Canned Food Rationing Begins in February, As Hoarding Is Outlawed by Federal Officials

Point Plan, As Used In England, Is Adopted For Christmas Buying

PRODUCTION STARTS ON "SECRET TYPE" OF MOBILE WEAPON

Detroit.—Production of a new, still more deadly weapon for the armed forces was disclosed by Army officials yesterday when work on a "secret" type of mobile weapon was started in Detroit. The new weapon is a heavy anti-personnel explosive designed for use against enemy personnel in the field. It is reported to be capable of inflicting severe casualties on a large number of enemy soldiers with a single explosion. The details of the weapon's operation are not yet known, but it is expected to be highly effective against enemy troops.

THE LISTENING POST

I never saw the day after Christmas quite like the one this year. Try, it was a blue Monday, a day of snow and wintry clouds, and I think it might not have been the most pleasant day for the town. But the fact that Christmas was just around the corner made it a little more bearable. I'm not sure what it is about Christmas, but it seems to have a way of taking the edge off even the most bitter winter days.

But before I tell you about Christmas, let me tell you about the week before Christmas. Last week, the town was swept by a wave of buying that we haven't seen in years. People were out and about, trying to get just the right presents for their loved ones. It was a busy time, but I think it was worth it. I'm sure everyone was happy with what they bought.

The merchandise that did not fit or did not suit. There is always a lot of merchandise that is left over from the holiday season. I had expected the day to be quiet, but I was wrong. I thought when rationing first started, it would be driving us to our wits' end, but having to keep track of our supplies, I was surprised to find that people were now pretty well along on their purchases.

I thought when rationing first started, it would be driving us to our wits' end, but having to keep track of our supplies, I was surprised to find that people were now pretty well along on their purchases.

Another thing that was surprising was the size of the automobile traffic. The streets were crowded with people, and it was a busy time. It was a bit of a shock to see how many people were out at the same time. I was not sure what it was about Christmas, but it seemed to bring out the best in people.

The trimmings. All members of the local Masons, including the Rev. B. J. Russell and the Lodge, were urged to come out, and all members of the district to attend.

Canned Food Rationing Begins

Canned food rationing begins today on Lake Street only a few cars were seen, but on Main there was not one. In 1941, the situation was quite different, with a total of 6,000 canned foods being distributed. In 1943, the situation was much worse, with only a few cans being distributed.

MARRIED

Corydon, Ind.—John Smith and Jane Doe were married Saturday morning in the local church. The couple was preceded by the Rev. B. J. Russell and the Lodge, and the bride was given away by her father. The wedding was a simple and intimate affair, with only a few guests in attendance. The couple will return to their home in Corydon, where they will begin their married life together.

NATIONAL HOSPITAL

Five thousand dollars was awarded to the local hospital by the government. The money will be used to purchase new equipment and to expand the hospital's facilities. The hospital is an integral part of the community, and its success is crucial to the well-being of the people in the area.

In Search of Brighter Days

Of course we're not going around in the manner illustrated above; but, we Americans are a peace-loving people and we Americans will and patronage.

And while the season of new hopes is yet with us, let us extend to our friends and customers our New Year's wishes...
