Former Congressman Gregory

Gregory's Announcement Recalls Long Career Of Influence and Public Service

Noble J. Gregory, who served as Congressman from the First District for 22 years, Monday announced that he will be a candidate for the office in this year's Democratic primary. Mr. Gregory, among the top ranking members of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee when he was defeated, is making the race at the urging of thousands of his friends all over the First District and Kentucky who feel that his wide experience and long-time friendships in the national House of Representatives are greatly needed for the progress and development of their district and State.

Hundreds of Fulton Countians welcomed the news of Mr. Gregory's decision to seek the seat in Congress, which he held for so many years. It is the general consensus among business and civic leaders in Fulton County that had Mr. Gregory been re-elected the $10,000,000 maximum security prison, eagerly sought for this area, would have become a reality. Mr. Gregory passed the necessary legislation to secure the prison for Fulton County. After Gregory's defeat the prison was designated for an Illinois site.

Mr. Gregory's opponent will be Frank Albert Stubblefield of Murray, who was elected by a scant 300 votes in an off-year election. Political observers believe that the tremendous vote expected to be cast in this year's primary will be of great benefit to Mr. Gregory, who has maintained strong ties with important political factions in Kentucky. His announcement today says that he will campaign vigorously and has extended an invitation to his opponent to appear in joint television broadcasts, similar to those employed effectively during the presidential campaign in 1960.

Mr. Gregory's complete statement concerning his candidacy follows:

Reaching a decision to enter the May Primary for Congress and for the seat which I held for many years is as a result of long, careful and thoughtful consideration. A great number of people suggested this to me two years ago and after pondering the question, I de-

Flash Fire Ruins Singer

BULLETIN

A fire, apparently of "flash" proportions, completely ruined the stock and fixtures of the Singer Sewing Center and Kellena's Hat shop on Main Street Wednesday evening. Damage will run many thousands of dollars.

Fire Chief "Nemo" Williams told the News Thursday morning that the fire had consumed the building in a brief ten-minute period from the time that Singer employees left the building at 6:10 until the fire department across the street was notified by passerby at 6:20. While the fire trucks were being driven from the station house, an explosion of some sort, possibly from intense heat, blew out all of the large plate glass windows across the front and side of the building.

In the brief ten-minute interval, the intense heat from the fire ate through the ceiling, melted an aluminum-sheet wall and had managed to spread the length and breadth of the building.

No cause has definitely been fixed, Chief Williams stated Thursday morning. The building is owned by Ray Graham.

'Attic Auction' On WFUL Seeks Cancer Funds

Radio station WFUL will take an active role in the 1962 Fulton County Cancer Drive, when, on April 11, 12 and 13, live broadcasts of "attic auctions" will originate from Hickman.

These auctions, which will be presented each morning at 9:30, will feature antiques and items donated by residents of the surrounding area. All proceeds will go to the cancer fund.

The "kick-off" dinner of the Fulton County Cancer Society cruise was held at the Park Terrace last Wednesday night. Julius Falkoff, chairman of the drive, served as master of ceremonies.

Feed Grain Program Extended To April 14

Because of adverse weather conditions in Kentucky, Tennessee and other states, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has extended the final date of filing 1962 Feed Grain Program applications through April 14.

Farmers may participate in this program by diverting from production at least 20 per cent of their average plantings of corn and grain sorghum for the 1959 and 1960 crop years. This land must be seeded to grass or put to other good conservation use.

Arts and Crafts Train, Due Here May 2, To Show State's Artistry

Kentucky's famous "Arts and Crafts" train will be on display in Fulton on May 2, 3, and 4.

The train shows Kentuckians how to get into the profitable handicraft business for themselves, as well as exhibiting numerous articles made in Kentucky. Some of these fields include weaving, pottery, woodworking, wood carving, dolls, jewelry and other items especially attractive in the profitable tourist trade.

Those students interested in these fields will especially be interested in visiting this train and talking to the State representatives who will accompany the train. Students will have the chance to learn more about their individual opportunities.

The "Arts and Crafts" train was assembled jointly by participating railroads in Kentucky and by Paul Hadley, assistant in the Development whose special field is Kentucky handicrafts.

The train is being brought here under the auspices of the Twin City Development Association. Mr. Hadley is inviting all citizens in the area who are interested in the arts and crafts program in this area to join him in making the local visit a success. He invites them to call on him at the train site so that they might discuss

City Rejects Library Request; Two Clubs Refute Charge Police Hurting Business

At the request of the Fulton Board of Commissioners, Attorney Rodney Miller investigated the legality of the city making a contribution to the Woman's Club Library Fund and the attorney advised that such a donation was unlawful. This information was made known at the Commission's meeting Monday night. Records at the City Hall indicate that the contribution to the local library has been made almost since the organization has been formed. Except for last year when the city donated $150 to the library, a total of $60 per year has been allocated for the general expense. The $300 request made of both Fulton and South Fulton was not brought up before the South Fulton City Council Monday night.

The meeting also revealed a sharp contradiction by two local clubs that the Fulton police force was "over-zealous" in its enforcement of traffic violations charged in an official letter from the Twin City Development Association. Meeting in official session last week the Fulton City Commission, complaints that many tourists and shoppers were avoiding the city because the local police were allegedly handing out traffic citations indiscriminately. Dewey Johnson, president of the Young Men's Business Club and Paul Kasnow, president of the Jaycees wrote letters to the Commission commending the work of the local police. Mrs. Ward Bushart is president of the Twin City Development Association.

Chief of Police Duck Smith presented figures showing that only 56 traffic citations were made during March. Attempting to analyze Chief Smith's figures, City Manager R. B. Baxter advised a News reporter on Wednesday that the official records were locked up and would not be available until the police chief returned from a fishing trip.

Commissioner Bill Rice made a motion endorsing the work of the police force.

All Commissioners voted "yes" on the motion, while Mayor Gilbert DeMyer abstained.

In other action the Commission adopted an ordinance creating a board of equalization and appointed Guy Gingles, H. E. Perce and Mrs. Ruth Covington to that board.

M. E. (Butch) Simons was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Zoning and Adjustment Board. Paul Harris was appointed foreman of the garbage department and the Commission voted not to pay a bill to Ted H. Climer that has been in dispute for some time.

City Manager Baxter asked that the Jeep that is used for mosquito spraying be repaired and repainted, and that the City purchase 200 feet of fire hose. Both requests were granted.

Upon recommendation of the Planning and Zoning Commission the Commission zoned the Deepwood Subdivision as R-1.

An ordinance was passed making Collins a stop street where it intersects Mears street.

A special cemetery fund was set up with all monies coming in from the sale of lots, etc., from the cemetery going into that fund. The price of lots were set at $200 and $300 and the rate for grave digging was set at $20.00 for both cemeteries.

A letter from Frank Welch resigning from the Planning and Zoning Commission was read and accepted.

Several firms of engineers were on hand at last night's meeting making a bid for the contract to build either a Lagoon or a Sewage Disposal system for the City of Fulton.

After hearing one firm the Commission moved to adjourn to meet again Friday night, April 6, to dispose of the matter.

Six Prominent Fulton Countians Head 'Wyatt For Senator Campaign' Here

C. Bondurant, Judge Bondurant, a long time friend and supporter of the senatorial candidate will be associated in the county organization by Julius Falkoff of Hickman and Hugh Fly of Fulton.

At the same time, Shelby Kinkead, Mr. Wyatt's campaign manager said that Mrs. Ward Bushart of Fulton will serve as chairman of the women's division and will be associated in the activity with Mrs. Fred Stokes, Jr. of Hickman and Mrs. C. H. McDaniel of Fulton.

The announcement of Fulton County's campaign organization for Wyatt was made from Wyatt for Senator Headquarters in Louisville, by J. D. "Jiggs" Buckman of Shepherdsville and R. Jack Reynolds, Mt. Sterling, co-chairman of Organization for the Wyatt campaign.

Senator Kinkead and Mr. Wyatt expressed great pleasure that these six prominent and outstanding citizens will organize the voters for a Wyatt victory. "We are convinced," Senator Kinkead said, "that the Democrats of Kentucky will nominate Wyatt by a tremendous majority in the primary and that all Kentucky will send him to the United States Senate in November."

Buckman and Reynolds said that "these appointments and the organization in Fulton County, to-

Mr. Will McDade's Passing Recounts Life Of Man With Staunch Friends

By Jo Westpheling

Ever since we have been in Fulton, and November rolled around, we knew that all the McDades looked forward to a Sunday when kith and kin would gather to celebrate the birthday of venerable Mr. Will McDade. Mr. Will looked forward to this day perhaps more than anybody. Because it was a time when he could be surrounded by his great big devoted family. Not one, of the many of them, had any other thought, but that they wanted to be there with him, too.

For several years Mr. Will has been in failing health. His illness was gradually taking his strength, and like many of the staunch, pioneer citizens of this area, he knew that he had lived a full and useful life and was prepared for the inevitable. But though he knew these things his one hope was that he could celebrate once more the event that he cherished so much, and that was another November birthday celebration.

Last year as his birthday neared he seemed to gain renewed strength and when the day came to pass, Mr. Will was here at the home of his son, Maxwell McDade, greeting all his old-time friends and sharing the happiness that comes with the warm hand-clasps of devoted friends and family. He was a happy man. When we visited with him and took pictures of him and the four generations of his family that gathered around, we could not help but notice that Mr. Will had a feeling that his mission was accomplished.

Last Saturday night, just as he had lived for 90 years, he passed away quietly in his sleep. To the end he was kind, and devoted and solicitous of the attention that had been paid him all during his illnesses. He was a gentleman of the old school of southern aristocracy. He had so many friends because he had the rare ability to be a friend and he was happiest when he was visiting around and being

Young and Old Find Friends In Books At Woman's Club Library

By Karen Dublin

"I was feeling sorry for myself because I had no shoes, until I met a man who had no feet," is a saying often used to remind people that life is worth living no matter what the circumstances. If you contemplate this saying long enough and apply the thought to the Fulton Woman's Club library the reader can be reminded anew of the tremendous service the library offers to the twin cities.

Indeed, no one can realize fully the vital need of a library in Fulton until one views, personally, the dozens of little children and adults, too, who stream into the Woman's Club building each week to fill their hunger for reading. For in hundreds of home in the Fulton area the ownership of books is rare indeed. But thanks to a group of dedicated people, who have literally begged and borrowed to keep the thirst for reading satisfied, there's a place where Mother Goose, the Ancient Mariner, William Faulkner, Alfred Lord Byron, and great men of letters past and present become real friends to the people who want to know them.

Such a library is the Fulton Library, organized and sponsored by the Fulton Woman's Club. Although the Woman's Club pays most of the operating expenses, for the 4600-volume library, they have relied on state and county aid for books and city aid for additional expenses such as librarian salary and supplies.

The state and county aid is still assured to the group. The combined total of $600 will provide approximately 100 new volumes each for the Fulton library and each for the Fulton library. As the Hickman library, also a Woman's Club project, but the city aid for the local library has been discontinued as of this week and a financial problem is anticipated in the very near future.

In order to make up for this deficit in funds, the library backers are already looking ahead to a future drive in which they hope to gain the finances needed to keep the library in operation.

Unless these funds are received, the 1700 subscribers at the local library may suddenly find themselves without the veritable "fountain" of information which has served this town and surrounding area for over twenty years.

The library was first opened by the Woman's Club in the old Chamber of Commerce office on Main Street. Mrs. Howard Edwards was the first librarian. As the Woman's Club grew, so grew the library, and very soon, both had moved into the brand-new building on Walnut street.

In the next few years, Mrs. Wilmon Boyd became librarian, new volumes were continually added, and the popularity of the library grew steadily.

The present librarian, Mrs. John Daniels, has served in this capacity since 1949. Mrs. Daniels opens the library each Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. and remains until 5 p. m. Her busiest days are Tuesday and Thursday, when, she states, there are as many as twelve to fifteen people at a time in the library during most of the afternoon.

Especially enthusiastic about the library are the school children who check out books relating to their academic subjects and also books for plain and simple reading pleasure.

For the pre-schoolers, there are books geared to capture the imagination and interest, including gaily illustrated story books about animals and "choo-choo" trains. With the adults and older students in mind, the library has a well-stocked supply of popular best-sellers in both fiction and non-fiction fields.

Some of the newest additions to the Fulton Library are: "Profiles In Courage," written by President John F. Kennedy; "Lives of the

Many Cities Change Opening Night From Saturday To Friday; Local Workers Interested In Change

This week in Russellville, Kentucky the Retail Merchants Association is changing its "open nights" operation to Friday night instead of Saturday night as they have been doing for many years in the past. Of recent date we have heard many employees in the Fulton area express the wish that perhaps the Fulton Retail Merchants Association would consider the same change.

Many, many of the employees in Fulton's industrial operations, all of whom get the News each week, have asked us to bring this matter to the attention of the local merchants and gave us many valid reasons why staying open on Friday nights would be a great help to stimulating business and moreover, to keep the biggest part of the payroll right at home.

Workers say that if the stores were to remain open on Friday nights, which is usually pay day in this area, they could go right from work with their pay check and buy the commodities they need, pay bills, and shop at leisure. It would give them an opportunity to stay home on Saturday and take care of the household chores that have accumulated all week, and for the hundreds of women workers in the area that would be a big help.

Many workers have told us, in words to this effect that: "When we get paid on Friday we generally know what we need, what we plan to buy, and what bills we intend to pay. We are already dressed for shopping and it would be a simple thing for us to go right from work to get these chores done. Even if we don't get right from work, we could plan to eat out, rest awhile and then get our shopping and other business done."

They add another important item that should be of great concern and deserves the earnest consideration of our local merchants. Here's what they say:

"Since we can't get our shopping done on Friday evening we go home and work harder than usual so we can get out on Saturday and spend our pay checks. Since we have to get out on Saturday there's always the temptation to take a little trip out of town to see what the other cities are offering and before you know it we're shopping in Union City, Mayfield, Paducah, Dyersburg or anywhere the urge sends us."

And that's the truth if we ever heard it.

In Russellville it was generally agreed that Saturday night shopping is rapidly declining, and the move is being taken with this in mind.

Customer demand and customer convenience were the prime factors in the change, a spokesman for the Russellville merchants said. Shoppers are not in town on Saturday night, and other cities and towns have discovered they prefer Friday night buying.

In connection with the change, big plans are being made by Russellville merchants. To stimulate interest, each week individual stores will offer "specials" from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. These will be items offered at real savings. Also, prizes will be given in most stores, with one grand prize to be given each week, from the combined group.

"This is the beginning of big things for Russellville, similar to the Extra Value Days of other nearby cities," a Russellville merchant said. "We intend to prove our town is the best place to shop," he continued.

Many Fulton and South Fulton merchants have evinced an interest in the change, others are opposed to it.

For our opinion we'd say it's worth a try. Perhaps a trial period of one month might determine the right night to close.

We remember the howl that was raised in some quarters when local merchants voted to close early on Christmas Eve. The early closing was tried and the net result was that everybody knew they had to get organized a little earlier, and they did, and now it's in working order.

Think this deserves your consideration, Mr. Merchant? How about all you workers who get the News, letting either us or the Retail Merchants know how you feel about it. They'll be judged accordingly, because whatever the customer wants the merchant tries to give.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of THE CIVIL WAR DAY-BY-DAY (Material is from publication of exactly one hundred years ago; original wording from references in the Library of Congress, Washington. Reporting in the papers was usually very one-sided; we seek to be fair in coverage and preserve a national balance. . . . ED.)

BY WILLIAM H. McHENRY

First week in April, 1862

Many history books never mention the Battle of Pea Ridge, or Elkhorn Tavern. The news came to the east by courier, the Union army had penetrated the Ozark Mountains of Southwest Missouri and into Arkansas, and it took weeks for the news to return. In the East there had been the all-important battles between the U. S. S. Monitor and the C. S. S. Virginia.

And yet, Pea Ridge practically destroyed the Confederate army of the far west. The battle lasted for two days, and ended with the Confederates in full retreat. There were 11,250 Union troops in the battle, and they suffered 1,384 casualties in killed, wounded and missing. The Confederates had 14,000 men and suffered only 800 casualties.

Missouri had, before Pea Ridge, been in serious danger of being overrun by the Confederates. This battle ended serious but not all threats of Missouri. (Missouri, like Kentucky, Tennessee, and Maryland, was torn by internal strife; with thousands of citizens joining each side of the struggle.)

Pea Ridge had another serious meaning to the South. Johnston and Beauregard, in planning the battle of Shiloh, had expected to have the troops under Van Dorn join them. Pea Ridge, however, left the Confederate forces in Arkansas in such condition that they were unable to arrive at Shiloh in time to help the South. Had they been there, the result of that fight may easily have been a different one.

Of particular interest in the Pea Ridge Battle was the use of 3,500 Indians by the Confederacy. At the beginning of the movement toward secession the South had treated with the Indians who had been moved from lands east of the Mississippi to Oklahoma. These Indians, upon being offered the same bounty for supporting the South, had agreed to fight the North. At Pea Ridge, however, the disciplined Union soldiers broke the charge of the Indians, and the redmen left the field.

The Confederate commander at Pea Ridge was Van Dorn. The next two commanders were Sterling Price and Ben McCulloch.

The troops under Price and McCulloch failed (just as the Union troops at Wilson's Creek had failed the year before) to co-ordinate their movements. In addition, the Missouri and Arkansas troops were ill-equipped, and were hard to discipline. The battle ended in a route which saw many Confederates leaving the field to never fight again.

McCulloch was killed. His son, Col. McCulloch, was killed by an Illinois private during a solitary duel in the brush. Young Col. McCulloch, said, the newspapers, wore a uniform of black velvet, high black patent-leather boots, and wore a huge white Texan hat.

Halleck ordered the Union commander and victor, Gen. Samuel R. Curtis, to not push for into Arkansas. Van Dorn reorganized the Confederate remnants at Van Buren, Arkansas.

In late February after the Donelson disaster, Johnston had led 10,000 Confederate troops south through Nashville. Gen. Bragg brought in all the Confederates from around New Madrid and Columbus. With the Confederates under Van Dorn, the Confederate high command expected to have at least 40,000 men to strike the encampment of the Union army at Pittsburg Landing on the Tennessee River.

Van Dorn was not able to make it. His small army had to cross two states, the Mississippi River, and there were no boats. At the wide river there were no boats. Albert Sidney Johnson's hastily assembled Confederates had to fight and seek to defeat Grant's army without the men from the west. And as we shall see, they almost made it.

This writer has searched six history books for a description of the Battle of Pea Ridge. In only two of the books was the battle mentioned. And yet, at Island No. 10 which fell to the Union gunboats on April 7, there was much publicity. There were plenty of newspaper reporters, and the commander of forces there, Gen. Pope, was a man who liked publicity. It would be Pope who would be called east to defend the City of Washington, and to whom Stonewall Jackson would teach something of the art of war. Away out in the southwest, the Confederates had defeated a smaller U. S. force at Santa Fe on March 4. At Apache Canyon, March 28, the Southern forces were defeated and driven from New Mexico.

What does a railroad really do?

What does a railroad do besides operate trains, get more business and keep itself financially healthy and growing?

A good railroad looks beyond itself to those who depend upon it, to every community and individual along its lines. Without railroads to move raw materials and finished products, factory payrolls would shrink, store shelves would go bare. Few automobiles and trucks could be built. There would be little coal to generate electricity for homes and businesses.

This is no exaggeration. The foundation of the American economy is economical mass transportation. Railroads are an indispensable part of that foundation. No other transport offers such varied and economical service.

So when the Illinois Central works to improve itself, it works for all those who live along the Main Line of Mid-America. Not only for itself does it seek freedom to expand and diversify, but for all those whose growth and prosperity depend upon it.

Lowman's Chances For Senate Are Nil

(The Leitchfield Gazette)

Announcement that Harry King Lowman, speaker of the Kentucky House of Representatives, is a serious candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator this year has caused a considerable amount of speculation. Politics takes queer turns in Kentucky, and this is another example of the implausible materializing.

An alliance between A. B. Chandler and Earle C. Clements is bizarre enough, but they are backing a man who has supported the Combs administration against another man who is a part of the Combs administration. This might make more sense than appears on the surface, since Lowman could get part of the administration support and practically all the anti-administration votes, while Chandler and Clements presumably could deliver whatever votes they continue to control.

Speculation about Lowman's entry into the race mostly concerns what price Chandler and Clements would exact should their candidate win. Astute operators in the game of corraling votes, both men have had reverses in recent years in the political arena and just might be trying to learn if their fortunes are improving. Chandler an avowed candidate for governor in 1963, had no luck at all with the candidates he supported during his last four-year term as governor. If Lowman should win, it would be the first time in a long while a candidate supported by Chandler in a statewide race made it.

The improbable Chandler-Clements alliance is puzzling, considering the manner in which the Chandler administration not only withheld support for the losing Clements candidacy for senator in 1956 but reportedly worked against him. After Clements had regained a measure of prestige when Bert Combs was elected governor in 1959 and appointed him highway commissioner, the abortive truck deal gave the former senator a setback from which he has never recovered.

Lieutenant Governor Wyatt is so strong politically that no coalition could defeat his bid for the nomination and election. There might be some attention paid to importunings of the group attempting to sidetrack his candidacy, but it is safe to assume that most of Lowman's support will come from persons who would have voted for Marion Vance instead of Wyatt in the primary. Mr. Lowman's circle of influence is limited on a statewide basis and is inconsequential compared to that of Wyatt.

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

If you want to get the real facts of life on many subjects sometimes you hit the jack-pot by going to the young folks. Today's young people seem to be mighty well adjusted to the times and at the drop of the hat can give you some good advice on many and varied subjects. In looking through some galleries of type in the back shop this week we found articles written by Ann Bowers and Sandra Cash on a subject that could be termed "how high do you stand in the world?" The articles have to do with such weighty subjects as "Are You Overly Tall or Unusually Short," or something like that, and if you are an adult and have this problem, perhaps you'd like some first hand information on what the teen-agers thing about it. Here are the summations from the "jury of youth."

By Ann Bowers

People look at the advantage of height in many different ways. The tall girl usually wants to be short and the short girl wants to be tall. It is generally agreed that all boys want to be tall.

The main advantage of being tall is that the new style of clothes is more attractive on tall girls. There are disadvantages too, as I well note. Often it is difficult to find a date who will be taller than you when you have on high heels. However, I think the biggest disadvantage is when you are around a group of short people. I always feel huge and awkward.

Short girls look very cute and doll like. They never have any trouble finding a date taller than they. There are disadvantages too, as in every thing else. Not many people are going to listen to a little person telling them what to do unless they look as if he can back up what he is saying.

So you see there are advantages and disadvantages for both cases and only you know which you wish.

By Sandra Cash

As I try to think over why I like or dislike being short, the likes outnumber the dislikes.

First of all and best of all I am never taller than anyone. I don't have to worry whether a date can see over me or whether any one else can either. There is never the chance of anyone calling me names like "Skyscraper" or some other name to embarrass me. Some people naturally think that if one is tall he is more than likely to be clumsy, but I will never have that embarrassing name because I am short.

When I buy clothes there is never the problem of anything being too short. If it is too short there is no use to buy it, but if it happens to be too long I can always take the hem up. I can always make it fit.

But I guess the real reason why I like being short is that I am short and there is no use to complain about it. The most pleasant thought that comes to my mind is the old saying, "The best things come in small packages."

Little Cheryl Kay Nelms was the honoree at a birthday party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Nelms, March 26.

The guests played games and sang "Happy Birthday" as the six-year-old blew out the candles on her cake.

Guests at the party were: Donna and Randy Rushings; Charlotte and Robbie Wade; Debby, Steve and Andy Stephens; Billy, Ronnie and Connie Nelms; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wade; Mrs. Scottie Stephens; Miss Kay Nelms; and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Nelms, the hosts.

Sixteen members and guests of the Sunny Hour Club met in the lovely new home of the Paul Heltsleys on Forrestdale, March 29, with Mrs. Nannie Austin as hostess.

Arrangements of spring flowers, including jonquils, hyacinths, and forsythia, were attractively placed throughout the house.

Following a delicious covered-dish luncheon, routine business was conducted by the president, Mrs. Austin. Each member answered the roll call with her favorite TV commercial. A lovely prayer was read by Mrs. Ella Green. The members voted to donate $5.00 to the Red Cross.

Following the business meeting, the club members and guests enjoyed a social hour with Bingo.

The Friendship Club met March 21 in the home of Mrs. Paul Long for their regular meeting. Mrs. Joe Brockwell and Mrs. Long were the co-hostesses.

The sixteen members present answered the roll with a "short cut to sewing".

The following project leaders made reports: gardening, Mrs. Billy Green; poultry, Mrs. Clar-as new as tomorrow.

The Hickman County Gazette at Clinton gave a good account of Glenn Lane's progress in the banking and investment business and just to refresh your memory we thought we'd print some of the facts about this well known Kentuckian published in that newspaper last week. It said:

"Lane has been associated with the Morehead Bank since July 1, 1937 when he was named cashier after a statewide search for the 'best possible man to be found as cashier'."

"Lane, a native Hickman county, started his banking career in the old First National Bank in Clinton."

As cashier of the Morehead bank he watched it grow from an institution with approximately a quarter of million dollars in assets to more than four million dollars this year.

"In that time the capital stock also increased from $15,000 to $100,000."

"Last year Lane was named president of the bank, succeeding C. B. Daugherty the man who had assisted in the search to find young Lane and bring him to Morehead to work in the bank."

"In addition to his banking activities, Lane conducts an insurance agency in Morehead and is an advisory director of the Life Insurance Company of Kentucky and also of the National Investors Life Insurance Company of Kentucky of which his friend Harry Lee Waterfield is president."

"He is also active in church affairs and served for 11 consecutive years as chairman of the official board of the Methodist Church in Morehead."

"Mr. and Mrs. Lane reside at the home they built on Wilson Avenue in Morehead. They have two daughters, both graduates of Morehead State College, and three grandchildren."

Everybody who likes to cook has some kind of a special dish that they cook enough to make them real experts in the art. Jane Edwards and Margaret Hall have long been famous in the art of making hot tamales, and if you ask us, that must take some real talent. When a hot tamale supper is in prospect for either or both of them it necessitates setting aside a whole day to boil corn chucks, prepare the meat just right and goodness knows how they get the meat in the middle of the corn meal and then go about rolling all of it in a corn shuck without getting drowned in the process.

But they do it and everybody seems to go all out for the delicacy. Last week Margaret and Jane were hostesses to Margaret's bridge club and some guests and from all reports the hot tamales were the best and the party a lot of fun.

It was so good to see Carlos and Kathryn Lannor in Louisville last week-end. This popular, former Fulton County couple joined hundreds of other Kentuckians in visiting at the Wyatt for Senator headquarters, which were formally opened at the Sheraton Seelbach last Saturday. The Lannors have bought a lovely home in Lexington and Bobby and Judy have transferred all their sorority house activities to the Lannom home. Kathryn says that except for the greek sign being missing from the outside of the house their home-life is no different from a sorority house. Both Bobby and Judy are members of Chi Omega sorority. Kathryn is always so glad to see us it makes us mighty happy to share the all-too-infrequent visits. Kathryn's mother, Mrs. Fanny Rodgers visited with the Lannoms a couple of weeks ago and it was surely ole home week in Lexington.

Stanley Jones came up to the opening in his private plane and from all indications we hear that Stanley is as cautious and as capable a private pilot as you can find, but Sunday's capricious weather had even a pro like Stanley in something of a swivet. Sunday's snow-rain-sunshine weather had all fliers in a dither and from what we hear Stanley said that his flight home was about as bumpy and rough as he's ever had. We would rather imagine that Stanley was as calm as could be in such a situation, but Carmi Page, Angelo Murchison and Harry Hancock won't say as much for themselves. Some folks say that you're six times safer in the air than you are driving an automobile, but for the avid on-the-grounders that's a hard story to sell.

Mrs. Forrest McMurry was hostess to the Central Homemakers Club this week with 13 members present. The program for the day was given by Mrs. J. P. Wilson and Mrs. J. W. McGough. The first of a series of lessons on family living was presented on "Getting Along with Others."

The leaders used a poster comparing the personality of a person with an iceberg, which created a little interest as well as help in understanding ourselves.

The highlight of the day however, was in the recreation when Mrs. W. B. Sowell showed films in color made of the Sowell home on the Christmas tour as well as their celebration of Christmas with their family and friends.

The Welfare Workers Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. Roy Watts on March 28 at 10:30 A. M. with Mrs. Lucille Ogden as co-hostess.

The president, Mrs. Roy Watts, called the meeting to order. The song was led by Mrs. V. L. Phillips. Mrs. Lucille Ogden gave the devotional. Mrs. Carl Kimberlin read the club creed. Roll call was answered with plans for short cuts on sewing, with 15 members and four visitors, Mrs. Dewey Nelson, Mrs. Herman Potts, Mrs. Theron

Jones and Mrs. Eva Williams. Mrs. Guy Finch read the minutes and Mrs. Harry Watts gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Joe Larsen gave an interesting lesson on the basic skill in sewing. The meeting adjourned for a delicious pot-luck meal.

The annual was discussed and planned for April 24. The vice-president, Mrs. Willie Sheridan took over with the project leaders. Mrs. Violet Williams gave poultry. Mrs. Lorenzo Palmer gave gardening and Mrs. Harry Watts gave reading.

Bingo was enjoyed by all with Mrs. Violet Williams and Mrs. Lucille Ogden being the winners. The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Lorenzo Palmer April 25 at 1:30.

Seat belts have long since proved their effectiveness by saving lives in automobile accidents. But new dramatic proof was shown during the Auto Show at the Kentucky State Fairgrounds in Louisville.

Imagine cars rolling, spinning and piling into one another going upwards of 75 miles per hour! What toll in human life and misery would such an occurrence claim on the highways? Yet, not one driver was killed or harmed.

All were wearing seat belts. Of course it's true that their cars were equipped with other safety features designed for racing. But the important fact to drivers everywhere is that the seat belts prevented the racers from being bounced around in their cars with possible serious results.

If skilled professional drivers realize the absolute necessity of seat belts, how can the average "amateur" driver continue to ignore this proved life saver?

Help the Jaycees to save lives by purchasing your approved seat belts now from any Jaycee in your community during JAYCEE SEAT BELT MONTH.

Take heed and live!

The Fulton B & PW club celebrated its third birthday Tuesday evening with a dinner meeting at the Park Terrace. Mrs. Elizabeth Caldwell, Mrs. Lila Hastings, and Mrs. Mattie Rice had charge of the program.

The principal speaker was Mrs. Dorothy Latimer of Union City, who is past president of the B & PW.

Guests were in attendance from Mayfield, Union City, Hickman, and Paducah.

We are always glad to hear of newcomers to Fulton and South Fulton and since the News is a member of the Welcome Wagon International, we get "info" on new members of the community pretty quickly.

We would like to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Ray H. Wallace to their new home at 804 East State Line in Fulton. Mr. Wallace is in the Air Force and will soon be leaving for the Philippines. Mrs. Wallace and her three sons, ages 10, 8, and 5, will stay here in Fulton while he is away.

Mrs. Wallace is a native of Tennessee. They belong to the Methodist church.

with the people he loved and whom he loved and that encompassed nearly everybody who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

Several Novembers ago we wrote a story about Mr. Will. It was the kind of newspaper story that a reporter says "writes itself." The history of Mr. Will's life was inspiring; his ability to work with people and gain their confidence was an incentive to emulate him; his devotion and loyalty to his family and church was the epitome of faith. He was the kind of individual referred to as an unforgettable character and this was evinced on Monday when he was laid to rest, for persons in all walks of life came and paid their final respects to a man they called a friend.

Funeral services for Mr. Will McDade were held at the Hornbeak Funeral Home at three o'clock in the afternoon. His former pastor Rev. J. L. Leggett paid him the eulogy he deserved. Rev. Leggett was assisted in the services by Rev. W. T. Barnes, pastor of the First Methodist Church in Fulton, of which the deceased was a member. Three Fulton High Students Enjoy Taking Music Lessons At M. S. C.

"From The FHS Kennel"

Three Fulton High Students are taking music lessons at Murray. Linda Whitel has been taking voice lessons since the middle of January. She takes her half-hour lessons on Friday afternoons. Linda said, "Besides timely voice training, I am learning many things about music that I never knew existed. The study of voice includes many things besides actual singing. One of the most important factors to be considered while singing is mental attitude. I believe that everyone with the slightest interest in music could profit greatly by taking some type of music lesson. Music lives forever, and the more we know about it, the better we are able to understand and appreciate it."

Barry Adams takes private trumpet lessons from Mrs. Mike Hernon, former FHS band director on Friday afternoons. He feels that these lessons will help him become an accomplished musician in the future. Barry said, "I think that when a person takes private lessons, he has an opportunity to improve under the supervision of a personal teacher. A personal teacher can teach a student many things which a student can not learn in public school music. I enjoy taking private lessons at Murray and I encourage anyone who is interested in music to do the same."

Bob Anderson is taking organ lessons from Professor Winter and voice lessons from Professor Baar on Friday afternoons. Bob has had two years of organ and one year of voice. When asked what these lessons have meant to him, Bob replied, "Through college level instruction, I have been introduced to many of the intricacies and fine points of music." Bob is now the organist and co-chorister of the Trinity Episcopal Church and assistant organist of the Methodist Church, St. Paul's Episcopal Church at Hickman, and the First Methodist Church at Murray. Bob plans to give a joint piano and organ recital here next year.

All three of these FHS students consider it a great opportunity and privilege to be taking these lessons at Murray.

State Board Disapproves Of School Drives

Disapproval of classroom interference by community and school drivers, contests and other out-of-class work has been expressed by the State Board of Education.

Acting on a suggestion by board member Mrs. Francie Armstrong of Henderson, the board decided to send letters to local superintendents and boards, telling them of the State Board's dissatisfaction. Wendell Butler, State superintendent of public instruction and board chairman, said that the teachers, in these letters, would be asked to suggest ways to cut down on the interferences.

"I am of the opinion the sacredness of the classroom is being destroyed," Butler added. He also pointed out that organized athletics now are even being spread to the elementary grades. Fund drives, however, were the main target of the board members' dissatisfaction.

Roscoe Miller, London businessman and board member, said that "fund raising gets downright embarrassing, from the businessman's standpoint." Assistant State Superintendent Sam Alexander added that "On the individual at home, it's bad enough."

Nursing Program Established At Union University

A long-felt need for local professional nursing education will be fulfilled with the opening of a two-year program at Union University at Jackson, Tennessee in September.

Joint announcement by Union University and Jackson-Madison County General Hospital is being made after years of discussion and many months of study and planning on the part of officials of both institutions.

Students enrolled in the nursing program at the University will receive patient-care experience at the hospital at the same time formal courses of instruction are being pursued at the University. This experience, referred to as the "laboratory experience," will be under the direct supervision of nursing education instructors on the University's staff working in close cooperation with the hospital's nursing personnel.

The two-year program is new in Tennessee but has been proved in some 65 colleges and universities throughout the country. Such courses are fully endorsed by the National League for Nursing which is the national accrediting agency for schools of nursing.

Doctors Are Skeptical Of Abundance Of Many New Wonder Drugs

Two medical scientists take a highly critical view of the ever-increasing superabundance of pills and other medications said to lessen illness, improve health and prolong life.

Too many people, including physicians, are being kidded and are kidding themselves, said Drs. Mindel C. Sheps and Alvin P. Shapiro of the University of Pittsburgh. In addressing doctors through a technical organ of the American Heart Association.

For instance, there is the national hullabaloo over cholesterol blood levels, they continued. The scientific evidence that lowering these levels will slow artery-hardening is all circumstantial. Leading scientific authorities hedge their recommendations with many ifs and buts.

Yet anti-cholesterol drugs are multiplying wildly and additional choices for cholesterol lowering are unsaturated fats and low calorie liquid diets. The result is "we have become a 'fat conscious' people" and egg and milk producers suffer.

"The adoption of therapeutic measures and of medical theories on the basis of poorly documented evidence or no evidence at all is of course not a new phenomenon," they said. "The process is, however, out of keeping with our aspiration to make the practice of medicine a rational, scientific endeavor."

There has been a "drug explosion" over the past decade or so, and "for the critically minded physician there is cause for bewilderment." After 15 years of widespread use there still is medical argument over the effectiveness of drugs which keep the blood in a non-coagulant state.

"Hypotensive drugs hailed five years ago are discarded as newer and seemingly more potent ones are introduced with the same fanfare," they continued. "Through various media the physician is assured to tranquilize and to recise and motivate his cardiac patient, while particularly disturbing to him are the occasions when treatment of one symptom results in a new set of side effects requiring additional medications."

Furthermore, there has been no real improvement in mortality statistics for artery-heart diseases despite the multiplication of drugs for their treatment, they said.

In their view the medical profession should be much more critical of new drugs. As it is now these "new remedies are adopted rapidly and apparently widely at times in the face of poor or inadequate evidence. Many of these remedies, helpful or not, are not innocuous but produce unpleasant side effects, toxicity and sometimes even death.

"Individually or collectively, the members of the medical profession must accept their responsibility for therapy," they said. "In the short term a great deal might be accomplished if we took seriously a variant of the war-time admonition: 'Is this prescription really necessary?' In the long term, we need to take the initiative to ensure that the control of therapy will remain where it belongs — in the hands of scientists."

Employers Seek Top-Rate Workers; Selling Yourself Helps Gain Job

From the FHS "Kennel"

You are a citizen of a free nation. As an American youth you are fortunate to be able to plan your future in a growing nation. However, despite our country's growth, the employment of youth is limited and therefore when you apply for a job you must do your very best. An employer today looks for only the very best.

Now you are about to complete your education. Many of you want a job. Perhaps you have been impatient to get out of the classroom and see what the working world is like. You want to feel just a little more independent—that independence that comes from having your own money and not having to go to Dad.

Good! But don't run out and try to get the first job you hear about. Stop and think. Anything you undertake needs some planning. You need to work out your strategy in advance.

You must think about selling yourself. Think in terms of your value to the employer. He doesn't owe you a job; you must prove that he needs you as much as you need the work.

First you must find where the sources of jobs are. Here are a few suggested places: go to your local State Employment Office for facts about job opportunities; go to your relatives, friends, and neighbors for information about possible jobs; go to the "want ads" in the local newspaper.

Now that you have found where to go, you will divide your job campaign into three main parts:

1. The Application
2. The Interview
3. The Follow-up

The application may be either one of two kinds—either an application blank or a letter of application. If you are in a field of work where it is customary to write letters of application, type or write in ink your letter on standard-size white paper. Write to a specific individual, if possible, and state exactly the kind of position you are seeking. Try to make the letter clear, brief, and businesslike; be sure to enclose a description of your training experience, giving dates, and names and addresses of employers and schools. (Ask someone you respect to check your letter before you send it.)

Nearly all places of employment require that you fill out an application blank. It would be advisable for you to ask for copies of application blanks from several firms and practice filling them out. Then when you are ready to fill out your main copy observe the following: read the directions carefully and follow exactly; answer all questions honestly and completely; be neat and accurate. In filling out this application you will be required to give a list of brief or part-time jobs you have held, showing that you have already had some work experience. Have in mind at least three persons that you may use as references. (It is best to check with these persons first.) Also, for a possible question know why you would like to be employed by that company.

When you have your first interview, your personal appearance is of great importance. You should be dressed neatly and not overdressed for the job you are seeking. As you enter don't act like a timid mouse, but assume a businesslike posture. You should be alert and friendly and prepared to answer several personal questions. During the interview there are several things that should be done. Here are some of the most important of them:

• Stress your qualifications for the job and your interest in it.

• Give information asked for. Be sure and let the employer take the lead in the conversation.

• Discuss only matters related to the job.

• Have your identification data, work experiences, references, etc. with you and arrange for easy reference.

• Be realistic in discussing wages. Keep up your courage if the employer doesn't take you. You may not get the first job you seek.

This last statement brings up the third part of your try at a job—the follow-up. If you are not hired don't be discouraged. Try to leave this interview with the door open for further consideration.

But above all don't let this be your only possible source of a job. Keep your contacts alive. Try constantly to make new friends and keep them. By personal work or better, keep them reminded of you.

There is no foolproof plan for finding a job. This plan is not guaranteed but it will work if you just "KEEP TRYING".

AUSTIN SPRINGS

Mrs. Grover True, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rickman and son, Bobby, recently returned from several days visit with their son and brother Ralph True and family, who reside near St. Louis. The young True family own and operate a turkey ranch there, supplying their customers over a large area.

The Red Cross drive around our village is being conducted by Mr. Harvey Donoho and there has been some fine contribution. As always, the fine citizens came forth and did their share.

Mrs. Charlie Vincent is reported some better and is up a portion of the time. Mrs. Vincent has been in failing health for the past few years and under medical care of Dr. John Ragsdale in Fulton. We hope she will continue to improve. Buton Lassiter took advantage of the pretty days last week and got quite a bit of work done on the structure of his tobacco barn. He was assisted by his son, David Lassiter.

Mr. Everett Chambers was stricken very sick last week and is now a patient in the Jones Clinic where he is under treatment and observation. We hope for him a very soon complete recovery.

Get-well wishes are extended to Rev. Charles Vincent who is a patient in Mayfield hospital. He is suffering from an attack of rheumatic fever. The popular young minister serves the Reidsland Baptist Church near Paducah, Ky., and his illness casts a sadness on his congregation as well as all relatives here. He is the son of Mrs. Inez Vincent, Pilot Oak, Ky. We hope he will soon be restored to former health.

Miss Margaret Bynum is doing nicely since her return from Hill-view hospital, after undergoing some minor surgery on her toe, the results of an ingrown toenail and some infection.

All the friends of Mr. Will Buck and family extend their heartfelt sympathy from our village. His death occurred Sunday at Hillview hospital. He was on the critical list for a few weeks and his death removes one of our best-loved citizens.

Mrs. Ed McClain who is a patient in the T. B. hospital in Memphis wishes to express her appreciation to all blood donors and acts of kindness and thoughtfulness during her stay there. We hope she will respond to treatment and be fully restored.

The late heavy rainfall is hindering the farmers extensively around here and, up to now, very little has been done in an all-out effort for that 1962 crop. Fair, sunny weather is wanted.

Mr. H. C. Mitchell is critically ill in the Western Baptist hospital in Paducah, and there is no hope for him at this writing. He is the father of Earl Mitchell. He and a sister, Mae Mitchell, Paducah, are at his bedside. All of their friends here regret to hear of his condition. The aged man is suffering from complications and had an eye removed some two years ago while a patient in Barnes Hospital, St. Louis.

Mrs. Ed Friels has returned to the Eric Cunningham home in Dresden after a two-months visit in the home of children, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mitchell, Paducah.

Around and About

Our Town

By Ruby Neisler

A cheery good morning to everyone everywhere.

It is with very deep regret that we learn that Mr. W. L. Cotrell has resigned his position at South Fulton elementary school, effective at the close of school. He is minister of the Union Presbyterian Church and hopes to devote his time to the work. He and his family will remain in Fulton, for which his friends are happy.

The South Fulton High School chorus went to McKenzie last week where they performed. They had lunch at the Bethel College cafeteria. They were tired but happy when they arrived home and enjoyed the day very much.

We are watching with very great interest as the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Taylor nears completion. They hope to have it ready for occupancy by the last of the month. It is indeed beautiful and will be such an asset to our part of the city.

It is lonesome here now. From the house next door, two of our neighbors are in the hospital, Mrs. Freelan Johnson is in the Fulton hospital and Mrs. Velora Stallins is in Jones Hospital. Hurry and get well and come home neighbors, we miss you.

The home of Mrs. Connie Lynch was a very cheerful and happy place last week as she had as her guest her mother, Mrs. J. W. Dunn, Sr., of Union City. When mother is there sunshine and happiness prevails.

Mrs. Walter Craddock visited her mother Mrs. Connie Lynch last Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Davis is visiting her son, Jimmy Davis and family of Fairview, while her husband is in the veterans hospital in Memphis. We hope Mr. Davis will soon be well and back with his loved ones.

Mrs. Louis Sensing called on Mr. and Mrs. George Winter, Sr. recently.

Miss Marilyn Higgins was the lovely weekend guest of Miss Jessica Sensing.

Mrs. Bob Merrell's friends honored her with a six o'clock dinner on her birthday, March 26. Pot luck was served buffet style. Mrs. Louis Sensing baked the cake, a beautiful white one with Happy Birthday in pink and green letters. After all had eaten, Mrs. Merrell opened her many nice gifts. Those present were: Mrs. Pickering, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Pickering of Harris, Tenn. Roy Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Hawks and Teresa. Mr. Clay Merrell, Mrs. Franklin Hicks and son, Mrs. Louis Sensing and children, Mr. Trevathorn, Mr. Wright, Mr. Jack Hackett, Mr. Bob Merrell. The evening was spent informally. Everyone had a good time and left wishing for Mrs. Merrell many more happy birthdays. I also wish for you many more happy birthdays, Annie.

Mrs. John Binkley fell out her back door last Sunday and broke her collar bone. She is doing very well at home and is her same cheerful self. She has such a wonderful sense of humor and sheds sunshine wherever she goes. It did me good to talk with her this morning. She is my Sunday School teacher and I know the class misses her so much. Hurry and get able to be back in your place, Mrs. Binkley.

I wish to send greetings to you, James Clay Binkley and your lovely wife and daughter, away there in Montgomery, Alabama. Glad you take the News.

Words are too weak to express my appreciation to Mrs. Carl Pirtle of Water Valley, Kentucky for giving to us the history of Water Valley. To me, it brought back many happy memories. Especially of all the grandmother and uncle and aunt, I ever knew. My grandmother passed away there in the autumn of 1916 leaving my little aunt, Minnie Duncan and my uncle Willie, commonly known to the people as Will Duncan. He was at one time postmaster at Water Valley in the early 1900's. My aunt passed away January 1, 1929 and my uncle passed away just four days later.

Their daughter, Sarah Hatchet Duncan was a correspondent for the News when Paul Hornbeak was editor.

The town has grown since then. Mrs. Pirtle tells me they are doing away with all the old land marks and are making a complete new town. Thanks Mrs. Pirtle for your information.

See you next week.

The concert featuring Russell Casper Riepe II, pianist, and Mrs. Riepe, soprano, held at the Woman's Club Building April 2 was very well received by an enthusiastic audience.

In his playing of Bach, Mr. Riepe showed that he was a serious student of good music and his technique and interpretation of Beethoven proved that it had been carefully prepared.

In his playing of the modern composers such as Debussy and Shubert, he reached the height of his performance.

Mrs. Riepe showed a great deal of variety and had good tone and interpretation in her music by Debussy and Copeland.

The social hour which followed the concert was enjoyed by all those attending.

NOBLE GREGORY—

decided not to do it, because of the health of Mrs. Gregory. I did not consider her at that time physically equal to a campaign and the strenuous life of Washington and that of a Congressman's wife. Since that time she has shown remarkable improvement and now after thinking it over and considering every factor, we have decided that it is the thing we should do.

In becoming a candidate for this high office I am fully aware of its responsibilities and if I did not feel that I could measure up to the requirements, I would not consider it. The people of the First District of Kentucky have a considerable investment in my education and qualifications for this position. My experience, I think, would equip me to reassume these duties at the same point where I left off in 1959. Being a Member of Congress is a complex and complicated responsibility and requires long training to be able to achieve the maximum for one's constituency. A person in private life would not employ a mechanic, a lawyer, a carpenter, or anyone else requiring special talent without looking into the background and capitalizing on the experience and qualifications of the applicant. I feel that the same yardstick should be used in employing a public servant in Government.

It would not be hard for me to readjust for I would re-enter with a resumption of long time first-name friendship with the entire leadership of the House of Representatives in whose hands policy making exists. I offer this long experience together with a record of achievement for the inspection of the people of West Kentucky. It was my happy privilege to share in the promotion of many pieces of legislation reacting to the great benefit of all Kentuckians and the Nation. I take great pride in this record of achievement and speaking from a local standpoint, first above these achievements is the construction of Kentucky Dam. No one has yet challenged the part I played in securing its construction. When I cross this Dam I have a feeling of very deep pride and satisfaction when I see the vast recreational facilities, the flood control and navigation benefits, as well as reduced power rates for individuals and which also has brought about the large chemical industry in the Calvert City area resulting in employment for West Kentuckians. In fact, in the campaigns in which I have engaged in the past no opponent has ever challenged or criticized any vote I have ever cast. This within itself I consider as a recommendation on the part of those who have opposed me.

I expect to wage an active and vigorous campaign leading toward the coming Primary and when I return to Washington in January to resume my duties, I will devote to the interest of West Kentucky the same energetic services I have devoted in my previous years. Throughout my long service I was your Congressman. This, I expect to be again, and at no time will it be necessary for you to confer or seek the approval of any secretary or so-called administrative head. I think you elect a person to be the Congressman in his own right.

I am proud of the fact that in my long service I have endeavored to spend public money as if it were my own. I will not load my office payroll with persons who are not actively at work in my office. Each member is allocated a certain amount for office expenditure, but that portion which is not necessarily used reverts to the treasury. I take considerable pride in that in the years of my service I returned to the government unexpended office allowances far in excess of one hundred thousand dollars and more than any other member of Congress had returned in a similar period. At the present time another campaign is going on in Kentucky involving the high office of U. S. Senator. I am a candidate only for the office of U. S. House of Representatives and do not intend to become involved in the Senate race in any way. I expect to have friends who are interested in both of the major candidates for the Senate and at the same time interested in my candidacy. It would be presumptuous to think or ask the Senate candidates to be involved in my affairs, and by the same token, I think it would be highly inappropriate for me to be likewise involved.

Throughout this campaign I would like to confine the issues to absolute facts and it will be my pleasure to invite the incumbent to join me at any time and as often as suits his convenience in TV discussions where all issues may be fairly and freely discussed. TV is a forum by which the entire electorate may be informed and evaluate the merits of the proper employees in government.

In the last few days several fine citizens have evidenced an interest in entering the campaign. However, recent newspaper stories indicate that none of these men will enter, which leaves the race to the incumbent and me. I hope that in the closing, final hours for filing, no "dummy" candidates will be entered for purely political reasons and for confusing the issues.

With a definite sense of appreciation to Kentuckians for their cooperation, confidence and their friendship in the past, I submit my candidacy and with the hope that it may be possible to see as many as possible in person to discuss the issues between now and the Primary date.

Sewage, Salaries Discussed Monday At South Fulton

The sewage treatment plant and city employee salaries were the main issues at the April meeting of the South Fulton City Council Monday night.

A new contract with the Nichols Engineering firm of Union City was authorized in regard to the construction of a sewage disposal plant.

Harold Henderson made the report on the salaries of the city employees and his recommendations were adopted.
