Striking Truckers Return To Work For Southeastern Lines

After about two weeks of inactivity, trucks of the Southeastern Truck Lines, Inc., started rolling again early Monday morning. About 300 drivers and helpers participated in the work stoppage, including 23 at the local terminal on Fourth street.

During two weeks of strike, freight piled up here and at other terminals. In some instances perishable freight was placed in cold storage. Picket lines were maintained here but no major disorder resulted. A week ago the War Labor Board issued an order asking the strikers to return to work.

The strike was not over wages, it is said, but arose due to a dispute between two rival unions. No statement has been issued regarding terms of settlement, if any.

Our Hearts Are With You

(Editorial)
We bow our heads in humble prayer as our hearts go out to the boys who are fighting on the battlefronts the world over. In the hearts, brains and muscles of our American youth lies the future of our country.

Throughout the nation millions of mothers are praying, as their hearts reach out over the seas, each one seeking out her boy, to protect him with the shield of her love.

Believe that in this world there is definite strength in decency and honor. Believe that in our devotion there is moral force. Believe that our will to victory will aid that victory. Seek and you shall find!

Let us seek added strength and fortitude for our men in our own sacrifices and devotion. Let us every thought, every action, and every prayer on the boys fighting for us.

The mothers, wives, brothers, sisters, and loved ones—the people of this community—pour out their love and devotion to those who are away in service of their country. A flood of goodwill—the soul of America—flows out toward our sons and brothers, as a spiritual shield for them.

People of Fulton county have adopted a common symbol as their faith in victory by over-subscribing in the Fifth War Loan. With a quota of $299,000—Fulton county bond buyers have already bought $427,399.50 worth. This testifies in a visible way, the fervor and energy of the folks on the home front.

With such devoted and unity of effort we cannot lose, and will contribute materially to the saving of lives, which are more precious than all the money in the world.

Negro Housebreaker Sent To County Jail

Leonard Jennings, negro charged with housebreaking, and of Dresden, Tenn., is confined in the Fulton county jail awaiting the action of the September term of court. He was given preliminary trial before Judge Lon Adams for breaking into the home of G. M. Jones, I. C. special agent, Norman street, and unable to make $1,000 bond, must remain in the bastille until he can be tried.

The negro entered a plea of guilty. He was apprehended by Mr. Jones when he entered the latter's bedroom early in the morning.

It is alleged that the prowler admitted entering the home of Jim Matheny on Valley street, and stealing a watch belonging to E. M. Boone, Illinois Central System conductor who resides there.

James Cullum With Anti-Aircraft In Italy

Private First Class James F. Cullum, Winchester, husband of Mrs. Nola M. Cullum, 301 Norman street, Fulton, and son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cullum, 402 Arch street, Fulton, and Private First Class Fred B. Asbell, Balloon Crewman, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Asbell, Route 1, Fulton are serving with a balloon anti-aircraft battery which has been highly commended by both Army and Navy officials for its excellent work under fire in the Italian campaign.

Men of the unit claim a total of five enemy aircraft through their first year of active overseas duty. Three of these five are said to have been knocked down during the Fifth Army's landings at Salerno where these men came ashore on D day. They believe, however, that their greatest effect on enemy air force is the mental hazard attacking pilots face when they dive bomb a target.

Special details of men from this unit manufacture the gas used to inflate the balloons which is one of the most dangerous jobs in the Army. Other groups man a number of lonely outposts through which cover is provided for an entire port area. They keep balloons in the air in all kinds of weather, remaining on their posts always. It has been through the never ceasing vigil of these men that barrage balloon protection has become one of the most effective anti-aircraft measures of the war.

Storm Does Damage To Power Lines And Transformers In Fulton

Bad luck from storms and lightning have seem to pursue the lines and transformers of the Kentucky Utilities recently. Saturday night during the rain and wind storm, when many trees were broken down, considerable damage was done to the power lines in the city and vicinity.

Then around six o'clock Sunday afternoon during an electrical storm, a bolt of lightning struck one of the big transformers at the power plant here. Considerable damage was done and service was suspended for about an hour until repairs could be made.

Crops in this vicinity have been suffering from the lack of rain. Although the rain Saturday was helpful, more rain is needed, in most sections of the Ken-Tenn territory.

The family of Mrs. Goodwin were having a homecoming at her home Sunday.

Service Club Gets $850 To Carry On

In a meeting of representatives of the local civic clubs at the Kentucky Utilities office last week funds and plans for the ensuing year for the Fulton Service Club were raised and discussed. Mrs. S. M. DeMyer, chairman of the Fulton Service Club, where men of the armed forces are entertained while in Fulton, assisted by others, has been doing a good job in this work.

F. A. Homra, chief fund raiser, surprised the meeting by presenting $850 to be used for carrying on the work at the Fulton Service Center. This money came as a generous donation from the alcoholic beverage dealers of the city. Contributors were: The Keg, Usona Hotel, Smoke House, H. L. Gourley, Otto Dunn, Mrs. R. C. Joyner, The Billiard Parlor, Elvis Myrick, Brown Derby, Silver Castle and Smith's Cafe.

Since the war the activities of the local service center has been one of the most worthy of the community. Expense of operating it has required a generous fund to keep it going. Contributions of money from local civic groups, and business interests has been very vital.

Plans are being made to install a shower at the club, and contributions of materials and labor is badly needed, according to P. H. Shelton, president of the Young Men's Business Club.

War Bond Sales In Kentucky More Than 35 Percent Above State Quota of $118,000,000

Both Kentucky and Tennessee have set good examples in the sale of War Bonds in the Fifth War Loan, according to the U. S. Treasury Department. A total of $160,875,450.75, or 35 percent above the state quota subscribed in Kentucky.

Union county War Savings Bond sales in the Fifth War Loan drive soared to more than $119,000 above the $900,000 quota for that county.

In Fulton county with a quota of $299,000, bond buyers had oversubscribed to reach a total of $427,399.50; 70 per cent above the quota. Figures from the Treasury Department showed total sales of War Bonds in the Fifth War Loan drive to corporations and other non-banking investors at $11,454,000 or 115 percent of the quota for these investors. Sales to individuals aggregated $3,210,000,000 or 65 percent of this quota. The drive closed last Saturday.

A WAR JOB WITH A POST-WAR FUTURE

Many wartime industries that are highly important today will of necessity end with the war. Many war materials greatly in demand today may be surplus goods tomorrow. But not pulpwood.

The Hahira Gold Leaf, of Hahira, Ga., noted this advantage of cutting pulpwood in a recent editorial which said:

"We predict a still greater demand for woodpulp following the war when civilian consumption can be catered to and better prices may be expected as the supply diminishes."

"There should be no idle land in Georgia. Land not now in use for annual crops should be planted in trees or put into permanent pastures. There is a wonderful future for both crops and every civic and publicity agency should join in urging the enrichment of the state through these two long term investments."

The promise of a post-war development of air-borne freight in which light-weight packaging will be important alone insures a large peacetime demand for pulpwood. Many new military uses of pulpwood fibre, developed since Pearl Harbor, will doubtless be turned into civilian goods.

Pulpwood production not only pays well today while helping our war effort. It will pay well tomorrow while assisting in the post-war industrial developments. But don't wait. Cut your suitable trees today; the smaller ones will then grow faster for tomorrow's market.

BACK TOWARDS THE OLD ROAD

Congress passed original legislation for what it called overall reconversion, before it packed political bags for a vacation. The bill provided for speedy liquidation of contracts, essential financing and termination of inventories. The price control agreement by Congress extends the law 12 months, which is considered a long enough period to iron out all troubles and get private industry "on its own" once again. Of course, there will be many difficult conditions and situations to iron out—but if the people of this country get out of the war half as fast as they were swept into it—then we'll be lucky!

KEEP THE HORSE BEFORE THE CART

Recently a business man accosted a friend who said: "Well, Doctor I see where they are going to socialize your business under the Federal Social Security Act."

The Doctor, who had spent his life helping the ill and afflicted in his community, regardless of their financial circumstances, said: "Oh, no my friend, they are going to socialize you. When the Federal government takes six per cent of your earnings and six per cent from your employer on wages paid you up to a specified amount, tells you what doctor to go to, when, and where, you will be getting the benefits of socialism, not me. When that day comes I will go back to pipe fitting, which is just working with a different kind of pipes than those in a human."

Yes, it's the public, not the doctors, that would suffer from politically appointed physicians. There would no longer be incentive for the better doctors to carry on. An independent pipe fitter would have more future than a socialized doctor.

THIS TERRIBLE WAR

Political plans for peace after the war from the White House at Washington and the Republican convention at Chicago contain all the weak points of Versailles and the League of Nations. These fresh political platitudes will not be accepted by our own Congress, no matter which party wins.

Great military strength must be maintained by the powers that are crushing the Axis, and those powers must be ready to wipe out any criminal nation before another future war can be started. Only by such means can this war become a "war to end wars."

Millions of Americans in military and civil life are already committed to policies that will keep Germany in "occupied territory" for another generation—by which time a better tribe may be raised.

Geneva was the headquarters of the world's greatest debating society. It must not be reconstructed and revived as an agency to maintain the peace. That beautiful dream is dead.

This terrible war will end with enough surplus war machinery and material that can be kept polished until time and progress does not need it any more.

ROCKING THE BOAT IN WARTIME

Never before in the history of the United States Supreme Court has it been so freely and scathingly criticized by lawyers, judges, editors and individuals as since its recent four to three decision holding that insurance is "interstate commerce," thereby upsetting precedents of 75 years' standing which held that the regulation of insurance was the function of the variance states, and not the Federal government. From now on, there is only one way any business in the United States can be saved from being declared "interstate commerce" by the "ingenious vocabularies" (as David Lawrence calls them) of a few Supreme Court Justices, and that is by Congress granting specific exemptions.

HANDOUTS OR FREEDOM

The farmers of this country rank among the most abundant food producers in the world, and they are noted for their independence. They have developed cooperative marketing organizations that "talk" for them in matters of distribution, while they concentrate on production. These farmer-owned business organizations reflect the view of farmers.

Recently, Ernest C. Strobeck, Secretary of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, said of subsidies: "An understanding of food subsidies requires at the outset a determination of the kind of government that we want. Do we want a government supported by its citizens—a government of, for and by the people? Or do we want a government to which everyone looks for handouts and detailed regulations of their everyday lives?" Farmers have been forced to accept subsidies, although they continue to oppose them in principle as a threat to the independence of everyone. They are frank in their belief that higher prices for farm products when necessary are preferable to living at the whim of government authorities. The country is fortunate to have that kind of farmers.

STARTLING BUT TRUE

The National Safety Council, in making the Safety Awards to the commercial airlines recently, brought out some startling figures as to the safety records of the airlines of the United States during 1943.

During the past year, of the 17 domestic airlines listed in the Council's Air Transport Safety awards, 16 operated one billion two hundred and twenty five million passenger miles without a passenger fatality. This is equivalent to picking up at their home airports every man, woman and child in the cities of Birmingham, Little Rock, Beverly Hills, Denver, Hartford, Tampa, Des Moines, Louisville, Baltimore, Dayton and the two Portlands, plus all the people in Nevada, Wyoming and Vermont and flying all of them to points 200 miles away and bringing them safely home. Unbelievable—but true.

The record stands as the second best in safe air transportation in more than 17 years of operation, and this under the critical conditions of 1943 with more than half their aircraft in military service and many of their crews flying to the far corners of the world. Only for the 17 months from March, 1939, to August, 1940, when the airlines operated without a passenger fatality, was the year's record surpassed.

In addition to these statistics of the flying on regular schedule in this country, there are the hundreds of millions of miles flown by many of our airlines in operations for the Army and Navy with thousands of safe trans-oceanic flights monthly. For military reasons these figures cannot be divulged, but when the ban is lifted, the American people will be justly proud of the safety and progress of their air transport.

TIMELY NOTICE

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has issued a pamphlet on the nation's water resources. It shows how in the last decade, the Federal government has become the most important factor in this field. The rapid expansion of its participation and control has been accomplished through new laws, abundance of money, widespread unemployment, favorable court decisions, executive orders and directives, generous interpretation of the statutes, surrender of control by Congress, encroachment on the rights of the states, and the ascendancy of Federal planning and regulation.

In reviewing the history of these developments, the Chamber points out that they have produced one of the most important social, economic and political problems to face the postwar period. It says: "Every government project is subsidized either directly or by special privileges. The aggregate cost to the taxpayers of doing this is very large and represents a substantial part of the present tax burden. Unless a change is made in the prevailing policy, this will mount rapidly as new projects are undertaken."

"Government enterprise is practically tax free. . . . The rapidly growing extent of tax free property throws a constantly increasing burden upon a constantly narrowing source of taxes. . . . The continuation of this course eventually will dry up the source of business and property taxes, leaving personal incomes as the sole source of tax revenue."

"The Federal government is rapidly extending the field in which it competes on a tax-free basis with its tax-paying citizens. . . . The continuation of this course in the end will destroy free enterprise."

And then, the Chamber might have added, we will have state socialism.

DOWN OUR ALLEY

The Republican party has made a plain and definite promise to the people that "full employment" shall be a first objective of national policy.

The Democratic spokesmen have long declared that full employment is a first objective of their national policies.

Perhaps the reason that Miss Perkins, Secretary of Labor, has been criticized so glibly is due to the sympathy for the lady. Everyone knows that the policies of the Labor Department have been kept under control by the President for the last eleven years.

Be that as it may, the big labor unions have played politics when they should have been protecting the legitimate rights of labor. A review of the records shows that when collective bargaining failed there was the Wagner Act, the Fair Labor Standards Act, a Director of Economic Stabilization, a Defense Mediation Board, a War Labor Board, a Little Steel case, Administrator Ickes, and a dozen more groups—all "beating the devil around the bush." If all these devices failed, then there was sure to be an "Executive order" from the White House.

For eleven years the Congress of the United States has made different attempts to reorganize labor legislation in a way to protect both workers and employers.

If the Republican party succeeds in making full employment the first objective of a national policy, it will perform a great service to the workers, to industry, to all concerns that meet payrolls—and most of all to our country.

These objectives could be met by the Democratic party in case that political party should be in control of the Government after the war.

Incidentally, there is a resurgence in favor of the historic Democratic and Republican principles that the Government should be run for the people and by the people—which simply means following the Spirit of the Constitution. These are plans in which the present campaign—only in the beginning—to capture favor of large groups of voters.

Maybe, out of the confusion of the campaign, national policies for the whole country may triumph over the scheming of greedy politicians.

While recognizing that the war is far from won and that peace when it comes will bring with it innumerable problems of great magnitude it is encouraging at times to reflect upon expressions of confidence on the part of our industrial leaders, men who know what it takes to create jobs for more and more people and help to improve the American standard of living.

Yes, we have confidence in the future of this great country of ours. We think our great country is just like we are individually, or like we are collectively when we operate a business—it entirely depends upon how intelligently and aggressively and with what imagination we manage our affairs.

Old Bill Shakespeare observed 342 years ago that "miracles are past." Bill never saw a miracle; and if you want to know more about the greatest miracle in production history since Noah's flood, you will find it in the official reports of the War Production in the United States of America.

In 1941 Great Britain and Soviet Russia were fighting with their backs against the wall. The United States was so scarce of military and naval power that Japan grabbed the chance to attack Pearl Harbor and capture the Philippine Islands. The Japs knew how weak we were in the Pacific, and they figured on making a quick clean up. It was a devilish theory, but it didn't work.

A miracle of war production, more magnificent and grander than any person ever dreamed of was performed in the United States. That's the real miracle that has happened in this country.

Look where you will and you will find the Federal Government laying down new rules over every class of business from the conversion of oil burning heating units, coal burning units; and all-out in censoring bakery claims in advertising the virtues of their staff of life. Concerns claiming that they turn out a dry dog food are forbidden to claim that their products contain all the nutrition of meat. And we unto the patent medicine man who has the nerve to tell the public that he has pills to cure constipation, remedies for rheumatism, arthritis, lumbago; or dope that is good for the glands, or for diathermy treatment.

Now is the time for all good men now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country. Never mind which political party. Just follow the appeals, arguments and pledges they make to your country. There is no other duty more mandatory than that—for the people of this country to understand the issue thoroughly. Don't take anything for granted.

There is a lot of uneasiness in Washington over conditions in Mexico, Guatemala, Bolivia, and other Republics—but most of all, Argentina.

All of these countries have depended on foreign trade in past years. They have oil, minerals, coffee, wheat, and an abundance of agricultural products to sell. The United States and Europe have been able to consume all they had to offer.

For a third of a century the U. S. has stood by and encouraged Latin America through thick and thin. Much financial help has been extended by our government. During the war expectations of more help have grown through the Good Neighbor relations. Mexico, despite her bad behavior, continued to get lavish help at the expense of American taxpayers.

Latin America is riding along on the crest of the Good Neighbor waves—doing very little that is helpful to the United States. That seems to be all that we can expect from a bunch of rather selfish neighbors.

It is rather surprising to learn the immensity of the Government's grazing service. There is on the statute books the so-called Taylor Act that gave the Government power to use 142 million acres of land for grazing purposes. Nearly 11 million head of livestock have been turned loose over this vast acreage.

The Taylor Grazing Act is only ten years old, and it is doubtful whether the Congress that passed the measure ever imagined that it would create such a huge system in stock raising. It is ruled from Washington by a Director of Federal Grazing. The reports show that 22,000 stockmen have been turning their cattle out to grass on Uncle Sam's acres.

Pgase Joe Stalin and see if he can beat that kind of centralization of powers over citizens and cattle.

What Do You Think?

Scandal is always interesting to dig into, but unless it is police court record, it is rather dangerous to dig into. However, around any community, there is usually something scandalous around that won't do to print.

We notice where a number of liquor dealers have been assessed an enormous fine for selling liquor above the ceiling price, whatever that is. Here in Fulton, it has been told, some of the brands of fire water are going at above ceiling prices. We wouldn't know.

Early Friday morning the editor was called to the phone by some woman who refused to give her name, but who wished to give us a piece of news about a neighbor whose husband is overseas, and who we were told had a man in bed with her. As no names were given us we couldn't make up a story to keep us from a libel suit. However, we might say, maybe this woman was afraid of the dark, and afraid to sleep by herself.—Sikes-ton Standard.

Mother, where is your daughter? That question is very logical and sensible in these times. Authorities are constantly calling attention to the waywardness of youth today—especially the young daughters of America. This is natural in war time. Youth obtains more liberties, and is faced with more temptations than in normal times. The young girls of Fulton are just as natural, as pretty and as eager for a good time and love, as any other young ladies.

The latest rumor to which there is very probably not a bit of truth, is a story going around about Mrs. Roosevelt. According to street talk, she is supposed to have recently visited in Jackson, Miss., and asked for a certain Mrs. "So-and-So," who turns out to be a "colored lady." When she got off the train, so the story goes, she inquired about this woman, with whom she was supposed to have dinner. It seems she got a taxi to go out from the city to the colored lady's home. Meanwhile, a delegation of white people gathered, so the rumor goes, and asked her to change her mind about being a guest of said party, and urged that she take the next train out. Anyway, such stories are nothing but trouble makers, and lead to racial animosities, which we in America do not want. Our enemies would like to see as much discord among our people as possible.

When you peddle a story that would prove injurious to another's character, you are morally responsible, and should be criminally responsible, for its truth. The editor has recently heard the above story afloat which prompts this statement. Far too often long-tongued, viperous individuals indulge in smearing others without any hope of reward.

TIDBITSBACKING UP THE PREACHER

In HOW GREEN WAS MY VALLEY I ran across a sentence that sounded as if the writer were talking about Fidelity neighborhood rather than his little corner of Wales: "Whenever he (the preacher) said something extra, some of the men hummed to themselves and you could see all the older women's bonnets nodding like the wind passing over a field." That says exactly what all of us used to experience every preaching Sunday. We even invented Women's Corner to match Amen Corner. Not to nod approvingly or to say "Amen" was to show lack of respect for the message of the morning. This procedure was expected, was thought to be the proper thing, and most of the preachers would have been lost without it. I can recall when one brother said something pretty soul-rousing without there being any response. He stopped, looked surprised, and said, "Why doesn't someone say 'Amen' to that?" One old fellow in the Amen Corner spoke up at once: "Well, I'll say 'Amen' to it." That seemed sufficient for the brother, who went ahead to new triumphs, always thereafter having one or more approvals when he had rounded out his strong point.

Of course, this custom is not dead yet, but it is dying rapidly in most places. Some of the younger generations have probably never heard of it. A few years ago I was in the midst of a commencement address at a large county-seat town in this part of the state. I had made my biggest point and was "Amened" heartily by an elderly retired Baptist preacher. The youngsters in the class in the audience got so tickled at the fervent "Amen" that I am sure they did not know what I said before and what I said afterwards. Their laughing plainly showed that they had not been accustomed to that ancient way of approving the words of a preacher. Frankly, I felt somewhat ashamed of myself or of them or of somebody, for the old fellow's "Amen" did me good.

Eight or ten years ago there died here an elderly man who got happy every Sunday morning as regularly as the service was held. He was a genuinely devout man and had that way of showing his approval of church and what it stood for.

Long before his death he was the only member of his particular church whom I ever saw shout. It did not embarrass him or me when I spoke in that church one morning on some sort of layman's program. The old gentleman shouted pretty fervently several times; the audience had always been used to him and to his emotional outlet and consequently did not show any disfavor or amusement.

My funniest experience with nodded or sounded approval took place in a country church some twelve years ago. I had been called to address a teachers' association in a remote country community that was interested in establishing a high school. Since the one-room school would not hold the crowd, the local church opened its doors for us. My speech was certainly not of the popular kind, for I was telling the people that they would have to dig down into their jeans and pay for educating their youngsters. An elderly man on the front pew leaned forward and took in everything I said. He beamed approval and nodded fervently. I had made two of my three strong points and was racing toward the third one when the old man suddenly needed a chew of tobacco very violently. In the very midst of my greatest sentence he arose, fairly paced up and down the aisle, reaching for his twist of tobacco and taking an "onstuous chew about half way down the aisle. I have never seen him since. I wish I knew the name and address of this great approver of what I was trying to get across to the neighborhood. Whether my speech did anything toward the establishment of the high school I have not been told, but, anyway, the school was built, and I have since then gone back to deliver a commencement address there.

If all the accidental deaths in the country in 1943 happened to residents of Nevada, there would be only 33,000 persons left in that state, according to the National Safety Council.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Good News for the Livestock Farmer!

I reckon you've heard how Kentucky brewers are cooperating with the Government in relieving the shortage of high-protein livestock feeds.

From what I hear they plan an annual output of half a million pounds of brewers' dried yeast and 30,000 tons of brewers' dried grains—both highly effective and economical protein supplements.

Brewers' dried yeast, I'm told, contains over 40% protein and is very rich in the vitamin B complex—this latter being especially good for poultry. The dried grains contain over 25% protein and are excellent as a supplement in the dairy ration.

In view of the fact that such a small quantity of either is required to improve the feeding formula, this sounds like a lot of feed to me.

And from where I sit, it's just another evidence of the genuine desire of Kentucky brewers to render a worth-while service to their State.

Iced Coffee and Milk Combine In Cooling, Hot-Weather Drink

Cafe Au Lait, that popular half-coffee, half-milk beverage, is a delicious hot-weather cooler when served iced. The best iced coffee is made by pouring hot, freshly made, double-strength coffee over ice cubes, and the same goes for making Iced Cafe Au Lait. In this case, both the milk and coffee are poured hot into tall glasses filled with ice cubes. Freshness and strength are vitally important in making good iced coffee. Double-strength brew is needed to counteract the diluting effect of melting ice, and since Iced Cafe Au Lait is further diluted with milk, you may wish to make the coffee triple-strength. The strength of your coffee depends also on how fresh it is, so it is wise to use glassed coffee from a vacuum-packed jar which protects the contents from the air. Make sure the resealable cap is kept securely closed when the jar is not in use. Iced Cafe Au Lait: (For 3 servings.) Scald one pint of milk and cool. Make one pint of double- or triple-strength coffee. Fill tall glasses with ice cubes. Then, half fill the glasses with scalded milk, and fill to top with freshly made hot coffee.

It has been a real battle. We are doing pretty good now. We hope to keep the good work up and I am sure we will.

Highways To Get Postwar Improvement

"There is every reason to believe that the postwar period will see the greatest era of highway activity in the history of the Commonwealth," J. Stephens Watkins, state commissioner of highways, said recently.

Watkins said that the overall picture of work to be undertaken by the State Highway Department at the close of the current conflict would include the following points:

1. Reconstruction of existing State highways to standards suitable for modern traffic.
2. The expansion of State highway system to include greater mileage.
3. The provision of a limited national system of superhighways with adequate access to urban areas.
4. Attention to the territory or county roads which are sometimes referred to as land service roads and which are tributary to the main routes of the primary and secondary systems.

There Must be No Shortage of Telephone Equipment on War Fronts

Tons on tons of telephone cables, wire, switchboards, telephone instruments and hundreds of other types of telephone equipment have been shipped to England for use by our armies in their advances through Europe.

More shiploads are following to meet the growing demands of the war fronts, not only in Europe but the Pacific, as well.

All out production of telephone equipment for our armed forces takes virtually all available manufacturing facilities and manpower, and reserve supplies are about exhausted.

The shortage of supplies for home use has made it impossible for us to keep up with civilian orders for service. That is why we, over here, must continue to do the best we can with the limited amount of equipment we have on hand.

We keenly regret that more and more people are having to wait for telephone service, due to the increasing war demands. But there must be no waiting for the men who fight our battles.

Your continued patience and cooperation in these difficult times is greatly appreciated.

Promise of La Bahian

By CHARLES BECKMAN Jr.
McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

JUAN BARGAS felt the rich freshly turned soil sink under his feet. He slung the old leather whip over a shoulder and lifted his face to the morning sun which streamed through the mists still hanging over the river bottom. It would be a very pleasant morning, he thought, had he not the memory of last night's quarrel still in his mind.

Juan remembered well the scene in the adobe cafe the night before. "Si, my friend," Roberto Barrientez had bragged loudly; "Senior Allison has chosen me to show him where the great deer, El Ciervo, lives. What is more . . ." his dark hairy fist came down on the table top with a crash " . . . we will shoot El Ciervo!"

Juan had just walked across the fields to the cafe for his evening chat with old Sanchez, the owner. He stepped through the door just as Roberto's deep voice made the announcement.

"Well," came sarcastically from behind him when he passed the table, "there is the great, wise Juan Bargas."

Juan's jaw tightened but his voice was soft. "I want no quarrel with you, Roberto. I have only said that no man will ever kill El Ciervo. This deer is my friend. He comes every day to the river near my field."

One could hear Barrientez's angry breath in the heavy silence. Allison, the paunchy city hunter who was at Barrientez's table, stood up. He jammed a cigar into the corner of his flabby mouth and moved close to Juan. "I have planned this hunting trip for months. Paid Barrientez a fortune to trail the deer. How much do you want to keep your mouth shut?"

Juan stared down at the roll of bills in the hunter's fat hand. How could he make them understand? He would not tell the game warden. It was not he who could protect Allison, the paunchy city hunter who was at Barrientez's table, stood up.

El Ciervo. But Juan was only a poor old man to whom words came slowly; he pushed the money aside and said, "I will tell no one," as he walked out into the night.

Now, in the field behind his team, Juan thought of the thing for which he had not been able to find words. He was an ignorant man. He could neither read nor write. He could not even tell time; yet every evening at the supper hour, the setting sun shone on the stained glass window of the Mission La Bahian and told him as he worked that it was time to go home. If in such a manner a foolish old man was taken care of, would not, in some way too, the beautiful deer, El Ciervo, be protected?

Miles away to the west, Barrientez crept gently through the brush, Allison puffing close behind. They had been on the trail for hours; it was only a question of time now to a clear shot. Allison congratulated himself on his cleverness. When deer season opened a few months from now, every hunter in the city would be after the almost mythical El Ciervo. Here he was, ahead of them all!

The sun was low when at last they came out on a ledge. Barrientez sucked in his breath. "Look," he whispered. "That farmer, Juan Bargas, was right! The deer does come to the river as he said."

Roberto's lips drew back in a confident grin. He leveled the expensive rifle. The Mission was in his sights. He lowered it a bit. There! Now no power on earth could stop him. What a pleasure to kill the deer right before Juan Bargas! His finger tightened, squeezed. Then a sharp cry came from his lips. He snapped the gun and it roared into the blue sky. He pawed at his eyes.

"You fool!" Allison screamed. "You swine! You have thrown away the chance of a lifetime. There goes the deer!"

"My eyes . . ." Barrientez choked.

Down below Juan Bargas's head had jerked up at the rifle's sharp report. But the crashing of the deer through the underbrush brought his gaze to follow the animal to safety. A smile was on his lips.

A flashing ray caused him to shield his eyes and look toward the Mission where the sinking sun shone blindingly on the window. Never before had it been so bright. Juan Bargas smiled the same from his shoulder. It was time to go home.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL WINS ACCIDENT PREVENTION AWARD

Signally honored by its second major accident prevention award in wartime, the Illinois Central Railroad is now flying over its properties the green "S" pennant of the National Safety Council. This pennant has been awarded for continuing in 1944 the progress in accident prevention among workers which won for the railway organization the council's Distinguished Service to Safety Award for 1943.

For the first five months of 1944, Illinois Central workers reduced their reportable casualty rate to 6.97 per million man-hours of employment, as compared with 7.36 and 8.09, respectively, for the corresponding periods of 1943 and 1942.

The plaque which previously came to the Illinois Central for its 1943 performance was the first ever given a railroad. It rewarded the improvement made in rising from eleventh place in 1942 to fourth place in 1943 in the safety standing of twenty Group A railroads. It meant that in 1943 the Illinois Central made the greatest reduction in total employee casualty rate of any major railroad in the country.

Despite increases in traffic and employment, the Illinois Central's reportable casualties among its own workers declined from 904 in 1942 to 734 in 1943, cutting its casualties per million man-hours worked from 9.18 in 1942 to 6.5 in 1943, an improvement of nineteen per cent.

In furtherance of the national campaign to save manpower for warpower, the Illinois Central will fly duplicates of its new pennant over the headquarters of its safety reporting units as long as those units maintain accumulative casualty ratios better than the same periods of the year preceding. These units consist of operating divisions, principal shops, general offices and dining service.

NEWS REVIEW

Although news on the war front is generally good this week, the Allies have a long and costly way to go. Casualties are mounting, and more homes are feeling the deadly blows of the enemies. In the European theatre, steady advances are being made in Normandy, in Italy, and by the Russians.

Mighty United States and Allied air forces are blasting the Nazi on all sides. War plants, supply depots and transportation routes, as well as the Robot coast, have felt the weight of powerful air blows.

Final victory has been gained on Saipan in the Pacific, at the cost of 15,053 casualties, 2,359 dead. Five Japs to every American were killed. Meanwhile powerful Naval and aerial forces batter at other Japanese strongholds.

Turkey is reported on the verge of declaring war on Germany. German diplomats have burned their papers and left Ankara.

French resistance forces are intensifying their attacks on German communications and supply lines. Vichy reports long meetings of German bigwigs.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN AMERICAN BUSINESS

At this time of the year most people are thinking of vacations, but for the last two years, at least, war production needs have made the usual summer rest period a thing of fond memory for many. This year, however, many leading war production plants, with the blessing of Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, and other high government officials, are urging their employees to take time off for rest. Their purpose is not entirely altruistic but also based on the widely accepted theory that a rested worker is a better worker. Moreover, experience has proven that absenteeism during the summer months is greatly reduced when regular vacation schedules are in effect.

Industry's vacation plans for its employees are being worked out so that full production schedules can be maintained, following the suggestion of Donald Nelson that "if workers want a vacation their fellow workers might plan to do an extra stint while they are away." While officially approved vacations will undoubtedly tend to increase the summer resort business, the important factor is that well-planned periods of rest and relaxation will mean more efficient workers to maintain or increase the American war production records which have astounded the world—including that man Hitler. It might be added that all of the major plans of industry contemplate "vacations with pay."

TOOL-MAKING THREATENED

In the next few weeks, we'll see the climax of a development of unusual significance to American business. On July 7 a federal district court decree ordering the disintegration of one of the nation's most important war (and peace) industries is scheduled to become effective. That a major war producer be disabled in the midst of war is astounding enough, but the case may have even more far-reaching peacetime results. After several years of litigation, the Pullman organization has been ordered by the court to give up its sleeping car manufacturing business or its operation of sleeping cars, with which it serves nearly all of the nation's railroads. The company, producer of ships, tanks, shells, guns, aircraft subassemblies and a long list of ordnance equipment, and carrier of a heavy portion of military and civilian railroad passenger traffic, was ordered to split itself because of its "sole occupancy" of the sleeping car field. David A. Crawford, president of the company, which in peacetime builds its own sleeping cars, says the decree "involves and threatens the fundamental right of a contractor to make for himself the tools with which he does his job," and while Pullman is studying the order, it is this issue that is drawing unusual current attention in business circles.

the average citizen seeking rooms in hostels of the nation's busy cities may result in vast post-war improvements in the hotel field, a recent survey discloses. Both because of highly competitive post-war business and because of curtailment of repairs during the war, an expenditure of approximately $100,000,000 was recently forecast by staffs of Architectural Record and Hotel Management. In tabulations account for 9,000 hotels of the 29,000 in the United States which would need rejuvenation.

Speculations by architects and builders on post-war changes already include plans for more home-like atmospheres resulting from larger window areas. Another window improvement is the use of plate glass, tinted gold, to bathe lobbies in sunshine permanently. In hotel bathrooms colored structured flat glass for walls may eliminate semi-annual repainting. Similarly, window sills of the same vitrolite glass, which is unharmed by moisture, may eliminate repainting of sills.

Two intangible commodities offered lavishly by pre-war hotels—service and pleasant surroundings—will be back in even greater measure, hotel management promises.

O'Daniel Declares
Democrats Will Bolt

A group of Democrats fighting against a fourth term nomination heard Senator W. Lee O'Daniel (D-Tex.) declared this week that the New Deal had "set up machinery for the biggest racket this world has ever seen for the purpose of perpetuating itself in power."

In an address prepared for the American Democratic National Committee, O'Daniel asserted that the national administration had transferred part of the government's taxing power "to a gang of labor leaders racketeers by supporting the check off collection of union dues."

"From this swag taken by the labor leader racketeers campaign are paid for to help re-elect the members of Congress and the president who set up the legal authority for the racket," the Texas Senator declared.

The group which met in Chicago, registered about 75 delegates from 28 states. In his speech, O'Daniel called for a "house cleaning" in Washington, asserting no elected federal official should hold office more than six years.

A REAFFIRMATION OF LOYALTY

By RUTH TAYLOR
On this Fourth of July, the one hundred and sixty-eighth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, it is fitting that we pause and take stock of what this cornerstone of our American way of life really means, that we reaffirm our loyalty to those things in which we believe.

The Declaration of Independence was much more than a proclamation emancipating the thirteen colonies from the mother country. It was the first statement of a new freedom, a long range program by which and through which to establish a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

The Declaration of Independence was the credo through adherence to which we became the first self-constituted People—not brought together by race, by national origin or by any one religious belief but bound together by an acceptance of the practical ideal of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man which is the cornerstone of freedom, the basis of all monotheistic faiths, be it Catholic, Judaism or Protestantism.

The price of freedom has always been high. But its price is never too high for those who have known what enslavement meant. Voluntarily we have given up much in money, in time, and in many of the things we had come to look upon

SYRUP PAIL MAKES POOR CREAM CONTAINER

"X MARKS THE SPOTS" Where Cream Starts to Spoil

Just running a finger around the crimped-on flange at the top of a syrup or molasses pail—where the lid was pressed in—will demonstrate at once the impossibility of really getting under, getting that spot clean. No matter how well that pail is washed, that is the place where some cream will always remain and spoil. Cream residue accumulates, gets sticky, gummy and smelly; offers an ideal breeding place for germs and starts spoilage in each succeeding batch of cream placed in the pail.

The unfilled seams on side and bottom also offer good lodging places for cream-spoiling bacteria and cannot be satisfactorily cleaned.

The thin gauge of the metal from which the syrup pail was made was not meant for continued, long, hard service. The tin with which that metal is coated was thinly applied and not intended to withstand scrubbing, cleanings and repeated use. It is easily scratched. Rust forms quickly, and thus still other fox-holes are dug for the cream-spoiling bacteria.

The lard pail, preserving jar, and cooking pot—for the same and other reasons, spell low quality cream, wasted food, and a loss to you.

A well made cream can is a wise investment, a saver of food and money. Straight-sided, smooth, brightly and heavily tinned, no seam is left unfilled with protective tin. There are no turned-under flanges which are impossible to clean. Such a can is sturdy and strong, can easily be kept clean. It was especially made for the job and will pay for itself in no time at all.

as essential. The toll in patience, courage and long suffering has been great—but the sacrifices are mutual sacrifices, demanded from all for all. The only real weapon against the regimentation and enslavement of totalitarianism is the solidarity of unified action, when each individual works as a free man for the good of his fellow citizens.

The Declaration of Independence has given us more than any other country has ever possessed in the way of freedom for all. It will only continue to do so if, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge our concerted action to protect and defend with every ounce of power the democratic way of life for which it stands, and if we reaffirm by our actions our loyalty to the ideals which made us a nation.

War bonds make ideal reserves to tide farmers over the bad years of drought, flood, disease, low prices, or other financial hazards which sooner or later are sure to come.

Bad eggs are bad business. When eggs are allowed to spoil it represents a waste of food and feed and reduces the income from laying flocks. Gather three times a day and store in a cool place.

"The production of food from the Victory Garden is not its only value. Victory Gardens save transportation; they save containers; they save manpower in many ways. All these are critical," Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, said.

A big advantage to dairy farming is that it gives a more efficient distribution of labor throughout the year, states U-T Extension farm management specialists. Dairying also provides a profitable market for legume hays and pastures which fit into a program of soil conservation. Then, too, it furnishes an additional source of cash income badly needed on many farms.

CONCRETE VAULT
INDUSTRY ADVANCES
IN WAR EMERGENCY

Metal Curtailments Brings Product Into Demand

Statistics show that the concrete vault industry has grown during the past decade until it has become an important factor and a major industry serving the nations funeral directors. The manufacturing and sales, as well as the delivering of the concrete vault centers around the home owned and home operated plants of which there are approximately 1200 in the United States today. Plants are located at key points who manufacture according to exacting standards and follow acceptable merchandising practice. Concrete vaults are sold through funeral directors and serviced by the manufacturer. The concrete vault industry has been in existence for approximately 60 years.

Concrete vaults have been the dominating factor in many thickly populated areas for years. Chicago is probably one of the most outstanding concrete burial vault markets with more than 25,000 units sold through funeral directors a year. The majority of the larger cities of the nation are served by concrete vault manufacturers.

Concrete is the ideal material for manufacturing an article where performance is desired as well as dependability. When you stop to think that concrete is the material used for building most of the world's large dams, foundations upon which huge building structures pierce in the rivers and bays supporting bridges and viaducts, it is natural then to know that it is indeed a lasting material when cast into a burial vault.

Concrete today is not a haphazard mixture, but a compound of precisely measured and tested ingredients whose properties and strength are as definite and dependable as those of a metal alloy. The funeral director who recommends a concrete vault manufacturer as a reputable concern may feel certain of its reliability. There is nothing fragile or delicate about a concrete vault because the article weighs one ton. Nevertheless has not been sacrificed for performance and strength as the vault now being manufactured in Paducah, Ky., by the Katterjohn Concrete Products firm, combines both qualities.

In the new and modern plant of the Katterjohn Concrete Products is made the air seal type of concrete vault known as the "BRONZOLEUM." The many funeral directors of West Kentucky, Southern Illinois, Southeast Missouri, and Western Tennessee are using this distinctive vault made by this firm. Ask your funeral director about the "BRONZOLEUM" concrete burial vault as manufactured by Katterjohn Concrete Products.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Again it is the season when Kentuckians are blessed with a native fruit—blackberries. Served fresh from the bushes with cream and sugar, in luscious juicy pies or cobbles, crushed and sweetened on ice cream, or made into jams and jellies, they are a treat for all to enjoy.

A blackberry roll is suggested by food specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. Combined with rich biscuit dough, and served with cream and sugar, blackberries seem especially tempting.

Blackberry Roll

2 cups sifted flour
3-4 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons baking powder
5 tablespoons fat
2-3 cup milk
2 cups blackberries
1-2 cup sugar

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder, then cut in fat until the mixture resembles coarse meal. Add milk to make a soft dough, knead lightly and pat and roll carefully to make it a half inch or less in thickness. Cover with crushed and sweetened blackberries, then roll carefully to make a roll. Brush with melted butter or thick cream, and bake in a hot oven, 425 degrees, for 25 minutes. Cut in slices and serve with cream and sugar.

Menu: Lamb steak, corn pudding, harvard beets, lettuce salad, biscuits and butter, and blackberry roll.

SAFETYGRAMS

The two biggest disasters in the history of the United States were the Galveston, Texas, tidal wave in 1900 when 6,000 were killed, and the Johnstown, Pennsylvania, flood in 1889, which cost 2,200 lives.

The sum of these two disasters is a figure only a few hundred more killed average number of persons than the average number of persons killed every month by accidents in the United States.

Why do we become so horrified over the loss of life in one of these large disasters and pay no attention to the annual toll of accidents in the country?

These day-by-day accident deaths are just as horrible as if the victims had been killed by floods, fires, and hurricanes.

Accidents are caused by thoughtlessness and carelessness—two characteristics which can be controlled. By controlling them we can stop this needless loss of life. Let's start today.

Blind fortune treads on the steps of inconsiderate rashness.—LaFontaine.

REPUBLICANS ADOPT CONSTRUCTIVE AND SOUND PLATFORM

The platform adopted by the Republican Convention at Chicago contains no "wasteful" words. It is a frank and simply worded declaration of purposes with no opportunity for any misinterpretation. It outlines in definite terms a constructive program designed to relieve the people of bureaucratic regimentation; to put a stop to prodigal spending with continuing deficits; pledges the reestablishment of constitutional government, the free enterprise system and our American way of life.

Win the War Pledge.

The preamble is a tribute to the men and women of the Armed Forces with a pledge to prosecute the war, in cooperation with our Allies, until the Axis powers have been completely and decisively defeated; with no interference with the Government of the Army or the Office of Naval Operations as to the conduct of the war. With the final defeat of our enemies it promises the return of all those serving in the Armed Forces whose enlistment periods have expired and who do not volunteer for further overseas duty. It says: "We declare our relentless aim to win the war against our enemies; for our American security and welfare; to make and keep the Axis powers impotent to renew tyranny and attack; for the attainment of peace and freedom based on justice and security. We shall seek to achieve such aims through organized international cooperation and not by joining a world state."

Postwar Foreign Policy.

It favors full responsible participation by the United States in post war cooperative organization among sovereign nations to prevent aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world. It proposes definite methods of accomplishing such results, and very definitely proposes that the United States shall not sacrifice any of its sovereignty by becoming a part of a world state. While the platform would have this country assume a fair and full share of the responsibility for the rejuvenation of the world, and a maintenance of world peace it proposes methods of accomplishing such purposes through international cooperation, and not through the establishment of any super-government. On the prosecution of the war and the establishment and maintenance of world peace it leaves nothing to be guessed about or misinterpreted.

Farm Plank Definite.

On no subject is the platform more definite and emphatic than that of agriculture. It calls for full protection at all times, without interference of any kind or any form of farm regimentation. It insures a price for farm products that will mean farm prosperity. It would provide that price through tariff protection for the whole market; the establishment of support prices on the part of the government; commodity loans to the farmer; the development of new uses for farm surplus; support of farm co-operatives; crop insurance; a soil conservation program; and other practical provisions to insure the farmer an income fair and equitable in comparison with labor, business and industry. It opposes subsidies in any form or any interference with farm management or farm production. It proposes to provide a market at a profitable price for whatever the farmer may produce and in whatever quantity. The farm program calls for the development of new roads and the extension of rural electrification.

That farm plank provides for a practical solution for the farm problem without imposing bureaucratic regulations. It would make of every farmer, owner or tenant, a free and independent individual.

Restore Free Enterprise.

The Republican Party proposes to restore and maintain the free enterprise system with business free from bureaucratic control. It would take the government out of business competing with free industry. It would dispose of, on an equitable basis, all government owned industrial plants; provide such legal regulations as to protect monopolies; to protect the public, and especially small business which the platform pronounces "the basis of American enterprise." It would protect small business against discrimination and provide equality of opportunity.

The platform does not stop with such declarations but proposes definite methods of accomplishing such purposes.

Reduce Taxes and Waste.

On the subject of taxation and government expenditures the platform is decidedly definite and emphatic. With the ending of the war it calls for an immediate reduction of the rates of taxation on individual incomes, on corporations and on consumption to such an extent as is consistent with the payment of the expenditures of an economically operated government, with a promise to eliminate from governmental costs every wasteful and unnecessary expenditure, including the discontinuance of the many duplicating government bureaus and agencies, and a reduction in government payrolls.

That plank definitely, and in no uncertain terms, rejects the New Deal theory of restoring or maintaining prosperity through government spending and deficit financing.

The above is a very brief summary of but a few of the planks of what is a truly remarkable and constructive platform. Those responsible for its preparation did not write words in criticism of the past, but combined their efforts to providing constructively for the future. It is an unusual political document that fully meets the need of an unusual time—the history of the nation.

PAUL ENCOURAGES THE CORINTHIANS

LESSON TEXT—II Corinthians 4:3, 16-18;
5:1, 5:4-14:19.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might become rich.—II Corinthians 8:9.

"Nothing is certain but uncertainty," so says the modern philosopher. But man cannot be satisfied with constant change and confusion. That is why, in our day of unheard-of disruption of ordinary life patterns, men and women especially need the message of the gospel, for in Christ we find the answer to our quest for certainty and stability.

Paul writing to encourage the church at Corinth assured them that life may be steady, useful and true because they are Christians. He presents:

The Christian—a Servant of Men for Christ's Sake (II Cor. 4:5). Having—

I. A Vision Which Lightens Affliction (II Cor. 4:16-18).

Any honest person knows that in the temporal world round about him everything speaks of death. All things tend to run down, to wear out, to decay, including the body of man. He sees his mental as well as his physical powers coming to a certain maturity only to go into decline.

At the same time he is conscious of the deep burden of affliction and sorrow which seems to press down on all the world like an almost unbearable and crushing weight. What can he do about it? Shall he try to dissipate the clouds by artificial cheerfulness? It will not work.

Our text gives us the answer. "For this cause we faint not," says Paul. The things which press us down are only temporal—they are of this world. God's world is eternal. The weakness of the physical body only makes the strength of the spiritual life more evident. The affliction which seems so heavy is only a "light affliction" when one remembers the "eternal weight of glory." Is this just a bit of "escapism"? Is it only some wishful thinking? No, indeed. Have not men learned anew in the war that the only possessions you can keep are those which cannot be bombed to pieces or stolen?

Obviously, that is true in the highest degree of the one who knows Christ, and whose riches are those of eternity. How triumphantly he can meet decay and sorrow! He is of the other world, and nothing here can be more than a light affliction, which seems negligible in the light of the glory of eternal things. Ah, but it's great to be a Christian in such days as these!

II. An Assurance Which Removes Fear (II Cor. 5:1, 5-8).

Of all the fears which afflict mortal man the greatest and the ultimate one is the fear of death. He knows that it is so absolute and final that it terminates everything and separates him from all that he has known and held dear in this world.

That is just the point, death does end everything (except the awful fear of judgment for a wicked wicked life!) for those who live only for this world. Man, however, was never intended for just this present life. He is a being who has eternity written in his very personality.

What if this "earthly tabernacle"—my body—does give up, says Paul. I have a "building of God," something which man did not make with his hands, an eternal home in glory.

That gives a man confidence. While he is here in the body, he lives and walks by faith, but when absent from this body, he is "present with the Lord." He is altogether delightful and marvelous in the future, even beyond the grave, for the believer. Hence, we "sorrow not as others which have no hope" (read I Thess. 4:13-18).

III. A Hope Which Makes Him a Living Testimony (II Cor. 5:14-19).

Worldly people sometimes wonder what tremendous and tireless motive power keeps Christians working for the Lord in the face of impossible difficulties. We have that motive named in verse 14—"the love of Christ constraineth us."

There is no compulsion about real Christian testimony and service. There is no feeling that one must do this or that in order to please God. No, the compelling force here is the love of a dying Saviour. It is the supremely powerful and all-persuasive influence of love.

Christ died for all, and those who realize that, know that they cannot "henceforth live unto themselves" (v. 15). The social standing, or family connections of our fellow men, no longer control. Christ died for them and we must bring them the word of life.

Notice in verse 17 that it is the born-again-one who has this hope. Many church members whose lives are powerless and sinful are so because they have never been born again. "Except a man be born again" (John 3:3) he is not a Christian. That is the place to begin. Take Christ by faith.

SAFETYGRAMS

Would you fight another patron in a theatre for his seat? Would you blatantly push ahead of a person waiting his turn to buy a ticket to the theatre? Of course you wouldn't. Your manners and your sense of fairness would prevent you doing these things.

Then why not practice the same courtesy when driving an automobile?

If a driver insists on the right of way, give it to him! If another driver wants to beat the traffic light, let him beat it!

If some driver is blowing his horn at you and is anxious to get around you, pull over and let him get by!

Dim your lights at night for approaching cars.

Even if the other fellow is wrong, let him go—you will live longer.

Be courteous.

It is sometimes expedient to forget what you know.—Syrus.

When you drive when you are drunk, you are 56 times more liable to have an accident than when you are sober. National Safety Council figures show.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages are sometimes further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The subject of the Lesson-Service to be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world on Sunday, July 16, is "Life;" and the Golden Text is: "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life" (1 John 5:12). Among the citations are the following passages:

"My son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments: For length of days, and long life, and peace, shall they add to thee." (Proverbs 3:1-2).

"Life is eternal. We should find this out, and begin the demonstration thereof. Life and goodness are immortal. Let us then shape our views of existence into loveliness, freshness and continuity, rather than into age and blight." (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures) by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 246.

Gains 10 Lbs. Taking Retonga; Feels Fine

Distress From Nervous Indigestion Promptly Relieved And She Can Work In Her Yard Now, Says Well-Known Resident. Tells About Her Case.

"I have regained ten pounds through taking Retonga and I feel like a different person," happily declares Mrs. G. R. Cullum, well known resident of 512 Norfolk St., N. W., Atlanta, Ga. Mrs. Cullum, is a member of the Baptist Church, Eastern Star, and vice-president of the B. A. U. training for teachers. Speaking of Retonga Mrs. Cullum gratefully continued:

MRS. G. R. CULLUM

"For years nervous indigestion caused me so much distress that sometimes even the sight of food made me sick. I was about fifteen pounds underweight, and I seldom got to sleep before three A. M. A little excitement made me feel so weak and trembly I could hardly stand up. I had to resort to laxatives continually. I could hardly do my housework and I had to let my flowers and yard just grow up.

"Retonga gave me such grand relief I now enjoy every meal. I sleep the whole night, and I have discarded all harsh cathartics. I feel so much stronger that I actually ran a lawnmower over our large yard and felt no ill effects. Retonga is splendid medicine."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to Vitamin B-1 deficiency, constipation, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, and loss of appetite. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Store, adv.
