CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientists, throughout the world on Sunday, February 13, is "Soul" and the Golden Text is: "I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my soul shall be joyful in my God" (Isaiah 61:10.) Among the citations are the following passages:

"The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate" (Psalms 34:22.)

"It is our ignorance of God, the divine Principle, which produces apparent discord, and the right understanding of Him restores harmony. Truth will at length compel us all to exchange the pleasures and pains of sense for the joys of Soul." ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 390.)

SOLDIER LETTERS

This letter was received by Mrs. Lee Hammett several days ago from her son Maurice.

Dearest Mom:

Well here's your home sick boy again and this time from the top of a very high mountain.

Your letter got up to me this morning by human pack train. I also got letters from Memphis, one from Ruth and one from a girl living near Duketown, Tenn. I really enjoyed each one a lot and you tried so hard to tell how things were at home on Christmas Day. You said all was well and that means a lot and you tried to be happy. But there were too many missing. Let's hope it will be quite different next Christmas.

Paul wrote in his letter about the boys coming home, well as far as I know that is far from true because we still have a big job ahead of us and I am sure we are here to see it finished. Well Mom it was my job this morning to go down and get water, we have five gallon cans to strap on our backs and on the way back up the mountain pass I spilled a lot on me and it was really cold. I just hate to put on long underwear. Mother, don't you ever get it in your head that I will get to the point where I don't care what happens, although I get disgusted plenty of times. But I am thankful for lots of things. I thank God for my health up until the present, most of the time I feel good and always in a happy mood. I am with a swell bunch of fellows and that helps a lot. Our Lieutenant is in the hospital, but nothing serious. Write me more about little Earl. I sure hope he is well by now, write often and keep praying for me.

Your soldier boy, MAURICE

Bulldogs Beat Western 51 to 19

The Fulton High Bulldogs romped to a 51 to 19 victory Tuesday night over the Western Mustangs. It was the second victory over the Mustangs this season and the third for the season for the Bulldogs. The Bulldogs travel to Cayce Friday night to meet the Champs of the Jackson Purchase tournament.

Although Western put up a pretty good fight on their own floor some time ago they did not seem to get going Tuesday night. They did not get a field goal until the second half was four minutes old. Up to that time they had five points—all on free throws, and not until the second team was practically all in did the Mustangs begin to score. The half ended 26 to 4 for the Bulldogs.

Parham was high point man for the Bulldogs piling up 14 points and Glidewell was high for Western with 7 points to his credit.

RECEIPE of the WEEK

Lucky is the youngster who attends a school where the well-planned hot lunch is as regular as feature of the daily schedule as the noon hour itself. For those not so fortunate, it is up to the homemaker to see that a substantial, tempting meal is carried from home. In many schools, teachers and parents together have worked out some scheme for re-heating jars of soups, chocolate or other food brought from home. Milk in some form should be a "must" in every lunch menu.

A good lunch gives the child a satisfied feeling, keeps him from getting sleepy and restless, and enables him to do better work.

A bulletin, "Lunches for School Children," No. 365, by foods specialists Florence Imlay and Pearl J. Haak of the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, gives menus and recipes for both individual and group lunches. Copies may be secured free from offices of county agricultural or home agents, or from the college.

A packed school lunch menu: fruit-nut bread and butter sandwich, enriched bread and meat sandwich, carrot strips, milk (or cocoa for re-heating,) canned fruit or apple, cookies.

Fruit-Nut Bread
2 c. white flour
2 c. wholewheat flour
1-2 c. brown sugar

STATES THRIVING—WITHOUT RED TAPE

One place the Federal bureaucracy boom hasn't hit is State government, which doesn't seem to be suffering therefrom!

In 1943, State governments saw one of their most prosperous years in history, with mounting surpluses and economies and administrative improvements put into effect without any slackening of the states' war efforts.

Following a policy of economizing by improving State administration, the states invested $1,500,000,000 of surplus funds in Federal bonds during the year and decreased their gross indebtedness by nearly $4,000,000,000.

To stimulate local financing of war contracts, restrictions on 40 states' banks were lifted.

HEATING THE HOUSE

During the winter of 1942-43 there was much in the papers about the shortage of fuel oil and the consequent coldness of houses all over the country. With no desire to seem indifferent to the cold that people must have suffered (and it was far below zero in Boston and elsewhere,) I could not help getting slightly amused when I remembered how short a time ago it was when adequate heat for houses was practically unknown.

Suppose we go back to the days of open fireplaces. Certainly no one ever got too warm then, at least not all around at the same time, though one side may have nearly blistered while the other was not far from freezing. Most of the air in the house went careering up the chimney, taking the heat of the fire with it. On cold nights eggs would freeze right by the fireplace, even though some brand were left burning. We used to bring the water bucket in before bedtime and place it on the mantle so the water would not be frozen the next morning. It was pretty hard to keep potatoes and such things from getting as hard as marbles and then having to be cooked at once or else be lost. A warm bed in those days was unknown until after it was warmed up with our own body heat. I can recall having crawled into beds that were so cold that they felt like icy water. Then was when you really appreciated feather beds.

Sometimes, when I have been a guest during Christmas week, I have slept in beds that had accumulated a whole month of bitter weather. A few minutes before it was time for me to retire, a fire would be built in the spare-room fireplace or stove, but the heat failed to get near the bed before it was time for me to lie down on the glacier and try to keep from stiffening like a mummy. But we lived through it, millions of us, and are still here, rather hale and tough.

And then there was the school-house on cold days. Of course there was no janitor to rise early and have the building warm for us when we got there. We were the janitors. The first boy who got to school felt honor-bound to start the fire in the cast-iron stoves. Sometimes we drew for places and felt highly honored to be chosen for such a necessary task. By the time most of the children arrived, bundled up in fascinators, caps with ear flaps, yarn stockings, leggings, and all the wraps that would stick on, the two stoves would be roaring like a forest fire, the stove pipes would be red, and there would be danger of a disaster. But the air a few feet away would be as cold as Alaska, for the cracks in the walls and the floor let in huge quantities of fresh cold air to take the place of the hot air around the stoves. And though we toiled to bring up fresh supplies of wood and had big games of dragging logs as mule teams, the outlying seats never got comfortable from the day of the first severe weather until the school closed. We had colds, usually from one end of the winter to the other, we suffered from wet and cold feet, but some of us, again, lived through it, tough enough to plant a nudist colony in Greenland.

We also went to church sometimes in winter, though church services usually froze out for some three or four months. The sermons were something beside the point, for the warmth they had in them was wasted in July and August, when we had our protracted meetings. If some of that extra heat had been turned on in January in the little church that had stood unwarmed for weeks, there might have been more interest in religion then and now. Anyway, we did not freeze; I do not recall having ever heard of a frost-bitten foot that resulted from going to church in winter. I wonder whether we may not have softened up somewhat since hot-air and steam and hot-water heat are so common.

This was agreed by all the class. 22 were present with 1 visitor, all teachers present. Mr. and Mrs. Belle were absent due to visiting relatives too far away. A suggestion made by Mrs. Ruth Lomax, to donate $5.00 to the Infantile Paralysis drive. A motion made by Mrs. Fred Wade and seconded by Mrs. Edna Alexander and carried by 100 per cent by school. We truly hope this small bit will help some child. There were 2 of our own children from Fulton county 2 years ago who were benefited by the Kenny treatment. This leaves $37 dollars in Sunday School Treasury.

Mrs. C. E. Weeks spent Wednesday with Mrs. Carl King.

SAFETYGEAMS

This has been an unusual winter. The sunny South has had snow and sleet and very cold weather. The northern part of the Midwest and other sections of the country have had no snow and unusually mild weather.

However, come, rain, snow, or sunshine we must keep our cars in first-class condition, ready particularly for winter driving hazards, when those icy days do come.

Keep a set of tire chains handy as they are one of your "musts" for safe winter driving. Check up on your heaters, defrosters, windshield wipers, brakes, tires, and headlights. See that they are in tip-top shape.

Get your car in first-class condition and be prepared for bad weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hutchens and son Charles Robert visited Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Carl King.

Mrs. Earl Weeks and Sarah and Louella of Fourth street, John

Howell and Henry Phillips of Crutchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Lucian Nanney and girls, and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy McGowan were Sunday and Sunday night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl King.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them! Nature designed the kidney to do a marvelous job. They task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The job of living life itself is constantly producing waste. Waste the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to continue. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer aching back, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting on nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, loss of sleep, nervous, all with out.

Frequent, steady or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The thoughtful and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste.

REACHING MATURITY

The aviation industry has been working to formulate a program which would provide a sound method for the development of both civil and commercial aviation when peace again allows men and women to turn their minds and hands to productive enterprise. Like every growing industry, aviation today finds itself faced with a maze of problems which involve intricate legislative questions. Already several measures have been before Congress seeking to chart a course for the future of the industry.

Out of the welter of conflicting opinion, basic facts now begin to stand out clearly: Peacetime aviation should be under an independent Civil Aeronautics Commission; there should be Federal safety rules for all air navigation and airports; commercial air transportation should be under sound Federal regulation; Federal regulation of all flying of a private character other than commercial transportation, should be confined to safety measures. There must be unification of tax questions which affect aviation. There must be a painstaking and intelligent study of all transportation agencies to the end that this nation may have the greatest coordinated transportation system in the world.

It will take patience and understanding to perfect our country's aviation program. But a nation which excels all others in transportation development can certainly devise a model aviation policy.

ON BEING WELL-BRED

By RUTH TAYLOR

Conventions are the hall marks of civilized living. They are the traffic rules which man has adopted for the better conduct of his life. Their observance is the card proving his right to membership in civilized society.

There is no law against pushing your neighbor aside in the street, but if you do so, you prove yourself a boor. There is no law against eating peas with a knife—but if you do, you mark yourself ill-bred and unused to the amenities of civilized society. There is no law against discourtesy—but it just isn't practiced by the kind of people you want to know.

Conventions are designed for the protection of all. The common usages of society are ingrained in children from their earliest contacts with those around them. We do not condemn a child himself for his bad manners, but we do comment caustically upon his home environment.

To those conventions with which we are all conversant, should now be added a new one. A person who condemns another not as an individual but because of the groups from which he comes, should be considered as guilty of bad breeding as he who transgresses any of the other more material conventions. It just isn't American, and it just isn't done by ladies and gentlemen in America. We should hold it as important to be kind as to be courteous, to speak fairly as well as truthfully, to respect our neighbors' beliefs as we respect his possessions.

We are entering on one of the most trying years of our material life—a year in which the crescendo of war will mean greater stress upon our own tempers, greater strains upon our mental balance as the casualty lists roll in, in addition to the bitter fight of a national election.

Let us resolve to conduct ourselves as well-bred people during this trying time. Let us be good American ladies and gentlemen first and set a seal upon our lips. Arguing as hotly as we will, let us observe the cannons of fair play and decent speech and not indulge in generalized charges against anyone, nor in mass condemnation of any group within our nation, nor in vitriolic attacks on any race, religion, class or color.

Observing at all times the conventions of society let us prove to the world that the democratic form of government with its freedom of speech for all people can still be not only the most civilized but the best bred form of government.

LETTER FROM HOME

DEAR JIM:

Received your letter this morning. Glad to hear you get to London now and then and see the sights. Wish I could make the rounds with you. I guess it's changed since '19.

Your mother's gone next door to return the dishes she borrowed for her club meeting last night. You never heard such jabbering that went on here! It's worse than when they played bridge—then there was a lull off and on. But now that they're sewing for the war relief there's never a break. I ducked down to the Olympic and saw a pretty fair Western. Got back in time to grab a piece of cake as it disappeared from the kitchen.

The other day I read a pretty good book somebody left around—biography of this fellow Roy Chapman Andrews who explored the Gobi Desert. That was before your day but I recall it very well—"missing link" expedition they called it. Brought back a lot of prehistoric skeletons.

I wonder if there'll ever be another great expedition like that. Those expeditions of Andrews' were financed by public-spirited business men like Rockefeller and Morgan. They didn't want any profit or get any.

Seems to me it would be quite a loss to the world if there were no private funds to back scientific and educational research like that.

I didn't mean to get off on that track, but somehow it seems important these days.

Towser's pricked up his ears, so I guess your mother's coming. She'll be writing you all the news that I don't know.

So that's all for now. Take care of yourself, son.

Washington Snapshots

By JAMES PRESTON

The steel walkouts and the threatened rail strike have revived Congressional interest in new anti-strike legislation. But how far this will go is expected to depend upon the action of labor leaders.

Sentiment for such legislation will be formed rapidly if new strike threats develop. It may die out completely if labor tranquility prevails.

It is obvious from the labor legislation so far proposed that there is at the present time no crystallizing of thought on the matter at the Capital.

Some of the major proposals are:

(1) The request of President Roosevelt for a National Service ("compulsory draft") Act along the lines of the Austin-Wadsworth bill.

(2) H. R. 3962, introduced by Rep. Howard W. Smith (D. Va.), providing for criminal penalties for strikes in war industries, offered as an amendment to the Smith-Connally Act.

(3) Announcement of Sen. Tom Connally (D. Tex.) that he would offer legislation to amend and tighten the same law with provisions for drastic penalties.

(4) Decision of the Senate Judiciary Committee to begin hearings—after months of postponement—on the House-passed Hobbs Anti-Racketeering Bill making unions liable for violations of the anti-trust laws and Sherman Act.

(5) Meanwhile, there has developed strong sentiment in Congress for the drafting of so-called compromise legislation—a middle of the road program between compulsory draft legislation and criminal penalties.

(6) A measure to be introduced granting greater authority to WLB. Penalties would provide that if an employer refused to abide by a decision, the government should have the right to take over the plant and operate it; and if labor refused to heed the decision, certain rights and privileges would be denied that particular union during the period of refusal.

(7) A measure modeled after the British Labor Disputes Act is being discussed and probably will be introduced.

A wide range of other bills may be expected to be introduced, as it is known that many Congressmen are working on their own ideas of legislation for dealing with the problem.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Jeb Crowell and I took the bus to town the other day and a friend of ours asked us to go with him to his Club luncheon and hear a prominent college president speak.

He made a mighty sensible talk on Peace after the War, pointing out in particular that you can't readjust things after Victory's won just by making laws! Most countries, he said, will have to work out their post-war problems themselves.

To emphasize his point, he reminded us how we Americans once thought we could keep folks from enjoying a moderate glass of beer, by legislation. And how we got fooled, bad.

Jeb and I agreed he was exactly right. You can't cram laws down folks' throats, especially if they interfere with their "rights".

From where I sit, moderate folks ought to be able to sit down and enjoy a friendly beverage like beer—with a home-cooked meal, in the company of friends, if they want to. I'm a great believer in moderation.

Munday of Hopkinsville, Ky., performed the ceremony.

The altar was decorated with smilax and palms interspersed with seven branch candelabra, holding lighted ivory tapers and centered with an arrangement of white gladioli.

Miss Ruth Thompson furnished the nuptial music and Miss Harriet Chick, both of Nashville, Tenn.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Captain Byrne A. Evans, United States Army, stationed at Fort Jackson, South Carolina, and wore a wedding gown of ivory satin heirloom fashioned with a long basque bodice, fastening down the back with tiny covered buttons, full skirt falling in a train and long sleeves. The lace yoke was outlined with petals of satin, full length veil of bridal illusion, attached to a sweetheart coronet of the same lace forming a train of veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias with loops of ivory satin ribbon, centered with orchids.

Miss Bedie Evans, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore an American Beauty taffeta gown, with a long basque bodice, full floor length skirt, short puffed sleeves and net yoke decollete outlined with pleated ruffles fastened with tiny covered buttons down the back. She carried a bouquet of Pelargonium carnations with loops of pale pink satin ribbon.

Glyn Pauley, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Jack Pauley, was the flower girl and she wore a model of pale pink taffeta fashioned similarly to that of the maid of honor. She carried a French bouquet of sweetheart roses.

Tommy Gorrell was the ring bearer.

Attending the groom as best man was Lieutenant Erwin Suss and ushers were Lt. Sherman Pochapin, Lt. John Metzger, Lt. John Hudson and Lt. Francis Honsa, all of Camp Campbell.

The couple will make their home in Hopkinsville.

So You Thought We Were JEWELERS

Well, doesn't that beat all how these ideas seem to get around? Just because we have diamonds and precious jewels, you naturally jumped to the conclusion that our business was selling jewelry.

What we really sell is something quite different from what you think. Yes, we sell the most precious, the most fragile, the most beautiful things in all this world. We sell Love . . . Romance . . . and Adventure. We follow the path of Beauty, to gorgeous sun sets, to dusk and a friendly tree. We traffic in old-fashioned gardens with green hedges of lilacs. We capitalize starlit nights, moon beams, glow worms, and kiss in the dark. We are the guardians of Memories . . . and the makers of Dreams that last.

And you thought we were jewelers! Only to the extent that it's our business to translate what you feel for her, and what she feels for you, into a permanent message that will give joy for always, today and every day. To that end we use jewels mounted with exquisite beauty, for there is nothing else in all the world that will always say I love you. Everything else grows old and dim but love and truth . . . and jewels.

So make your Valentine gift one that will last and bring happy memories throughout the years to come!

THIS FARM BOY GAVE ALL... You are only asked to lend your money!

LIEUTENANT (j.g.) PAUL BAKER, Navy pilot, with five Jap aircraft to his credit in the day's fighting, was hovering over the aircraft carrier Lexington at dusk, awaiting the signal to land. His gas tanks were nearly empty. Suddenly, over the horizon Jap planes were spotted. It was feared the Japs might discover the Lexington and try a suicide attempt. Baker's order to land never came. His landing lights might have given the Lexington's position away. Without hesitation, Lieutenant Baker turned his plane away from the big carrier and headed for the open sea, luring the Japs after him. He disappeared into the night, never to be seen again. The Lexington was safe.

You can buy extra Bonds!

Paul Baker had a big decision to make. It took him about two seconds.

We, at home, also have a decision to make. We are asked to buy extra War Bonds at once. Our boys at the front are depending on us in this Fourth War Loan. Our patriotic impulse is to say "yes" first and look around for the money afterwards. Let us obey that impulse! It will do us good in more ways than one!

Paul Baker sized his situation up in two seconds... and acted. We, whose duty is so trifling by comparison, need scarcely more time in which to do ours!

Think! We are asked to make an investment, not a sacrifice! We are asked to invest the money we would normally use to replace automobiles or farm machinery or repair buildings and fences. We are asked to establish a depreciation reserve which will be available for replacements after the war. We are asked to build up a financial reserve for unfavorable years that may come later, or for the education of the children, unexpected hospital bills, or the payment of taxes and debts.

War Bonds are the best form of financial reserve ever offered you. Your money helps finance the war. By postponing unnecessary spending you speed production of planes and munitions to win the war. The gradual expenditure of your reserve after the war will provide jobs for returning soldiers and help stabilize the nation's finances in the postwar adjustment period.

Ask yourself: Have I a single valid reason why I should not buy extra War Bonds?

Then, like Paul Baker, make your decision and act!

Get Ready For The Day When Johnny Comes Marching Home

If you have a boy in the service, think what it will mean to have him come back and share with you the joy of equipping the farm with the best in tractors and other machinery. Think what it can mean for you to have the cash to put the children through college. Think what it can mean, a few years hence, to have new farm buildings or a new home or complete modern conveniences about the place.

To thousands upon thousands of farm and ranch owners who have bought extra War Bonds, these things are assured. For the first time in their lives they are going to be able to have the things they've wanted. Some of them are your neighbors. How about you?

THINGS THAT MAR FAMILY LIFE
LESSON TEXT—Genesis 27:34-37; Matthew 5:31, 32; Luke 12:13-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ—Galatians 6:2.

Home is what you make it! Oh, yes, there may be circumstances which hinder us from doing what we would like—such as poverty, illness, unemployment, etc. These are things we cannot control and certainly they do have a bearing. But man or woman when of the right spirit can triumph over such matters and make even the poorest home the gateway to heaven. It is a matter of the attitude of heart and mind. Our lesson then is very practical, for it deals with those sins which mar family life.

Whatever our circumstances may be, we can and must turn away from sin—and in this case, the sins which hinder the home from being what it ought to be. God has provided victory over sin through Christ for all who believe in Him.

What then are the sins which stand as the enemies of the home?

I. Deceit (Gen. 27:30-35).
Whatever the circumstances of the home may be, there can be absolute honesty and candor in the dealings between members of the family.

Our recent study of the story of Jacob and Esau showed us the sad consequences of the deceit practiced by Jacob and his mother in defrauding Esau. Many elements entered in, the favoritism of the mother toward one son, the envy that the brother had of his elder brother's birthright, the wicked scheming of mother and son to outwit the aged father—all a very distressing picture of a home shot through with deceitfulness. To build anything of permanent value on such a foundation was quite impossible.

The family in which deceitful means are used by husband or wife to gain some advantage for self or a favored child is heading for the rocks and needs to turn about and get into the channel of truth and uprightness before it is too late.

II. Divorce (Matt. 5:31, 32).
One of the most destructive elements of modern life is that of divorce. Terrifying statistics could be quoted, but they are not nearly as moving as the knowledge most of us have of broken homes, delinquent children, decadent morals, etc., and nauseam. The victims of this deadly evil are primarily the children who are sent on into life with disordered minds and hearts.

Jesus declared that the decree of divorcement allowed by Moses was not an abrogation of God's original law in this matter. Because of the "hardness of their hearts" (Mark 10:4) Moses permitted it, but the standard of God was and (note this please!) is unchanged.

Marriage, as we saw in our lesson of November 1, is God's plan for the perfect union of the man and woman whereby the two become one in the sight of God. That means that the tie is not one to be dissolved at will or on some purely legal ground; it is an inseparable union.

The only exception recognized by Scripture (v. 32) is that act of unfaithfulness which is such a breach of the holy union as to virtually destroy it. Perhaps it might be called a recognition of the breaking of the union rather than an exception. Adultery is a heinous sin, an extremely serious violation of God's law. Let us press that fact home today when it is so lightly regarded in our sinful generation.

III. Desire (Luke 12:13-15).
Money is necessary and may be a blessing, but the "love of money is the root of all evil" (I Tim. 6:10).
That is not just a verse in the Bible.
It is the true picture of the thing which has destroyed the happiness of millions.

Here was a quarrel over an inheritance, and in meeting it our Lord laid down a principle which would solve all the money quarrels in every home—and they are endless in number and great in bitter destructiveness.

"Man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (v. 15). Write it large over the minds and hearts of the boys and girls in our homes! Let it control in the attitude of father and mother toward money. It will solve not only the money problems of the home, but will send the children forth into life with a foundation philosophy that will bless them to the end of their days.

Notice verse 14. It is the desire for money that most often makes man desire to be a judge over his brother. The big eyes of envy cause him to look with bitter desire upon what his brother has and he wants.
The fine principle of sharing the family's possessions would do much to knit the home into a unit—happy, strong and useful to both God and man. The point is to say "ours" rather than "mine," and to ask,
"What can we do?" not, "What can I get?"

DEPLORES WASTE OF FARM MANURE

Farmers could save a lot of money
by better use of manure, thinks W.
C. Johnstone, a crops man at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Kentucky farmers will spend $3,000,000 for mixed fertilizers this year, he says.
"They produce on their farms
over $40,000,000 worth of manure, and they waste, by careless and improper handling, seven times the amount of plant food bought in mixed fertilizers."

"A ton of properly conserved manure has the approximate immediate plant food value of 100 pounds of 4-5-10 fertilizer," he states. "The plant food applied in eight tons of manure would be nearly equal to that contained in 200 pounds of nitrate of soda, 200 pounds of 20 percent superphos-phate and 160 pounds of sulphate of potash. While such fertilizer applications would be considered very liberal, the use of eight tons of manure per acre would be possible on 2,000,000 acres of Kentucky farm land each year. If that by-product were handled efficiently."
