Courier-Journal Times Ball Party

The Leader, together with many members of his staff, were among those who attended the Times Ball at the Coal Hotel last night. The ball was held to celebrate the anniversary of the Courier-Journal's publication and to raise funds for the newspaper. The dance featured live music, dancing, and a variety of refreshments. Attendees enjoyed themselves in a festive atmosphere.

The Courier-Journal also reported on several other local events, including voter registration drives, political meetings, and community gatherings. The newspaper continued to cover local news stories, providing readers with the latest information and updates on various topics.

In addition to local news, the Courier-Journal also reported on national and international events, as seen in the articles about Franklin D. Roosevelt and the election campaign. The newspaper aimed to inform its readers about the political landscape and the candidates' platforms.

Overall, the Courier-Journal's coverage provided a comprehensive view of the local community and the wider world, offering readers insights into the events and issues that shaped the times.
The Sports Mirror

By The Associated Press

Today a page appears of The Sports Mirror which is a weekly feature of the Fulton Daily Leader. The feature is sponsored by the Sports Mirror, Inc., a subsidiary of the Associated Press.
