MEN LIABLE TO DRAFT ADVISED BY CROWDER.

Washington, July 8. Another step in building up the selective conscription army was taken today, with the distribution of a circular by Provost Marshal General Crowder notifying the registered men to hold themselves in readiness for appearance before the boards which will conduct examinations and consider exemptions.

How or when the government will select the men to be examined is not detailed in the circular, but it is revealed that registration cards in each county or city jurisdiction are to be numbered with red ink and that "as soon as the drawing is complete lists showing the order in which these red ink numbers are drawn will be published in the press and will be posted at the office of each local board." It has already been announced that the selection will take place in Washington, and the general presumption has been that some device similar to a jury wheel will be employed.

Seven Days to File Claims. Exemptions are to be determined by the local boards, the circular shows, only for the previously announced specified cases, such as responsibility for the support of relatives, and not for agricultural or industrial reasons. Seven days after designations are posted will be allowed for filing claims. Then there will be an additional allowance of ten days for filing proofs, and the board must decide within three days after the proof is filed.

When the case of any registrant has been disposed of, so far as the local board is concerned, the names of those not exempted or discharged will be posted. Claims for exemption for agricultural or industrial work must be made within five days after such posting and must go direct to the higher board sitting for the judicial district. Appeals from the rulings of the local boards must be made to the higher board within ten days.

The circular does not cover the summoning of the men for actual service, pointing out that selection and acceptance does not mean an immediate summons. Even the time of the drawing is not specified, but issuance of the circular is taken to mean that the work of selection may be in progress within a few days.

September 1 has been tentatively considered as the date for assembling the first half million men in cantonments for training.

Instructions in Detail.

The steps a registered person should take are set forth in great detail in the circular. First of all the registrant is advised to find out the location of the office of his county or city local board and then ascertain, if he intends to claim exemption for agricultural or industrial reasons, to what district board then he must apply.

"Every board has numbered the cards in its jurisdiction with red ink in a series running from one to the number representing the total number of cards in its jurisdiction," continues the circular.

"Lists showing the names of persons in the jurisdiction of each board and the red ink number of each card are open to inspection at the office of each board. Inspect the list and inform yourself of your red ink serial number."

"These red ink numbers are to be drawn by lot to determine the order in which registered persons are to be called by the various local boards. As soon as the drawing is complete lists showing the order in which these red ink numbers are drawn will be published in the press, and will be posted at the office of each local board. Go to your local board and find out the order in which you stand for call."

Call to Be Posted.

"As soon as quotas are assigned to each State and each board, each board will call upon persons whose cards are in its jurisdiction instructing them to present themselves for examination. This call will be posted at the local board and the papers will be requested to print it. A notice will also be mailed you, but the posting of the list at the office of the board will be deemed sufficient notice to charge you with the duty of presenting yourself. Watch the lists at the office of your board and see when you are called for examination."

"You must report for physical examination on the day named in your call."

"If you are found physically disqualified the board will give you a certificate which will explain to you what your further duties are."

"If you are found physically qualified and file a claim for exemption within seven days after your call you will be given ten days after filing your claim of exemption to file proof in support of your claim of exemption."

"If you are found physically qualified, and file no claim for exemption, or if you do not appear for physical examination, your name will be posted to the district board as one who was called for military service and was not exempted or discharged. On the eighth day after call, or within two days thereafter, copies of the list of persons so posted to the district boards will be given to the press with a request for publication, will be posted in a place at the office of the local board accessible to the public view and notice will be mailed to you at the address on your registration card."

Watch Notices Urged.

"Therefore, watch the notices posted in the offices of the board about ten days after the day you were called and make arrangements for the prompt receipt of mail."

The grounds for exemption are set forth in the same language as in the preliminary regulations issued a week ago. The circular

WILSON CALLS ALL GUARDS TO COLORS AUG. 5

Washington, July 9. The last steps necessary to make the entire National Guard available for duty in France were taken today. President Wilson issued a proclamation drafting the state troops into the army of the United States August 5.

To make certain that the purpose of the National Defense act is carried out, the proclamation specifically declares that the men drafted will be discharged from the old militia status on that date. In that way Constitutional restraint upon the use of militia outside of the country is avoided and the way paved for sending regiments to the European front. By prior application of the draft, regiments in the northern and eastern sections of the country called into Federal service as National Guardsmen in two increments, will be mobilized July 15 and August 25. Many units are already Federalized and presumably will be mobilized with other troops from their states. The guard from other states will be mobilized the day of the draft.

Arrangements necessary to provide for the movement of regiments south to their concentration camps without congestion and to the same end, divisions of states into these increments, has been revised from the original schedule. The operation of the draft was delayed until August 5 in order that all regiments might be taken into the army simultaneously.

The fourteen camp sites for the sixteen tactical divisions into which the guard will be organized for war purposes, have already been selected. The Militia Bureau is preparing the railway routing of the troops to the camps.

H. E. Holton for Re-Election.

This issue of the Ledger contains the formal announcement of Mr. H. E. Holton as a candidate for re-election to the office of mayor of the city of Murray. Mr. Holton has been serving in the capacity of mayor for the past four years, during which time he has always shown a keen interest in the city's welfare, and has given the affairs of the town much time and attention. He is a wide-awake, progressive citizen, a staunch advocate of every measure that aims at the growth and prosperity of the town and advancement of individual interests and is asking the citizenship to give him the usual endorsement for service rendered. Mr. Holton is in the very prime of life, capable, affable and has many friends who will gladly support his candidacy.

West Kentucky Baptist Assembly.

The ninth annual meeting of the West Kentucky Baptist Assembly, Russellville, Ky., June 20-27, has passed into history. It is pronounced the greatest in the history of that body. Its outstanding features were these:

The class work of J. L. Hill, Arthur Flake and H. L. Strickland was not only the highest type, but so gripped the folks that all of them have been asked to be with us again next year. Two of the most thoughtful addresses of the assembly were those by Dr. Geo. E. Hunt, New York, on "The Christian's Social Duty," and "The War Situation." The addresses of Dr. L. V. Yipertman, Columbus,

Miss., were profound and thought-provoking.

The most heart-searching address of the assembly probably was the one by Missionary J. L. Hart from Argentina on Tuesday morning.

The most restful speaker and the one who attracted the largest hearing was W. B. Riley, D. D., of Minneapolis. He spoke four times on the Lord's Return and kindred themes.

The twilight services conducted by Pastor H. B. Taylor, Murray, Ky., were earnest and forceful and contributed largely to the great missionary climax of the assembly.

Of the work of Dr. J. W. Porter, Dr. W. D. Powell, Sec. N. T. Barnes, Miss Mary Faison Dixon, Mrs. Janie Cree Bose and Mary Lyne we need not speak because they are all well known in Kentucky. Our sweet singer, Brother David M. Hughes, delighted all.

The closing hour was a fitting climax. $785 was raised in good pledges in that hour from Russellville friends to send Miss Mary Lyne as a missionary from Russellville church to China. Bro. Cliff Maddox, of Beaver Dam gave himself for foreign mission work at that hour. Contributed.

H. G. Wadlington for Mayor.

Mr. H. G. Wadlington, the well known dry goods merchant, has not been a citizen of Murray a great number of years, but since coming here has made his presence felt by his active interest in the welfare and success of every public undertaking, and because he wants to see the town of Murray continue to grow and expand he makes announcement of his candidacy for the office of mayor. Pledging himself, if elected, to devote his whole energy and ability to the discharge of the duties of the position, Mr. Wadlington has been president of the Commercial Club, the Farm Development Association, and in each capacity displayed his fitness and ability to serve in any capacity that he might be placed. He is a splendid, christian gentleman, active, energetic, and should he be made the mayor of the city will serve in a creditable manner.

Paducah Hospital Burned.

Paducah, Ky., July 10. The Illinois Central railroad hospital was almost totally destroyed this morning by a fire which broke out in the smoking room of the institution at about 12:20 o'clock. The thirty-odd patients and attendants who were in the hospital were all rescued from the building, although one patient was injured in being removed, and a nurse sustained broken arms and possibly a strained back in jumping from a second story porch. W. C. Malone, the watchman at the hospital, told an excited story of how the fire started with an explosion in the smoking room, but this theory is discredited by Dr. Virgil Powell, house physician, who thinks the fire originated possibly from a carelessly thrown cigarette or cigar stump. A break in the gas pipes in the house is also given as a possible cause for the conflagration which had practically destroyed the whole building at 2 o'clock this morning.

Slackers Sentenced.

Seventy-eight slackers from Rockford, Ill., were sentenced to serve a year and a day each in the Chicago house of correction by Judge K. M. Landis in the federal court. The sentence specified "hard labor." Two others were ordered to be in jail 30 days. Judge Landis ordered also that each man be required to register.

150,000 POUNDS TOBACCO IN POOL OFFERED MONDAY

Between 150,000 and 175,000 pounds of unsold tobacco held by farmers of Calloway county was offered for sale here last Monday by sample. The sale was held at the Winchester & Roberts loose leaf floor. The bids on the lugs averaged $9.52 and the leaf averaged $11.25. The best price paid was for Craig Parker's crop which brought $10.25 for the lugs and $13.50 for the leaf. Fully one-half of the crops offered were sold, while the remainder was rejected but many of the rejected crops were afterwards sold to Murray dealers, who refused to attend the sale.

Only one Murray firm, Farmer Bros., was represented at the sale while Mr. Nash, of Paducah was the only out-of-town buyer present. Murray buyers gave as their reason for not attending the sale that they could not buy by sample or were cut off the market. Still several of the local dealers stayed on the outside and made offers and purchased many of the crops by sample from farmers who rejected the bids offered in the sale, paying for these crops a higher price. Mr. Nash made the public declaration just before the sale begun that a strong effort was made to keep him away. Why such an effort should be made to rob the farmers of a chance to sell their crops is something the Ledger can not understand, and many bitter denunciations were heard from different citizens who offered crops for sale.

Regardless of the reported vicious, mean opposition to the undertaking much of the tobacco changed hands at satisfactory prices, and it will be a long time before the farmers who were endeavoring to secure a living price for their crops will forget the tactics employed to cheat and defraud them of their rightful heritage.

Former Murray Boy Enlists.

Henry D. Crowe enlisted with the regular army at St. Joseph, Mo., Saturday. He is in the Field Artillery. A letter from him received Monday says he is now at Jefferson Barracks with his brother, Well, as those two boys are all the children we ever had we guess we are through contributing to the army unless they will take the old man, who is fair, fat and forty-some. -Dexter, (Mo.) Statesman.

These boys are the sons of Ed Crowe and formerly lived in Murray where both boys made splendid school records.

Homer Pogue, of Birmingham, Ala., arrived here Friday and accompanied by his wife, who has been here several weeks, left for Detroit and Chicago on a short trip. Homer, Jr., will visit his grandparents here until their return.

Houston, Drinkard, Bailey and Clark Refuse to Debate

My challenge for a joint debate with other aspirants for the nomination for sheriff was not accepted. Mr. Joe Clark came to my office Tuesday morning to discuss the matter with me, and while he did not so express himself, I took it for granted that he came as the spokesman of all the candidates who were included in the challenge and who refused to allow me more than five minutes time in the speaking campaign of the county. Mr. Clark stated that the challenge would not be accepted but gave no special reasons for refusing.

I want to say to Mr. Clark, Mr. Drinkard, Mr. Houston and Mr. Bailey that it was not my purpose in any measure to make any personal reference in the article published last week in which was used the expression "yellow streak." Mr. Clark seem to take some exceptions to those two words. My sole intention was to convey the idea that if they were not afraid to meet me they would accept the challenge. Usually when boys quarrel over a game of marbles some fellow places a chip on one's shoulder and dares the other to knock it off. The fellow who was dared and refused to knock the chip off was generally accused of showing a "yellow streak," or a "white feather," in fact, afraid to do it. Thus it was only my intention to say that if the challenge was not accepted I would consider it from such a standpoint, and no personal reflection was intended.

But since I can't get a joint discussion with a reasonable allotment of time I must proceed otherwise. I will be "Johnny on the spot" and take my measly little five minutes and in addition I am making a list of night appointments throughout the county at which time I am going to discuss at length issues of this campaign as I see them. A few of the matters I am going to discuss will be "Who's Going to Wag the Tail?" "Should any Tax Control the Sheriff's Office?" "What are the Duties of an Officer of the Law?" "Who has Sold Out?"

Every mother, every wife, every voter is invited to hear this discussion. I entertain convictions and have the grit to express them, and after you have heard me then you will be capable of making up your mind in this race. I am making this race without any financial institution at my back. I have no money to buy or corrupt men with. I am depending on the PEOPLE who believe in a fair fight to elect me and to them I appeal to demand for me that which every man is entitled to receive—justice.

Following are the places at which I will speak at night commencing at 8:15 o'clock each night:

Pine Bluff school house, Monday, July 16.
Shady Hill school house, Tuesday, July 17.
Oak Grove school house, Wednesday, July 18.
Jackson school house, Thursday, July 19.
Elm Grove school house, Friday, July 20.
Dick school house, Saturday, July 21.
Little Rock school house, Monday, July 23.
Providence, Tuesday, July 24.
Mallory school house, Wednesday, July 25.
Lone Oak school house, Thursday, July 26.
Shiloh, Friday, July 27.
Thompson school house, Saturday, July 28.

Men for Draft Army May Be Drawn Saturday, August 14, at Washington

Washington, July 9. Unofficially it was indicated today that 687,000 is the number of men to be selected for the first national war army from the millions registered June 5. Probably twice that number of names will be drawn, as the number of exemptions to be allowed is estimated at 50 per cent. Next Saturday is understood to have been tentatively fixed upon as the date for the drawing, although no announcement has been made by the Provost Marshal General's office.

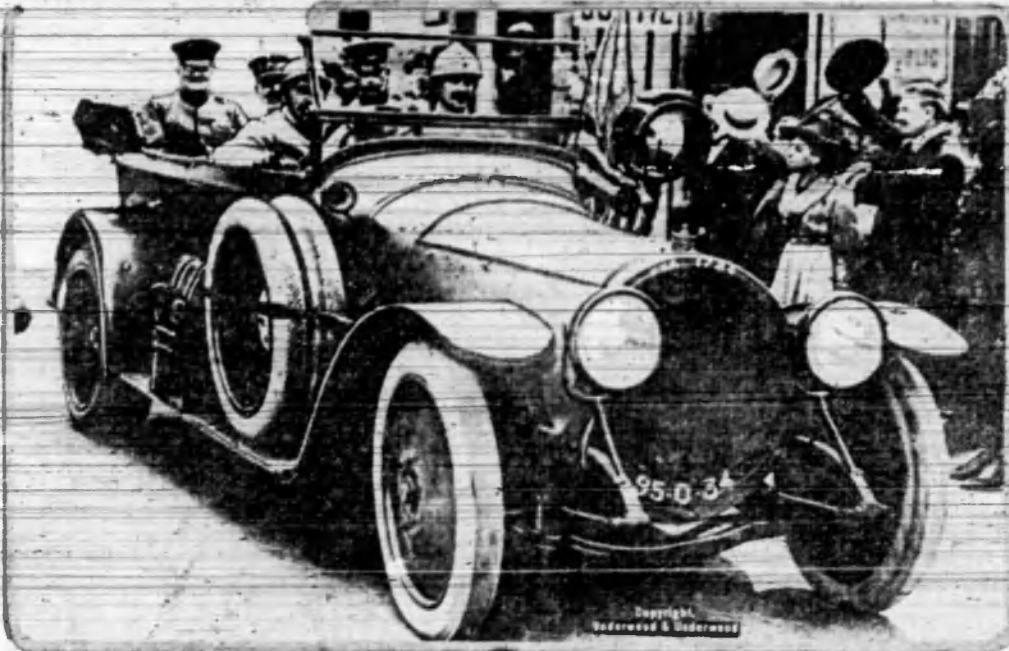

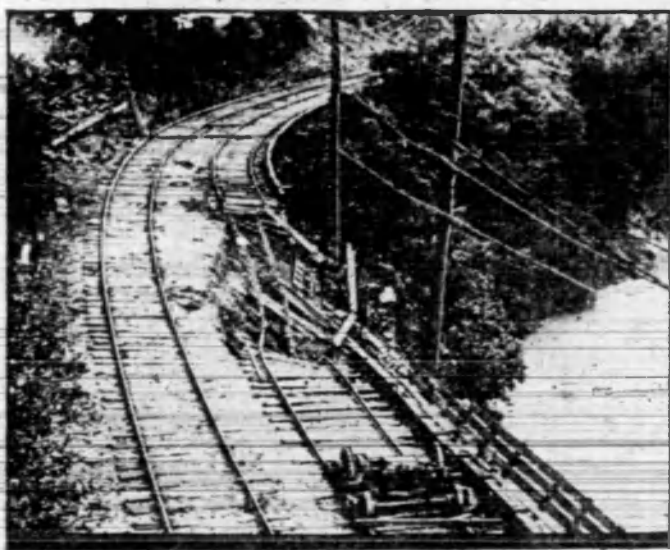

1—Deck scene on a British submarine in a Pacific coast harbor, far from its base. 2—Training ambulance drivers and men for the United States army on the fair ground at Alton, Ill. 3—Air mechanic Robinson of the British flying corps, who is only twenty-one years old and has been passed for special training owing to his cleverness in designing airplanes. 4—The cruiser Zeland, one of Holland's largest war vessels, visiting in New York Harbor.

LINCOLN SHAH IN TRAINING

Lincoln Shah, son of Kai Fu Shah, former minister to the United States from China, is an enthusiastic member of the Junior American Guard, an organization which is flourishing in Washington among the young sons of well-known people. Young Shah is being educated in America, though his father has returned to China and to private life.

CREDIT TO M'ADOO

Liberty Loan Ably Handled by Secretary of the Treasury.

Its Magnificent Success Must Confound the Critics of the Department and of the Administration of Which He is a Part.

The Liberty loan was oversubscribed almost 52 per cent. The total amount of cash offered Uncle Sam is $3,000,000,000, and rather more than 4,000,000 persons combined to make the offer.

Considering that this was not only our first war loan, but the first really popular loan ever offered to the country, it is the most amazing success ever scored.

Full credit and warm thanks are due to the banks and trust companies and private financiers, to the solicitors and advertisers and newspapers who gave time and money to boosting the great cause. But a goodly section of credit must be reserved for the man who launched the project, Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo.

Only a short time ago the croakers were telling us that the whole plan was a blunder, and that the art of raising cash was a mystery which no member of the present administration could hope to solve. In view of the figures presented, it looks as though the critics had something to learn themselves, and as if Mr. McAdoo knew a little about the financial status and temper of his countrymen, after all.

Intensive Training.

No one who knows much about Secretary Baker of the war department can be surprised at the New York Sun's admission that he is "looking good." A civilian must be secretary of war, in our government, and there is no avenger. William H. Taft, Jr., states today who can teach Mr. Baker in qualifications for the difficult post. His first year's experience as war secretary, embracing the Mexican border mobilization of the National Guard, was equal to the experience secretaries used to obtain in four years. Mr. Baker has been in "intensive training" from the day he took office and he now has a grasp of the problems of his department which a few more months would be many months in acquiring. Naturally Mr. Baker has a keen, alert, lightninglike mind, and there is not a shred of respect in his makeup for what is known as bureaucratic red tape. Keep him where he is and he will work his head off for the army and the country.—Springfield Republican.

Country's Good Beginning.

We may be modest in contemplating our beginning of the war-in-silver thought of the effort which lies ahead. But it will not be undervalued by those who know how to appreciate our reformation of their weary hands. War is a matter of blood and iron. There are more than 10,000,000 men behind the nearly 10,000,000 who have registered. The combined pig iron capacity of the allies—the United States, England, France, Russia, Italy and Japan—is under $1,000,000,000, and its value is covered by the subscription in three of our reserve districts. All the iron produced in all the countries at war would not be worth $2,000,000,000, at normal values. Last year was a good year for this country yet all the iron ore, coke, and iron produced in 1916 was less than one-half of the first subscription to the fund to bring freedom to its sons and its knees, in humility if not in prayer.

Coalition Cabinet Nonsense.

In its zeal for what it calls a "coalition" cabinet, composed of both Democrats and Republicans, an administration journal is making the most ridiculous suggestion. Time enough to supplant some of the present cabinet with a new one, but not now. Secretary Daniels, who was the butt of newspaper humorists for so long, is sustained by the best judgment of the country in nearly everything he has done, including his refusal in the interest of morality and sobriety, in the navy.

The people voted last fall not to change leadership in a dramatic way, and we are just now approaching the most dangerous part of the road.

Why Country Is in War.

The American people, in the present war, are fighting for their own institutions, their own ideals, their own liberty. They are fighting the government whose whole ambition is to shake the freedom of its subjects and of the world.

Tariff Measure Hard to Frame.

No tariff measure could be hastily framed. One of the most difficult of things is to maintain a fair relationship between the imported raw materials and imported manufactures.

Democracy's Good Showing.

The American democracy has no reason to hang its head in shame over its record of achievements since the country was forced into the war. Director Gifford of the council of national defense certainly makes an impressive showing in the report he submitted on the various activities of that body and its advisory commission. A good deal of this work is unimpaired, but it is essential, and it has meant a considerable saving to the government in money, in time and in energy.

THE NOSE AN' IT'S RELATION T' CHARACTER

As th' worldin' day draws nigh th' prospective bride should take a few moments each day to take her nose an' devote 'em t' sober reflection. Th' step she is plannin' t' take is th' real, big business of her life—let her consider it well. Let her study th' teachings of th' world's greatest physiologists, whose theories are interwoven with th' findings of ever known science, before she leaves th' old home, or assigns her downtown job. Let her take up nose readin' durin' th' few golden weeks that remain.

I wonder how many girls o' t' day who are filled with rose-tinted visions of a happy married life know that th' septum of th' nose is th' partition between th' nostrils? I wonder how many girls o' t' day who are countin' th' minutes till th' month o' roses know that their whole future happiness depends on th' thickness of her fiancé's septum an' its inclination t' (etc.), are all factors in th' success of life which may be easily read in th' nose, an' which should be carefully considered by ever girl before she signs away her happiness.

The eyes, long regarded as th' windows of th' soul an' th' true index of character, are worthless without a gifted nose. A fullness of th' upper an' soft part of th' cheek o'er th' malar bone is another overworked sign that counts for nuthin' when apperatin' in conjunction with a thin septum. A square nose indicates a well developed conscience, which is all well an' good if th' accompanying septum is of standard gauge. Th' septum is th' thing whether th' nose is concave or convex. Fullness an' breadth of th' nose above th' nostrils indicate a capacity for gettin' th' goods, a quality rarely considered durin' th' first week of married life, but later regarded as bein' of inestimable value in th' pursuit of happiness. Such a quality, too, droop or not to droop? If th' septum is thin an' not disposed t' droop, let her take warnin' ere it is too late, for it is a never failin' sign of a retired liver.

Th' nose is nature's most humble organ next t' th' big toe. Th' whole human character is boldly written thereon, so that even she who runs may read. There's no reason for anybody but a blind girl gittin' stung. Whether th' nose is pale, red or veined, it is regarded as th' only reliable index of character.

Idleness, conceit, constructiveness, selfishness, mental limitation, sublimity an' especially acquisitiveness (a disposition t' acquire property, money, th' store of love, avails but little, however, if th' septum is thick in th' peculiarities of th' genome. Even an ample septum will not save a pug nose, which indicates an early atrophy on th' ground of inhugunativeness.

Of course, it's partly hard t' associate any particular quality with any particular nose, but occasionally it fits. But just the same if th' prospective bride, while holdin' hands, th' first make a careful analysis of her fiancé's nose while th' nose is yet in th' means of havin' her th' embarrassment of th' pale, hungry expression that it is th' face of all too often on th' faces of those who have sought happiness in th' store of love.

ANCIENT AND MODERN PHOTOGRAPHY

What ever become of th' ole time tall, cuffless photographer that wore a flowin' ole an' smilin' like collation an' called his abattoir a "art studio"? I wonder where he went when he died, for there must have been some special arrangements made ahead for him? Who kin forget how he used t' pose us in front of a screen showin' a castle with a real ferocious leavin' up t' it an' a couple o' castles?

"Now, then, set perfectly still an' look about here. Raise your chin a little more. Higher, higher. That's fine. Now, turn th' head a little slant in like. That's it, that's it. Now, that's fine. Ah, that'll do." Then he'd take out a photograph lookin' like you had a stiff neck augmented by a little dash of spinal trouble—like you had just murdered a whole family sides. That's fine. Now throw th' chin well back—a little bit more. That's fine. Now, all feet close an' steady. That'll do." Then Friday you got th' proofs an' you an' your wife looked like Lewis an' Clark takin' th'ir first view of Mt. Tacoma after a ten days' march on empty stomachs.

He Didn't Care About th' Arrangement of Drapery, or Whether Your Coat Was Buttoned Straight, but He Wuz Ther t' See That Your Adam's Apple Got Everything That Wuz Comin' t' It.

Th' ole time photographer, allus posed you in some way as t' feature your Adam's apple. He didn't care about th' arrangement of drapery, or whether your coat wuz buttoned straight, but he wuz ther t' see that your Adam's apple got everything that wuz comin' t' it. If you had a hair-like a wad in th' neck he'd make em th' principal points of interest in your photo. If you had a bulge forth he'd head powder th' highlights an' pull in your chin. If you had a retreating chin he'd pry it out an' make an interior of your nostrils. If you looked like a turnip he'd insist on a front view, an' if you looked like a hatcher he'd prescribe a side view. If you wanted t' stand up an' show your feet an' watch chain he'd bring forth a little column-shaped pedestal t' stand by an' you looked like you wuz waitin' for somebody t' shoot a spigot of your head.

Day if you wuz t' look like Theda Bara or Douglas Fairbanks as "artist" th' fix it for you. If you look like a seven-inch neck you'd be a great subject. Th' photographer th' show you how t' get th' desired expression by restin' th' left cheek in your hand an' lookin' anxiously int' th' future.

THE MURRAY LEDGER

O. J. JENNINGS, EDITOR.

Entered at the postoffice at Murray, Kentucky, for transmission through the mails as second class matter.

THURSDAY, JULY 12 1917

Two have already come off for sheriff and one for mayor. There is no telling what the next few days will bring forth in the various races for office. All kinds of reports are flying around as to what is being done to get this man off or to keep that man on. If there be any violations of the law in what is being done, they had better be kept very close, because the next grand jury may develop some very unpleasant things that are and may take place in various elections, which are to come off on August 4. Mayfield Messenger.

Say, Col. Lemon, what will this law do with the fellow who makes a deal to quit a race and tells on himself? The Corrupt Practice Act is a good law and it is the purpose of the commonwealth to see that it is enforced. The Ledger has authority for this statement as shown by the offer of a $500 reward for evidence that will convict any person of its violation. Somebody is going to wade in over his head if he isn't mighty careful.

Our 1917 Fair.

The catalogue for the New Calloway Fair will be out shortly and every product of our county will have a place in same.

The directors have voted to continue the cash drawing each day, but instead of two and three cash prizes each day as given at the 1916 fair there will be EIGHT cash prizes each day.

With every full admission paid will be given, absolutely free, a showing at a CASH prize in the daily drawing. The holder of the lucky number or numbers must of course be present.

To make our School Children's Day a big success they have also voted THREE CASH PRIZES of $7.50, $5.00 and $2.50 to the three districts (outside of Murray) making the best display, everything of course to be considered. As usual Children's Day will be free admission to all bona fide SCHOOL CHILDREN.

With our good crops and plenty of money in circulation there is no doubt but that our COUNTRY FAIR this year will be the greatest ever.

Everybody get busy. Remember that everything outside of livestock that has ever taken a premium at our fair is barred. WE WANT NEW EXHIBITS and the cash premiums will be ready for you.

We want the co-operation of the agricultural, livestock and poultry interests of our county, as well as the help of the good ladies in our floral hall.

Keep constantly in mind that this is our county fair and for our county strictly. September 23-27 28 29.

Just received a shipment of high class white skirts, right up to the minute in style. O. T. Hale's ready-to-wear department.

Elmer Wilkinson Makes Statement

To the voters of Calloway county: After having made a canvass over most of the county, I realize that it has been impossible for me to see every voter, and so I will take the pleasure of addressing you through the columns of our county papers.

First, I wish to thank the people for their courtesy and hospitality shown me in this campaign and I will assure you that there will ever be a warm place in my heart for each of you.

To those whom I have not seen let me say that it was not intentional. Owing to the fact that I am a farmer, I have had to help my family in getting out a crop. So you see this has made it impossible for me to be in the homes of all the voters. However, I am still in the race for assessor, and the only chance that I will have to see you will be at the speaking. So let me appeal to you with all the earnestness of my life. If you believe that I am honest, faithful and qualified, support me on the fourth day of August, and I will assure you that no man could try harder to make you an efficient assessor than myself. And I will assure you that no man could appreciate your support more than I.

Inquire of me, and find out for yourselves, whether or not I have lived as I should, always trying to treat my fellow man as I would have him treat me. And when you have inquired of those who know me, then, if you can conscientiously vote for me, I will try never to give you cause to regret it.

I am making this race on merit and qualification without anyone to help me except the honest voters of Calloway county.

I have in my family two orphan children to support, and if I am elected, I feel that this will enable me to do a better part for them.

So let me again appeal to you to think over the Assessor's race and if you see fit, vote for me, and by so doing you will help one who has long hoped to serve the people of this county.

Yours respectfully,
Elmer E. Wilkinson.

Felix Bailey is Still in the Race; to Fight Fair and Trust the Voters

To the voters of Calloway county: I have no objections. I understand that this office is the people's office and if it takes such unfair means to get it as that, and the people want some of my political enemies to run that over the county and ride into office, I have not one word to say. In regard to the race, let me say: Come boys, and fight FAIR. The man who gets the most votes is the man who will be sheriff, keep they are doing out to the people adds anything to them, I

LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

AUTHOR OF "THE LONE WOLF," "THE DRASS BOWL," ETC.

LUCY CARTERET ADMITS THAT SHE IS LYDIA CRAVENS AND THAT HER FATHER DOESN'T KNOW SHE IS GOING TO AMERICA TO LIVE WITH HIM

A well-bred young Englishwoman, nervous and suspicious, flinched when she boarded the steamer Atlantis, bound from Liverpool to New York, that her plumed mate is Mrs. Amelia Heggartstall, a fascinating, wealthy American widow of sixty years. The girl introduces herself as Lucy Carteret and explains that she is going to make her home with her father in America. Something about the girl's behavior puzzles the widow, and she is much surprised to find that Lucy owns a magnificent necklace which had been stolen from a museum collection some time previously, and informs her friend, Mr. Quinn, a private detective, Lucy, dressing in the dark in her stateroom, hears a mysterious conversation between men just outside her window and recognizes one of them.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

Two minutes later the stewardess, hastening to answer a series of impatient rings from 1175, found that stateroom bright with light and tenanted by a pale but animated young woman frantically struggling into a bathrobe.

"What do you think you could find me a passenger list?"

"Oh, surely, miss."

"I want very much to see one. Please fetch it at once."

Gravely Winant shrugged and went to her way, shrewdly guessing close to the cause of the passenger's excitement. "Some sweetie, likely," she thought, as she returned with the list.

"No, instead of summoning the ship's doctor to pass upon the advisability of allowing the cabin to be on deck, Winant seemed to be instructing the stewardess to find Miss Carteret and draw her for books and photographs.

"You've been in since I went to sleep this afternoon, Winant," the girl demanded as Winant entered.

"Yes, miss, tidying up a bit."

"A cameo brooch? Yes, miss, I did, and left it where I saw it."

"Bedily! But it's not there now. What can have become of it? Oh, is that the passenger list?"

In her excitement, almost snatching from Winant's grasp the printed list of first-cabin passengers, the girl promptly forgot the missing brooch.

"You're sure, miss," the stewardess parried, first examining the chest and then kneeling to paw the carpet beneath it. "You're sure you didn't by any chance knock it off while asleep?"

"What?" the girl murmured abstractedly, her gaze racing down the dense columns of small type.

"The brooch, miss."

"Oh, bother that! It's surely somewhere about. I'll find it later. Oh, Winant!" she broke off with a cry of delight. "It is true! I know I couldn't be mistaken!—It is on the ship."

Her trembling forehead indicated midway down the column headed "the entry," Craven, Thelma—New York.

"The gentleman as you're engaged to, miss?" Winant hurriedly inquired, and having noted the name, stopped behind the door to look up her track.

"Edward, yes. Oh, no, Winant!"

The girl laughed. "How absurd! Why, he's my father."

"Mr. Craven, miss? But I thought your name was Carteret, miss."

"Then she laughed. "To be sure, that is the name I called under. But my real name is Lydia Craven—not Lucy Carteret at all. You see, I didn't want—well—somebody in England to know I was sailing."

"Your father, miss? Winant's head ed disapprovingly, knowing again to attend to the girl's story.

"No, someone else. I—I didn't know my father was in England, you see," Craven's father-in-law, in a first class cabin of doubt. "He must have made a hurried trip on business—time to visit me. But that," her spirits dictated on the rebound, "only makes it more strange and wonderful that we should meet this way! He will be surprised."

"I assure!" Winant commented with an ambiguity lost upon Lydia, who accepted the response as one of wide competence, whereas the woman at her feet was hiding an acute complimented Lydia among the travellers, one who crossed freely and, lacking any other title to notoriety, was known as the most admired by her fellow-travellers. Mrs. Winant read American as well as English newspapers, and knew a vast deal more about Craven than that man would have cared to credit—when all's said, wasn't lightly to be termed a man of retiring disposition.

Thus the discovery that he had a daughter (and why not a wife living, as well?) was one tremendously titillating for trade in gossip about notable figures goes on as briskly between decks as fashionable Atlantic steamships as below stairs in fashionable homes on either side of the water.

But Craven's daughter, forgetful of the serving woman, sat with eyes averted in a face radiant with the glow of happiness in her heart. Never a doubt troubled her ardent anticipations. That ominous note which had been sounded in the brief conversation of a time her mind was now forgotten—what could not have shaken her faith in his loving blindness. That was something almost to be counted upon—something that had never failed her. And if his attitude of late might have seemed inconsistent with such a sympathetic affection, Lydia knew better; her father had not so much opposed her wishes as he had underestimated the sincerity of her loyalty against the rule of Agnes Hicks.

Lorimer.

How could it be otherwise, with a gap of five long years in their association, five years of separation, change and growth?

His thought aroused appreciation of the great changes time had wrought; so great that it wasn't difficult to fancy Craven failing to recognize his daughter, whose memory with him must be that of a hobbled child of fifteen, long-legged and awkward, with perpetually freckled snub nose, mouth too wide, and eyes too large for her thin face, and her hair in plaits—two wrist-thick cables of it falling below her waist, curly red and bound with broad butterfly combs of stiff blue ribbon.

Mrs. Hicks-Lorimer's idea, that of a butterfly in the hair, was a ignominy! Lydia dated her hatred of the woman from the hour when she had been compelled to submit to those unspeakable decorations.

But today—Lydia smiled tenderly. No; Craven wouldn't know his girl—not until she told him—unless, to be sure, she had grown somewhat to resemble her mother, who had been a famous beauty—or to Mrs. Craven of the Bloomsbury lodgings, had asserted and so Craven himself, under pressure of persistent questioning, had admitted that the resemblance was marked. Rising from her knees, Lydia reverted. "Is that all, Miss Craven?"

Lydia smiled brilliantly. "That's right," she affirmed with decision. "Let me be Miss Craven from now on. Do you think you could find my father for me?"

"Oh, surely, miss. Winant preserved a neutral face. Would you wish me to send him to you?"

"No, no. I merely want to know where to look for him. But to send him here to find me—why, that's just what would spoil it all!"

"Quite so, miss. I won't be a bother."

To Lydia, waiting with eyes shining and lips tremulous with anticipation, entered unexpectedly her Dowager Dragon; and entering, for the first and only time in their association, betrayed no sign of some slight embarrassment.

"Heaven help our home," Mrs. Heggartstall cried, thunderstruck. "Where are you going, child?"

"On deck, probably," Lydia informed her with a twinkle of mischief.

"But—my blessed income!"

"Dear Mrs. Heggartstall," Lydia interrupted impulsively. "I must tell you something has happened—something so wonderful and delightful that I verily believe it would have cost me out of bed had I been at the point of death!"

"What?" exclaimed the Dowager Dragon hysterically. "Spoken of in the papers? Is it the war?"

With a quick movement she closed the door and sat down on her bed. "Non-sense!" she added with unaccountable vehemence, looking the excited young woman up and down. "My dear, you're not going to tell me you've found out your father is on board?"

"How in the name of wonder did you guess?"

"I didn't guess—I knew," the Dowager retorted, sardonically. "I know every thing, including my own mind; my mind, the name to Craven's father, I remember that, next time you try to keep Amelia Heggartstall in the dark. You're Lydia Craven, and your father's Thelma Craven—Ted Craven to me and—"

"You know him? You know my father, Mrs. Heggartstall? You don't?"

With a grim smile, the Dowager Dragon submitted to a spontaneous and somewhat feeble effort at the attempted girl. "There!" she growled with an attempt at acerbity not wholly successful.

"But I dare say you've played the deuce with my complexion, and as for my wig," (this while readjusting that disarranged adornment) "if you can't keep your own hair on for joy, you might at least be good enough to let mine rest where it belongs!"

"But—I don't care!" Lydia retorted with gay defiance. "You know my father, and I've a perfect right to take you for that, if I want to. Tell me how long you have known him, and how long you've known I was his daughter, and what made you begin to suspect, and—"

"In pity's name!" the Dowager Dragon interrupted, covering her ears. "One question at a time. Be still, and I'll tell you!"

But here, to her open relief, the stewardess knocked and entered, with the effect of rendering Lydia oblivious to all else.

"Yes, Winant? You've found him!"

"Yes, of the stewardess tells me, miss. 'Just seen Mr. Craven about the deckhouse on the main deck, aster.'"

"Thank you so much, Winant. Good by, Mrs. Heggartstall!"

Snatching up wrap and scarf, Lydia was off in a breath.

Those who left behind eyed one another oddly—the Dowager Dragon with a twinkling look of inquiry; the stewardess with discreetly tightened lips; and half-dozen other girls, blushing in mysterious unaccountable, were a plain proposition to any competent observer.

And the face of Mrs. Heggartstall grew bright with the light of battle.

CHAPTER IV.

Lydia stepped over the high sill of a doorway to open air upon the main deck, where the superstructure had joined the shadow of the deckhouse, where the radiator engine clanked and groaned. When she came to the open space between the deckhouse and the funnel, the moon slipped from behind a cloud, strengthening the ship with ghost

J. B. Woodward Couldn't Raise Hand to His Head for Two Long Years—Is Like a New Man Since Taking Tania.

"This is the first medicine I have ever taken that really does what they say it will," said J. F. Holley, a well-known Lexington, Ky., man.

"I hadn't felt like a well man for ten weeks and my whole system seemed to be run down and debilitated. I couldn't sleep at night and my digestion was so bad I couldn't eat. Attacks of headache were frequent and my nervous system seemed to be disordered. My worst trouble was rheumatism. My muscles seemed to be tied in knots. I couldn't use my right arm and I was just about helpless. Somebody persuaded me to try Tania and I got a bottle of that medicine.

"Tania certainly is making a new man out of me. I can now eat and sleep like I haven't been able to do for years. My rheumatism is all gone and I feel strong and built up in every way. I am a well man and I certainly thank my friend who suggested my using Tania."

J. B. Woodward, another Lexington man who resides at 234 Bond Avenue, said: "I suffered from stomach trouble, rheumatism and neuritis for years and before I took Tania I couldn't raise my left hand to my head. It had been that way for fully two years."

"I have used Tania two or three weeks and am like a new man. My family and friends see the difference and it is the actual truth. I take great pleasure in recommending this medicine Tania."

An All-Around Surprise.

When the first shipment of frozen eggs had arrived, their extreme hardness astonished the brokers, and a gentleman calling at a broker's office was amazed to see him taking aim at the wall with an egg.

"What the dickens are you doing?" he asked.

But the man hit the wall, the only result being a slight dent in the wall.

The thing being explained to him, he took a couple of eggs and put them in his trousers pocket, intending to startle his wife with them. Arriving home, he waited till the family were seated at dinner and then banged one of the eggs at the new wallpaper.

But the snail slowly crawled from his face. The egg had thawed.

Local Color in Monkey Game.

Marian's mother frequently played games with her while doing the ironing's task, thus amusing the little one, without interrupting her own work.

One morning after a visit to the zoo, Marian asked to play "monkey," and her mother laughingly assented. "All right, I'll be the monkey, while I dust. Now what shall I do?"

"Oh, no, I'll be the monkey," said Marian, "and you have to go buy tea nuts to feed me first."

COOLING THINGS FOR HOT DAYS.

Ice-cold coffee diluted about half the strength used when serving it here, is a most refreshing cool drink for warm weather.

Serve it with a slice of lemon in each cup.

Lead Cocoa.—Stir a cupful of cocoa with three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, pour a cupful of hot water over the mixture and boil until a rich syrup results. Keep this in a jar in the ice-chest and when wishing to serve it, a tablespoonful of the syrup is stirred into a glass of cold milk. Cocoa is liked by some with a very little vanilla flavor and a teaspoonful of cornstarch to give it more richness. A pinch of cinnamon or cloves is another addition liked by some. Chill the cocoa, mix it with sugar and cream and serve with whipped cream on top.

Fruit Mint Julep.—Boil three parts of water, add one and a half pounds of sugar ten minutes. Remove from the heat and add a packed cupful of mint leaves. Cover and let stand ten minutes. Strain through two thick pieces of cheesecloth and cool. Strain the juice of 12 lemons, add one and a half cupfuls each of orange and strawberry juice, and turn into the mint syrup, let stand at least an hour. When ready to serve pour a quart of charged water over a large piece of ice in the punchbowl, then turn in the mint julep. Sprigs of mint and a few slices of fresh strawberries make a pretty addition to the bowl.

The secret of fine-flavored iced tea is to make it fresh. Draw the tea about three minutes, then pour it over ice and let stand in a chilled jar until chilled. Serve by filling glasses one-third full of shaved ice and top with a bit of lemon. Let each person sweeten his own tea.

Gingerade.—This is a drink which should be used as it is not only palatable but economical. Stir a tablespoonful of ginger with four of sugar, add a pint of chilled water and serve when settled. Some like a dash of vinegar, others a little molasses instead of sugar for sweetening. This is an old-fashioned harvest drink.

Orangeade.—For this simple drink allow a pint of cold water for each pint of orange juice with the juice of one lemon. Add sugar to taste and stand near the ice until ready to serve. At serving time beat an egg very light and pour the liquid over it. Serve at once.

Our greatest glory consists not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall.—Oscar Goldsmith.

It's the man's own push that generally gets him a pull.

ECONOMY HINTS.

When vegetables such as lettuce are wilted do not throw them away, wash in cold water then place in a pan tightly covered and let stand an hour or two when the crisp freshness will have returned. Parsley may be kept for two or three weeks, by washing it carefully and then putting it into a glass jar with a cover well screwed on. It will help in wash the parsley now or twice during the time it is kept, shaking off the surplus water.

A delicious and a fine appetizer for crisp lettuce or parsley as it is easier to handle from a large-mouthed receptacle.

This is the season for mushrooms and they may be found in old pastures or woods in abundance, affording delicious food at little cost.

Raspberries and strawberries keep better when spread out on a platter or plate, in fact twice as long as when heaped in a dish; the weight of the berries crush and spoil them.

Oatmeal Cookies.—Take two cupfuls of fine or ground oatmeal which has been browned, two cupfuls of flour, one egg, a half cupful of sour milk and a half teaspoonful of soda, a half cupful of shortening and a cupful of sugar, add raisins and nuts and drop from a teaspoon on a well-greased baking pan.

Rhubarb is delicious baked, using a cupful of sugar to a pint of finely cut rhubarb. Bake in earthen dish until jellylike in consistency.

Rhubarb Cup Pudding.—Put a two-spoonful of sweetened, stewed rhubarb into a batter-d cup. Pour boiling water on a pint of bread crumbs and let them soak until soft and then drain. Add a well beaten egg to the crumbs, a tablespoonful of sugar and a little nutmeg. Turn this over the rhubarb in the cups and bake. Add a cupful of chopped peaches that have been carefully cleaned from the little brown spots, to a well-cooked corn mush, and bake in a small bread-pan to fit in slices to fry. Other nuts such as hickory or walnut meats may be added, but the peanuts are so common that they are always in the market.

Fads And Fancies Of Fashion

ESTABLISHED VOQUE FOR SUMMER FURS.

The vogue of summer fur appears to be established and the globe-trotting public is probably responsible for it. The whereabouts of those who finally make fashions appear to be determined by the variations of the thermometer and these feet and feet-carryers stir comfort and change.

But furriers have seen to it that fur garments for summer wear look very different from fur garments for winter wear. Summer furs borrow a summary look from crepe and silk liberally used in combination with them. They do not take the business of providing warmth at all seriously, but are made up usually in small, loose-hanging capes, worn as if slipping off the shoulders. Scraps of white fox fur, such as one instance of a fur piece good for both summer and winter wear and scarce in dark gray or taupe, appear among summer furs that will be useful in winter.

Small ermine capes and small capes of Hudson seal trimmed with ermine, lead the little procession of summer furs and, next to them, capes of variety. It is so very dark that it is really blue-black and the combination is the most reserved and elegant thing in mortal eyes.

The big black hat knows nothing of warning favor, either the summer or winter. One of the pretty and simple summer models is shown in the picture. It is of black satin with a wide border of fancy hairband about the edge which is bound with satin. A long as seen of smaller feathers and a little complement of ribbon make a trimming exactly suited to the shape.

A large and picturesque hat is of white georgette crepe with a border about the brim and crown of narrow millan braid. White satin camellias and little white roses are wreathed about the crown, with the small roses clustered in the top crown.

The chic small hat of white crepe georgette, faced with black velvet and finished with a border of white feathers about the upstanding brim in a cool and crisp as frost. It is a late summer hat of the kind that may be worn at almost any time and anywhere.

For sports and outings, rough straw sailors in light and vivid colors are candidates for favor that are sure to win. Along with them appear soft, exquisite felts in wonderful shades of color. "I don't know, sir," replied the policeman. "We might have such a thing among the odds and ends in the basement. But if you wish to make a gift to someone, surely a calendar for 1917."

Get Rid of the Filth.

Until a few years ago, a so-called philosopher was held up to children as a model of kindness of God's creatures, because he is alleged to have carefully taken a fly and putting it out of the window said: "Go little fly, there is plenty of room for thee and me." This sounds pretty but a fly is the last thing the old fellow should have selected to show his moderation. It is a menace to human health and animal welfare and carries disease and death in its wake, laden as it often is with germs of typhoid, cholera, diarrhoea, dysentery, and tuberculosis. It breeds and feeds on garbage and filth and multiplying with unimaginable rapidity its power for harm is incalculable. The best plan to get rid of the pests is to remove and destroy everything that the fly can breed in. Clean up your premises and keep them clean and you won't have to exert yourselves with a swatter, which is too slow a process of extermination. Help the State Board of Health and the Tuberculosis Commission destroy one of the chief spreaders of disease germs, which exact their toll in human life, by keeping your premises absolutely clean.

Has Hydrophobia.

J. M. Shockley, living between here and Farmington, has hydrophobia. Several days ago his dog took hydrophobia and bit him on the left hand and bit due time it developed, and he has been under the care of a physician ever since.

Wheat threshing was on hand at the same time and the dog bit one of the mules and hydrophobia has developed in it and the animal is under the care of a physician.

The dog acted very curious and finally Mrs. Shockley told her husband it was mad, when at once they killed it, and so far no other cases have developed.
Mr. Shockley and the mule are both improving. —Mayfield Messenger.

Crop Report as of July 1.

This is a busy time for the farmer. The following comments summarize the reports coming to this department for the month of June which show that crops are backward. Harvest has begun in a few localities only, but the first week of July it is expected to be in full swing.

While wheat is very thin on the ground, it has headed out exceptionally well and is of much better quality than had been expected. The preliminary estimate is that it will yield 10 bushels per acre as a state average.
The preliminary estimate on the yield of rye is 13 bushels per acre, while that of oats is 21 bushels and barley 21.6 bushels.

Corn is reported as very backward, but under good cultivation generally, and in a fairly good condition taking into consideration the backward season. Condition is given at 89 per cent.
Some replanting is yet to be done. Hemp is given at 96 per cent condition.

Tobacco is very late and much complaint is made of the poor condition of plants. Some localities report that the acreage will be cut 50 per cent from the first estimate. Some reports show that all tobacco is not set yet.

Much of tobacco acreage abandoned is planted in other crops.
The condition of Burley is given at 77 per cent and dark tobacco at 87 per cent.

It is remarkable to notice the increased acreage in gardens and potatoes, conditions of gardens showing at 123 per cent and potatoes at 125. The crop of navy beans in this State should be exceptionally large, as indicated by the reports of increased acreage, which is given at 105 per cent and the condition at 94. Soy beans acreage is 94 per cent, while the condition is shown at 90 per cent. Acreage of cow peas is given at 86 per cent and condition at 88. The condition of blue grass is 82 per cent and the yield of seed is expected to be very short. Alfalfa acreage is given at 96 per cent and the yield per acre of first cutting is given at 1.5 tons State average.
The condition of clover is 75 per cent, orchard grass 85 per cent.
The yield of hay is estimated at 1.3 tons per acre.

Fulton county reports a large cotton crop.

The reports on fruits are not very encouraging with the exception of blackberries. Conditions are as follows:

Apples, 72 per cent; Peaches,
63 per cent; Pears, 62 per cent;
Plums, 67 per cent; Grapes, 85 per cent; blackberries, 95 per cent.

Live stock is reported in a generally thrifty condition, the same being 95 per cent. A few outbreaks of disease are reported by localities, also a scarcity of stock in some sections. Much interest is being manifested in live stock and from the present outlook there is every indication that next year will see more on every farm. The condition of poultry is 97 per cent.

Taken as a whole, the outlook for grain crops is much better than reported last month. With seasonable weather and good cultivation we have every assurance that larger crops than first expected will award the patriotic endeavors of the farmers of Kentucky this year. —Mat S. Cohen, Commissioner of Agriculture.
