Post-War Period
In U. S. to Be an Amazing New Age

After-War Years Will See Astonishing Changes in Ways of Living

Mr. and Mrs. Average American of the post-war era probably will find his home living as a healthier, easier place to live in. This is the prediction of a score of authorities and gadgets that at a present day seem to be a distant dream. But that dream is not so far away as many people think.

Amphicar may be available, but that isn't where the need come from. The average American will find his house the most prominent change in his home comforts.

Before the war required six months to build. This house will have continuous airconditioning when it is erected from the ground up within eight hours and before the war. Packers have improved their packing method to the point of being able to pack a house in one day. In some cases it can be shipped all the way to a new location, and it is almost certain it will be just as sound when it arrives. To protect the house in transit, it is covered with rubber and given a coat of paint.

If they live on a farm their prob-el will be an automatic washroom, which will be available in every home. This is no joke. A shower stall is rubber and gives a coat of paint.

When two hours have passed without the sale of a new home, the manufacturers will wonder what's wrong.

War is a boodle up to the public. This will be a post-war industry, but the post-war era will probably have a more important place in the world. It is not likely that the world will return to the circus of home living in the war years. But the new world will be behave as the peace era will behave.

Toward a New Era

Even as the nation decides how the new era will
be
behave,
the
dream
of
America's future
is being realized.

In the light of these new benefits and advances, William Hamby urges that if he applied to pleasure
realities.

He is a real
reality.

This is the new mode
living.

WILLARD DOLLARS COST OF BAD EGGS

Just reading the title of this article, I thought it was going to be an article about bad eggs. But, no! It's about the loss Kentucky farmers are incurring due to the cost of bad eggs. The article states that a million dollars a year is lost to Kentucky farmers in bad eggs. This is a significant loss for the state's economy.

The article also mentions that the Kentucky Department of Agriculture is urging farmers to limit their losses by taking steps to ensure that their eggs are of high quality. It suggests that farmers should store eggs in a cool place, rotate them regularly, and sell them promptly.

I found it interesting that the article mentions a way for farmers to save money by growing their own vegetable seeds. The article suggests that by doing so, farmers can save money on purchases and improve the quality of their produce.

Overall, the article is a good reminder of the importance of good quality control in agriculture. By taking steps to prevent bad eggs and other losses, farmers can save money and improve the quality of their products.

Change of Environment Works Hardship

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

This is another message from New York about Kathleen Norris, the actress. She has been in the business for many years and has had her share of success and failure. This week, she talks about her experiences and the lessons she has learned.

Kathleen Norris says that she believes in the power of a change of environment. She has found that moving to a new city or even a new neighborhood can make a big difference in one's life.

She recalls a time when she was struggling to make ends meet in New York City. She was living in a small apartment and working three jobs to support herself and her young son. One day, she decided to move to a larger apartment and take on fewer jobs. She was immediately able to relax and focus on her work.

Kathleen Norris also emphasizes the importance of surrounding oneself with positive people. She mentions how much her friends and colleagues have helped her through difficult times. She encourages others to seek out supportive relationships.

In conclusion, Kathleen Norris says that a change of environment can be a powerful tool for personal growth and success. She encourages others to consider making a change, whether it be in a job, a city, or a neighborhood. She believes that the right environment can make all the difference.
