ANNUAL CONCERT TO BE HELD HERE NOV. 10

The second annual singing concert will be held at the Science Hall in Fulton on Monday night, November 10, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The Daniel Quartet of radio station WSM, Nashville, will be the feature attraction. In connection with this program, a quartet contest will be held for talent in this vicinity, with the audience serving as judges. The Stamps-Baxter Radio Five of Jackson, Tenn., will probably also be present.

This annual event was started last year with great success, and it is believed that the committee in charge has an even better program arranged for the second year. Last year the featured singers were the Dixie Four of WMC, Memphis.

The Daniel Quartet is a very popular group and is presented regularly in concert programs throughout the South. These singers are heard daily over WSM, and are a part of the Grand Ole Opry that is heard every Saturday night over a nationwide network.

Proceeds from this program will go to the school. The public is cordially invited to attend and support this event.

SOUTH FULTON WILL GET NEW BUILDING

Approximately $40,000 has been appropriated by the Obion County School Board to construct a new building on the South Fulton school grounds to replace the present gymnasium. However, work will not begin until after the close of the basketball season, and that will be sometime in March.

In the building will be a gymnasium and auditorium, with classrooms on the upper floor. In the basement will be the WPA kitchen and science rooms.

In the meantime classrooms formerly built on the north side of the present building, have been torn out and bleachers installed to give a larger seating capacity.

This is the second addition in buildings to come to the South Fulton school since W. H. Cravens came here as principal. The new grammar school building was completed last year.

There have also been many improvements in the school system from the standpoint of educational values and school facilities.

U. S. DEBT SOARED 165 PER CENT IN DECADE, GREAT BRITAIN'S 20

An analysis of debt increases for five major nations during 1930-40, published today by the Federation of Tax Administrators, showed the following percentages of increase:

Germany	600
Japan	500
United States	165
Canada	58
Great Britain	20

Information on which the study was based came from the research files of D. Simeon E. Leland of the University of Chicago.

The report said that Germany had been spending heavily for war preparations during the entire 10-year period and that the Japanese increase came largely during the period in which Japan waged war on China.

"Britain, not actually at war until the middle of the fiscal year 1940, showed a debt increase of less than one-fifth," the report added.

It also said "the 1930-1940 debt increases appear trivial beside those which will result from the greatly expanded outlays of all these nations at the present time."

The survey said United States Treasury estimates indicated that $6,000,000,000 of indebtedness was incurred in 1941, and added that this would be augmented by $13,000,000,000 more during the present fiscal year.

BAPTISTS PLAN THEIR HOMECOMING NOV. 23

Plans are being made for the annual Homecoming Day on November 23 at the First Baptist church. Neighbors and friends are being given advance notice of this event, when enjoyable programs will be given both morning and evening. Efforts will be made to make this the greatest homecoming day in the history of the church.

"Today with wars and disasters which are tearing many loved ones apart," Rev. Autrey declares, "we feel that old friends will not neglect this fine opportunity to get together at God's house and enjoy wholesome fellowship, for the time might be near when we will not have this opportunity. We want every friend that we have to make all arrangements to be present that day and surely we must have every member present. However, we want the public to remember that we are now extending to all a hearty welcome to this very special day. Call the office of the First Baptist church, 262-J, for any information about this day."

Carr Institute To Be Razed After 57 Years

The old Carr Institute grammar school building is to be razed after 57 years service and a handsome new structure will provide more room for the grammar classes which have been steadily increasing in size for many years. Work of tearing down the old building began this week after classrooms had been temporarily built in the high school building and gymnasium to house the grammar students.

Carr Institute was constructed in 1884 by Martin and Rogers, contractors, and John L. Smith and H. Cibel, architects. On the board of trustees then were A. B. Whayne, chairman; J. W. Boyd, secretary; E. B. Eddings, treasurer; J. E. Morris, J. N. Smoot, William Beasley, A. H. Haynes, A. J. Kirkland and J. M. Harpole.

When first constructed, Carr Institute was used for both high school and elementary classes. Later an addition was made to the building and, in 1922, a new high school building was erected, leaving only elementary classes in Carr Institute.

Mr. Chapman was principal of Carr Institute when it was erected. Heads of schools were not called superintendents at that time. It is believed that Prof. Cheek, who became head of the school about 1900, was probably the first to be called superintendent. Mrs. J. R. Luten on Carr street was a teacher in the school when Carr Institute was built.

Kentucky To Have An "Ocean Of Electricity"

Kentucky citizens are going to discover presently that they have at hand the means of making a lot more electricity than they know what to do with.

Federal Power Commission records show that when present construction is completed the state's installed generating capacity will total 877,665 kilowatts—about 1,170,220 horsepower. It is an increase of 557,500 kilowatts (about 743,300 horsepower) over that of last January 1 when capacity was 320,165 kilowatts.

In addition, the major electric companies have power lines interconnecting with transmission systems in neighboring states. All this will be available to Kentucky practically unlimited volume of electricity.

Investigation Suggested

Yet the Rural Electrification Administration announced in Washington a few days ago that it has allocated $2,000,000 to build in central Kentucky a small 15,000 kilowatt power house to serve rural electrical co-operative associations. Actual need for this REA power plant is questioned by experts who say it merits full investigation.

Unless all that has been said in the last two years about national defense is pure flummery, the government will require for that purpose every dollar it can squeeze out of the taxpayers. The copper, aluminum, steel, rubber, etc., necessary for building this small power house, are now urgently needed for making important defense items.

Nobody who has even casually observed the advantages of electric service on the farm wants to prevent or slow down far reaching rural electrification. It is generally agreed that local co-operative associations are doing a practical and effective job in extending the service.

Why Not More Rural Lines?

But the foregoing figures on electrical production capacity indicate to the average taxpayer that the last thing required for further rural electrical expansion is more generating capacity than that now under construction.

He is impressed by the fact that the $2,000,000 allocated for the power house would provide approximately 2,500 miles of electrical distribution lines to supply current to hundreds of farms now not able to get service. This figure is based on the REA average cost of $800 a mile for such lines.

Possible claims by promoters of the REA power plant that farm co-operatives cannot get cheap electricity from sources available now and in the future will not convince informed citizens.

Of the 557,500 kilowatt capacity now under construction, 410,000 (over 546,000 horsepower) will be installed in government plants—250,000 at Wolf Creek in south central Kentucky, and 160,000 at Gilbertsville in southwestern Kentucky. The government's announced purpose is to supply low-cost electricity in overflowing abundance.

Low Rural Power Rate

Electric companies in the state now sell current to co-operatives for about one cent a kilowatt-hour. This rate was established by agreement with the Public Service Commission and the REA.

There has been no threatened power shortage among the companies which would curtail service to co-operatives. The companies are stepping up capacity to meet whatever demands arise.

The first of this year the four principal companies had generating capacity of 320,165 kilowatts. When their present construction is finished the total will be 467,665 kilowatts.

Louisville Gas & Electric Company is adding 75,000 kilowatt capacity to make a total of 284,000. Kentucky Utilities Company is adding 37,500 to make a total of 110,570. Kentucky-West Virginia Power Company is adding 35,000 to make a total of 54,725. Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Company capacity will remain at 18,370 kilowatts.

Link with Federal System

The new generating stations of the companies are all steam-driven. They have been expressly designed to fit into a state-wide giant electric power pool. They are being linked with the government's huge water-driven plants so as to assure plenty of power for all needs—industrial, commercial, domestic and rural—even when prolonged drought seriously reduces hydro-electric generator operation.

Citizens who have studied the matter say an impartial investigation would show that:

- (1) The projected small isolated REA power house, designed only for rural electrification, would be of little or no value in the efficient operation of the electrical pool.
- (2) It would cost $2,000,000 that could be better used for rural electric distribution lines.
- (3) It would require vital defense materials.
- (4) It would take at least two years to build.
- (5) It would be wholly unjustified non-defense federal spending.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

It is significant that the most aggressive opposition to Winston Churchill in England has developed from his refusal to open a new front in Europe. The demand for this has largely come from Labor M. P.'s, but they have been given the support of a number of Conservatives and Liberals. The feeling is growing in many quarters that Hitler's Russian campaign has, for the first time, sufficiently diverted his energies and resources so that it may be possible to carry the war to Germany.

The military problems involved in this are enormous, and no layman is in a position to discuss them. There is, however, a problem of morale involved which is of the utmost importance. Unrest in the nations which Hitler has occupied is obviously growing. The horrible toll of executions in occupied France is evidence of that—Hitler's henchmen aren't killing French citizens for fun, but because they endanger the purposes and policies of the Reich. So it is argued that if the Allies could start an aggressive military campaign against Hitler on the continent, the subjugated peoples would be immensely encouraged, and would increase the extent and scope of their opposition.

There is little doubt but what that argument has validity. If, for instance, British troops could effect a landing on French soil and push the Germans back, the democratic world would take it as a miraculous tonic. But it is apparent that Mr. Churchill and his high command, even though they realize this, believe that the time is not right. And here again, a morale as well as a military problem is involved.

The hard truth is that England has had nothing but failure in her land operations against Germany during this war. Her navy and air force have done wonders. Her infantry and her artillery and her mechanized divisions, on the other hand, have been completely unable to cope with their German enemies. This is no criticism of the courage or resolve of Tommy Atkins. Kipling's "Thin red lines of 'eroes'" still remains. But Britain simply hasn't the equipment, and we haven't been able to deliver it to her in sufficient quantity. The German army, whether you like it or not, is still the best in the world.

England's debacles at Dunkirk or in Crete and Norway tell the story. There soldiers did all and more than could be expected of them. But a man with a gun in his hand is no match for a tank. A trooper with a few months of training can't equal a ruthless superbly trained soldier of the Reichswehr with seven or eight years of intensive military development behind him. The finest British pilot can't last long in a sky which holds twenty Luftwaffe planes for each one in the R. A. F.

Mr. Churchill's much criticized policy is thus easy to understand. He is apparently conserving all the military resources England can obtain. As he said some time ago, the difficulties Hitler is experiencing in the Russian campaign provide no guarantee that Germany will not attempt a major invasion of the British Isles before long. England is sending planes and tanks to Russia. Mr. Churchill and his advisors know that the British public must not be unnecessarily subjected to the morale-damaging effects which follow a defeat.

On top of that, England has a big job to do in Africa. There Hitler is weakest. The Italian troops in Africa have proven themselves easily vanquished. And no man can rule the world, as German militarists have written for generations unless he first rules Africa. General Wavell, abetted of the British commanders, is in charge of the east. And rumor has it that the British war office, which is headed by aggressive, Nazi-hating Anthony Eden, is planning a surprise move in Africa, in conjunction with the De Gaulle Free French forces.

In the meantime, the Allies are encouraged by the terrible losses Hitler is taking in Russia. Even if you discount Soviet claims of killed, wounded and captured to the minimum, it is apparent that many of the finest Nazi troops have died in the endless spaces of the U. S. S. R. The hope remains that the news of this will eventually filter home, despite Herr Goebbels' propaganda and the work of the Gestapo terrorists. There is certainly no reason now for believing that the German civilian population will revolt. But a civilian population which is disillusioned and without enthusiasm is of little service to the kind of military machine Hitler must maintain. Those who argue that this war can be won without the dispatch of millions of Allied troops to Europe, base their argument on the supposition that in time the German people will get a bellyful and will simply give up. That happened in World War I. But there is no guarantee that it will happen this time.

Of all the famous names to grace the screen in its forty-five years of history the one to appear most often in printer's ink has been that of a clown—Charlie Chaplin.

For Some a Thanksgiving....

We are again in the season when men give thanks for benefits and blessings. That is WISE and JUST. Yet, this year more than ever, somber thoughts must mingle with our thanks.

As a people, we Americans give thanks for a blessing that IS a blessing because it has been denied to so many others—for having up to now been spared the ravages of war.

As a community, our Illinois Central territory has been blessed by good crops and a considerable revival of industry. We hope both may continue—with profit eventually on a sounder basis than that of the present emergency.

As railroaders, we who work on the Illinois Central are thankful that we have been able up to now to meet the test of greatly increased demands for our service. We thank the shippers and receivers of freight who quickly loaded and promptly released our cars.

YET WE KNOW that further tests are coming and that the railroads will have to be assured the materials they need to keep going. AND WE KNOW, TOO, that one reason our task up to now has been lightened has been because of dislocations of industry incident to national defense, and we deplore the resulting unemployment and losses.

Therefore, in giving thanks for what we have, let us resolve to work toward a future which will even more certainly bless and safeguard us all.

KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY

INCORPORATED

G. F. LANSDEN, Manager

TODAY HE IS ONLY A "GRUNT"

GRUNT? That's a queer name for a workman, isn't it?

Not to an electric man. Grunt in his language means his helper.

It's sort of symbolic that a grunt's job starts at the foot of the pole—the first rung up the "ladder" on which many men have climbed to success in this business. That's the way many of us who work for this company, started in.

What does this mean to you?

It means that your electric service is in the hands of experienced people who know this business from the ground up—who understand your needs, and constantly work to boost the standard of service and lower the rates.

That their efforts bear fruit is shown in the fact that electric service today is better than it has ever been, and household rates are only about half what they were 10 to 15 years ago.

LOSS OF TEETH

Practically all people sooner or later lose part or all of their teeth from caries or periodontoclasia or both.

Both of these diseases and the resulting loss of teeth can be entirely prevented by cleaning the teeth with the tooth brush and dental floss every night before retiring.—Medical and Surgical Journal.

KENTUCKY UTILITIES CO.
SELLS 22,695,089 KWH TO TVA

Kentucky Utilities Company officials announced today in Lexington that for the thirty-day period ending October 12, the company delivered to the Tennessee Valley Authority 22,695,089 kilowatt hours of electricity. This volume of current, the company's engineers said, would produce approximately 2,226,000 pounds of pig aluminum—about 75,000 pounds a day—if used for that purpose.

A wire that would reach twice around the world could be drawn from one cubic inch of platinum.

The War-Time Position of Agriculture

Agricultural income this year is almost certain to reach the highest total since 1928, and may be the largest in more than twenty years, states the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in discussing the war-time position of agriculture in the current issue of The Guaranty Survey, its monthly review of business and financial conditions in this country and abroad.

Farm income is one of the most important factors in the general business outlook. The Survey continues. And the prospect of greater farm income is welcome not only to the farming population but to the country as a whole, since farm prosperity is indispensable to a sound and balanced state of national well-being. Unfortunately, however, the outlook rests in part on factors that fail to inspire confidence either in their permanence or in their ultimately beneficial character to the farmers themselves.

Need of a Permanent Plan

The central fact in the agricultural situation today is the extent to which farm income has become dependent on Government action. Farm prices and farm income are being sustained by a combination of crop loans and Government payments, at huge public expense and at the cost of accumulating stocks of farm products in Government hands, with a risk of eventual price collapse and further heavy loss and of a major readjustment.

The basic conflict between artificially maintained prices for farm products and an agricultural system adjusted to natural levels of domestic and foreign demand has long-term implications that have not yet been frankly faced.

Developments within the United States and in the field of international trade may soon necessitate the selection, with some approach to finality, of a national program for the future of farming in this country. As matters now stand there is centered in the subsidizing of agriculture, instituted in a depression emergency and purportedly temporary, a set of influences still powerful enough to prevent a forthright reliance upon basic economic factors in meeting the general problems of the industry.

An attempt to harmonize prices of exportable farm products here with values abroad may be a central feature of an acceptable plan with a deliberate renunciation of foreign markets for these commodities as a possible, though painful, alternative. Whatever choice of goals may emerge, it will be difficult, if not politically impossible, to terminate abruptly the system of farm subsidies now so firmly established. But the possibility that no permanent solution of the major problems of agriculture, consistent with the preservation of democratic processes, may seem attainable in the confusion of drastic post-war changes is one that the American people are not prepared to face with complacency.

Farm Prices Close to Parity

But it seems clear that the financial results of this season's farm operations will be the best in many years. The buying power of farm products, as measured by the ratio of prices received by farmers to prices paid by them for commodities used, has risen sharply in the last few months and in August was exactly equal to the average for the 1910-14 "parity" period. With taxes, interest and farm wages included among prices paid, however, the ratio was slightly below parity. Prices of a number of important products were above parity—including beef cattle, hogs, chickens, butterfat, wool, veal calves, lambs and some kinds of tobacco. Cotton prices are close to parity. The further price advances of recent weeks may have brought the general average already above the parity level. If not, a comparatively slight additional rise will suffice to do so.

The parity price of a farm product, simply stated, is the price that bears the same relation to prices paid by farmers as in 1910-14 (1920-29) for tobacco and potatoes.

The most striking feature of the upward price movement in farm products is that it has occurred, with few exceptions, in the face of large supplies and very low foreign demand. The physical quantity of farm products exported in the past year is only about one-third of that a year ago; and it seems that, in the absence of unforeseen developments, no radical change in the situation is in prospect as long as the war continues.

The recently enacted law providing for mandatory crop loans equal to 85 per cent of parity prices to growers of cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and rice seems to have been the most powerful single factor underlying the sharp rise in prices of farm products that began in April. The making of such loans is virtually equivalent to the fixing of minimum prices, inasmuch as the farmers receive the stipulated amount and, unless the market price is higher than the loan figure, simply leave the loan unpaid and allow the Government to take title to the product.

The enactment of this law marks the most extreme step that the Government has yet taken in guaranteeing farm prices. Its effect has been to raise prices not only of the commodities directly affected but of farm products in general, especially meat animals and dairy products. Higher corn prices obviously mean higher feed costs and higher prices of meat and other animal products. Moreover, the adoption of the new policy greatly alters the outlook for prices of all agricultural commodities; for the Government has committed itself to the principle of price-fixing by means

What Is a Neutral?

Edward Alexander Parsons, Louisiana delegate to the "Continental Congress for Freedom" recently held in Washington, D. C., under the auspices of the Fight for Freedom Committee, received a prolonged ovation when he arose before the "Congress" to give the following description of a neutral:

"When we boast so much of neutrality, we seem to think that neutrality is a high and wonderful attitude, whereas, as a matter of fact, there is no such thing as pure neutrality and if there was it would not be worthy of much praise. In everything in life we are either for it or against it more or less and, therefore, that shows that we are neutral about nothing. It was Dr. Johnson's wish that 'no part of life be spent in a state of neutrality or indifference.' The Greeks passed a law against it. Dante had a particular place in his Hell for the hypocrites and the neutrals."

"What is a neutral?"
"Indeed, a neutral is one who is neither high nor low, rich nor poor, positive nor negative, good nor evil, male nor female—a neutral is nothing!"

of crop loans and will probably find it very difficult to avoid extending the practice to other products that may at some future time be in an unfavorable market position.

Automobile fatalities for the first six months of this year show an increase of 17 per cent over the first half of last year.

Automobile inquiries also show a marked increase, and the figures are still going up.

This increase has a marked effect on production in all operations and on national defense. We should all be alert to this program and contribute our part to the defense program by driving carefully. Courtesy in driving produces wonderful results and pays big dividends. You will feel better at the end of the day for any courtesy you have rendered as a safe driver. It's smart to be careful.

"HORSE AND BUGGY DOCTOR"

Like several other millions of people, I read and enjoyed Dr. Arthur Hertzler's HORSE AND BUGGY DOCTOR. Though he was born late enough to become a modern physician and surgeon, he certainly gives a good picture of the old-fashioned doctor, just as true a picture of a Kentucky doctor as of one from Kansas. Besides the fascinating portrait of the doctor the book also reveals the psychology of the doctor's patients, especially the patients of a half century ago. Nothing was more obvious than the faith the multitude had in traditional remedies. Though people sent for the doctor, or later telephoned him, many a time they refused to take his medicine and, consequently, had an alibi for not paying him for his trouble.

That reminds me of what my father, an old country doctor, always said about the efficacy of his medicine. If some old granny came in to nurse the sick immediately after the doctor's visit, her advice and remedies would have precedence over what the medical man had said. Her memory of the amazing effect of certain herbs or teas left no doubt in the mind of the patient and family that she could work wonders. Dr. Hertzler laughingly says that sometimes the granny's remedies did no worse and no better than his own, since the patient got well or died of his own accord. Undoubtedly the old-fashioned doctor often failed to make his giving of calomel and quinine a mystical affair, a kind of voodoo. Probably if he had made a few mysterious signs and pronounced some strange words, even Granny would have been convinced. Getting medicine out of some clean bottles or boxes was just too much.

Quackery of all sorts thrived in olden times, but it rarely charged anything for its remedies. Many an old granny got her pay through the pleasure she obtained from thwarting the plans of the doctor man. Her remedies were often perfectly harmless; sometimes they had a solid basis in medical knowledge. She, of course, did not know the difference between the two kinds. Her successors are numerous and make a paying thing out of their quackery. The human being loves to be hoodooed and pays for a chance to be duped. Whenever we laugh at our ancestors for their devotion to Granny, it would be well to check up on our own town first.

Fortunately, old-time quacks were afraid of cutting into the human flesh. It is doubtful whether anybody in my entire acquaintance before I left Fidelity in 1906 had ever had an internal operation. The regular doctors were quite as afraid as the quacks. Many a life was lost in this way and many others were saved. With no knowledge of germs and with only elementary notions about infection and cleanliness, the older doctors really took a life into their hands when they performed necessary operations. Strong constitutions and natural immunities saved the lives of some of the patients. It was easy for Granny and doctor alike to account for the death of others: the wrong time of the moon, too much or too little bleeding, bad night air, constitutional weakness.

MRS. ELLA CUTSHALL

Mrs. Ella Cutshall, 68 years of age, died Sunday at 12:05 a. m. at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rob Taylor, one mile east of Cayce, following an illness of pneumonia. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Harmony church by the pastor, Rev. Hopper. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Cutshall was first married to Robert Arrington and to this union were born nine children, who survive. They are: Herman, Malcolm, Ernest and J. C. Arrington, all of Akron, Ohio; Gilbert Arrington of Dexter, Mo.; Mrs. Rob Taylor of Cayce, Mrs. Arnie Brown of Crutchfield, Mrs. Cora Williams of Sturgis, Ky., and Miss Ella Marie Arrington of Akron. Mrs. Cutshall was a member of the Harmony church for many years.

PIERCE NEWS

Rev. A. W. Porter of Greenfield, Tenn., filled his first appointment at Johnson Grove Sunday. There will be prayer meeting every Tuesday night and the public is invited. Next Tuesday a W. M. S. will be organized.

Mrs. Tom Reece is able to be up after a week's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Smith were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lil Dedmon on Route 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Alford and son, Kenneth, of Dyersburg spent Sunday with Mrs. Alford's mother, Mrs. Mattie Rogers.

Mrs. Doris Laceywell of Fulton has been spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Cecil Laceywell.

Tom Reece has been suffering from an infected foot.

Mrs. Alton Smithson of Dyersburg and Mrs. Macon Stubblefield of Union City were Sunday guests of Mrs. Smithson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stem.

Miss Helen Rogers is on the sick list.

I often run across accounts of diseases that one never hears of now. That does not mean that we have changed the names, either, but that with even the sanitation now practiced several former scourges have practically vanished. Most of these are forms of infection that rubber gloves used by the surgeon or various methods of disinfecting have prevented. I cannot help wishing that some of the people who suffered at the hands of willing but ignorant doctors might have lived long enough to meet and know modern surgery.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt, according to the deceitful lusts; and be renewed in the spirit of your mind." These words from Ephesians comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, November 9, 1941, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Adam and Fallen Man." Included among the Scriptural selections will be "And God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good." (Genesis 1:31).

TRY THIS METHOD FOR ROAST TURKEY

The usual American "turkey time" is approaching—which means anytime after the first frost. The University of Kentucky poultry section says that the turkey supply this year totals 33 million birds; that is, about one turkey for every family in America. During 1933-41, the number of turkeys raised has gone up about 10 million.

Asked for approved recipes for roasting turkeys, the home economics department of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics suggests the following:

Select a young turkey 12 to 14 pounds in weight, preferably a hen. As to stuffing, some prefer it moist and others dry; some with sage, some without. In any case, it is better to have the turkey cleaned, stuffed and trussed the day before cooking. Rub the outside generously with flour and butter, and with some salt and pepper. Place in a hot oven for 20 minutes; then, reduce the temperature to 375 degrees, and baste frequently until tender. Allow 15 to 18 minutes per pound for young turkey, and 20 to 25 minutes for a mature one.

Japanese fishermen are now catching less expensive but more nutritive fishes, according to the Department of Commerce.

The United States, during the second quarter of 1940, imported 2,697,053 pounds of rapeseed, or colza, oil.

sistently. There is no doubt that inflation has started rolling in this country. It is just a question of how far it will go. Unless Congress is willing to look at this problem as the Canadian Government has, and regulates wages and prices without any thought of politics, we may see some real inflation.

STOP FOOLING OURSELVES

It is reported that the Federal Government is contemplating the expenditure of more than $2,000,000 dollars to erect an electric generating plant in Central Kentucky for the purpose of supplying electric service to twelve rural electric cooperative corporations. It seems to us that this move is not consistent with the primary purpose of the rural electrification program.

According to the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, there is more than enough electric power in the state, despite increasing demands brought on by the defense program. Facts reveal that adequate generating capacity is already available to meet all the electric needs of the co-operative corporations at approximately 1c per kilowatt-hour. Competent engineers estimate that electric energy would be higher from the proposed plant, and would not improve quality of the service, which service is now admittedly satisfactory and acceptable.

So it is extremely doubtful that this Federal money is being spent for the purpose of improving the service, or to save the people money. Such a move would set further precedent by which the government enters in direct competition with private industry at the expense of taxpayers.

When R. E. A. first received attention, it was pointed out that it was not to be competitive in any way with existing private enterprise, nor were the lines to be in a territory already being adequately served. R. E. A. funds are intended to build lines. Use of Money to build power plants where sufficient power is already available, will only lessen the miles of lines that may be built to serve more farm houses. Only this one project alone will use money sufficient to build 2,500 to 3,000 miles of additional farm lines, which would make electric service available to 5,000 to 10,000 additional farmers in rural areas. Figures show that there are still over 200,000 farms in Kentucky without electric service.

We must think of our national defense efforts too. What about the cutting of unnecessary expense and the saving of materials for use in interest of national defense? All over the country businesses and the people are feeling the effects of this important program. While private enterprises are being held back by governmental demands, it is also time to put a check on governmental bureaucracy as well. Here in Fulton county we have 60 miles of R. E. A. lines unfinished, because of scarcity of materials. We find that there are others in other sections in the same position. Why neglect these projects already set up and near completion, and expend the money and materials on such a project as proposed in Eastern Kentucky, where it would be a duplication of a service already rendered? Let us not get the cart before the horse. Build more rural lines, not power plants, when we already have ample electrical energy.

THE FORUM

By J. PAUL BUSHART, Editor

A column conducted for news, views and comments, in which readers of The News are invited to participate. Mail contributions care of THE FORUM, this newspaper.

W. E. Jackson, pharmacist at DeMyer Drug Store, was telling me about a business venture he and several other West Kentuckians took stock in. These gentlemen invested several hundred dollars in an all-grain combine and harvester, attachable to a mower. A few of the machines were built by a Johnson City firm and one was recently tried out. It seems now that the patented machine is likely to prove valuable and will go on the market. The apparatus is economical in cost, and will do the job of much more expensive and more complicated machines as on the market now.

Mr. Jackson has made many friends here since coming to Fulton and they wish him success in his venture with the new patent.

We were amazed at the taxes that are being paid by the Kentucky Utilities Company during 1940. A few days ago while talking with Ford Lansden, manager of the local power office, he brought out some interesting facts. Direct taxes paid by this company during the past year totaled $1,320,142 or $3,617 a day. This, of course, does not include hidden taxes, which we all pay and don't know much about. We can see why the state of Tennessee has been having trouble balancing its budget with the innovation of TVA and the elimination of private owned power plants. This, naturally, has eliminated, too, hundreds of thousands of dollars in taxes paid by these private industries. There's no way of escaping the burden placed on the people, regardless of whether it is paid out in taxes or utility rates. And the most depressive thing about it, is that there seems to be no end to the action being taken to further socialize our so-called Democratic system of government. The voice of the people alone can stop this constant drifting toward government policies strictly foreign to our true American way of life.

Bertes Pigue of the City National Bank, while on vacation recently dropped in to see W. A. Cole, cashier of the Hodgenville bank. Mr. Cole and his family were awarded the typical family prize in Kentucky, based on family life, civic interest, church and social activities. For the first time, Bertes learned that he was runner-up for the award, when Mr. Cole informed him that he was told that he barely beat Mr. Pigue and family in the contest.

We have been reading quite a lot about price control. Some of our Congressmen seem to favor price control without wage control. To us this is a magnificent example of muddled thinking. The price trend now is to a very large extent the result of the successful demands for ever-higher wages made by large groups of labor in all fields. We are beginning to witness the consequences in our daily living. Retail stores have conducted an aggressive campaign against price inflation. They have cut overhead costs whenever possible and passed the savings on to the consumer. They have in many cases voluntarily accepted smaller units of profit. Even so, retail prices are rising steadily. The stores of America have reached the point where no major additional economies are possible, and where they can no longer keep in business without increasing the price charged the consumer.

In most industrial and agricultural fields, the cost of labor is a very large part of the total cost of production. It is reflected in the cost of all commodities, all materials, all supplies. How can there be cost stability under these circumstances without wage stability? The plain truth is that all talk of workable price ceilings is idle unless wage ceilings are considered as well. The sooner labor understands that, the better for all. Price control is price dictatorship. And labor must accept wage dictatorship by government, if government is forced to establish price dictatorship.

It seems to us that it is time to stop whipping the devil around a stump. We mean that the various governmental agencies should stop finding so many excuses by which to spend more money that must eventually come out of the taxpayer's pockets. And, to cap it all off, much of this effort is in direct competition with private industry and oftentimes these industries or efforts are duplications of services already being rendered by private concerns.

It has been widely stated in the press and elsewhere that the Secretary of the Interior botched the handling of the so-called "oil shortage" problem. There was too much name-calling—and too little consideration of facts. There was too much hysteria-creating publicity—and too little deliberation before official statements were made. And there was too much politics by far.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT

A determined effort to extend virtually limitless political control over two natural resource industries—oil and coal—is underway. As it happens, these are two of the industries which have been most successful in meeting the extraordinary demands imposed by the defense program. Their managements have proven themselves to be fully aware of the seriousness of the emergency. This country is singularly blessed in the magnitude of its oil and coal deposits—and in the character of the industries which produce those essential energy sources.

There is no excuse for a political dictatorship over industry when private enterprise is doing its job properly. The experience of the past has been that politically-dominated industry is far less efficient, far less productive, than privately-operated and publicly-regulated industry. The American people don't want the emergency used as an alibi to justify any more extension of government power than is absolutely necessary.

THE ARMISTICE IS OVER

Those of us who remember Armistice Day 1918 recall not merely the wild excitement with which the news was greeted, but even more the deep sense of relief and the keen rapture at the thought of peace. We felt that not only this war but all wars were over.

But as the years have come and gone, we have celebrated Armistice Day more and more solemnly, in the belated realization that "Armistice" truly meant "the temporary cessation of hostilities."

We wanted peace and we sought it by compromise and equivocation. We overlooked the fact that there is—there can be—no truce in the fight between right and wrong.

Ours was the task of bearing high the torch of liberty. Of seeing that the light of freedom dispelled the darkness of oppression. We did not ask of those who died from whence they came or by what faith they lived. They were soldiers in a battle for Democracy. Ours was still is—the task of keeping that Democracy alive so that their sacrifice might not have been in vain.

We have not yet fulfilled our task. And today the fight is on a new between the forces of oppression and aggression and the forces of democracy and freedom. We have a faith to keep with those who have gone before. Tolerance, justice, equality, freedom, democracy—are not just words. They were ideals for which men died—these are ideals by which we must live if the faith is to be kept.

The armistice is over and this time there must be no stopping before the final victory is won. We must finish the job. We must fight on to the bitter end—until the forces of evil are completely conquered for all time.

WEEKLY SERMON

"EXCUSES"

The Rev. Loyd O. Hartman, Pastor First Methodist Church

Luke 14-18. "And they all with one consent began to make excuse."

Every preacher is familiar with the stock excuses for Church absence. Here are some of them we hear daily; and yours is in the list.

1. "I work hard all week." You are not the only man or woman who works. To hear you talk, one gets the impression only idlers attend Church services. Look over the regular attendants at a Church service. They are not among the idlers. If you want to see the idlers, go down town and look sitting on the curb or leaning against the bank. The busiest men and women in this city are regular attendants at Church. They work hard all week. You haven't put your finger on your trouble when you say, "I work hard all week."

2. "There is a lack of sociability. Nobody spoke to me." Well, brother, how many people did you speak to? What made you run for the door like the house was afire? Don't you know no man can long worship here without the preacher and everybody else knowing who he is? We are constantly on the lookout for needed men and women. We are a friendly people and will come as near falling all over you as anywhere you ever went.

3. "The Church services are dull." That is a matter of taste. An art gallery is dull to some people. Music is dull to some people. All high things are dull to you if you have a vaudeville taste. The Church cannot be run on shallow sensation, since at last becomes monotonous.

4. "The weather is against me." Yes, the temperature is too high or too low. The same people who stay away in winter on account of the cold, stay away in summer because of the heat. And, if unfortunately, God does send a day when the temperature is just right, one can always fall back on too dry or too wet.

5. "There are hypocrites in the Church." Well, there is always room for one more. You may as well condemn the state because every man is not a patriot. The man whom you condemn is under no more moral obligation to live a good life than you are. Yes, there are hypocrites in the Church just as there is counterfeit money in the world, but that does not keep me from desiring and appreciating the genuine article in men or money.

6. "I'm not settled yet." If you put it on that basis, you are dead wrong. None is settled. The Lord has something to do with that. I don't know whether I'll be here tomorrow or not. That does not keep me from bowing my head and heart in the Father's house today.

7. "It is possible to be a Christian without attending Church." Theoretically I will not deny the possibility. But it does not work out in practice. The man who wants to be a good artist, musician, lawyer or doctor associates with those of like profession. He takes their magazines and attends their assemblies. No man can be the best type of Christian character who deliberately neglects public worship. Many sticks make heat and light, but withdraw one stick and it will sputter, smoke and go out.

Let's have done with excuses. Let's have more of the thrill and joy of devotion.
