Port Of Hickman Is Industrial Attraction

The City of Hickman was told last week that a $150,000.00 navigation improvement has been approved by the United States Corps of Engineers. The development of the Port of Hickman could mean a whole new area of industrial development a leading businessman of Hickman told the News. "The speed and economy of river transportation is becoming increasingly more popular among large industries. Fulton and Hickman and the surrounding towns have another asset to offer prospective industries who wish to locate in the West Kentucky area," the prominent civic leader said.

No time for beginning of the project was listed by Sens. Thurston Morton and John Sherman Cooper in telegrams to interested parties in this area.

However, a corps official had said earlier that if the project were approved this year, it probably would be next year before work would get under way.

The project, which is to be an expansion of the Port of Hickman, will involve the dredging of a harbor channel nine feet deep by 250 feet wide with a 500-by-600-foot turning basin at the upstream end.

The senators reported that the federal participation was contingent upon an appropriation by the U. S. Congress and upon local participation. Among other things, Hickman will be expected to obtain rights-of-way for the proposed project.

Two large installations already are using the port here. One firm deals in soybeans and the other in oil.

The city previously had given the government a feasibility report showing that the volume of river shipping here was sufficient to justify the project. The Hickman city council had given its assurance that the "local participation" factors would be met.

Former President Eisenhower signed the 1960 Rivers and Harbors Act. The measure allows federal spending of up to $200,000 for small harbor projects.

The two senators, Rep. Frank A. Stubblefield and Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt were described as having been interested in the proposed project for some period of time.

Mayor C. K. Davis, first told of the report by a newsman, had no prepared statement. But he said he was "very happy" to hear the news.

South Fulton Schools To Open August 24

South Fulton High School and Elementary School will open Friday, August 24, and on this day students will report for books and class organization. Registration was held previously this summer.

Regular classes will begin on August 27. Teachers will attend an in-service training program for eight days, beginning August 15.

This year will be a 180-day school year as compared to 175 days last year.

Judge Stahr To Make Formal Appeal; Other Candidates Still Considering

Circuit Judge Elvis J. Stahr told the News this week that the news report that he would seek re-election is not his formal announcement. Judge Stahr said that at the proper time he would publish his official intention to seek office and that the report, last week was to advise his constituents that he intended to run for re-election.

Stahr, 76, has served as Circuit Judge since 1945. He ran unopposed for the office that year. Judge J. C. Speight appointed by Governor Simeon Willis at the death of Judge L. L. Hindman, the year previous, did not run for re-election.

Judge Stahr was born and raised on a farm in Hickman County. Before entering the practice of law he farmed and taught school. He was admitted to practice of law in Hickman County in 1911, upon completion of his law studies at Cumberland Law School, Cumberland University, Tennessee.

He served as a city councilman, county attorney and County Judge of Hickman County. Judge Stahr was elected to the State Senate for four years. As a member of the Senate he was one of two men who repealed 1001 obsolete laws from the statute books of Kentucky.

His wife, Mrs. Mary Stahr served as postmistress of Hickman for 19 years before retiring recently. His son, Elvis J. Stahr Jr. served the present administration of Washington as Secretary of the Army and was installed as president of Indiana University last week. Judge Stahr had a heart attack in December 1960, which kept him off of the bench for five months. He returned for June term of court. In August 1961, a blood clot in the leg kept him (Continued on page five)

Friendship 7 Passes Through (Not Over) Fulton Last Week

A little bit of history came through the Fulton area last Thursday morning with a replica of "Friendship 7". John Glenn's space capsule in which he made his around-the-world journey. The capsule, in transit from Memphis to Evansville, Indiana, came through the Highlands bypass at about 11:15 a. m. on the back of a gaily painted trailer truck.

The capsule, approximately 8 feet in diameter and about 28 feet long, was viewed by a large number of local people who were alerted of its coming by news bulletins over radio station WFUL.

Hickman Asks Governor Combs For Appraiser

Hickman's Electric Plant Board last week formally asked Gov. Bert T. Combs to appoint a third appraiser in its effort to obtain the electric distribution system here.

Hickman is attempting to obtain the system, now owned by Kentucky Utilities Co.

It hopes to arrive at an appraisal of the system in time to put the issue on the ballot in November.

Under the law each side appoints an appraiser in such situation. If they are unable to agree, then the governor appoints a third appraiser. Any two of the three may then make an appraisal.

Hickman appointed its appraiser some time ago. He is C. H. Robinson of the consulting engineering firm Allen and Hoshell, Memphis.

KU has appointed Donald M. Cook of Middle West Services in Chicago.

Cook and Robinson have been unable to agree on a value for the system or on conditions of a sale, and that is the reason for the action asking for the third appraiser.

Powers Assumes Duties As City Superintendent

Acting City Manager Nelson Tripp has created the post of City Superintendent for the City of Fulton, hired the person to fill the position, and ordered an increase in salary for the appointee. Tripp is reported to have discussed the necessity of creating the position for W. D. Powers with Commissioners Rice, McCain and Moline who agreed that the move was necessary, although it was not in compliance with Kentucky law that stipulates that such positions be approved by the entire Board of Commissioners in an official meeting.

Mayor Gilbert DeMyer said that Tripp discussed the matter with him. Mayor DeMyer said that he has instructed City Clerk Martha Smith not to grant a salary increase to Powers until the matter is brought before the Commission at the next regular meeting in August.

Powers, an employee of the City of Fulton since 1952, has been assistant superintendent of the water works department. He has already assumed his duties to supervise all the public works departments of the city. Ernest Brady, street foreman; Jack Maddox, gas foreman; W. A. Roach, water works foreman and Paul Harris, garbage department foreman, are now under the direct supervision of Mr. Powers.

Sources close to City Hall said that Tripp took the action prior to official and legal sanction by the Board of Commissioners because the burdensome details of the various maintenance departments was interfering with his (Tripp's) other responsibilities as Acting City Manager.

In the early stages of the City Manager-Commission form of government a proposal was under discussion to abolish the positions of foreman of the four major city departments. However, it was reported that no other personnel changes would be made until James Robey, the new city manager, arrives in September. Robey is expected to be in Fulton this week-end to work with the local city officials on a proposed budget for the city.

Rumsey Taylor Campaigns Here On Golf Course

Rumsey Taylor of Princeton showed himself to be the gubernatorial candidate who will have a "relaxation" plank in his platform.

The News was informed Tuesday that Mr. Taylor did some campaigning and hand-shaking at the Fulton Country Club on ladies day and watched the ladies "tee off" on several areas around the golf course.

The News was not able to learn of any political leaders in Fulton County who could give a statement regarding Mr. Taylor's organization in this city and county.

Plans Discussed For Crafts Tent At Ken-Tenn Fair

The Community Clubs exhibit tent at the 1962 Jaycee Ken-Tenn Fair will be sponsored by the Fulton Business and Professional Women's Club and plans are being made at the present for improved viewing and exhibiting facilities.

The entries can include canned goods, baked goods, needlework, flowers, handicraft, homemakers and community clubs displays and other articles that local ladies (and gents, too) are proud of and wish to enter.

The art exhibit, which was a big attraction at last year's fair, will probably be present again this year. A meeting was held Tuesday evening to discuss better ways to preserve the paintings during the exhibition.

Further plans for these exhibits and displays will be announced next week.

It's A Bean . . It's A Gourd . . It's Mighty Fine

"I thought it was an overgrown bean," Karen Dublin said when Win Whitel brought in a 30-inch Italian gourd to the News office. Win said he grew the gourd in his backyard and was one of many he has enjoyed eating.

The News editors enjoyed eating it, too. Cooked like squash, (with butter, spiced onion, and perhaps tomatoes, if you like them), the gourd makes the children take a second helping . . . and that's sumpin' for most children.

Riverboat Crewman Injured Critically

A Hickman riverboat crewman was critically injured Saturday in an explosion near St. Louis. Carl Murphy, 41, is in St. Louis County Hospital with burns over 60 per cent of his body, the result of an explosion and flash fire in the engine room of a West Kentucky Lumber Co. towboat.

Murphy was starting one of the engines, when it backfired and set afire some gasoline which had spilled in the room. The towboat was at Hollow Island where the crew was cutting timber.

Pie Eaters, Team Owners, Toe Tappers; Come To Rural Day At The Fair Here

The farm folk of Fulton and surrounding counties will really have a treat in store for them at this year's bigger and better Ken-Tenn Fair, Thursday, August 16, the fourth day of the gala event, will be set aside as "Rural Day" and all activities throughout the fair will be keyed to the farmers and their families.

To start off the string of events, a big "Pie-Eating Contest" will be staged at 11:00 a. m. There will be two divisions, one for the girls and one for the boys, and entrants must be between the ages of 14 and 18 years old. An entry blank will appear later on in this paper.

From 1:00 to 3:00 p. m. the Representative Hoyt Barnett has sold his grocery store in Hickman and advised the Hickman Courier last week that negotiations are in the process for a position that will keep him in West Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett were in Frankfort this week.

Jim Nutter, commissioner of the Department of Commerce reported to the News that Barnett had been cleared for a position with his department as an industrial agent to serve 22 Western Kentucky counties as a liaison officer with the Frankfort department. Mr. Nutter said however that Mr. Barnett would not be considered for the position while Mr. Barnett is serving as State representative from Fulton and Hickman counties.

In a telephone conversation with the News editor Wednesday Governor Bert Combs reported that Mr. Barnett had not tendered his resignation to him as the two-county representative. Henry Carter, Secretary of State, also reported that no resignation had been received in that office from Mr. Barnett.

Mr. Barnett could not be reached for comment. In the event he resigns as representative and accepts the position for which he has been cleared, the Governor may call a special election to fill the vacancy if a special session

Hit-Run Victim Found Tuesday; Fatally Injured

Lloyd Kenneth Miles, a Maywood, Illinois, construction worker, was fatally injured in a hit-and-run accident near the Marbro Drive-In Theater early Tuesday morning.

Miles, who was hitchhiking at the time, was struck about 12:45 a. m. and was found later by a passing motorist. He was rushed to the Fulton hospital where he died about an hour later of multiple injuries.

No trace of the hit-and-run driver has been found at this time. The accident occurred in front of the Eddie Bell residence on the Martin highway. Miles was apparently hitch-hiking south.

Miles is a native of Jasper, Alabama, where his body was shipped Tuesday night.

Farm Safety Week Begins Sunday; Safety In Family Life Emphasized

National farm safety week has been designated for next week, July 22 to 29th. This is the week when an all out effort is made to prevent farm accidents by all organized farm groups. This very important program is sponsored by the National Safety Council and the United States Department of Agriculture. Although special emphasis will be placed on farm safety, it is an every day responsibility for all of us to see that accidents and deaths are prevented.

With the busy farming season ahead and summer recreation season we can see the dangers mount. These additional factors make it even more important than ever that an effort by everyone be made to reduce accidents. Each farm family should do whatever is needed to remove hazards that are known to cause accidents, serious injuries, and fatalities around the farm. The major causes of deaths and accidents are: drowning, machinery, agriculture chemicals.

American Patience (That's Right) Will Die Unless Quick Cure Comes For Medical Costs

Whether President Kennedy's medical program passes or not, the proposal has at least given the American public some hitherto well guarded information about the medical profession. It is apparent that with the focus on the profession doctors these days seem to be taking their own pulses and the diagnosis, and even the prognosis is interesting to learn.

In two separate stories on Tuesday of this week one physician-public health official describes America as "the most over-medicated, most over-operated, most over-inoculated country in the world."

It also is the most anxiety-ridden, adds Dr. Herbert Ratner, professor of preventive medicine and public health at Loyola University Medical School, Chicago, and commissioner of health at Oak Park, Ill.

Dr. Ratner has no idea how much we agree with him. The doctor places the whole blame on the public, the medical schools and the medical profession.

In another article the president of the American Medical Association suggested that doctors listen to patients' problems and viewpoints more closely.

"We have to develop a sharper awareness—not only of scientific progress and medical ethics—but also of the problems which concern our patients and the public," said Dr. George M. Fister, Ogden, Utah.

"We need to be more receptive, more understanding, with regard to their complaints, their viewpoints, their suggestions."

We're wondering if this self-analysis isn't coming a little too late. The medical profession has always condemned itself for its poor public relations program in the past and frankly, we think that airing the skeletons in the closet now is no way to keep down the growing realization that the cost of medical care in all fields is a matter for a quick cure lest the patience (that spelling is right) dies with things as they are.

Comes now the fact that the mild and well-mannered British Medical Association has suffered patiently under a long siege of almost hysterical attacks by U. S. physicians who didn't know what they were talking about. These spokesmen for the official American Medical Association position that "socialized medicine" is a fate many times worse than death have often described the horrible plight of the British nation under it, including that of thousands of frantic doctors all struggling vainly to escape to freedom.

But patience can be exhausted. The British Medical Journal indicated that fact last week with a crisp snap at its American brethren. Editorially it praised the Kennedy Administration's plan to provide medical care through Social Security for eligible elderly persons and continued:

"We have watched with some dismay the mushroom growth of the A. M. A.'s public relations activities and the colossal sums spent by it to defeat what our American colleagues call 'socialized medicine'. The dismay is at the probably inherent weakness of American medical services if such a vast effort has to be expended on misrepresentation of what is happening here in Britain."

The editor admitted to certain weaknesses in the British system. But he is certain, he continues vigorously, that "a great many doctors in the U. S. A. deplore as we do the vulgarity and cheapness of its (the A. M. A.'s) past and present attacks on the National Health Service." The A. M. A., he concluded, "should understand that they have a lot to learn from Britain and Europe about methods of providing medical services—from our successes as well as our failures."

One should also deplore, probably, the fact that members of the scientific and humanitarian brotherhood of physicians are thus trading harsh words with each other across the Atlantic. But our boys started it, and there is a certain low but human satisfaction in seeing the much maligned British medical profession speak up for itself in such unequivocal fashion. The exchange might even persuade some of our more emotional medical orators to think before they speak.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission.

By JOE JORDAN

(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

One hundred years ago this week Confederate troops under Col. John Hunt Morgan continued their successful "first Kentucky raid," operating entirely in enemy-occupied country, defeating any smaller Union outfits they encountered, and slipping between the greatly superior enemy forces which were on all sides of them.

From Lawrenceburg, where we left the Rebels encamped at the end of last week's installment, they rode to Versailles. The next day about noon they reached Midway, a village on the railroad, halfway between Lexington and Frankfort; in both these cities there were formidable forces. The telegraph office at Midway was seized and Morgan's telegrapher, G. A. Ellsworth, took over. He intercepted a message from the Union commander at Lexington to the one at Frankfort, correctly reporting that the raiders had left Versailles, headed toward Midway, and proposing that they close in on the invaders from both sides. Ellsworth averted that by sending to Lexington a faked report that Morgan was attacking Frankfort. The Rebels then rode on to Georgetown and rested two days in that friendly town. There they gained a full company of recruits headed by Capt. W. C. P. Breckinridge of Lexington.

On July 17, Morgan moved to Cynthiana and attacked a Union force of 500 to 600 men who fought desperately, firing from houses. One Confederate company forced the Licking River under fire and engaged the defenders of a covered bridge, through which another company then charged on horseback. After a bitter two-hour fight, Morgan took the town and captured 420 prisoners. His loss was about 40 in killed and wounded, the Union's about 90. Enough weapons were captured to arm all the recruits.

The next day about sundown Morgan reached Paris, which was surrendered by a deputation sent out to meet him. During the night, scouts brought in reports that a Union force of 2500 to 3000 men under Brig. Gen. Green Clay Smith was approaching Paris on the road from Lexington, so at 8 a. m. the Confederate cavalry started toward Winchester. It got there by noon, rested until 4 p. m. and moved off for Richmond, getting safely across the Kentucky River just before dark. Riding all night, the raiders were in Richmond at 4 a. m. Enough recruits enlisted there to form a whole new company. By 4 p. m. the Confederates were on their way to Crab Orchard, which they reached about daylight.

Green Clay Smith's large force was pursuing Morgan, to the south Col. Frank Wolford, commander of the First Kentucky (Union) Cavalry, was collecting troops to intercept him, and from Louisville additional Federal forces were being sent by rail. The Rebels rode out of Crab Orchard at 11 a. m. and by sundown they were at Somerset. The telegraph office was taken and Ellsworth sent out crisp cancellations of all previous Union orders for pursuing Morgan. . . . It had been a busy week.

Doc Beauchamp Says Turnpikes Vital Asset To Improving Country Living

(Third in a series on Kentucky turnpikes)

By Emerson W. Beauchamp
Commissioner
Kentucky Dept. of Agriculture

The construction of modern, four-lane turnpikes probably has its greatest impact on agriculture.

A false school of thought contends that farmers get little benefit from modern roads. Yet the history of turnpikes indicates that actually the opposite is correct. A 1961 survey submitted to Congress makes this flat statement:

"Modern highways not only facilitate the movement of farm products to market but improve the amenities of county living."

The 82-page report submitted to the 87th Congress details the upward changes in land values and the changes in employment conditions and labor supply. The report points out that the coming of an expressway brings in small factories and provides the farmer with a market for his labor in the slack season.

A portion of the survey, made by the Department of Commerce, concerns land values in the burley belt. The construction of a modern road in that area increased acreage value 3 1-2 times. Figures were based on 198 report sales.

In addition, the Federal survey shows that the system of Interstate Highway goes through territories producing 50 percent of all farm food and fiber. The turnpike system in Kentucky further supplements that percentage. Farmland adjoining the turnpikes and their interchanges can be converted from purely agriculture to industrial and residential use, thus increasing the total value of the land.

Many Kentuckians are surprised at the number of farms in the 19-county area to be served by the Eastern Kentucky Turnpike. There are 16,638 farms with an income from livestock and field crops of $20,500,000 each year.

Last year there were 9,096 farm trucks in the Eastern Kentucky country alone. All will find uses for the turnpike.

The farm story along the Western Kentucky Turnpike is even more astounding. In that area there are 26,277 farms with an annual income of $94,000,000. It is one of the fastest-growing dairy lands in the United States and modern, safe, efficient highways are needed to get the perishable dairy crop to market. In both areas, eastern and western, it is necessary to get produce to market when the price is right. A day's delay can mean dollars lost to the farmer. Modern, fast highways can help eliminate such a delay.

Other states, with turnpikes serving metropolitan areas, report much farm acreage has been converted to truck gardening crops or used for nursery stock. With residential construction always on the increase, the production of shrubs and trees is fast becoming an agricultural enterprise.

Turnpikes in the best sense of the word are farm-to-market roads and those who make other contentions are guilty of misunderstanding the farmer who also needs the best in highway transportation.

British Blast AMA Attacks On Medical Program

The British Medical Journal dismissed as "vulgar, cheap and nonsense" attacks by the American Medical Association on England's National Health Service. The Journal, publication of the British Medical Association, said the A. M. A.'s depiction of the program as "socialized medicine" is a cover "to distract attention from the weaknesses of American medicine."

The publication vigorously defended the Kennedy Administration's medical care for the aged plan, the King-Anderson bill. The proposed legislation has been attacked in the United States by the A. M. A.

"We have watched with some dismay," a Journal editorial said, "the mushroom growth of the A. M. A.'s public relations activities and the colossal sums spent by it to defeat what our American colleagues call 'socialized medicine.'"

The Journal admitted the National Health Service has its faults, but said "socialized medicine (is) a term whose exact meaning no one has yet defined."

ALICE ABERCROMBIE TRAVELED 103 1/2 MILES IN HER ROCKING CHAIR TODAY

Alice believes in getting plenty of mileage from her telephone. Today she visited a friend all the way across town. Went to the drugstore. The cleaners. The toy shop. Reminded 22 members of next Tuesday's circle meeting. Small wonder Alice values her phone so much. Because no matter how many local calls, the cost remains the same. Does any other modern convenience you have do so much for so little?

Family Safety Is Theme For Farm Safety Week

Most people acquire at an early age a built-in sixth sense—called "safety-sense." This is the "voice" inside all of us that warns us to be careful on crowded highways . . . to go swimming only in safe places or where another person is around to watch . . . or warns us to take it easy with our tractors on steep inclines and bumpy fields.

But once in awhile that demon called "carelessness" blots out our built-in "safety-sense." That's when we speed on the highway, leave poisons around the home in reach of small children, or put off fixing that broken ladder mom uses around the house.

When safety-sense" is gone—there are accidents, on the farm and in the home.

This is why annually the National Safety Council and the Kentucky Farm Safety Committee sponsor "Farm Safety Week." You'll be reminded this month, often we hope, to watch out for your own good and safety in whatever you do around the farm and home.

Appropriately enough, the slogan for this year's Farm Safety Week—July 22 to 28—is "Family Safety, At Work and Play."

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

It's hard to believe but 'tis true, that summer is half over and with the advent of August our thoughts will be turning to late vacations and early Fall, and school of course! This has been a kind of "fun summer" because the accent has been on gay activities carried on in a casual manner. Brides, visitors, recreation and relaxation have all shared the spotlight of our diary and there's more to come. Betsy Whitesell's wedding to Roy Wesley Meade takes place this coming Saturday and next Saturday Judy Moore and Johnny Jones will exchange the "I Do's." Such happy doings keep us dressed up in our Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes a lot, but isn't it fun?

This summer your diarist has been absorbed in an entirely new and fascinating (for us) endeavor and it's gardening. Last year the man of the house plotted and planned what he calls a formal garden and he got his share of kidding because there was more grass than flowers in the garden spot. But this year, it's a different story. The intent of the gardener has been fulfilled and we think it's worth every hour both of us have put into watching the flowers grow. The garden has afforded us even greater pleasure, because while the dew 'is still resplendent on every little blossom we go out and pick them and when the sun gets all the sleepy heads up we take them a posie or two to brighten their homes and we hope their lives. Take it from this scribe . . . when you get on a gardening binge there's no time for any other kind of recreation, so the golden marigolds have added many a stroke to our very infrequent golf game, and completely obliterated every other kind of outing. But then, as the young folks say, you can't have everything. We'll take the flowers for this year.

The mail brought us such a nice letter from Connie Pawlukiewicz this week. From the bedside of her son Chuck, who is in the Baptist Hospital in Memphis, Connie writes that the fifteen year old Fulton High School student is improving right along and that he has undergone his sixth operation on his leg. Said Connie: "Chuck is making really remarkable progress . . . he is going in for surgery (his sixth) when they begin skin grafts. We hail this as quite some progress. How extensive these grafts will be, I don't know, but at least they will begin . . . the young fellow is getting cabin fever and gets terribly homesick . . . we feel we owe so much to so many and wonder how we can ever begin to thank the town of Fulton."

Our answer to Connie is not to try. Fulton is famous for its kindnesses and everybody would feel lost not doing nice things for nice people. Chuck's room number is 820.

Fulton's own Betty Vowell finished in the number 2 spot of the Championship Flight in the West Tennessee Association Golf Tournament held at the Jackson Golf and Country Club last Friday. She scored a 174 to take the runner-up position on the 36-hole play.

Virginia Rogers, the only other Fulton player in that flight, scored 178 for a tie for fourth place. Nancy Bushart with 191 was the winner in the third flight and Cindy Hale was the fifth flight winner with a 222.

Sue Moore was runner-up in the second flight with a 191 score and Ethel McDaniel took second place in the fifth flight with 226.

TURKEY GROWERS TURN DOWN NATIONAL MARKETING ORDER

Growers voted down a proposed national marketing order for turkeys in the referendum held June 18-22, according to preliminary results announced by the Department of Agriculture.

Mr. R. O. Wilson, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee, said today that, out of a national total of 7,188 producer votes cast, 3,116 growers or 43.4 percent of those voting favored the marketing order program. These votes represented a marketing volume in 1961 of 845,241,000 pounds of live turkeys or 50 percent of the total volume voted. A marketing order program cannot be put into effect unless it is approved by at least two-thirds of the growers voting in a referendum by number or by volume of their production.

Producers eligible to vote were those who marketed more than 2,600 pounds of turkeys in 1961. The turkey marketing order had been proposed by the industry and formulated under existing legislation as a means of stabilizing prices to producers, many of whom lost heavily in 1961 as a result of overproduction.

Chairman Wilson reported that the preliminary tabulation by USDA indicated approval of the turkey marketing order by 76.6 percent of the Kentucky producers voting in the referendum, representing 96.4 percent of these producers' 1961 volume of live turkeys marketed.

HOG CHOLERA VACCINATION IS AGAIN URGED BY U. S.

Lexington, Ky.—Kentucky hog producers are urged again to vaccinate their pigs against cholera this spring.

The anti-cholera campaign, says Grady Sellards, UK Ag Extension Service swine specialist, is the U. S. D. A.'s continuing program against the costly disease. Eventual eradication is the goal.

Dr. R. J. Anderson, USDA Agricultural Research Service, points out that vaccination of pigs in transit (shipment is particularly important. "Pigs in shipment have a greater chance of exposure to the disease." There are proposed regulations to require cholera vaccination for all feeding and breeding swine shipped across state lines.

Only about 45 percent of U. S. hogs are now immunized against cholera, Sellards said. Generally, vaccination is done two weeks after weaning.

There were more than 5,000 outbreaks of hog cholera in the U. S. last year, in some 46 states. The disease costs the industry about $50 million a year. It kills more pigs after weaning age than any other single swine disease.

ONE-SPRAY TREATMENT RIDES COWS OF ALL TYPES FLIES

Lexington, Ky.—Dairymen can rid their cows of all species of flies (including the pestiferous face-fly) by properly using a repellent spray daily.

R. L. Miller, UK Ag Extension Service entomologist, says the spray is a pyrethrin-piperonyl butoxide repellent. Its use helps prevent the summer milk slump, fly-borne diseases and milk contamination.

Research has shown that from 50 to 100 stable flies per cow, or 500 horn flies—both highly irritating cow pests—will average taking from a pint to a quart of blood daily from each animal. This contributes to a 10 to 20 percent production loss. Cows infested with these pests generally have 125 days in which they are bothered, and usually take 40 to 50 days to recover production after the flies are out of season.

Use a knapsack sprayer to apply a fine mist spray to animals after milking each morning. Use one to two ounces per animal. Put the mist on face, legs, bellies, sides and backs of each cow. This should give adequate control.

Miller reminds that dairymen should NOT use insecticides such as DDT, Lindane, Chlordane, Toxaphene or Dieldrin on dairy cows. These chemicals are absorbed through the skin and show up in the milk.

FUELING PLANES is just one of the chores handled by Mrs. Polly Van Vactor, Kentucky's only woman airport operator, who is in charge of the airport at Kentucky Dam Village State Park near Gilbertsville. At right, microphone in hand, she operates ground-to-air radio communications equipment to give landing information to incoming planes. She also runs a plane charter service and a car rental business at the airport.

County Herds Should Be Tested For Brucellosis This Summer

To inform cattle owners in Fulton county of the need for Brucellosis testing of their herds, the following report was made this week by John Watts, county agent here.

About three years ago, all of Fulton County cattle herds were tested for Brucellosis. There was less than 1 percent infection of cattle in 5 percent of the herds and Fulton county was declared a "Modified-Certified Brucellosis Area" for a period of three years.

The three-year period will expire soon and to prevent Fulton County from losing its status as a modified certified area, it is now necessary to retest a number of herds to be sure the infection is no greater than 1 percent of the cattle in 5 percent of the herds.

It is known that there is still some infection as a herd was found infected earlier this year. Already all milk herds have been screened by the Milk Ring Test by taking samples at the milk companies and the suspicious herds blood tests to find the infection.

It is now necessary to test a number of previously infected herds and previous negative herds of beef type. Since the western part of the county had the most infection on previous tests, most of the previously negative herds are in that part of the county.

A number of the previously infected herds and some of the negative herds have already been tested to help Fulton County to keep its place with 91 other counties in Kentucky that are "Modified-Certified Brucellosis Areas" of which 15 have been recertified to maintain their tested status, including Calloway, Graves, and Trigg Counties.

At the present time, local veterinarians are contacting the remainder of the infected herds and the necessary negative herds to get an early test before the deadline.

All owners being contacted are requested to help. It is realized that many farmers are busy in farm work, but since most herds will take only a little over an hour to test, owners are requested to have cattle up at the time they are notified the inspectors will be there to test.

The inspector for this county is James Gray from Paducah. For additional information about this testing program, contact either the County Agent's office or your local practicing veterinarian.

Tobacco Queen Contest Open In Kentucky

Wanted! A young lady, 17 to 21 years of age, single and talented, to assume the title of Tobacco Princess and represent the Commonwealth of Kentucky in the Queen of Tobacco Contest at the National Festival in Richmond, Virginia, September 22-29. Agriculture Commissioner Emerson Beauchamp has announced a state-wide beauty contest will be held on the opening day of the State Fair in Louisville, September 7, to select a Kentucky Tobacco Princess.

June G. Davis, co-ordinator-in-charge, has said the beauty contest is being financed through a $25 entry fee provided for each candidate by sponsoring tobacco markets.

Davis said the state contest would be conducted along the lines of the national beauty contest. This is the 13th year that a Tobacco Queen has been chosen from the tobacco producing states as its official goodwill ambassador.

"I regard this contest as an excellent opportunity for the promotion of the tobacco industry, our most important single enterprise in Kentucky, and I urge every tobacco marketing center to join in this project," commented Albert G. Clay, Mt. Sterling, president of the Burley Auction Warehouse Association.

Coordinator Davis has said each of the 32 looseleaf tobacco auction centers in Kentucky has been invited to sponsor a young lady in the state contest. The winning contestant at the State Fair will receive an expense-paid trip for herself and her chaperone to the national contest in Richmond. The national contest winner will be crowned as Queen of Tobacco and be awarded a $1,000 scholarship to an accredited college of her choice.

Job Campaign For Young Kentuckians Is Gaining Ground

A stepped-up campaign to find jobs for Kentucky's young adults is beginning to gain ground, State Economic Security Commissioner Earle V. Powell has reported.

Since early May, when his department's Employment Service Division joined in a nationwide effort to help "put Youth On A Job," personnel in local offices of the division have been meeting with community leaders, calling on employers and contacting the local press for help in putting the campaign across.

In Louisville, where the program was initiated, Employment Service Division workers reported a 171 per cent increase in the number of young people placed in May, compared with the same month in 1961.

In Lexington, the second city to join in the program, the Employment Service Division office placed 131 young people under 18 years of age in jobs during May, compared with 45 in May 1961.

"Nine of the 25 local offices have now been organized and are actively working on the youth campaign," Powell said. "All of these have reported a tremendous increase in the number of youths placed in jobs. Eight more offices will be set up within the next two weeks and by September, all of the Employment Service Division offices will be campaigning to 'Put Youth On A Job.'"

Employers who place a young person on a job receive a certificate signed by Gov. Bert Combs, who has endorsed the program and issued a proclamation calling on employers to help find jobs for Kentucky youth.

Ribbons, Ribbons, Who's Got The Ribbons Is The Cry At The 1962 Fair

The Louisville Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a "Kentucky's Blue Ribbon Farm Family Contest" this year.

The idea is to recognize and honor the Kentucky Farm Family that has won the most blue ribbons at state fairs, county fairs, livestock and agricultural shows, horse shows, 4-H and F. F. A. shows, contests, or any other event where a blue ribbon has been awarded, either individually or collectively. Only immediate members of a family may tally their ribbons, which must have been won between the dates of last year's Fair and closing date of the contest, which will be September 1, 1962.

The winning family will be announced at the Kentucky State Fair, in the Coliseum, at 1:30 P. M., E. S. T., on Tuesday, September 1, and will receive a trophy, grand tour of Louisville, recognition by state, city and county officials, free lodging in a hotel, and appearances on television shows. Runner-up family will also receive a trophy.

Entry blanks may be obtained by writing to: Agriculture Committee, Louisville Chamber of Commerce, 300 West Liberty Street, Louisville 2, Kentucky.

Down on the Farm

With JIM PRYOR
Agricultural Agent, State Capitol Building

The past fifteen years have been most interesting ones in agriculture. In comparing today with the mid-1940's, one third fewer farmers are producing our food and fiber needs. Total farm production has increased forty percent during this period, while the production per worker has risen more than one hundred percent, an all time high.

The people in the credit field are inclined to sum up the agricultural revolution in this manner . . . the key has been, the substitution of capital for labor. Studies now show conclusively that farm income per hour of labor used, varies directly with the capital invested per worker. Reports now indicate that these trends are likely to continue in the years just ahead. There is a strong possibility that in the future, credit will be relied upon increasingly by individual farmers to supplement their savings for investment purposes in their business and in meeting the ever mounting money needs.

In order to survive, farmers will see the need for more efficiency. The expansion of any operation should be geared to the size of the farm and the abilities of the operator. The dairy industry has demonstrated this very effectively with the introduction of the elevated milking parlor, which will enable the small dairyman to milk more cows with much less effort . . . and at a very small added cost.

Just about every forecast concerning the future of agriculture and related industries, point to the need for more working capital. This raises the question as to whether adequate loans will be available. There are many lending agencies in this area that stand ready to finance a sound operation, whether it be a long or short loan. On most borrowing of this type reasonably low rates of interest will be found.

In the season ahead, there is little question as to the need and use of all avenues to expand operations or just to remain in business.

Confederate Daughters Called On To Join 'Real Daughters Club'

Last year, among approximately 500 members of the Kentucky Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, 88 were "real daughters." The others were granddaughters, great-granddaughters and, in some cases, collateral descendants—nieces, grandnieces and great-grandnieces.

Mrs. W. E. Bach, 165 Bell Court West, Lexington, is historian general of the "Real Daughters Club" of the UDC and is issuing an appeal to all daughters of men who served in the Confederate Armed Forces, whether or not they are members of the UDC, to send their names and addresses of her. She would also like information on the war veteran and his war record.

Jesse S. Siegel, company president, was master of ceremonies. The following is the message Mr. Siegel had for the group.

Farewell Message
"The trouble with a vacation is that it ends too soon. The end of this vacation is already upon us; sooner than we realize. On behalf of the Henry I. Siegel Company, I want to express my extreme pleasure and satisfaction that this trip was such a rousing success. The good humor, excellent spirits and happy sentiments that each one of you expressed in the short time that I have been here—leads me to believe that this was a worthwhile event.

We look forward to many such pleasant times together in the future.

To make this message complete one must express a word of thanks and gratitude to those who worked so hard to make this vacation a success.

Thanks then to Charlie Cohen for the hotel and program arrangements, to Gladys Siegel for the bus arrangements and to all of you for the wonderful good humor and joyous spirit.

In closing I wish you all a safe journey home and the best of everything always."

Mr. Siegel presented special awards to the men and a few ladies.

The parties traveling by bus arrived back in Buconton, Sunday, July 8, all declaring it was the most wonderful vacation ever and expressing their deep gratitude to the Company for making such a trip possible.

Local Boy Member Of Musical Group

A Fulton County High School senior, James Murphy Everett, has been selected to be a member of the National Future Farmers of America Band which will participate in the national FFA convention in Kansas City, Missouri, October 7-13.

Everett was chosen for his musical background and ability. He is vice president of the FFA chapter at Hickman.

Local Church Plans Week-Long Revival

Rev. Richard S. Coons, pastor of the Union City Cumberland Presbyterian Church, is now in Fulton conducting daily revival services at the Union Cumberland Presbyterian Church.

Morning services are held daily at 10:45, and 7:30 p. m. has been set as the time for the regular evening services.

Rev. Coons has held evangelistic crusades in Chattanooga and Nashville, Tennessee; Marshall, Texas; Syracuse, New York; Mason Hall, Tennessee; Rives, Tennessee, and throughout the Obion Presbytery.

Everyone is invited to attend these Revival services. Rev. William Cottrell, Jr., is the pastor.

Additions Made To New UTMB Building

Additions of three activity-lecture rooms and a number of offices will increase the size of the new Physical Education building at UTMB in Martin from the proposed 33,500 square feet to 43,500 square feet.

The new building also includes a sunken basketball arena with a maximum seating capacity of 4500, a number of dressing rooms, two entrance lobbies and several offices for instructors. Concrete footings for the latter have already been poured.

FARM SAFETY—

icals, falls, and motor vehicles. Drowning accounts for 20 percent to 29 percent of the fatal accidents on farm lands in many communities. For this reason, those who own large farm ponds are urged to permit only supervised swimming with adequate life saving equipment available.

Machinery is the leading cause of fatal farm accidents in most states. If the operators of farm machinery would use the safety devices provided by the manufacturers, losses would be greatly reduced. Machinery should be stopped when being worked on and should never be ridden unless there is space provided.

Agricultural chemicals are more widely used every year and many of them are very dangerous if not used as directed. The only safe method to use in relation to chemicals is to follow the directions on the label to the letter... no shortcuts.

Falls cause nearly half the fatal accidents on the farm. Discourage dangerous substitutes for ladders and always keep stairs in the home as well as in the barn free of obstructions. There are many other causes of accidents and hazards that need to be avoided such as improper lighting of farm vehicles for night or late afternoon travel.

I feel we here in Kentucky could well take a look at Illinois highways in relation to farm vehicles. They require a RED FLAG 4 feet above the driver on a staff or pole. You would be surprised just how far over a hill this warning can be seen.

confined for a period of six weeks. He returned for November term of court. "My doctor examined me and said that I was sound as a dollar only last week," Judge Stahr said today.

Judge Stahr discussed legislation concerning the office during the interview. There are two things concerning the office that have come up," he said. "A circuit judge cannot practice law in any form and the salary for the Circuit Judge in the future was increased $200 per month by the General Assembly," he added.

"So many of my friends have asked me if I was going to run I decided to go ahead and let my intentions be known," he concluded. At least two other candidates who were planning to make the race for Judge's Stahr office said that they were still considering the race. Judge Stahr was in Mayfield conducting a special hearing day for Graves County Circuit court.

It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862... the same year that

IN KENTUCKY, Confederate troops under General Kirby Smith seized Frankfort on September 3rd and held the Kentucky capital until October 4th. Governor Robinson escaped to Louisville with the state's valuable archives.

In those days as now, beer was Kentucky's traditional beverage of moderation. Beer still provides enjoyment for Kentucky people, and a good living for many of them—not only for the 20,000 people employed by the brewing industry, but also for farmers and other suppliers of materials brewers use. TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.

Local Historical Societies To Be Formed In State

In a move designed to broaden interest in Kentucky's history on a community and local level, John B. Breckinridge, president of the Kentucky Historical Society and Kentucky attorney general, has announced the formation of a Committee on Organization of Local Societies.

This committee will work in conjunction with the recently-named Historical Sites and Shrines Committee whose objective is the preservation and acquisition of historically important sites.

As a first step toward a statewide network of historical groups, the Committee on Organization of Local Societies will work to establish regional societies corresponding to the 12 highway districts in the state and will attempt to reactivate any defunct local societies.

"Polly" Handles Airport Affairs At Kentucky Dam Village Like Veteran

A single-engine plane with Canadian markings rolled to a stop on the apron of the small Western Kentucky airport. The pilot climbed down from the cabin and watched an attractive woman in dark slacks and white blouse tie down one wing of the plane.

"They were right," he said. "You must be Polly."
"Yes, I'm Polly," she replied. "But how did you know me?"
"Even in Canada," he said, "we've heard about Polly, the woman airport operator at Kentucky Lake."

Polly (Mrs. Thomas) Van Vactor is Kentucky's only woman airport operator and one of the few women in the world in that business. For three years she has run the Kentucky Dam Village State Park Airport which is near Gilbertsville and a mile northwest of Kentucky Dam.

Although it's an unusual occupation for a woman, Mrs. Van Vactor doesn't feel out of place.

"My husband and I have been flying enthusiasts for the past 15 years," she said, "and even as a child I loved watching the planes land and take off at the airport."

Mrs. Van Vactor, her husband Thomas and their seven-year-old daughter Charlotte live at the airport. He is a maintenance supervisor for the National Carbide plant in nearby Calvert City.

"It's not landing airplanes that keeps me so busy, anyway," she said. "Most of my job is taking care of the pilots and planes once they get on the ground."

Mrs. Van Vactor parks and ties down the planes, pumps 80- and 100-octane fuel, changes an occasional spark plug or adds a quart of oil, and runs a charter service and a car rental business.

The field has two runways, a 4,000-foot paved runway and an auxiliary 2,700-foot grass strip. Mrs. Van Vactor maintains a 122.8 megacycle Unicam radio for ground- to -air communications, but pilots are not required to call in for landing clearance.

Runway lights allow planes to land unassisted after dark.

An acid test of her skills came in late August 1961 when the "Between the Lakes" conference was held at Kentucky Dam Village State Park to consider a proposed national recreation area between Kentucky Lake and the future Barkley Lake which will be formed when Barkley Dam across the Cumberland River is completed in 1964.

The conference was attended by U. S. Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall, Kentucky Gov. Bert Combs, Tennessee Gov. Buford Ellington, T. V. A. officials and representatives from related Federal and state agencies.

The day brought 60 twin-engine and single-engine planes, all requiring fuel, service and parking space that would allow them to get out without moving several other planes.

"I don't think I stopped all day," she said, "but everyone got service and was able to take off when he wanted to."

Kentucky Dam Village and Kentucky Lake State Park—also near an airport—are both becoming increasingly popular with flying vacationers. Mrs. Van Vactor has already received reservations from a St. Louis flying club to bring their 50 members in approximately 20 planes to Kentucky Dam Village for a three-day outing this summer.

Religious Training Will Be Subject For Sunday's Sermon

"Religious Training of Children" is the sermon title for the 10:55 a. m. worship service at the South Fulton Baptist Church on Sunday. The Bible statement, "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it;" will furnish the authority for the message. The sermon will seek to search out answers that trouble the minds of so many people today: Is this statement from Proverbs 22:6 not a part of the inspired Bible? When a child turns out wrong is it because he did not receive the right kind of religious education?

Members of the church and others who are "Reading the Bible through in 1962" will complete the book of Proverbs on Friday and begin with the book of Ecclesiastes on Saturday. The reading of 3 chapters each week day and 5 on Sundays completes the entire 66 books of the Bible in 1 year.

At 8:30 a. m. the sermon title will be "The Strength of The Name". At 6:00 p. m. the subject is "Vision And The Lord's Supper." All of the sermons this week come from the Proverbs.

The ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the 6:00 o'clock service.

Sunday school meets at 9:45 a. m. and the Training Union convenes at 5:00 p. m. The public is invited to attend all the services of the church.

Judge: "You say you robbed that delicatessen because you were hungry. Why didn't you make yourself a sandwich instead of emptying the cash register?"

Prisoner: "I'm a proud man, Judge—I like to pay for what I eat."

MILK... The Perfect Drink

June is dairy month throughout the nation. Every small community, town and city is observing the month of June as Dairy Month. All phases of the industry including processors, distributors, producers, and allied food interests are cooperating with the American Dairy Association to promote the sale and consumption of all dairy products. Results have always been very successful and this time no doubt will be even more eventful than years past. Surpluses of dairy products have to be reduced to a minimum.

We have made great strides in the production and consumption of dairy products in recent years. Production today in the United States of America is greater than ever before in history. Our soil and climate in this area is ideal for the dairy cow. The ever-increasing population will demand more dairy foods.

The production per cow had been on the increase during the last few years, however, the number of cows on farms have shown a slight decrease. If you need additional income on your farm, why not investigate the possibilities of dairying. There has always been a reliable market for milk here in Western Kentucky, and it will still be here long after your desire for milking ceases. Dairying also supplies the farm with a steady income, unlike other farm enterprises.

For your health's sake and in order that we may encourage one of the major agricultural industries in the area, let's all join in promoting during the month of June the dairy business. We all need to drink more milk and eat more dairy food. Milk is nature's most perfect food and is safe for all ages, you never outgrow your need for milk. Milk has more uses in foods and mixtures than any other product in the world.

The next time you take the family out to eat, or just drop by for a refreshment, order a dairy food or just say, "MAKE MINE MILK!"

Ky. College Freshmen Will Not Be Permitted To Have Cars On Campus

Fewer students in Kentucky's five State-supported colleges will be driving their own cars this fall.

A new ruling, adopted by the Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education follows the regulations on student motor vehicles now in effect at the University of Kentucky.

Briefly, the policy forbids freshmen entering the colleges this fall to possess or operate motor vehicles within certain distances from their schools. The same policy will apply to incoming sophomores who in September 1963 hold less than a B average. In addition, students who are on academic or disciplinary probation are likewise prohibited from owning or operating motor vehicles.

Exceptions to this general policy will be made by the individual colleges.

The policy also stipulates that all students who are allowed to drive must register their cars with school authorities, presenting a valid operator's license and evidence of public liability and property damage insurance.

Students under 21 must provide written consent of a parent or guardian, regardless of the ownership of the vehicle.

Wendell J. Butler, Kentucky superintendent of public instruction, is chairman of the council which includes the presidents of Kentucky's five State colleges and the University of Kentucky, other educators and some lay members.

BIG GAME!

Hunters on national forests lands bagged six hundred eighty-two thousand big game animals in 1961, about one-third of all the big game taken in the United States. This harvest, equivalent to fifteen percent of the estimated four point four million big game animals living on the national forests and grasslands, is well below the rate of game population growth.

Fortifications on the San Juan Islands off Washington State mark the "Pig War" of 1859, the National Geographic Society notes in its new book, "America's Historylands." At the time, the United States and Britain had locked horns over the Pacific Northwest. A minor incident—the shooting of a Hudson's Bay Company pig by an American—brought the two nations to the brink of war.

Senior Americans Take Special Tours

Members of the American Association of Retired Persons and the National Retired Teachers Association gather in New York prior to sailing for Europe for a leisurely paced tour arranged by their non-profit organizations.

Thousands of Senior Americans eagerly desert rocking chairs, television sets and babysitting chores to see Europe on guided tours specially planned with the older person in mind. Two national non-profit organizations representing more than half a million senior citizens sponsor these guided tours to Europe.

Dr. Ethel Percy Andrus, 79-year-old president and founder of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) and the National Retired Teachers Association (NRTA), explains why this travel program was inaugurated:

"We received thousands of letters from our members asking for low-cost, trouble-free European travel. Our people are as 'young-at-heart' and adventurous as young folks . . . and as eager to explore Europe's varied treasures. However they were held back by high cost, lack of companions, and red tape in making arrangements. Our non-profit tours overcome these worries. This is our fourth season, and we'll pamper a record number of members and friends with our red carpet treatment."

AARP and NRTA tours sail for Europe throughout the spring, summer and fall. Each group has its own experienced tour director, (usually a European graduate student) who stays with the group throughout the trip. In major cities, special guides are also used. As an example of the special planning with older persons in mind, the modern buses used for the tours have been fitted with extra steps to make travel easier for older people. One of the tour directors, a 28-year-old graduate of Heidelberg University, stated: "I am constantly amazed by the energy, high spirits and intense interest of these older tourists. They're far more enthusiastic than younger ones."

A typical NRTA-AARP tour lasts 51 days, including a stay in New York before and after sailing. Most popular tour is the Grand Circle, embracing England, Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Italy, Monaco and France. There are also tours to Scandinavia, British Isles, and Spain, Italy, Greece and Israel. NRTA-AARP Travel Service headquarters are located at 80 William Street, N.Y. 38, N.Y.

DEATHS

Mrs. Onie Smith Redden

Mrs. Onie Gannell Smith Redden, 49, resident of Huntingdon, Tenn., died at Haws Memorial early Sunday night, June 15, after a long illness. She had been a patient in Haws Memorial for the past four years.

She was the daughter of C. T. and Lurline Kyle Smith and was born March 11, 1913.

Harold Redden, her husband, survives her.
Services were Tuesday, July 17, at 2 p. m. at the First Baptist Church in Huntingdon with interment in Prospect Cemetery. Dilday Funeral Home of Huntingdon had charge of arrangements.

Satellite technicians wear lint-free nylon caps and gowns, scrub their hands and dry them on lint-free towels, and vacuum-clean their shoes before handling delicate instruments, the National Geographic Magazine says. Extreme care is taken because even a fingerprint on a vital part of a communications satellite could shorten its life.

Letters To Editor

Mr. Paul Westpheling
Fulton, Ky.

Dear Sir:

The report of participation in 1962 corn-grain sorghum feed grain program in Obion County reflects an outstanding job done by many people encouraging farmers to sign-up in the program. Incidentally, 50.4 percent of all free grain farms signed up.

To those of you that cooperated in the publicity program that was so well executed during the announcement of the program and continuing through the sign-up period, We, the County Committee and Office Manager, express our sincere thanks for the public service rendered.
