NUMBER TWENTY-NINE

FULTON BULLDOGS BEATEN 38-6 BY TORNADO

Coach Jimmy Bakers Bulldogs bowed to the Tornado in Paducah Friday night with a final score of 38 to 6. The Bulldogs went down battling and gave out all they had against the strongest team of the season. Robert Whitesell, chunky blocking back, who carried his first touchdown across three weeks ago in Huntingdon, again carried the ball over for a marker in the final quarter Friday night.

The Bulldogs held the Tornado to one touchdown in the first quarter, but in the second and third the Tornado punched over two more touchdowns each, leading at the half 19 to 0. The Bulldog score came in the fourth period, with Whitesell going over the two-yard line after a sustained march.

Whitesell and Barron were the chief threats for the Bulldogs and each gained considerable yardage. In the line sector made up by Bobby Parham, Don Sensing and Loyal Hartman, proved as stout as Tighman and held well and also opened up holes nicely on occasions.

This makes the last out of town game for the Bulldogs and three remaining games will be played here. They played Union City here last night for the second game of the season, and Dresden follows this till, with Mayfield winding up the season on November 12.

SOLDIER'S LETTER

The following letter was received by Mr. and Mrs. Millard I. Berry from Major General G. C. Brant of Randolph Field, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Millard I. Berry 206 Taylor Street Fulton, Kentucky

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Berry: In a memorandum which has come to my desk this morning I note that your boy has been classified for Pilot training and that he is being appointed an aviation cadet in the Army Air Forces.

In order to win this war it is vital to have the best qualified men at the controls of our military aircraft. Upon their precision, daring and coolness will depend in large the success of our entire war effort.

The duties of an army pilot calls for a high degree of mental and physical alertness, sound judgement and an inherent aptitude for flying. Men who will make good material for training as pilots are rare. The classification board believes your boy is one of them and that he will in all probability win his wings as a military pilot.

You must realize, however, that all our study of the problem has produced no infallible method of determining in advance whether a young man has the inherent something which will make him a natural and safe pilot. As a result, some pilot candidates are later transferred to other types of military training.

Comprehensive lists indicate that your boy stands a very good chance of successfully completing the rigid training for an army pilot and you have every reason to be proud of him. I congratulate you and him.

Sincerely yours, G. C. BRANT

W. D. Powers and Joseph Gambill were honored with a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Powers Wednesday night. They were recently inducted into the army.

Miss Gene Faucett, who is attending school at Murray, spent the week end in Fulton.

WAR FUND PRAYER

Our Heavenly Father, we have accepted the liberty for which our fathers fought and suffered. Help us to accept the responsibility of preserving our freedom. Help us to know that we have a job to do, a place to fill if we are to continue as a free people.

Let us count the high privilege to sacrifice and to share our money with the boys who daily risk their lives for our protection—for the seamen who sail our ships—for the care of homeless refugees who need the bare necessities of life.

Help us to remember that in giving to the War Fund, we obey the will of Him who said, "I was in prison and ye visited me. I was hungry and ye gave me meat. I was sick and ye ministered unto me." Grant us wisdom and courage and the power to help our own and our fighting allies in the fight to set men free.

WAR FUND DRIVE IS NATION WIDE

Lexington, Ky.—With all of the 120 counties mobilized for the Kentucky War Fund drive for $1,419,300 to be raised beginning last Friday, Oct. 15, Dr. Frank L. McVey, chairman, named Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War Number One hero, as Speaker for the opening rally, Oct. 21, in Harlan County.

Sergeant York accepted the invitation to open the Kentucky War Fund drive in the eastern section of the State. Declaring that democracy is worth fighting and talking for, Sgt. York said: "I have made a great many talks since the last war, but the National War Fund represents one of the most important battles of the present war to be fought and won at home. Our soldiers and our allies who have withstood untold horror since the beginning of the war, must have our support."

Included in the National War Fund appeal are the USO, Merchant Seamen's Service and War Prisoners' Aid which will get at least sixty percent of the money raised, Dr. McVey said. The foreign relief agencies admitted to the drive include prostrate Poland, heroic China, indomitable Russia, defeated but unconquered Greece, sturdy Holland, the courageous British and others.

Dr. McVey pointed out in calling on all citizens of the State to support this patriotic and humanitarian drive that the National War Fund operating through State organizations, makes it possible to meet in an orderly and effective way human suffering and need, to prevent disease and death, to provide counsel, guidance and comfort, and to work together with our boys on the fighting fronts, to keep America free and to help all of the nations fighting for freedom.

RONALD T. NUGENT AT MASSACHUSETTS STATE COLLEGE

T. Sgt. Ronald T. Nugent, R. F. D. No. 2, Crutchfield, Ky., aviation student, Army Air Forces, is now a member of the 58th College Training Detachment (aircrew) at Massachusetts State College.

Aviation Student Nugent, in company with hundreds of other potential aircrew men stationed at the college, is taking courses in geography, physics, mathematics, medical aid, English, history, civil air regulations and physical training as a preliminary to later assignment to a school of the Flying Training Command for intensive training as a pilot, navigator, or bombardier. Ten hours of elementary flight training is given at a nearby flying field.

Members of the State College faculty are teaching the aircrew "students" who use regular college classrooms and laboratories as part of their training program.

Aviation Student Nugent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar T. Nugent, graduated from Crutchfield High School in 1936 and was employed in farming until the time of his induction into the Army in October.

10,244 CANS FILLED AT CAYCE SCHOOL COMMUNITY CANNERY

Interest shown in the Cayce Community Cannery is greatly increasing. To date 10,244 cans have been filled. Pauline Waggoner, Home Economic Teacher and James T. Roberts, Agriculture Teacher, are co-supervisors with Mrs. S. A. Waggoner as assistant.

Under the War Production Training Program 112 families have canned at the cannery and many others have received instructions by helping those canning. Some out of Kentucky have taken advantage of the cannery while visiting home-folks in Fulton County. They were from Illinois, Tennessee, Georgia and Texas. The ones canning from Kentucky have come from Arlington, Columbus, Clinton, Water Valley, Fulton, Hickman, Crutchfield, Cayce and other vicinities.

A large variety of foods have been canned. They are as follows: Green beans, english peas, beets, apples, lima beans, corn, greens, black eyed peas, white peas, okra, tomatoes, tomato juice, peaches, peach preserves, fried chicken, chicken stew, chicken noodles, soup mixture, pears, carrots, pimientos, grapes, apple sauce, apple cider and pumpkin.

A new cannery building will soon be under construction.

NEW TEACHER ELECTED FOR CARR INSTITUTE

Mrs. G. H. Duley was elected teachers of the overflowing fifth and sixth grade of Carr Institute at the meeting of the Fulton Board of Education Tuesday night. It was necessary to add a new teacher to the staff, due to increased enrollment in these two grades. Mrs. Duley has been teaching for the past two weeks.

New chairs were purchased for the Board Room and Maxwell McDade was appointed to investigate the possibilities of permanent bleachers at Fairfield park.

It was decided to have a Grand Opening of the new Carr Institute building during the week of November 8. There will be guides to show visitors through the building, followed by a program in the main auditorium.

BENNETT ELECTRIC GETS NEW PAINT JOB ON FRONT

Bennett Electric has taken on a "new front" with the application of some paint, which adds attractively to the appearance of the store front of this progressive firm. Manager Lowe evidently believes in "practicing what he preaches" that good paint when applied preserves building materials and adds much to the general appearance of property.

GRADUATES WITH HIGHEST HONORS IN HIS COMPANY

Eugene Moore Holmes, Pryorsburg, was graduated recently from recruit training with the highest honors in his company at the U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill. He has been qualified for further training at a Navy hospital corps school. Holmes won several honors in intramural sports while attending Murray State College.

KEEPING FAITH

The average businessman speaks out in the person of Walter L. Kay, owner of the Walkay Fire Protection Co., of Newark, N. J., who in an article in the Washington News Digest says:

"Most of the representatives of both large and small business are alert to their future responsibilities but are hamstrung by the ever-increasing burden of taxation. It is true that the enormous cost of running a war must, of necessity, be paid. A sensible person, however, does not clean his pockets of all money without knowing when or how it will be replenished.

"Business needs 'seed money' to insure postwar jobs. 'Seed money' is that which gives to a business concern the funds which can be plowed back into new machinery, plant conversion, and the production of new goods, which through research, are ready to be marketed.

"I believe everyone agrees that instead of Washington talking about postwar public works that will run into billions of dollars of the people's money, if business were permitted to set aside a percentage of present earnings to create 'seed money' we would truly be keeping faith with our returning servicemen and those now on our industrial pay rolls.

"It is obvious that if business is drained of all reserve funds, new capital will have to be promoted with the consequent delay and the possible 'buy an apple' job for our returning boys of the armed forces in the interim."

FROM THE BOTTOM UP

Along with the acceleration of the action of our troops on the battlefronts, is the increasing volume of postwar ideas which are coming from our nation's leaders. Now is the time for all Americans to study carefully the views of these men and women, for it may not be long before we shall be leaning on them as we make important decisions.

Governor Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, in an article in the Washington News Digest, has this to say of the postwar picture:

The average citizen will look to the postwar world to provide him with a job. Jobs are the basis for all home and family life. They are symbols of the best type of democracy.

"While the retooling from war to peace is in progress, the citizen will expect his government to take up the slack of unemployment. But the citizen will look to private industry as the main source of jobs. This means a challenge to all individuals and groups to exercise the same initiative and imagination in creating tools and new machines in times of peace as we do in war.

"This country has been built from the bottom up and not from the top down. Let us keep it so! The individual citizen wants to feel that he is the most important consideration in his government's mind."

With regard to centralization of power in the federal government, Governor Saltonstall continues:

"Local and state government are close to the people. They always have been and always will be. The very best kind of government is the old town meeting where a man could blow off steam once a year. When peace is declared, Washington must again become the bridge of our Ship of State—not all the gun turrets, engine room and galley combined—the most effective help which Americans have known from 1620 to 1943 is help to help themselves. People inevitably become fed up with the mistakes of a tremendous, administrative bureaucracy, constantly interfering with individual actions."

POSTWAR PLANS FOR GOVERNMENT PLANTS

To be added to important ideas and plans now underway is the testimony of Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator and Secretary of Commerce, before the House Small Business Committee.

He told the Committee, which is considering the postwar disposal of surplus government property, that the seven billion dollars' worth of government-owned plants should not be permitted to compete with private enterprise after the war.

Mr. Jones said definitely that he favors legislation that would give local industry the first chance to buy these plants and convert them to the manufacture of peacetime goods. Further, he asserted, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would be ready to help local business purchase plants after the government had no further use for them. "These plants should not be sacrificed or junked," he said, "by and large they can be used for manufacturing things necessary for our peacetime economy."

Plans made now for postwar disposal of these plants are by no means premature. They are necessary from the point of view both of the businessman and the taxpayer. The businessman must know if he will have to face government competition. And more important, the taxpayer should know now so that he will not later find these public plants dumped on the market to be sold wholesale to designing persons who hope to make fortunes at government expense.

Sane planning now for orderly disposal later will prevent either disastrous aftermath.

DOWN OUR ALLEY

Time To Watch Our Step

Mussolini first made the world conscious of the word Fascism, although the aims he sought under that title are as old as history.

Fascism has been bittily described as the "philosophy that political officeholders should run the people, instead of the people running the political officeholders."

Mussolini sought power for officialism under one brand of ballyhoo. In our own country, we have witnessed the drive to glorify officialism carried no under another brand of ballyhoo.

The National Resources Planning Board program presented to Congress proposes the formation of a Federal agency or corporation "to guide the development and use of electric power in the public interest."

In the United States, electric power has already reached the highest peak of development and serves a greater portion of the population than in any other country. It didn't take tax-exempt government industries to accomplish that result.

Within the program of the Board are the blueprints for ultimate government ownership or control of many of our basic industries, following absorption of the electric industry.

It is not yet too late to block the flowering in this country of the philosophy that "political officeholders should run the people." ed, the power that Mussolini once wielded over the people of Italy under the term "Fascism" will be child's play alongside the power of officials who control the basic industries and the natural resources of the United States under government ownership.

While the present drive for national socialism is apparently aimed at the electric industry, its consummation could only mean destruction of individual liberty and opportunity. The taste of official restrictions we have experienced as a war necessity is but a sample of restrictions we would be subjected to if bureaucrats dominate in the management of our future industrial-political structure.

Prices Inevitably Follow Wages

With the milk, butter and cheese situation daily becoming more critical, not to mention many other agricultural crops.

"Food scarcity could have been avoided had the government treated the problem as realistically as it has the problem of producing tanks, planes and ships," Fred H. Sexauer, President of the Dairy-men's League Cooperative Association says:

"To obtain the materials of war, the government has followed the policy of paying prices for equipment that encourage manufacturers to expand their facilities and production. In the case of agriculture, particularly dairying, the policy has been just the opposite.

"Limiting milk sales will not cause any increase in production.

"THERE WAS I A-WAITING AT THE CHURCH"

The only way that a greater reduction in the supply of milk can be prevented is through a price to producers that will enable them to meet steadily rising costs of production."

Food World's No. 1 Problem

Farmers and the food sellers find themselves in a boat which is being so overloaded with price restrictions and regulations that it is close to foundering.

Albert S. Goss, President of the National Grange, says:

"Food is rapidly becoming the world's number one problem. We are waking up to the fact that the United States has not been feeding itself for the past ten years; that we have imported more food than we have exported. Because of some very unwise OPA policies, we are prevented from raising the maximum amount of needed food. The average farm prices are high enough. Some commodities may be too high, while others are definitely too low.

"The OPA is supplanting the laws of nature with the laws of the swivel chair. The mistake is made of violating all laws of economics by trying to force all prices into a common mold. When we set ceilings based on average costs, we strangle the production of those commodities with costs above the ceilings, and create shortages. A frost may take 90 per cent of the Georgia peach crop, and if we try to hold Georgia peach growers to the same price level as in an area with a bumper crop, the Georgia peach growers will go broke. These unworkable directives create impossible conditions which will eventually blow up."

Medicated Political Candy

Along with numerous other measures which fall into the sweeping classification of social progress legislation, is the Wagner-Murray Senate Bill 1161. The fact that it makes provision for free general medical, special medical, laboratory and hospitalization benefits for 110,000,000 people in the United States, makes it popular political candy.

The measure is just another step in the totalitarian government theory of cradle-to-grave domination of the individual. It would give the Surgeon General of the Public Health Service the power to hire doctors and establish rates of pay; to establish fee schedules for specialists; to determine the number of individuals for whom any physician may provide service; and to determine arbitrarily what hospitals or clinics may provide service for patients.

The bill provides that employers pay a tax on wages paid to individuals up to $3,000 per year, of 6 per cent; that employees pay a tax deducted from wages on earned income up to $3,000 a year, of 6 per cent total of 12 per cent on pay-rolls; that self-employed individuals pay a tax on value of services up to $3,000 a year, of 7 per cent; that Federal, State and municipal employees under certain conditions, pay 3 1-2 per cent.

The Surgeon General of the Public Health Service would have the expenditure of some $3,000,000,000 annually, which sum would, in reality, be nothing more nor less than $3,000,000,000 of new taxes for a system of socialized medicine to displace the present American medical system which has developed the most effective and the most widely distributed medical care ever provided for any comparable number of people anywhere at any time.

State medicine for the masses will mean medical care by physicians who are politically amenable, rather than by those of superior abilities—for the doctor it will mean catering to ward committeemen, rather than the needs of human beings who are his patients.

That will be effect of an overdose of medicated political candy. And the people will pay a stiff price for it in the form of new taxes on wages, even though they think they are going to get something for nothing.

Clean Our Own House First

The most popular political pastime today is planning a new post-war world. But before the United States can take any part in such a world, it will have to set its own house in order.

Large, continuing production is the only basis for financing our government and maintaining adequate living standards and a feeling of personal security. In the United States, under a private enterprise system, living standards reached a world peak and provided real independence and security for a greater population than in other countries.

So, while planning the postwar world, our planners might as well get down to earth and consider practical plans for encouraging expansion of private enterprise at home.

Only a policy of moderate taxation after the war will encourage individual initiative. Exorbitant taxes add to the price of goods, depress employment and deter investment and risk taking.

Boss of the Bureaucrats

The American people are turning against government by bureaus, and decrees. Evidence of this is the action of critics of the Federal Power Commission who charge that that body has invaded states' rights and regulatory procedures. They won a lively battle on the convention floor at the war conference of the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners.

Congress will be asked that the Federal Power Act be remedied to stop what many of the state commissioners termed an encroachment on state powers by the Federal Power Commission.

This action is in line with a growing determination throughout the country to end government by bureaus and bureaucrats, who are neither elected by nor responsible to the people they regulate. This is a healthy sign and a compliment to our duly elected Congress which, after all, is the boss of the bureaucrats.

Beware of the Realists

Many self-termed "realists" declare that as far as the millions of men and women who work in large corporate enterprises are concerned, it makes little difference whether government or private management runs industry and signs the pay checks. For them, it is claimed, opportunity and free enterprise are merely empty words. Government domination is encouraged on the grounds that it is the easiest solution to the complex problems of an industrial society. Such "realists," and they are found in industry as well as in the ranks of labor and government, are sowing the seeds of destruction of our republic.

Tidbits of U Kentucky Folklore
BY Gordon Wilson, Ph.D.
WESTERN KENTUCKY TEACHERS COLLEGE
BOWLING GREEN, KY.

FOLKLORE & SOPHISTICATION

In recent years I have often been impressed with the fact that many people profess a great interest in folklore much as some of their elders went slumming. People with a genuine knowledge of what folklore is or why it is important feel that it sounds learned or "toney," if that is the way to spell it. Consequently, they jump to conclusions easily and imagine that anything that is inclined to be queer or backwoods or antiquated is ex-officio folklore and, therefore, worthy of being talked about and reintroduced. Many of the folk festivals put on at county seats and elsewhere are as real as Fifth Avenue cowboys and no more so. Hillbilly bands are so the rage that you are likely to find one made up of boys who never wandered outside New York City and its very near suburbs. And often we hear over the radio folk songs that are just as folk as the "Your Hit Parade," which is pretty far from folk, I assure you. There is something about educated people trying to affect backwoodsness that is very provoking, to say the least. Many a public person, especially politicians, base their effectiveness on their ability to put folk expressions into their talk, so they will seem like real dirt farmers or "dirty farmers," as a radio comedian not long ago got off as a slur at this sort of thing.

Folk language, folk customs, folk psychology, folk superstition, folk fears—all are good if they are genuine, but painfully silly if they represent a left-over in someone who has really outgrown them. One of my acquaintances, who lives in a good home, has plenty of money, drives a good car, and even boasts a Ph. D. for a son-in-law, has folk pronunciations that you and I would laugh at in a washer-woman. If it is ignorance, how great is that ignorance; if it is affectation, then it is worse.

Once not long ago I was to talk before a woman's club on folklore and had asked the committee on music to have some ballads and other folk songs sung by a musician that I knew would be there. Imagine my surprise and outraged sense of fitness of things when the talented woman—for she was talented—sang some modern flippant thing, about as much a ballad in the folk-sense as "When Apples Grow on a Lilac Tree." Maybe I was not specific enough, and yet it seemed to me that any trained musician would know the kind of ballad to suit a folklore program.

The funniest thing about ballads I can now recall took place in an exclusive circle in Louisville, where I was, believe it or not, to speak on folklore. Years ago Miss Josephine McGill, an excellent musician and a trained collector, brought out a book of Kentucky mountain ballads, which she had collected personally with all sorts of romantic and thrilling experiences. Before my speech a highly artificial lady, with a voice trained to sing opera, sang and acted out some of the ballads from Miss McGill's collection in such a fashion that I would not have been able to recognize them but for the names that appeared on the printed programs. ghaswktbgani hitna nuell cocetr-ed She thought, apparently, that singing was singing, little realizing that ballad-singing is as distinctive and as real as grand opera.

And then there is the effort made every once in a while to reintroduce some folk dress or costume that somehow does not ring true. Very few girls look good in the peasant skirts that are the rage as I write this. They are too dumpy in appearance, forgetting that the peasant dresses they copied were probably several inches longer. It may be that I shall grow accustomed to these by and by, but at present this style looks like a reintroduced folk thing that somehow does not fit our other styles of dress and appearance.

Folklore and sophistication do not chime well together, that is, unless folkore becomes more than a mere fad and not designed to show how very much superior we are to our immediate ancestors.

The problem of maintaining individual security and opportunity cannot be solved by the spineless expediency of government ownership. Government ownership of basic industries of mines, other natural resources, power and transportation, would open the way to termination of the liberty of every citizen. No matter how large an industry may be, as long as it is privately owned and operated, it represents economic freedom to those who work in it. That is, they are economically free of any form of political coercion. Their jobs do not depend upon how they vote.

Destruction of private industry means destruction of representative government. This is a fundamental truth which every soldier and every war worker must keep clearly in mind during these troublesome times.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Vic Buxton was home on furlough last week. And you ought to see the fuss the town made over him.

Seemed like almost everybody wanted to give a party, or stage something special in the way of celebration.

Of course, Vic acted grateful. But he told me later, all he really wanted was to sit down with a few old friends—to relax in home surroundings, and talk about old times again.

I guess that's how a lot of soldiers feel. They want to enjoy the old familiar things—old friends, quiet talk, and a moderate wholesome glass of beer. And from where I sit, I don't see why anyone would want to take those things away from them. Do you?

HOW YOU CAN GET 1/3 MORE FOR YOUR PULPWOOD
Cut Pulpwood for Victory. There is a great shortage of pulpwood, vitally needed for rayon parachutes, nitrocellulose explosives, surgical dressings, blood plasma containers and hundreds of other war uses. Cut every cord you can. Your country needs it.
Put Your Pulpwood Money into War Bonds. Pulpwood is bringing good prices now, but you can get even more by putting the money you get for it into War Bonds. Every $3 will come back to you as $4 after the war.
And that's when you will need a nice nest egg to buy the things you want—like a home, a car, or a radio.
This is a pulpwood-producing community. Pulpwood is our own war industry; our opportunity to serve our war-time responsibility.
Let's all get busy with our axes—do our patriotic duty today and lay by a reserve of war bonds that will insure continued prosperity for all of us through the post-war years.
TURN YOUR IDLE TREES INTO WAR BONDS
$18.75 worth of pulpwood buys a $25 bond
$37.50 worth of pulpwood buys a $50 bond
$75.00 worth of pulpwood buys a $100 bond

... So many things have been happening since school started... so many new friends to talk to, and so much to talk about.

Certainly you're thrilled, young lady! But before calling, please remember that all telephone lines are crowded now. If you're a party line user, it's especially important to avoid unnecessary calling — and to speak briefly always. Telephone materials aren't available to build enough lines for everybody, so we must make the most of the facilities we have.

Your help in keeping the lines clear will be appreciated by a lot of people.

CALL TO COUNTRYMEN TO GIVE HELP IN BIG TASKS

This Day Will Come Again...
Post War Planning Must Start Now

WHEN once again the whistles and the bells of this great land of ours proclaim the peace... and the streets of every village and town are thronged with cheering thousands... there should be no dark doubts of jobless breadlines and economic suffering to mar the joy of that day.

Only by producing in peace as in war can our country hope to assure jobs for returning veterans and others who are presently engaged in war time industrial activities. Tomorrow will be too late for peace time planning.

The Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad is interested in any business enterprise—be it large or small—if it will create employment for those who live in its territory.

We are surveying, planning, contacting... endeavoring to determine what this railroad can do to help guarantee peace time stability for the people of the communities which it serves.

Our Industrial Department will welcome the opportunity to work with any civic group or individual along these lines.

Retonga Promptly Relieved Distress From Nervous Indigestion, Sluggish Elimination and Weak, Run Down Feeling, Says Well Known Farmer and Tells About His Case To Help Others. Wife Also Praises Retonga.

Happily praising Retonga for the relief it gave them, thousands of farmers and their wives have come forward with unqualified endorsements of this noted herbal stomachic and Vitamin B-1 medicine. For instance, Mr. Robert T. Hayes, well known farm owner of Route 1, Greensburg, Ky., gratefully declares:

"Nervous indigestion caused me a lot of distress and suffering, and although I went on a strict diet and tried several medicines I continued to suffer from severe gas pains after practically every meal. Then in about an hour or two I would become very nervous and feel weak. I had to resort to the use of laxatives constantly. At night I would sleep a few hours and then wake up. I felt so tired and worn out that I wondered what to try next.

"About two years ago my wife used Retonga for nervous indigestion and sluggish elimination and she got such remarkable relief that I tried it. Every bit of distress was relieved, and now food never tasted better. My nerves are calm, I sleep like a log and the constipation is relieved too. I feel lots stronger in every way. It would be hard for me to praise Retonga too much."

Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Store.

It's HIGH TIME to Change in Kentucky!

For 12 years now, state administration has been in the hands of a gang!

In spite of changes in outward leadership, the gang has remained unchanged. Its policy, from first to last, has been to keep itself in power.

And so we have seen the waste of money and the abuse of trust. We have seen sleepers on the payroll and leeches on the public purse. We have heard of deals and bargains and conspiracies against the general interest. We have read of political assessments against state employees and illegal contributions to campaign funds. We have seen the public service degraded and standards of honor cast aside. We have borne a heavier and heavier burden of taxation.

By these means, the machine has fattened and grown strong, until now we can free ourselves from it only by united and resolute action.

YOU can help save Kentucky

The Republican party, by nominating nine independent and able citizens pledged to the elimination of political gangsterism, offers the opportunity for freedom and good government. By supporting them, we strike a blow for liberty and take sides against dishonor.

Vote Republican!

SPEAKING of HEALTH

SLEEPLESSNESS

"I can't sleep" is a common complaint. Many recognize this inability to sleep as connected with some special situation, such as excitement over some coming important event, or remorse, sorrow, or other reaction because of something that has already happened.

A healthy body and a happy state of mind naturally lead to sleep. The physically tired heavy worker, the active and healthy boy or girl have few if any insomnia problems. Men who have great responsibilities, women who are enmeshed in too many social activities are among the many who find sleeplessness a real personal problem.

Of course there are other important reasons—those due to physical discomfort and a group of causes related to mental and nervous disorders. Simple causes can be easily explained and the condition usually lasts but a few nights or occurs only occasionally.

Possible Remedies

Many find by experience that heavy meals or snacks just before bedtime interfere with sleep; that the drinking of coffee or tea brings about a similar result; that constant worry over real or imagined personal or other difficulties likewise cause temporary or continued insomnia. For all these persons the remedies are simple and can be readily put into effect.

Restraint in eating and drinking can be prescribed for some: a glass of warm milk and a cracker just before bedtime is usually all that is needed. Chronic worriers must learn to dismiss such concerns lightly, and this is often not an easy task. But the need of sleep and the urge to be well should prove adequate inducements for such persons to make the necessary and continued efforts at self-help. There are some, however, for whom such simple remedies do not suffice. They may be chronically ill, and perhaps, may not even know it.

Chronic Insomnia

If insomnia or ability to sleep continues, medical advice must be sought. A thorough physical examination plus a confidential discussion with the physician will usually help in arriving at the cause. The remedy can then be prescribed and if no chronic disease is involved, early relief may be expected.

In these days of manpower shortage, those who find they are suffering from insomnia should seek early medical advice from the family or plant physician. Industry has learned the value of health and hygiene as a preventive measure. In many plants there is a well equipped medical department, in which workers may receive advice on problems of health.

The workers who has not had a good night of sleep cannot produce effectively, is more prone to be absent, is more in danger of becoming involved in a plant accident. The same applies to the desk worker or executive, with the natural reservation about injuries in the plant.

It is good to remember that in the matter of insomnia as in many other conditions, it is often dangerous to try self-diagnosis and self-medication. Some form the habit of taking so-called sleeping powders without continued medical advice. Remedies of that kind have their place, but usually only for the seriously or chronically ill.

SOLDIERS LETTER

The following letter has been received by Mrs. Vera L. Byrd, mother of Pfc. William B. Byrd who is somewhere in South America:

Dear Mother and All:
Since I wrote you my last letter I've had a few experiences which might be interesting to relate. Since we've been here we have more or less been pretty busy getting everything organized and in smooth running order. Only recently have we gotten everything well under control, so we are now about ready to settle down to routine; which will be pretty good. But we've had a little time to do some so-called "exploring," etc., on our own.

Saturday another fellow and I took our rifles and started out to find the waterfall, which is only about three-quarters of a mile or maybe a mile from here. Well, the point is, after we left the trail and were trying to follow directions as we had received them from the natives, we were in such thick jungle that sometimes we had to crawl underneath the undergrowth and at other times we had to climb over on tree trunks, etc.; or just beat our way through it. We were only following our sense of direction, so finally we came to a sort of stream. So we followed it down and soon came to some rocks, then large boulders. Here the banks of the side were lined with boulders some of which were about fifteen or twenty feet high. As we were going along the edge of them, we heard a crashing from the edge of one directly underneath and out dashed some animal about the size of a fox; but its colors were not those of a fox nor did the animal resemble one. Before we could get our guns raised and cocked, of course, it had disappeared into the bush. Upon describing it later to a native he said perhaps it was a tropical-type of honey bear, but we could not be sure. Might have been an ape or something else. We saw no other animal except one fleeting glimpse of some grey animal disappearing on the run. The moral of the story is: we never found the falls, but became turned around and temporarily lost our way. By the sun, we set our course toward the river, knowing that when we came to it we could then know where we were in respect to camp. Within a short time, we came upon a well blazed trail, so we came out at a small Brazilian Army outpost, which is perhaps a couple of miles down river from our camp. From there two Brazilian soldiers carried us up river in a canoe to camp. Naturally, we knew all time we weren't far from camp; but that shows how easily one can become lost in the jungle, with brush and undergrowth so thick he can hardly walk and tall timber which shuts out all the sunlight. We decided that next time we will have a native guide along; at least, until we become more familiar with the trails, etc. But soon we will find the falls because from the natives' description it is quite beautiful.

Last night (Sunday) the nearby native village had a feasts and we were all invited to it. Only another buddy and I went. But as this letter is becoming quite long, I will write another one letting you know about it; which we thought to be quite interesting. I'm fine. Love, Pfc. William B. Byrd 35725787 Detached 22nd Weather Sq., APO 603, c-o Postmaster, Miami, Florida.

G. E. EMPLOYEES
General Electric and its affiliated companies at present have approximately 72,000 or 38 percent women in its employee, 4 times the number before the war, a statement issued by the company reveals. This number is equivalent to the total number of all employees of the company in 1939. Two of its apparatus plants have passed the 50 percent mark in female employees, one of which is engaged in the manufacture of electric meters and aircraft instruments now employing 56 percent women.

Employes now total approximately 192,000, which is two and one-half times the total in 1939. At present approximately 36,000 employees are in the armed forces.

One Job Well Done Begets Another

THERE'S no satisfaction in all the world like the feeling of having done a job well—of being able to see the results of your work. This is one thing that all producers of useful things have in common.

And those of us whose job is production—whether of goods on farms and in factories, or of services in stores and banks and utilities—can beat see the results of our work in the high standard of living which we have helped to create in America. For this standard is built on our ability to produce more per person than any other nation on earth. And the people of every country, who are looking hopefully to us for food and weapons, can count on America because it has this great productive might.

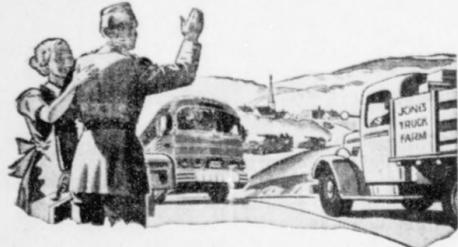

After the war is over? Many people are talking about a richer life for all of us then. And they're right! For that richer life will be brought about, not by promises, but by hard work on the part of America's producers. And they—those who grow and make and do things—can do this post-war job better if they work together and understand each other. General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Can You Picture
without Highways?

A strange place it would be—this state of ours—if our splendid 9,402 miles of network of improved highways suddenly ceased to exist.

A great many communities would be isolated; others would find it infinitely more difficult to carry on even the most ordinary daily activities—with no trucks on the move, no cars or buses taking workers to war plants and farms, soldiers to camp and home on furlough, business travelers to nearby communities, and children to school. All of us who live and work and pay taxes in Kentucky can take pride in our share in this highway system.

As fellow citizens, the Greyhound Lines have made a very large contribution in the form of various taxes—but we feel that our greatest service is in putting the highways to work for the benefit of all who must travel, making near neighbors and good neighbors of all the communities we serve throughout the STATE.

CHARGES WLB "LAW-MAKING" IN DIRECTIVES THAT OVERRIDE STATE LAWS

The National War Labor Board was charged with issuing directives which override state laws and give birth to a "doctrine of federal power which can only be justified as an outburst of hysteria."

Speaking before the three-day meeting in New York of the American Management Association, Raymond S. Smethurst, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, declared that while WLB is directed by the War Labor Disputes (Smith-Connally) Act to conform to existing labor laws, its recent decisions have succeeded in nullifying several state laws. Mr. Smethurst made this point so that industrial management could distinguish between defects in the Smith-Connally Act and administrative shortcomings. He sought to make clear the real nature of those abuses which are cited now by those who want the act repealed.

Board's Law-Making Activities

In this connection, Mr. Smethurst cited the case of the Greenbaum Tanning Co., in which the Board's decision "is a warning that no state law can take precedence over its (Board's) directive orders." Normally, he pointed out, such innovations could be immediately tested in the courts, but the War Labor Disputes Act makes no provision for judicial review, "and the Board has shown every disposition to thwart attempts to obtain review by the ordinary non-statutory proceedings."

"This issue is an important one," he said, "not only today but for years to come. This is not the first time the Board has engaged in law-making activities. It has openly circumvented the Wagner Act by attempts to impose industry-wide bargaining, by compelling bargaining with unions representing small minorities, and has attempted to make ineffective even that limited jurisdictional review which the Wagner Act allows.

"But this disregard of law ranks small in comparison with its recent nullification of state law. The full import of this recent act can only be fully appreciated by recognizing that this Board, unlike other agencies of government, claims jurisdiction over the butcher, the baker, and any other employer, however small, on the theory that labor dispute would seriously affect war production. These statements are not extreme. Every one can be supported from the Board's own record."

Repealing Law Won't Help

Mr. Smethurst asserted that he was neither "apologizing for the law" nor "suggesting that any law alone can rebuild an atmosphere in which fair and sound labor policies can bring management a better understanding and more efficient production." Instead he urged that means be devised to "convert collective bargaining to a businesslike venture—not a maneuver in which to experiment with strategy—Devids must be developed to protect individuals and minorities against the oppression of majorities just as these bona fide majorities must be safeguarded against constant warfare of the irresponsible minority groups."

Merely repealing the War Labor Disputes Act, he said, will not relieve management of unworkable rules or labor excesses, so long "as administration of labor law or policy is slanted to entangle management or twist the law to secure every possible advantage for those controlling and directing our large labor organizations."

That Naggng Backache
 May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action
 Modern life with its busy and worry-ridden habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—brings heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.
 You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling—lost constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
 Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

CRUTCHFIELD HOMEMAKERS

On Monday, October 11, promptly at 1:30 the club met with Mrs. Ronald Elliott. Ten members gathered with fresh ideas and expressed them during the roll call.

Mrs. William McClanahan very graciously opened the meeting, followed by a timely devotional conducted by Mrs. Gerald Binford, closed by the group repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The minutes were unusually interesting with a treasurer's report of $8.00. All reports were turned in to the Vice President, Mrs. Ruth Lomax. She stressed the importance of having the reports filled out, cut off and ready to be handed to each leader at the meetings.

Miss Sullivan, assistant agent, gave an interesting talk on conserving what we have. Remarks: when dresser drawers stick, swag and won't slide get out your hammer and nails, repair and finish with some wax to slide on. When curing for clothing remember rayon should not be rubbed on a board or wrung out of water. A light squeezing is sufficient. They should be protected from silver fish and moths' wools need shielding on spots most easily worn. On the back, under arms coats need shields also an extra lining before wearing. Boys' pants need shields on the knees and seats. Wool, isn't what it once was and extra precaution must be taken to stand much wear.

It is well to remember if coats are left open while sitting it will help to preserve their beauty longer, a scarf helps to care for your collars. Don't hang on your pockets or overstuff them. Always brush each garment after wearing. Polishing shoes after each wearing saves leather, money and time.

The lesson of the month was on clothing, and was very ably given by Mrs. Paul Williams. It's just as important today to be in style as ever. Women haven't changed; it's the war. To look nice, we must have new ideas, followed out with new material, many good garments made over. Little touches of trimming here and there, add life to clothing long ago laid back. Sometimes new sleeves, a jacket or even Let's make, remake and use all we have.

Mrs. Williams went on to say buttons are the first choice in trimming, braid and dicky second

First dress style is the straight dress from the shoulder, belted in tiers. There is still a shortage of wool 50 per cent going into the war. Colors are lively and gay, black is always good, bags are of fabric, with draw strings. Hose are cotton and rayon, shoes plain with low heels much stress on the car always keep dry and wear over-shoes.
