NUMBER FORTY-FIVE.

YMBC VISITED BY DEFENSE CHAIRMAN

Meeting in regular business session Tuesday night, the Young Men's Business Club had Robert Lamb, local civil defense chairman, as guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Lamb outlined the work being carried on by the civil defense program. Carter Olive presided over the meeting in the absence of the president.

Function of the defense organization will be conducted in seven divisions: Fire fighting services, Police services, Medical services, Public works, streets, building, water and sewerage; Utilities, Maintenance of vital services, Public Relations and education. Seven chiefs have been named as follows to have charge of these various departments of the program: D. C. Henderson, H. O. Wright, Dr. Glyn Bushart, Bill Browning, Ford Lansden, K. E. Dawson, Dr. R. V. Putnam, with Mr. Lamb local chairman, assisted by Ernest Fall, Jr. Purpose of such an organization in every city in the United States is to be prepared to deal with emergencies in case of war, and protect the country against sabotage. The YMBC went on record favoring such a program in Fulton, on motion of M. L. Parker, seconded by Guy Fry.

Plans for the club banquet were deferred until after the holidays. The annual Christmas Snowball Dance will probably be sponsored Monday night, Dec. 29, with Cecil Golly's orchestra furnishing the music.

Ernest Fall, Jr., local chairman of the Christmas Seal drive, announced plans for the drive to start December 4th. Members in the club were named to assist in the work, including Billy Blackstone, F. A. Homra, Enoch Milner, Dick Mulford, Henry Edwards, Paul Bushart, W. L. Holland, Maurice Ferrell, P. G. Boyd, Robert Graham, and W. H. Cravens, principal of South Fulton schools. The club donated $10 to Christmas Seal fund.

Plans were discussed for gathering up old toys, repairing and distributing them to unfortunate children this Christmas. Henry Edwards was named chairman of this project, assisted by James Meacham, Talbert Sawyer, A. J. Mansfield, E. L. Cook, and W. L. Holland.

Enoch Milner reported on recent banquet paid for by losers in attendance contest, with an unpaid balance due by losing side. All losers who have not given their part are urged to do so.

Three new members were voted into the club: Robert Rowland, Pete Garrett and John A. Reid; with two new proposals for membership.

On motion of Hendon Wright, seconded by Enoch Milner, a bingo committee was appointed as follows: M. L. Parker, Foad Homra, Hendon Wright, James Meacham, Carter Olive, P. G. Boyd. This committee will study plans for starting the annual winter bingo games again.

PADUCAH BOY DIES FROM INJURIES HERE

Lee Nute Davis of Paducah died early Friday morning at the Haws Clinic, from injuries received early Thursday on the railroad siding near Legg's poultry house. He was taken to Paducah for funeral and burial services.

Davis had apparently crawled under a box car to keep out of the rain and the car was switched, crushing both of his legs. It was necessary to amputate both legs just below the knee.

He was discovered by Jodie Winston, colored, early Thursday morning.

Davis was 25 years old.

R. E. Sanford, manager of the local Coca-Cola bottling plant, will attend a state bottlers' convention in Nashville next Thursday and Friday.

Negro Arrested Here Wanted For Murder

David Munford, colored, of Shelby, Miss., wanted for the murder of Clara Mae Foster, colored, in Duncan, Miss., on November 8, was taken off a train last week by Special Agent O. H. Pigue, Chief Police K. P. Dalton and policeman Gip McDade and Paul Kendall.

Munford was returned to Mississippi by the Bolivar County sheriff who came to Fulton for his prisoner on Thursday. Local police reported that Munford confessed that he had shot the woman and was enroute to Cairo at the time of his arrest.

CITY ELECTION IN SOUTH FULTON TUES.

On Tuesday, December 2, citizens of South Fulton will go to the polls to vote for a mayor and six city councilmen to serve two-year terms. D. A. Rogers, present mayor is a candidate for re-election. J. H. Lowe, who has seen previous service as mayor, is the only other candidate for the mayoralty.

The present council is composed of Virgil Davis, H. L. Ferguson, J. N. Houston, Abe Jolley, Lon Pickle and S. N. Valentine. These are all candidates in this election and the following are also in the race for council: Tommie Bynum, J. L. Crockett, Clyde Fields, Elbert Lowery, S. A. McDade and Marvin Sanders.

BASKETBALL BEGINS IN FULTON NEXT WEEK

The basketball season opens in Fulton next week with the South Fulton Red Devils meeting Dyer in the South Fulton gym on Tuesday night, Dec. 2. The Fulton High Bulldogs will play the Cayce Tigers on Friday night, Dec. 5, at the Science Hall.

The South Fulton team, under the expert guidance of Coach Jess Haynes, will be led by Paul Harwood and John McConnell, last year's stars. About fifteen boys are out for practice and the Red Devils hope to have another championship team.

Coach Herschel Giles of Fulton High School has about twenty boys to choose from including three of last year's regulars, McClellan, Moore and Spence. The Bulldogs improved vastly last year and will probably show up much better in the opening of season play this year.

E. FALL, JR., TELLS OF LOCAL DEFENSE UNIT

Ernest Fall, Jr., vice chairman of the newly organized Civilian Defense unit here, was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Lions Club Friday and told of the purpose and plans back of the unit. He stated that the county would, under directions of the unit leaders, be fully prepared to combat sabotage in this territory should it ever become necessary. Though this part of the country is not likely to be bothered by sabotage workers, the national government feels that the training would be of real service here. Mr. Fall stated that the organization would probably sponsor a "blackout" in Fulton soon in order to acquaint the people with these conditions.

Robert Lamb, American Legionnaire, is chairman of unit work in Fulton and South Fulton and Mr. Crouch of Hickman is county chairman.

These defense units are being organized in every county and town in the United States.

THREE PERSONS HURT IN WRECK SATURDAY

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hankins and Miss Dorothy Grissom, all of Arlington, were painfully injured on Saturday afternoon in an automobile-truck collision on the Union City highway. They were brought to the Haws Clinic for treatment. Mr. Hankins suffered a cerebral concussion and Mrs. Hankins received severe head cuts and concussion. Miss Grissom had severe head cuts and cuts on the left leg.

SHELBY PEACE HEADS KITTY LEAGUE AGAIN

Shelby Peace of Hopkinsville who served as president of the Kitty League during the 1941 season was unanimously re-elected at a meeting of the loop directors here last Sunday afternoon. Allen Cloar of Mayfield was again selected as vice president.

Peace reviewed the history of the league and pointed out that the loop is all set for the 1942 season, with all eight clubs slated to be in action, Owensboro, Hopkinsville, Bowling Green, Paducah, Mayfield, Fulton, Union City and Jackson. It was shown that the Kitty is now better organized than most Class D leagues, and much progress has been made since 1935 when it was revived.

Plans were approved for opening the season nine days early next year with the first games to be scheduled on May 3 for a series of 126 games during the season. The Shaughnessy Playoff was adopted, but the $50 guarantee to visiting clubs was abolished.

The pennant was officially awarded to Jackson.

Minutes and financial statement made by the president were approved and salary set aside for the president. There was an increase of 12,281 paid admissions during the past season, with Union City leading with a total of 28,802.

The official ball was adopted for the coming season and J. P. Friend of Blytheville, Ark., was approved as statistician. The president was instructed to vote in favor of the proposed amendment to the by-laws when he attends the national meeting in Jacksonville, Fla. This pertains to salary limits and bonuses with the salary limit in the Kitty loop now at $1100.

Officials present were Shelby Peace, Hopkinsville; John Campbell, Paducah; Vick Smith, Bowling Green; Hugh Wise, and Walter Johnson, Owensboro; Cecil Moss, Union City; Allen Cloar, Mayfield; H. G. Gilland and Mickey O'Neal, Jackson; J. L. Roth, Paducah; Irish Welsh, Jackson, Miss.; Umpire C. S. L.; Paul St. Charles, Nashville; Umpire C. S. L.; K. P. Dalton, H. H. Bugg, Bert Newhouse, R. E. Sanford, Bailey Huddleston, J. R. Hogan, C. E. Holloway, Mel Simons, J. P. Bushart, Carter Olive, C. C. Parker, M. L. Parker, Ellis Beggs, all of Fulton.

RANDOM SHOTS ON NEW REVENUE BILLS?

A bill to put a 3% tax on pari-mutual betting, requiring that totalizers be used at each track. The tax can be easily figured then and the public will be protected from mistakes.

This type bill has been a source of much revenue for other states and is the least burdensome of all taxes. The winner at a race track won't mind the assessment and it doesn't make any difference to the loser, and most of all, the public will know they have had a fair deal if a horse brings a short price, and they will not be dissatisfied.

MANY INJURED IN SEMINOLE WRECK SUNDAY

The Seminole Limited, an Illinois Central passenger train operated from Chicago to Florida, wrecked just south of Corinth, Miss., late Sunday afternoon, resulting in two immediate deaths and 71 injuries. Nine of the train's 13 cars were derailed and tumbled into a field where a dining car caught fire and burned for many hours.

Mrs. Davie Robinson of Selmer, Tenn., was fatally injured and died on the operating table of a Corinth hospital. Mrs. J. W. Garman of Sylvauga, Ala., was also critically hurt and died Monday night.

Among the 73 persons injured were three from Fulton: Miss Cora Bell McKenzie, who suffered head injuries and was treated at the Corinth hospital; Elmer Hutson, colored, bruised; and Freddie Lee Hamilton, first degree burns hip, left side. The two negroes are in McRea Hospital in Corinth. Robert Lee Chandler of Mayfield and several residents of Mayfield and Paducah were also injured.

Railroad officials stated that a broken rail was apparently the cause of the wreck. The cars hurtled down a 40-foot embankment to lie 50 or 100 feet away. Three were upside down. Of the nine cars derailed were four Pullmans, two diners and three day coaches. Except for the burned diner the coaches can probably be salvaged. The Corinth hospitals were filled with passengers hurt in the crash and some of the injured were carried to Jackson, Tenn.

T. E. Arnett, whose home is approximately 30 yards from the scene of the accident, was an eyewitness to the wreck. He stated that the Seminole was on time and estimated that the train was traveling about 50 miles per hour. Mr. Arnett was among the first group to reach the scene and said 20 or more of the passengers were unconscious and that many others, although injured, had crawled out of the overturned coaches.

The Seminole is one of the Illinois Central's oldest and best known trains. It was put into service about 35 years ago and was the railroad's first through train between Chicago and Florida.

HICKMAN TEAM BEATS CAYCE TIGERS 27-26

The Hickman basketball team defeated the Cayce team 27 to 26 Tuesday night at the Cayce school. Fethe, Hickman guard, scored a spectacular one-handed shot from mid-floor as the final whistle blew. Hickman led at the end of the first quarter 10-1, and at the half 16-13, but Cayce was on top 21-20 when the third period ended.

It was the third straight setback by a 1-point margin for Cayce on their own floor, having lost to Arlington 23-22 and to Clinton 28-27.

The Western team will play in Cayce Tuesday, Dec. 2.

Lineup Cayce-Hickman game:

Train To Hickman Gets Little Business, I. C. Says

The State Utilities Commission of Tennessee took under advisement Wednesday, the application of the Illinois Central Railroad to abandon its daily round-trip passenger service between Hickman, Ky., and Dyersburg, Tenn.

In testimony presented before the commission, the company contended there was not enough business between the two towns to warrant continuance of the service.

Commissioner Leon Jourlmon, Jr., said the railroad brotherhoods would be given an opportunity to be heard in the case before a decision would be forthcoming.

FULTON NEEDS PARKING PLAN

Alleviation of Fulton's downtown parking problem should be sought by the civic clubs of this city. Congestion in the downtown district has grown to such an extent in the past few years that this problem cannot be forgotten by the civic leaders here.

It will be remembered that Lake Street was widened for the purpose of relieving traffic congestion. Much complaint has been made by the State Highway Department about the traffic snarls in Fulton. Parking in the center of Lake Street should be eliminated for safety measures, according to traffic authorities, and unless this is done the highways will eventually be routed around the business district of Fulton.

Figures show that because Fulton is located at the "crossroads" of several major highways, tourists drop an average of $90,000.00 yearly in this community. Tourist business means much to certain business interests here.

On the other hand, due to the fact that Fulton has no parking plan, the streets are always congested with parked cars. The parking situation is a two-fold problem, and in order to preserve the income provided by both local shoppers and tourist trade, a planned parking program must be adapted.

A study of the parking situation is vitally important to the future of the community. Civic organizations should busy themselves with this program and name committees to work out a plan with the incoming mayor and council.

Many cities have relieved their parking problems by establishing free parking lots, with regulated street parking, as a part of a long range program. Regardless of what action is taken, the parking situation is one of Fulton's major problems that need immediate attention. It is hoped that steps will be taken soon to adopt some planned system—both for safety and commercial reasons.

FARM BUREAU ASKS REVISED TRUCK LAW

Revision of the state law regulating trucks' sizes and load limits was urged this week by the Purchase Farm Bureau and the Penny-rile District Farm Bureau. The proposals of each organization will be placed before the State Farm Bureau at its Louisville convention, January 14-16, for consideration of its legislative program to be submitted to the 1942 General Assembly.

At a meeting in Mayfield Monday night the Purchase Farm Bureau, which has members in Fulton, Hickman, Graves, Carlisle, Ballard, McCracken, Calloway and Marshall counties, recommended that the 18,000-pound limit be raised to 39,000 pounds to match that in Tennessee.

The Purchase Farm Bureau was the first organization of its kind in the state to go on record favoring the modification of the truck load law. Previously, farm bureau members from thirteen Bluegrass counties passed a resolution favoring retention of the 18,000-pound limit.

"I am sure no one in Kentucky wants the state to be a shipping barrier," said Roscoe Stone, Hickman, president of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, who submitted the resolution before the Purchase group. He said that under the present load limit law truckers are forced to unload merchandise at the Kentucky-Tennessee line coming into this state in order to comply with the trucking regulation.

Mr. Stone, however, was backed unanimously by farm bureau representatives in a stand that the truck length limit under the proposed 30,000-pound weight limit should be restricted to 35-feet and that gasoline capacity of trucks also should be limited.

In referring to the gasoline capacity proposal, Mr. Stone said: "I feel that Kentucky should compel truckers to share our highway construction costs through the purchase of gasoline."

The Purchase Farm Bureau also requested enactment of a law requiring compulsory automobile personal liability insurance.

FIRE SWEEPS THRU PIPELINE STATION

Fire of undetermined origin swept through the Pipeline Oil Station here last Thursday, doing damage estimated at between $4,500 and $5,000. The station is owned and operated by George Dodd. This was the second fire to strike this station in a little over a year, the first fire occurring in October, 1940.

The fire, which started about 5:40 p. m., destroyed the store room and gutted the main office building. Both the Fulton and South Fulton fire departments fought the blaze. Due to the fact that two large storage tanks are above the ground for storing kerosene and motor oil, some excitement occurred because of belief that they might explode. But danger of such a thing happening is practically impossible, according to George Dodd, proprietor, who says that his station has stood inspection of state fire marshal. No gasoline is stored above ground, but is kept underground as required by fire regulations.

Miss Cariline Gardner of Lambuth College, Jackson, Tenn., is spending the Thanksgiving holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gardner on Commercial-av. Her guests for the week end are two other students at Lambuth, Miss Julia Odell of Ft. Worth, Texas, and Miss Marian Weaver of Wichita, Kansas.

Mrs. Pat Cox and children, Patricia and Johnnie, of Union City, spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Joe Forrest, West State Line. Mrs. Forrest and granddaughter, Wanda Sue Forrest, accompanied them home for a few days visit.

Mrs. K. E. Dawson left Wednesday for Bentonville, Ark., where she was called because of the illness of her mother.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

This country is just beginning to encounter some of the biggest and most difficult problems that a military economy makes unavoidable.

The arms program is getting into stride. Our aircraft production is at the rate of about 25,000 planes a year. Production of tanks, machine guns, army trucks and other vital necessities, is increasing fast. The two-ocean navy will be completed far ahead of the original schedule. In the next two years, unless something unexpected occurs to change the picture, we should become the foremost military power on earth.

This doesn't mean that we are doing our theoretical utmost. We aren't. Labor troubles continue to mount and undermine production. Governmental red tape, delay and indecision still hamper industry. A few segments of industry have not been able to get away from the "business as usual" point of view. There is plenty of politics in the defense set-up, and there is too much divided responsibility which makes for passing of the buck and general disorder. Even so, the gigantic American production machine is moving forward, and it is successfully making the immense change from a peace-time to a war-time economy.

To some, this change means profits and expanded opportunity. To others, the change means possible ruin. In that sorry category fall thousands of businesses which have not been given a place in the defense picture, and which are now unable to continue their normal, peace-time ways.

These are the businesses which are caught by priorities. No one without a high priority rating can now obtain the basic metals. No one can build a home costing more than $6,000. There are shortages in paper, cloth, rubber, chemicals, cleaning fluids—commodities which in normal periods are excessively abundant. And legions of businesses, employing millions of people, depend on such commodities as these for their very life.

Pessimists believe that this defense program may mean the virtual death of little business in this nation. That may be an excessively dark forecast. But the hard fact remains that no one has yet been able to formulate a program under which we may obtain maximum military production and at the same time preserve our business system more or less intact.

Washington, of course, has given attention to this small business problem. There has been an effort to farm out contracts, under a subcontracting system, so that small and middle-sized concerns may obtain a fair share of the orders. So far, however, little progress has been made. The bulk of small businesses haven't the equipment or the personnel which are needed. When you want a tremendous job done, you naturally turn to the great mass-production industries which are geared to make the largest possible quantities of goods in the shortest possible period of time.

The dollar-a-year men in the defense bureaus are taken from big industries. And so small business finds it more and more difficult to obtain the supplies it must have.

If this trend continues, it is apparent that a revolutionary change will take place in the American economy. Whether that change will be for the better or worse is a matter of argument. In the meantime, it is an ironical fact that hundreds of thousands of men are being thrown out of jobs during a time when there is a shortage of suitable labor—and thousands of businesses are in danger of being thrown down during a time when consumer demand and consumer purchasing power for all manner of commodities, is extremely high. The figures indicate that there simply isn't sufficient supply of many basic materials to meet the war demand and the normal demand at the same time. And the smaller enterprises of the country, which aren't able to produce the tools of war, are taking the beating.

The Army is gradually weeding out incompetents among its officers. The way the wind blows was shown when a high-ranking general was summarily retired after the army he commanded did badly in war games.

Between World War I and two, the Army was given little attention, little money, little equipment. Officers advanced when and only when their superiors died or reached retirement age. This made for a bureaucratic sort of officer who simply bided his time, played internal politics, and learned nothing.

The American Army now seems to be taking a page out of the book of the German Army. Nazi commanders are mainly young. Promotion is made on merit, not seniority. Daring and resourcefulness are rewarded. In our Army, men with the right stuff on the ball are today being jumped in rank over the heads of their elders.

General Marshall, the Chief of Staff, has little use for sterile traditions. Under him is a group of Lieutenant Generals who demand results. So many an officer is going involuntarily into retirement or to an unimportant post because he doesn't have the capacities which modern war demands.

SAFETYGRAMS

All over the country, the problem of winter driving is again before us. Automobile drivers must contend with snow, ice, fog, sleet, and rain. In addition, longer hours of darkness make winter driving more fatiguing and, therefore, much more dangerous than summer driving.

Traffic fatalities are around 40 per cent higher in winter than in summer in the northern part of the country and 20 per cent higher in the southern part. Drivers should therefore make a special effort to drive carefully and skillfully during the winter months.

Next week, I shall give some pointers on what should be done to reduce the mechanical hazards in automobile driving to a minimum.

It's smart to be careful.

POSTOFFICE—R. F. D.

Recently Hickory Flat postoffice, in Simpson County, went out of existence after more than a century of life. It was in the administration of Andrew Jackson that the postoffice was established in what was then almost pioneer country. Around it grew up a prosperous farming community, one of the best in the state. Never large, the little postoffice served the neighborhood throughout its long lifetime, bringing in its quota of letters and newspapers and magazines, taking away the letters to far-away friends and relatives, some of whom had pioneered in the West. As time went on, the once-a-week mail grew to be daily, and the almost-unheard-of daily newspapers became a large part of the bulk of the mailcarrier's pack. Boxes were put up along the road, often bulging after the carrier's journey with packages from mail-order houses. The daily event that joined Hickory Flat to the world was the coming of the mail. Changes took place all over the world, properly chronicled in the papers and later over the radio, but the solid farm community still got its papers and letters and catalogues from Hickory Flat. Good roads began to creep in to take place of the pioneer trails and later dirt roads. Then, almost without warning, one fine day the little postoffice cancelled its last letter, and the numerous people served by it began getting their mail from Franklin by R. F. D. And this is a chronicle of many another place besides Hickory Flat.

When I get hold of a map and try to get my bearings on the Jackson Purchase, I am fairly well pleased, for most of the country stores and small hamlets still bear their names just as they did in the early years of the century. When I ask people for their addresses, I am completely at a loss, for R. F. D. 10 means nothing to me. Fortunately, old Fidelity still gets its mail in its own name, but nearly all other places on that side of the county, formerly twenty or so, are served now through an address that nobody could recognize. The country stores that used to house the small postoffices, remain often with no more paint spread over them than they had when I rode my mule bareback to Fidelity after the mail: but the mystery of the mail is now centered in the good-sized town. In older times we boys loved to arrive at Fidelity a few minutes before the mail-carrier came in on horseback or in a rickety buggy. Then we could get into the store in time to see the postmaster unlock the sack and shake out the few letters and Augustas, Maine, pulp magazines and sort them out with the air of a Houdini or other magician performing a great bit of hocus-pocus. And then we got our COMFORT OF AMERICAN WOMAN and rode back on the mule, reading as we went, to get ahead of the rest of the family.

The mail, like all other human institutions, must change with the development of our country. Hundreds of little postoffices, like hundreds of little schools, became more expensive than could be justified. But with the passing of the smallest unit in the postoffice department has gone a flavor that many of us regret to see disappear. Finer government buildings appear in county seat towns, better facilities are offered the people who want their mail when they want it, but for many of us the word "postoffice" will suggest only the nook in the country store where the stamps were kept and the incoming mail was sorted out and the letters we had written began their long journey to the people in far-away places, who would also marvel when they received them.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that 10,420,000 persons were employed in agriculture on November 1, a much more than seasonal decline of 1,112,000 workers from the number on October 1, and nearly half a million below the total for November 1, 1940.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

With Christmas less than a month away, the merchants of this country are expecting the largest holiday trade in history. Retailers are predicting a twenty percent rise in dollar volume of sales over 1940.

There are several reasons for this prediction. First, our national income has reached a new high, and the working people have money to spend. Our defense dollars have reached into every city and practically every hamlet and farm. The buying power is again in the hands of those who spend for necessities and semi-luxuries, that is, the industrial workers.

Second, consumers see this Christmas as the last chance for some time to select goods from full stocks. The psychology of a World at war is to spend while we can still get the goods. It is the consumer's final splurge.

Merchants expect to sell a greater percentage of medium-priced merchandise this year than in past periods of prosperity. The industrial workers and farmers, whose incomes have increased so greatly, are not usually buyers of luxuries. People in the upper income brackets who buy luxuries are beginning to lay away their extra funds to meet their March 15 federal income tax.

Up to November 9, retail sales in this country were seventeen percent ahead of last year. It seems to me this trend will continue although there are two major factors which may check Christmas buying: first, the inability of merchants to get the goods from the manufacturers and second, taxes.

The wise shopper will do her Christmas buying early if she expects to find the merchandise she desires. The merchant also should plan ahead, for he cannot expect to order "short lines" a few days before Christmas and receive the goods promptly. This is one year when planning ahead will pay big dividends to both consumer and merchant.

HOT TIME

Mrs. Abe Sisser of Burton, Ohio, looked across the road from her home, saw flames from a kitchen stove explosion in the house of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartman and hustled over to help put out the blaze. Returning she found her own home on fire. She neglected to adjust her kitchen stove.

Superintendent J. C. Lawson was a visitor at school Monday morning.

P. T. A. Meeting To Be Held

The next regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association will be held Thursday evening, Dec. 4 in the school auditorium.

Cafeteria Service Complimented

The patrons and friends of the Cayce school have scored again. Through their generous donations and untiring services, they have begun in our school a lunch room service that would be creditable to a larger school. Modern plumbing, electric refrigeration, convenient cabinets and serving counters have been installed. This project is being sponsored by the P. T. A. and has the support of a united community. The members of the lunch room committee deserves greatest commendation for their efforts. Some of them have devoted most of their time for the last two weeks to this great work. Ladies of the school volunteer their service in helping the supervisor, Mrs. James Ammons, prepare and serve these lunches. Many ladies who have no children in school, cheerfully respond to these calls.

Menus for the lunches are carefully planned by Mrs. J. T. Roberts, teacher of home economics in the high school. About 140 students take advantage of this lunch service. Everyone feels that a great step forward has been made.

To Play Western

The Cayce Tigers will meet Western next Tuesday night, Dec. 2, in the local gymnasium.

Cheer Leaders Chosen

Upon recommendation of the faculty members the following students were chosen as cheer leaders: Edna Earle Johnson, Hylda Harrison and Harold Williamson.

These students have shown marked ability in leading the cheering section of the school and deserve the full co-operation of the entire student body. Rah! Rah! Rah! for the cheer leaders.

Book Week Observed

National Book Week of November 2-8 was observed in the local school by means of posters, book title puzzles, and "Read a Book" campaign.

Members of the first and second year English classes made posters about library books which they had read or about books in general. A committee of three faculty members served as judges and in the ninth grade first place was awarded Imogene Wade; second place, Cecil Robert Taylor; and third place, Bess Adams. In the tenth grade Laverne Walker placed first; Mac Pewitt, second; and Margaret Jones, third.

All the posters that were made are now on display in the library.

Christmas Holidays Announced

School will be dismissed Wednesday, December 24, for the Yuletide holidays and the vacation will extend to Monday, January 5, 1942.

The morning of December 24 the community Christmas tree will be enjoyed and a program will be presented by the pupils of the elementary school.

Mid-term examinations will be held December 22 and 23.

INVENTION INCREASED JOBS

Only 2100 of every 1,000,000 people worked in offices in 1870, before invention of the typewriter; the proportion today is 33,000 per 1,000,000.

When Pride Goes

By ELEANOR BERDON
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

CLAIRE put the telephone receiver down and walked back to the breakfast room. She smoothed the stiff blue folds of her immaculate dressing gown beneath her carefully as she resumed her seat opposite Jim.

Some women might ignore appearances the first thing in the morning, but not Claire.

She sipped her coffee, now lukewarm, and wondered when Mary Fenton would get over that annoying habit of phoning so early. Then, her eyes falling on the hotel brochure which had come in the morning mail, Claire recalled the problem she'd been trying to discuss with Jim before the phone rang.

"Jim—please. This is important. I want to send in our reservations today. Won't you talk to Julie?" Julie would listen to her father. He'd be able to persuade her to spend the summer with her mother at the Mountain Lake House. It wasn't as if Julie didn't love the mountains. Claire knew why she'd taken such a stubborn stand about remaining in the city. But she wouldn't—she wouldn't let Julie continue to make a fool of herself over that Johnson boy.

"What's that, Claire? Talk to Julie?" Jim's voice came muffled through the intervening pages of his newspaper. Claire noted irrelevantly the striking contrast of his prematurely white hair to his bronzed, still youthful face. Yes, by any standards, Jim was a terribly attractive man. Women like Mary Fenton thought her rash, leaving Jim alone in the city every summer. But that was ridiculous! One had to be sensible. And if Jim's publishing firm kept him tied to his desk during the sweltering summer months, that was no reason for his wife and daughter to suffer, too. As for distrusting Jim—well, either he loved her, or he didn't. Should he ever decide he didn't, she had too much pride to want to hold him to an empty marriage vow.

If only Julie had inherited that same pride! That was what was worrying Claire now. But what was Jim saying?

"Good Lord, Claire, the girl's old enough to know her own mind. If she wants to stay home and take some courses, let her. I'll be here to keep an eye on her."

Stay home and take courses. Couldn't Jim see through that pathetic alibi?

"But, Jim—" oh, what was the use! He wasn't even listening. She'd have to handle this herself. She'd make Julie go with her. There'd be no more of these pitiful attempts to attract Grant Johnson's attention. Making up excuses to phone him, humbling herself for a smile, a brief hello, an intricately maneuvered date.

Even if one could win a man by such tactics, it was an empty victory. One had to have pride, Claire reflected. Julie was too young to realize that. Her heart twisted with love and pity as she remembered how unhappy the girl had been all these past months. But she'd been wrong, so wrong. If a two months' absence meant losing the boy, he wasn't worth winning in the first place.

Jim was getting up to leave. "Will you be home for dinner, dear?" With two books due to go to press within the week, Claire knew how rushed he must be.

"Dinner? Why—why, no. No, I'm afraid it's going to be two late nights in a row. Sam and I didn't finish those proofs we went over last night."

Claire meticulously poured herself a fresh cup of coffee from the silver urn. "Oh, yes, I didn't have a chance to ask what kept you last night."

"That history text. It's giving us a lot of trouble. Well, good-by, my dear."

The door had scarcely closed behind Jim when Julie came into the breakfast room. How slowly the girl walked—how pale she was, the signs of tears around her eyes and nose!

"Good morning, Mother." Julie slumped into a chair and stared listlessly at her orange juice.

Claire didn't answer for a moment. She was fingering the hotel brochure. Then, "Julie—"

"Oh, Mother, do—do we have to argue about this summer? I want to stay home. I've got to stay home." Julie's voice was desperate. There was pleading in every fiber of her slim young body.

"Yes—yes, of course you can stay home."

"Mother!" Her voice was suddenly joyous.

"I'm staying home, too." As she spoke, Claire was crumpling the brochure, her gleaming nails tearing through the heavily engraved paper.

"Gosh, Mother, I don't know what made you change your mind. But I'm glad—I'm certainly glad you did."

Of course Julie didn't know why she'd changed her mind. But Claire knew. Knew that Jim had never before lied to her. Not till just now, when he said he'd spent last night going over proofs with Sam. But Mary Fenton had said over the phone that she'd seen him at the theater with that attractive new woman client.

CHRISTIAN LOVE

LESSON TEXT—John 13:34, 35; I Corinthians 13:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—We love him, because he first loved us.—I John 4:19.

Many important things enlist the interest of the Christian, but we need to beware lest we neglect what Jesus declared to be the first and great commandment—that we love God; and its necessary sequel—that we love our neighbor. If love is forgotten (and who can deny that it often is in our day?), the very foundations are shaken. We need a revival of Christian love.

Do you want to know whether a man is a Christian? Find out whether he loves his brethren. Such is the test Jesus gives in these verses.

1. Commanded. It is the will and purpose of God that the followers of Christ should have a real love for one another. It is not to be a matter of impulse or chance, but the love God has for us should constrain us to love one another. Thus is love.

2. Exemplified. God has loved us. He does love us. How infinitely much is wrapped up in these simple words! He even gave His Son to die for us because He loved us (John 3:16). How then can we withhold our love from Him and from one another?

II. Love—A Christian Grace (I Cor. 13).

In a world where hatred prevails, and is in fact glorified, this chapter needs to be read and reread. We find that love is

1. Essential (vv. 1-3). Life has many excellent gifts and men quite properly seek after them. How do they compare with love, and what do they amount to apart from love? Glowing, angelic eloquence; the far-seeing eye of the prophet; the attainments of knowledge and culture; mountain-moving faith; liberal-hearted charity; martyr-like self-sacrifice—without love they are all as nothing. Apart from Christ and His love operating in their hearts and lives the worthiest attainments of men are vain and empty. Love is the very essence of a satisfying and useful life.

2. Effective (vv. 4-7). Does love really work, or is this just a fine-sounding but obsolete theory? It works.

Think of the things in life which irritate and depress us; then put opposite them the qualities of Christian love as given in verses 4 to 7, and you will agree that what this world needs most of all is love.

Remember that talking about love or reading about it or studying it in the Sunday school will not make it effective. We must put it into practice. Why not start now? You will be surprised at the results.

3. Eternal (vv. 8, 12). Many gifts are only temporary in their usefulness; in fact, almost everything that man makes or does (apart from his service for God) is transient. Even so vital a matter as prophecy shall one day find its end in fulfillment. Hope shall eventually find its longing expectation satisfied. Faith will be justified in seeing what it has believed. Childhood things will be put away by the full-grown man, knowledge will increase and darkness disappear.

But love—love is eternal. It never fails, and will never fail. God is love and God is eternal. From all eternity and unto all eternity love continues. Therefore, we agree with Paul who in the verse preceding this chapter (I Cor. 12:31) says that while you may covet the best gifts, here is the more excellent way—love.

Let us be clear about this. Love is not a substitute for regeneration, and certainly regeneration is no excuse for lack of love. Read John 13:34, 35 again and remember that if we are Christ's disciples we will count it a high privilege to keep this first and great commandment of love.

Dependence on God

Poverty in any shape helps to stir in man a sense of need, a disposition to consider himself as dependent. . . . The real puzzle of life consists not in the fact of widespread poverty but in that of widespread affluence; in the fact that so many are sufficiently endowed with "goods" as to believe they can live by them, and so cease to look for their true life to God their Father.—E. Lyttleton.

Death Becomes Transparent

And so the empty tomb becomes the symbol of a thoroughfare between life in time and life in the unshadowed presence of our God. Death is now like a short tunnel which is near my home; I can look through it and see the other side! In the risen Lord death becomes transparent. "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"—Dr. J. D. Jowett.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Let not your prophets and your diviners, that be in the midst of you, deceive you. . . . For they prophesy falsely unto you in my name; I have not sent them, saith the Lord." These words from Jeremiah comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, November 30, 1941, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be: "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you: they make you vain: they speak a vision of their own heart, and not out of the mouth of the Lord." (Jeremiah 23:16).

$700,000 Yearly Paid By A & P To Employees In U. S. Armed Forces

More than 2,600 employees of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company now in military and naval service are receiving compensation from the company at the rate of $700,000 a year in addition to their regular government pay, John A. Hartford, president, reported today.

"For more than a year, despite the increasing number of employees entering service, we have found it possible to continue supplementing the compensation they receive in performance of their patriotic duty," Mr. Hartford's announcement said. "The plan which makes these payments possible is being reconsidered each quarter year for revision to meet changing conditions of the emergency."

The military compensation plan provides A & P employees in service with 20 per cent of their salary in monthly installments. All qualified full time and part time employees working more than 30 hours a week are eligible for compensation not to exceed $100 a month. In addition, the company assumed payment of premiums on the group insurance policies held by the men.

Sale Of Christmas Seals Begins Dec. 4th

The annual drive to sell Christmas seals in Fulton will begin on Thursday, December 4, with Ernest Fall, Jr., chairman of the local drive. Funds obtained this way will be used for the prevention and control of tuberculosis in the United States. This is the 35th annual Christmas Seal Sale in the United States. Miss Emily P. Bissell conducted the first sale in this country at Wilmington, Del., in 1907.

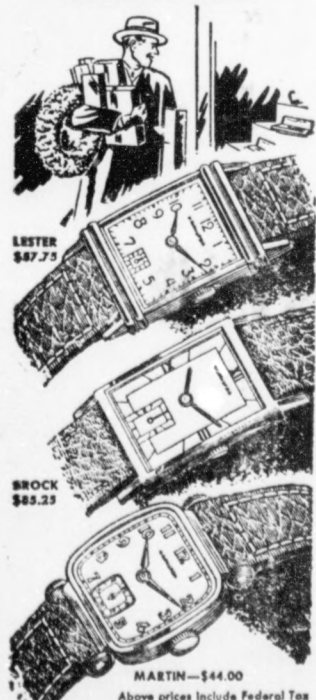

The first Christmas Seal Sale in the world was held in Denmark in 1904, the result of an inspiration of Einar Holboell, a postal clerk.

There are almost 1700 tuberculosis associations and 900 smaller committees affiliated with the National Tuberculosis Association in the United States. The tuberculosis mortality rate is now approximately 57 per 100,000 of the population. In the early 1900's it was close to 200. Thirty years ago tuberculosis was responsible for 11 out of every 100 deaths occurring in this country. Today it is responsible for less than five out of every 100 deaths.

Tuberculosis now ranks seventh in importance as a cause of death. It has been forced gradually into this position since 1912, up to which time it had been the first cause of death. There are estimated to be about 500,000 active cases of tuberculosis in the United States today.

The local chairman points out that anyone reading the above statistics must surely see how much good one's money does when used to buy seals and urges every citizen in this community to buy liberally when the worker calls in

Curving in snake-like but easy ascents from the Saddle of Pinnacle Mountain, which overlooks the famous pass, is the two-mile stretch of the Skyland Highway, where visitors get a view of the entrancing mountain wonderland of Kentucky, Virginia, and Tennessee. The Great Smokies can be seen towering in the Southeast. Lookout Mountain is visible through the haze on a clear day, and the broken hill country of Kentucky unfolds in a great drama as it was viewed in the days of Daniel Boone.

Historic Cumberland Gap First Shrine of Kentucky

(This is one of a series of articles sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association, which would tell Kentuckians of Kentucky as Kentucky should be in 1942—Sequi-Centennial Year.)

Here is Cleopatra's Bath Tub, with its crystal pool mirroring the silver beams of electric lights, in famous Cudjo's Cave, which extends in diverse and entrancing paths through the huge cavernous heart of Pinnacle Mountain at Cumberland Gap. Named for the war-time novel of J. T. Trowbridge in 1863, "Cudjo's Cave" is regarded by geologists as one of the most interesting and beautiful caverns found anywhere in the world. It was occupied by soldiers during the Civil War, and dates go back to Revolutionary time, and myriads of rock formations with diverse colors charm its countless visitors each year.

AS KENTUCKIANS prepare to celebrate the sesqui-centennial of the state's admission to the Union in 1942, Cumberland Gap is one historic shrine of preeminent importance. It was through this historic gateway, on the last western range of the Appalachians, that the hunters and founders of Kentucky passed in the conquest of "The Dark and Bloody Ground." The Wilderness Trail, entering the Kentucky land at the pass and following the general route of the age-old Warriors Path of the Indians, became the life-line which fed the young commonwealth from 1775 to 1825.

Cumberland Gap, framed by the portals of Pinnacle Mountain and Three States Peak, witnessed the most amazing migration in the annals of American history, and most of present-day Kentuckians, as well as many residents of the states of the Northwest, cherish with pride the memory of their heroic ancestors who followed Daniel Boone and the other pioneers through the old gateway and along the dangerous trail in the dark wilderness before the valleys of the Blue Grass were reached.

Nationally known for its influence upon the course of American history, Cumberland Gap and the surrounding scenic region is now scheduled for development as a National Historical Park, through the cooperation of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia. Prominent in pioneer history, a strategic point in the Civil War struggle, and the focal center of a spectacular industrial development in 1870, the gap has been the scene of tremendous episodes typical of the growth of the nation.

The pageantry of historical incidents at Cumberland Gap, the long blue wall of the Cumberlands cut in twain at the Gap, the tumbling streams and interesting caverns, the sharp gorge through Pine Mountain at the Narrows where the Cumberland River broke out of its mountain imprisonment, the famous Cumberland Ford over which the early pilgrims crossed, and the sylvan-locked Laurel Cove in Pine Mountain State Park where thousands of Kentuckians come each year to exult the magnificent floral beauty of the mountains, combine to make this region one of Kentucky's most romantic spots.

The tide of humanity which once flowed through the area is turning again to this shrine of conquest, to enjoy its beauty and to visualize again the glories of the past.

Fulton County Farmers Eligible for Cotton Insurance On 1942 Crop

Approximately 600 cotton farmers in Fulton county are eligible for "all-risk" insurance on their 1942 crop when policies offered by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation go on sale at the county AAA office, H. M. Pewitt, county AAA chairman, announced today.

Sale of cotton insurance is expected to begin about the first week in January, Mr. Pewitt said. Cotton insurance is being offered for the first time under the AAA crop insurance program, which has been in effect for wheat since 1939. Every farmer cooperating in the AAA programs of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is eligible for insurance on his acreage of the crops now being insured.

Either 50 to 75 per cent of the farmer's normal yield is insurable under the program. The insurance covers losses from all unavoidable hazards, such as flood and drought. Cost of the insurance will be based on the actual risk of growing cotton on each farm, Mr. Pewitt said.

CAPITOL COMMENTS

By David M. Porter

The Legislative Council is meeting here in Frankfort. Most of their work will be on the State budget bill that will be acted on by the Legislature.

Governor Johnson has expressed the belief that taxes should not be reduced and that expenditures should not be materially increased. That any surplus money in excess of the budget should go to the State institutions, and his plan is to set up a three man advisory board to supervise these expenditures.

The Council could really be of great service to the State if all the senators and representatives would co-operate with them and send in their proposed legislation for advice and suggestions. If this were done, a bulletin could be sent out by the Council to all the members of the General Assembly telling of these proposed bills that were unconstitutional or a duplication could be designated as such and, most important of all, the representatives and senators would have a chance to talk the proposed legislation over with the people they represented at home. There would be no long delays of bills and how their constituents stood on them. More bills would be passed on their merit and less from the pressure of political bosses or lobbyists.

The Council is composed of eight members of the Senate, eight members of the House and five heads of State Departments, with the Lieutenant Governor as chairman.

Here are the members of the present Council: Senators Ray B. Moss, Pineville; Elmer D. Stephenson, Pikeville; Paul M. Basham, Hardinsburg; W. E. Rogers, Guthrie; E. J. Stahr, Hickman; Ira W. See, Louisa; N. F. Harper, Scottsville and F. M. Tapp, Dixon.

Representatives: Henry Ward of Paducah; Cass Walden, Edmonson; Harry F. Walters, Shelbyville; Joe E. Robinson, Lancaster; Faust Y. Simpson, Morganfield; Clyde Smith of Barbourville; Stanley Dickson, Paris; George Anderson, Whitley City; Dr. B. F. Shields, Taylorsville, Speaker of the House and ex-officio vice chairman of the council. Public Utilities Commissioner John Kirtley; Commissioner of Revenue H. Clyde Reeves; Commissioner of Welfare W. A. Frost; J. Dan Talbott and Sherman Goodpastor, director of the Division of Insurance.

Kentucky's Rural Areas Gain

KENTUCKY was one of 12 states in which the trend of industry and population toward small towns like the above typical southern village was most pronounced during the past decade, according to an analysis of latest federal census figures by Future, magazine of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. This trend, noted nationally in a 6.4 per cent gain for rural population during the decade, indicates that more men who work and trade in towns are seeking "greater personal freedom" by building homes in the country, Future points out. As an example, the magazine cited Schenley Distillers corporation which, surveying personnel at its plants in Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Frankfort, Ky., found an increasing number of workmen were building new homes on small farms within easy driving distance of work.

ALTHOUGH only 1,996,300 of Kentucky's 2,845,627 residents were classed as "rural," the state's non-urban population nevertheless gained 10.0 per cent during the decade, compared with only 6.3 per cent for city areas like Louisville, above. Improved communications, air travel and more widespread use of conveniences once available only in cities are among important factors in the new trend, according to Future's analysis.

A STATEMENT TO THE CITIZENS OF SOUTH FULTON, TENNESSEE

I have been asked by many citizens if I would make the race for Mayor again. Both by those that supported me two years ago and those that did not, but say now that they will give me their full support, if I will run again.

I had made up my mind that I would not run, but after due consideration, I have decided that if the people want me to serve again, I will accept. Having served two years on the Board and four years as Mayor, I think, I know the worries of the office if you do your duty in trying to get the city's ordinances reasonably enforced fairly and justly to all citizens alike without fear or favor. And in trying to protect the taxpayer's interests by using every economy consistent with good government.

Now having decided to make the race, and having no other business that will keep me from devoting my time to the affairs of the city and trying to do something that will be worthwhile in the future: To you that know me it is not necessary for me to tell you what I stand for, but to those who have recently become citizens I shall give you a few of the things I shall stand for if you elect me to the office of Mayor.

FIRST—I shall make an honest effort to have the ordinances of the city reasonably enforced fairly to all citizens alike, both rich and poor, white and colored.

SECOND—I believe in and shall practice economy in the city affairs as far as good government will permit, and not go beyond the money collected for the city expenses.

THIRD—I believe in and shall practice applying all money collected for a certain purpose to that purpose, and no other, as required by the Charter and by the city ordinance.

FOURTH—I believe in and shall insist on having the taxes assessed within the time limit as fixed by the Charter and by the city ordinance, and on a fair and equitable basis to all alike.

FIFTH—All that I ask is that before you cast your vote on December 2, 1941, you examine the records of my administration and learn the truth, then, compare it with the present administration, and I shall have no fears as to who you will support in the coming election for Mayor.

To be eligible to vote in this election, you must have registered either in 1939 or 1941, and have a 1940 poll tax receipt.

Thanking you for all past favors, and if you decide that I could and would best serve you as Mayor, I solicit your support. If you elect me the only promise I make is that I shall do my sworn duty as I understand it, without fear or favor.

Yours Respectfully,

J. H. Lowe

WE OWE IT TO OURSELVES

The one thing that concerns us as parents more than anything else is health. Not only our own health, which is important . . . but what is more important . . . the health of our children . . . the parents of tomorrow.

Children are so susceptible to every sort of disease we cannot do too much toward surrounding them with every possible safeguard. It is a well known fact that a child's greatest enemy is tuberculosis and rarely does a child reach maturity without being exposed . . . and more often than most of us realize . . . to becoming infected with this terrible disease.

It does no good for us to take it for granted that our children live properly, eat proper food and associate with the right kind of playmates. We know about the conditions in our own homes, but we don't know about the children they come in contact with outside our homes and in school. We must not overlook the great need for frequent check-ups by our physicians, and on the first suggestion of danger we must take steps to see that the damage is promptly corrected . . . because it can be corrected if taken in time.

The job providing effective health protection is too big for us to cope with alone . . . particularly where tuberculosis is concerned. That's the job of the tuberculosis associations in every community . . . and to them many of us owe our present good health . . . and many of us our lives. They carry on a never-ending search for new cases and when they are found they take every proper precaution to prevent the spreading of infection. The value of this life-saving service is priceless . . . it must not only go on uninterrupted, but we must help make its extension possible by providing the money which supports it.

These days postmen everywhere are delivering to homes the simple means through which we can do our part. I mean, of course, the Christmas Seals, which at this season of the year are making their appearance. The money from them supports the Tuberculosis Association and its year-round campaign against TB. The more Seals we buy, the more work these organizations can do . . . and the more generously we contribute, the sooner they can drive out tuberculosis. The purchase of Christmas Seals is a real duty we owe to ourselves and to the community of which we are a part.

Let's all get these Seals out right now and send in today as much money as our purses will allow. Anyone who didn't get Seals by mail can obtain them from his local tuberculosis association. So there's no excuse for anyone to neglect this welcome opportunity to become a partner in a great old American institution—the Christmas Seal Campaign to save lives.

WE SINCERELY THANK YOU

We desire to thank our friends and neighbors, for their sympathy and kindness in our sad bereavement, the passing of our beloved mother, Mrs. C. C. McClain. Also for the beautiful floral offerings and all other acts of kindness.

We thank Dr. George Biggs, Rev. T. T. Harris and Jackson's Funeral Home for their kind and splendid service.

Earl, Ollie, Porter McClain. Mrs. Myrtle Byars. Mrs. Lillie Westmoreland. Mrs. Ola Maupins. Mrs. Fletta Page.
