division, Newton S. Miller, 48, chief of operations, and William J. Hood, 54, executive officer, are also leaving the agency at the end of this month. Rocca, Miller and Hood confirmed Sunday they were stepping down, but declined to discuss their reasons.

The CIA's mandatory retirement age is 65 for most of its employees, but the agency requires those who have served overseas to retire at age 60 and urges others to do so as well.

One source said Miller had been Angleton's choice to ultimately succeed him as counterintelligence chief.

A source who worked with all four officials said their decisions were influenced in part by added benefits available to government employees who retire before the end of the year. However, the source said allegations of domestic surveillance and a long standing policy dispute with Colby were the major factors in the retirements of Rocca and Miller.

It was learned that Angleton's name was mentioned in one draft of the 50-page report on the alleged domestic spying that Colby has forwarded to President Ford. Details of the reference to Angleton could not be determined.

A well-informed source said the counterintelligence staff disagreed "totally" with Colby over interpretation of events in the Soviet bloc and was more suspicious than higher policy-makers about the Soviet Union's expressed desire for detente.

Angleton and his staff were said by this source to believe that the agency was being destroyed by Colby's disclosures of agency activities, including CIA involvement in Chile and agency contacts with U.S. journalists abroad.

The source added that the counterintelligence staff objected in general to Colby's policy of increased public appearances, particularly his debate earlier this year with Daniel Ellsberg at a panel sponsored by a research group critical of the CIA.

Hood was identified by several sources as head of the agency's operations in New York City during the early 1970's. The New York Times reported in its Sunday edition that as many as 25 CIA agents spied on antiwar activists and other militants in New York during the late 1960's and early 1970's. Hood called the report "absolute nonsense."

On Sunday, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said on ABC News' "Issues and Answers" that he had learned from what he called very reliable sources of his own that the CIA did conduct surveillance, break-ins and wiretaps while spying on American citizens in this country.

Proxmire called for establishment of "an independent special prosecutor with subpoena powers who will prosecute every illegal action by CIA agents, past or present." He also said Congress should amend the act creating the CIA to clear up any ambiguity over the prohibition against domestic operations by the agency.

Time magazine reported this week that Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas and three congressmen were targets of CIA surveillance during the 1960's.

As for the late Sen. Edward Long of Missouri, Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., and former Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher of New Jersey, also named by Time as targets of CIA spying, the source said, "We wouldn't have the slightest interest." Pepper said that Colby had called him Sunday to assure him that the CIA was not keeping a file on him.

Four-Year-Old Dies Following

Accidental Shooting

A Jonathan Creek child was pronounced dead on arrival at Western Baptist Hospital in Paducah Sunday after suffering a fatal gunshot wound in an accident at his home.

McCracken County Coroner John Barker said Kenneth C. Davis, age four, was fatally wounded by a .22 calibre pistol. Barker said young Davis' father, Kenneth, and his grandfather, Richard, were going hunting, and the pistol accidentally fell off a shelf and discharged, striking young Davis in the abdomen.

Barker ruled the death an "unavoidable accident."

Funeral services will be held tonight at seven p.m. at the Filbeck-Cann Funeral Home in Benton. From there the body will be sent to Mystic, Conn., for burial. Rev. William Beasley will officiate at the funeral today.
