It is no wonder that Sam Siegel has been named to a top position in the West Tennessee Heart Association. As the old song goes, "you've gotta have heart," and it's for sure that Sam has one as kind and generous as Santa Claus himself. All through the year the genial industrialist manages to hide his generosity to all and sundry, fairly well. But at Christmastime, when the accent is on "giving" Sam's charity is so widespread that it's impossible to keep it a secret.

In every community where the Henry I. Siegel Company operates the warm glow of Christmas giving is evident. In the twin city area there are hundreds of little boys, and girls, too, who will be remembering the Siegel folks on Christmas Day and even throughout the year. A small mountain of pants, jackets, shirts and other wearing apparel is now being distributed with the compliments of the Siegel Company. Welfare workers had stars in their eyes this week-end as they visited the South Fulton City Hall and the Fulton Ice Company, where Mayor Milton Counce and Bob White, respectively are "temporary" custodians for the warm, handsome the Siegel Company that are being distributed to the needy. Jim Huffine, manager of the South Fulton Siegel plant told the News Thursday: "Mr. Sam went out and bought the shirts to match the pants and jackets so that the people getting the Siegel gifts will have a complete outfit."

The Siegel Company is Santa in another way that makes local cash registers sound like Christmas every two weeks during the year. More than 700 persons are employed in the two Siegel garment plants in the twin cities with an annual payroll of more than $1,500,000.00.

But the generosity of the Siegel Company did not stop with welfare recipients and other needy people. Employees of the Siegel plants everywhere, more than 3000 of them, received the gratitude and appreciation of the Siegel officials in the form of cash gifts, commensurate with their years of employment to the company.

The letter that went to the employees read like this:

SEASON'S GREETINGS BRUCETON - TENNESSEE

December 21, 1962

Dear Friend:

Christmas is the time for gift giving. A Christmas gift has a meaning far more important than the gift itself. Ideally a good Christmas gift should express the giver's appreciation of his fellow man.

During the past year our company has been extremely fortunate. 1962 was the most successful year in our 38 year history. We know this success could not have been attained without the loyalty, efficiency, and hard work that you gave so willingly throughout the year. We want to share our good fortune with you. Please accept as a token of our most sincere appreciation this

"They Need Shirts, Too!"

"A pair of pants needs a shirt," Sam Siegel reasoned as he went out and bought a huge supply of the colorful garments to match the Siegel manufactured pants that were donated to the needy in the area. In the photo above (left to right) Jim Huffine, Bob White, Glenn Puckett and Milton Counce admire the gifts at the South Fulton City Hall.

Yes Virginia, There Really Is A SANTA CLAUS

Virginia O'Hanlon's letter to The New York Sun is transcribed here, as an eight-year-old today might write it.

Sixty-one years ago, an eight-year-old girl posed a question to the editorial staff of the New York Sun. The newspaper's answer has become one of the Christmas season's classics. The little girl wanted to know simply, "Is there a Santa Claus?" and the answer is reprinted here, as it appeared in The Sun.

Yes, Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age. They do not believe except they see. They think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds. All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's are little. In this great universe of ours man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole truth and knowledge.

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal high with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

Not believe in Santa Claus? You might as well not believe in fairies! You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign there is no Santa Claus. The most real things in the world are those that neither children or men can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there. Nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders there are unseen and unseeable in the world.

You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor ever the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty, glory beyond. Is it all real? Ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

No Santa Claus? Thank God! He lives, and he lives forever. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood.

Residents Learn Facts Of Pump Station Site

An explanation of the location of the proposed pump station for Fulton's sewage disposal system apparently satisfied the residents of the West State Line area near the site. James Warren, appearing on behalf of the residents before a call meeting of the Fulton City Commission Friday afternoon sought to learn:

1. Whether the area would be re-zoned.
2. The possibility of contamination, odors, noise and harmful fumes.
3. The possibility of property depreciation.

Mayor Gilbert DeMyer, City Manager James Robey and representatives of the engineering firm employed to erect the system explained the various questions raised.

The pump station will be erected on a site between the Dairy Queen and the service station on property already zoned commercial.

The pumps would be partially submerged and enclosed in a neat brick building. Experience has proven that such facilities are free of any harmful substances.

Since the area is already zoned commercial the facility would have no more depreciating effect on the property involved than under present conditions.

Attorney Warren made it clear that the property owners he represented were not protesting the facility, but were only seeking a clarification of some contradictory information they had received.

At the meeting the board also approved the street lighting system and renewed a $5000 note at the Fulton Bank, borrowed against anticipated general fund receipts.

Judge Bob Miller Named Top Aide For Chandler

Calloway County Judge Robert O. Miller yesterday was named state campaign vice-chairman for the Democratic primary ticket headed by A. B. Chandler for governor and Harry Lee Waterfield for lieutenant governor.

In announcing the appointment at headquarters in the Sherwyn Hotel, Waterfield said, "Judge Miller is well known in every county in Western Kentucky and to Democratic leaders generally in other parts of the state."

Miller and Waterfield, both natives of Calloway, have been friends since childhood. Miller traveled with Waterfield when he sought the nomination for governor in 1947 and served as state speakers' chairman when Waterfield sought the nomination again in 1959.

Miller was Calloway County campaign chairman for Adlai Stevenson in his 1952 race for president and served in a similar capacity in 1954 for Alben W. Barkley in Barkley's senatorial campaign.

Miller, 43, is a graduate of Murray State College and the University of Louisville School of Law. He served as Calloway County attorney from 1954 to 1962.

Waterfield also announced that, contrary to a previous report, headquarters will be closed only on Christmas Day and New Year's Day during the holidays.

HEADQUARTERS TO CLOSE

Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt, candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, yesterday announced that his state-campaign headquarters in the Sheraton Hotel will be closed four days during the holidays: December 24, 25 and 31 and January 1.

Christmas Came To America A Sacred Day, While Illegal In England

Celebration of Christmas—the most widely observed religious holiday of the modern world—was at one time illegal in early American history.

Colonial New England did not celebrate Christmas, according to researchers at Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia, because the stern Puritan colonists believed that such activities were wholly pagan and forbade them by law. Christmas came to the American colonies while it was the subject of strenuous controversy in England. English Puritans condemned it as "popish" and the secular celebration as a "wanton Bacchanalian feast." Opposition of the English Puritans to festivals culminated in an act of Parliament in 1694 which abolished the observance of Christmas, Easter and Whit Sunday. This was echoed in the American colonies in 1659 when Puritans enacted a law in the general court of Massachusetts to punish those who "kept Christmas." The law read "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing of labor, feasting, or in any other way... shall be subject to a fine of five shillings."

The law was repealed in 1681 but many of the Puritans were not reconciled to this action. Secular reveling at Christmas had often interfered with religious devotions and offended the Puritans' moral sense. This intensified their sectarian hostility to the religious observance of Christmas—an attitude they maintained for the better part of two centuries in parts of New England.

The fun-loving Dutch colonists of New Amsterdam, however, celebrated Christmas as their chief holiday. They brought the old customs from their homeland, especially the Christmas stocking

Terry Beadles, a junior, looks shipshape as he prepares for his third basketball season. Terry is also an excellent football player, a fact which he proved by scoring 148 points in the last grid season.

Beadles Proves Great Potential

From the FHS "Kennel"
One of the most outstanding athletes at FHS this year is a junior, Terry Beadles. Terry has already proved his great potential in football as well as basketball. So far in his athletic career, he has received eight junior varsity letters and six high school letters, for a total of fourteen. In the recently closed grid season, this five-eleven, 160 pounder was the top scorer for the Bulldogs, who accumulated more points than any other team in the state. Terry burst through the line for 24 touchdowns and four extra points, a total of 148 points.

Last year Terry received a broken collar bone in a scrimmage game with Dresden. However, this didn't slow him down; as soon as his collar bone healed he finished the season with a good showing at each of the remaining games.

Since the Bulldogs have only played two basketball games this season, Terry hasn't had the opportunity to demonstrate his ability in the position of guard. However, Terry proved himself indispensable last year as he scored 254 points, for 9.4 points per game. Also in his sophomore year he was one of Fulton's big five who played in the state tournament.

His first year in high school Beadles was a starter on the freshmen team.

Terry started his athletic career in the sixth grade. While he was in junior high, he received eight junior varsity letters, four in basketball and four in football.

Paramus, N. J.—Vandals smashed locks on cages in the children's zoo in Van Saun Park, but the only inmate to escape was Rennie the fox.

Attendant William Serence found several emus, a Shetland pony, a llama, and Mexican burro milling around in an open area, uncertain of their new freedom.

Serence herded the animals back into confinement and then took a head count that showed only Rennie was missing.

Rennie likes three meals a day. "We'll just put his food out and he'll come back," Serence said.

Tid - Bits

of Kentucky Folklore

POETICAL vs. MATTER-OF-FACT

My study of the Mammoth Cave folkways has still further convinced me that the folk are basically poetic rather than matter-of-fact. When we cease to add flavor to our speech, for example, we have begun to accept a prosaic view of life. When we are still just plain folks, we love to adorn our speech with vivid comparisons and quaint sayings and even with picturesque threats and dire prophecies.

Folkish people still cling to their love of expressing themselves in a way not purely factual. Whether it may not be better in our fast age to follow facts I will leave to the people who must get from A to B, and get there in the shortest possible time, with the correct number of miles and even tenths of miles. The rest of us, especially when we are out driving to see fall colors or to find out what lies beyond the farthest hills, enjoy driving a right smart ways down this road before we turn and follow a creek for a mile or so.

That house on the top of a hill away off yonder is probably six miles by air-line; but, in my part of the world, with its unbridged streams and rough hills, we would do well to reach it in ten miles. Just today I looked across our biggest stream and saw houses where I have never been; one of them I have seen regularly twenty or thirty times a year since 1935; but I have never desecrated the romance of it all by needlessly driving away around the country to get there and see the house up close.

Let it stand on its high hill overlooking Barren River as a sort of challenge to those of us who believe that there are hills that are not yet conquered, streams not yet crossed.

Lately I have enjoyed looking over hundreds of threatening words and expressions in my collection. Many of them, taken literally, are gruesome: "I'll wear you out," "I'll knock you so far you won't get back till next Friday." Though I have lived long and kept my eyes open most of that time, I have never seen any great mayhem committed, in spite of the threatened manslaughter and bloodshed that I have heard about almost daily.

When I was a very little sickly boy, I took these dire threats as literal and fully expected to see some of my schoolmates as far gone as the animals that venture across our crowded roads at night. It took me years to realize that the ones who said such horrible things were merely being poetic, though they did not know that word and would have sworn that they were meaning every word they said.

Similarly, our similes—and I am including myself always in my endless talk about the folk—would not stand up under cold analysis. "Bold as a lion" must mean many different things to many different people; just how cold it has to be to be as "cold as blixens" is still unanswered by the experts.

That girl who was as "pretty as a speckled puppy" may have descendants in our time who are as "ugly as a mud fence"; but different people were the judges in times so far apart. Often I amuse myself by singing or quoting love songs, with their rich imagery. Let's take Annie Laurie, for example, with her "brow like the snowdrift", her face the fairest that e'er the sun shone on."

Even her poetic swain declared that he would "lay him down and dee" for her; history, that bad boy that so often interferes with our dreams, says that Annie, who had a "rolling e'e," somewhat unpoetically married some one else. And her lover didn't "lay him down and dee" worth ten cents.

would like, just for the record, to see a portrait of Annie and her Douglas, to see whether I would in any way agree with his wild assertions about her matchless beauty.

If Annie looked like some of the genuine Scotch ladies that were related to me, some generations removed from Scotland, I doubt whether any great poet, except one very much in love, could find all the lovely things to say about her that Douglas, long ago, said for us all to love and sing.

Hickman Going Ahead With Plans To Acquire KU

Hickman's Electric Plant Board is moving ahead with its 12-month old campaign to acquire the local Kentucky Utilities electrical system. Apparently unhindered by a suit filed by KU December 4 to void the November 6 election, the plant board Tuesday night appointed Stein Bros. & Boyce of Paducah as fiscal agent.

Hickman voters, by a 5-1 margin, approved the proposed purchase of the electrical distribution system and issuance of revenue bonds to pay for the costs and damages of acquisition.

Stein Brothers & Boyce bid 1.2% for the first $300,000 and 1.0% after that figure. Five investment banking firms competed to represent Hickman.

The City of Hickman, its plant board, and Fulton County officials named in the suit have until December 25 to answer the suit.

HELPED CAROLS

Martin Luther, the Reformation leader, felt that group singing in churches was important and did much to help spread the custom of carol singing. He composed a carol, "From Heaven Above I Come to You," and "Away in a Manger" is sometimes attributed to him.

WHAT WISE MEN DID

Tradition says that the Three Wise Men, after returning to the kingdoms from Bethlehem, gave up their high positions, gave the property to the poor, and went on to preach the gospel of Christianity.

FHS Clubs Are Valuable Assets

To the pupils of Fulton High, there are several different clubs or organizations, one or more of which would interest everyone.

One of the most popular clubs is the Future Business Leaders of America. The FBLA is for students who are interested in going into business for a career. The requirement for this club is to have at least one year of a business course. Mrs. Bill Robertson, commerce instructor, is the sponsor.

Another popular club, for the girls only, is the Future Homemakers of America. Most of the girls in homemaking classes belong to this club. One of the main objects of this club is to teach better homemaking methods to the girls. Mrs. Gilbert DeMyer is the club sponsor.

A club for farmers and homemakers is the 4-H Club. This club is open to boys and girls and is very beneficial to anyone. The members plan various projects through the year which are very interesting. Mrs. Bertha McLeod, Fulton County Home Demonstration Agent, and Mr. John Watts, Fulton County Agent, are the sponsors for the girls and boys, respectively.

For those interested in French, there is a French Club sponsored by Mrs. Haws, language instructor at FHS. This club meets at school and at the homes of different members and is very interesting and educational.

For the Florence Nightingales there is the Future Nurses Club. This club is for girls who are interested in medicine and in the care of the sick.

There is also the Quill and Scroll. Members must be of at least junior or senior standing and must be in the upper third of their class in general scholastic standing. They must have done superior work in some phase of journalism and must be recommended by the advisor, Mrs. Burrow is sponsor of the Quill and Scroll.

The Bulldogs Club is an honorary association for boys who have lettered in two different sports in one year, or three times in a minor sport and once in a major one.

So, you can see that there is a club which will suit practically anyone's taste.

Norwich, England. — A constant reader entered Norwich Public Library the other day and said he had some overdue books to return.

The books were outside in a truck. The man said he decided to return them after the Library announced it was forgiving all fines due it.

"Certainly, Sir," said the librarian. "How many?"
"Er—well—299," said the visitor.
"He'd had some out for 14 years."

A. M. Dycus Adds More Laurels To Athletic Crown

ABILENE, Tex., Dec. 20.—A. M. Dycus of Abilene Christian College, former South Fulton, Tenn., grid star, has been listed as an honorable mention Mid-Bracket All-American end by the Williamson Rating System of Houston, Tex.

Annually the rating system polls the athletic departments of the nation to come up with their All-American teams.

Dycus has also been mentioned in two other all-star listings. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram named Dycus to its All-Texas College first eleven. In a round-robin between three Abilene colleges, ACC, McMurry and Hardin-Simmons, Dycus was placed on the All-City Collegiate first team.

An end, Dycus caught 23 passes this season for 364 yards and two touchdowns. He missed only seven reception opportunities during the year. The 1962 season gave Dycus, a senior, his third letter for ACC and a college career record of 778 yards on 53 pass catches. For two seasons Dycus played behind Robert McLeod, now of the Houston Oilers.

Dycus graduated from South Fulton High School in 1959 after earning three letters in both football and basketball. He is the son of Mrs. Monette Dycus, 208 Bates St. Dycus is married to Carolyn Comolli of Sweetwater, Tex., and is the father of a one-month old son, Lanny Paul.

CHRISTMAS—

York Daily Times for December 28, 1855 read:

"The churches of the Presbyterians, Baptists, and Methodists were not open on Dec. 25 except where some Mission Schools had a celebration. They do not accept the day as a Holy One, but the Episcopalians, Catholic and German Churches were all open. Inside they were decked with evergreens."

In the twentieth century, all denominations have embraced Christmas widely both as a religious and as a social celebration. Today, men, women and children in every Christian land crowd into churches to give their thanks. More than one fourth of the world's population—about 800 million people profess some form of Christian faith.

The splendor and beauty of Christmas observances is very different from the humble stable in Bethlehem where Christ was born; but the message He brought to the world is the same—"Glory be to God in the highest; and on earth peace, good will toward men."

Day Of Glory Given Trees

Even trees have a space problem — and for the evergreens, it is alleviated at Christmas time, say forestry experts. The big trees get room to grow, and the small trees get their day of glory.

Conservation-minded President Theodore Roosevelt, objecting to the cutting down of millions of evergreens, once adamantly refused to have a Christmas tree in the White House.

His son, Archie, smuggled in a tree and set it up in his room. The deed was discovered and Archie was about to be punished when Gifford Pinchot, the President's conservation adviser, intervened.

Pinchot explained that the cutting of trees, properly supervised, is a good conservation measure.

Archie wasn't punished — and the White House had a tree.

May there

Diary of Doin's

(Items gathered along Fulton's merryway for your pleasure and your scrapbook)

The big news this week is all the coming and going, the gay parties and the last minute, frenzied preparations for Santa's arrival on Tuesday. We really are trying to get the paper out early so that all your friends and ours can wish you a merry Christmas and Happy New Year through the columns of this paper, which you are now reading.

I really shouldn't take time to write much today, but this story I must record for posterity, because it tells today's Christmas story much, much better than Charles Dickens ever could.

Friday of last week Mary Jo was to appear in her Christmas piano recital at Doris Wiley's home. Remember I told you that only one guest could attend? Well, since Paul was so busy I thought I could get away easier and fully planned to go all week long.

Well, I left the office at two o'clock to go home and change into something presentable. On the way home I stopped at the bus station for a package that came in from Paducah. I dashed in and dashed out in just a few seconds and got in the car to be on the 2:15 schedule Mary Jo had set for me.

When I got in the car the starter acted a little funny, but I thought nothing of it; that is I didn't think it would affect my schedule any. I turned the key again, and all I heard was a weak little sound. That really chilled me right to the bone, because time was marching on now. I waited just a second or two, turned the key again . . . and nothing. Then the chills became feverish and I had to do something.

I abandoned the car. Called Paul to come get me in front of the bus station, but quick, and he said he would. I thought I would save some time by standing out in front of the ailing car so all I'd have to do was jump in. While waiting though, I decided to see if I couldn't get pushed off and frantically waved a taxi cab to assist this damsel in distress. Do you know that fellow didn't even say "no," go jump in the lake, or miserable Christmas. But I'm sure Scrooge was his father. Because it seemed to me that he went a little faster as he passed and wouldn't you know that the speed of his vehicle splattered me, but good with water that wasn't fit for drinking. Couldn't be, it was in a puddle on the street.

Well Paul came in record speed. I took the running car, and left him with the sick one. I raced home to find Mary Jo in tears. I was already five minutes late. Ozie calmed her while I went upstairs to change clothes. Ozie ran up with me and was helping like mad. Didn't put my shoes or stockings on, thought I would do that in the car. Didn't comb my hair. I had a comb in the glove compartment, would do that too. All the while Mary Jo is honking the horn downstairs.

Ozie changed purses for me. By this time R. Paul had joined the urging to hurry. It was now 2:30. Mary Jo would be late, for sure.

At 2:32 p. m. I entered the car, in a complete state of dishabille, but I would straighten up when I got her into Doris' house. Mary Jo had asked her little friend Glenda Downs to be her guest and we had to go by for her. I didn't think anything about that either. It took some seven minutes to get, portal to portal from our house to Doris', via Glenda's, but folks were still going in when we got there so I knew I was saved by a hair.

As I opened the door to let the children out I told them I'd be in just as soon as I got my shoes and stockings on and freshened my complexion. If you're thinking that I was driving bare-footed, you are right, but unless you've had a little girl crying because she's late, you'll never know the urgency of speed.

Well, just as I sighed, and thanked the Good Lord that I made it, Mary Jo said: "Mother I'll call you when it's over."

"Whadda you mean, you'll call me?" I said, "I'm coming in."

"You can't Mother," she said with the non-chalance of a hangman about to put the noose around the condemned, "you're not invited. We could only invite one guest and I knew you and Daddy would be busy, so I invited Glenda."

You can't imagine what it is to sob, get hysterical, and grit your teeth, while trying to speed home in a Christmas traffic jam.

Santa Claus Now Changed Man

Santa Claus has undergone quite a metamorphosis in his time. Before Dr. Clement Moore, Santa's appearance was a problem left mostly to individual discretion and personal taste. He might be short or tall, plump or thin, merry or solemn.

The European St. Nicholas was pictured as a tall, thin man who rode a gray horse. In 1809, Washington Irving described Santa as a jolly fellow who wore a wide-brimmed hat.

After Dr. Moore wrote "Twas the Night Before Christmas," in 1823, St. Nick acquired definite external characteristics. Ever after, children "knew in a moment it must be St. Nick" by his twinkling eyes and a rosy face — and his sleigh and reindeers for transportation.

The image of Santa was affirmed in 1869 when Thomas Nast's cartoon was published, picturing Santa in his now-familiar red garb, smoking a pipe. Like all famous men, Santa today finds it difficult to travel anywhere in cognito.

FAMED AS SCHOLARS

Bringing gifts to the Christ Child, the Magi also brought with them a reputation of wisdom. They were renowned, legend says, as philosophers, scholars, diviners and astrologists.

Easy To See! Man Gets Lost On LA Freeway

Los Angeles — Newcomers to Los Angeles could sympathize with Frank Farmer, 65, a Minneapolis accountant.

He drove in and immediately began the visitor's odyssey on the Los Angeles freeways.

Farmer spent 12 hours one night and early the next day driving up and down the system looking for his wife, Louise, 64, after they became separated while trying to drive to Van Nuys in separate cars.

Mrs. Farmer finally took refuge in a motel and alerted police to be on the lookout for her husband.

An officer soon spotted Farmer and gave him directions to the motel. Farmer thanked him and started off.

A few miles later he was lost again, and didn't find the motel until morning.

Compliments of the Employees of

Fulton County's Historical Records To Be Microfilmed in Co-op Project

Historical records in 11 West Kentucky counties will be microfilmed within the next three months in a cooperative project sponsored by the Jackson Purchase Historical Society, the University of Kentucky, and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Counties in which court house records and a variety of privately owned historical documents and papers are to be filmed include Ballard, Calloway, Carlisle, Fulton, Graves, Hickman, Livingston, Lyon, McCracken, Marshall and Trigg.

The actual filming, slated to get under way December 17 in Paducah, will be done by Richard Avena, Salt Lake City, Utah, who represents the Mormon Church. Microfilming of the West Kentucky records is part of an international program that has been undertaken by the religious body as a means of obtaining genealogical data. The project currently is under way in many areas of the United States and in several European countries.

The Archives Department of the UK Library and the Jackson Purchase Historical Society, desirous of preserving county records and documents, are assisting Avena by helping him gain access to the various collections. All costs of the project are borne by the religious body.

A microfilm copy of the West Kentucky records will be given the UK Library, where it will be available for use by historians and other research scholars. Negatives are stored in a mountain vault near Salt Lake City, which is owned by the Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church. From the standpoint of temperature, humidity and safety from fire and blast, the vault is viewed as ideal for the preservation of records.

Bulk of the material to be filmed in the 11-county area will consist of county records up to 1865. Members of the Purchase Historical Society, which is headed by Lon Carter Barton of Mayfield, also will make available to Avena the records of certain churches, cemeteries, civic and fraternal organizations.

Mrs. Courtland Neel, Paducah, is chairman of the Historical Society's microfilm committee.

Among the court house records to be filmed are deed books, will books, county court order books, marriage bonds and other collections likely to contain genealogical data. Excluded from the microfilming project are mortgage records and all records of the various circuit courts.

Avena's schedule of visits to counties other than McCracken is not yet definite. He estimates, however, that the West Kentucky project will not be completed until late March or early April.

Assigned by the Mormon Church last spring to conduct the Kentucky phase of its microfilming project, Avena already has filmed court house records in 20 or more counties of Eastern and Central Kentucky.
