YOU CAN'T EAT

RATION STAMPS

Nobody loves the middleman. He is alternately accused of robbing the farmer and gouging the consumer. The general opinion is that he has somehow inserted himself between the farmer and the consumer and takes toll from both. The farmer and the consumer know little about the middleman, and knowing little, they suspect much.

Costs of distribution are high because the food distributor performs a wide variety of services. He purchases the raw products from the farmer, assembles, grades, transports, stores, processes, and distributes the final product to the consumer. His livelihood depends upon doing this as cheaply as he can, and competition forces him to take a relatively narrow margin.

It is sometimes assumed that these services have been thrust upon the American consumer. On the contrary, he asked for them, got them, and paid for them. This was because he could afford them.

Apparent, Not Real

Every so often there are renewed discussions of the tremendous amounts of food lost through waste. Ideas of waste originated with the poor boy looking in the rich man's window Thanksgiving evening, and with moving pictures of the medieval banquet. It is human nature to observe and draw conclusions from the unusual.

The amount of food wasted by the farmer, the processor, the distributor, and the consumer is an insignificant proportion of the total and should be assigned to the dogs, cats, and chickens.

Whether waste be great or small, one thing is certain: when prices of food are high, the avoidable waste will be less than when prices are low.

Little water can be wrung out of the food industry. The number of unended services is fewer than is generally assumed. Some so-called frills either save the consumer's time or cost so little that their elimination would not appreciably reduce costs. The case of sliced bread was in one or both of these categories.

The Role of Prices

Under the capitalistic system of the horse-and-buggy days the tremendous task of adjusting the complicated supply problems was left to the price system and thereby to farmers individually. Production was wisely guided by price. Whether a farmer produced cabbage or potatoes rested on a basis of price.

By the price system the production of an article can be increased, decreased, or shifted from one area to another.

Price has always been the primary force guiding goods through the channels of trade. Whether milk should be consumed in its natural state, churned into butter, condensed, or dried has been determined by price. Whether the butter moves to Chicago, Pittsburgh, or New York City has been determined by price.

The housewife with the market basket on her arm chooses foods on the basis of price. Whether one should buy hamburger, rump roast or T-bone steak is largely determined by their prices.

Rising Prices During War

The price mechanism is an effective tool for changing the nation's economy from peacetime to a wartime basis. During wars it is highly essential.

(a) To stimulate food production.
(b) To shift a large part of industry from the production of civilian goods to armament, and
(c) To reduce the standard of living of civilians.

Advancing prices were the time-honored way of obtaining maximum food production. Price incentives were an effective way to shift from a peace to a war economy.

Rising prices brought on by a war reduce the standard of living of civilians. The real cause of the lower standard is war and not, as is almost universally assumed, the rising prices.

Farm Prices Follow Trend

It is generally believed that rising prices cause inflation. It would be as correct to say that a rising thermometer causes a warm day. What has happened is that the general level of all prices has risen in the world and in this country and farm prices have risen with them.

If a certain combination of forces causes the whole world price structure to sweep upward or move downward, these forces in turn will cause comparable changes within a nation's price structure, and the food prices of the country will fluctuate with the movement of all prices in that country. Contrary to popular opinion, the generating forces do not begin with the nation's food prices, and then proceed to a nation's price level, and finally to world prices.

A PLEDGE FOR AMERICANS

By RUTH TAYLOR

"I will come to the defense of my fellow-Americans against hate attacks and answer anyone who speaks, in seriousness or in jest, along the lines of racial or religious hate."

This fine pledge was printed on the cover of the Presbyterian of the South, one of my best sources of quotes.

To me it is symbolic of the very finest in Christian thinking. It is an active expression of the democracy that is America, of the thought that is the welding of our nation.

"I will come to the defense of my fellow-Americans." There is no mention of name or creed or color—just a wholehearted acceptance of the fact that all who are desirous of doing their part for the common good are Americans, and that there is no differentiation between them on the group lines drawn by the totalitarian tyrants.

"Against hate attacks." Here is no pussyfooting, but a bold appraisal and statement of the enemy motives—that subtle enemy who seeks to divide that he may destroy, not merely the unity is the United States, the unit, but the justice which is the aim of Democracy, but the brotherhood that is the Christian way of life.

"And answer anyone who speaks." It is not a negative vow, not so to speak, but an active willingness to bear witness for the truth—to answer anyone who speaks, in seriousness or in jest, along the lines of racial or religious hate. There is no saying "Well, they didn't really mean it," but a fervent desire to make one's own position clear—to call attention to the evil, so that those who "didn't mean" it may see how dangerous and how wrong their carelessness of indifference was and how un-American it is.

In this Easter season, when the hearts of all believers turn to the day that is the great feast of the Church, when through the days of Lent we are sincerely trying to evaluate our own faith and put aside these things which are unworthy of it, let us all take this pledge. Let us put into practice these great truths in which we believe. Let us follow humbly the way of life to which we owe allegiance, and establish for all time the great Commandment of the Christian religion—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

THE COMMON DEFENSE

Is There No Truth?

A contestant in an essay contest recently wrote a theme on What American Democracy Means To Me. In it he said some splendid things. But in it he also betrayed a fallacious manner of thinking into which a lot of us have fallen. He wrote that Americans believe that no one has enough ability to tell other men what the unprejudiced truth or correct way of thinking is.

If this be so, if there be no unprejudiced truth or correct way of thinking, then there is no way under heaven for America to be a united country for the simple reason that there are no sound principles upon which it can unite.

But, of course, America can be a united country because there are truths which underlie our form of government and a way of thinking which leads us to these truths. There is the truth that every man who is born into this world brings his rights with him fresh from the hand of God. The Declaration of Independence says so. Where is the American who can deny that? Who will deny it? Who will stand forth and say that he doesn't believe in the rights of man, or that he believes in the rights of some men only? What happens to democracy—and how much nearer are we to Hitlerism—if we deny this truth of the equality of man with respect to his rights?

There is the truth that government exists for the sake of the individual, not the individual for the sake of the government, and that to secure the rights of man, as Jefferson wrote in the Declaration of Independence, "Governments are instituted among men." We hold that truth, don't we?—all of us—Americans of every race and religion and culture. Don't we? We don't want that changed, and we don't want anyone to say it doesn't matter whether we think of rulers as tyrants or as servants of the people. For it does matter. In defiance of tyrants brave men have rotted in dungeons and died at the stake—so much did the difference between tyranny and free government mean to them!

So, let's keep on thinking straight. And let's remember that an American is not a person who has no standards of truth. He is, on the contrary, a person who knows that he has found something so true in America that he will die rather than deny it or surrender it.

FARM FIRES DOING

MUCH DAMAGE IS REPORT

Farm fires in the United States claim approximately 3,500 lives and destroy an estimated $100,000,000 worth of property annually.

According to the Gypsum Association, a new consciousness of the extreme hazards of costly blazes is appearing because, right now, fires are constant threats to full production of food for war. They have become the concern of authorities alive to the problem of conserving the nation's agricultural wealth.

Currently, attention is being given to the greater use of fireproof building materials for repairs and allowable construction period in rural areas is expected to reveal fire protection as one of the prime considerations for new farm homes and utility buildings.

The association disclosed that government studies show that farm fires have numerous origins, eight causes are responsible for 85 per cent of the total losses on farms. These include defective chimneys, and flues; sparks on combustible roofs; lightning; spontaneous combustion; careless use of matches, smoking; careless use of gasoline and kerosene; defective and improperly installed stoves and furnaces; faulty wiring and misuse of electrical appliances.

Care and correction, the association cites, can help cut down materially the number of destructive farm fires. More general use of fireproof building materials will offer added safeguards.

STATE FAIR TO BE RENEWED

AUGUST 28 TO SEPTEMBER 4

Churchill Downs In Louisville Chosen Site For 1944 Event

At a meeting of the Kentucky State Fair Board in Frankfort, it was decided that the 1944 State Fair would be held August 28 to September 4 at Churchill Downs in Louisville. The home of the Kentucky Derby was selected as the site for the 1944 Fair because of the lease to the Girdler Corporation of Louisville of the Fair Grounds buildings for war work.

This year's Fair will be the first held since 1941. Churchill Downs is ideally suited for use by the Fair and there will be more than ample accommodations and space for every Fair activity. Elliott Robertson, Commissioner of Agriculture and President of the State Fair Board, said that undoubtedly the Fair this year would draw record crowds. It is planned to make the theme of the Fair "Food for Freedom" and the agricultural exhibits will emphasize the important part the farmers of Kentucky are taking in successfully bringing the war to a victorious conclusion. Among the other interesting exhibits will be captured enemy war material.

Featured, of course, will be the Grand Championship Horse Show in which the finest five-gaited saddle horses in the country will be entered. Premiums have been generously provided for all departments. The State Fair Office at the Fair Grounds in Louisville is already busy booking exhibits and Midway attractions and other features for the big show. The catalog and premium lists are in preparation and will be sent out as soon as possible to all prospective exhibitors throughout the State. Meanwhile, anyone interested in a specific department of the Fair may communicate now with J. C. Wehrley, assistant Fair manager and superintendent regarding Fair matters. Mr. Wehrley will maintain an office at the Fair Grounds and may be addressed there until further notice.

I WILL COME BACK TO YOU

It was a happy world we shared together, you and I. There were joys and tears; long hours of idleness, and the zest of being young—and free. To you I was no hero that day when I became a soldier. Still less was I a hero to myself. It was a war not of making, but in it, I have found a cause too precious to betray. That is why, one day, I WILL COME BACK TO YOU.

Oh, yes, it might have been easy to have turned aside. I heard no call to battle—only deep down within me a conviction that was greater than myself. If I had lived to love you, could I risk death to fight for you? It was no challenge; it was a simple echo of the heart that whispers now—I WILL COME BACK TO YOU.

There is only misery in war to those who weigh life in comfort, gold and power. Those are the scales of our enemy and they have called me from your side to challenge our possession of the right to live. Men call it "freedom," but I call it—youth. How simple then it seems as I stand in line, awaiting the order that has already gone forth to thousands of my comrades. Proudly I shall press on to victory, because I WILL COME BACK TO YOU.

Though out on the battlefield may lie many of those who staked a claim to life, their souls triumphant will go marching on—cleansed by the fire of tribulation in the cause of right. Shoulder to shoulder we will stand—even in death. And if my living comrades of the line should close their ranks for me, I too will be there, content. God's wish will be fulfilled—a night—a little day, and I WILL COME BACK TO YOU.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

The call of the soil is still a dominant interest of many men in the armed forces according to surveys just completed through the middle west. In numerous instances parents are investing in farm land so that their soldier sons will have homes and land to return to after the war. In Michigan alone, the demand for farm land has been so great that acreage prices have risen 40 per cent since 1942. Many war factory workers, who are ex-farmers, have also indicated a desire to return to the land, having found that the "rush and clutter" of assembly line work does not appeal to them as much as the quiet and peace of farm work. It is encouraging to know that our natural resources are not going to be neglected after the war and that our men are thinking seriously of returning to the fundamental job of producing food and raw materials for the nation.

PAUL IN EPHEBUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-10; Ephesians 2:4-10; 3:14-19.
GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them.—Ephesians 2:10.

Not peace—but a sword! With such graphic words Jesus indicated that His coming into the world would set men apart, either for or against Him (see Matt. 10:34-42). The gospel is the good news of redemption for all mankind, but the attitude of men toward the gospel divides them sharply, into the saved and the lost. Which are you?

Our lesson, telling of Paul's ministry at Ephesus and giving part of his letter to the Ephesians, shows that the gospel does divide, but that it also gives quickening grace and strength for Christian living.

I. Dividing (Acts 19:8-10).

Paul had a long ministry at Ephesus and a very successful one, but at the same time it was a stormy, trying experience. After all, do not those elements often go together? Paul began in the synagogue, that was the proper way, and his custom. He ran into opposition, and after three months he had to seek another place to meet the people. But notice, he did not give up and leave town.

The teaching of any truth results in division, and especially is that true of the gospel. It was found before long (vv. 23-41) that winning people to Christ interfered with the heathen business interests, and then things began to stir.

One wonders why modern business set for the destruction of men's souls by rotten plays, movies, books, amusements, and by the saloon is so content to let the church alone. Is it because our testimony does not harm their business? If so, we are certainly not walking in the footsteps of Paul or of Christ.

Christ is a divider of men. Yes, but those who stand on the right side of that divide also receive

II. Quickening (Eph. 2:4-10).

Dead men, spiritually, come to life when they meet Christ and believe on Him. We were all dead in trespasses and sins, entirely unable to help ourselves, when God in mercy and grace quickened us.

He did this for us, but also for His own glory. That really is the most adequate explanation of grace. It was and is for His glory, a showing forth (v. 7) of the exceeding riches of His grace, through all the ages to come.

Being saved, then, is not (as some describe it) a foolish thing of little import, that takes place in some mission or little crossroads Sunday school. It does happen there, thank God for that, but it reaches clear up to the highest heavens, and on into all eternity. This business of bringing men and women, boys and girls to Christ is the greatest of all occupations. Let's be busy about it!

Be sure to note in verses 8-10 that it is all of grace. No works can enter into salvation. We are "his workmanship," not the result of a cooperative enterprise or creation. But at the same time do not fail to stress that we are created "unto good works" (v. 10). The professed Christian who talks about being saved by grace, but who does not live it out in the good works which God has ordained as the proper expression of salvation by grace, should not be surprised if the testimony of his lips is not believed.

If we are quickened to newness of life in Christ, we ought to bring forth fruit. That is not possible in our own puny strength. But wait, the gospel which divides and quickens is also—

III. Strengthening (Eph. 3:14-19).

Paul prayed for the Ephesians, but somehow one feels that he prayed for the Christians of all time for every member of "the whole family in heaven and earth" (v. 15) who bear the name of Christ. The writer is rejoicing today that he belongs to that family, but he wonders how it is with you who read these lines. Do you belong?

Paul prayed in the Spirit, that is evident as one reads these sublime words. It is a comforting and encouraging thought, too, for Paul here asks for a Christian experience for his readers, which seems quite impossible of attainment, except for one thing. It is the power of God which is to bring it about. Prayer in the Spirit is prayer that God answers, always and fully.

So we read with confidence these magnificent, enriching petitions, and we say: "O God, make me that kind of a Christian, a real Christian."

Observe that there is to be a strengthening of the inward man by the Holy Spirit. This is not something "put on" or acquired. It is God's gift.

Note also that it has a normal development, a growth in the knowledge of Christ because of an ability to "comprehend" (v. 15). Is not that our great need? We are un-speakably rich in Christ, but we do not seem to know enough to take out our inheritance.

Secrets

By FAYE McGOVERN
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

"PLEASE," Chu Teh begged her old neighbor, "do not take the children away."

He looked at her imploring face in consternation. "But they might reveal to the enemy where their elder brother, San, is hidden. We had no time to burn his wrecked plane. Hardly was there time to secrete him here. Only after dark will it be safe to move him."

"No. No. They will not speak. And I have heard the enemy will not harm us so long as we remain peaceable."

Her neighbor sighed deeply. "Very well. I will go lest my presence make them suspicious."

Chu Teh turned quickly back to her baking. With her husband dead her children were her whole world. She could not bear to have them away from her—especially with the foe so near. She went to the rear door of her small cottage and called, "Chant! Lotus!"

A boy of eleven, and a small girl appeared from behind a ramshackle stable. Both were incredibly dirty. The boy carried a length of hollow bamboo, and Chu Teh knew he had been playing his favorite guerrilla warfare game again with small Lotus. But there was no time for reprimands.

"Guests are coming," she said with feigned brightness, "and we are going to play 'secrets.' Remember—evasions, yes, but no lies. And the one who fails gets not one sweet cake. Now do all of you understand, my little ones?"

Covetously the children eyed the delicacies cooling on the table. Scarcely were they allowed even a taste, for their mother sold them for a living. At the sound of approaching steps Chu Teh said quickly, "The question is, 'Where is San?'"

Young Chan's eyes sought hers so swiftly she realized he appreciated the significance of the question, and felt a pang of fear. In his intense desire to prove how clever he could be in outwitting the enemy he might easily blunder into revealing San's hiding place. She looked at him pointedly. "Even when we are asked, 'Where is San?' we will not tell, will we?"

"Noooo," said small Lotus. Young Chan reached toward the table, then turned abruptly toward the rear of the house.

Chu Teh stiffened as five Japanese soldiers entered without knocking, their glances darting everywhere. "Where is the one called San?" demanded the leader, with typical Japanese courtesy.

But there was only a deathly silence.

"You—his mother," he shot at Chu Teh. "Where have you hidden him?"

"My son is with his ancestors," she said with gentle dignity, and put refreshments before them.

"Then where is the body?" the spokesman sneered. "You there, small girl. Tell us lest I cut off your ears."

He took hold of Lotus roughly. The child's frightened eyes sought hers, and quickly Chu Teh held up the largest cake. "Yes, small Lotus," she said brightly. "Where is San?" The little girl vaguely flung out a small hand. "They took him away."

Suddenly Chu Teh realized Chan was not there. If he had run to the ancient graveyard over the hill to warn San he would surely be seen, he thought.

"Enough! We will search the place!" Pitchfork tines prodded deep into the rice-straw rick. Seeing soon that the tiny house afforded no hiding place the soldiers headed for the rickety stable.

Behind the barn, thatch missing from its roof, a shallow pit told his mother that Chan had practiced breathing through the hollow bamboo while buried beneath straw and dirt.

The soldiers held a hasty consultation. Then Chu Teh was told they were satisfied and would leave. With horror she saw that they took the path toward the ancient cemetery. First they would make certain that she had told the truth. Why had she mentioned that San was with his ancestors! With only caved-in graves to hide in they would undoubtedly discover him, she thought in horror.

She waited for an agonizingly long time, then crept after them, and almost fainted at the sight of a freshly covered grave. They had found him and—Chu Teh moved nearer. But wasn't it odd for the enemy to make food offerings? There was one of her own sweets.

"So this is where you lead us!" It was the sneering voice of the soldier behind her, and she realized they had deliberately left her alone in order to follow her.

She burst into tears and rocked back and forth. "Aye, and here my son is buried. You can see I did not lie."

The man looked at her huddled figure, then spat contemptuously, rasped an order, and the unwelcome visitors stamped off toward the town.

Chu Teh sat motionless for a while. Then very carefully she leaned over and whispered, "San, my son, are you all right?"

"Yes, Mother, thanks to my clever little brother," answered a muffled voice from a barely perceptible protruding stick of hollow bamboo.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Did you hear that Tom is going to be inducted into the Army next week, Judge?"
"Yes, Frank told me this morning down at the barber shop. Our town's got a lot of men in the service now, Jim. In fact, all towns have. I was just reading in the paper where there are more than 10,000,000 men away from their homes in the armed forces. And, from all reports, they're doing a grand job bringing victory closer every day."
"We folks at home have a mighty big obligation to those 10,000,000 fighting men. We've got to produce the food to keep them well fed. We've got to keep them supplied with the ammunition and equipment they need to finish their job. We've got to help the Government pay for all these supplies our men need by buying more and more War Bonds. We'll have another big chance to do that by helping to put the 5th War Loan drive over the top, Jim."

"And, in addition, we must be sure that, while they're away and can't express their opinions, we don't go voting on and deciding any things that will displease them when they come back."

He Felt So Badly Run Down It Was Often A Struggle To Stay on the Job, States Expert Tool Maker. Like Different Person Now.

MR. JAMES S. HARRIS

"It is certainly fine to enjoy my meals again, sleep soundly and feel good, and I have Retonga to thank for it," declares Mr. James S. Harris, well known resident of Route 5, Marietta, Ga. Mr. Harris is an expert tool and die maker employed in defense work. In adding his name to the hundreds happily praising Retonga Mr. Harris gratefully stated:

"I felt so badly rundown that at times it was a struggle to stay on the job. My appetite was finicky and nothing I ate tasted good. At night I could not sleep more than four or five hours. I had to use laxatives several times every week and toxic poisons seemed to accumulate faster than I could get rid of them. I felt miserably weak and nervous.

"Retonga gave me such grand relief that I eat heartily, sleep soundly, and get up feeling rested and refreshed. The sluggish elimination is relieved and I don't feel toxic. In fact, I feel like a different person. Retonga did far more than I expected and it is a pleasure to recommend such a splendid medicine."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach and loss of appetite. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Co. adv.

COUNTY'S FARMERS CAN REDUCE COSTS WITH 4-WAY JEEPS

Farmers of Fulton county, many of whom have indicated through a national survey their desire to own a Jeep after the war, can save approximately $449.036 for post-war rehabilitation if they take advantage of the scout car's four-sided personality, a recent study reveals. This figure is based on the difference between the estimated price of a postwar Jeep and the total cost of four farm units which, according to extensive research and experimentation, it can replace. Recent tests by accredited farm experts, including officials of the Department of Agriculture, reveal that the Jeep has "a great deal of farm blood in its mechanical veins" according to Ward M. Canaday, the president of Willys Overland Motors, who said his company's engineers, have proven "on the soil" that the scout car can be used as an effective four purpose substitute for the horse, the tractor, the independent power unit and the light truck.

In the Department of Agriculture's report on its recent experiments with the vehicle, issued by R. B. Gray, head of the Farm Equipment and Research Division, the Jeep was described as "highly useful in plowing, harrowing and other field work."

First findings in the continuing Jeep studies being made by the agricultural engineering departments of Washington State College and Ohio State University demonstrate that the vehicle, in its present military form, serves many all round purposes effectively, especially for the small farm.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Homemakers are reminded that they should not overlook Kentucky lamb when they plan their spring menus. Lamb is plentiful, it is not excessive in price, it lends variety to meals, and ration points have recently been reduced on it.

A leg of lamb weighs from four to seven pounds. If a full leg is purchased, three or four steaks may be cut from the heavy end for broiling. Then the remainder may be roasted the following day. Leftover lamb may be used for curry, lamb pie or casserole dishes.

The inexperienced buyer can be sure that she is buying lamb if she observes the bone carefully. It should be pink and porous, while in the older animal it is hard and white. The lean of lamb is pink with a fine grain, and the fat is firm and white.

Specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics suggest this method of roasting a leg of lamb.

Roast Leg of Lamb

1 leg of lamb
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
Dash of pepper
Flour
1-4 cup French dressing
Wipe meat with damp cloth, sprinkle with salt and pepper and then rub well with flour. Lay the roast fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan without water and roast in 300 degree oven, allowing 35 to 40 minutes to the pound. Baste with French dressing if desired.

Menu: Roast leg of lamb, browned potatoes, buttered asparagus, pear and mint salad, whole wheat rolls and butter, and angel food cake with custard sauce.

Clean up fence rows before turning livestock on pasture. Short bits of barbed wire, nails and staples, if picked up by animals as they graze may cause internal injuries and death.

Honorable industry always travels the same road with enjoyment and duty, and progress is altogether impossible without it.—S. Smiles.

The devotion of thought to an honest achievement make the achievement possible.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Time never bears such moments on his wings as when he flies too swiftly to be marked.—Joanna Baillie.

PULPWOOD

*A war shortage
we can lick!*

There wasn't much we could do about it when the Japs cut off our supply of natural rubber. The pulpwood shortage is different. We have plenty of pulpwood trees—a lot of them right here in this county—waiting to be cut.

We Can Do It Again

This community, with the aid of the farmers hereabouts, helped overcome national food and scrap metal shortages. Cutting pulpwood is another war job we know something about.

By cutting more pulpwood we can help shorten the war. We can also bring new money into this community—dollars that will circulate through stores, banks and churches.

But Cut Wisely

So that we can have a profitable industry that will go on after the war, observe good forestry practices when you cut pulpwood. Your local forester will tell you how.
