Plan Drafted To Improve Local Schools

As a result of a series of five seminars entitled "Project Update" which met throughout the school year 1975-76, a committee of Calloway County educators has drafted a plan for improving professional performance to be submitted to the county system at the beginning of the school year 1976-77.

This plan is in accordance with the latest interpretation of the Kentucky plan, Four "Project Update" consultants from school systems in · California, Minnesota, Indiana, and Colorado poet with representatives of schools throughout Region I of Ken-

The last seminar was concerned mainly with implementing the local plan and the consultant; Dr. Edward Pino, Denver, Colorado, brought out various methods the teacher could use in improving his professional performance.

Those educators from the Calloway County school system attending some or all of the seminars were William B. Miller, Dr. Jack Rose, Edward Curd, Ron McAlister, Bobby Allen, Johnny Bohannon, Roy Cothran, Mrs. Donald Crawford, Mrs. Jim Feltner, Mrs. Scott Seiber, and Mrs. Leon Adams.

Among the convention highlights were major addresses expressing this year's theme of "Preserving the Future" by Dr. Kurt Waldheim, Nations; Dr. Aurelio Peccei, former managing director of the Olivetti Corporation and founder of the Club of Rome; Dr. Misael Pastrana Borrero, former president of Colombia; and The Most Reverend Philip Hannan, Archibishop of New Orleans

Western Kentucky Farms Most Profitable Of All In Kentucky

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - A University of Kentucky study indicates that the most profitable Kentucky farms last year were in the Ohio Valley region, an eight-county section of western Kentucky.

In fact, the report compiled by UK last week indicates the Ohio Valley region and the Purchase region in extreme western Kentucky were the only ones where farms, on the average, showed a profit in 1975.

The report gives results of UK's nnual "farm analysis" program, which includes 288 farmers in six

The Ohio Valley group in the study was made up of 56 farmers from the Owensboro and Henderson areas who produce mostly corn, soybeans, wheat

They averaged $19,468 in "net management returns," the highest

Kentucky Stands To Lose Over

The "net management returns" given in the study were arrived at by deducting theoretical figures for unpaid family labor and interest that might be paid - or earned - on total farm investment from average "farm and family earnings.'

"Net management returns" for farmers in the eight-county Purchase region in extreme western Kentucky averaged $12,692.

Farmers in the seven counties around Louisville had a minus $12,280, and in the 16-county Bluegrass region a minus

Farmers in the large 18-county Pennyroyal section of southwestern Kentucky showed an average loss of Farmers in the eight-county Lincoln Trail region of central Kentucky were $4,088 in the red last year, according to eastern Kentucky.

Since most farmers do not pay interest on their entire investment, however, actual farm earnings differ from the study results given in terms of "net management returns."

If only the estimated interest payments are deducted from "farm and family earnings" the Ohio Valley area's $19,468 translates to more than $50,000, for example, and the Louisville rea's minus $12,280 becommes a plus $15,000 before taxes and principal payments on debts.

Farm earnings in western Kentucky have been helped by strong grain prices and the even stronger hog business recently, while beef and dairy farmers elsewhere in the state have been hurt by high feed grain prices in the past few years. Other factors affecting the farm profits have included rising farm expenses and lower burley tobacco prices.

Near $9 Million Saved By Local People In Year

Residents of Calloway County have been putting more money than usual into savings and debt reduction during the past year and, as a consequence, are in relatively good shape financially.

Despite the recession, the average local family reached the end of the year with a record amount of cash and other liquid assets tucked away.

The net result is that there is an impressive reserve of spending power waiting in the wings. Although some of it has been allowed to trickle out in the last few months-to buy new cars, refrigerators and other durable goods-it is still only a trickle, compared with what it could be.

The bulk of it is being held back by consumers who are awaiting assurance that the present economic upturn will continue. Once they become convinced that the country is heading back to normal, they will be ready to unleash their pent-up savings and embark on a spending spree. How much are Calloway County families saving? The amount of money put aside during the past year by the local population is estimated at $8,905,000

This represents liquid assets in the form of bank accounts, shares in savings and loan associations, purchases of U.S. savings bonds and the

The figures are based upon data compiled by the Federal Reserve Board, the American Life Assurance Association and others through national studies. Throughout the country, they indicate, about $91 billion was put aside by consumers last year.

The amount of money a family can save depends upon several factors, but especially upon its earnings. Those with meager incomes are able to save little

At the $8,000 net income level, about 4.1 per cent is saved, at $10,000, approximately 6.1 per cent and, at $15,000, around 8.6 per cent, it is estimated.

The amount saved in Calloway County in the past year was approximately $880 per household, based on the overall findings and on the average earnings reported for the local Gergen said regional mental health boards will have to "give up some of their ambitions" as they try to make budget cuts without lowering the quality of service.

But he predicted that the boards may be able to hold cuts in services to 10 per Gergen said the state's commitment to mental-health services and their delivery will be redefined as federal dollars become scarce and as state funds are used up in other areas.

The 1976 legislature refused to approve a $4.1 million expansion in financing for the centers over the next

The solution to the problem, Gergen said, is more contributions from the communities "Communities are hooked on the charged with conspiracy in connection the property of federal, state or county with a plane crash in Texas, according to Murray City Police.

Charles Raidt, 306 North Sixth, was apprehended by Graves County Authorities Saturday and charged with conspiracy in connection with the June 10 crash of a local airplane loaded with 1,000 pounds of marijuana, police said. The value of the marijuana has been estimated at $250,000.

Raidt was released late Saturday afternoon on $100,000 bond, posted by his father. Police said the bond was posted with $100,000 in negotiable securities.

The airplane, a twin-engined Cessna Skymaster, registered to Dr. James. Ray Ammons of Murray, has been confiscated by the Deaf Smith County, Texas Sheriff's Department. Ammons has listed the owners of the airplane as himself, Dr. H. S. Jackson, and Lindy Carr, all of Murray. All of the owners have indicated that they knew nothing of the alleged flight of the plane.

Sheriff Travis McPherson of Deaf Smith County said this morning that the airplane has been seized, according to Texas law. He said it will either be sold McPherson said the aircraft suffered extensive damage in the crash. Headded that two new props were installed and the plane has been moved from the crash site, but that other repairs have not been performed.

A fugitive warrant is still in effect for Max Putnam, also of Murray, who is believed to have been the pilot of the airplane. Putnam is still at large, according to local officials.

Firemen Called To House Fire

Murray City Firemen were called to a fire early Sunday morning at a house on Main Street, according to department reports.

The fire, which apparently started in a bedroom at 1305 Main, caused extensive damage to the frame house, owned by T. C. Emerson.

Paducah To Get $26 Million Liquor Plant Employing 250

Heublein Inc. today announced plans to build a $26 million distilled spirits plant at Paducah that will increase the company's liquor production capacity by 40 per cent.

Construction of the 275,000 squarefoot facility is expected to begin July 20 and production start-up is set to begin on early 1978. The plant will include facilities for liquor processing, bottling and warehousing.

The plant will be built on a 65-acre tract in the Coleman Road industrial site at the intersection of I-24 and Ky. 305 just west of Paducah.

Paul R. Dohl, a Heublein corporate vice-president and group executive for the company's spirits group, said the new plant will produce a full line of liquor products including vodka, prepared cocktails and cordials. It also will serve as a bottling plant for several imported brands of spirits.

Initially the plant, which will ultimately have a yearly production capacity of 8 million cases of liquor products, will employ about 250 persons and eventually may employ 350, Dohl agreements that have been in effect since 1953.

While permitting the United States to use the Rota naval base and air bases at Torrejon, Zaragoza and Moron, it commits the United States to phase out its nuclear submarine squadron at Rota by July 1, 1979, and not to store any nuclear devices or their components on Spanish soil.

Last Friday, the Senate passed and sent to the House by voice vote a bill authorizing the first $36 million of military assistance and supporting economic assistance for fiscal year

After the treaty vote, the Senate resumes debate on a massive tax bill. which will continue at least through the remainder of the week. The immediate issue is how long to continue the antirecession tax reductions voted into effect last year. The Senate Finance Committee proposes that half the individual tax reductions expire on June 30, 1977. But Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, proposes that the entire 1975 package of tax reductions for individuals carry through Sept. 30, 1977.

The House votes Wednesday on a $3.95-billion public works jobs bill which its sponsors say will create

The measure replaces a $6.1-billion version vetoed by President Ford last February as "little more than an election-year pork barrel."

Some $2 billion in the $3.95-billion bill. passed by the Senate last Wednesday would be for public works construction projects, $1.25 billion for revenuesharing with cities and counties in times of high unemployment and $700 million of waste treatment projects. Thursday, the House considers a $4.9billion foreign aid appropriations bill for the 12 months beginning Oct. 1, with $1.7 billion of the amount earmarked for Israel. The total is $551 million below administration requests.

Another measure to be considered by the House during the week is a $1.1billion authorization bill to keep the Enforcement Assistance Administration in operation during fiscal 1977.

Cleanliness

Soap and water doesn't enjoy the exalted position it had in days gone by. Today we know that too much washing can lead to drying of the skin. For normal skin, it is best to simply rinse the face in the morning and give the face, neck and ears their once-aday soaping when you bathe or shower, at night. Make-up should be removed with creams or lotions and followed by the use of a freshener.

Abused Children: Call Agency for Help

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for that 14-year-old girl whose father molested her: I hope you will take Abby's advice and tell your mother. If not, call the police whose job it is to protect young people with problems like yours. Or, look for "Children's Services" in your telephone book. If you can't find it, dial "O" and ask your operator to help you. And if there is a hotline or a crisis center service in your area, call them.

When I was a newspaper reporter a few years ago, I interviewed the Children's Services people and found them to be some of the nicest people I had ever met. If you just can't tell your mother, ask the Children's Services people to tell her for you. Their job is to see that children are helped

Your problem is more common than you realize. Don't worry about what the Children's Services people will think They have heard it all before. Please don't keep this secret locked up inside you.

Abby cares. So do I. A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Please read on for another helpful letter on the same subject.

DEAR ABBY: Ten lashes with a wet typewriter ribbon for advising that young girl who had been molested by her father to tell her mother. Not all mothers are sympathetic. Some are afraid of their husbands. Others don't want to rock the boat by facing reality. The girl may be better off bypassing her mother and going directly to an agency.
The Children's Protective Services are the people to call. Please let children know this PHYLLIS IN CONCORD, N.H. DEAR PHYLLIS: You are right. About 10 years ago, a 16-year-old St. Paul girl who was in the same predicament wrote seeking my help. I checked out her story and learned it was true. I then enlisted the help of a State Supreme Court justice in an effort to rescue the girl and deal with her father appropiately.

Incredible as it may seem, the girl's mother refused to press charges against her husband, saying, "If he's put away, there goes the family's paycheck." The daughter also refused to testify against her father, so we were stymied. Children who are sexually molested by an adult should call the Children's Protective Service, if the community has one. Otherwise, tell a trusted adult friend, teacher, relative or neighbor. Or call the police.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you pointed out that honesty is the best policy. I agree, but in his "Ethics from Sinai," Irving M. Bunim reprimands us for equating honesty with a policy. He wrote:

"Consider the maxim, 'honesty is the best policy.' How dare we reduce honesty to a 'policy'! A policy has its place in business. It may be a policy to extend credit for 30 or 60 days, or to receive salesmen only at certain times during the week. But an ethical obligation cannot simply be 'a policy.' Honesty is a value built into the structure of existence

ARTHUR IN MEMPHIS DEAR ARTHUR: I'm with Irving.

Government Records HEARTLINE Now Open To Public

Among the new Kentucky laws that went into effect June 19 was a measure which will open most state and local government records to inspection by the general public.

Legislation opening records was passed in this year's session of the General Assembly and it affects any agency receiving as much as onefourth of its funds from state or local governments.

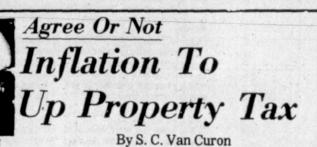

Gov. Julian Carroll, on signing the bill, explained that "The only records that this bill would not open to the public without a court order are those which common sense or fair play dictate should be confidential."

Among records not open are adoption, welfare and income tax records and records that could lead to any unfair business advantage such as public records pertaining to a prospective location of a business. Also excluded are records of law enforcement agencies that, if disclosed, would interfere with law enforcement actions.

The bill provides that a citizen refused access to a public record can request the state Attorney General to review the agency's denial and deliver an opinion.

A person who successfully sues an agency in the circuit courts to get access to records will be awarded all costs, including attorney fees incurred in the litigation.

We support this open records law. Any citizen of our commonwealth can now inspect government and agency records to see what is happening with his or her tax dollar.

By S. C. VAN CURON

FRANKFORT - Some property owners in every taxing district in Kentucky can expect to pay more in property taxes this year than last because of inflation.

This is the general picture Revenue Commissioner Maurice Carpenter says he is getting in the recapitulations of total property assessments from Property Evaluation Administrators (PVAs) all across the state.

At the same time some are going to be paying more in taxes, there are two other classes that may expect to pay less, Carpenter said. The Property Valuation Administrators are implementing the special agriculture assessment. The law, instituted by a constitutional amendment, permits agricultural property to be assessed on the value of agricultural use and not necessarily the price that was paid for it, or its potential value as subdivision or business property.

The other class to expect lower tax bills are those who qualify for the homestead exemption at age 65. This applies to a portion of a multi-family dwelling that the property owner lives in, and it also applies to business property in the same manner.

Carpenter says the ratio of assessments all across the state seems satisfactory. The law says property must be assessed at its fair cash value. However, Carpenter says it appears that the average assessments of property in the counties is about 90 per cent of that which the Revenue Department considers satisfactory.

Boards of Supervisors met all across the state last week to hear appeals where the property owner thinks his assessment is too high. This is the final step before the assessments are sent from the counties to the Revenue Department for final approval. If the property owner doesn't get what he thinks is desired relief from the supervisors, then he can take his case to circuit court. However, few will do this for the cost would probably be much more than the reduction in taxes

Carpenter said the PVAs generally are re-evaluating property to keep up with inflation. "If they don't, and let evaluations lag behind too long, a later adjustment to keep up with inflation would be a real big jolt," he said.

Carpenter said his department should begin to receive the final assessments from counties this week. These will be reviewed and sent back to the counties with the state's approval or suggested adjustments in certain areas. It is possible that tax rates would go up in some taxing jurisdictions, but it will be the exception rather than the rule. Under the law, the governmental entity must receive not less than the same amount of money from property as last tax year, but growth in inflation is allowed to bring in more. In the event the rate last year doesn't bring in the same amount of money, than the rate may be increased to make up the difference. This could come about through losses to homestead exemptions and reductions in assessments on farm property.

Some retired persons have been awakened to the fact that their tax bills haven't been reduced through the homestead exemption allowance that was increased by the legislature. The reason is that inflation has caught up with them and their assessments are much higher than they were five years

Tax bills are usually mailed out in September, and the bills become due in November. If paid by the early date in November the taxpayer takes a two per cent reduction on his bill. He will pay the full face amount if he waits until December and then a six per cent penalty goes on in January.

The only way the tax rate may be increased, other than the adjustment to make up for loss in total value of assessments in a county, is by vote of

Answer: The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is the part of the federal bureaucracy which regulates the food and drug industries. It is an agency under the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The Food and Drug Administration, under a different name, was established by the Food and Drugs Act of 1906. This act prohibited the interstate sale of misbranded food, drugs and beverages. The Agriculture Appropriation Act of 1931 gave the FDA its present name; however, it was not until the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act of 1938 that the FDA was given true enforcement authority and responsibility.

There are other laws that the FDA administers; among them are the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act and the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act.

In short, the FDA regulates the safety and usefulness of food, with the exception of meat which is regulated and inspected by the Department of Agriculture; drugs, both prescription and non-prescription; cosmetics; and medical devices. This is accomplished by a number of different methods, such

The FDA inspects plants where food, drugs and cosmetics are processed, manufactured or stored; it has developed the regulations that call for ingredient labeling on cosmetics and nutritional labeling on many foods; it requires that the safety of new drugs and food additives be established petore they can be sold or used; it protects people from unnecessary radiation exposure to radiation from Xray machines, microwave ovens and

The FDA asks that consumers report problems in the sanitation, labeling and safety of the products it regulates, such as food, drugs and cosmetics. They ask that the consumer first establish the product was at fault and not the consumer. In other words, the consumer followed labeling instructions in regards to use and storage, but the product was still faulty.

Any complaints should include the consumer's name, address and phone number; a clear statement of the problem; as much detail as possible about the product's label, including code marks; the name and address of the store where the product was purchased; and the date of the purchase. Complaints may be filed with any FDA

Retiring Politicians Get Good Pensions

By EDMOND LeBRETON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Representatives and senators leaving Congress Pa.; Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark.; F. at the end of this year will take some Edv substantial financial consolations with them into retirement in the form of pensions ranging in most cases from around $11,000 to more than $51,000.

The top retirement pay under the congressional formula would go to House Speaker Carl Albert, who draws the highest current salary of any of the retirees, $65,600, and has enough combined congressional and military service to put him in the maximum percentage bracket for pension determination.

Sens. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., and Hugh Scott, R-Pa., can expect annual retirement pay of more than $40,000. Their current pay as majority and minority leaders, respectively, is $52,000.

At the other end of the scale is a group of members retiring after 10 years of service, indicating a pension of about $10,800.

All these pension computations are unofficial. It is impossible now to calculate exactly what a retiring member will receive because Congress may get another pay raise before the year is over.

Members contribute 8 per cent of their salary to the retirement fund and the government puts in a contribution that makes up the difference. Members' pensions are based on length of service and on the average salary in their three highest-paid years.

For each year of service, a member receives 2.5 per cent of the high-three average. Military service up to five years may be added to congressional service. Under somewhat different formulas, government service other. than in Congress also may be counted

The maximum pension, regardless of length of service, is 80 per cent of the three-year average. Thus a member reaches the limit with 32 years of

Congressional pay last year was tied to the cost-of-living adjustment formula applicable to federal workers. generally. Congress got a 5 per cent indicated maximum pension would be about $34,800, based on current pay of $44,600 and this year's assumed pay

Five retirees meet the maximum service requirement: Reps. Robert E. Jones, D-Ala.; Thomas E. Morgan, Drd Hebert. D-La.; and Ray J. Madden, D-Ind.

Other long-term retirees and their estimated pensions include: Rep. Phil M. Landrum, D-Ga., 24 years, $26,000; Rep. Leonor K. Sullivan, D-Mo., 27 years, $29,000; Rep. John Jarman, R-Okla., 26 years, $28,000; Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., 24 years, $26,000.

So far, 29 House members have announced retirement or lost primaries. Eight senators have said they will retire. Eighteen other House members are leaving that body to run for the Senate, so they have a chance to continue congressional service.

Mr. Dabney paid special attention to the deterioration in America's military and diplomatic posture, saying:

"Certainly there has been a lack of decisive leadership in the United States recently. President Ford's refusal to welcome Solzhenitsyn to the White House for fear of offending Moscow is one example.

"Congress' refusal to allow the President to make so much as a gesture in support of the faction in Angola that was opposing the Russian take-over is another. The prolonged attacks on the Central Intelligence Agency, exposing some of our vital secrets to enemy countries, also illustrate the point. Our failure to fortify the island of Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean, lest we offend the U.S.S.R. is still another example.'

Dabney understands that a country can be turned around, providing its people have the will and the vision.

Referring to the collapse of other civilizations, Mr. Dabney concluded: "I cannot believe that the United States of America is destined for such a fate." But he rightly warned that we must 'set our house in order before it is too late." As he said, America desperately needs a new generation that will "bring us back from the precipice and lead this nation on to greater and greater heights of achievement."

Indians And Orioles Playing On Treadmill

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians and Baltimore Orioles know what a treadmill feels like. The Indians, though, have a chance to do something about

The Indians outlasted the Kansas City Royals 11-8 Sunday for their eighth victory in 10 games. During that stretch, however, they've gained exactly one-half game on the New York Yankees, season-long leaders in the American League East.

Meanwhile, the Orioles blanked the Texas Rangers 2-0. for their sixth consecutive triumph, a streak that has seen them only stay even with the Yankees, who ran their own winning string to six games with a 6-3 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

In other AL games, the Boston Red Sox nipped the California Angels 4-3 in 11 innings, the Oakland A's the Milwaukee downed Brewers 7-5 and the Detroit Tigers whipped the Minnesota Twins 7-3.

The Murray American Legion baseball team fell to 2-7 on the season Sunday by losing a twinbill at Reagan

In the opening contest, Louisville took advantage of a dozen walks by Murray pitching to romp to a 10-3 victory while in the nightcap, Lyndon scored three unearned runs to defeat Tony Thurmond and Murray 3-1.

Murray jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the opening inning as Bob Thurman, Joe Graves and Tony Thurmond all singled to fill the sacks.

With two out, the bases were still loaded and Mark Miller came up and hit a smash into deep center, clearing the head of the centerfielder and also clearing the bases.

Louisville tied it with three runs in the top of the third as Murray starter Joe Graves gave up four walks in the frame while his teammates committed two errors.

Graves was removed with one out in the fifth and Paul Robertson came in to relieve. Robertson pitched outstanding ball until when with one out in the seventh, he ran into trouble by giving up a walk and a hit.

Davis, the number nine hitter in the Louisville lineup, looped a single down the line in left and the tie was broken. After two were out, another single brought in two more runs and made it 6-3.

Louisville erupted for four more runs in the top of the eighth off Lindy Suiter.

Gary Plock Cruises To Kentucky Closed Title

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -The tournament trail put Louisville's Gary Plock in shape to defeat Jackie Cooper, also of Louisville, in the title game of the Kentucky Closed Championships at the Louisville Tennis Center.

And Plock hit the trail again after his 6-2, 1-6, 6-1 victory in the final game Sunday.

Plock had returned from Tulsa, where he was second in a pro satellite tourney, last pionships, which started Tuesday.

"Before the Tulsa tourney was the Louisville Country Club," said Plock, 20, who will be a junior this fall at the University of Texas.

Sunday night, he was on his way to Pittsburgh for the Amateur Clay Courts.

Plock overwhelmed Cooper in the first set of their championship match.

Cooper, a 31-year-old teaching pro, played agressively and triumphed in the second set, but never got within striking distance of a service break in the third. "Just say I was pleased," Plock said. "I didn't play particularly well the whole match. He just got tired in the third set - that's what it boiled down to."

Cooper said Plock has been "playing the kind of matches that I need to be playing. He has his age and his physical strength going for him, too.

"He can play a long point Monday, in time for the and come right back stronger Kentucky Closed Cham- on the next point. But me . . . I have to rest for the next three points," Cooper said.

> Plock earned his final berth with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over J.T. Sims of Louisville in a semifinal match Saturday. Cooper advanced with a 6-2, 6-4 semifinal victory over Mickey Schad, also of Louisville.

> In the women's final Sunday, Amy Daugherty, a student at Louisville's Sacred Heart Academy, defeated Susan Nolan of Louisville, the 1973 State Closed titlist, 7-5, 3-6, 7-5 for the title.

Particularly objectionable in the Ullman bill is a provision for taxing the gain in value of estate property from the time of purchase until the owner's death. Heirs could be forced to pay a 5 to 20 percent capital gains tax on this added value, which would greatly lessen their savings as a result of estate tax reform.

Kentucky Farm Bureau Legislative Director E. W. Kesler said recently that the total estate tax saving under Rep. Ullman's approach would be considerably less than under the Burleson bill.

Kesler predicted that Kentucky farmers would continue to support the Burleson bill as the most meaningful way to ease the burden of federal death taxes.

Exemption levels and other provisions of the estate tax laws have not been updated since 1942. Supporters of reform are urging higher exemptions to compensate for the inflation that has occured over the 34-year period.

Farmers who look on the U. Ullman measure, say it offers S. Department of Agriculture as "their" department in than an earlier bill sponsored Washington may be shocked to find that two of every three dollars in next year's USDA budget will be spent on nonfarm programs.

A Consumer Tip from Extension Specialists at the UK College of Agriculture

When food dollars are limited, it's very important for snacks to be nutritious, UK Extension foods specialists point out. Oatmeal cookies, peanut butter cookies with raisins, milk drinks and fruit drinks are good examples of wholesome snacks. And remember that homemade snacks are usually less expensive than storebought ones. If your family particularly enjoys snacks, try to include them in your menu plans so they will help fill daily nutrition needs.

terim standards of composition for newly-developed 'combination' products. These products include traditional cured meats such as hams, pork loins and corned beef rounds in combination with isolated soy protein or other non-meat protein products.

According to USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), a proposal to amend Federal Meat Inspection Regulations to replace these interim standards-will be published shortly seeking public comment. The interim standards will allow firms to apply for labels for these products and will provide USDA time to consider nutritional and labeling requirements for consumers.

APHIS officials said that in recent years, the use in meat products of nonmeat, high protein foods (such as soy, milk and wheat products) has reached significant proportions. This produces a advance approval of their nutritious but less expensive labels, equipment and combination food.

efficient mechanized equipment is one of the most productive workers on the earth.

Today, one person can prepare the soil, plant, care for, harvest and transport hundreds of acres of a crop. Hay, the universallygrown crop, is one example.

Inside of just three and a half decades, well within the working memory of many of today's mechanized agriculturists, the growing of hay has been revolutionized. It has progressed from an ageless era of pitchfork and hay wagon to Haybing mower-conditioners to hasten the drying, balers packaging bales ranging from the traditional 60 to 80-pound rectangular variety to giant 1500-pound round ones and automatic bale wagons or round bale movers and handlers to pickup and transport

The information spells out in detail exactly when and how he will perform his field work for the entire coming

Today, according to the sheets, is the most opportune time to begin the seasonal cycle of his crops. He eyes the projected harvesting dateinformation that will be electronically updated as the crop season progresses.

Just two trips, following a precisely established pattern over the land, will be his only working visits to the fields. And his equipment will never touch land-other than the initial preparation and placement of the seed.

On the first trip, the equipment will prepare the ground, plant the seed and apply the season-long, timerelease chemical treatment calculated for maximum growth and yield.

During the coming weeks, he'll feed local temperature, rainfall and other data into the centralized data bank source of the reports. In return he'll receive his second. final electronic report of when to harvest the crops.

Then, following the exact same pattern over the fields, he will harvest, preserve the entire usable crop and return any excess residue to the soil for conditioning.

With just these two mechanized trips -combining several previously separate operations into a single process -he will complete an entire season of "Efficienculture," getting the most out of the energy invested in agriculture in terms of the food/ energy produced.

As he moves out with the equipment, before him are farm fields unlike any of the past. As far as the eye can see, the fields are divided into uniform strips of soil bordered by narrow ribbons of hard-surface paved material on which the equipment is operated.

The alternating pattern of crop land and the equipment traffic lanes has been as precisely determined as his Computacrop timetable.

-The width of the cropping strips is exactly proportional to the size of equipment determined necessary for the size of farming operation. By planting and harvesting only these specific widths of cropland in each pass through a field, the farmer is assured of maximum utilization of energy in operating his equipment. wasted by unnecessary drag during the planting or har-

-Compaction of the soil is no problem since the equipment never touches the ground in which the crops

-The equipment traffic lanes are designed to channel all rainfall to the crops for optimum utilization.

-The surfaces of the traffic lanes afford significant increases in traction without adding unnecessary weight to the machinery.

-A network of subsurface irrigation and sensing wires to permit completely automated operation of equipment are found below the traffic lanes.

-With average yields of hybrid varieties increased two or three fold, the concentrated farming of the cropping strips provides more crops than under previous customary agricultural practices.

-In addition, growing seasons are much shorter and two or three different crops can be produced in the same strips during a single season.

Are such new concepts and practices and even changes in basic agricultural beliefs and terminology still quite a distance in the future?

Certainly they are, but not as far as one might imagine. But more important, they are but one view of the positive, visionary approach being taken by those who must conceive the farm equipment to meet the needs of the future of agriculture.

The groundwork for such an approach into the future is being laid today in offices and laboratories, such as are found in the new engineering center of Sperry New Holland. Located in the heart of some of the richest agricultural land in the world, these facilities and the people staffing them, while working to improve present-day farm mechanization, also are concentrating on decades yet to come.

In the minds of engineers and designers, equally at home in a farm field as behind a drawing board, begins the long-range process of conceiving farming machinery of the future.

Along this road into the future, mechanized advance-ments must follow two coordinated, successive paths.

For the immediate future, evolutionary development of existing conventional machinery will be directed at making equipment more energy efficient, meeting environmental concerns and improving operator comfort.

In long-range development programs, revolution-'ary breakthroughs will be made in propulsion systems utilizing new sources of fuel along with using lighter and stronger materials to provide even greater energy efficiencies.

Energy availability will dictate the routes that development of future power systems will follow. Present conversion of tractors and self-propelled equipment to

THINK ABOUT IT!

By KENNETH IMES

How and when can one label a person a success - or failure? For example, do you remember who said, "I do the very best I know how, the very best I can, and I mean to keep doing so" ...?

The man who said that had many heartbreaking reverses. In his time, many people classed him a-failure. His record showed a business failure in '31...defeated for Legislature in '32...another business failure in '33...elected to Legislature in '34.his sweetheart died in '35..he had a nervous breakdown in '36..defeated for Speaker in '38..defeated for Elector in '40.. again defeated for Congress in '43.. finally elected to Congress in '48 but then defeated for the Senate in '55. Finally, in '60 he was elected PRESIDENT!

A failure? NO! 'A Success? Certainly. Who was the man who lived through the frustrations, the despair of so many defeats? Who was the man who proved there is no such thing as lasting defeat for one who strives to succeed? The immortal Abraham Lincoln.
