College Doors May Open For Deserving Students In The Twin Cities If You Lend Your Support!

A unique grass-roots scholarship awards program born in Fall River, Mass., is capturing attention in many areas. Started with the simple idea that $1 a year contributions from everybody would build a fund to aid deserving youngsters in Fall River, the plan has been hailed as a key to educational progress.

It is with a great deal of gratitude that we report today that the "Dollars for Scholars" plan is being initiated in the twin cities under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club. The progressive local organization became interested in the plan when Mrs. Kellie Lowe, Rev. Hulon Allen and Mr. Paul Bates presented the plan to them as a means to help deserving students attain a college degree.

It is doubtful that the average citizen is aware of the fact that hundreds of exceptional students right here in our communities are earning meager salaries doing menial tasks, simply because they cannot afford to pay tuition to even the less expensive colleges. While government loans are available to students, the maximum sum is merely a drop in the bucket towards the total figure needed for a higher education. We have had many sad moments in recent years as we listened to the plights of high school graduates who could go no further because financial conditions made that college education impossible.

Thursday of this week a group calling itself the "Planning Committee of the Citizens' Scholarship Foundation for the Twin Cities" will meet at the Fulton Electric system's office. You should attend that meeting for the sheer joy it will give you to be a founder of a plan that hopes to open the closed college door for some worthy student in the twin city area.

Like Topsy, this movement could grow and grow with small donations, until all of us will burst with pride when we see students from this area accept these coveted sheepskins with your help and ours. The story of the Fall River plan reads like a fairy tale.

In 1953, the first year, local citizens voluntarily gave $4,500, financing 24 scholarships. Last year, contributions grew to $19,000, of which $17,000 came in individual, one-dollar donations. Sixty-seven high school seniors were given scholarships.

The idea was conceived by Dr. Irving Fradkin, a Fall River optometrist, who says he was inspired by the following belief:

"Democracy flourishes and grows strong only when its members work together on the grass-roots level. This is a plan to bring more people together for a common cause in a cooperative way."

"Democracy decays when all problems are turned over to the Government for solution."

The Fall River plan worked so successfully that it spread to 17 communities in seven states.

Anxious to share the city's experience with the entire country, the Citizen's Scholarship Foundation of America was established by Dr. Fradkin.

100 Years Ago This Week

An historical review of the Civil War day by day in Kentucky, as reviewed by the Kentucky Civil War Commission.

By JOE JORDAN

(Kentucky Civil War Commission)

Col. John Hunt Morgan and 1800 of his Confederate cavalrymen were back in Tennessee 100 years ago this week, having made a daring exit from Kentucky through territory held by the enemy, far to the west of the line of retreat selected by Gen. Braxton Bragg after his withdrawal from Perryville.

Morgan had avoided Bardstown, because of the presence there of a Union force too large for him to cope with, but one company of his men on the road between Bardstown and Louisville had captured a Federal train of 150 wagons loaded with supplies for Gen. Buell's army, which they burned, except for two wagons which they took with them. They captured the soldiers escorting the supply train and a large number of stragglers from the Union army, whom they later paroled.

At Hopkinsville, where nearly all the citizens were Confederate sympathizers, Col. Morgan decided it would be safe to give his men a three-day rest after the hard riding and fighting they had been doing. Residents of the countryside brought in "whole wagon loads of provisions, ready cooked—hams, turkeys, saddles of mutton were too common to excite remark," Basil Duke wrote in his "History of Morgan's Cavalry."

During the stay at Hopkinsville, however, one regiment got no rest. It was sent out to damage the Louisville and Nashville railroad, over which the Union forces in Tennessee received the bulk of their supplies. Four long trestles and six bridges were destroyed, and stretches of track were taken up. "So it will be seen," Duke said, "that the road was scarcely in running condition when Morgan got through with it."

Since leaving Lexington, Morgan had captured nearly 500 Union soldiers. When he got back to Gallatin, Tenn., he was in time and in the right position to take up the duty of picketing the right flank of Bragg's army, which was just arriving in the vicinity of Murfreesboro.

When Morgan had left Hartselle, Tenn., the previous summer, a movement was under way there to organize a regiment of cavalry for his brigade, to be composed mostly of residents of Summer County. The work had continued in his absence, and when he got back to Gallatin, the new regiment officially became a part of his command. It was designated the Ninth Tennessee Cavalry, and subsequently became one of the very best in Morgan's command, winning a high reputation for courage and competence.

The Lexington Observer, the Paris Citizens, the Frankfort Commonwealth and other newspapers in Central Kentucky had now resumed publication, which had been suspended while the Confederate army was in possession of that section. Most of the employees and some of the editors had fled upon receiving news of the Confederate victory in the Battle of Richmond August 30. Besides, the United States mail service had been suspended during Confederate occupation of the region.

Mental Health in Kentucky
By Dr. H. L. McPheeters
Commissioner of Mental Health

We are often asked how and when a person develops his particular personality and his state of mental health.

Most qualities are developed in large part during infancy and early childhood in the normal course of growing up. We are, however, born with certain qualities of temperament, which are evident even in newborn babies or in infants in the early weeks of their life. These basic traits include whether we are quiet and even-tempered or excitable and easily aroused; whether we are aggressive and energetic or whether we are passive and inclined to let others decide things for us.

One personality trait acquired during infancy is sense of personal security. A child who is loved and grows up in a family in which the parents get along well and are comfortable with each other and with him will most likely be stable and self-confident as he grows older. However, if he is unwanted or if caring for him puts too much stress on the mother or the family, he is likely to feel a sense of rejection and insecurity to which he reacts with such things as timidity and feelings of worthlessness.

During the years of infancy the child develops life-long attitudes toward cleanliness and orderliness. Attitudes are particularly likely to develop when a mother starts self-feeding and toilet training of the baby; if she is excessively concerned about messiness and unpleasantness, the baby may carry such attitudes for a lifetime. The same is true with attitudes about sickness and health. Is the mother greatly concerned about every scratch or sniffle? If so, the baby may assume a similar over-concern with his health and every slight upset, even to the point of imagining illness when none is present.

It is also in early childhood that one learns his sexual roles: he first becomes aware of sex differences and realizes that he belongs to one sex; he then learns the appropriate ways for boys and girls to behave and what is expected of him as an adult man or woman, husband or wife. These roles and emotional attitudes are generally learned unconsciously; that is, they are not taught in lessons, but largely by simple observation and assuming the attitudes of parents and other family members.

Indeed, most of our personality development comes about in this way. Nearly all of our psychological reaction patterns are the result of just doing what seems like the most natural thing at the time, of doing what those most familiar to us do. Seldom have we been told or taught how to react.

After we reach the age of social awareness—age 8-10—we begin to "learn" from school, from church etc., other patterns of behavior called morals or character. To a considerable extent, these teachings can and do modify our basic psychological inclinations, particularly if the rewards for having good character are great enough and if the basic psychological conflicts are not too great. Learning these patterns of behavior poses no problem for most people who are raised in stable families; but it does offer difficulties for those from disturbed family backgrounds or for those persons who are in situations (such as those who are hard-pressed financially or those in certain minority groups) for whom there is no particular reward or advantage in having good character.

SERMONETTE OF THE WEEK

Start Where You Are

Subway trains in New York City featured posters sometime ago urging passengers to be more courteous to fellow riders.

It summed up its plea in what it termed "3 Magic Words." They were: "Please," "Sorry" and "Thanks." Then the sign added: "Try using them!"

Few people see the connection between peace and order over the world and showing reasonable consideration for others in subway trains or in the family circle, at the office or shop, while driving, in the supermarket, or while riding on a bus, train or plane.

Persons who fail to develop the divine knack of showing a reasonable concern for people in their own little worlds seldom if ever help to solve the big problems that afflict mankind.

But as one person after another can cause the world to become more cold, bitter and brutal by withholding the unique contribution of love that he alone can make, so also can millions of others, one by one, reverse this destructive trend.

Everyone without exception can "put love where there is no love." Dozens of opportunities present themselves each day in which all of us can start to cultivate the habit of showing a divine solicitude for others.

Yes, by the grace of God, each of us has it in his power to supply part of the hopeful, reassuring answer to the challenge "love or be destroyed."

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO SHAINBERG'S

Those of us who pass up and down the main business streets of Union City almost daily note with pride the striking window displays and modern design of SHAINBERG'S. This, of course, is only one reminder that it is the city's leading department store. On casual observation we do not always realize that behind those attractive window displays is the constant efforts of the store personnel who strive to keep the store a bright spot that is outstanding in the midst of many other retail establishments.

Behind these attractive windows are the efforts of many employees to be of ready service to our people. They have been thoroughly trained in their respective departments and selected sight into their customers' wants. This in part, accounts for service unexcelled.

SHAINBERG'S owes much of its success to the sound judgment exercised in its management. Such judgment is reflected in the wide variety of stock to provide the needs of its customers and shows an alertness to the anticipated needs of the community. In all departments you will find the newest innovations in style.

These men and women who serve you so faithfully are rightfully deserving of your consideration when in need of any of the merchandise they offer. Each purchase is a tribute to their untiring efforts. The store is located in Union City at 205 So. 1st. Phone 885-5711.

Bulldogs Hand Twin-City Rivals Big Defeat In 39-0 Romp Friday Evening

Fulton's wide-open offense and tight defense combined Friday night to hand the South Fulton Red Devils their third loss of the season at the South Fulton Athletic field. Before a standing-room-only crowd, the Bulldogs, headed by Johnny Covington and Terry Beadles, crossed the goal line six times for a 39-0 victory.

Terry Beadles ran his scoring record to 130 points for the year, with two touchdowns, both on long runs. Covington and Kenneth Allen also scored two TD's apiece. Don Burnette accounted for all three extra points.

The Red Devils never came closer than 15 yards to the Bulldogs goal line, although some nice runs were made by Charles Allen, fleet-footed halfback.

Only 22 more points are needed by the Bulldogs to reach the 400 mark in scoring this year. These should be picked up in the final game with Trigg County Friday night. The Bulldogs' nearest scoring competitor, Caldwell County, still has only 270 points to its credit, as they did not play a game last week.

Fulton, ranked 17th in the state last week, is presently ranked 21st.

Both local teams finish out the 1962 grid season this Friday night at home. South Fulton hosts Obion Central High School, while Fulton takes on the Trigg County team. Fans are urged to be present for these final games.

I'm James Carter, Chairman of
The Graves County Board of Education, and ...

I Want To Continue To Have Better Schools
For Graves County And
For Educational District No. 1

I earnestly ask for your vote.

I have been a member of the Graves County Board of Education for the past 8 years.

I feel that due to my experience and the interest I have manifested, I CAN SERVE YOU WELL.

Due to financial circumstances, I was unable to complete my college education and was forced to discontinue my teaching career, but my intense interest in schools and in the children HAS NEVER LESS-ENED.

I have always fought for the schools of my district and am now in position as Chairman to get our fair and just portion of school funds ... WHICH HAS NOT ALWAYS BEEN TRUE IN THE PAST.

I shall deeply appreciate your support and shall do all in my power to justify your confidence in me ... BOTH AS A CANDIDATE ... AND LATER AS YOUR SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER.

Very sincerely yours,
JAMES CARTER

CANTERBURY, England—Walter Stonebridge, charged with kicking in a store window, asked the court to put him in jail for six months.

"I'm sorry," said the magistrate, "but we can send you to prison for only two months."

Stonebridge looked disappointed and protested: "Winter is coming and I want a bed."

A court official explained that the window he broke was worth only three pounds ten shillings ($9.80).

To qualify for six months, Stonebridge was told, he would have to break a window at least five pounds ($14).

STATE Highway Commissioner Henry Ward (right) was one of 17 Kentuckians who received the Conservation Award of Merit during the second annual Kentucky Conservation Congress in Louisville. Ward is a former State conservation commissioner. The awards were presented by Edward Adams, director of education for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. The three-day Conservation Congress was sponsored by the Natural Resources Development Committee, of which Conservation Commissioner J. O. Matlick is chairman.

TEACHERS STAY!

Kentucky no longer is losing to other states more than half of the teachers trained in this state, as it did in 1959. About 70 per cent of teacher graduates now stay to teach in Kentucky.

Fulton Negro Bound To Grand Jury In Assault With Knife

Robert Harris, 39-year-old Negro, has been bound over to the Grand Jury of the Obion Circuit Court in Union City. His bond has been set at $500.

Harris was charged with felonious assault with a knife. He was arrested Monday, October 22, after a warrant was sworn out by Billy A. Lee, 34, of South Fulton.

The cutting altercation took place Sunday, October 21, in front of the Joyland Cafe on Forrestdale. Lee was admitted to Kennedy Veteran's Hospital with cuts about the head and on both hands.

Kentucky Gov. Jobs Attract More On Long Basis Than Previous Years

Job-wise, Kentucky State Government is a many faceted thing. Its 16,900 full-time employees cover many of the jobs found in private business. Some other fields—barbers and beauticians, for instance—are not found in State Government but are regulated by State agencies.

M. L. Archer of the State Department of Personnel has found this to be both a blessing and a handicap. As personnel recruitment officer, Archer sells prospective employees, especially students and recent graduates, on long-term State careers. But prospects know that the State is an excellent training ground for jobs later in private enterprise.

In the past, Archer says, too many talented State employees have moved to greener fields in private business, or to better-paying positions in the capitals of neighboring states.

Long-term employment is also encouraged by Kentucky's first Statewide Merit System, enacted by the 1960 General Assembly. The merit system means job security for most State employees because it protects them from discriminatory hiring and firing practices. Kentucky's retirement system is also improved. New benefits approved by the 1962 Legislature are now 12 per cent higher for the State employee leaving his desk at age 65.

These are some of the advantages Archer will present when he visits 33 senior and 10 junior colleges in Kentucky during the present school year. During two trips to each campus, he will attempt to fill immediate vacancies, at the same time encouraging students to acquire further training in fields where there are perennial shortages. At the schools, he will talk with department heads, placement officers, counselors, deans, student assemblies and smaller student groups. Later, an assistant will follow up these initial contacts and interview interested applicants.

To leave a lasting impression, Archer will be armed with an assortment of pamphlets on State careers. So far, 10 State departments have prepared brochures about employment opportunities growing out of their specialized needs. Another 10 departments are now working on the project.

According to Personnel Commissioner Walter R. Gattis, Archer's visits to these colleges mark the first statewide effort to recruit needed employees for all government departments. In the past, individual departments have carried on their own recruitment programs in some colleges, as Archer himself did for the Highway Department some years ago.

Several departments offer stipends to finance graduate study for promising young students, with the agreement that they will then work for the State one year for each year under the stipend program. The departments of Mental Health, Economic Security, Commerce, Highway and Health have such programs. The stipend pays tuition expenses and living expenses as well, in some cases. Fields of study are restricted to those which are in short supply over the nation—city planners, civil and sanitary engineers, public health officers, physical and occupational therapists, certain social workers and others. Finding qualified applicants for these stipends is also a part of Archer's job.

In Kentucky, the pinch for workers in these fields is even more critical because Kentucky colleges do not offer professional training for some of them—city planning and occupational therapy, for instance.

For this reason, Archer will visit 45 colleges in 22 other states, most of them in the South and Midwest. One visit is planned to each out-of-state campus. Most of these schools are sources of employees in more than one critical field.

High schools are not forgotten by Archer in his search for top-grade State employees. Last year he appeared in a dozen career-day programs and talked with many of the state's 250 high school guidance counselors. When the number of interested students justifies it, examinations for some positions are given in the schools.

With 20 years' experience in Kentucky public schools, Archer speaks the language of both student and educator. After teaching high school in Elliott County for 15 years, he was superintendent of schools in Scott County for five years. He worked with the Highway Department as training officer for four years, concentrating on the recruitment of much-needed engineers. He joined the personnel department in August 1961.

AN APPEAL FROM SENATOR COOPER

Dear Friends:

The country does not need a rubber-stamp Congress.

It needs members who have respect for their responsibility to the people, members who will subject the proposals of the Administration to public examination and debate.

I support Senator Morton in his race for re-election with all my energy and enthusiasm. He is able, independent in thought, a man of conviction and integrity, and a Senator highly respected in the Senate and in Kentucky. I urge you to keep the Cooper-Morton team together.

Of the hundreds of recorded votes cast in the past 6 years while Senator Morton and I have served you in the U. S. Senate, we have voted on the opposite side of only 10% of the major issues, which means we have voted together 90% of the time!

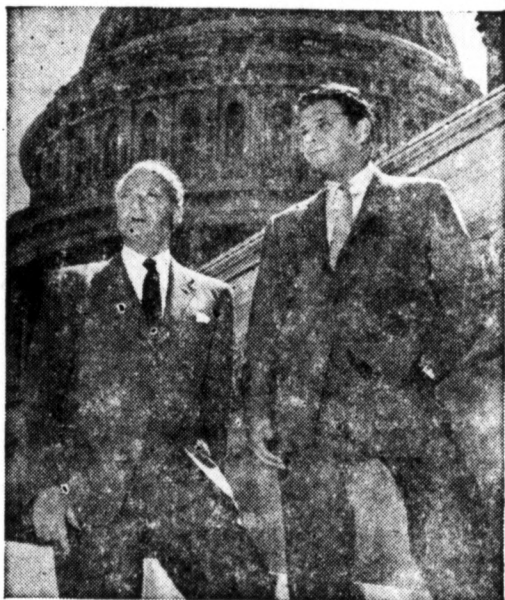

I urge you to vote for Senator Morton and to work for his re-election on November 6th.

Sincerely yours,

KENTUCKY NEEDS WILSON WYATT IN THE U.S. SENATE—

—a Democratic Senator to help a Democratic President and Democratic Administration bring you:

- 1 Really good medical-hospital care for your parents and for you, in your old age—under Social Security, and without the pauper's oath—with your own choice of doctors—costing you only 25c per week.
- 2 Federal aid for education, to help pay for better teaching, better schools, better education—with local control of how the Federal dollars are spent.
- 3 Fair prices for farm products—continuation and extension of the Democratic tobacco program—expansion of rural electrification—opposition to the Benson policy of liquidating 2,000 family farmers.
- 4 Tax reforms that will help American industry meet foreign competition, and reduce prices to American consumers—while preventing tax evaders from deducting yachts, hunting lodges, pleasure trips to Europe, etc. as "business expense."
- 5 Let the U.S. Government ACT for a square deal for everybody, instead of a lopsided deal that benefits only the rich, the privileged, the powerful.
- 6 Help Kentucky get its fair share of the money and jobs that the Nation has set up for its 48 BILLION-dollar Defense program—almost none of which is now spent in Kentucky, thanks largely to our do-nothing Senator Morton.

Wyatt Interest In Fulton County Made Known Here

Lieutenant Governor Wilson Wyatt today listed advances this Democratic State administration has helped Fulton County make in the last two and one-half years.

At the same time, the Democratic nominee for the United States Senate challenged his Republican opponent, incumbent Thurston Morton, to show anything he had done for Fulton County.

Wyatt said he promised to work for programs to aid Fulton County when he campaigned here in the 1959 general election. "The record shows I have fulfilled my promises," he said.

Wyatt charged that Morton could not show any help he had given to Fulton County because he had spent all his time serving as Chairman of the National Republican Party. "This is the same Republican Party Morton is now ashamed to claim," Wyatt said.

The Democratic nominee noted the progress in Fulton County schools in the period he has served as Lieutenant Governor. The Minimum Foundation allotment to Fulton County from the State has increased 59.8 percent, he said.

He said Fulton County schools will take another step forward next year when the new education tional television transmitter at Murray goes into operation to serve Fulton County.

Wyatt said Fulton County students did not attend better state colleges because of the emphasis this Democratic administration has put on higher education. As an example he pointed to nearby Murray State College where over $4,000,000 has been spent on new buildings in the last two and one-half years. The operating budget at Murray has almost doubled in this period, Wyatt said, to $2,235,445.

Wyatt pointed to the improved park facilities at Kentucky Lake State Park and Kentucky Dam Village State Park in nearby Marshall County that will be used by Fulton County citizens.

A new $600,000 lodge and dining room opened at Kentucky Dam Village in July. A new, nine-hole golf course opened this fall at Kentucky Lake State Park.

During this Democratic administration, Wyatt said, average monthly grants to the needy aged in Fulton County have increased over $14.00. Average monthly grants per dependent children family have risen over $19.00; the monthly grant to the needy blind has increased $22.43, and the totally disabled now received $23.57 more per month.

Wyatt said this Democratic administration has spent $844,994 improving and maintaining highways in Fulton County. He noted the widening and resurfacing of US 51 from Fulton to the Hickman County line which cost almost $300,000.

The Lieutenant Governor pointed to the allocation of 50 units of low-rent public housing for Fulton. He said the Urban Renewal department at Frankfort cooperated with Fulton leaders to obtain this grant. The State first employed urban renewal specialists at Wyatt's urging.

Lieutenant Governor Wyatt said his own experience as a tree farmer had led him to push for the improved state forest fire prevention program that is now in effect in Fulton County.

Mrs. O. F. Taylor

Mr. and Mrs. David Lassiter and daughter Jacqueline left Saturday for Akron, Ohio, after a weeks vacation here with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Buton Lassiter and Mr. and Mrs. Mancil Wright, Dresden.

Rev. James Holt filled his regular appointment at New Salem Baptist Church this past Sunday at 11 a. m., and also the evening service held at the usual hour. The new addition of Sunday School rooms has been completed and the varnishing is underway. Very soon the seats will be installed and ready for all classes.

Deep sympathy is extended to the family of Oscar Watts, 67, whose death occurred at the home of his brother-in-law, Dewey Ainsley, the past Wednesday, due to a heart attack. The deceased was a former resident of near here. He and his family have resided in St. Louis for a number of years and had only been here a few weeks with their relatives.

Funeral services were held at New Salem Baptist Church this past Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. by Mr. Watts, pastor of the Baptist Church in St. Louis, assisted by Rev. James Holt, pastor of New Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover True and daughter, Mrs. Robert Rickman, spent Monday in Fulton and were guests of Mrs. James Holt. She has recently been hospitalized but is now at home making a splendid recovery to the delight of all friends over this area.

On each Second Sunday night of the month, some good class singing is held at New Salem Baptist Church with Lee Peery in charge. The public is invited with all singers taking part, both adult and younger groups.

Jack Frost made his first appearance in this area last week and put a rush on all of our housewives gathering in peppers, tomatoes, flowers and etc. Now they are busy making about the most delicious relish and various kinds of ketchup. Every room has huge bouquets of all late flowers and with the autumn season here now, we will be lost without some cut flowers around.

Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Rhodes have recently moved into the tenant house on the Grover True farm.

LOW-COST TVA POWER: Fulton will enjoy it, Hickman has worked hard to obtain it and Clinton should have the right to seek the benefits of low electric rates. In fact, THIS IS STILL A FREE COUNTRY and ANYBODY, ANYWHERE SHOULD BE ALLOWED THEIR FREEDOM OF CHOICE. You need a State Representative who will not hesitate to fight for this right of everyone in our counties.

REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT: Everyone in Hickman and Fulton counties is entitled to have a voice in selecting their party's nominees for office. For a few political bosses to go over the heads of Democrats in Hickman and Fulton Counties and privately select a candidate they can control is not government of, by and for the people.

EDUCATION: Our Young people are entitled to the finest education we can afford them. The level of their education is at the highest level it has ever been in Kentucky. To tamper with the sales tax in any way—as some political bosses and their controlled candidates suggest—is to lower the quality of your children's education.

PROGRESS: The progress of our counties is directly dependent upon the kind of representation we have in the state capitol, who is respected, influential and can get things done in Frankfort.

FIGHT FIRE WITH TOOLS, BRAINS AND FIRE

Each year I assist in conducting a fire fighting school in Southern Illinois with Illinois Division of Forestry, Madison Coal Co. and the Agricultural and Forestry Department of the Illinois Central Railroad. The purpose of this school is to train the fire crews who help protect the 1-2 million trees planted on Madison Coal Co. since 1959. It is of prime importance to protect the young seedlings, especially before they make their appearance over the weeds.

I would like to relay some of the tricks of the trade in fighting fire that we use in our fire school. First there are tools to be used in fighting fire and they are: a back pack can, which contains water and a hand pump; a council rake which is nothing more than 4 sections of mower blades; and a flapper, which is a rubber flapper with a long handle, this flapper is a very important tool and is about 14 inches wide and two feet long. Other tools include an ax, shovel, cross cut saw. We have no power equipment available such as fire plows, scratchers or motorized water supplies. The rake is used only in the woods where scratching is necessary to build a fire line, and the flapper is used in grass fires. If the flapper was used in the woods there would be a chance that the dry leaves would blow around as you flapped and actually would spread more fire than you would control. The council rake, on the other hand would be useless in a grass fire since it would be tangled in the weeds and grass most of the time.

There are three main factors that keep a fire burning: FUEL, HEAT, AND AIR. The removal of any one of these will kill the blaze, and that is just what we try to do in controlling Mr. Fire. By the same token we use three methods on controlling a fire and they are: cooling the fire with water, removing air with the flapper, and raking away the fuel. Back firing is the method used to remove the fuel from the path of the main blaze. This is accomplished by blowing a fire line and starting a fire in the direct path of the fire's main blaze.

A fire fighter should first get help quickly and decide on a plan of action and get the blaze under control rapid as possible. Conditions are not the same on any two fires and rules are very difficult to set. Fire crews should always work closely together and stay with the back pack can as water has a two fold purpose, it cools the flame and also aids in sealing off air. Remember, never tackle a fire alone, always get your neighbors to help if possible.

The only fire one man can control is on the end of his cigarette, and many times this one costs millions before it is under control!

BRIDGE BIG SANDY!

The Kentucky Highway Department, in cooperation with the State Road Commission of West Virginia, will build a bridge across the Big Sandy River between Kenova, W. Va., and Catlettsburg, Ky., as part of Interstate Road 64.

Farm News, Meetings, Events

(Ed's note: the following information, supplied THE NEWS by the USDA, ASC, nearby County Agents and agricultural agencies will be of special interest to progressive farmers in the Ken-Tenn area):

1963 COTTON QUOTA, ACREAGE ALLOTMENT SET: VOTE DECEMBER 11

A national marketing quota of 14,367,000 bales (standard bales of 500 pounds gross weight) and a national acreage allotment of 16 million acres have been announced for the 1963 crop of upland cotton by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The governing legislation provides an additional 310,000 acres as a national acreage reserve to be used to the extent needed in establishing minimum farm allotments.

December 11 has been set as the date for the referendum on marketing quotas for the 1963 upland cotton crop. At least two-thirds of the upland cotton farmers voting must approve the quotas if they are to be effective.

Roy Bard, Chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, points out that the Department's announcement of the national quota and allotment declares that "it is not anticipated that this will be the final national acreage authorized for the 1963 crop because of new legislation to be recommended to the Congress by the President . . . to remove the inequity in the present two-price cotton system . . ." This legislation would seek to increase the domestic use of U. S. cotton and may also contain other provisions which would permit increases in the acreage to be planted.

"It is imperative that the new legislation be enacted in time to apply to the 1963 crop and the Administration will make every possible effort to facilitate its enactment very early in the next session of the Congress. Establishing the national acreage allotment at the statutory minimum (16 million acres) for the time being will give the Congress the maximum flexibility in determining the acreage provisions to be included in the new legislation. Similarly, there will also be maximum flexibility so far as the price-support level is concerned."

Following a 2-day meeting in Washington early in October, the Advisory Committee on Cotton recommended to the Department that a "trade incentive" plan, if considered for the 1963 and subsequent cotton crops. The views of the Committee and other interested parties will be considered carefully by the Department before recommendations for legislation are made to the President.

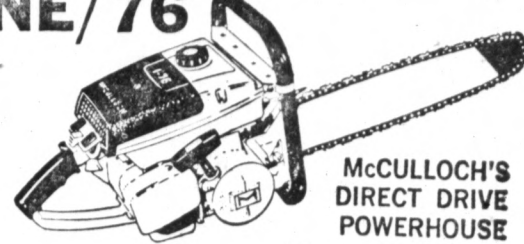

If marketing quotas are approved in the December 11 referendum, Chairman Bard explained, price support will be available to growers who comply with their farm allotments for upland cotton at a level within the range of 65 and 90 percent of parity, as provided by law. The exact level of support will be determined later. If quotas are not in effect for the 1963 upland cotton crop, the allotment programs will remain in effect, and price support will be available to cooperators at 50 percent of parity, also, as provided by law.

Under a quota program for upland cotton, growers who exceed their farm acreage allotments are subject to marketing quota penalties on their "excess" cotton. In addition, none of the upland cotton produced on the farm is eligible for price support.

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

H. F. Smith
TREE PLANTING TIPS
BY
GENE AUBIN, Service Forester

Another tree planting season is again upon us. The Kentucky Division of Forestry is going to have around twenty million tree seedlings for sale for fall and spring plantings.

You might ask just what trees are available for tree planting, other than pine. There are a number of other species such as black locust, cottonwood, black walnut, yellow poplar, red oak, and white oak to name just a few that could be planted to put idle land back into production. This will eventually be worth something to the landowner whoever it may be. A Service Forester should be consulted for the site best suited for any of the above species.

The land most suited for fall planting is land that is idle and unproductive with a sufficient grass cover to keep the trees from frost heaving. Bare or gullied areas are not suitable for fall tree planting. These areas should be planted in the spring after all danger of a prolonged freeze has occurred. Good survival in fall tree planting has occurred where the following procedure has been carried out.

You can cost-share for setting trees through the Agricultural Conservation Program administered through your county ASC office. The cost-share rate is 80 percent of the actual cost not to exceed $16.00 per thousand. The trees cost $8.00 per thousand, leaving $8.00 for the landowner for setting the trees. A man can set from 1,000-1,500 trees in an average day. A tree setter is available in some counties for the landowner's use. This machine can be hooked up to any tractor that has a three-point hitch. Two men with this machine can set about 700 trees per hour. Also in certain counties there are private contract crews who will plant the trees for the landowner.

For more information on tree planting, contact the Kentucky Division of Forestry 313 South Seventh, Mayfield, Kentucky, and a service forester will contact you and give you more detailed information.

lieved what we read in the papers about the campaign issues we would never believe that Morton was Senator. It's all a big, complicated jug of confusion. What a shame that candidates have to be for the horse racing industry, but against betting; for expensive programs, but no tax levies; for integration and segregation at the same time; for equal education for all, but the church affiliation has to be right; for farmers, but not labor; for labor, but not farmers; against a Democrat who votes Republican and against a Republican who votes Democratic. The switch is all right if its for the candidate who needs the votes the most.

Now that you're thoroughly confused, please be sure to vote next Tuesday, November 6. Who for? Wilson Wyatt of course!

DOLLARS FOR —

$100 to $1,000, were made repayable whenever the recipient could raise the money, creating a revolving fund to finance more scholarships. "Our program," said Fradkin last week, "aims to give scholarship money to more students instead of having the top students walk off with all the awards."

Nose to Nose. Quickly, the Fall River Plan spread to nearby towns. Teen-agers, backed by parents, staged pop concerts, cake sales, manned sidewalk booths, highway "toll stations," ran a dress shop. Fradkin meanwhile pushed his plan by letter, phone, or nose-to-nose persuasion, got more inquiries than he could handle. Last year he organized the communities with do-it-yourself scholarship plans into the loosely knit Citizens' Scholarship Foundation of America, Inc., charged a $50 charting fee to pay for a rented typewriter, phone bills, and the salary of the sole employee of the foundation, a housewife and part-time executive secretary. Fradkin naturally became president, and Levenson, who knew Fradkin only by letter, agreed to be honorary president.

Last week, adding up the balance sheet of the enterprise at the close of the graduation season, Fradkin reported that 400 scholarships had been granted by local communities out of a total collection of between $100,000 and $125,000. Signed starry-eyed Opometrist Fradkin. "If we can do what we have done with no money, what could we do with money?"
