Dairy Sidsidy To Be Raised To 60 Cents

The dairy industry of this section will be given another life as the result of an AAA announcement that feed subsidies from next September through March, 1935, will be 60 cents a hundred pounds for milk and 10 cents a pound for butterfat.

The subsidies will be the highest offered under the AAA plan which was originated last fall. Dainemyr are getting a 25 cents subsidy on butterfat this summer.

The rate was 50 cents a pound for milk and eight cents for butterfat during last spring. The new 1944-45 subsidy rates, combined with a hike in milk prices May 1, definitely adds a brighter touch to the dairy picture.

Farmers and dairy leaders have been pulling for the higher subsidy next fall and winter since early spring. They contended that improvements brought about by the higher milk price and better feed conditions this summer would be eliminated by a low subsidy rate next winter, when feed will again create a more serious problem.

The present milk price is $3.40 a hundred plus a five cent differential rate and the 35 cents subsidy.

AAA officials said dairymen must apply by June 30 for subsidies allowed during March and April. Subsidies for May and June will be allowed as one payment during July and August.

GERMAN RESISTANCE STIFFENS AS ALLIES PUSH OFFENSIVE

Now that the Germans have been throwing re-enforcements against the invading armies of the Allies, the battle has been seen-sawing back and forth, with heavy casualties on both sides. Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg, and five miles inland, has changed hands several times. The battle is expected to grow in proportion as the Allies bring in more troops and supplies to meet onrushing German hordes. Nearly 1000 tanks are estimated to be arrayed against the Allied invasion forces in French Normandy.

Fresh Finnish troops have been thrown into the defense of the Karelian Isthmus and are locked in a mighty struggle about 25 miles south of Viipuri, Finland's second largest city.

American forces driving up the Tyrrhenean Coast of Italy have captured Orbetello, center of German resistance to the Fifth Army's offensive, and gained control of the enemy's immense food supply dumps on the nearby Orbetello Peninsula. It is estimated that 70 per cent of all German transport seen north of Rome in the past ten days either had been destroyed or damaged.

Led by more than 2250 United States Fortresses and Liberators—the mightiest twin air armada ever launched—Allied airforces hit Hitler's Europe with more than 12,000 plane sorties by daylight Wednesday, in the greatest all-day operations since the Normandy invasion June 6.

REMEMBER YOUR ABC'S

The wise man gets a roof on his house before it rains. Also he lays aside a few dollars to meet unusual expenditures which are bound to occur. Similar practices involving foresight and thrift are as essential in the largest corporation as in the smallest home. Thousands of postwar jobs depend on simple ABC lessons in "good housekeeping."

The president of the Missouri Pacific Lines points out that American railroads are carrying the greatest load in history. Wear and tear on tracks, bridges, locomotives, cars and other equipment is terrific. Material and labor for needed maintenance are not obtainable now beyond the minimum necessary for safe continued operation. Money from current revenues should be saved to pay for the needed repairs and replacements when material and labor are available—meanwhile it should be invested in war bonds for war purposes.

But the tax law prevents such savings. If money for needed repairs cannot be spent as it is earned, it is considered "profit" (by the Federal Treasury) and practically taxed away. But it isn't profit. It is the lifeblood of the railroads. Without repairs and replacements, railroads cease to run.

Congress has been asked to recognize these facts and permit the railroads to put aside sufficient revenue in war bonds to replace the things that are worn out in earning that revenue. Favorable action would mean thousands of jobs for returning fighting men in the task of restoring railroads, and in the mills, mines and forests that will furnish material for the work. It would mean strong postwar railroads.

To tax this "repair money" as profit because the work cannot be done now, threatens the backbone of American transportation.

RIGHT ON THE BUTTON

The public, the industries and the retailers of the nation, have tried to cooperate with the OPA to control the rising cost of living. But OPA's latest announcement on the "highest price line limitations," involving further delay in settling this issue of major importance in low-cost distribution, and its claims advanced in defense of the limitation, leave retailers "dumbfounded," says Robert A. Seidel, controller of the W. T. Grant Company.

Mr. Seidel declares that "it's high time that the American public found out that the Office of Price Administration by limiting and eliminating the competition of low-cost distributors, has forced the American housewife to pay an extra dollar, or 33 per cent more, for a $2.98 dress and from $3 to $5 more for a $20 coat.

"The highest price line limitation has not controlled prices as evidenced by the latest figures of the National Industrial Conference Board. During the last 12 months prices of goods covered by the ridiculous provision have increased almost four times as much as the prices of other lines; the disappearance of women's and children's low-cost outer wear has been more pronounced than is the case in other lines.

"We repeat the suggestion made hundreds of times during the last 19 months: Permit free competition on available goods. Permit low-cost distributors to sell goods at prices lower than those now legally permitted to be charged by speculators and profiteers.

"Perhaps we should repeat the proposals made to Congress: 'Allocate 1,000,000 yards of 68 by 72 prints to us and we will have $1.59 dresses on sale in all of our 493 stores within 60 days.'

CONFUSION IN AGRICULTURE

A most amazing situation exists in the nation's field of agriculture, according to "The Farm Column," of Fortune for May. It shows we had 82,200,000 head of cattle as of January 1, as against a ten-year average of 69,400,000; and 83,800,000 hogs, as against a ten-year average of 51,600,000, and that the chief cash return to farmers is from livestock and livestock products, not crops.

It is estimated that the needs of dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep and lambs, horses and mules, swine, turkey, chickens and ducks, will be 145,794,000 tons of concentrate feeds for the feeding year, and that we are 12 per cent short of that amount.

"In essence, the problem resolves itself down to the price of feed-stuffs. 'Ceiling prices on feeds,' says Professor Cunningham, 'prevent prices from rising to sound the danger warning and check livestock production before feed supplies are exhausted. In a free market price situation, rising feed prices would taper off demand.'

"Under the circumstances it appears that a bad situation may become worse and could be extreme event of the quick end of the war."

In the meantime, price ceilings, floors, subsidies, rationing and crop controls, confuse the farmer who is in a large measure helpless to meet his problems.

DOWN OUR ALLEY

Wise men advise that in time of war prepare for peace. There has been too little attention paid to that warning. But Secretary of State Hull, who served in the Senate when Woodrow Wilson was in the White House, is in charge, on the peace front. The warning of Woodrow Wilson, that "it mustn't happen again," still rings in his ears. Despite his 12 years in the Cabinet he never was a disciple of the New Deal. Right now, he is engaged in putting the pieces together in the jig-saw puzzles of post-war. He has not only called upon the British, Soviet and Chinese governments to express their about post-war affairs, but he had faced the music in frank conversations with Senators and Congressmen right here in this country.

At the Governors Conference recently held in Pennsylvania, there was a general agreement among the Democrats and Republicans of the different States demanding a which was delegated, and appropriated by the Federal Government during the past dozen years—more especially for war purposes. In restoration of State authority short, the Governors, regardless of their political complications, put up a kick against being shoved and pushed around. They raised the red light to indicate that this is the place to "stop." The national trend is pointed in the direction of American Democracy, at the close of the European war.

There is no secret about the activities of the National Political Committee of the CIO. Emphasis was conceded to the power of the organization when Martin Dies of Texas withdrew as a candidate for Congress because of CIO opposition, which apparently had him licked. Senator Holman of Oregon is regarded as another CIO "casualty." The Republican National Committee has attacked the CIO Political Action Committee as a "flagrant and bold violation" of the corrupt practices act.

The familiar thing about nearly all of these political affairs with unions seems to be that they are invariably arranged by the leaders and that workers hear about what is going on after the "programs" are all completed.

Notwithstanding all the captivity of the CIO there seems to be no doubt but what a half billion coal miners will vote the same way as John L. Lewis—and everyone knows that he is against the President, the Administration and the New Deal.

David Hinshaw, in his recent book, "The Home Front," gives an outstanding analysis of today, and an invaluable guide for the future. Mr. Hinshaw stated that the first platform was that of the Democrats in 1840, which contained planks, most of them being "anti." There were three periods into which the platforms could be divided: slavery, the "bloody shirt" period after the Civil War, and the period in which social, economic, and industrial problems came to the fore.

The times have helped to create great political platforms as the Republican one in 1856 against slavery, the Bull Moose platform of 1912, the so-called "Covenant with the People," which was in the perlod of the great change in our nation from an agrarian to an industrial economy, and the Democrat platform of 1932 dealing with the depression.

Mr. Hinshaw emphasized that the minor parties' platforms were consistently the better ones. While the major parties filled their platforms with "weasel words" in an attempt to obtain votes, the minor ones had nothing to lose with their revolutionary programs. The spirit of the minor parties is exemplified in the words of "Sockless Jerry" Simpson, a Kansas City politician, who said, "I know I am not going to win, but what if I were to?"

In conclusion, Mr. Hinshaw pointed out that major party platforms as a covenant with the people do not amount to much, but as an instrument in bringing up questions for discussion, they are an invaluable aid.

We all should remember this, and mark it well, so that when this war is won by our armed forces it will not mean the end of international and national problems because real peace and normal conditions will not settle naturally on this planet in one or two years, nor in six or seven. Whether we like it or not, if we accept the idea of the "indispensable man," then we are faced with the tragic possibility of voting, not for a fourth term, but for a fifth and sixth term as well. Indeed, most of us know now that a fifth term is already in prospect. Mr. Hannegan said so in Chicago recently.

If we really believe that one "indispensable" man, who presently happens to be in the world limelight is the only American capable of guiding our future destinies, then one hundred and thirty-two million of us will have to beseech Almighty God to give this man eternal life. And this is not within our power of attainment.

Business people and the vast majority of unorganized Americans who comprise the solid substance of any community and who are sincerely and vitally interested in Good Federal Government, and are most valuable about their problems and governmental deficiencies, do the least to correct it. They, for the most part, seem to believe that when they cast their one vote, their duty as citizens has been fulfilled. But their one vote is cancelled out by thousands controlled by the alien minded pressure groups, selfish politicians, obedient office holders and rubber-stamp city machines.

Because this is so, and because today these minorities are actually endeavoring to control the electorate, it is the responsibility of every freedom-loving American to arouse his fellow citizens to the necessity of voting out the abuses and abusers of government—and by a majority vote.

THE CHAPLAINS' CORPS

By RUTH TAYLOR

H. I. Phillips, that typical American columnist, who can turn a quip with the best of them, and make you laugh with his home-style humor, ran with equal skill touch your heartstrings with his sincere devotion to the ideals that are of men, who, owning allegiance to American.

Recently Mr. Phillips wrote a fine tribute to the Chaplains' Corps—that unselfish, whole-souled body the spirit of the working democracy that is the United States, own a still higher allegiance to that God in whom our nation trusts. They may be Catholic, Protestant or Jew

Grownups Are Just Like Kids, Too

Ever notice that when you tell a youngster he can't do this or he can't have that—it's about ten to one he'll do it just out of spite?

I guess it's only natural for us Americans to resent any infringement of our liberties.

On the other hand, if you explain to the boy why he should not do it or how he'll benefit by not doing it, that usually settles the matter.

One of the chief functions of the Kentucky Committee, Brewing Industry Foundation is its —they may differ in creed—but they are alike in their devotion, and in their faith that to God all things are possible. There is a fine tradition, to which they are adding greater laurels on battle fronts all over the world.

"The priest who puts the water on dry lips,

The rector leading tired men in prayer—

The rabbi with the word of Abraham,

Each doing quietly his holy share . . . . .

These are the men who ease the weary path.

Who touch the heart and heal the harassed soul.

Who keep the vision of the boyhood day.

Preserving things learned at a mother's knee."

Anyone with a man at the front—and what family today hasn't a man there?—feels better because of these men. They are the unarmed soldiers going without weapons into the battle.

They face, unafraid because of their faith, the same dangers that confront the men who turn to them for comfort.

Never faltering in their duty, they are, at all times, ministers unto men, teachers of the truth, preachers of the way, consoling of the dying.

"The Catholic, the Protestant, the Jew—

As one they give the all sustaining grace

To those who die to keep our way of life

Without regard to color, faith or race:

Their is the symbol of a nation strong,

Thenceforth that makes a country's shield so bright:

The Chaplains' Corps of gallant Godlike men.

Who blaze the way with the Eternal Light."

All honor unto the chaplains of our armed forces! They, too, are heroes, of whom the whole nation is proud and to whom we each owe a debt of gratitude!

TIDBITS

THE FOLK APPEAL

Last night I went up to our gymnasium to help entertain the pre-flight cadets who are in school at Western. My part was to put on the Virginia Reel. With three old-time fiddlers in the midst of the big floor, the reels radiated from the center like spokes in a wheel. More than a hundred people were dancing in the five or six sets that I directed from the center. Again I was reminded, as I have so often been before, of the appeal of folk dances. Here in the sets we had soldiers from every part of America east of the Mississippi, boys who have grown up in dozens of places that differ superficially from Bowling Green. But all of them entered heartily into the dance, learning in a surprisingly short time the intricate steps and swings. The whole some association with college girls, girls like the ones they have left behind in twenty states, made the folk dance a symbol of unity in our racial and cultural life.

And again that reminds me of the value our own traditions and culture have. We have too often supposed that our native ways of doing things are cheap and inferior to those of other countries and times. Obsessed with this self-depreciation, we forget our ways and try desperately to imagine that we are thereby becoming citizens of the world or leaving folk things. Over and over I have seen school children taught to perform intricate dances imported from across the sea, when half the trouble on the part of their teachers would have resulted in a more artistic rendition of our native folk games and plays. I am not decrying our efforts to learn what is being done elsewhere, but I do feel that most of the countries that we so slavishly imitate in artistic things wrought out their distinctiveness by developing their own resources.

Our American democracy has always had a comic aspect. In the days when we were loudest in our proclaiming that we were God's chosen people, we were deathly afraid that we would not be like the very peoples whose accomplishments were professed to disdain. The commonest form of this toadyism is our search for illustrious ancestors for any one born in a democracy who achieves something out of the ordinary. We still believe that only a Prince Charming in the disguise of a wandering minstrel or a beggar boy can accomplish anything. The nonsense that has been written and spoken on the origin of Abraham Lincoln by worshipful but silly people ought to warn any of us who are eager to find royal blood, even a couple of drops, in the veins of any distinguished person. It seems that idol-worshipping people cannot conceive that our democratic institutions can produce anything really worthy of respect.

Sometimes I want to try an experiment on people who are forever looking for valuable things in some other part of the world except our own. If I could get some world traveler to help me, I would take some of our oldest folk dances and games, change the words into some little-known language, and, with great elaboration on the part of the announcer, arrange a program of folk games and dances, presumably collected in the most remote places in Europe, Asia, and Africa. I could force the result, for I know that enthusiastic but ignorant people would cheer the echo, in proportion to the artistic build-up of the program director. Many of you, I know, will recall how Benjamin Franklin, while in France, suspected that most of the self-styled intellectuals who berated the literature of the Bible had not read any of it. Pretending that he had read in some obscure book certain stories, he slightly changed the names of the Biblical characters and told several of the very commonest ones. He was greeted with rounds of applause and asked where in the world he had found such literary gems.

replied dryly that these marvelous stories had come from the daily beloved Bible, the book most commonly found in every home.

ROADS FOR POST-WAR PLEASURE

By Charles M. Upham, Engineer-Director American Road Builders' Association

With spring in the air—and summer just around the corner—thoughts turn inevitably vacationward. Vacation, though, is a word which now has its main significance in terms of past or future. Remember the vacations we used to take in the days of peace and plenty? Whether you sport or hobby, whether you wanted adventure or rest, there was a road leading from your door to your desire. Fishing, hunting, swimming, fashionable resorts back-to-nature camps—all were within reach of your automobile. It was a comparatively simple matter for the Easterner to pack his family into his car and set off for California, stopping enroute to view the Grand Canyon, the Rocky Mountains and all other scenic spots. In turn, the Westerner and his family moved Eastward to the Nation's Capital, to New York, visiting the many points of historical interest between and beyond. The automobile was the average American's prewar answer to the problem of seeing the country and enjoying the summer on a limited budget.

Today, however, we all have a job to do. Everyone must exert his full energy and effort to the winning of war. Vacations this year will be fewer and nearer home—and with the common end in view of replenishing our strength so that we may return with renewed vigor to work for Victory. The nation's automobiles—with the tires on which they roll and the gas which makes them run—have gone to war, too. The cars in existence are needed to carry war workers to and from their jobs. The limited gas and rubber supply must be divided between these cars and the trucks carrying war supplies, as well as many other war-prompted demands. So coast-to-coast—driving is out for the duration. Not vacationing tourists, but army trucks and vehicles serving the battle of production are using the roads today.

With the war's end, highways and cars will be reconverted to peacetime purposes. Old and worn-out cars will be rapidly replaced, first with 1942 models and later with improved vehicles embodying new metals and principles developed in war production. It is predicted that motor-vehicle usage after the war will be greatly transcended the peak year of 1941. This means that reconversion of our highway system will be a job of great magnitude. During the war, highway construction has been virtually at a standstill. Heavy war traffic has punished the roads and streets, severe weather has taken its usual toll and the highways have further suffered from the forced limited maintenance. In the post-war years, the highways will be ill fitted for the vastly increased traffic demands. Our memory of pre-war congestion is a forecast of the even greater traffic jams that will occur after the war.

For this reason, highway-minded organizations and agencies now have the responsibility for planning a postwar highway program that will meet these increasing needs. This planning has the double objective of making up the serious deficiencies of the nation's highway system while at the same time providing a large reservoir of quickly available jobs for men from the military forces and war industries. This planning envisages reconstruction of obsolete and depreciated roadways new pavements new bridges railroad and highway grade crossing separations and express highways to provide safe and speedy travel between the large centers of population. To the vacationist of tomorrow these plans when completed and put into effect, will spell "Happy Motoring."

IT LOOKS FISHY

A great many people were astonished by the proposal of the Secretary of the Interior to give the government's $20,000,000,000 worth of war industries to the returning soldiers. Of course this would involve a gigantic government controlled holding company. Giveaway industries would be a "revised edition of the Homestead Act and the land provisions of the Reclamation Law," said the Secretary, although he admitted that perhaps the first directors of the experiment would have to be appointed by the government.

It is hard to see any similarity between such a proposal and the homestead law under which a man got a piece of land of which he was absolute owner, free from government interference or directors. The homesteader became an independent citizen owning a piece of property in fee simple, which he could dispose of as he wished, and for any price he wished.

All a returned service man would own in this proposed giant holding company, would be a paper stock certificate. The assets of the company would be made up of war industries, most of which could not be applied to peacetime pursuits without heavy reconversion investments. It is probable the service man would even be prohibited from selling his stock, in order to assure continued government monopoly and operation of the properties.

It looks like this proposal to "give" the service man something, is a blind to keep the government in business, using the service man as a tool to accomplish that end.

Kidneys Must Work Well

For You To Feel Well

24 hours every day, 7 days every week, never stopping, the kidneys filter waste matter from the blood. If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove surplus fluid, excess acids and other waste matter that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole system is upset when kidneys fail to function properly. Burning, itching or too frequent urination sometimes warns that something is wrong. You may suffer nagging back-ache, headaches, dizziness, rheumatic pains, getting up at night, swelling. Why not try Doan's Pills? You will be using a medicine recommended the country over. Doan's stimulate the function of the kidneys and help them to flush out poisonous waste from the blood. They contain nothing harmful. Get Doan's today. Use with confidence. At all drug stores.

Pin-Up Girl

By BESSIE J. DOENGES
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

THE sands of the desert were in growing cold. The sudden drop in temperature still came each night as a shock to Corporal Hank Jones, veteran of six months' fighting. He had known defeat, had seen the Stars and Stripes pulled down and the Swastika flying over the hill where he had camped the night before; he had lost track of time and the orderly sequence of day and night. The men who fought beside him were closer than brothers because of those who were no longer there. And now he was knowing victory—all day he had seen the German troops come down the road to surrender. They were all over the place. Some waved leaflets that food and fair treatment. They were giving up by the tens of thousands, arriving on foot, in jeeps, in trucks, in tanks.

Hank's thoughts turned to Prue and the baby born after his departure. If only he could see little Anita just once, before she grew out of her babyhood!

Prue wrote every day. He remembered the morning shortly after he landed that he received a batch of thirty-two letters, twenty-seven from Prue. He carried them around for a whole half-hour anticipating the pleasure of reading them.

He glanced up and stared at the colored picture of a perfectly beautiful baby on the cover of a magazine on Jerry's bed. The child had doll-like head, plump rosy cheeks and mischievous blue eyes. Its hair was golden-red, parted on the side and tied with a blue bow. She looked so much alive that it seemed as if she were about to laugh.

Why, this might be Anita!

Hank's tongue curled up over his teeth as a thought struck him. Why, this might be Anita! Prue had told him: "You needn't worry about our finances: Anita is supporting me in the style to which I am accustomed. I took her to a model agency and everyone there raved about her. She is averaging fifty dollars a week. I have moved near the studio and nearly every day our little darling is photographed. The camera men say they've never seen such hair and eyes."

The description fitted perfectly, and the age noted—ten months—seemed about right. But he was crazy—there was no reason to believe this was Anita; he just wanted to think so. There was no resemblance to Prue or any other member of the family, except that the little glimmering smile was like Grandma Nelson's. Picking it up, Hank found that the magazine was three months old. Anita wasn't even modeling then, and she certainly wasn't the big, impatiently, he threw the monthly on the adjoining bunk.

Jerry said, "We've got to pin up some pictures—we'll probably be here for a while." He examined the cover of the periodical. "You'll make a nice pin-up girl," he said.

Tacked to the canvas, the little girl looked at the boys with interested, alert eyes, the impish smile curving the corners of her mouth. "She looks like somebody," said Jerry, half to himself. "Why, she looks like Hank! Don't that baby look like Hank, fellahs?"

They all gathered around, looking from Hank to the wall, exclaiming on the likeness of hair, eyebrows and—mockingly—of dimpled chin. He wanted to tell them that it might be his kid, but it would sound too foolish. He couldn't write his letter now. He glanced through the table of contents of the magazine. There he read, "Frontispiece: The young lady on the cover is Miss Anita Jones of New York City, aged six months. Her father is with the armed forces in Africa."

"It's the spit 'n' image of Hank," said Fitz. "We'll call her Hank Second, and make her our mascot."

He began a new letter to Prue. "Dear Skip," he wrote. "I wished for something impossible, and yet—"

He couldn't put his feelings on paper, somehow. All he wanted was to stare at his little daughter. He tried to envisage her big enough to take her first step, to have a funny tooth or two in front. Some day when the boys weren't there he would kiss her—but he'd have to be sure he was alone.

Silence was falling on Northern Africa. The campaign was over and he was that much nearer home.

A GOOD SOLDIER OF CHRIST JESUS

LESSON TEXT—II Timothy 2:14, 15: 4:3-8
GOLDEN TEXT—Suffer hardship with me, as a good soldier of Christ Jesus.—II Timothy 3:10.

"A good soldier"—what a wealth of meaning there is in that simple phrase. We think of our own hometown boys who have distinguished themselves in the service of their country, who have proved again that there is that in American life which can meet a crisis and do it well.

"A good soldier of Jesus Christ" is an even more significant phrase, speaking of that fine loyalty and devotion which Christians of all ages, yes, and of our day, are giving to the Captain of our salvation, our Commander-in-Chief in the great spiritual warfare going on in all the earth.

In our lesson we note that the soldier is—

I. Obedient (2:1, 2).

There is something to be done, and the soldier is enlisted for the purpose of doing it. In the case of the Christian soldier, it is to see that the gospel message which he has received is passed on to others.

Personal work is God's method, one man telling another, and another, and another. This is to be a continuous matter, not just now and then, and each one is in turn to become a soul-winner.

As each one wins others and the witness is multiplied by the law of arithmetical progression, the total result is tremendous.

Why, then, has the entire world not been long since completely evangelized? Because we who are Christians are not all obedient soldiers of Christ.

II. Loyal (2:3, 4).

No soldier can serve with a divided loyalty. He cannot be running a business back home, or taking on outside interests to divert his attention. Being an efficient and useful soldier is his first and only business.

Have not the military authorities in this war asked those who are at home to keep the problems of the home and business out of the letters to men in the army? Do they not require a man to leave home and family and give his all to the service?

The soldier for Christ must please the Lord, even though it involve bearing "hardness." It is no soft and easy business to be a soldier. "Blood, sweat and tears" are the order of the day. Shall we not do as much for our Lord?

III. Prepared (2:8-12).

Training is of highest importance for a soldier. He must know what to do, and why he is doing it. He must understand the reason for obedience and the purpose of the warfare. In other words, he must be a disciplined man, prepared to serve effectively.

The soldier for the Lord is to "remember Jesus Christ," his resurrected Lord and victorious Commander. He knows for whom and under whom he fights.

He also knows (vv. 10, 11) that the message he bears is God's Word, and will succeed even though the bearer of it suffer and die. He is prepared to die, if need be, before he will deny his Leader (v. 12).

IV. Faithful (4:5-7).

Watch, endure, work, be faithful to the very end. Such is the obligation, yes, and privilege of the soldier for Christ. Paul was able to admonish young Timothy to such complete faithfulness because he had himself exemplified these virtues in his own life.

Those who are called upon to command men must themselves be good soldiers. There is an encouraging note from the battlefields of this great war. One learns that the commanding officers are at the front, not hidden away in dugouts far behind the lines. The men take courage as they see the bravery of their officers.

What that meant in Paul's case may be learned from the story of his life, which is condensed in a brief statement in II Corinthians 12:23-33. He really endured affliction for Christ's sake.

V. Victorious (v. 8).

A nation at war can stand the strain and bear the agony if it can be sure of ultimate victory. The grave disappointment of losing a battle, or the deep sorrow of heavy casualties, can and will be borne for the sake of the final triumph of the righteous cause.

In the battle for Christ, we know that the result will be victory. The faithful soldier shares the fruits of victory. The Christian soldier shall one day receive from his Lord and Leader a crown of righteousness.

When will that great day come? When Jesus Christ returns (Matt. 16:27). He is coming again; first for His own, and then in glorious revelation of Himself as the judge of all the world. His victory over all His enemies will then be complete, and He shall reign forever and ever.

How to make a real post-war plan

Sure's a lot of talk going around nowadays about post-war planning... folks passing resolutions... statesmen holding conferences... governments making promises to each other.

But as Bert Childers says: "What good is all this drawing up of plans unless each one of us decides to make his corner of the world a better place to live in?"

From where I sit, Bert's put the problem in a nutshell. Governments can pass all the resolutions and make all the treaties they can think of—and it's still up to the people themselves to see to it that the world is ruled by tolerance and understanding.

Unless we make up our minds to respect the other fellow's rights and liberties—whether it's the right to enjoy a glass of beer occasionally or the right to vote according to our conscience—all our post-war planning won't be worth the paper that it's printed on.

MANAGEMENT HAS DUTIES

By GEORGE PECK

Whipple Jacobs, President of the Beden Manufacturing Company Chicago, Illinois, in a recent address, gave an excellent definition of Free Enterprise; made some pointed remarks regarding it; and emphasized the duties of management in connection therewith. The remainder of the editorial consists of excerpts from that speech, and from here on it is Mr. Jacobs speaking:

If the American Way is to be retained it must be done under the system of Free Enterprise that made possible the highest standard of living in the world. Free Enterprise is a much abused term. The phrase would be amplified. To me it is best described as Free, Private Competitive Enterprise.

Free does not mean that there should be no rules, but that the rules should be simple and that everyone have an equal opportunity under them.

Private means the individual's constitutional right of contract and the right to enjoy the fruits of his earnings, the right to work, as well as the right not to work, as he chooses.

Competitive means free operation of the law of supply and demand, with no special or monopolistic privileges for anyone.

And Enterprise means the right to risk time or money, and to work as hard and as long as each individual feels is necessary, to give him the return he wants.

If we are to retain Free, Private, Competitive Enterprise, we must understand it and honestly apply it to all our daily operations.

Over a period of the last decade there has grown up in this country a dangerous philosophy of letting government do it—of throwing into the laps of government bureaus the problems we should solve for ourselves, in the hope we will have them solved for us with no effort on our part.

The problem presents a challenge to all businessmen. Management must approach the subject in a broad spirit of business statesmanship and think in terms of the entire national structure. The fate of every enterprise, from the small employer to the largest unit, is involved. It is vital that we work together for our own and the common welfare.

Sins of omission and commission by small groups have penalized the entire business community; public esteem has been lost and this in turn provides an ideal opportunity for attacks from anti-business groups. It is unfortunate, but true, that large sections of the public have been blinded by the errors of the comparatively few transgressors to the virtues of business as a whole.

Upon management rests the duty of informing the people on the true facts. It cannot be done by sweet phrases and general protestations of virtue. Management must carry on programs of public education based on actual accomplishments and on right policies and practices. If policies and practices are at variance with the public good they must be corrected accordingly. I have no patience with those who think of public relations primarily in terms of glossing over bad practices. No amount of pretty paint, no matter how artificially applied, will long conceal the ugly body beneath.

Granted that there is as much honesty and decency in business as in any other line of endeavor, that is not enough. Would you be willing to appoint, as executor of your will, a trust company that told you that their trust officers were of average honesty and decency? Certainly not—because a trustee, like Caesar's wife, must be above suspicion.

Management's responsibility too, is in the nature of a trusteeship for the employees and shareholders, and requires the same unquestioned honesty and decency in business as and by intelligent, forceful and continuous enlightened procedures, these traits can and must become the accepted and required standard. I say to you in all solemnity that business has the same responsibility to purge itself of the racketeer businessman that we ask organized labor to assume in purging its racketeer labor leaders.

If we honestly believe in and put into practice the principles of Free, Private, Competitive Enterprise, the system will not only survive reconversion, but will be stronger than ever and capable of leading us on to ever higher standards.

James Lomax spent Tuesday night with his aunt, Mrs. Johnny Childers. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Wilds, old neighbors here are announcing the arrival of a baby boy. He has been named Jimmy Layne. They reside now near Dukedom on a farm they bought.

We have a deep and satisfied feeling to know that the chief of the states prays. It was our good pleasure to hear him last week. It seemed to me I could see God turn his face this way on that we might have more christian leaders. Glory to God forever.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lomax and sons James and Bobby and Mrs. Laura Edwards called on Mrs. Johnny Childers Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Jim Williamson had a letter from her son, J. D. He is in New Guinea in a hospital poisoned on meat. We hope the next letter contains better news.

The Harmony Aid Society meets with Mrs. Oscar Nugent on Tuesday, June 29th, and not with Mrs. Lawrence Lomax as was previously announced. The reason is that the Lomax's are leaving for California to make their home.

Mrs. Clarence O'Rear moved her furniture to Hickman Saturday. Her husband is now stationed in Indiana, and she is going to join him.

Mr. Mark Bynum is enjoying his new home in Detroit, Mich. He thinks lots of people must be there, for many pass his place on their way to and from work each day.

There were twenty-two in Sunday School Sunday. A year ago 23 came. Where is the one? Supt. Bellew was there to conduct the service. A beautiful prayer from Mr. Fred Wade. Lovely singing and music rendered by the choir and Mrs. Luten. Mr. Wade taught his class bringing out strongly the "Golden Rule." What we owe to man-kind and men should be brothers. Mrs. Luten had charge of her class. Three present. The smallest number in months. Miss Doretha Jean Jones is teaching. Mrs. Leslie B. Tarver's class until she comes back again. A committee has been formed to select fixtures for the church. There will be a need of some money. Your contributions will be appreciated.

HOW WE ARE KNOWN

A man is known by the company he keeps,

The things he does and the harvest he reaps;

He's known because of the places he goes,

The words he speaks and the seed he sows—

And then he's known by the fruit he bears.

By the way he walks and the smile he wears;

But there's not a man in a million miles

A person can know by his snappy styles;

For many a food wears a silken hood

To cover the head that has turned to wood.

And a man is known by the thoughts he thinks,

By the game he plays and the stuff he drinks,

And he is always known by the way he plays

If the game is lost; and in other ways.

Consider the lives of the men who die,

Yet live in our hearts as the years go by;

As patriot, saint, or a righteous man,

Just doing doing his best in the way he can.

So whether you win or suffer defeat,

Be sure you're known of the people you meet.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, June 18, is "Is the Universe including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"; and the Golden Text is: "Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundations of the earth; and the heavens are the works of thine hands" (Hebrews 1:10.) Among the citations are the following passages:

"Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory unto thy children" (Psalms 90:16.)

Inspired thought relinquishes a material, sensual, and mortal theory of the universe, and adopts the spiritual and immortal ("Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, p: 547.)

She Eats Anything Now, Sleeps Restfully And Feels Fine, States Well Known Resident. Had Suffered For Years.

MRS. IDA EATHERLY

"I had taken medicines and treatments for six years trying to get the relief that I finally found in Retonga," declares Mrs. Ida Eatherly well known resident of 317 S. Seventh St. Clarksville, Tenn. Happily telling about her case, Mrs.

Eatherly stated:

"Hardly a day passed that I didn't suffer tortures from nervous indigestion. I had no appetite and I had gas pains in my stomach, and such a fulness, that I sometimes had to gasp for breath. I pity anyone who has worse headaches than I did. I often had to take drastic purgatives, and I slept so poorly that I woke every morning feeling miserably tired and worn out. I was underweight, and often felt so weak that I could not go on with my housework.

"Retonga gave me wonderful relief. My appetite is splendid, I sleep fine and I have regained my lost weight. That terrible gas is fully relieved, and so is the constipation. I have not had a headache in weeks. Friends simply stare in amazement when they see me now. Retonga is the grandest medicine I ever saw."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, and loss of appetite. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Store, adv.

TVA SHOULD PAY INTEREST AND TAXES

The following editorial recently was published in the Enid, Okla., News.

By a vote of 36 to 26, the Senate incorporated an amendment into the independent offices appropriations bill denying TVA, public power agency, the right to use its power and utilize its receipts to finance its operations. In other words, it stripped the Tennessee Valley Authority of its revolving fund and required the corporation to proceed like other corporations and governmental agencies, to get its operating expense monies from Congress.

Under the amendment the TVA receipts like the receipts from other agencies would have to be paid into the general fund of the treasury, and its spending would be limited strictly to such monies as Congress might appropriate. Was there any valid objection to the amendment? Was there anything wrong about it?

Of course not, and yet the New Dealers, led by Barkley, the penitent "Dear Alben," sought by every means available to defeat it. Here is a project in which the people's monies have been invested to the extent of $750,000,000 in round numbers.

And yet, it has never been required to pay any of its receipts into the general fund of the treasury or to make a showing before Congress to justify its spending of monies. It has deposited its receipts in a special account in the Treasury and paid its operating expenses out of that fund, with its conscience as its guide, without the people's check or control.

Of course on this $750,000,000 of tax monies sit has invested in this project, it pays no interest, and during this crucial period when the private citizen and private business is being taxed to the limit, TVA pays no taxes. It is a cost plus institution with no supervision over the plus and no accounting to Congress.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, who secured the initial appropriations for this project, was the senator who drafted the amendment and led the fight for its passage in the senate.

The bill with the amendment now goes to the house, where the amendment should be broadened. It should not only require the TVA to pay all its receipts into the general fund of the Treasury and have its expenditures limited to what it could show was necessary in Congress, but it should require TVA to pay a reasonable rate of interest on the $750,000,000 of the people's money invested in the project, retroactive abinitio and to be subject to the federal, state and county taxes the same as all other corporations.

When all this is done and its army of payrollers is reduced at least 50 per cent, the project will then approach a business basis, from which its necessary losses might be determined.

FULTON HOMEMAKERS REPORT ON DISTRICT MEETING AT MAYFIELD

The Purchase District Homemakers meeting which was held at Mayfield, Thursday, June 8 was attended by a number of homemakers from Fulton county. Kentucky's Federation of Homemakers gave an interesting program on today's problems and solutions in the farm homes of the state.

This meeting was the twelfth annual district meeting, and the theme of the program was "Today's Challenge." Mrs. Allen Hince of McCracken county, faces these problems with dreams, hopes and plans of a better tomorrow.

Miss Roe declared Norway would never have fallen had the farmers been organized. Mrs. Harlan Kemp of Calloway county serves her community through the Red Cross, the Legion, Farm Bureau and other civic and religious clubs and organizations. Mrs. Euroll Andrus broadens her outlook on life by the reading and digesting of good literature.

Mrs. W. R. McGonder is helping to expand our programs by diligent work and co-operation. We all should develop positive rather than negative attitudes—do the things we enjoy and enjoy what we do.

Miss Myrtle Weldon gave a practical lesson on "To Hold Fast." Miss Gertrude Dieken home economist of DuPont Co., Delaware, displayed and lectured on the Post War World with Nylon and plastic conveniences even beyond our imagination—a machine is now in use that sews without needle or thread. Heat fuses the seams of garments fast.

Mrs. Ralph Seearce, president, fittingly presented the Challenge to Me by reading unique poetry. The program was shrouded with a solemn air of realism in today's challenge to Democracy and freedom loving peoples yet there was grim determination in the hearts and minds of these women to "make the now count for the then."

Miss Elsie Margrete Roed of the Royal Norwegian Information Service, New York City, filled our minds with thankfulness for what we have, yet to a degree shamed us for the greed, lust and waste of the United States of ours. Her story of "I lived in Norway When—" showed part of the atrocities the Master Race (Germans) have committed against weak, humble countries. She barely escaped with her life. Band of innocent Norwegians were shot in groups of as many as six hundred. Norway has contributed much to the Allied cause by the Marines and by underground activities. True, some Norwegians sold their birthright for a mess of pottage, but even the owmen are determined to fight even to death for their freedom and former king.

THE COMMON DEFENSE

The Constitution And The Nature Of Man

The Constitution provides protection for the rights of men which is recognized as belonging to them as a gift of God. It does not affirm that the State grants these rights. It affirms that the State protects rights which men already possess when they are born—rights that are inalienable—rights that cannot be separated from the person of man. What we all need to know without any shadow of a doubt is that Protestants, Catholics, and Jews, and men of every religious persuasion and men of all races, have rights which are theirs by the act of God in creating them. We must ourselves individually determine to protect these rights for all Americans. For when we do that we are insisting upon keeping the Constitution, which is based upon the recognition of these rights, and which, therefore, guarantees and protects them with all the power of the State.

If, on the other hand, we agitate against men who belong to certain races or who profess a religion different from our own, if we slander them, and spread malicious gossip about them, we are creating a temper of mind among the American people which is designed to persuade them to deny that God has given rights to all men—that there are some whose rights may be taken from them. And finally, if this agitation keeps up and is not opposed by good Americans, we may find that the Constitution, which protects and guarantees rights for all, will become meaningless. Some people will want to change it for the purpose of making it protect and guarantee rights only for some particular religion or some particular race. In that case, the Constitution would no longer be an American document. It would not be our Constitution at all.

For the Constitution reflects the mind and will of the people. So long as the mind of the people is informed by right principles, the Constitution will reflect right principles as it does now. If we mean what we say when we acclaim the Constitution, we shall live in accordance with the great and true principles that it enshrines. We shall, ourselves, wherever we may be, support the Constitution by defending the rights of our fellow-Americans regardless of their race or their religion.

"BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS"

The invasion of Europe undoubtedly marks the beginning of an end to one phase of America's wartime economic life but does not, by a wide margin, mean that the overall pace of our war production will or can be lowered for months to come. While it can be taken for granted that industry has produced the arms and material needed for the long planned invasion, it is agreed by most authorities that an equally high production rate will have to be maintained until the surrender of Germany. With Germany out of the picture it is anticipated that military demands upon industry will drop from 35 to 50 per cent. At that time the War Production Board, says Chairman Donald Nelson, will do everything possible to allow essential civilian production wherever it does not interfere with war production needed to lick Japan.

The fact that the invasion is urgent the completion of plans for actually in progress makes more reconversion from war to peace production. There are bound to be temporary employment disruptions with the cancellation of war contracts. But the lag in civilian needs here and dire need for similar goods throughout the world ought to generate plenty of orders to keep American factories and workers busy for a long time provided legislation is passed and other necessary steps are taken in advance to assure a reasonably quick and smooth transition to all-out civilian production when we need it to sustain our economy.

POST-WAR TRAVEL.—Commercial planes may whiz across the continent at speeds of 400 miles an hour, according to Ralph S. Damon, vice-president of American Airlines. Aerodynamically, it is quite possible that 20 years from now our transport planes will cruise at speeds today's combat plane, which are far in excess of that figure, he said. He spoke before a gathering of engineers of Aluminum Company of America, which, he said, "the people of America and the airplane companies can thank for its production record and its research, which gave this country the materials needed to produce superior planes." Declaring that "the engineers have had the world for a test lab" he said that, because of what they have learned, our airplanes have been constantly improved. He predicted that aluminum and magnesium alloys will speed the day when 3,000 and 4,000 horsepower engines are used on our larger planes.

THINGS TO COME.—Lumber treated to resist fire, termites and decay, now being made in 185 plants with an annual capacity of more than four billion board feet, will be available immediately after the war for residential and industrial building, reports J. F. Linthicum, president of the American Lumber & Treating company, Chicago. . . . Surveys show that one story houses are more popular than multiple-story and will probably predominate in post-war building in the lower-priced brackets. Among reasons for their popularity are lack of stairs and the possibility of larger cellars.

THEY FOUND A WAY.—The story of the ingenuity displayed by coming to us only a sentence at a time and probably will not be completed until long after the war is over. Meanwhile, the latest sentence to be added is contained in a report by Willy Overland Motors that since the first shipment less 155 mm. shells has been equivalent to more than three years ago, production of a trainload of ammunition 25 miles long.

Now over the 2,000,000 mark, the "Jeep" concern's production of the 95-pound projectiles began after its through other plants and concluded engineers made inspection trips that the best method of fabricating the 155 mm. shell would be arrived at through techniques not yet tried. The engineers devised a mass production method of forging the medium shell—a process previously used only in the manufacture of projectiles of a small calibre. On entering the sixth month of production, the firm was even with Army production schedules and subsequently became one of the nation's largest suppliers of these shells.

SOYBEAN CANDY.—Candy stores can't stock their counters with as much of or as great variety of sweets these days because a good share of the confectionery industry's manufacturing capacity is being used to meet military needs. About 100,000,000 pounds of candy will be required for Army rations alone this year. According to Eric Gen. J. W. Byron, "every pound of candy sent to our troops is a pound of morale."

For the future, J. R. Maxwell of Stephen F. Whitman & Son, Inc., Philadelphia, holds out the promise of new types of candies to help expand retailers' and manufacturers' markets after the war. His company has already developed candies made of soybean cottonseed and wheat protein flours. Progress in this direction will be cheered by farmers, too. Aids recommended by industry distribution experts to help candy retailers build better businesses after the war include more air-conditioned stores, advertising to emphasize the food value of candy and more extended use of vending machines.

Do not say, "I became enthused about it." Say, "I became enthusiastic about it." Enthused is characterized by some authorities as colloquial, by others as slang.

DRIVE IT HOME!

"That's the way I like to see them," said Gen. MacArthur when he saw the rows of dead Japs in the Admiralty Islands. In this war—the costliest, cruelest war of all time—our boys must fight with savage fury. Kill or be killed! And on low well each plays his part depends the lives of many of his buddies.

Here on the home front, too, just cheering the attack on isn't enough.

That's why there's a Fifth War Bond drive on now, a drive in which you're needed to support the men on the fighting fronts who are facing the most treacherous forces Americans have ever met in combat. We on the home front can't let them down—and we won't. So resolve now to at least double your Bond buying in the 5th War Loan drive. This is the time to do better than your best.

What news will Gen. Eisenhower get from us?

You know now what we've heard from him.

We've heard that Eisenhower and his Americans have hurled themselves like a thunderbolt against the bristling defenses of Hitler's Wehrmacht!

We've heard that they are smashing at our foe — sparing neither steel nor sweat nor blood in one final, furious assault that marks the supreme military effort of this War!

And what news do Eisenhower and his men expect from us?

Men and women of America — what the Invasion is to our fighting men, the 5th War Loan is to us at home!

For us, as well as for them, this is the crisis — the time for tremendous, overwhelming effort! Make no mistake! The 5th War Loan will undoubtedly be the biggest, most vitally important financial effort of this whole War!

If the 5th War Loan is to succeed, each one of us must do more than ever before — must buy double . . . yes, triple . . . the Bonds we bought last time.

Our men expect to hear that we are buying double — that we are matching their sacrifice as best we can — that the American nation, soldiers and civilians together, is making one gigantic effort to win this War!

That's the news our men expect to hear from us.

Will you personally see that they get it?

And here are 5 More reasons for buying Extra Bonds in the 5th!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"I can't think of anything else you'll need for your Victory garden, Judge... you've got pretty nearly everything."
"I think so, too, John. Ever get your asparagus patch going?"
"I gave that up last year, Judge. Tried it six years in a row with no luck. Just haven't got the right soil, I guess?"
"Well, I think you're wise, John... no use keeping on trying things you know won't work. Just like prohibition. State-wide prohibition has been tried in this country seventy-two times in the last ninety years. It has been adopted forty-seven times in the past thirty-three years and discarded everywhere except in three states. Same thing was tried in eight provinces in Canada and in Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia but it was an admitted failure and universally abandoned.

"The reason is prohibition does not prohibit. All you get is bootleg liquor instead of legal liquor, plus no end of crime and corruption."
