NUMBER FORTY-SEVEN

BLACKOUT OBSERVED HERE THURS. NIGHT

A brief black-out was observed in Fulton last night (Thursday) from 8 to 8:05 p.m., sponsored by the local Civilian Defense Council, with the power being shut off all over the city. These precautions are now being observed all over the nation and this was the first for Fulton.

The local unit, of which Robert Lamb is chairman, plans to sponsor these black-outs at regular intervals in the near future, at which time citizens in the residential section will be asked to cooperate by cutting off their own current or, if lights are necessary to shade their windows tightly.

Local policemen will patrol the city to see that all people cooperate. Fulton, as a busy railroad and highway center, is liable to see many defense steps in safeguarding the city. All citizens are urged to be ready to cooperate in every way possible.

A PRAYER FOR THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

From the Writings of Dr. Charles Stelzle

Thou Great Sovereign of all nations, Thou King of Kings, and Lord of hosts, in these perilous times of war and rumors of war, when all the powers of hate have been loosed to kill and to destroy, we pray that Thy Spirit may steady the minds and quicken the hearts of those who call themselves by Thy name, acknowledging Thee as Father.

We pray especially for the President of these United States, upon whom has been laid heavy burdens and grave responsibilities, as he speaks for our country and for its people.

Renew his strength as daily his burdens increase. Give him the wisdom and understanding that cometh only from above. Protect him from those whose motives and methods are prompted by the spirit of selfishness or personal ambition. Show him Thy will. Out of the conflict of counsel may Thy voice come unto him saying: This is the way—walk ye in it. And as Thy will is revealed, increase his faith, so that he may go forth in the consciousness of having fulfilled the task committed to him.

And we pray that he, with us, shall seek above all things else to honor and glorify Thee, hastening the coming of Thy Kingdom upon earth, and the rule of the spirit of brotherhood in the lives and the hearts of all peoples of the earth so that all nations may dwell together in peace and unity. Amen.

REASONABLE DEDUCTION

Boss (to applicant for job: "Are't you the fellow we fired yesterday?"
"That's right," replied the job seeker.
"In that case," queried the other, "why do you come in here looking for a job?"
"Why not?" demanded the applicant. "I lost it here, didn't I?"
Trust not him that seems a saint.
Give thy purse rather than thy time.

Simple Games Enliven Party On New Year's

Joyous celebrations throughout the nation will welcome in 1942 on the stroke of 12 Wednesday night. This young miss takes her celebrating quite seriously as she blows out the old year at a party in New York.

New Year's parties are always fun, but they will achieve new life and interest if several new games are included with the old favorites. Spelling bees and guessing contests have been played for many years, but a few modern variations of these games can make them more popular than ever.

Spell sdrawkaB
Little enthusiasm will probably be noticed when a good old-fashioned spelling bee is announced. Before the game is over, however, the guests will probably be wondering if they ever knew how to spell, because the words in this contest must be spelled backwards.

A little competition will enliven the game, so arrange the guests into two or three teams, then tell them that to save embarrassment the words will all be simple ones. Each contestant will be eliminated from the game when he makes his second miss, and the first team to be spelled down loses the game. After casually announcing that the words must be spelled backwards and with no "second chance" if a wrong start is made, start the game going with simple words such as dog, cat, boy and so on.

When the players have caught on, make the words increasingly difficult. To keep the game moving and to dispel any possible suspicion of favoritism it is best to read the words from a list prepared in advance.

Guessing Time.
Anybody can estimate the length of a second, but few people know how long two or three minutes will last.

Have the guests sit in a circle around the room and announce that you are going to ask them to estimate the amount of time it takes for four minutes to pass. Clap your hands when the four minutes is to start. To prevent the guests from counting out the time to themselves, pass around some more refreshments, or if someone can play the piano, sing a song they all know. This will not last more than a minute or two, and it will throw the players completely off count. Then sit in silence, waiting for the time to pass. Soon the guests will begin calling off "four minutes," and from there on the game will take care of itself.

The "secret of success" at a party of this kind is to play each game only a short time before changing to a new game. No matter how much the guests are enjoying a game, it is advisable to stop the game after a few minutes and change to something else.

Resolutions 'Silly,' Psychiatrist Says

New Year's resolutions are just a bit silly in the opinion of Dr. Francis J. Gerly, professor of psychiatry at Loyola university. He believes that a person who makes resolutions is something of an exhibitionist in addition to being quite childish. "And moreover," he adds, "he probably won't carry it out anyway."

Dr. Gerly asserts that New Year's resolutions have little value. "I don't think resolutions are the best methods of curbing our little difficulties and correcting ourselves. The best method is giving some thought to what causes our troubles and trying to correct them rationally."

"People must remember there are human limitations. Humans can't be perfect. They should do the best they can without straining, for the minute they strain, as they do with New Year's resolutions, they make a botch of their efforts."

Children especially should not be encouraged to make resolutions in his opinion. "A child should be taught to do the best job he can at all times and not save his difficulties for one particular time and tear them up by one superhuman effort that is almost sure to fail."

How much is experience worth?

WHAT do most good doctors have besides skill?

Experience.
Good lawyers? Golfers? Machinists?

Experience.
The same thing is true of good electric service. Running an electric company is a specialized business. Good electric service can't always be delivered simply on somebody's promise that it will be.

It takes equipment, money, and what is most important, it takes trained men with the knowledge of how to serve.

In our business, as in every other business, there is no substitute for experience. And to make a success of this business there must be this constant aim—to give customers more for less.

For example, your household electric rates have been going down steadily to where they are only about half of what they were 10 to 15 years ago. This means that today you get about twice as much electricity as you used to get—for the same money. Business management of the electric companies has made this possible. Your electric company and its employees. The folks whose constant aim is to keep on improving your service, at less and less cost to you.

Cayce High School

The game was a surprise to every one who saw it. The points and fouls made by each player follows:

Western—	Fouls	Points
T. Nipp	0	2
R. King	2	7
Gledwell	0	6
C. Nipp	4	13
J. A. King	3	1
Total	9	29

Billy Sheehan thrilled the fans with his overhead shots; Billy Lowe made the crowd cheer with his one-handed shots. Everyone's heart skipped a beat when Roy Cayce—

Cayce—	Fouls	Points
Sheehan	3	7
Lowe	3	10
Nethery	2	10
Harrison	2	6

Liliker 1 4
Total 11 37

On the Western team the hardest fighter, the highest scorer, and the giver of the most thrills was C. Nipp. The other players were hard fighters but Nipp seemed to have more luck in scoring.

The Cayce team gave the crowd more thrills than Western did. Nethery's three long shots seemed to miss everything but the bottom of the net. John Roland Harrison and Junior Liliker made the people pinch themselves to see if they were dreaming. The majority of those who saw the game said that the game was good and that they wished Cayce would always thrill the fans in the same manner.

P. T. A. Meeting
About 100 patrons attended the regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association in the school auditorium Thursday evening. The president, Mrs. Fred Bondurant, presided during the short business session. Miss Annie Laurie Turner, chairman of the program committee, introduced the program.

The one-act play, "The Ghost Story," written by Booth Tarkington, was presented by members of the third year English class. The cast of characters included: George, an earnest young gentleman of 22, Charles Edward Harrington; Anna, a pretty young girl of 20, Ann Garrigan; three girls of 19 or 20, Mary, Dorothy Fuller; Grace, Hil-da Atwill; Lennie, Lucile Williamson; Four youths of about the same age: Tom, John Roland Harrison; Floyd, Jimmie Wade Brown; Lynn, Ray Daniel Yates; Fred, Eugene Cruce; the housemaid, Margaret Sublette.

Christmas carols were sung by four senior girls: Elizabeth McGehee, Edna Earle Johnson, Dorothy Tucker and Janette Rice. Miss Annie Laurie Turner was the accompanist. The Reverend J. E. Hopper, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the devotional during which he read the Christmas story from Luke.

A Christmas scene was enacted with the Bible characters represented by the following persons, Mary, Mrs. Harvey Bondurant; Joseph, Billy Sheehan; The Angel, Hazel Bondurant; Three Wise Men, John Marshall, Richard Adams, Willis Moser and James Campbell Cruce. The singers off-stage were Mrs. A. J. Lowe and J. C. Maneece with Mrs. Clara Carr at the piano. The organization voted not to hold the January meeting due to the holidays, therefore, the next regular meeting will be Thursday night, February 5, 1942.

WHAT ABOUT BOMBS?

Charged with "wilfully disturbing other persons," George Hall, 53, of London, was sentenced to 7 days in jail for snoring in an air raid shelter despite his plea that "I cannot help what I do when I am asleep." The clincher, however seemed to be a policeman's testimony that when Hall was awakened he swore and threatened to strike the shelter marshal.

The correct date for the splendid program to be presented by Hal Burns and his barking dog "sissy," Tillie Thrasher, Uncle Ned, Hank Penny, Jackie and all the gang is Friday night, December 19th. Every one is urged to attend as the proceeds will go to the Crutchfield School but the program will be held in Cayce high school auditorium.

Shirley Jean rice spent Monday night with her sister, Mrs. James Sullivan, and Mr. Sullivan.

Friends and neighbors extend their sympathy to the bereaved of Mrs. Bertie Henry who departed this life last week.

God knows how much we will miss her. Never shall her memories fade.

Loving thoughts shall ever wander To the spot where she is laid. Loving and kind in all her ways Upright and just to the end of her days

Sincere and true in heart and mind Beautiful memories she left behind. Her pleasant way and smiling face Are a pleasure to recall

She had a kind word for each And died beloved by all.

Our lips cannot tell how we miss her

Our hearts cannot tell what to say

God alone know how we miss her

Never shall her memories fade. A wonderful christian and Dr. and One who was better God never made

A wonderful worker so loyal and true

One in a million and that was you.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last

The worlds weary trouble and trials are past

In silence she suffered, in patience she bore

Till God called her home, to suffer no more.

Our hearts were torn while she suffered

But we did our best to be brave and dedicated to all relatives of the

In the home beyond the grave.

(Written by Mrs. James Sullivan and dedicated to al relatives of the deceased.)

HOLIDAY HOSTESS HINTS

A large, festive cake will confer upon any Christmas banquet a Yuletide air that is quite distinctive. Individual cakes help, too.

When carving turkey, first cut through the leg, crack the joint, and then disjoint the leg from the turkey. Cut the breast in medium thick slices, not in chunks. Use a sharp knife.

Turnips make an excellent garnish. Cook until tender, cool and scoop out the insides. Spread with butter and fill with cubed, seasoned beef. Reheat and surround the fowl platter.

If you spill pumpkin filling over the edge of the crust it is likely to burn during baking. Avoid this by pouring only part of the filling into the crust, put it in the oven, then pour in the balance of the filling.

New Ideas Foster Spirit of Christmas

At Christmas time ideas are more important than ever—amusing ideas to keep minds from too stern realities; clever ideas to make money-saving a pleasure; ideas to stress the old, old Christmas spirit of joy and reverence and gay family gatherings.

Get the family into the spirit of an old-fashioned Christmas with all helping—“deck the hall with boughs of holly,” bring in the yule log. If you have no fireplace, then let the yule log become a centerpiece decoration for the table.

Use evergreens, red berries, pine cones, acorns for that home-made Christmassy look. Grandmother's festoon of cedar boughs tied with a big red bow still holds more genuine Christmas spirit than the most expensive artificial decorations.

But if your family demands a change from the too-familiar, suggest they invent decorations. Maybe they want a red, white and blue Christmas. Red barn paint and bluing are still cheap.

For packages, for mantelpieces—think how many everyday things are already red, white or blue, or how easily things may be enameled or dyed. Paint or dip pine cones, sticks and dark things in enamel or show card colors. Dye pipe-cleaners, little fluffy feathers, dried grasses.

A package with red, white and blue feathers tied in with the bow, a Christmas tree decorated solely with balls of cotton, bright red, white and blue—they can't be beat. Strew white and blue stars around; decorate with candy canes crossed saber-wise and tied with a big blue bow. Make huge imitation candles of mailing tube or stove pipe or logs, covered as you please. They are fine for outside the door or by the fireplace.

Whatever you do, hide your solemnity with old-fashioned simple gaiety... make it a seriously important family Christmas!

Christmas Party

"Annie," the gentle chimpanzee of the Philadelphia zoo, certainly seems to enjoy her pre-Christmas party. Her favorite gift—of course—was her toy "monkey doll."

First Christmas Tree

In Strassburg, Germany, in 1804, the first Christmas tree appears in literature. It is thought that the custom of using Christmas trees in Germany spread from Strassburg.

When Queen Victoria married Prince Albert, he introduced the Christmas tree custom into England.

From the early emigrants of Germany and England was derived the custom of the Christmas tree in America.

Christmas Anyway

With the approach of another Christmas, Britons recall last year's celebrations when they observed the holiday underground where they could be safe from Nazi bombers. Mothers and their children gathered in shelters like the one above to celebrate the Christmas season. Last year hostilities were ceased for three days during the Christmas observance.

Observe Rules When Sending Greeting Cards

Definite rules govern the signing of Christmas cards, even though they are the expression of friendship and good wishes.

It is important that the cards reflect the degree of intimacy existing between the sender and the recipient. An air of formality in a card to a very good friend is as improper as an intimate greeting to a casual business acquaintance. Many persons prefer to select cards separately to find a personal subject and message for each friend. This is an ideal thing to do, but it requires considerable time as well as talent.

Handwritten signatures are written differently than names on formally engraved cards. When signing your name, it is best not to include titles—that is, do not put "Mr." or "Mrs." before your name. When names are engraved, however, they achieve a more formal tone and therefore require titles. The only exception to this is the single man whose name is never preceded by a "Mr." even though it is engraved on the card.

Married couples writing informal cards to friends are faced with several special problems. There is no definite rule which tells whose name stands first, but if the names are written by hand it is better for the one who signs them to write his or her own name last. When the name is printed on the card it is immaterial whether the husband's or the wife's name comes first.

A very nice signature for a family would be, "From the George Karpis—all five." If there are only three in the family it would be equally suitable to write, "John, Mary and the Baby."

It is entirely proper to sign your name alone when sending cards to a business acquaintance whom your wife (or husband) does not know. In this case the card is addressed to the business acquaintance alone, even though he or she is married. Cards sent to a good friend, even though he is not known by your husband or wife, may be signed with both your names and the envelope addressed to "Mr. and Mrs."

Whenever doubt arises concerning the manner in which a Christmas card should be addressed or signed, use your own sense of good taste. After all, the mere fact you are sending a card is an expression of friendship, and as a result almost any errors you may make will be completely overlooked.

Superstitions Surround

'Powers' of Christmas

There is a Scottish belief that to be born on Christmas is to have the power to see spirits and even to command them. Sir Walter Scott says that the Spaniards attributed the haggard and downcast looks of Philip II to the terrible visions he was able to see because he was born on Christmas.

French peasants believe that babies born on Christmas have the gift of prophecy.

In Silesia a baby born on Christmas will become either a lawyer or a thief.

In middle Europe it is said that if a baby is born at sermon time Christmas eve, someone in the house will die within the year.

English mothers used to take sick babies to the door Christmas eve midnight. Mary was expected to pass with the Christ Child. If the baby recovered, it was a sign that it had been touched by Christ, with healing fingers, and if it died, the Christ child had called the baby to be his playmate in heaven.

Chimney and Santa

It is reported that Santa's custom of coming down the chimney on Christmas eve stems from an old English notion—that sweeping down the chimney at New Year's was necessary so that good luck could enter in.

DONNA GRACE HASTINGS

Lincoln, Roosevelt Bring Spirit Of Christmas to White House

The White House has seen all kinds of Christmases during the 140 years that it has domiciled the President of the United States. There have been rowdy, fun-loving Christmases during the Teddy Roosevelt administration, and there have been long stretches when Santa Claus wasn't quite sure whether to stop at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue.

John and Abigail Adams, the first tenants of the "President's Palace" brought no children to it, and Mrs. Adams felt that New England was a much better place for the seat of the government.

There have been many other childless Christmases in the White House, such as the dull period between the Tylers and the Lincolns. But probably the two families which will go down in Santa Claus' memory for a really riotous holiday season are the Theodore Roosevelts, when Kermit, Archie and Quentin put a pony in the elevator and introduced the first electrically lighted Christmas tree; and the current clan of Roosevelts, who from Franklin Delano the First to Franklin Delano the Third have invoked the spirit of Christmas with equal abandon.

Tad Lincoln's Invasion.

The nearest thing to Rooseveltian good spirits in the early days was induced by Tad Lincoln who—with his pet—had the full run of the mansion.

The stately mansion had never known any such invasion since the Christmas of 1836, when Andrew Jackson threw open its doors to the orphans of Washington.

When the Theodore Roosevelts came to the White House, there was plenty of festivity, but no Christmas tree. The explanation given to the children was that a tree with candles was a fire hazard.

But the next year, the Roosevelt boys led TR to a closet, opened the door, and surprised him with a Christmas tree sparkling with electric lights. They had conspired with the electrician and prepared the first electrically lighted tree in the White House.

Christmas Spirit Rises.

Today, there is always an electrically lighted tree in the East room, and another—the intimate tree—in the second floor hall. If Christmas spirit were registered on a thermometer, it would show a steady rise in the last 15 years. The Coolidge boys were too old to go in for Santa Claus.

The Hoover Christmas was warmer, for the lugubrious Mr. Hoover really tried to unbend on Christmas day. The most expert unbending was done, however, by his secretary, Larry Richey, who burst out of the fireplace in the East room on Christmas morning, to the delight of Peggy Anne and Peter, the President's grandchildren.

Christmas spirit rose to a still warmer degree when the F. D. Roosevelts came in and, instead of hiring the professional reader engaged by the Hoovers to read the Dickens "Christmas Carol," the reading was taken over by that master of dramatic art, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Dear Santa Claus:

Christmas is almost here again and I am thankful for what you brought me last year. I want you to bring me a bike, a wagon, and fruit, candy and fireworks. Don't forget my little brother, David Ray, he wants a tricycle and a tractor.

Behind The Scenes In American Business

It looks as though retail business—for the country as a whole—is getting close to the point where the gains it chalks up, week by week, will be accounted for only by the increased prices, and will not mean increased buying of actual goods. In areas not directly stimulated by defense—production employment and payrolls this point has been reached already. Overall, the weekly gains in store sales—which are measured in dollar volume—have been just about matching the average retail price increases. After Christmas, many store executives fear, the actual net movement of goods across the counters may be less than in the same weeks a year before. Reasons: Sharp dent rising prices have put in purchasing power of fixed-income, white-collar folks apprehension about taxes; payments on the large amount of installment buying undertaken earlier this year are now absorbing the surplus income of many families; summer's "beat the tax" shopping splurge got many persons unusually well stocked up on clothing, furnishings, staples.

Washington—The strike-curbing bill of Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia that passed the House by 252 to 136, was considered the most stringent of several Congress had to consider. The fact that it was sent to the labor committee of the Senate, rather than the judicial, lent weight to the opinion it would be considerably tamed down before reaching a Senate vote. Cheered to the echo by the National Association of Manufacturers convention when he appeared there after the House action, Smith quickly warned against assuming the bill was on behalf of manufacturers, said it was "on behalf of all Americans who believe in good and fair government." Bill Knudsen, director-general of OPM, had previously told the group: "... I can't for the life of me understand how in a period of national emergency such foolishness as this can go on. ... We are in a period of national emergency such foolishness as this can go on. ... We are in a very good position regarding wages and working conditions. We have all kinds of work to do, and then we have to stop and argue about jurisdictional disputes and organizational disputes, and Heaven knows what. ..."

Nutrition Needs—As defense production mounts, the need for higher nutrition standards becomes greater if we are to have the strength and health necessary for the job, federal food experts say. And as farm prices mount—as they have—the need for more efficient distribution becomes greater if we are to be able to buy enough of the essential protective foods which give that strength—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. Wider use of "streamlined" mass distribution methods would help greatly in this respect, according to Earl R. French, marketing director of the A&P's produce-buying affiliate. Speaking before the Connecticut Vegetable Growers Association he declared savings of more than $100,000,000 to producers and consumers could thus be made on fresh fruits and vegetables alone. As it is today, with much of the nation's distribution machinery antiquated and over-crowded, he said, consumers pay $2,000,000,000 a year for produce—and only $700,000,000 of it gets back to the growers.

Independent—American women are going to be much more independent, economically, after the war. So said experts at the Stephens College forum at Columbia, Mo., citing these factors: So much of today's work is machine-done, with accent on dexterity rather than muscle; vocational training of women is expanding rapidly, to fit them for jobs they'll obtain during the war, and retain afterwards; and industrial progress and invention are making ordinary household work for women relatively obsolete, so that more and more of this work will be done by "experts" working outside the home—while the "women of the house" may be gainfully employed elsewhere. ... But in spite of this economic freedom, the conferees agreed that woman's "larger responsibilities" of guidance and moral strength—in family, civic and national matters—are being similarly increased by the war, and that these, too, will remain after the war. New techniques in training will be needed to meet this situation, the Forum agreed.

FOOD ODDITY

To make "chunu," a powder used for soup, Peruvian Indians soak potatoes in water and freeze them. Then, each morning, they dance barefoot upon the "spuds." In several days, the potatoes become dehydrated and hard as stone. They then are beaten into powder.

Money Talks

By Frederick Stamm, Economist
Director of Adult Education
UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE

For the past ten years we have heard a great deal about the "forgotten man." From 1932 to 1937, he was the industrial worker who was out of a job, or the farmer who was plagued by low prices. In order to help these "forgotten men" the government organized various Federal agencies.

Since the beginning of the war these groups have been getting along very nicely. The industrial worker has been one of the major participants in the defense boom. The farmer also seems destined to get a larger share of the national income than he has for some time. The "forgotten man" of 1941 is the white-collar worker in our offices and stores. Recent statistics indicate that his income is more or less static and that he has not benefitted from the defense boom. In fact, he is fighting a losing battle against higher prices and higher taxes.

His taxes have been increased several times over that which he paid last year and are also much higher. Leon Henderson, Price Administrator, stated recently "that cost of living already 11-12 per cent high than at the beginning of the war will be up as much as 20 per cent by next year."

Faced with higher costs on the one hand and static income on the other, we can readily see that the buying power, and consequently the standard of living, of this large group is almost certain to be much lower, for at least, the balance of the emergency period.

He bears misery best that hides it most.

CHRISTMAS PLUM PUDDINGS NEED AGE FOR FLAVOR

Plum pudding and its close relative, fruit cake, improve with age. Miss Maude Guthrie, U-T Extension nutritionist says that either of these holiday standbys made in late November will taste better for ripening until Christmas. Some, made along with the household supply, can be used for gifts. Fruit cakes baked in glass casseroles are attractive and store well under the glass lid of the casserole.

Both plum puddings and fruit cakes are put together in much the same way, but the puddings are usually richer and moist. The same way, but the puddings. They contain more fat and more liquid, and are cooked by steaming in a greased can instead of by baking. Store plum puddings in tight tins, and reheat by steaming.

A few pointers: Pick the fruit over, wash and dry it. Chop it in a bowl; do not grind. Cut citron with a sharp knife. Candied grapefruit peel makes a good substitute for citron; candied cranberries for candied cherries. Cut up nuts with a knife. Look out for bits of shell and be sure the nuts are fresh.

The liquid may be cider, grape juice, tart jelly, sour cream, molasses, honey, or maple sirup. Honey helps to keep the cake moist, but only mild-flavored honey or molasses is desirable.

Sift the flour with the leavening and spices, and mix half of it with

SILO SIMPKINS SAYS

Food defense is a vital part of total defense.

Fulcaster and Forward are recommended wheat varieties for Tennessee.

Hens and cows are a hard combination to beat as food and cash producers.

A good way to nail your soil down in winter is to sow a cover crop. There is still time to put in wheat, Parley and Rye.

The tomato is not only a popular food with a matchless flavor and an attractive color, but it is an expensive source of vitamin C.

Sixty years ago three out of every four farmers owned the land they cultivated. Today nearly half are tenants or sharecroppers.

Recent experiments show that plenty of foods carrying vitamin

B, such as milk, eggs, liver, green vegetables and fruits, help prevent grey hair, false teeth, bow legs, and lack-lustre eyes.

Chemical Solution Protects Christmas Trees From Fire

Lighted candles hold no fears for the young lady trimming her Christmas tree, for it has been sprayed with a non-inflammable wash.

Christmas trees are still a hazard. Electric lights may have short circuits, and some folks are careless with cigarettes and matches.

To fireproof the tree, first get it from four to six days before you intend to decorate it. Then weigh the tree and buy one-fourth as many pounds of ammonium sulfate as the tree weighs. This chemical is available in most stores that sell seeds and fertilizers.

For each pound of ammonium sulfate use 1½ pints of water to make the fireproofing solution. Mix the solution in something tall and narrow that will hold the tree upright. Then saw off the end of the tree diagonally so as to give a large cut surface. Set the tree in the solution in a cool place, away from the direct sunlight, and leave it there until most of the solution is absorbed. The foliage will stay green if the temperature of the room is from 55 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Chef Describes How to Carve Turkey Properly

Fine roast turkey reigns supreme over the American Christmas table. But no matter how large or small it may be, the obstacle of carving the bird must first be overcome before it can be enjoyed.

Since carving is an art in itself, a few expert suggestions are made by Maurice Gonneau, chef at a downtown hotel in New York.

Before starting to cut the turkey, sharpen the carving knife with the steel. The correct way to sharpen the knife is to hold the steel securely in the left hand, passing the blade against the far side of the steel with a quick stroke toward the left hand.

When the knife is sharpened, remove the second joints by putting fork between second joint and drumstick. Insert knife between carcass and second joint and cut, then with the fork pull the joint free from the carcass. If turkey is properly cooked this will be easy. Next remove the wings by cutting very carefully, inserting knife toward the joints and pull out as with the second joint. Take care not to cut into the breast.

With the breast of the turkey facing you, slice the white meat with a downward stroke and away from the bone. Next cut the drumstick free from the second joint and slice the latter. Then cut the tail with lower back meat and cut out the "oyster" which is a small amount of dark meat on the back which is always in demand because of its delicate flavor.

Serve the meat with the stuffing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce. Spoon out the stuffing which is placed first on the plate. Cover with one piece of dark and one piece of light meat, unless there are special preferences, and cover with giblet gravy. Place helping of cranberry sauce on the side.

Many Christmas Towns Found in Postal Guide

Christmas names are found throughout the United States. There are two towns named Christmas, one in Florida and another in Kentucky. Maine has a Christmas Cove, and there are Bethlehems in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Indiana, Maryland, Georgia, Kentucky and New Hampshire. Santa Claus, Ind., is the most popular Christmas post office. There is a Noel in Missouri and Virginia. Nazareth is located in Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and Texas. Hollytree is in Alabama, and Kentucky has a Holly Bush and a Mistletoe. Thirteen post offices are named Laurel. Each of these towns handles huge quantities of mail each Christmas.

With the approach of winter, weather conditions are changing throughout the country. Automobiles should undergo a change also. The battery, windshield wiper, tires, and brakes of your car should be checked carefully, and a good, properly diluted antifreeze should be used.

Your car should be well checked before the winter driving begins so that it can be handled easily in any kind of weather.

Of course, the driver should always be in condition to drive, too; if he is in doubt about his condition, he should not drive. Someone has wisely said, "When you are in doubt about passing a car, don't." It's Smart to Drive Carefully!

Water Dollars

By PAUL STAYTON
(McClure Syndicate—WNU Service.)

SPIC ALVORD aimed a plump finger at the contraption of wheels, fans and tube coils on the platform attached to his gaudy trailer. Turning to the wisp of an old man beside him in the hot, dusty alley of Sundog, he urged: "Just the thing for your dry claim. Watch!"

He touched a button. A tiny motor, prestone-cooled—always a good sales point—began to purr. Wheels flashed. Fans cut air. A two-inch pipe coughed and was spouting water.

Old Hank Barth hitched his battered canteen higher on one thin shoulder. Baby-blue eyes stared incredulously at the jet. "Where's it all comin' from?" he marveled.

Spic restrained a chuckle. His guarded inquiries about the dumbness of the prosperous old prospector had not been time wasted.

"Air contains moisture," Spic orated. "These fans draw air into those coils, where electrical currents," he lied glibly, "condense its moisture into a gushing stream, pure and cold."

He stopped the machinery, and the jet died. No use draining the tank cleverly concealed in the trailer. Barth smiled like a child meeting Santa. "If I had that much water steady for my sluice boxes—"

"Only two grand," Spic encouraged.

Barth patted a bulging vest pocket. "Ain't the money worries me. It's temperature—"

"Temperature?" Spic asked, puzzled.

"Yep. It's hot here, but this is nothin' to out at my diggin's. Fiery Desert is like a candle. Air so sizzlin' mightn't have enough water to make this proposition work at all."

"All air contains moisture," Spic argued.

"Not on old Fiery."

"How far?"

"Forty mile." Barth glanced aside. "Just give me time to load up my truck with supplies. Stuck it out waitin' for rain till I drank my last tin of tomatoes."

Spic hustled him towards the luxurious sevan that drew the trailer. Take no chance on a sucker talking and being tipped off. "Can't wait. Bring you back afterwards for your truck," he promised.

Before entering, Barth examined his canteen; without water one can live only a few days on a blistering desert. Spic slid behind the wheel and placed his own canteen on the seat between them. The gauge showed enough gas to make the forty-mile trip there and back nicely, he judged.

Soon to the hum of an air-cooled motor, the desert was opening. Chol-la cacti and sun-seared ridges streamed past the windows of the speeding car. Presently the road grew bad. Second gear was often necessary. Spic gulped time and again from his canteen. Barth sipped occasionally at his. "How much farther?" Spic questioned when they had gone forty-six miles.

"Just a piece."

"You said forty."

"Forty as the crow flies," Barth hedged. "By this corkscrew road it's farther. How's gas?"

Spic looked down, startled. Second-gear driving had drawn heavily on the tank. It was almost empty.

Barth sighed. "Drive on. I'll foot it back to town and bring some out on my truck. There's one spring on the way I can strike for water. Take me four-five days." He smiled pityingly at Spic's soft bulk. "You'll hafta stay at the shack. You never could hoof it to town."

The starved motor was coughing when Spic stopped before a rough board cabin overlooking a row of sluice boxes in a dry yellow gulch. Despite the furnace blast of a late afternoon sun he smiled confidently as he got out and led the old prospector behind the trailer. His touch awoke the water machine. Wheels, fans, pistons, flashed into action. Water gushed.

Barth grinned to his ears. "It's got even the air of old Fiery licked," he chuckled.

Together they lifted and lugged the heavy but worthless contraption into the shadow of the cabin and set it down. "Stay here and don't get lost," Barth advised. "The sooner I start the sooner I'll get back with gas."

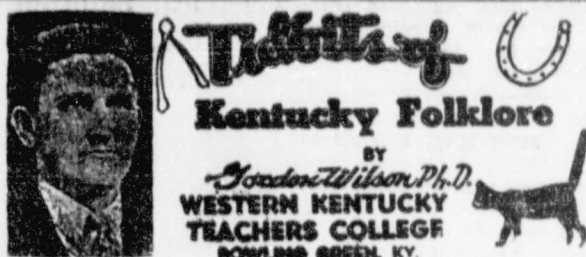

He turned abruptly and struck off into the desert, across lengthening rock shadows. Spic watched him out of sight, then entered the hot little shack. On a shelf he saw bacon, beans, flour. Sight of the dry food made him thirsty.

Spic raised his now light canteen to his lips, drained it in two quick gulps, then lumbered across the room to a barrel above which a tin dipper hung.

Suddenly he remembered what Barth had said about drinking his last tin of tomatoes. Hands trembling, he began to search. There was no water in the cabin, nor any substitute.

Three days later a weary figure dropped flat beside a desert spring, thrust its face into the water and drank thirstily. One more day to Sundog.

Though life-giving, the water was hot and bad. Hank Barth sighed. The fine cold drinks Spic was enjoying whenever he turned on that water machine!

DOMINICKERS

Since pure-bred chickens have become common, it may be necessary to explain to the younger generation some of the terms of other times, for fear that some of the earlier knowledge may vanish from the earth. Now what is or was a "dominicker" chicken? That, dear children, was a black-and-white one, usually a Plymouth Rock or one of its grades. Dominicker hens were motherly old souls, taking more than an average interest in their biddies. They scratched for food, they kept an eye out for hawks and gave a warning signal when one appeared in the sky, they brooded over their young and talked baby talk to them when day was over and fear-ful night came on. So motherly were they that they passed into a proverb: a motherly woman, particularly if she were inclined to be plump and good-natured, was often called a "dominicker." Of course, there were all sizes of dominickers, and the others besides the hens received attention. A young rooster of the dominicker breed was about as sassy a brute as anything that walks on two legs. His first efforts to crow may have been comic, but after he really got the hang of crowing, he could wake up all the neighborhood. Not often did he get this chance, for he usually was growing a pair of large drumsticks that proved his undoing. Some fine Sunday the preacher came, and the young rooster went.

Then there were "bunty" hens, chunky ones with very short tails. They were odd-looking creatures but often were as motherly as the dominickers. Again they became useful as figures of speech: some dumpy lady was said to look like a bunty hen.

The symbol of spunk was to be a "blue hen's chicken." Blue hens were of a great mixture of blood, but they were mongrel in blood only, never in spirit. When a fracas took place in the yard in which various chickens were involved in a free-for-all fight, the blue hens always knew how to take care of themselves. I suppose their chickens inherited this characteristic, in spite of scientific theories. My last contact with a blue hen—at least, the last one I remember—was enough to keep the word before me. We had an old blue hen who persisted in sitting on an empty nest in the stable loft. After I took away her eggs, because her nest was right where I had to fork the hay down for the stock, she kept on in her sacred duty of brooding. One Sunday afternoon while I was feeding the stock, I saw her and at once resolved to break her for ever from sitting on a bare depression in the hay. I seized her, stuck her head beneath her wing, and then turned her around violently a dozen times or so. When I threw her out the stable-loft window, she could not adjust herself because of being addled and actually broke her neck in the fall. I picked her up and stalked into the parlor, where my older sister was entertaining her beau. The look I got and the subsequent punishment of having to heat some water and pick the old hen made that blue hen a very vivid memory. I suppose that something of the old hen's persistence in trying to nest in the hay has helped me to remember so long the quality implied in the proverbs made about the mongrel race of the blue hens.

"LET IT SINK!"

The current story on London's damp weather tells of the Australian soldier who after having experienced many weeks of continued rainy weather looked up at the barrage balloons over the city and quietly remarked: "Why don't they cut 'em loose and let the place sink?"

VALUE GROWING

In 1914, a barrel of crude oil produced about 18 per cent gasoline; today it produces 45 per cent with some processes extracting as high as 70 per cent.
