Beets and carrots for fall use or clashing the winter should be sown in late June, or the early part of July, under the same conditions as early greens. Beets will need to be thinned to a row about half an inch apart, and covered with moist soil pressed firmly over the row. When the plants are developed 4 leaves thin to about one inch apart. One ounce of seed will cover a row about half an inch deep. Suggested varieties are Casley's Early, Dark-Clove, etc. When sowing as late as August 1, sometimes in excess of one ounce of seed should be sowed or pulverized and used for the home garden.对未来天气的不确定性，需要做好准备。
