KENTUCKY FARM BUREAU MEETS JANUARY 12TH

An added attraction of the third war convention of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation will be the organized youth conference which is to be held the night of January 12. The convention is scheduled for January 12-14 in the Brown Hotel, Louisville.

One Future Farmer of America boy, one 4-H Club boy and one 4-H Club girl from each county in the state, has been invited to the conference. Most county organizations are giving the trip to the boys and girls as an award for some special accomplishment.

Tribute will be paid to the organized farm youth of Kentucky, at the conference, for the magnificent job they have done in helping to produce the greatest bounty of farm commodities ever harvested in this state. Had it not been for their fine contribution in alleviating the farm labor shortage, many crops would not have been planted and many more would not have been harvested.

The boys and girls will be guests of the county Farm Bureaus at the dinner-meeting. Following the dinner, the Associated Women of the Kentucky Farm Bureau will join the group for a period of entertainment.

Another added improvement has been made at the Parisian Laundry, according to a statement made this week by Presley Campbell, proprietor. A new system has been installed to trap steam used in the various machines of the plant, and return it to a tank, and to the big boiler. In this way an effective economy is made in the amount of fuel required to operate the plant.

Mr. Campbell has some other changes in mind that will be of value in setting up his plant so it will be operated efficiently to meet unusual demands upon the plant during these war times.

YULE CELEBRATIONS WERE ONCE BANNED IN OLD NEW ENGLAND

Christmas was not always merry in England and New England.

The Puritans were scornful of the cheerful customs prevalent during the holiday season. In 1643 in England, anti-Christmas sentiments were enacted into law by the Roundhead parliament which abolished the observance of the three "grand festivals"—Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, and during the next 12 years Christmas was not celebrated in England.

The restoration of the royalty in England brought about a revival of Christmas traditions along with the renewed observance of the feast.

In America, anti-Christmas sentiments accompanied the Pilgrims when they disembarked from the Mayflower. On December 25, 1659, Governor Bradford rebuked certain young men who, having just arrived on the small ship Fortune, declined to work on "ye day called Christmas."

The governor allowed that "if they made it a matter of conscience he would spare them until they were better informed." Later, Bradford found these same youths sporting and playing in the streets. He sent them to their lodgings, telling them they should be allowed to keep their devotions—if the same were kept privately—but "there must be no gaming or revelling in the streets."

The Massachusetts general court welcomed the tidings that parliament had outlawed Christmas and enacted a measure providing that "anybody who is found observing... any such day as Christmas, shall pay for every such offense a fine of five shillings."

In 1681, the ordinance of '59 was repealed. However, in several New England communities the Puritan prejudice against the observance of Christmas persisted.

Santa Real Person

Santa Claus was a very real person.

The name, "Santa Claus," derived from that of St. Nicholas, who was bishop of Myra in Asia Minor in the fourth century.

Today, Saint Nicholas is the patron saint of sailors, merchants and children in Greece.

Incidentally, the name Kris Kringle is sometimes erroneously used to designate Santa Claus. Kris Kringle is a corruption of the German word Christkindel, meaning the "Christ Child."

Holy Air Marks Christmas Ceremonies in Bethlehem

Even in war, as midnight approaches, the bells peal from the little church in Bethlehem.

Natives and pilgrims crowd into the church and kneel reverently in commemoration of the birth of Jesus Christ in a humble stable in the town of 2,000 years ago.

Before midnight the Mass begins. It reaches its climax when the curtain veiling the tabernacle is drawn. The figure of the Christ child is revealed.

Reverently, the worshipers intone: "Blessed be he who cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosannah in the highest."

Then the patriarch raises the effigy. Like the ancient shepherds, the worshipers prostrate themselves as a great electric star illuminates the shadowed church.

The child's effigy is borne triumphantly to the manger on the site selected in the Fourth century by Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine, as the traditional birthplace of Christ.

Trying Not to Discriminate

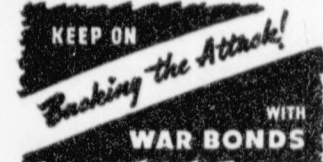

"Are you going to have a Christmas tree at your home?"

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum.

"Are you going to decorate it with many gifts?"

"Yes. I'm going to show that an American citizen can be just as generous toward his own family as he is expected to be to nations abroad."

Perfection is immutable, but for things imperfect to change is the way to perfect them.—Feltham.

Mankind never loses any good thing, physical, intellectual, or moral, till it finds a better, and then the loss is a gain. No steps backward, is the rule of human history.—Theodore Parker.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

CHRISTIAN NURTURE IN THE FAMILY

LESSON TEXT—Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; II Timothy 3:14, 15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

The religious life of the home is a determining factor in the life of the child, for it is in the home that the child's whole existence centers and from which he receives the repeated impressions, day by day, which determine character and destiny. Then too, it is in the home that the parent has the opportunity to demonstrate the reality of the faith professed in the church and to show the child that Christianity really counts in the ordinary experiences of life.

I. By Recognizing God's Word (Deut. 6:4-9).

Twice a day the orthodox Jew repeated the words of verses 4 and 5, "the Shema," in his time of prayer, morning and night. It was the foundation of his faith, declaring the oneness of God in a world of many heathen gods, and calling for complete and absolute devotion to Him.

But it was not enough that these words should be repeated in the service, they were to be taught with all diligence to the children and to be a normal and natural part of their daily conversation.

Here is a matter of great significance to us. The faith which we profess in the church must be effectively brought into the home. It is not enough to carry a Bible on Sunday, it should be in use in the home throughout the week; not only in family worship, but in the incidents of daily life.

The family altar has gradually disappeared, and it is regrettable that it has, for the testimony of generations indicates that in family worship some of the most useful men and women of all ages have received the direction of life which made them great for God.

Let us not readily assume that it is not possible for us to have a family altar simply because of the difficulties of time, place, etc. But if we cannot have such worship regularly, let us show our children that we have a real interest by reading our Bibles together, and by making prayer the natural thing in the home at all times, not just in hours of trial or adversity. Let us recognize God's Word in our family life.

II. By Remembering God's Blessing (Deut. 6:20-25).

The nation that forgets its past will have no future worth remembering. The Israelites were to recall that the glorious history of God's loving kindness toward them bore testimony to the truth of His Word and to the faithfulness with which He had kept them. Their young people would thus be encouraged to trust God for the future. "Hitherto the Lord hath helped," means that henceforth He may count on Him.

In every nation there are those occasions of history where only God could deliver—and He did. The recollection of such events in a way which will give the glory to God rather than to man will strengthen faith and cause men to look to God in the hour of need, and to thank Him in the day of victory.

In the family too, we should cultivate the sacred memories of God's deliverance, of His blessing, of the joy of His fellowship in bright as well as threatening moments. Children who hear such matters gratefully rehearsed in the home have an effective anchor in a time of storm.

III. By Continuing in God's Grace (II Tim. 3:14, 15).

That which we learn of Christ and of God's Word is to be translated into living for Christ. The experiences of grace and the remembrance of God's blessing of childhood are not for that period of life alone but for a continuing in God's grace. This carries our thought a bit beyond the responsibility of the parent to provide the proper surroundings and training, and stresses the duty of the child to apply, perfect, and continue that experience of Christian truth and testimony.

Too many careless individuals, who because of the desires of their own wicked hearts have abandoned the church and the Book, blame it on the parents. "They were too strict. We had to go to church too much. They made me go to Sunday school"—such are their excuses. Of course, we know that they are only excuses, not reasons. They are the refuge of the hypocrite who is not willing to face his own terrible responsibility.

The obligation is on each one of us to continue in the things we have learned, and if we do not, the judgment must come upon us. If we do, salvation and blessing will come to us, and we in turn will pass it on to others.

May this lesson turn many an American home back to God's way.

AS one hands down a good name, Christmas each year hands down its traditions, and all are good.

It has been a tradition here to regard the good will of our customers as our most precious asset.

In this holiday season of 1943 we extend to you, not as a customer alone, but as a friend, our very best wishes for a—

TAXES AFTER THE WAR

The problem of postwar business taxation cannot longer be ignored safely. It involves the jobs, standard of living, even the freedom of the people. That it has been almost wholly ignored to date is attributed to the common assumption clearly stated by Harley L. Lutz, professor of finance, of Princeton University, "that business can and will continue to supply the goods and services upon which all schemes for the good life depend, regardless of the drag and drain of excessive taxation."

Such an assumption has been encouraged by the ability of industry to produce during the war, not withstanding a confiscatory tax load. People are prone to forget that the business man is first and foremost a patriot. For the duration, the incentive of patriotism has, in most cases, replaced the incentive of profit as a production stimulant. After the war, business men cannot be expected to act any differently than other groups. The nation's productive talent will work best if it sees a hope of a fair reward.

Vice President Wallace fully realized this when he was moved to remark recently that: "Our whole tax structure, including individual income, capital gains and corporate taxes, will need revamping to stimulate maximum production and employment."

DOWN OUR ALLEY

Congress seems perfectly agreeable to the idea of providing machinery so that the armed forces may cast their votes in the 1944 election. The New Deal Democrats want the Federal Government to conduct the election, and Southern Democrats want the job done through State governments. Senators from New England, the Midwest and Western States, including the Democrats and Republicans, defeated an Administration bill to erect Federal machinery for the poll on grounds it was unconstitutional.

Thus the echoes of the Civil War are heard among the lawmakers, and there has been so much bitterness that one Democratic senator has served notice on his colleagues that if the Southern Democrats choose to do so, they can form a separate political group and throw the 1944 Presidential election into the House, and swing the balance of power—a la the Hayes-Tilden contest, in which there was only one vote difference in the electoral college. That was the way Hayes was elected.

New Deal and Union leaders and writers, who man the two best oiled and most powerful propaganda machines in the nation, are today busily trying to put the food producers of this country on the inflation hit-spot. Both groups of propagandists, by the use of repetition of catch phrases and specious reasoning and adroit buck-passing, are trying to persuade the people that rising living costs are being forced upon us by food producer demands. They insist that these demands make subsidies mandatory as only way to make inflation impossible.

Their arguments are "eye-wash." Higher food prices have been caused, not by producer demands, but by the tens of billions of extra dollars which are burning holes in the pockets of war workers combined with restricted production caused by confusing directives issued by bungling theorists. Food prices could and would be held in check if the theoretical Washington pretzel-benders would tear up and throw away all of their conflicting and senseless regulations and thus enable the nation's food producers to do the job they alone know how to do. Food prices drop when there is a plentiful supply of the things people eat. They rise when the supply is scarce.

Closely related to this situation also are the billions of dollars of "wild" money loose in the nation. This "wild" money is largely in the pockets of war workers. It got there through the insatiable demands of leaders of union labor, with whom the labor government in Washington works hand in hand. Thus labor leaders and Washington officials are responsible, not the food producers.

These groups, having already made a gigantic and tragic mistake now try to place the blame on the innocent food producers. Instead of admitting their mistakes they now arrogantly insist that the only way to meet the critical food situation is to use subsidies, that is to say, to borrow money to help pay today's food bill. If this is done our men who today are fighting for us on the world's battle fronts, upon their return home at the war's end, will be forced to help pay today's home front grocery bill.

The nation's food problem can be solved if Washington's bunglers would stop issuing confusing and unworkable orders and thus permit the men who know how to produce food to do their job. Subsidies and less food are not the answer. More food is the answer.

EXPECTING TOO MUCH

American doctors are unalterably opposed to the establishment of a government-dominated medical system. Typical is the comment of Dr. Edward Cary, former president of the American Medical Association, who declares that: "This country has been drifting away from competitive enterprise, without which the present high standards of American medicine could never have been reached. Socialization of medicine or any other profession would start us backward to the dark ages."

Proponents of socialized medicine cannot expect the very same doctors who now vehemently protest the destruction of their freedom, to don the shackles of legislation such as the Wagner-Murray Bill and continue to serve with unimpaired efficiency. The doctors have a tradition of freedom behind them just as have the rest of us. They are used to living in and being part of a society of free men. In proposing to set them apart from this society, we have confronted them with an appalling prospect. Is it any wonder they rebel? Who wouldn't?

We cannot destroy the economic freedom of doctors, any more than we can destroy the freedom of any other group, and expect unrestricted medical achievement. This fact might as well be faced. All the laws and bureaucratic decrees in the world won't give the nation first class medical service. Only the doctors can do that; and they can only when there is opportunity for individual progress and achievement.

Christ is the real spirit of Christmas.

We want to say that if we were able to gather up all this joy and wrap it up in one big package it would hardly represent our wishes for your Christmas happiness this season of 1943.

GARDNER'S STUDIO

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST TO BOMB BERLIN.

Suppose, in the duck of an English evening, 1,000 huge bombers soar over the Channel and head for Berlin.

By the time those planes return to England, their motors will have consumed 2,400,000 gallons of gasoline!

The cost . . . of the gasoline ALONE . . . will be more than $380,000.

To pay for the gasoline used on ONE such raid, 96,000 Americans would have to invest at least 10 per cent of their next pay check in War Bonds!

You get a big kick out of reading about those devastating 1,000-plane raids. You know such raids if repeated often enough, will soften up the Axis. But . . .

What are YOU doing to help pay the cost of those raids? (In addition to the gasoline they use, it costs Uncle Sam TWO HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS to build 1,000 4-motored bombers . . . plus the cost of training 10,000 men who make up their crews!)

Modern war is expensive business . . . its cost runs into fantastic figures. 30,000,000 American wage earners are now putting an average of 10 per cent of each pay check into War Bonds every pay day . . . but still it isn't enough!

Our air raids on the Axis are increasing in frequency and intensity. When land operations really get going, the cost will be staggering.

More and more Americans must join the Pay-Roll Savings Plan . . . more than those already in the Pay-Roll Savings Plan must begin to jack up their War Bond purchases . . . must start to invest more than 10 per cent!

Remember . . . War Bonds are the finest investment in the world today. You get back $4 for every $3 you invest. And . . . the more War Bonds you buy now, the quicker the Axis will be licked . . . and the less the war will cost in the long run.

Think it over. And every time you're tempted to put a nickel in something you don't absolutely need—put it in War Bonds instead!

TIME TO CROW . . . WHEN WE'RE IN TOKIO!

Feeling cocky about the war? Better not . . . you can't crow without sticking your neck out!

Sure, there have been . . . and there will be . . . successes along the road to Victory. But these must not make any of us over-confident.

Rome, Even Berlin! Just milestones on the long, hard road to Tokio. With a fanatical foe contesting every inch of the way!

Only a tidal wave of men, material and money will engulf Japan!

To help swell this wave, American industry must have . . . at once: WOMEN . . . by the many thousands to take the places of men gone to war.

Even more important . . . EFFORT to the point of sacrifice on the part of every man and woman in industry . . . workers and bosses.

Another must . . . DOLLARS! . . . buying War Bonds is a further opportunity to show our enemies what their fate shall be.

Crow? Sure! But only in Tokio!

Opinions alter, manners change, creeds rise and fall, but the moral law is written on the tablets of eternity.—Froude.

The cross is the central emblem of human history. Without it there is neither temptation nor glory.—Mary Baker Eddy.

The use of history is to give value to the present hour and its duty.—Emerson.

Blest is that Nation whose silent course of happiness furnishes nothing for history to say.—Thomas Jefferson.

Providing food for the United States and her Allies at War is no easy task. But there are no easy jobs in War.

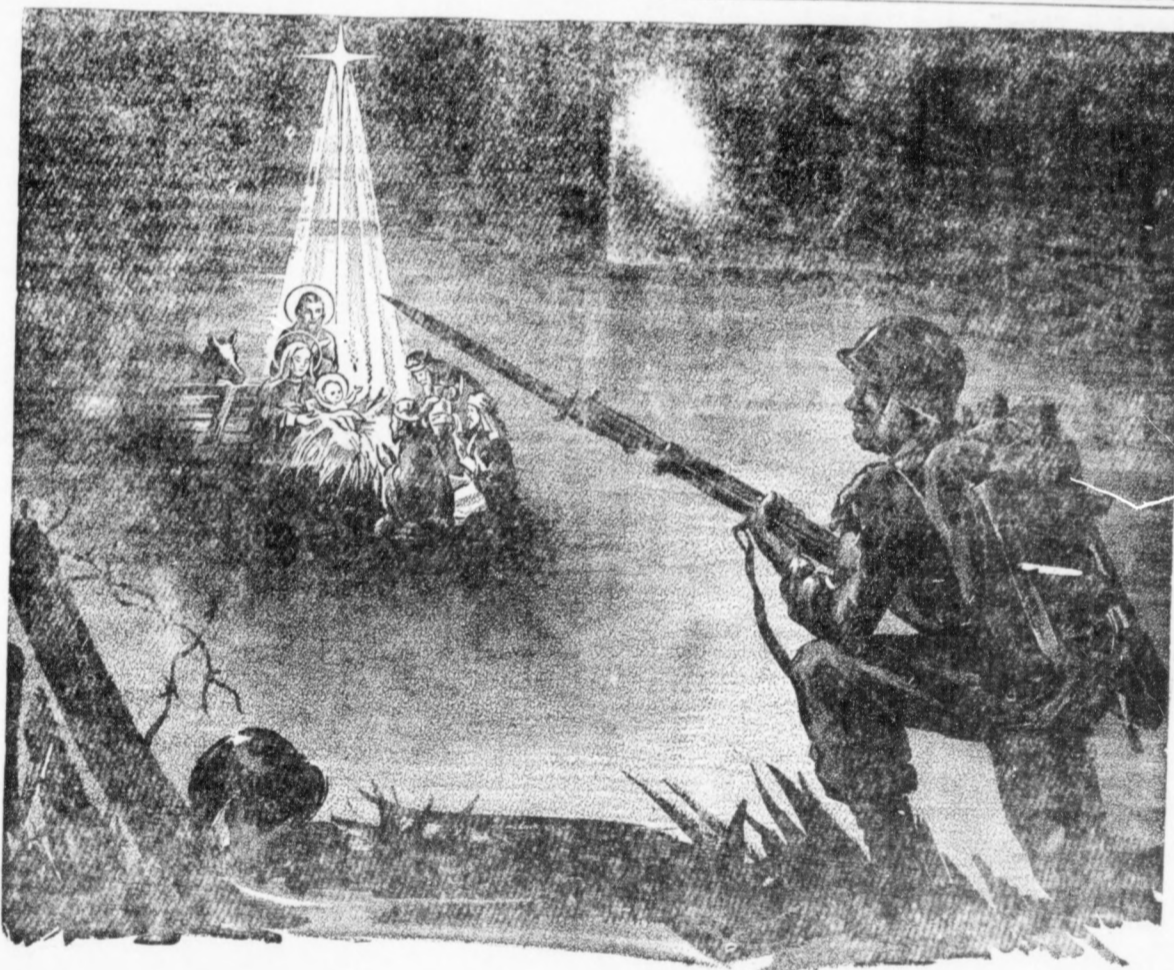

To most men experience is like the stern lights of a ship, which illumine only the track it has passed.—Coleridge.

Greetings To Everyone

For kind thoughts . . . for loyal support—for hearty co-operation—for all the courtesies extended us during the past year we thank you sincerely . . . May your Christmas be joyful.

UPHOLSTERY

The Christ Child's Way of Life

"ALMIGHTY God, steel our hearts and our arms to win true peace on earth to all men of good will . . ."

Not all the peoples of the United Nations are Christian. But for more than four years, the world's decent people have been fighting a Christmas war, smiting down the pagan foes of the way of life the Christ Child came down to earth to preach nearly twenty centuries ago.

On this fifth Christmas of the greatest struggle in all history, the first light of the dawn of peace is breaking through the murk of powder smoke and suffering. But the armistice which will silence the guns and ground the bombers will not bring peace. After winning it on the field of battle, the United Nations will have to win peace anew in the hearts of men—win it, and find a way to preserve it against mankind's inborn greed, the real cause of all wars.

This second winning of the peace will not be easy. Throughout the ages the tradition of "to the victor belongs the spoils" has been strong, and it still is. But the victorious United Nations must rise above this precept, or this war, like the war of 1914-1918, will have been fought in vain.

Yes, we shall have to carry to the peace table the spirit of Christmas, or we shall come away from it with the doom of civilization written indelibly into the record of the future.

MAN HAD BRICK IN STOMACH 10 YEARS

One man said that for 10 years he felt like he had a brick in his stomach. This was undigested food inside of him. He was headachy, swollen with gas, terribly constipated. He took ERB-HELP and says the feeling like a brick in his stomach disappeared. Bowels regular now, gas and headaches gone. ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs, so don't go on suffering. Consider Personality of Child When Selecting Christmas Gifts

Children are easy to please at Christmas time if their personalities and preferences are taken into consideration. For the mechanically minded boy, for example, an erector set or electric train would probably be very popular. Girls are even easier to please, with dolls and miniature home appliances having almost universal appeal.

A few of the many presents which any boy or girl would be glad to receive are suggested below:

| BOY | | GIRL | |
|-----------------|-----------------|---------------|-----------------|
| Sled | Cars, tractors | Doll | Purse |
| Ice skates | Airplanes | Doll buggy | Roller skates |

Kentucky Farmers' 1944 Crop Plans Call for Early Fertilizer Buying

Plant food will play an increasingly important part in producing more "ammunition" crops like corn, wheat, potatoes and tomatoes to help win the battle of food production.

CHICAGO.—With 1944 food production goals calling for new peak outputs of food, fiber and oil crops from Kentucky farms, every available acre, agricultural implement and ton of fertilizer will be enlisted in the crusade, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"New goals for the United States propose the use of some 380 million acres of crop land—by far the largest ever used," says the statement.

"The crop quotas indicate the following percent increases over 1943 production or acreage: wheat 26, soybeans 22, sugar beets 42, beef cattle and calves marked for slaughter 19, corn 3, hay 3, milk 3, eggs 1, potatoes 2, sweet potatoes 2, peanuts 31, fresh vegetables 10, vegetables for processing 6, and flaxseed 1 percent.

"To meet these crop goals, every ton of fertilizer must be stretched to the utmost. Only by close co-operation between farmers and producers of fertilizers can the fullest benefits of the available supplies be realized.

"Because the fertilizer industry is faced by labor shortages in its factories, by uncertainties of transportation and the possibility of further shortages of potash and superphosphates due to unforeseen war and lend-lease demands, it is vital that every farmer figure out his plant food needs at once and place his order for fertilizers today.

"In the normal, pre-war years, many farmers could and did wait until the last minute to contact their fertilizer dealer and then have the plant food delivered directly out onto the field. Today's wartime conditions have changed all that. The old system of spring and fall rush seasons is over. Fertilizer is now necessarily being made on a year-round production schedule. The farmer who orders very early will be assured of supplies for his essential crops. If he orders just ahead of his usual date, he may have luck. But the farmers who delay making arrangements face the prospect of not finding the fertilizer they need."

VICTORY HOMEMAKERS HAS CHRISTMAS DINNER

A lovely Christmas dinner was prepared by Mrs. Cecil Burnett and served to the Victory Homemakers Club at the December meeting in the lovely Burnett home. Ten members and five visitors were present. The visitors were Mrs. Reginald Williamson and son, Ray Brady, Mrs. Burnett and daughter, Myrtle and Mrs. Jim Boone Inman.

A very delightful day was spent. The meeting was opened with a song, "Silent Night."

A delegate Mrs. Roy D. Taylor, was chosen for Farm and Home week. The alternate elected was Mrs. John Dawes. Mrs. Roberts continued her talk from last month on "Putting Flowers to Bed for the Winter. Mrs. Thompson gave some suggestions on canned meat. She also demonstrated some jars of the canned meat and urged the women to can more meat this year than usual.

Mrs. Dawes gave the lesson on "Keeping The Tools Fit," and most every woman present took part in sharpening scissors and knives. Also a demonstration on making silverware polish and a polish cloth and holder were made for each woman present. Mrs. Taylor gave the part in The Rocking Chair Tour and the country this time was Italy.

UNCLE JIM SAYS

Change is normal—This is a changing world.

Christmas should remind us of the Cause for which we fight.

Powerful in time of peace, food is even more powerful in War.

He who fattens the land shall live off the fat of the land.

Food production will be the Number 1 farmer front war job of every American farmer.

Peace and good-will will come when the forces of evil are routed by men who prefer peace to strife. Foods fights for freedom—life begins with food; cannot be sustained without it. Produce, conserve, share.

More milk, more eggs, more meat, more vegetables, more feed production should be the goal of Every Tennessee farm in 1944.

Our boys boys who are fighting in the mud and slush of the South Seas, among the pests and insects, did not choose their assignments; nor did those who fight in the mountains of Italy, nor those who are fighting in our vast air armadas or among the Marines on iron ships, ask for what they are called upon to do. Yet, they are going on, doing their work in the midst of grave dangers.

The scientific unity which exists between God and man must be wrought out in life-practice, and God's will must be universally done.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days a week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, scanty or too frequent urination, sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer aching back-ache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, swelling up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulates the function of the kidneys and helps them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. FIVE GRAVES TO FIDELITY

In the earlier days of this column I discussed the melancholy old family graveyards that are sad reminders of former prominence and family solidarity. Too often these burial places are now grown up in weeds and briars or have been partially destroyed by roving cattle or other livestock. Today I want to talk about something that is even more sad than these old family graveyards. As the Westward Movement went on, people rarely remained in one place long enough to establish a family graveyard. Consequently, any family of five generations has its relatives buried here and there along the line of march. Many of us would have great difficulty in telling where are buried our ancestors since the first one crossed the Atlantic. Various societies have done commendable work in seeking out the last resting places of distinguished people and honoring the pioneers belatedly by placing markers or more pretentious monuments. But most of our ancestors were not remarkable enough to deserve any such treatment; hence many of them buried in regular cemeteries are in nameless graves. Undoubtedly here are more who died when the family was not located in any permanent place. Tombstones were certainly rather rare in earlier days. Some of them were crude, home-made ones, with all the illiteracies of the awkward stone masons that made them. I have often in my rambles to study birds come upon deserted burial places with artless stones and poor spelling. It is necessary only to visit such places as Fort Harrod to see how few of the people who made our state have ever been honored by even the smallest headstone.

As I have grown older, I have wondered more and more about the people who were my progenitors. I know a little about them back in their earliest landing in North Carolina and Northern Ireland, but I could not accurately tell you where a single one except my father is buried. The ancestor of the Wilsons landed around 1740 in North Carolina, made his way to what is now Charlotte, in Mecklenburg County, and there reared his twelve sons. So far as I know he came with the whole family into Sumner County, Tennessee, not long after the Revolutionary War: from there the family spread out into many sections of Middle and West Tennessee. Probably the most of my immediate ancestors are buried in Marshall County, Tenn., where some of my first cousins still keep alive the family name. My great-grandfather, in middle life, migrated to Calloway County, Ky., bringing his younger children with him. But my grandfather, one of the older ones, was already the head of a family in the ancestral home; thus my father did not follow his grandfather to Kentucky until after the Civil War. After graduating from the old University of Nashville, he settled in Calloway County as a physician, and about 1875, he first came to Fidelity. There the younger ones of the big family were born, including me, No. 10. Father is buried at Fidelity, in an extension of the cemetery where his old house used to stand. Five graves behind his is the grave of the ancestors who came from Ireland, a Scotch-Irishman, like so many who sought homes in the New World. Where are their graves? I know their names and approximately when they lived, occasionally whom they married, but beyond that Time alone knows. How much like your family this must be, unless you are of the exceptional family that has kept a record of the important happenings since the earliest days!

SPEAKING OF HEALTH
By DR. VICTOR G. HEISER
Medical Consultant National Association of Manufacturers

PENICILLIN

The newspapers have been carrying stories of a newly-discovered product which seems to work wonders in certain illnesses. The information is of great scientific interest, but much more testing will be necessary before its real value can be judged. We have been well served by the discovery and development of the so-called Sulfa drugs. Further research is being carried on with this group of products, and the end is not in sight. Thus far, many lives have been saved and many ailing persons have been cured by the various sulfa drugs. But, unfortunately, not all diseases are affected favorably, or in every instance, by the sulfa drugs.

Medical History

In 1929 penicillin was discovered in London. The first information concerning its unique curative possibilities was revealed in medical articles published in England in 1940 and 1941. So it is apparent that we are dealing with a product whose properties have only most recently been recognized. Much research, however, still remains to be done.

A word about the nature of the substance may help. Penicillin belongs to a class of fungus evident in blue or green molds found on cheese. Unfortunately, only very minute amounts of penicillin are formed in the mold after many days of growth. Many scientific difficulties have been encountered in trying to produce penicillin in quantity. More than fifteen industrial companies have undertaken to help in its production.

How Good Is It?

Scientific studies indicate that penicillin is a most promising therapeutic agent. Some hundreds of patients have already been treated with it, with surprisingly good effects. The Surgeon General of the U. S. Army has arranged for tests on ailing soldiers, with most promising results. The U. S. Navy Medical Corps is likewise following through. There is good reason to believe that penicillin is superior to any of the sulfa drugs, in the treatment of certain diseases, including pneumonia, empyema, carbuncles of the face and lip, infected wounds, burns, and other conditions.

Many months and perhaps several years may be required to find ways and means of producing sufficient quantities of penicillin to meet our needs. For the present, all of the product goes to the military services.

THE LESSON OF COLUMBUS

By Ruth Taylor
Behind him lay the gray Azores,
Behind, the Gates of Hercules;
Before him not the ghost of shores;
Before him only shoreless seas.

So begins Josquin Miller's great poem on Columbus—a poem for all those who are facing a time of danger. Columbus had only a belief by which to sail. He set out into an unknown ocean, which the fears of more timid men had peopled with fabulous monsters and half-hinted perils. His ships were small, his crew mutinous, his seconds in command envious that this "foreigner" should be placed over them.

All he had was an idea—a plan which was new, and which wise men swore could never be carried out. But he did it. He set his course straight ahead, and stuck to it. The monsters did not appear—but unforeseen hardships did. The ships were becalmed for days in the doldrums—that patch of ocean where the wind seldom blows. The provisions and water ran low, and the ocean was wider than his wildest calculations. But still he went on.

What he faced, we face today. We face the difficulties of curtailment of what we deem necessities. We will need the extra energies of men to pull us through the inaction of the Doldrums. We will have to meet with and handle mutinous subversive forces and envious, self-seeking leaders. But where Columbus had the idea of a new road to the Indies, we have the ideal of a new world, where democracy will have an opportunity to progress and where all men will be free. If we steer straight ahead, along the course we know to be right, with our faith in the sanctity of the individual and in the inborn right of all men to be free and equal—as our guiding star, we will reach our goal. But we must persevere—or take its original meaning—we must follow through.

The good mate said: "Now we pray For lo! the very stars are gone, Brave Admiral speak; what shall I say?"

"Why say: Sail on! Sail on! And on!"

Then pale and worn, he paced the deck,
And peered through darkness.

Ah, that night
Of all dark nights! And then a speck—

A light! A light! At last a light!
It grew, a starlit flag unfurled!

It grew to be Time's burst of dawn.

He gained a world, he gave that world
Its grandest lesson: "On! Sail On!"

SANITATION IS IM-PORTANT TO HEALTH

We all know something about "what bacteria are" and have found that "bacteria do cause disease." We have also found that 40 per cent of the Communicable Diseases may be transmitted through food handling establishments, and since this percentage covers some of our most dangerous and disabling diseases, we would like to investigate this problem further. Do insects and rodents help bacteria spread disease. Pathogenic bacteria are the ones that cause disease. They are found in the discharges from the intestines, bladder, mouth, ear, eyes, and nose principally from man and to a lesser degree from animals. If insects and rodents have access to these discharges, their feet or bodies may become contaminated by some of this matter containing bacteria, and wherever the insect or rodent may go, for some distance particles of filth containing bacteria will be deposited.

Practically every food handling establishment is faced with the problem of controlling flies, roaches, mice and rats. The importance of always controlling these pests is self-evident, and the entire personnel should cooperate with the management in these efforts.

There is no such thing as a clean house fly, so why tolerate his presence in food establishments? He was bred in manure or refuse, and he comes direct to your kitchen or counter from a place of filth. If he comes from a garbage pail, he may not bring disease, but would you want him to walk across your pie? Unless toilets and urinals in your establishments are kept scrupulously-clean the vagrant fly will find all the filth he needs. Bear in mind also that we still use spittoons; that saliva on the side walk or even on the drinking glass offer the fly his opportunity to pick up bacteria. Don't forget the sickness in the neighborhood, the broken sewer main, the chicken coop, the ever present cats and dogs, and even friend Smith's riding horse. Once the fly is at large, he has plenty of opportunity to come in contact with filth and disease. Only through effective screening, liberal use of the fly swatter, and poisoning can he be prevented from being a hazard to your patrons. Like the hobbo the fly will go where he can get a handout; uncovered garbage, filthy toilets,

Win Trips to National Club Congress, Chicago

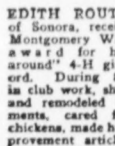

OUTSTANDING records of achievement in 4-H wartime production and conservation projects, conducted by the Extension Service, have won state championship honors for five Kentucky club members. As a reward, each will receive an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 28-Dec. 1. The five trip winners are:

CAROLYN HALL, 19, of Crestwood, is the state's highest scoring participant in the 1943 National 4-H Canning Achievement contest, for which Keri Glass Mfg. Corp. provides the awards. During 6 years in club work, she has put up 4,689 quarts of meats, vegetables, fruits, soups and jellies, and won many prizes on her exhibits.

ALLENE SHIRLEY, 18, of East, received her award for having the top ranking record of planning, selecting, constructing, assembling and caring for her wartime wardrobe in the National 4-H Victory Dress House. This program encourages participants to dress appropriately, healthfully and economically for all occasions.

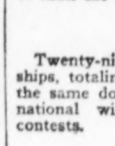

EDITH ROUTT, 16, of Sonora, received the Montgomery Ward trip award for her "all around" 4-H girl's record. During 8 years in club work, she served and remodeled 81 garments, cared for 250 chickens, made home improvement articles, etc., canned 565 quarts of foods, as well as completed 16 projects, and served 5 years as junior leader.

LAVERNE WALKER, 17, of Crutcher, state winner in the National 4-H Food Preparation contest, is rewarded with the coveted trip by Serval home economics department for her exemplary record in helping to "Make America Strong." She contributed immeasurably to the war program by making the greatest possible use of home-produced food, and preparing 227 nutritious, balanced, wholesome meals, and 34 dishes and bakings for her family.

MARGARET CAMPBELL, 16, of Russell, is given the Chicago trip by the Educational Bureau of the Spool Cotton Co. for her superior record in the current National 4-H Clothing Achievement activity. The girl made over or mended 65 of her own and family's old garments to help save vital needed new cloth and labor for military uses, as well as crocheted and knitted accessories for her wardrobe.

Twenty-nine college scholarships, totaling $5,800, provided by the same donors are awarded the national winners in the above contests.

spilled food, soiled paper napkins, sopping straws, and even the cases of empty beer or soda-pop bottles all attract the fly; clean premises is a luxury we can well afford.

The cockroach has been immortalized in song by the Mexicans, but we have no desire to immortalize him in the food-handling business. In fact, we wish that he never got into any of our food establishments. Have you ever seen a sewer manhole cover removed? If so, you can testify to the swarms of huge roaches clinging to the sides of the manhole. If the sewers are harboring these filthy insects, they certainly represent a source of disease whenever they find their way into a food establishment. When plumbing is first installed in a building it should be installed by a plumber who knows plumbing, but later on sometimes the management sees fit to make their own repairs without proper installation. As a result you may find a direct opening from the ventpipe into the kitchen, a trap missing from a fixture, a trap removed or the water seal vaporated from the floor drain, any of these conditions mentioned provide the cockroach with a direct entrance from the sewer into the kitchen. Also, it may provide ideal conditions for back syphonage.

In this warm climate roaches are prevalent, and it is only through good construction, scrupulous cleanliness, the storing of foods in covered containers, and systematic poisoning that they can be controlled. Cock roaches will breed in corners, cracks in the walls, under wet flooring, in damp cellars and rubbish, as well as in the sewers. Unfortunately, cleanliness on your part is no guarantee that cock roaches will not visit your establishment at night, since your neighbor may be raising more than he can feed. Unlike the fly, the cockroach is not satisfied simply to walk across your food; he insists upon eating some of it and then polluting the rest. It is therefore imperative that all food be stored at night in covered containers or in the ice box; and it is also important that dishes be washed, the kitchen floor scrubbed, and all food scraps placed in a covered garbage pail before the establishment is closed for the night. This leaves the roach nothing to feed on and such a place fails to attract him.

The eminent authority, Professor Milton J. Rosenau, has this to say about roaches: "When we consider that house roaches feed upon all kinds of breadstuffs, milk and its products, meat, cooked and raw food; that they migrate from one apartment to another, following water and drain pipes from cellar to sick room, to living rooms and bedrooms; that they infest kitchens, storerooms and toilets, opportunity is evidently offered to one place to another. Roaches must therefore be regarded as a sanitary menace."

Like the cockroach, the rat not only eats food but also pollutes what he does not eat. It is claimed that the rat destroys, by pollution, ten times as much as he eats, and it is estimated that the annual board bill of the rat population in the United States is about $250,000,000. The management will be interested in rat control from an economic standpoint, but this control is also a definite health measure in that food infection, infectious jaundice and typhus fever may be caused by the rat and rat flea. As with cockroaches the proper storage of foods limits the food supply for the rats, and prevents pollution of foods with rat feces and urine which may cause either food infection or infectious jaundice. However there is a definite need for eliminating the rat from the premises. In Tennessee rats are carrying fleas which are the cause of typhus fever. Five cases have been reported in Memphis and Paris. If these fleas are infected and leave the rat while it is frequenting the food establishment, may get on a patron or an employee; when the flea bites this person and he scratches the irritated spot, excreta from the flea is rubbed into the wound and typhus fever results.

Rats frequent the sewers but use them only to travel from one part of the town to the other. They build their nests in rubbish heaps; under piles of lumber; under boxes; in cellars; in grain bins and other places where they are not likely to be disturbed. The best line of defense is to construct food establishments so they are rat-proof; this means that there must be absolutely no openings into the building through which the rats can enter except the door when it is open. Rats may be poisoned and trapped, and many establishments make arrangements for this type of service with private exterminator companies. However, as long as neighboring buildings provide harborage for rats, there is need for community effort in control.

Nearly everyone is familiar with some of the rat homes more commonly seen beneath floors and behind walls or in similar locations, but the fact that any enclosed space to which rats may have access is a potential rat harborage and breeding place is not generally appreciated. Rat harborage may be divided into three general classes: 1. Structural—double walls, space under floors, hollow tile partitions, enclosed stairways, boxed in pipes, hollow boxed mouldings, etc. 2. Incidental—various types of furniture, show-cases, shelves, fixtures, etc. 3. Temporary—all kinds of trash piles, old discarded furniture and equipment, boxes and similar material.

We have seen that flies, roaches and rats are dangerous and expensive pests. Therefore, every food handler should do his best to help eliminate them. The attack can be made on three fronts: 1. Eliminate their breeding places. 2. Cut off their food supply. 3. Poison and trap. These methods should be used on all of the pests.

SAFETYGRAMS

Safety is more than a slogan. How many times have you heard safety slogans repeated and repeated? Yet each year a large percentage of the people are killed when they are careless and forget to adhere to these slogans. We are unconsciously influenced by slogans that remind us to do something or slogans that emphasize an idea or build up associations. But the ideas stressed in safety slogans cease to fulfill their intended purpose when people accept them without thinking about what they mean. Safety slogans must have a purpose behind them.

Safety is a serious business—courtesy and common sense rolled into one. Repetition emphasizes safety, but each old idea must be given a new face so the flavor will not be lost. Safety is psychology, philosophy, physics, engineering and economics combined. It is one of the most important branches of social work.

The Motor Vehicle Department is primarily concerned with one particular phase of safety—motor conduct on the highways. Teaching safety is different from academic classes because people do not learn by the trial and error method. If you make a mistake in safety, it may be your first and your last.

How can people be so different and so callous to accidents? Have they become such everyday occurrences that they fail to make any impression on us? The theory of safety must be taught with understanding to make the public safety-conscious.

Jaywalkers still continue to jaywalk, and jaywalkers are still being killed. In 1942 approximately 10,000 pedestrians were killed and about 200,000 injured. The pedestrian who is hit always blames the automobile driver, when in most instances, it is the pedestrian's own fault. He is careless and thoughtless when he crosses the street at intersections, in the middle of the block, and does other very dangerous things to invite an accident. In cities, pedestrian deaths account for over half the death toll.

Nearly half the pedestrians killed were crossing in the middle of the block or coming from behind parked cars.

Never leave the curb until you are sure you can make it all the way across the street safely. When you get off street cars, go to the nearest curb and wait until crossing is safe.

To know the laws of God in nature and revelation, and then to fashion the affections and will into harmony with those laws—this is education.—S. F. Scovel.

Sooner or later we shall learn that the fetters of man's finite capacity are forged by the illusion that he lives in body instead of in Soul, in matter instead of in Spirit.—Mary Baker Eddy.

With each returning year, higher joys, holier aims, a purer peace and diviner energy, should freshen the fragrance of being.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Every Child Likes To Decorate Tree

Child development experts say that children will enjoy Christmas more if they help in getting the house ready for the coming of old Saint Nick. One of the most important duties, especially to a child, is that of decorating the tree.

A little boy or girl will love the opportunity to cut out cardboard stars, then dip them into a thick mixture of water and laundry starch and finally, sprinkle them with artificial snow. Small gourds, seed pods and pine cones can be treated in a like manner, after they've been painted with quick-drying enamel, or with aluminum paint.

Even the united efforts of these children couldn't budge the huge Christmas tree selected for their schoolyard—but they had a good time trying to help.

Much pleasure will be derived by a child if he or she is allowed to make strings of cranberries, popcorn or small pieces of stale bread to hang on a special Christmas tree for the birds. Later children can string them about a shrub or tree in the front yard, and watch the birds enjoy Christmas, too.

Santa Claus, Ind. Attracts Volumes Of Christmas Mail

About 75 years ago the people of a community in Indiana applied for a post office, asking Santa Fe as a name. There already was a post office by that name in Indiana, and since it was a short time before Christmas, the people decided to name the town Santa Claus, in one word.

In 1938 the name was changed to two words, Santa Claus. Since then letters from all over the world have come in, until now it takes a force of about eight people through November and December to handle the Christmas mail with a new electric canceling machine. About 60,000 pieces a day are dispatched around Christmas.

A Santa Claus headquarters is maintained where thousands of tourists and visitors buy gifts and post cards. During the Christmas week, Santa Claus, in full uniform and long whiskers, presides.

Although this is the only town in the world bearing this name, other places have names associated with the Yule holiday.

Christmas Island, in the Pacific ocean, is so named because Captain Cook landed there Christmas day, 1777.

Five communities in the United States are named for this holiday. There is a Christmas in Gila county, Arizona; Orange county, Florida; Lawrence county, Kentucky; Bolivar county, Mississippi; and Roane county, Tennessee.

Minnesota boasts of a lake by the name of Christmas. It is located in Scott county.

JUST WAIT!

"What did your mother say when I didn't come home until late last night?"

"She said, 'Just wait until after Christmas. I'll fix him.'"

Poinsettia Lacks Yule Tradition

The poinsettia has no Christmas tradition. Possessing beautiful red and green leaves (the flowers themselves being the small yellow centers) and being available at this season, the brilliance and color of this plant add much to Christmas decorations. The plant is native to Central America and Mexico and was adapted some years ago to cultivation by Dr. Poinsett of Charleston, S. C. It is distinctly modern and American.

FARMERS ARE TOLD REASONS FOR BUYING PLANT FOOD AT ONCE

CHICAGO—Threats of a possible freight car shortage plus a traffic jam menacing the nation's already overloaded trucking facilities, were cited as reasons why farmers should place their orders as soon as possible for supplies of fertilizer for their wartime crops.

"The tightness of the freight car situation," says a statement by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, "is matched by the difficulties faced by motor truck transportation. The result is that freight shipping facilities of both rail and truck lines are dangerously overloaded."

Labor shortages in fertilizer factories or on farms are serious matters these days.

"But transportation is not the only complicating factor affecting fertilizer distribution. Labor is so scarce at factories that manufacturers face unheard-of difficulties. At the same time shortages in supplies of available materials are becoming more serious because of munitions' requirements and the demands of lend-lease."

"In view of these facts, the co-operation of farmers in determining their fertilizer needs and ordering their plant food at once is essential if vital supplies are to be made available when and where they are most needed for winning the battle on the food front. Buying fertilizer early is simply good business these days."

"Victory for American arms depends as much on farm production as it does on guns."

Getting the Most from your Victory Garden

Right Varieties Bring Best Returns

Certain kinds and varieties of vegetables are more satisfactory than others where Victory Garden space is limited. Ferry-Morse Seed Co. experts urge wise selections in order to produce quality crops of bumper size on a small home plot.

While bush beans rank among the kinds of vegetables that yield unusually well for the space they occupy, pole beans will produce several times as much in the same area. The Kentucky Wonder type of pole bean is especially practical. The long pods hang in thick clusters, and if some of them become too old for snaps, the beans inside are delicious for "green shells."

Beet is a double-duty vegetable. A row or two will furnish greens in the young stage and plenty of roots later on. A small planting of Swiss chard will supply a family with greens for a long season if the outer leaves are kept cut and the inner ones allowed to keep on growing.

It pays to choose cabbage varieties with care if you want to grow the largest possible number of heads in a home garden. Small, early heading varieties such as Copenhagen Market and Early Jersey Wakefield take up less space than more spreading types. The plants are so compact that twelve to fifteen heads can be grown in a twenty foot row.

Spreading vines like melon, winter squash, and pumpkin usually take up too much room in a small garden for what they supply in real food value. Summer squash varieties of compact habit, however, are ideal, particularly the improved straightneck strains. They take up comparatively little space for the quantities of tasty succulent fruits they produce.

Some varieties of tomato yield far better than others for the amount of room the vines take up. A Victory Gardener will not go wrong in choosing Marglobe to get a lot of superior fruit from little space.
