President Truman declines comment

Joseph Wadsworth, of the White House, declined comment yesterday for house control in the early tabulations of late returns at 10:50 a.m., which gave his party undisputed control of the Congress.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN DECLINES COMMENT

The GOP went over the top in the nation's first presidential election in 32 years today, 19 days before the election day. It was political victory for the Republicans, which had been denied them in 15 years of Democratic control.

Didn't Affect U. S. Policy
By J. H. Robinson, Jr. (writing for Mackinlay)

As foreign policy analyst

There are two great fears abroad, as expressed in the United States as having "no foes indigenous to the American people, but rather the same old enemies that have been dealt with in the past."

One is that the United States may again turn to isolationism. The cooperation of the United States in the world's affairs is evident in the past, but now the United States is more likely to turn to isolationism.

The other great fear is that the United States may again turn to isolationism. The cooperation of the United States in the world's affairs is evident in the past, but now the United States is more likely to turn to isolationism.

Sometimes, We Like Dogs
Every time a new story in the daily newspapers, there is a new story about the President's dog, Fala. But the President's dog is not the only one that matters. The President's dog is one of a million dogs in the country.

Fala is an example of the President's love for dogs. He has a young woman who takes care of him and keeps him in first-rate condition.

Once, when Fala was sick, the President rang up the White House and asked for the woman who took care of Fala. He wanted to know how Fala was doing.

For instance, there was the story from Washington about a young woman who had been taken to the President and had been given a new puppy. She had been given a new puppy by her mother, who was a famous actress.

The President was very pleased with the puppy, and he said to his wife, "This is the best gift I've ever received."

"I know," she said. "But isn't it wonderful that you have a dog of your own?"

"Oh, yes," he said. "But I don't want to be a dog. I want to be a man."
