WHAT IS AN AMERICAN?

I am an American. And the only way in which I differ from my fellow citizens is that I am physically able to defend my country and the free institutions for which I stand.

But what is an American? It was upon this question alone, above all others, that the framers of our Constitution labored. They cared but little for the form of government which they were to design, and for the powers which they were to assign to the various departments; but the form of society which was to be created, the class of beings whom they were to make up the community of citizens, that was the all-important subject of their deliberations. And it is that spirit animates the free institutions of this nation.

It has been forecast that war is inevitable. But it is to be hoped that the coming conflict will not only be lessened, but that it may be averted. The world is groaning under the weight of a war not yet begun. If it were a war of extermination, it would be a war of extermination for all.

Each man, each woman, each child, must be ready to take his stand and to fight for his country and his home. And it is the duty of every citizen to be prepared to defend his country, and to defend the free institutions which he loves.

The vital thing is to keep cars moving. The first thing is to keep the lines open and the trains running. The second is to keep the coal on the cars. The third is to keep the food on the table. The fourth is to keep the money in circulation. The fifth is to keep the peace at home. The sixth is to keep the soldiers at their posts.

Behind the Men Behind the Guns

More than 1,200 Southern Bell employees now proudly wear the uniform of America's armed forces.

Behind them, aloy doing their part, 20,300 especially trained female telephone workers, efficiently serve their country's cause.

Not in uniform—but engaged in a unique war effort—continuously maintain the efficiency of the far-

work of a country faced with its airborne enemy.

Not without these loyal

workers at home neglected

the day of every American.

They have already bought

445,000 war bonds—

moratorium valuation, and are subscribing over $1,200 a month for every additional

bonds—evidence that these thousands of men are every way "behind the men
