News in brief

RELAXED WORKERS

Burglars who broke into Anderton's Oyster Bar at 151 Madison last week, not only cracked the safe making off with $1,100 but showed they had good taste by smoking a couple 50-cent cigars while doing their work. Restaurant officials found a hole chopped in the roof and cigar butts where the intruders worked.

TORMENTOR SHOT

Last week a 23-year old man spent a few days at John Gaston Hospital after he was shot twice in the leg as a result of what had reportedly started as a traffic argument.

Larry Hurst told police he and another man argued after the second man had attempted to cut him off on the road. Apparently Hurst decided not to let the argument end when the man left the scene and followed him home.

The man accused of doing the shooting was quoted after his arrest as saying Hurst had followed him home after the argument and tried to break in. Hurst says he was shot in the street, not inside the man's home.

WALLACE STOPS IN

Alabama Gov. George Wallace, visiting Memphis late last week, addressed a crowd of over 500 at the Sheraton-Peabody, throwing punches at everyone from President Nixon and the Justice Dept. for their stands on busing, to the Democratic party for not knowing which way to go.

ARRESTS MOUNT

Memphis police reported capturing four more suspects in their "business" scheme which was announced last week. The new arrests were listed as James Kelly, 23, of 1600 Keating; Ralph Jenkins, 21, of 1705 Delano; David McLain, 21, of 2454 Durby Road and Virginia Irene Thorn, 33, who gave an address on Jackson, which residents of the building deny.

CHARGES DISMISSED

Charges brought against four persons in support of Angela Davis were dropped last week by City Court Judge Bernie Weinman.

Micheal J. Correll, 23, Byron Townsend, 24, Clyde M. Clemons, 23 and E. F. Libby 23, on Highland and Southern as they collected signatures for a petition to free Angela. They reported they had not been told previously by police to move on, so Judge Weinman dismissed the case saying the police had failed to "carry the burden of proof".

ARREST DESERTER

FBI agents arrested Coleman Dean, Jr., at home, 1286 Texas Court last week on a charge of desertion from the Marine Corps. Dean was charged with leaving his post at Camp LeJeune, N. C. on March 25.

There were mixed reactions in the Memphis and Shelby County area last week to the ruling made by U. S. District Court Judge Baily Brown, on the County School Desegregation order.

Most of the controversy concerns the county school case. After a week-long hearing, Judge Brown entered his desegregation order on August 11 which affects the current school year.

Attorneys for the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund, called the order vicious and asked for an immediate reversal.

The motion filed by the Legal Defense Fund in the Sixth Circuit Court stated: "Once again the district court has deferred to the preference of the Shelby County Board of Education, and once again the predictable results is that Shelby County is not required to dismantle its dual school system . . .

"The district court's failure to order implementation of the most effective plan in the record referring to the Justice Department's plan) necessarily raise the question, 'Why?' . . . The one true answer to the question is transparent in one aspect of the district court's decision which is consistent, sardonic, vicious and hostile to black plaintiffs and the organization (NAACP), which has supported them for over eight years of largely fruitless but expensive litigation seeking to secure for them the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States."

Mr. Joseph Simmons, principal of White's Chapel Elementary School, 3966 Sewanee Rd., which is being affected by the order, said white students who live in the county from Westwood Elementary School (city school) were being transferred to his school.

When asked about the reaction of the white parents whose children were changing schools, he stated, "I think they realize that we have a school here just as they do at Westwood, and the only difference is their children will have to catch the bus to come here, rather than walk across the city line into the Westwood Area."

"The enrollment is off," Simmons said, "because the parents of the children didn't get the message in time about the place of enrollment."

Mr. Simmons added that the court order directed them to move 191 white children from the Westwood area. He said he didn't think their were 191 white children in the area because so many white parents had been moving out. "We will get 191 students, and even more, but they will not all be white."

The black principal added that, "so far there haven't been any outbreaks of violence, and overall I think the black-white relationship here has been going very well."

Plan candidate hearings

LeMoyne ICVE to host parents

A question and answer period designed to enlighten the public as to the issues involved and what perspective candidates intend on doing about them has been planned by the Inner-City Voter Education committee.

All five mayoral candidates, and those seeking positions on the city council and school board in districts, four, six and seven will be on hand.

The session, to be held in conjunction with "Parents Day" at LeMoyne-Owen college on Sept. 11 at 2:00 p.m., is designed to give the parents as well as students of these districts a chance to find out "who's for real, and who isn't."

"We feel that since we have played a large part in getting many of the 18 to 21 year olds at LeMoyne-Owen registered, this would be an opportune time to meet and question the candidates," stated Miss Minerva Johnson, chairman of the organization. "We also feel this will help in our attempt to close the generation gap — with parents and students together discussing issues along with the candidates. Not only will this be an educational effort for the students, but for parents as well. Many times the public has been forced to vote for candidates they never got a chance to actually see and talk with."

The Inner-City Voter Education Committee has been registering 18 to 21 year olds since last April and holding monthly workshops to encourage young people to register and also to provide the facts needed to cast an informed ballot. The committee to date has been responsible for approximately 5,300 newly franchised voters names being added to the eligible voter registrar.

"We feel that Judge Horton and many other officials at LeMoyne have certainly been influential in helping us to attain many of the accomplishments we have made," added Mrs. Kathryn Bowers, co-chairman of the group. "We hope the students and parents of LeMoyne really come out Saturday for this enjoyable and informative occasion."

The Parents Day Activities are from 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. Mr. Koen is ill...

ST. LOUIS — The Rev. Charles Koen, a civil rights leader whose weight had shrunk from 175 to 112 pounds during a 46-day fast receives a visit from his wife, Clydia, after he was paroled from the custody of the St. Louis Workhouse. Koen, 26, leader of the United Front of Cairo, Ill., was ordered freed from his six month sentence on charges of assaulting a St. Louis police officer. As his physical condition deteriorated, he was moved from the workhouse to Homer G. Phillips Hospital where he was manacled to his bed and a deputy sheriff was stationed in his room. Doctors have been feeding him intravenously.

Seek benefit change for black pensioners

Until recently, the talk of the nation rested upon the shoulders of "the youth of America," and how things will benefit tomorrow's leaders. The only subjects referring to the older generation was Medicare and what they had done to "put the world in the position it's in today," according to members of the Age of Aquarius.

A study carried out by Dr. Inabel Lindsay, of Howard University was recently made public before a Senate committee in Washington, to benefit the older generation, as well as the younger, (when they get there).

In his statement to the Senate, Dr.

Lindsay suggested that Social Security benefits for blacks be given at an earlier age because they do not live as long as whites.

According to statistics, said Dr. Lindsay, the mortality is about twice as high for Negro women and about 10 per cent higher for black men in the 55-64 age group.

Percentage-wise, deaths in the 65 (when most Social Security payments begin) and 74 year-old age groups, 46.2 of Negro women depart as compared to 25.2 per cent of white women.

Dr. Lindsay further stated to the Committee on Aging that "the majority of Negroes over age 65 are less educated, have less adequate income, have less choice as to where they live and work and consequently have a less satisfying quality of life." All these factors add up to a total that automatically reduces a black person's Social Security in retirement years.

"For the 55 to 64 age group, white males are receiving about twice as much as black males," said Dr. Lindsay.

As it seems, young blacks now living in the Age of Aquarius, many have something to look forward to in the next age . . .

Publish book on Lt. Lee

George Washington Lee, better known in Memphis as Lt. Lee, is a man thought of almost as a cornerstone in Memphis history. His knowledge of Memphis is almost limitless. He has written books and many papers on the subject. He is also known to be a great politician. Because of this, David M. Tucker, Associate Professor of History at Memphis State University, has written a book on Lt. Lee. The title, "Lieutenant Lee of Beale Street" printed by Vanderbilt University Press, Nashville, Tennessee.

Kidney patient needs $10,000

Mrs. Eva Clayton, a 29-year old mother of three is in trouble serious trouble. She, likely nearly a half-million other Americans is suffering from a crippling kidney ailment.

In need of a kidney transplant, for which medical science has set a fee of $30,000, Mrs. Clayton has been suffering for the past six months. Things have gotten progressively worse, as the slightest exertion leaves her weak, and often causes her to have dizzy spells and vomiting.

Mrs. Clayton had been receiving temporary relief on the dialysis (blood cleansing) machine at William Bowld hospital.

"I need $10,000 right now so I can get back to the machine," said Mrs. Clayton, "and the doctors have told me I need surgery on my arm so the dialysis machine can be hooked up again."

St. Paul's Church, 1144 McLemore has begun a campaign to raise the needed amount so this lady may once again know what it is to lead a normal life again without pain.

Persons with serious kidney ailments not only live in continual pain, but with the knowledge that if the necessary transplant is not undertaken soon, their days are literally numbered.

Melanie Miller, executive secretary of the Memphis chapter of the national Kidney Foundation said the fund drive had already begun, with councilman J. L. Netters joining in to help the Church raise the needed funds.

Mrs. Clayton wishes to thank any contributors in advance with the hope that anyone who is able, will join in by sending a check, or stopping by St. Paul's Church, 1144 McLemore with a contribution payable to the Kidney Foundation for Mrs. Eva Clayton.

Partee addresses TSU summer grads

NASHVILLE — The more than 300 summer graduates of Tennessee State University were told that "knowing all about discrimination is quite different from knowing discrimination . . ." and it is in the field of housing that

"discrimination exists in its most precious and poisonous form."

The president pro tempore of the Illinois Senate, Atty. Cecil A. Partee of Chicago, a '44 graduate of Tennessee State, was speaker for the 58th Summer Baccalaureate Commencement of his alma mater on Aug. 22.

Said he, "It is from this form of discrimination that many of our other existing evils, such as the urban ghetto and unequal education, ultimately flow." He pointed out that if they never do anything else in the civil rights cause, "it is my hope that you will do your best to break down these artificial barriers which are the source of so many of our troubles." According to the Kerner Commission, which was headed by former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner, Partee pointed out that many of the problems of this country were caused by "white racism." "I know that there have been many blacks who consider this to mean that the great majority of whites hate the great majority of blacks," he said.

AWARD PAYNE

Dr. William Payne, Assistant Superintendent in charge of the North Area has been selected for the inclusion in the 1971 listings of "Outstanding Young Men in America."

Dr. Payne, a career educator, holds a B. S. degree from William Carey College in Hattiesburg, Mississippi and both the Master of Education and the doctoral of education from the University of Mississippi. He is a native Memphian and attended the public schools in Memphis.

Based on his experience, he said that he does not interpret "white racism" that way. "I think many whites 'hate' many blacks the same way in which Americans 'hate' Russians or the poor 'hate' the rich or labor 'hates' management.

Knox county Rep to fight busing

Representative Jack Comer (R) of Knox County announced that he plans to circulate among the members of the 87th General Assembly a petition to call an extraordinary session of the legislature for consideration of legislation which will permit the reassignment of any student in grades 1 through 12 of the public school system when the parent, parents, or guardian of such student determines that busing of the student for long distances would be detrimental to his health or safety or would significantly impinge on the educational process.

Representative Comer stated that the call for convening an extraordinary session will include the consideration of joint resolutions to petition the U. S. Congress to call a convention for posing amendments to the Constitution of the United States relative to the public school system, the busing of students, and the maintenance of the neighborhood schools and to request the other states to petition the Congress to call such a convention.

Representative Comer said, "the mass busing of students for long distances which is being required of certain public school systems may risk the health and safety of some students." He expressed belief that the educational process for some students may be impaired by the long distance busing.

City expands bond program

The Memphis-Shelby County pre-trial release program, which until recently has operated on a strictly volunteer basis, has been expanded to full-time operation to meet an expected increase of patrons.

The program, initiated to allow first-offenders of serious crimes to be released on reduced bail bonds, was spearheaded by former criminal court Judge Odell Horton. The new innovation is the result of efforts by Judge W. Otis Higgs.

A phase of the $1 Bail Bond Program, the new set-up will be headed by Richard Borys, a Vietnam veteran.

Judge Higgs, who introduced the program stated, "Mr. Borys is a very dedicated young man, he could have been in a very high paying position due to his college education, but he chose to work with VISTA as a volunteer."

Borys, who has a Masters degree in electrical engineering, said he has never regretted joining VISTA but that it has cost him greatly in personal income.

He has a master's degree from Clarkson College in Potsdam, New York.

The County Court unanimously voted this week to fund the program with an $8,000 grant. The federal government is supplying about $25,000 for the first year's budget.

St. Jude's seeks help

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is a private non-sectarian, non-profit institution that provides all of its service free of charge to all of its patients regardless of their ability to pay.

St. Jude is not a branch of St. Joseph Hospital or a Catholic Institution. It does not receive funds from Shelby United Neighbors (SUN). The hospital accepts children up to the age of 16 based upon referral from any practicing physician and all medical services are provided and in many cases lodging in Memphis and transportation to and from Memphis are provided.

During the past year children from 26 states and two foreign countries were treated at St. Jude Hospital. Forty percent of the patients treated at St. Jude are black. St. Jude has two basic objectives:

-provide treatment for children afflicted with catastrophic diseases such as leukemia, solid tumors, muscular dystrophy, blood disorder and others.

-to gain knowledge through basic scientific medical research.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has achieved the first instance of a significant five year cure rate for leukemia of any kind.

The multiple drug procedures used throughout the nation in the treatment of leukemia were developed at St. Jude under the direction of Dr. Donald Pinkel, the Medical Director.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is now generally recognized as the world's leading center in the treatment and in the research of childhood Leukemia. And also treats more pediatric cancer patients than any other institution in the nation.

Danny Thomas is the national President of ALSAC (Aiding Leukemia Stricken American Children). It is the fund raising arm of St.

Jude Children's Research Hospital. This organization is organized for the sole and express purpose of providing financial support to the hospital.

St. Jude is governed and evaluated by bodies of prominent business and professional men throughout the United States. The Mallory Knights Charitable Organization, Inc. is working to inform the community at large about what St. Jude is all about.

FBI reports crime increase

As each new decade arrives it is always hoped that it will bring bigger and better things. Under the heading of crime, those 'things' have gotten bigger, and logically, have not gotten better.

Metropolitan Memphis showed a hike in almost every segment of crime in 1970 over the previous year according to statistics issued recently by the FBI and Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

From a police chief's point of view, things aren't as bad as they look at a glance, according to the Memphis boss, Henry Lux. While the total area below the Mason-Dixon line showed an increase in statistics, by 14 per cent, the Metro-Memphis area crime rate rose only eight per cent.

Official FBI records for Shelby and Crittenden County, Ark., showed there were 23,546 crimes reported last year an increase of 2,214 over the previous year.

Being a policeman, and still optimistic, Chief Lux added that "for the first six months of this year, the Memphis rate of increase was up only two percent".

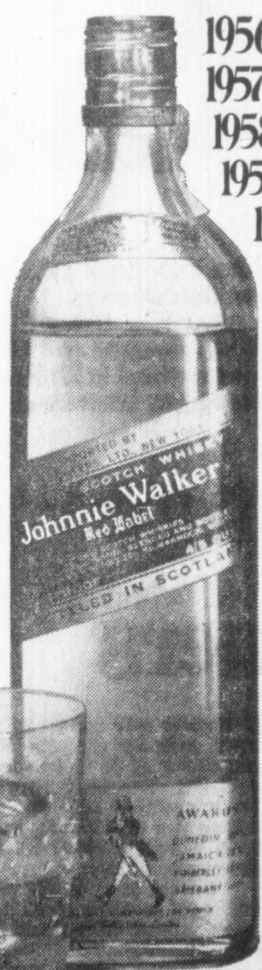

Rev. Melvin Wade, candidate for school board position one, running at large, has set one of his goals if elected as "complete integration of the faculty of Area Vocational Technical school at 620 Mosby as well as the Adult Education Center at 591 Washington."

The Rev. Wade, the only black candidate running at-large for a berth on the school board, added that he has the promised support of many other district candidates.

In next week's Tri-State Defender, Rev. Wade will explain some of his views on busing and other topics concerning the school system.

"Education is the issue . . . the only issue," said Rev. Wade.

Open day-care center...

Olga De Freitas smiles at Sidney Friedman, Chairman of National Bank of North America, as she signs a $1.1 million construction loan agreement for a badly needed day care center for the infant children of unwed mothers in the Bedford-Stuyvesant (New York) area. The agreement was signed at the Bank's 48th Street and Fifth Avenue office.

Say job funds insufficient

M. Carl Holman, President of The National Urban Coalition, warned that the $1.5 billion recently appropriated for public service jobs under the Emergency Employment Act of 1971 can by no means provide an adequate test of public service employment on a scale commensurate with the needs of the cities.

Addressing the opening session of a three-day Institute on the Emergency Employment Act of 1971 at the Statler-Hilton Hotel, Holman said:

"Caught in the crunch of rising unemployment, shrinking fiscal resources and insistent demands that localities do a better job of keeping the streets safe and clean, cleansing the air and providing better and less expensive health services, urban leaders in the weeks ahead are likely to be outgunned by states and counties in the competition for a total number of jobs which is tragically inadequate to the needs of any one of these jurisdictions.

"These needs have grown and the employment picture has worsened since The National Urban Coalition first urged a sweeping public service employment program in its August 1967 Convocation," Holman said.

"No one can question the urgency of the need which has public officials hastening to replenish their forces with the badly needed recruits EEA will provide. But the numbers are far too small and the very haste with which the federal government is getting the funds out to the cities and states creates the danger that, like some of the poverty programs as of the '60's this effort will shortly be damned and derided as another experiment which fails."

Holman said that the Coalition and other private groups have already met with Department of Labor officials in an attempt to assure that the expenditure of funds will be properly monitored, that artificial barriers to the employment of minorities and the poor will be eliminated, that connections between EEA and other manpower programs be established so that genuine job ladders can be created for those hired during the coming year, and that every effort be made to establish a "track record" which will insure the truly adequate public service program, a program for meeting the nation's human needs of a scale and kind which the private sector can not possibly be expected to provide.

Mrs. Jackson visits Koen

Momma Georgia Jackson and Poppa Jackson, mother and father of the "murdered" Soledad Brother, Brother George Jackson, visited approximately two and a half hours with Rev. Charles Koen, National Chairman of the Black United Front, at city hospital No. 2, where Rev. Koen is chained to his bed, while on the 44th day of his water fast, reported the United Front's Office in St. Louis, Mo.

There was a very warm and spiritual meeting with very positive vibrations coming from the small dingy room where Rev. Koen told Momma Jackson that this week his water fast is in memorial to her slain son and to heighten the consciousness of the masses of people so that murderers of brothers and sisters in the struggle who are held in captivity by this oppressive system will not be murdered like her son.

Rev. Koen urged all people to take an active part in protecting the welfare of brothers and sisters in prison by visiting the prisons daily to check on the health and welfare of the prisoners. "It does not matter if you know the prisoner or not. We all are brothers and sisters under the universal spirit of god."

At a press conference and memorial rally for the slain Soledad Brother, and in support of Rev. Charles Koen, Ossie Davis, actor and playwright, stated "Our most precious commodity is our Black leadership. Our most desperate necessity is Black unity. Rev. Koen was a leader who preached Black Unity and became dangerous to the powers that be. In this regard he is like Medgar Evers, Malcolm X, Martin Luther King and now George Jackson. We cannot afford to keep losing our leaders, and that is why I am here."

Rev. Garnett Henning, pastor of St. Peter's A.M.E. Church, stated: "It's a shame that we've got one more situation where a black man is imprisoned by the system because he had the concern to try to organize and protect Black and other oppressed people in their efforts to achieve their rights in this country.

"When brother Koen was in St. Louis, he was organizing the people and the system objected. The system has it's people that are hired to see to it that this does not happen. The situation doesn't merit Rev. Koen being in prison. Because of Rev. Koen's deep moral and spiritual commitment, he is practically at the verge of taking his own life and I think the system has to accept responsibility for that, and all leaders—all people have influence within the community, should be protesting this kind of inhuman treatment."

Bobby Williams, national coordinator of the Black

United Front stated that the Rev. Koen has not been forced fed as carried by the press and wire services. His wife has refused to sign papers giving hospital officials the authority to force feed him. Rev. Koen and his family fully understand that he may die but because of his commitments to liberations for Blacks and all oppressed people he will continue on his spiritual water fast in protest of his unjust political imprisonment and the imprisonment of all political prisoners by this oppressive society."

"As Rev. Koen's personal physician and brother in the struggle for the rights of blacks and all oppressed people I am terribly concerned. He has been on a starvation fast for over forty days and has lost nearly 50 lbs. The press erroneously related that he had been fed intravenously. This is not true and in fact Rev. Koen is diametrically opposed to being fed voluntarily or forcefully. He has related to me that he plans to continue his spiritual water fast until he is released. His purpose is a high and lofty one and one in which I most certainly am in accord, even though his medical status is precarious his commitments are as strong as the commitment of men like George Jackson and those others in the struggle," stated Dr. Lee Blunt.

Jones denies federal move

Nathaniel R. Jones, General Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, issued a strong denial that he was available for a high Pentagon position. The denial followed numerous published reports that Mr. Jones would become Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense.

Mr. Jones issued the following statement to the press:

"I am not available for the position of Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense.

"My duties as General Counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People involve me in the broad spectrum of civil rights activities. As such I am committed and involved in a number of on-going programs and active litigation.

"My organization, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has been and is deeply committed to improving the conditions of black GIs in all parts of the world. We are pressing forward in their behalf. We are making preparations to open an office in West Germany this winter in order to better serve the needs of the young men stationed in Europe.

"It is my conviction that I can better serve the interests of black servicemen by remaining in my position as General Counsel of this organization."

Gov't to view Miss. elections

Attorney General John N. Mitchell authorized the assignment of federal examiners to three counties in Mississippi to register voters for the November 2 general election.

Mr. Mitchell, acting under the 1965 Voting Rights Act, requested the Civil Service Commission to assign personnel to Humphreys, Madison and Tallahatchie Counties.

The examiners will accept voter registration from August 23 through September 17 at Belzoni, Isola, Canton, Charleston and Sumner.

Mr. Mitchell requested the Civil Service Commission to provide for registration from noon to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday and from noon to 5 p.m. on Saturday during the period.

Examiners will enroll all voters who qualify under state law without regard to race.

Under state law, voter registration closed on July 2, four months before the election. Under federal law, registrations can be accepted for certification until 45 days before the election.

Tallahatchie County was designated for the first time. The other two counties were designated for federal examiners in 1965.

Based on information received and investigations made, the Attorney General determined that the action was necessary to enforce the guarantees of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

NY college seeks men

Malcolm-King College in New York, a new hope for black dropouts who had despaired of earning a college diploma, has not succeeded in attracting black men, an official of the school said.

"It's almost a total female student body," conceded Mattie Cook, Administrative Director of the innovative college. "And we're not happy about that," she added.

"We want him in our school. We feel that he needs that education. We recognize this as being one of our big problems and we definitely want to see something done about it," she said.

The new college attempts to make college work more attractive to black dropouts in a number of new ways, Mrs. Cook says.

"All our classes are in the evening since almost all of our students are family people who work during the day and have other responsibilities. Also, tuition is free."

She continued, "The classes are in the community which is, again, terribly important — and 'safe'. Many very bright, highly motivated students have failed because they have had to go off to 'alien' campuses outside of the community, and not only deal with all the problems of learning and having a good learning experience, but also being uncomfortable in a totally new setting." At Malcolm-King, she went on, "People can really feel like they can open up."

She urged that schools establish a male quota and fill it before allowing females to attend. "We are talking very seriously now of having a very special kind of male program where we would try to have everything geared toward their particular interests and needs. We feel very strongly that this is one of our big, weak areas," Mrs. Cook added.

The Administrative Director said that, by and large, Malcolm-King has been successful. "We have story after story of people who are coming back after having dropped out of the system," she explained. "Right now, criteria for admission is that you must have a high school diploma or its equivalent."

But she added that she would like to see provision made in the future for those lacking a high school diploma to work both for college credit and high school certification at the same time.

"Most of our students," Mrs. Cook continued, "are the students that should have gone to college two or 20 years ago. It has always been their great desire to go back and get some college work under their belt." She said Malcolm-King students had never lost sight of this dream.

Consequently, she predicted, the college will "build the skilled leadership that is needed to help our people as a group to grow and survive."

In a related article, Isaiah Robinson, New York City's first black president of the Board of Education, said, educators must deal with a system that "is failing our students miserably."

Digest report...

African blacks unable to rise

Despite the intolerable oppression under which they live, there is virtually no chance that South Africa's black majority will stage an uprising in this generation or even within the next century, in the view of Carl T. Rowan.

Writing in the September Reader's Digest, the former U.S. Information Agency Director says further that a three-week trip to South Africa convinced him that there is only "a feeble hope" that outside pressures will help to ameliorate the beleaguered nation's injustices to blacks.

However, he declares, there is "a surprising number" of enlightened white South Africans who believe that a multiracial society is "possible and desirable," and who want to give non-whites "a bit more power today, a little more dignity tomorrow, to avert an eventual holocaust." Such whites, he says, "secretly welcome" economic and social pressures from the outside. "They believe that rapid social change in their country is the only possible guarantee of a peaceful future for their children and grandchildren." Rowan, a Roving Editor for Reader's Digest, and his wife became the first black journalist couple to visit South Africa and move around freely. He says that they were treated courteously by the ruling white minority, and were never asked to submit to South Africa's extreme practices of racial separation.

Nonetheless, he says, he found "a society in shackles, trembling in fear of freedom, a country at war with its conscience." Fear is everywhere; whites are afraid that if they give blacks "a little power they will ultimately have to give them a lot." Black Africans are intimidated by security police and are terrified of black quislings. The mixed-origin Coloureds and Asians cling precariously to the status quo, fearful both of increased restrictions from the whites and unknown terrors if blacks should come to power.

But, he writes, "what impressed us was the anguish of South African whites, most of whom wish to retain the wealth and special privileges they now enjoy, but who have begun to see the terrible cost of doing so, even in terms of their own liberties."

It is with such whites that the most meaningful hope for ameliorating South Africa's injustices lies. But, says Rowan, it is a mighty feeble hope."

Drivers warning

The Tennessee Department of Safety announced its "Protect-A-Child" campaign to promote safe travel for school children. State Safety Commissioner Claude Armour said the "Protect-A-Child" campaign included safety education and enforcement of school zones and laws pertaining to the loading and unloading of school buses.

Armour said the Highway Patrol's Safety Education Division would conduct safety classes in schools across the state and set up bicycle rodeos and the popular teenage driving rodeos. He said these programs had been very successful in the past and would be a vital part of the "Protect-A-Child" campaign.

Armour called for strict enforcement of the 15 M.P.H. speed limit in school zones with extensive use of radar. He reminded motorists that state law also requires all traffic to stop for school buses loading and unloading children.

Armour also urged parents to teach their children the proper way to use our streets and how to board and exit school buses safely. He said, "It is most important to stress safety to these youngsters now so they will continue to think safety as they grow older." Armour emphasized that the "Protect-A-Child" campaign would be in effect throughout the school year in an effort to have accident-free school zones and safe travel for all school children.

McGovern hits lunch program

Senator George McGovern, Chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, sent a hand-delivered letter to Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin urgently requesting that he withdraw the School Lunch Program proposed regulations announced on August 13th.

Those regulations, McGovern charged, would "bring the expansion of the school lunch program to a screeching halt." As proposed the regulations blatantly violate both the spirit and the letter of the school lunch law passed by Congress last year, he said, and constitute the most regressive action on the hunger front in the last several years.

Essentially, the proposed regulations would cut back the amount of money states would be reimbursed for providing lunches under both the regular lunch program and the special assistance program for poor children.

This, McGovern claims, will cause many states and localities which are already financially strapped to cut back or drop out of the program all together.

Publish book on Memphian, Lt. Lee...

George Lee was born in Sunflower County, Miss., in 1894, the son of a Baptist minister who owned a small farm. He attended Alcorn College in Mississippi, where he excelled in his studies.

In the summer of 1912, George Lee came to Memphis, the metropolis of that part of the world, where he was hired as a bellhop at the Gayoso then Memphis' finest hotel. In Memphis Lee became aware of the black bourgeoisie — successful businessmen whose social and cultural accomplishments rivaled those of many prominent whites. The determination of these men to build black pride through black capitalism and political activity provided the model for Lee's later years.

George Lee overcame intense competition to become one of 639 Negroes commissioned at the outbreak of WW I. After the war he resolved to make the military his career, returning to Memphis to enlist the aid of Robert R. Church, Memphis' most influential Negro politician.

Politics was an integrated activity in which a southern Negro could gain prestige, and George Lee followed in the political footsteps of his mentor Church. The Lincoln League had gained power under Church, and Church's black-and-tan Tennessee delegation had gained equal acceptance with the lily-whites in the national Republican Party.

George W. Lee lives in Memphis today, where he is Vice President of the Atlanta Life Insurance Company, a post he has held since 1939. He is Grand Commissioner of Education of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World.

Health Center Bulletin

Gary G. Miles, Regional Director of the Tennessee TB and Respiratory Disease Association for this area, commented recently on the public's apparent lack of knowledge about tuberculosis.

"It's remarkable," said the Regional Director, "that a disease that costs so much to detect and treat every year, and that requires constant effort to contain, could be so widely misunderstood."

Mr. Miles cited the fact that tuberculosis costs Americans $545 million annually for "direct" costs alone. This includes hospitalization costs, workmen's compensation, expenditures by the Federal and state governments and Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Associations, research and physicians' services. "Loss of potential employment amount to an additional $482 million every year," Mr. Miles said.

"And yet," Mr. Miles continued, "those who know or have heard about tuberculosis, except for patients, think that TB is a conquered disease. It isn't, and it won't be until everyone becomes aware of the problem and what they can do to prevent it."

"One of the things that can be done is to take advantage of the TB skin-testing and x-ray clinics furnished by the health department, and to make sure that a TB skin test is included in every family's annual physical checkup."

Memphis bells ring...

Desegregation . . . According to Webster's New World dictionary, means "to abolish racial segregation," on any level, whether it be social, educational, or in housing.

But in this day and age, the word has grown to mean much more.

Sometimes it means, "run, run, the niggers are comin' . . . sometimes it may spell "I guess they're alright, but I wouldn't want to live next door to one . . ."

Here in Memphis, like most cities in America today, a great change is coming. A great migration by both black and white. The blacks are moving in, and the white's are moving out.

The biggest topic in Bluff City today isn't about President Nixon's wage-price freeze . . . Not since school has opened. Mr. Nixon is still in the midst of the discussion, but not in a light that casts a very big shadow in terms of an upcoming election year.

School desegregation . . . To bus, or not to bus . . .

U. S. District Judge Baily Brown, who struck the first blow at the black-white dual school system, did so by clustering five predominantly white schools, with a sixth which is a majority of blacks.

The results of which haven't shown their full effects as yet, after the first week of school. Emotions were said to be mixed about the manner in which it was done, and quite naturally, several white parents refused to let their children be bused to the all-black Shadowlawn school.

Petitions have been filed all over town by residents of the Raleigh-Bartlett school area (those transferred to Shadowlawn), and several other groups of white parents. They absolutely refuse to accept the law of the land.

On a rough estimate, there are probably more white organizations in the city of Memphis that have been formed by neighborhoods to stop busing, or to keep the blacks out, than there are judges to hear all the cases. They have been springing up like weeds . . . And for the practical purposes of preserving the peace (which they claim to seek), they serve about as much good.

Deaf Judicial ears...

Last week, whether he liked it or not, Judge Brown stuck to his guns when he upheld his desegregation order and refused to hear a plea on behalf of the Bartlett area residents.

It's quite obvious, since the white man has been eating in restaurants where blacks handle their food, etc., that the real reason they fear school desegregation, is not that HIS daughter will be "frat-nizing wit niggers", but that his child will be subjected to the lower standard of education that black children have suffered as a whole since Reconstruction.

While a few whites have been willing to admit to a dual standard of education, on the whole, most whites don't know what that means.

They, nor their children have never sat in a classroom with fifty children and one teacher . . . Had two or three students sharing one torn, outdated book.

This is what they are afraid of . . .

They are so afraid of it, that in Pontiac, Mich. last week, 10 empty school buses were bombed.

The damage may have served its purpose . . . But it will not stop the great migration . . . It surely will not halt the onrushing tidal wave of desegregation. There are still 70 more according to school officials there, and they will be replaced if needed.

This could be a 'word to the wise' here in Memphis. There is no limit to what "they" might do to halt the wheels of progress.

Memphis "citizens against busing," "parents for community action," and "Citizens for Neighborhood Schools," have sought the aid of lawyers, judges, and even attempted to enlist Senator Bill Brock and Gov. Dunn, and anyone else who may aid them in their mad dash against sharing some of the educational grief imposed on black children. So who is to say they won't be bombing buses next . . .

President Nixon, who has voiced differences with Congress on the busing issue, recently commended the "South" for its calm during the initial days of school bells.

But in light of the Pontiac, Mich. incident, the idea must seem apparent to all that the chief executive will once again eat his own words after taking his foot out of his mouth.

My view

Nixon thinks he knows more than the court

By Dr. BENJAMIN E. MAYS

Not being a historian, I may be in error but I do not recall in my day a President of the United States who has presumed to know more about how the Supreme Court should interpret the law and the Constitution than President Nixon. It seems to me that the President is at odds with the Supreme Court. He intervened in Mississippi to give that State more time to prepare to desegregate.

The Supreme Court reversed him. The Supreme Court sustained a lower court in declaring in the Swann Case that busing is permissible in order to achieve racial balance. And yet the President intervened in the Austin Case and authorized the Justice Department and HEW to keep busing in that city to the minimum as required by law. Who is to decide how much is the minimum busing, the Federal Court or the President? In the Case of Corpus Christi, the President has asked the Supreme Court to delay implementing the court's decision.

Acting for the Supreme Court, Associate Justice Hugo Black has granted the President's request. There seems to be some doubt that the Mexicans are discriminated against in the Corpus Christi Case. The Supreme Court has ruled against federal aid to parochial schools. The President has come out forcefully saying that something must be done to save parochial schools.

The Supreme Court exists to keep the Congress and the President from usurping too much power. When the President is determined about something, he does not stop. When the President continues to interpose himself in opposition to Federal Courts, one has to ask is the President playing politics? His anti-busing attitude will certainly win praise for him in the South and possibly votes in 1972. If he does something to save Catholic Schools, he will win Catholic votes.

Although I am with the President on his new attitude toward China, I cannot forget the President's anti-communist attitude when he ran for Congress years ago against Helen Gahagan Douglass. Of course, politics is politics and when one wants to win, he does what he can within the law to win.

In the case of busing, I think it is more than politics. I think the President's attitude toward segregation is that of President Eisenhower. He is not much in favor of integrated schools.

I wish the President had been as much concerned about justice for black teachers who have lost their jobs because of integration as he is concerned about parochial schools and keeping busing to the minimum. It is my firm belief that if under any circumstances white teachers had lost their jobs as a result of implementing Federal Court decisions, the President would have stepped in — not to help them train for another job but give them severance pay or he would have used his influence to stop the firing and demotion.

These assertions cannot be proved but one cannot help but wonder. It will also be worth nothing what the Supreme Court will do in the Austin and Corpus Christi Cases.

Point of View

By NAT D. WILLIAMS

TAINT MY HOUSE

The national hassle about busing school children and other phases of the subject of school integration . . . law suits, court rulings, parental protests, and even school room violence and bombings only add up to putting the cart before the horse.

"To integrate or not to integrate," that's the question. And the best place to find the answer is in the area of housing. Until Americans . . . of whatever race, creed or color, learn to live together as neighbors and human beings . . . all the king's horses and all the king's muscle-men will never be able to make 'em kin."

Segregated housing is the keystone in the desegregation problem. America has made much progress in race relations. But many whites and blacks still live in cities and suburbs divided by a color line.

Perhaps in no field are racial tensions higher than in housing. Many blacks, in search of better living conditions, seek to buy or rent houses in neighborhoods occupied entirely or primarily by whites.

When a black family does succeed in buying a home, a rapid changeover in the neighborhood from white to black takes place, pushed by unscrupulous real estate agents called "blockbusters."

Blockbusters prey on the fears of white owners by telling them that the neighborhood will soon be all black and that their house will soon be worth very little. They then offer to buy the house for less than it is worth. After the purchase, they sell the house to a Negro family for a large profit.

In short, the groups and individuals interested in integration operate against tough opponents: racial prejudice and fear. And as long as that is the situation, the furor about busing is a thing that borders on the absurd. And that's so because it's too far from the nitty-gritty. And the nitty-gritty is HOUSING . . . in the United States of America.

HULLABALOO

In a very real sense most of the hullabaloo being raised over the school busing issue doesn't make sense.

Blacks and whites all over the nation are yapping about the physical transportation of school children from one school to the other. From the President on down, it seems that nobody realizes that the kids might like the ride. The bus ride might be the brightest spot in their whole school day, providing the adult bus driver keeps his mouth shut and not project his prejudices into the youngsters' relationships.

And that brings up one of the most important points in this entire school desegregation hassle. A black mother raised it recently on a radio program. She was concerned with what happens to her child once he gets hemmed up in a classroom. What is the attitude of the teacher . . . pasty white or lamp-black white . . . toward the child? Is the teacher big enough to teach a child regardless of color . . . or is the teacher so small as to block a child's progress with pettiness, meanness, and stupidity. There are such teachers, you know . . . petty, mean, stupid, and just plain cruel.

Many parents are justified in their concern about what happens to their child in the classroom . . . whether the school is segregated or desegregated. Some of the worst teachers for black children have been outwardly black teachers, carrying white prejudices and hatred on their insides. On the other hand some of the best teachers have white skins but hearts that understand and appreciate the black experience into which young black children are being initiated.

Black parents are understandably concerned with what happens to their youngsters in predominantly white schools . . . once they are bused there. White parents have the same concern. But the hullabaloo being raised about busing is in the wrong direction. The main focus should be, as that black mother suggested . . . on what happens to the child in whatever class or school.

So this is Washington

D. C. law firm gets pact to do a job?

By ETHEL L. PAYNE

HELP WANTED

Covington and Burling, Washington's most prestigious law firm, recently got an unsolicited contract from the Federal Government to do a job about which it knew nothing and had to turn to the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund to ask for its unpaid help. That's the puzzling story which was making the rounds last week. It really began last May when the National Bar Association, the predominantly black organization, submitted a proposal to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for training young black lawyers to handle complaints of discrimination in Employment under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act. It was rejected.

However, in late June, the Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, some of whose members are associated with the white law firm of Covington and Burling, was notified that an EEOC contract for $141,000 was being awarded to the firm to conduct a training program under Title VII. On July 12, a letter was sent to the Legal Defense Fund which virtually asked it to take over the job - to find and locate young black lawyers for the course and to suggest methods of going about the training. The Legal Defense Fund, of course, under its regulations, accepts no fees for its services. It was therefore, ironic that on August 4 when the National Bar Association held its convention in Atlanta, EEOC Chairman William H. Brown III appeared before the body to make an urgent appeal that the organization set up a program to encourage the training of black lawyers on the provisions of Title VII.

THE RENDER AFFAIR

Frank Render, former Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Equal Opportunity, accepted his firing last week so gracefully that it raised more questions than if he had blasted away as expected when one is given the boot on civil rights. Somehow, the halo around Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird's head which appeared with the statement that said he was not satisfied with progress that has been made didn't fit very well. Meanwhile it was learned that two incidents were probably contributing factors to the resignation. Last December while Render and L. Howard Bennett, the Deputy for Equal Opportunity in the Military Services were on an inspection tour of Germany, they were hosted at a reception by Lieutenant General Victor Taver, the commander of the area.

According to those in the know, General Taver was keenly interested in resolving the racial incidents that had become so acute. To his consternation, Render and Bennett proceeded to berate him for the conditions which they found, charging him with responsibility for them. When they returned to the States, they filed written reports with Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Reserve, their immediate superior, but Kelly did not see either one of them in person. Relations in the section were obviously chilly as word of the Taver matter trickled through the Pentagon grapevine.

Render, meanwhile, was working with the Congressional Black Caucus, supplying it with much of the information that later went into the document which was presented to President Nixon at a White House meeting. One morning, the chauffeur who was driving Kelly to his office remarked that he had to pick up Mr. Render and take him to Capitol Hill at 9 a.m. The moment he reached his office Kelly sent for Render and asked him where he was going at 9 a.m. Render replied that he was meeting with some members of the Black Caucus. Kelly's terse order went something like this: "You aren't meeting with them this morning or any other morning."

In the interim, three-star General Taver was rotated back to the states where he was assigned to, of all places, the office of Roger Kelly as his executive officer! Render is now out and the future of Bennett is uncertain. The Pentagon had desperately hoped to announce Render's replacement at the same time, but the top person they wanted, Nathaniel Jones, the General Counsel for the NAACP, was unresponsive to the bid. No less than President Nixon himself was talking to Roy Wilkins in an effort to get him to use his mind.

BITS AND PIECES

St. Louis Sentinel Publisher Howard Wood is making a satisfactory recovery from his recent heart attack which is good news for those of us who rely on his counsel when the crunch gets to you . . . Sad news for the whole U.S. Black Community is that Ghana Ambassador E.M. Debrah (Kojo) will be leaving soon to take over the foreign ministry at home in Accra. He is one of the most able diplomats in the service and during his stay here he became "soul brother" to the thousands who came to know and admire him.

Last week, he took his four young children home to Ghana to place them in schools there. The smaller ones have to learn the language and customs. The entire Washington community plans a series of tributes to Ambassador Debrah and his charming wife, Theresa . . . Alice Annun, the 22-year-old sister Ghanaian athlete, has received a scholarship to study and train at Allen Hancock Junior College in Santa Maria, California. At the recent meet in Durham, N.C. she won a silver bowl for her performance and was dubbed "Africa's Baby Jet."

Being Frank

Busing issue nothing more than white rage

By FRANK L. STANLEY

In a very few days we will know just how much bearing the threats of President Nixon to disallow financial funds federally for busing have as well as the jibes of Alabama Governor George C. Wallace to block further school desegregation, if busing is employed.

Pure and simple, its the old issue of white supremacy fanned to a red heat again under the egis of busing. Why all this furor at this time is most baffling. Busing has been a way of life for school children for many years and it doubtless can never be discontinued.

Busing takes place in the least integrated as well as the most segregated school system of the land. The truth is that the residential pattern has changed slowly but for the worse where school desegregation is concerned because most blacks in America live in urban areas where segregated residential patterns have reduced schools by a single race and where racial balance is possibly only through cross town transportation. In short, the only way that schools will ever be truly desegregated, and the only way in which we can get rid of all black schools is through busing unless of course that by some magical stroke over night black houses and families will be transplanted more abundantly and in most instances, initially in white neighborhoods. Such is only wishful thinking and it is foolhardy.

A few weeks ago I had an occasion to address a journalism seminar in a far western state. The participants were students from across America, considerable of them were midwestern. It was an interesting experience and for some of the whites I was the first black journalist that they had ever had the opportunity to talk with and listen to. In the question and answer period that followed my morning presentation, I was asked a question: "Are you for busing, and why?" I had no hesitancy in explaining first how commonplace busing was all over America and secondly that I stood first and foremost for truly desegregated schools everywhere because I am not a separatist and thus if busing is the expedient way then we should have no compunction about instituting and financing it as the Supreme Court — "Busing is a Neutral Tool." Moreover, blacks are not responsible for the existence of segregated schools nor are they responsible for whatever additional cost is necessary to desegregate schools, except of course, as taxpayers they pay their pro-rata share.

This was a little disappointing to a beautiful white coed from Indianapolis who had never had the experience of going to school with blacks. Whether I convinced her or not, I don't know because it appears that so many people, white and black, are hung up on "busing" these days for example: I had lunch recently with a white business associate whom I have always considered liberal and I still believe he is, but in the course of the conversation about the President, he blated out: "That Nixon ain't worth a damn, but I'll be doggone if I can go for busing, and I will have to go along with him on that." I asked him how on earth could he be against busing if he was really serious about correcting segregated schools, which have been perpetuated on blacks for many, many years.

Of course, he hadn't looked at it in that manner. He was thinking about the poor little children who would have to get up two or three hours earlier and stand out on the road on cold snowy mornings and catch a bus and perhaps not get back home until five or six o'clock in the evening with some of them going as far as thirty miles. I told him I had sympathy for those children but that I felt they stood to gain much more by the mere sacrifice of a little time in order to become more truly educated because any white or black child who goes to school and never has a classmate who is a member of a different race, then his thinking is warped because he never becomes truly educated and he never comes to know the many different kinds of people who constituted the nation in which he lives.

President Nixon's double talk on busing has worsened the situation. Back in April of this year following the Supreme Court's Swann decision case, he reluctantly came out in favor of busing and then on August 3rd he repudiated that and did exactly what the United States Commission on Civil Rights said: "... undermining the desegregation effort." But I submit that right must triumph over wrong and achieving full school desegregation and/or racial balance is far more important than reflecting a Richard Nixon to the Presidency or providing a racist platform for George Wallace to become a presidential aspirant again. School Boards, Superintendents and districts are in a state of flux and I t ally confused, particularly those who had the good decency to proceed as ordered by court and do what was right.

THE BIG PARADE

points up sickness

By LOUIS MARTIN

The Panther-Hanrahan legal battle that dominates the news in Chicago has deep implications. As President Nixon would say, one point becomes crystal clear. Chicago, despite its bright, beaming face, is a city still sick at heart.

It is a sickness common to all of our major cities. The horrible deaths of Fred Hampton and Mark Clark two years ago put the spotlight on Chicago and exposed the malignant disease that is eating away at the very vitals of the metropolis. This same disease has infected our total society and it produces running sores all across America. The name we usually give it is racism.

Today in Chicago there is a raging debate over the grand jury indictments and the kind of justice that should be done. The community is polarized utterly. Each tribal group is hoping for its own kind of victory.

Every single citizen knows that Fred Hampton and Mark Clark died because they were black and because they dared to fight the forces that make blackness a crime in itself.

The pre-dawn raid would have never happened if this were not so. Those who would deny this fact simply don't understand the realities of life in Chicago and in America today.

Whatever develops in the courtroom battle in the days ahead, you can be sure that the rampant racism which infects the bloodstream of the metropolis will still be with us.

Even now this racism is manifesting itself in the firebombing of black families who are seeking homes out of the crowded black ghetto in areas of Chicago where whites have organized to keep them out.

The white establishment is standing guard at the gates to the suburbs. Paranoid inner-city whites are trying to hold the line with rocks and firebombs. The over-crowded black citizens face a "Berlin wall" at every turn.

In the White House, the legal and moral leader of the nation the President, says he is opposed to "forced integration" in the suburbs. This code phrase every American understands.

When the ugly facts of the black experience are brought to the attention of many of those who constitute the so-called establishment, there is a standard response.

We are told that we blacks are making progress. If you stand still long enough you will be given a warehouse full of statistics to prove the point.

The question, of course, is what do we mean by progress? When it comes to finding a cure for this racism which infects the total society and pollutes and poisons the very air Americans breathe, I am not so sure of this progress.

Some of the wanton abuses of civil rights have been curbed but no black man is free of fear. His enemies lurk in every corner and sometimes in government itself. He knows that racism is woven into the fabric of all our institutions, public and private.

The supreme tragedy of our time is that the controlling leadership of America at every level, local, state, national, will not honestly address itself to this basic issue of racism. We live in a world of utter hypocrisy.

Many young Americans, black and white, are turned off by this hypocrisy. My only hope is that they will become so outraged that they will feel impelled to do something constructive about it. They are going to find a cure for cancer. A cure for racism, however, is even more urgently needed in our sick society.

Ga. sheriff has problem

COLUMBUS, Ga. — Sheriff Jack Rutledge is the man caught in the middle in a classic confrontation between federal and state power over a school desegregation plan that calls for massive busing.

State Superior Court Judge Oscar D. Smith has ordered Rutledge to serve papers on school board members to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for trying to put a federally-approved school desegregation plan in effect that Smith ordered stopped.

He said he will try Rutledge if he doesn't serve the papers. But Federal District Judge J. Robert Elliott has enjoined Rutledge and his deputies from serving the papers. He has also, by orders from the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, enjoined Smith from bringing contempt charges which Smith apparently has declined.

"I don't know what I am going to do," Rutledge said. "I will be in contempt of some court no matter what I do."

"I think I need some legal advice," Smith called the contempt hearing. He has set for Tuesday a last-ditch stand as to whether he will have a dictatorship in this country or a free country.

"There will be no state court system if the federal court's order prevails," Smith said he would risk his career on trying Rutledge for contempt if he fails to serve the papers.

"If the jury finds that the sheriff runs this court, I will resign," the judge said. Smith referred to the desegregation plan approved by Elliott on July 14. Elliott ordered the board to proceed with the desegregation plan despite the injunction by Smith to halt it.

Bond, Lewis tour Florida

Julian Bond and John Lewis, officials of the Voter Education Project, (VEP) of Atlanta, Ga., have concluded a Voter Mobilization Tour of Florida the third state to be visited in an intensive South-wide effort to encourage minority political participation.

On their two-day tour which began on Aug. 29, Bond and Lewis visited nine urban centers from the northwestern area of Tallahassee to the southeastern town of Homestead, the site of a migrant labor camp south of Miami.

Unlike previous VEP efforts in the states of Mississippi and Louisiana, where large concentrations of blacks reside in rural areas, the Florida tour was an attempt to mobilize minority voters in urban areas.

In the major metropolitan centers such as Miami, Tampa, Orlando, and Jacksonville, blacks and other minority groups do not comprise a majority of the population but constitute an important block of power in both local and statewide politics.

Georgia Representative Julian Bond, a board member of the Voter Education Project, expressed satisfaction that the tour had been successful, saying, "This is only the beginning, the first step in the process of empowerment of a semi-powerless people. In each community where we visited, voter registration forces are mobilizing for the all-important elections to be held in 1972. We urge black voters, who will be wooed by Presidential candidates in the primary election activity in early 1972, to chart a course of political sophistication — to support only those parties and candidates, which truly represent the needs and aspirations of the black community."

"Florida, unlike Mississippi and Louisiana, does not have a statewide civil rights movement," Bond continued. "It is our hope that our drive can, through statewide voter registration efforts, tie together minority communities which have been separated in spirit and organization as well as by geography."

"We have tried to say to people in the minority communities of Florida that they must continue the struggle for liberation through the power of the ballot," stated John Lewis, Executive Director of the Voter Education Project. "We have come a long way since the 1960's. It was the nonviolent movement of direct action which, like a bridge over troubled waters, brought us through that decade. Now, in the 1970's, although critics may say it's 'old fashioned,' we still need that spirit of commitment and determination because there's going to be more troubled waters ahead. "In the battles of this decade," declared Lewis, "the ballot can and must be a mighty weapon for change. It is ballot power which, in the final analysis, will transform a divided South into a Beloved Community."

The Voter Education Project, a private, non-partisan organization operating in the eleven southern states from Virginia to Texas, provides direct assistance in the form of grants to local minority voter registration drives. The VEP program also includes citizenship, education and technical assistance to black elected officials in the South.

McDowell campaigning

Recently in Drew, Miss., Cleve McDowell, a black attorney, announced his candidacy for the Mississippi State Legislature as a representative of Sunflower County, Post 1.

In 1963, McDowell was the first black to attend the University of Mississippi Law School where he was later harassed by university officials for having pistol on campus while white students with deer guns and shotguns went unnoticed.

Cleve McDowell attracted national attention when he challenged Mississippi justice after Miss Jo Etha Collier, an 18 year old black high school student, was gunned down by whites from a passing car the night of her graduation from a newly "integrated" school in Drew, Miss., in May of this year.

In his announcement, McDowell said that: "Sunflower County is 62.8 percent black; yet, blacks have only one minor political office in the county." In this heavily black populated county that is the home of U.S. Senator James O. Eastland, unemployment and under-employment are only two of the many problems facing blacks in Sunflower County. Attorney McDowell stated. When asked what blacks across the country could do to aid the black candidates in Sunflower County, Mc-Dowell said that the lack of money to promote the campaigns was the most pressing problem. Money is needed for materials, office space, workshop sessions, transportation and food for campaign workers, he indicated.

McDowell urged black individuals or organizations to send aid to the black candidates in care of the:

Deltas blast Nixon

HOUSTON, TEXAS — There is no wrath like that of a woman's!

More than 1,800 Black women, as members of Delta Sigma Theta, Inc., a national public service sorority, put aside their convention agenda to deal with what the called a "disturbing, appalling, frightening" announcement from the White House on the school desegregation busing controversy.

What angered the Deltas was the White House statement that federal officials who failed to comply fully with President Nixon's strict prohibition against busing to achieve school desegregation would be fired or reassigned.

The Deltas, with a membership of 60,000, were in the midst of their 31st national convention when the latest White House anti-busing statement was released.

After endorsing the U.S. Civil Rights Commission's statement condemning the President for his previous anti-busing announcement, the Deltas, in a plenary session, unanimously adopted their own resolution sharply rebuking Mr. Nixon for his implied threats against federal officials.

"We endorse the August 12, 1971 statement of the United States Commission on Civil Rights emphasizing the need to desegregate to achieve quality education and opposing legislative changes to restrict busing.

"We strongly protest and condemn the position stated by the White House on eliminating busing as a means of enforcing equal education. Most school desegregation plans include, busing as a necessity. If funds are withheld, desegregation will be impossible. We want the best education possible for all children.

"We further condemn any threats or acts of reprisal against any government employee or school district as they work to enforce the law of the land. Neither will we sit silent for fear of reprisal as dissenters. Freedom of speech is an inalienable right.

"We are forced to demand the President to abide by the law and to reverse his present position. He must show that he cares about our children, and about peace and order in this nation, by speaking out and acting strongly to support desegregation."

All about the Afro

Everything you've ever wanted to know about the Afro (but didn't know who to ask) is answered in "All About The Natural," a 42-page illustrated booklet from Clairol written by Lois Liberty Jones and John Henry Jones.

Written by blacks for blacks, the authors tell it like it is about today's natural look. . . about Black is Beautiful. . . about "letting go of other people's beauty standards and wearing a hairstyle that is a life style." "All About The Natural" covers the history of African hairstyles and Afro-American culture, tells how to choose a natural hairstyle and how to achieve it by following easy step-by-step illustrated instructions. The booklet discusses pressed and processed hair, the "natural" of black celebrities, and outlines a program for the care and nurturing of the Natural Look.

Lois and John Jones are both noted in the fields of beauty culture and science. As early as 1952, Lois Jones was pioneering the natural look. John Jones, one of the founders of the Harlem Writers Workshop, is known as an editor, critic and scientific leader in the field of hair beauty; the results are bound to be all there is to know about the natural. . . in one handy book!

Issued as a public service by Clairol, Inc., "All About The Natural" may be obtained by sending name and address plus 25 cents to cover postage and handling to "All About The Natural," c/o Clairol, P. O. Box 650A, Yonkers N. Y. 10701.

Old Taylor Presents: Ingenious Americans

Thanks to this Black man's invention, trains stopped traveling blind.

Granville T. Woods
(1856-1910)

It's hard to believe that a man who was forced to leave school at the age of ten could have patented over thirty-five electrical and mechanical inventions. Yet Granville T. Woods did just that. The hard way.

Born in Columbus, Ohio, in 1856, Woods literally learned his skills on the job. He learned them in a machine shop. On the railroad. In a rolling mill. He took a mechanical engineering course at an Eastern college, worked as an engineer aboard a British steamer—even handled a steam locomotive on the D & S railroad. Even with this background and all his engineering skill he was unable to get anywhere in these jobs.

But Granville T. Woods, a Black man, was a great electrician and an inventive genius. His talents could not go unnoticed.

In his early thirties, he became interested in thermal power and steam-driven engines. And, in 1889, he filed his first patent for an improved steam-boiler furnace.

This was just the beginning. Woods invented fifteen appliances for electric railways. The greatest of these was a device called the "Induction Telegraph" that enabled men to communicate by voice over telegraph wires. Woods' invention made it possible for trains to communicate with the station and with other trains so they knew exactly where they were at all times. This invention prevented countless accidents and collisions. Woods, along with his brother Lyates, went on to organize the Woods Electrical Company in Cincinnati, Ohio. And in later years, he succeeded in selling many of his inventions to some of the country's largest corporations. American Bell Telephone Company bought many of his ideas, as did General Electric and the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. Granville T. Woods attained great fame. He was a great electrician. A great inventor. A great man. He will be remembered as an ingenious American and a prolific inventor.

FASHION
FACTS
from SEARS
by J. C. Wilson

Having covered the don'ts of men's wear previously, I'm sure there are some of you who are now wondering just what and how to coordinate your wardrobe to really highlight yourself. Here are some of the basic rules you should definitely follow as closely as possible.

- Gloves: Should always complement the color of your coat. Wear dark gloves for dress and brightly colored gloves with sportswear. Never with suits.
- Scarves: A neck scarf is a must with any dressy topcoat. Sport shirts and turtlenecks should always be worn with sportswear. Never with suits.
- Shirts: Only 3-inch and wider neckwear is right for the spread and long point collars. Wider collar styles require broad knots in ties. Use a Windsor or 1/2 Windsor knot with all your wider collars.
- Ties: Bright, flashy cuff links are for nighttime only. They should never be worn during daytime business hours.
- Jewelry: Always fold and keep in dresser drawer. Never use hangers—they cause sweaters to grow out-of-shape. Add some touch of color to every style. Being dressed from head to toe in one color is out. Leather in belts, shoes and other accessories should be color-matched to complement each other.
- Sweaters: These are pointers that I feel, if adhered to, will certainly enhance your look. Take pride in your appearance. Impressions of many people are derived from how well they dress. Remember the old saying, "A first impression is a lasting one."
- Color: Add some touch of color to every style. Being dressed from head to toe in one color is out. Leather in belts, shoes and other accessories should be color-matched to complement each other.

'Love Bugs' score hit single

There's something to be said about a summer that produces excitement by the day for three young residents of Detroit's black community. "Ooh" may not cover it, but when expressed in triplicate it's the most descriptive phrase this side of Sweet Sixteen.

Gloria, Gracie and Esther Ridgeway — a talented trio who blend vocal and kindred harmony as the Luv Bugs — have not stopped oohing and aahing since June.

They've had good reason. In addition to a long stretch of school vacation, they were selected to perform for Detroit's Dept. of Parks and Recreation mobile showcase, which wheeled the best of the town's talent to performing sites at the inner regions of the city.

Enthusiasm also surrounded a trek to New York where the Luv Bugs won the Apollo Theatre amateur contest one night, and were featured in a special production at the Copacabana the following day.

As any dues paying performer will attest, the Apollo and Copacabana have long been legendary as the Alpha and Omega of the show business industry. And rarely, if ever, does a mere 24 hours separate the ascendance from one to the other.

But even at the incredible ages of 12 (Esther), 14 (Gracie) and 16 (Gloria), the Luv Bugs are fast becoming accustomed to sudden surges toward the sweet sound of success.

The show of recognition began in 1969, when the girls entered their first talent contest at the insistence of friends. They captured second prize and an interesting two years followed.

Their mother, who bears proud testimony to their tuneful ability, met Della Reese when the singer was making a hometown appearance and convinced her to grant her daughters an audience. Miss Reese gave a listen, was impressed and suggested Mrs. Ridgeway contact Ted White, under whose management another Detroit talent — Aretha Franklin — soared to musical stardom.

The receiving line grew. White brought the girls to the attention of the record world's Gene Chandler. Chandler, in turn, began studio work on arrangements which will appear on the Luv Bugs debut album, due for release later in the year.

Having been reared in a city famed for its music makers, the Luv Bugs have been championed in their pursuits by no lesser pop artistry than members of the Temptations, Martha Reeves, Stevie Wonder, Edwin Starr, the Sweet Inspirations et al.

What is their reaction to the rewarding reputation they're establishing?

All smiles. And, of course, more oohs and aahs.

"This has been the happiest year of my life," discloses Gloria. "The more people we meet, the nicer they are. It really makes you want to try hard to do your best. I've always dreamed of being a top entertainer, and now with work and determination, it just may happen."

The past two months have convinced Gracie, who had decided upon a career as a beautician, that being part of a vocal unit offers unique fringe benefits.

"The feeling I have about styling hair is nothing like the feeling I get when I'm singing," she reveals earnestly. "Then I just feel good all over. But I still would like to operate my own beauty shop. And I want to sing gospel one day too, just like my father (now deceased) did."

Esther, who alternates her chosen career by the hour (first grade teacher, dancer singer), envisions a million-dollar record as part of the group's immediate future. "Then I'll know we're good," she says, "real good."

Until that golden moment, she'll have to settle for the word of veteran peers with twice their years and foresight.

Twice as Golden...

It's a golden achievement for both the sunny Bahamas and four Bahamian musicians whose combo "The Beginning of the End" has been awarded the coveted Golden Disc for the sale of over a million copies of their "Funky Nassau" single. The talented group comprises three brothers, Roy, Ray and Frank Munnings and their cousin, Fred Henfield. Shown proudly exhibiting their Golden Discs to E. John Deleveaux, Director of Administration and Industry Relations for the Ministry of Tourism, are Ray Munnings (left) and brother Roy (center).

How to save on utility bills and get more for your money.

- 1. Turn off lights.

When LBJ started flipping off the lights at the White House, a lot of people laughed. But the truth is, it's a good way to save on your utility bill and cut down on power waste.
- 2. Run your dishwasher only when you have a full load.

This will save on both electricity and water. If your water heater is gas fired, it'll save on your gas bill too. And it's a good way to keep dirty dishes separated from clean ones. Just use the dishwasher as a storage area until there's a full load. It'll also save on your sewer charge.
- 3. Don't leave your refrigerator or freezer open.

It's easy to do. And before you know it, you're in the habit of it. Refrigerators and freezers have to run extra time to regain coldness lost while a door is open.
- 4. Stop dripping faucets.

A leak no bigger than a pencil line can cost you nearly $30 a year. Plus a sewer charge for getting rid of it. Plus electricity or gas, if it's the hot water faucet.
- 5. Leaving town? Cut back the heat. Turn off air conditioning.

You can help pay for the trip with the money you save. In winter, turn back your thermostat as far as it will go. In summer, turn the air conditioning to "Off."
- 6. At night, turn heat down or air conditioning up five degrees.

You'll never notice the difference, except on your utility bill. In winter, an extra blanket is added warmth at a bargain price if you need it. In summer, the house will stay cool most nights.
- 7. Check your insulation.

Adequate insulation will pay for itself time and time again, winter and summer. If you're buying a home, demand six inches in the ceiling and three inches in the walls. But even if you are not, investigate adding some in the attic.
- 8. Buy heating and cooling equipment of adequate size.

The longer equipment has to operate, the more fuel it uses and the higher your utility bill. If your present system is inadequate, check on buying supplemental equipment for better results at lower cost.
- 9. Check your ductwork.

Make sure your ductwork is tightly installed if you're buying a new home. Make sure it hasn't come loose if your home is an older one. If you can stick a pencil lead in a duct joint, you're losing hot or cool air and paying for it on your bill.
- 10. Run full loads in your washer and dryer, except for permanent press.

If you can get by with one run, instead of two, you've saved electricity, water, and some sewer charge. Of course, permanent press should be laundered separately and with plenty of room in the washer and dryer. Also, stains should be removed as soon as possible. Otherwise, load up and save.
- 11. If you have a question, call our home economists or climate engineers.

They are trained and are here to help you. Our home economists (528-4545) keep up with the latest in home appliances, kitchen and laundry planning, and home lighting. Our engineers (528-4141) consult with heating and air conditioning contractors and visit new homes under construction every day. They'll check your plans to build or remodel. Free. Use them.

Every little bit of electricity, gas and water you save, saves on your utility bill. And it helps our electric system in summer, our gas system in winter, our water system the year-round. It means TVA doesn't have to generate the power except when you really need it and want it. It saves high-priced coal and avoids a little air pollution. Every bit you don't use is that much of our country's natural resources there for you to use tomorrow, when you may really need it. Use all you want—but only what you need—sensibly.

News 'N Photos

In the top photo, Memphians get a reminder of what used to be . . . Grand Central Station. Once one of the busiest places in the city, now a has-been reminder of what airplanes have done to change the world. IN THE SECOND PHOTO, this old cart, once used to transport tons of luggage every day, now sits waiting as if to play the role of the old soldier that never dies, just disappear into the sun set. THIRDLY, an elderly blind couple, depict the mood of a lazy summer day downtown, while the rest of the city goes hurriedly rushing by. BOTTOM PHOTO, shows Wilford Jones presenting the singles trophy to Curtis Kendricks (rights) in the South Side Park District's Tennis tourney held last week. Sports Horizon

By BILL LITTLE

Memphis State has had its troubles in early workouts with first string quarterback Rick Strawbridge, still hobbled with a knee injury which hasn't responded satisfactorily to treatment. Steve Leech, who started on offense last year for MSU, could be the quarterback when the Tigers open in Memorial Stadium September 18 against West Texas State. Strawbridge was moved in as the signal caller when Leech was unable to move the team after the first few games last season.

Before fall drills got underway Coach Billy Murphy announced that based on spring practice the quarterback job belongs to Strawbridge. Tiger fans are hopeful that the Vernon, Alabama passer can recover to lead MSU against the likes of Ole Miss, South Carolina, Louisville, Utah State and Kansas State.

There was some good news from the MSU training complex last week when ex-Melrose star James Thompson enrolled in school. Thompson, an All-Memphis Flanker for the Golden Wildcats last season, first announced he didn't plan to play at State. This was during the recruiting season last year when the MSU Black Student Association charged the university with discrimination in dealing with black athletes after track and football star Gerald Tinker was dropped from the track squad.

MSU later hired Eldridge "Pete" Mitchell as the school's first black coach and accepted a list of recommendations from President C. C. Humphrey's committee for improving relationships between the staff and all players. Mitchell coached Thompson before leaving his post at Melrose to accept a position in the athletic office at the Board of Education in 1969.

HOMECOMING FOR ANTWINE

It has been a long time since Memphian Houston Antwine has played on the home soil since departing 15 years ago for Southern Illinois, however, the 275 pound New England Patriot veteran tackle should pick right up where he left off. Antwine was known for his fierce line play when he prepped locally at Manassas. That trademark has followed the New Englander as he has carved his niche among the great professional front fours.

Antwine's running mate at tackle Jim Hunt of Prairie View gives the Patriots over 20 years of experience on defense. Antwine was picked to the All-AFL team four times, making the All Eastern Division squad six times and was picked as the Pat's most outstanding player in 1968 by the players. John Bramlett, another Memphian, was awarded the same honor last year but when Clive Rush departed as coach Bramlett was traded to Green Bay this past summer. Antwine is also the team's player representative. At Southern Illinois Antwine took a fancy to wrestling and was a NAIA champion for the Salukis. In the off season Antwine is a sportswear representative.

The New York Jets will be out to make an impression on the Patriots' heralded Jim Plunkett, solidifying the theory that it takes three years of apprenticeship to step in as a pro quarter back. The Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford should prove to be quite stubborn if fullback Jim Nance can keep the New Yorkers busy attempting to hold him in check. Ezell Jones, originally signed by the Jets two years ago out of Minnesota, will provide some of the pass blocking for Plunkett and veteran Mike Taliaferro. Jones, a Melrose grad, was an academic All-American with the Golden Gophers.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Three pre-season TSD picks appear headed for division titles in the fast closing baseball pennant races. Vida Blue, approaching 25 victories, has made the Oakland Athletics a runaway winner in the American League East. The A's are accepting playoff ticket orders. Baltimore gave its rivals a better chance in the American League East but the Orioles' sick pitchers are well again and that means another title for the city of Baltimore.

The San Francisco Giants have a comfortable lead but the Candlestick Park residents are riding high on the rest of the league's ineptness more so than showing a superior team. Since the Dodgers couldn't overtake Willie Mays and Co. when they had their problems, the Giants look stronger now that Gaylord Perry and Juan Marichal are back on the beam.

Any resemblance of race could develop in the National League East where Pittsburgh has watched St. Louis and Chicago make great strides. Barring a total collapse the Pirates should hit their stride while the Cards and Cubs eliminate themselves in their six games against each other.

The Memphis Pros added two more signed contracts to the fold when Coby Dietrick and Gerald Govan signed last week. Both reportedly received raises. Still the Pros must ink Jimmy Jones, Bob Warren and Craig Raymond as the training camp date nears.

Ford opens grid tests

Registration for the 11th annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition has opened with more than 1,100,000 boys expected to participate in the youth program sponsored by the National Football League and the Ford Dealers of America.

More than 1-million boys have taken part in the program each of the past three years, with over 7 million participants during PP&K's 10-year history.

Registrations are being accepted through September 30th at participating Ford dealerships throughout the country. Registrants must be accompanied by parent or legal guardian. There is no entry fee.

See your local Ford dealer for entry information.

Punt, Pass and Kick pits boys aged 8 through 13 only against other boys their own ages in tests of distance and accuracy in passing, punting and place-kicking a football. There is no body contact during the competition, and participation doesn't impair a boy's amateur standing.

Scoring in each of the six levels of competition is based on distance and accuracy. A boy receives one point for every foot of distance in punting, passing and kicking, while one point is subtracted for every foot off a center line.

How About You?

Can you use savings like these? Shouldn't you be shopping and saving at the Treasury food centers, home of every day low prices, every item!

Says Mrs. Jackson:

"Treasury's Total Savings Program means big savings to me!"

"Mr. Wise, manager of the Treasury Food Center in Whitehaven, asked me to cooperate in a survey of grocery prices. After I'd purchased my regular weekly order at Treasury, he asked me to purchase an identical order at another supermarket in the area and inform him of the difference.

I did make the purchases and while I was confident that the results would prove that I was saving when I shopped at the Treasury Food Center -- I was really surprised at the amount. I'm more than ever convinced that Treasury's Total Savings Program means big savings to me!

Jaycees to sponsor TSU game

Assistant U. S. Federal Attorney Johnnie Johnson, Chairman of the Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce Classic, will be a very busy man between now and Sept. 25, when Tennessee State University and Alcorn A & M College and Al-Memphis Memorial Stadium.

Mr. Johnson said the game is being sponsored by the Memphis Junior Chamber in co-operation with Mid-South Sports, Inc. The Memphis Jaycee Classic provides an opportunity to involve the entire community in a program of national prominence on the sporting scene.

He also said the Memphis Jaycee Classic will be one of the greatest in the History of Memphis Tennessee. "This is the first time such a game has taken place. Over 500 applications for tickets were sent to National and local politicians," Johnson said.

Johnson said graduates of Tennessee State and Alcorn dot the rosters of the National Football League. Whenever these schools meet, it is an exciting clash of grid-iron titans. Playing in Los Angeles last year, for example, they drew more than 50,000 spectators. Ticket applications can be had by calling 275-0853.

Rugged...

"Quarterbacks are my reward," according to veteran defensive tackle Houston Antwine of the New England Patriots. When the Pats lock horns with the New York Jets Sept. 10, in Memorial Stadium over 30,000 fans can decide whether Antwine has an authentic philosophy. Memphis is home to the 11 year veteran and there will be plenty pulling for "Twine" to undress the Jets' quarterbacks who will be fighting for a position left vacant by an injury to Joe Namath. Antwine, at 31 in the twilight of a great career, is a Manassas High graduate.

NCAA OKs closed TV

The National Collegiate Athletic Association has granted a Memphis State University request to televise -- via closed circuit -- the MSU-Ole Miss football game.

WKNO Television will circuit the Sept. 18 night game back to the MSU University Center ballroom. It will not be seen elsewhere.

Dr. Cecil C. Humphreys, MSU president, and Howard Holst, station manager of the community television station on Memphis State's campus, announced arrangements for the production.

Dr. Humphreys said the steps were taken to provide the students who will be unable to get tickets to the sell-out an opportunity to see their team play.

Admission to the 1,500-seat viewing room will be by validated identification card only for currently enrolled students. Non-student dates will not be admitted.

Col. Gabe Hawkins (USAF, ret.), athletic business manager of MSU, said permission was obtained from the University of Mississippi and the Missouri Valley Conference before application for the telecast was made to the NCAA.

Play by play announcement accompanying the black and white telecast will be provided by Jack Eaton of WMC by courtesy of that radio station.
